(2) The estate of the deceased shall be deemed to include:

- (a) property of which the deceased was at the time of his death competent to dispose;
- (b) property taken as a donatio mortis causa made by the deceased or taken under a disposition made by him purporting to operate as an immediate gift inter vivos, whether by way of transfer, delivery, declaration of trust or otherwise, which has not been bona fide made three years before his death, or taken under any gift whenever made, if bona fide possession and enjoyment of such property have not been assumed by the donee immediately upon the gift and thenceforward retained to the entire exclusion of the donor, or of any benefit to him by contract or otherwise;
- (c) property which belonged to the deceased, or of which he was competent to dispose, of which he has disposed at any time within three years of his death in any manner other than for valuable consideration paid to the deceased for his own use and benefit: where such disposition has been made for full valuable consideration such consideration shall be subject to the same liability in respect of estate duty as the property so disposed of was subject, and where any such disposition was made for partial consideration the value of the consideration shall be allowed as a deduction from the value of the property for the purposes of estate duty;
- (d) property which the deceased, having been absolutely entitled thereto, has caused or may cause to be transferred to or vested in himself and any other person jointly whether by disposition or otherwise, or any purchase or investment made by the deceased alone, or in concert, or by arrangement with any other person, so that the beneficial interest therein or in some part thereof passes or accrues by survivorship on his death to such other person;
- (e) property passing under any past or future disposition made by the deceased verbally, or by any instrument not taking effect as a will, whereby an interest in such property or the proceeds of sale thereof for life or any other period determinable by reference to death is reserved or otherwise secured, either expressly or by implication, to the deceased, or whereby the deceased may have reserved to himself the right, by the exercise of any power, to restore to himself or to reclaim the absolute interest in such property or the proceeds of sale thereof (notwithstanding, in cases where the disposition is contained in any instrument, such instrument may have been made for valuable consideration as between the deceased and any other person);
- (f) money payable to the estate of the deceased under any policy of insurance on his life and money received under a policy of insurance effected by the deceased on his life where the policy is wholly kept up by him for the benefit of a donee, whether nominee or assignee, or a part of such money in proportion to the premiums paid by him where the policy is partially kept up by the deceased for such benefit;

- (g) property in which the deceased or any other person had an interest ceasing on the death of the deceased to the extent to which a benefit accrues or arises by the cesser of such interest : but exclusive of property the interest in which of the deceased or other person was only an interest as holder of an office, or recipient of the benefits of a charity, or as a corporation sole;
- (h) an annuity or other interest purchased or provided by the deceased, either by himself alone or in concert or by arrangement with any other person, to the extent of the beneficial interest accruing or arising by survivorship or otherwise on the death of the deceased;

Provided always that the provision marked (d) or (e) in this sub-section shall not apply to any property disposed of by the deceased for full valuable consideration, but such consideration shall be subject to the same liability in respect of estate duty as the property so disposed of was subject; if such consideration consists wholly or in part of any benefit or of any periodic payment which terminates on the death of the deceased, estate duty shall be payable on the value of such benefit or periodic payment as if calculated at the time it was created or provided, and where any such disposition was made for partial consideration the value of the consideration shall be allowed as a deduction from the value of the property for the purposes of estate duty.

(3) Estate duty shall be paid in respect of all property of the deceased situate in the Colony, wherever his death may have occurred, and in case the deceased was at the time of his death domiciled in the Colony it shall also be paid in respect of his movable property and effects wherever situate.

- (b) in respect of any gifts or dispositions for public or charitable purposes and to the entire exclusion of the deceased made by the deceased which in the case of any one donee do not exceed £500, or which, if exceeding that amount, were made more than twelve months before the date of the death of the deceased;

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Minutes of the Meeting held on 15th December, 1959.

Present: His Excellency the Governor.

The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer.

The Honourable A. L. Hardy, B.E.M., J.P.

The Honourable T. A. Gilruth, J.P.

The Honourable S. Miller, J.P.

The Honourable A. Mercer, O.B.E.

The Honourable H. C. Harding, O.B.E., J.P.

The Honourable J. T. Clement.

The Honourable J. Bound, E.D., J.P.

The Meeting opened with prayers read by the Reverend J. O. Vere-Stead.

2. The Minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 26th September, 1959, were confirmed.

3. The Honourable J. Bound, by command, laid on the table the following papers:—

Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Executive Council since the meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 4th May, 1959.

4. Resolution — Live Stock Quarantine Regulations. In introducing the Resolution the Honourable S. Miller said

“Your Excellency :

I want to refer to the Live Stock Quarantine (Amendment) Regulations, 1958, made under the Live Stock Ordinance and presented to this Council on 4th May last. At that time I certainly, and possibly other Members of Council did not fully realise the implication of the words “or through”.

We all know the reason for the amendment — Sir Eric Pridie two or three years ago was very disturbed at the prevalence of rabies in South America and he recommended to Government that we should have a longer period of quarantine — a six months period for dogs coming out of South America — which I and every other Member thought a sound suggestion.

When the Regulation was passed, however, the words “or through” were inserted and I and possibly other Members, at the time, interpreted the phrase as “passing through” South America overland. It was not intimated at that time, and I certainly did not regard it so, to refer to dogs coming from Britain on vessels such as Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey ships, which of course do not pass through South American land territory.

Rabies is a disease we certainly do not want ever to see in this Colony, not only because of its effects on stock but because of the danger to human life; but rabies is a virus disease and is transmitted through the saliva of the animal and is therefore a contagious disease.

I am not a veterinary surgeon and unfortunately we do not have one in the Colony but a contagious disease means that there must be physical contact. Any dog coming from England on vessels such as “A.E.S.” which do not call at South America, is regarded as a dog coming from a country free from rabies and a quarantine period of 90 days only is imposed from the date of departure from England. But these dogs coming on “A.E.S.” go into quarantine at the Camber along with dogs from South America so there is physical contact at the Quarantine Station — yet dogs from South America have to suffer a quarantine period of 180 days which is neither a sound nor sensible way in which to quarantine dogs. I do not mean to suggest that dogs coming from England should therefore also have a quarantine period of 180 days — that is very far from what I am trying to suggest. What I do suggest is that the question of “passing through” South America on board ship and thereby qualifying for the 180 day period, should be reconsidered because 6 to 8 months, including the period before reaching South America, is a very large gap in the life of a dog, and in the life of a young dog a very serious gap because as any sheepfarmer or dog trainer knows, if you have a break in the training of a young dog it can have a serious effect because to obtain a peak of efficiency, that training must be maintained from the time it is started.

It would seem to me then that in view of the fact that rabies is a contagious disease and may only be passed on by physical contact it is quite safe enough to regard dogs coming via South America on Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey vessels as having no land contact and should be considered to come under the ex-United Kingdom period of 90 days quarantine.

Although one cannot regard sheep diseases in the same light as rabies, it is a fact that the period spent by sheep in lighters in Montevideo whilst in transit is not regarded here as having any possible chance of infection.

Sheep so imported do not suffer the ex-South America period of quarantine but are released almost immediately on reaching the Colony.

These particular dogs that come out on Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey vessels, from the time they leave Britain to the time of their release will have to suffer a quarantine period of up to eight months which to me is quite fantastic in view of the infinitesimal likelihood of coming into contact with rabies infection in Montevideo.

It has been suggested to me by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, who unfortunately is not here today, that it would be impossible to impose the responsibility on the master of a vessel to see that no canine contact is made in Montevideo; but I cannot see this. A master of a vessel is not in that position unless he is a responsible person and it is very easy for him to lock a dog up somewhere – the bosun's locker or the paint locker, and to put the key in his pocket if he is going ashore.

I do not think there is anything more I can say as I think I have made myself clear. Rabies is a contagious disease passed on only by actual canine contact and dogs have been coming via South America for a very long time. Sir Eric Pridie did not say whether the extent of rabies in South America had got very much worse in recent years; whether it is twice as bad or ten times as bad I do not know but they have been coming through safely and although I would like to see the 180 days quarantine period maintained for dogs coming "out of" South America, I would like to propose that we regard the "coming through" on Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey or similar vessels – provided the master can produce a sworn statement that there has been no contact – as being clear of South America and therefore remaining under the ex-United Kingdom quarantine period of 90 days.

I would therefore like to move the following Resolution and hope that other Honourable Members will be able to give their views."

"BE IT RESOLVED that Government should consider the question of the period of quarantine now imposed under the provisions of the Live Stock Quarantine Regulations with a view to seeing whether it could be reduced in the case of dogs imported from the United Kingdom through South American ports without having had any canine contact in such ports."

The Honourable A. L. Hardy seconded the Resolution.

The Honourable J. Bound stated that Government had in fact sought the further advice of the Medical and Veterinary Advisers to the Secretary of State on the matter and that a reply was awaited.

In debate the Honourable T. A. Gilruth said

"Your Excellency :

I feel that I ought to speak against the motion put forward. This was very carefully considered before an amendment was made to the Livestock Regulations and it was quite clear to me that it was to apply not only to dogs coming from South America, but also to dogs touching at South American ports – I thought that this was quite clear to everyone.

The Honourable Member for the West Falkland admits that by putting the onus on the Master of the vessel to shut the dog up, etc., is not absolutely certain, but reasonably certain, but I contend that in order to keep out this disease and ensure beyond all possible doubt that it is kept out of the Colony, the law as amended should stand.

Mr. Miller refers to the difficulty of quarantine when dogs come into the Falkland Islands and points out that one dog could be put into quarantine for 180 days with a dog which is in for 90 days where they have contact, but this could be got over by simple departmental arrangements over here.

Sir Eric Pridie advised very strongly that these steps be taken and it was carefully considered and the law amended accordingly – this being so, I think that the law should stand."

His Excellency said

"Well, Gentlemen, I think the position is, as the Honourable J. Bound has said, that Government has in fact sought further advice on this matter. As the Honourable T. Gilruth has said, we did consider this matter very carefully indeed. Rabies is a most terrible disease as we all know, and we certainly cannot take any risk of this being introduced into this Colony.

We know how extremely rigid the English law is on this subject and how very insistent they are in England that all dogs, no matter where they come from, must undergo six months quarantine. Whether in our circumstances we dare make any variation I really cannot say at this time. There are precautions that can be taken such as anti-rabies injections which certain other countries can and do accept. We have put all these facts forward to the Secretary of State for the advice of his medical and of his veterinary officers and no doubt we shall receive a reply before not too long.

I do know and appreciate the point Mr. Miller made that for sheep dogs, particularly working dogs' a long period certainly can do them no good – I think that is quite clear but as I have said already we cannot run any risk of the introduction of rabies into this Colony. Therefore, Gentlemen, I would suggest in view of the action that has already been taken we could leave the Resolution as it stands in Mr. Miller's name without the necessity of taking a vote on it at this meeting. As soon as advice is received you will, of course, be informed."

5. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable J. Bound moved the adoption of the following Resolution :—

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee on Finance for the period May to October, 1959, be adopted".

The Resolution was adopted unanimously.

6. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable A. Mercer moved the first reading of the Bill "To amend the Pensions (Increase) Ordinance, 1959" and said

"Your Excellency :

A slight error has recently been brought to attention in the drafting of the Pensions (Increase) Ordinance passed by this Council in May, 1959.

The definition of a "Scheduled Government" is given as that appearing in the Pensions Regulations, 1949, and no account is taken of the amendments to these regulations over the past ten years.

The addition of the words "as amended" to the definition of a Scheduled Government in the 1959 Pensions (Increase) Ordinance will remedy the former omission and this is precisely what the Bill now before Council is intended to do.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was read a first time and no objections being raised it was read a second time. In Committee Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to. The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

7. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer introduced the Bill "To amend the Estate Duty Ordinance" and said

"Your Excellency :

It is not often in these expensive times that one has the pleasure of introducing legislation designed to reduce taxation, and I must therefore hasten to explain that the reasons for this Bill are moral rather than financial.

There have been several requests from responsible persons that the existing rates of Estate Duty should be reviewed because, it was considered, they were unduly severe particularly in the case of the smaller estates, and where property consists mainly of assets other than cash, e.g. a sheepfarm where the capital is represented by its buildings, machinery, fencing and stock, the measures necessary to raise sufficient money to pay estate duty at the current rates might well have an effect that would not be in the interests of the industry or of the Colony.

The Bill that is therefore before Council proposes to modify quite considerably the rates of duty payable, and opportunity is also taken to introduce several additional forms of relief not available under the current Ordinance as well as proposals to widen the scope of the existing Ordinance to counter to some extent devices for the avoidance of duty.

If this Bill becomes law, estates valued at less than £5,000 will be free from estate duty. At the moment the free range ends at £100. At the other end of the scale a maximum of 10% is proposed for estates of £40,000 and upwards. The maximum under the existing law is 7.5% for estates exceeding £2,000,000 and an estate of £40,000 currently attracts duty at the rate of 18%.

The rate of interest on estate duty is to be reduced from 5% to 2%.

Provision is also made for marginal relief where the value of an estate exceeds by a small amount the figure at which the rate of duty changes, and certain types of gifts up to £500 are to be exempt from estate duty.

The rate of duty charged on livestock, agricultural machinery and implements, farm buildings and all equipment used for farming purposes will, it is proposed, be assessed at 50% of the normal rate. Agricultural land has been purposely omitted from this relief because the only available basis of valuation is the original cost which in many cases was 4/- per acre or even less.

The proposed measures to counter devices for the avoidance of estate duty include provision for the payment of duty on property vested in the joint names of the deceased and another and passing by survivorship on his death, on gifts made by the deceased at any time in which he reserved any interest to himself and on property in which the deceased had an interest ceasing on his death.

Finally, the Bill provides for the payment of duty on the property (other than immovable property) of a deceased person located or deposited outside the Falkland Islands provided that such property has not also been assessed for the payment of estate duty in the country where it is located or deposited.

It is impossible to give any accurate forecast of how the proposals in this Bill will affect the revenue of the Colony. The rates of duty have been drastically reduced and the extension of the free range from £100 to £5,000 will mean that comparatively few estates will be subject to the payment of duty. On the other hand the widening of the scope of the Ordinance to include property vested jointly, gifts with reservations, settled property and property in other countries will to some extent at least offset the decrease resulting from the more moderate duty rates and additional reliefs".

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then moved the first reading of the Bill which was seconded by the Honourable J. Bound and read accordingly. The Bill was read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee without amendment. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

8. The Bill "To legalize certain payments made in the year 1958-59 in excess of the Expenditure sanctioned by Ordinance No. 8 of 1958" was introduced by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer who said

"Your Excellency :

I feel that I need say little about the purpose of this Bill which comes up annually shortly after the close of each financial year. It will be observed that expenditure in excess of the amounts provided in the 1958-59 Appropriation Ordinance occurred in only three instances and the Heads of Expenditure involved are those under which unforeseen commitments are constantly arising - Miscellaneous, Pensions and Special Expenditure.

Details of the additional expenditure have been provided at meetings of the Standing Finance Committee and their reports have been duly laid before Council."

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer proposed the first reading of the Bill which was seconded by the Honourable J. Bound and the Bill was read accordingly.

The Bill was read a second time on further motion made and seconded. In Committee Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause, Title, Preamble and Schedule were agreed to and stood part of the Bill. Council resumed and the Bill received its third reading and was passed.

9. In introducing the Bill "Further to amend the Live Stock Ordinance" the Honourable J. Bound said

"Your Excellency :

The object of this Bill is to consolidate Section 11 of the Live Stock Ordinance and to give the Governor in Council power to vary the period within which sheep must be dipped for experimental purposes.

Briefly Sir - the position is this. Experiments in the use of spray dipping have been carried out, but the results so far have been a little inconclusive and it is still too early to permit spray dipping as an alternative to dipping by the immersion method. It is now thought that if the sheep were spray dipped "off the shears" the results may prove more effective. Further experiments are therefore indicated and indeed should be encouraged.

Unfortunately as the law now stands, dipping is only permissible from 1st March to 30th June - subject to 30 days extension. This period does not coincide with shearing which commences much earlier and Section 11 (1) (b) of the Bill now before Council gives the Governor in Council power to advance or extend the dipping period, subject to such conditions as may be imposed. If the Bill becomes law it is proposed to authorise any farm that so desires to spray dip up to 3,000 sheep or lambs for experimental purposes, without necessarily requiring the same sheep to be dipped by the immersion method at a later date. Full reports on results would of course be expected.

It is with this object in view that amending legislation is now brought before Council for consideration.

I therefore beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable H. C. Harding seconded the Bill and it was read a second time and passed through all its stages.

10. The Honourable J. Bound moved the first reading of the Bill "To amend the Application of Enactments Ordinance, 1954" and said

"Your Excellency :

This Bill arises out of a suggestion from the Secretary of State, at the instigation of the Board of Trade, to the effect that there would be much advantage in establishing uniform practice in relation to Marine Insurance in Colonial territories - and the Secretary of State has invited this Government to consider the introduction of Legislation similar to the Marine Insurance Act, 1906, and the Marine Insurance (Gambling Policies) Act, 1909.

There is a wide measure of international uniformity in this branch of maritime law and any extension of that uniformity would be helpful to commerce generally - and it would be advantageous to the Colony to follow as closely as possible the established practice in other Colonial territories.

It is therefore proposed to apply the two United Kingdom Acts to the Colony.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded the Bill and it was read a second time and passed through all its stages.

11. In introducing the Bill "Further to amend the Customs Ordinance" the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer remarked

"Your Excellency :

Ordinance Number 1 of 1959, passed at the March, 1959, meeting of this Council, sought to amend section 31 of the Customs Ordinance by extending the period that the Collector of Customs may permit certain goods, such as commercial samples, to be temporarily imported without payment of duty. The amending Ordinance did not go far enough inasmuch as it was also necessary to amend Section 32 which deals with the disposal of deposits made on goods temporarily imported.

This omission is now to be rectified and I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable A. L. Hardy seconded.

The Bill was read a first time and on further motion made and seconded was read a second time. His Excellency declared the Council to be in Committee and Clauses 1 and 2 were agreed to as were the Enacting Clause and Title.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

At the end of the business on the Agenda the Honourable A. L. Hardy made the following short speech.

"Your Excellency :

May I have your permission to say a few words?

Your Excellency, Members of the Council. As this will probably be the last time that Mr. Mercer will attend at the present Council, I would like to make a few brief remarks. Mr. Mercer has served this Colony for about 40 years, did service in South Georgia, Fox Bay and Stanley and he has always carried out his duties with great efficiency. I would like Council to join me in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Mercer many happy years of retirement."

Cries of "hear, hear".

His Excellency then said

"I am sure all Honourable Members agree very fully indeed with those remarks made by Mr. Hardy. Mr. Mercer, during his many years of service, has performed his job calmly, efficiently and without any fuss and it has been a very important job indeed, because communications are very vital to us here in the Falklands. We are going to miss Mr. Mercer and his wife, who also has done a great deal for this Colony in her Red Cross work. I am sorry that they are leaving, but on behalf of all of us I would most heartily support what Mr. Hardy has said and wish them every possible happiness in the future."

The Honourable A. Mercer, in reply, thanked His Excellency and Members of Council for their kind words.

Before adjourning Council His Excellency said

"Honourable Members :

This is likely to be the last meeting of this present Council. Its life would normally end on the 29th February because then a period of four years would have been completed, but since there is no pressing business before us and in order to fit in best with farm arrangements, and moreover to give the new Council, which will be constituted in the next General Election, adequate time to consider a budget for next year, I am proposing to dissolve Council on the 2nd January next. I would hope that the General Election would be held in March - the preliminaries, as you know, preparation of voters' rolls and so on, take some time.

It has been a memorable Council I think because during its life we had the privilege of a visit from H. R. H. the Duke of Edinburgh and I am sure that visit is never going to be forgotten in this Colony and before I put the motion for the adjournment I would like to take this opportunity of thanking all the unofficial members of this Council for their services during the past four years. I know you are very busy men, all of you, but you have never hesitated to give your time to the service of Government in many ways, Council, Standing Finance Committee and to various committees of other sorts and I am most grateful to you for all the work you have done in the interests of the Colony. If I may say so, Gentlemen, it has been a pleasure and a privilege to serve with you and I would like to say quite simply, thank you very much indeed".

Council adjourned sine die.

“Employer” includes Her Majesty in Her Government of the Colony, and any body of persons whether incorporated or not, and any managing agent of an employer and the legal representative of a deceased employer, and where the services of a workman are temporarily lent or let on hire to another person by the person with whom the workman has entered into a contract of service or apprenticeship, the latter shall, for the purposes of this Ordinance be deemed to continue to be the employer of the workman whilst he is working for that other person;

“Partial disablement” means, where the disablement is of a temporary nature, such disablement as reduces the earning capacity of a workman in any employment in which he was engaged at the time of the accident resulting in the disablement, and, where the disablement is of a permanent nature, such disablement as reduces his earning capacity in every employment which he was capable of undertaking at that time :

Provided that every injury specified in the Fourth Schedule hereto shall be deemed to result in permanent partial disablement except where the injury or combination of injuries is such that the percentage or aggregate percentage of the loss of earning capacity as specified in that Schedule amounts to one hundred per cent or more.

“Qualified medical practitioner” means a member of the medical profession registered under the Medical Practitioners, Midwives and Dentists Ordinance;

“Total disablement” means such disablement, whether of a temporary or permanent nature, as incapacitates a workman for all work which he was capable of performing at the time of the accident resulting in such disablement :

Provided that permanent total disablement shall be deemed to result from the permanent total loss of the sight of both eyes or from any combination of injuries specified in the Fourth Schedule hereto where the aggregate percentage of the loss of earning capacity, as specified in that Schedule against those injuries, amounts to one hundred per cent;

“Workman” means any person employed by way of manual labour who has entered into and works under a contract of service or apprenticeship with an employer whether the contract was made before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, and whether such contract is expressed or implied, is oral or in writing, and the term includes any person whose employment is listed in the First Schedule whether such person is employed by way of manual labour or in a subordinate or supervisory capacity and includes also a person engaged in plying for hire with any vehicle the use of which is obtained by that person under any contract of bailment (other than a hire purchase agreement) in consideration of a share in the earnings :

Provided that in the case of those forms of employment listed in the second part of the First Schedule only those persons who are employed on vessels registered in the Colony or employed in the coastal waters of the Colony shall be regarded as workmen for the purposes of this Ordinance:

Provided further that the following persons shall not be regarded as workmen for the purposes of this Ordinance -

- (a) persons whose employment is of a casual nature and who are employed or otherwise than for the purposes of the employer's trade or business, not being persons employed for the purposes of any game or recreation and engaged or paid through a club; or
- (b) out-workers ; or
- (c) persons in the naval, military or air forces of the Crown;
or
- (d) members of the employer's family dwelling in his house.

(2) Any reference to a workman who has been injured shall, where the workman is dead, include a reference to his legal personal representative or to his dependants or other person to whom or for whose benefit compensation is payable.

(3) The exercise and performance of the powers and duties of a local or other public authority or of any department of the Government shall for the purposes of this Ordinance, unless a contrary intention appears, be deemed to be the trade or business of such authority or department.

(4) If on any proceedings for the recovery of compensation under this Ordinance it appears to the Commissioner by whom the claim to compensation is to be settled that the contract of service or apprenticeship under which the injured person was working at the time when the accident causing the injury happened was illegal, he may, if having regard to all the circumstances of the case he thinks proper so to do, deal with the matter as if the injured person had at the time aforesaid been a person working under a valid contract of service or apprenticeship.

(5) For the purposes of this Ordinance the term “time of the accident” where it applies or refers to an injury to a workman shall be regarded as denoting, where applicable, the time when the workman contracted a disease attributable to an accident or to the nature of his employment in accordance with section 3 (b) (i) and (ii) of this Ordinance.

Employer's liability for compensation.

3. If personal injury is caused to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall be liable to pay compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance :

Provided that the employer shall not be so liable and no compensation shall be payable —

Slight injury.

(a) in respect of any injury which does not result in the total or partial disablement of the workman for a period exceeding three days;

Disease.

(b) in respect of any disease contracted by the workman unless in the opinion of the Senior Medical Officer :—

(i) the disease was solely and directly attributable to a specified injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, or

(ii) it can be established or presumed with reasonable certainty that the disease was directly attributable to the nature of his employment.

Misconduct.

(c) in respect of any injury to a workman resulting from an accident which is directly attributable to :—

(i) the workman having been at the time thereof under the influence of alcohol or drugs, or

(ii) the wilful disobedience of the workman to an order expressly given, or of a regulation or rule, expressly made, for the purpose of securing the safety of workmen, or

(iii) the wilful removal or disregard by the workman of any safety guard, appliance or other device which he knew to have been provided for the purpose of securing the safety of workmen.

Employer's liability for negligence.

4. When an injury to a workman is caused by the personal negligence or wilful act of the employer or of some person for whose act or default the employer is responsible, nothing in this Ordinance shall effect any civil liability of the employer, but in that case the workman may, at his option, either claim compensation under this Ordinance or take proceedings independently of this Ordinance; but the employer shall not be liable to pay compensation for personal injury to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment both independently of and also under this Ordinance and shall not be liable to any proceedings independently of this Ordinance, except in the case of personal negligence or wilful act on the part of such employer or of some person for whose act or default the employer is responsible.

Independent action.

5. If, within the time hereinafter in this Ordinance limited for taking proceedings, an action is brought to recover damages independently of this Ordinance for injury caused by an accident, and it is determined in such action or on appeal that the injury is one for which the employer is not liable in such action, but that he would have been liable to pay compensation under the provisions of this Ordinance, the action shall be dismissed; but the Court in which the action is tried, or, if the determination is the determination of an appeal (by either party) by an appellate tribunal, that tribunal shall, if the plaintiff so choose, proceed to assess such compensation, but may deduct from such compensation all or part of the costs which, in its judgment, have been caused by the plaintiff bringing the action instead of proceeding under this Ordinance. In any proceeding under this section, when the court or appellate tribunal assesses the compensation, it shall give a certificate stating the compensation it has awarded and the directions it has given as to the deduction of costs, and such certificate shall have the force and effect of and shall be registered as an agreement under this Ordinance:

Provided that an appellate tribunal may, instead of itself assessing such compensation, remit the case to the Commissioner for the assessment of the compensation and in such case may direct the Commissioner to deduct from the amount of compensation assessed by him all or part of such costs as aforesaid.

6. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the amount of compensation shall be:—

- (a) as specified in the second schedule to this Ordinance where death results from the injury;
- (b) as specified in the third schedule to this Ordinance where permanent total disablement results from the injury;
- (c) as specified in the fourth schedule to this Ordinance where permanent partial disablement results from the injury.

Compensation for death, permanent total disablement and permanent partial disablement.

(2) Where more injuries than one are caused by the same accident, the amount of compensation payable in accordance with subsection (1) of this section shall be aggregated, but not so as in any case to exceed the amount which would have been payable if permanent total disablement had resulted from the injuries.

(3) There shall be deducted from any lump sum to which any workman is entitled or to which any dependant or dependants of a workman are entitled the amount of any payment or allowance which the workman or any dependant of a workman has already received from the employer by way of compensation subsequent to the injury and prior to the receipt of such lump sum.

7. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance the amount of compensation payable where temporary disablement, whether total or partial, results from the injury shall be a half-monthly payment payable on the sixteenth day from the date of disablement, and thereafter half-monthly during the disablement or during a period of five years, whichever period is shorter, of a sum equal to two thirds of the workman's monthly earnings at the time of the accident:

Temporary disablement.

Provided there shall be deducted from any half-monthly payments to which the workman is entitled the amount of any payment or allowance which the workman has received from the employer by way of compensation during the period of disablement prior to the receipt of the first half-monthly payment:

Provided further that any half-monthly payments may be so adjusted as to provide that the sum total of such half-monthly payments added to any earnings the workman is earning or is reasonably able to earn in some suitable employment or business after the accident does not exceed the sum total of the earnings of the workman at the time of the accident.

(2) When the workman ceases to suffer from the temporary disablement before the date on which any half-monthly payment falls due, there shall be payable in respect of that half month a sum proportionate to the duration of the disablement in that half month.

8. (1) For the purposes of this Ordinance the earnings of a workman shall be computed in such manner as is best calculated to give his true monthly earnings at the date of the accident, subject to the following provisions:—

Method of calculating earnings.

- (a) where the workman has been exclusively employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation during a continuous period of not less than six months immediately preceding the accident in the grade or form of employment in which he was employed at the time of the accident, his monthly earnings shall be deemed to be the average amount of his monthly earnings during the last six completed months of that period.
- (b) where the workman has been exclusively employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation in the grade or form of employment in which he was employed at the time of the accident during a continuous period of less than six months immediately preceding the accident, regard shall be had, in calculating the workman's earnings to the prevailing rates that may have been negotiated between the representatives of Employers and the representatives of Employees respectively in respect of the grade or form of employment in which the workman was employed at the time of the accident.

(c) Where at the time of the accident a workman was employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation for a specific purpose or task in respect of which special terms of remuneration were agreed between the employer and the workman and where he had previously been employed by the same employer during a continuous period of not less than six months immediately preceding his being employed for the specific purpose or task in the course of which the accident occurred then for the purposes of this Ordinance his monthly earnings shall be deemed to be the average amount of his earnings during the last six completed months of that period during which he was employed previously to his employment for such specific purpose or task.

(d) Where at the time of the accident a workman was employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation for a specific purpose or task in respect of which special terms of remuneration were agreed between the employer and the workman but had not previously been employed by such employer or had been employed by such employer for a continuous period of less than six months, then for the purposes of this Ordinance his monthly earnings shall be calculated in accordance with paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section.

(2) Where a workman is employed in the same occupation under contracts of service with two or more employers under which he worked at one time for one such employer and at another time for another such employer, his monthly earnings shall be computed as if his earnings under all such contracts were earnings in the employment of the employers for whom he was working at the time of the accident.

(3) For the purpose of this section a period of service shall be deemed to be continuous which has not been interrupted by a period of absence from work, other than duly authorised leave of absence, exceeding fourteen days.

(4) For the purposes of this section the earnings of a seaman who, in the ordinary course of events, signs on or is employed on any vessel registered in the Colony or operating mainly in the coastal waters of the Colony for the purpose of making a single voyage or a limited number of voyages shall be calculated in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (a) and (b) of subsection (1) of this section.

Review.

9. (1) Any half-monthly payment payable under this Ordinance either under an agreement between the parties or under an order of a Commissioner, may be reviewed by the Commissioner on the application either of the employer or of the workman accompanied by the certificate of a qualified medical practitioner stating that there has been a change in the condition of the workman, or subject to regulations made under this Ordinance, on application made without such certificate.

(2) Any half-monthly payment may, on review under this section and subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, be continued, increased, decreased or ended, or if the accident is found to have resulted in permanent disablement, be converted to the lump sum to which the workman is entitled less any amount which he has already received by way of half-monthly payments.

10. Any right to receive half-monthly payments may, by agreement between the parties, or, if the parties cannot agree and the payments have been continued for not less than six months, on the application of either party to the Commissioner, be redeemed by the payment of a lump sum of such amount as may be agreed to by the parties or determined by the Commissioner, as the case may be.

Commutation of half-monthly payments.

11. (1) Compensation payable where the death of a workman has resulted from an injury shall be deposited with the Registrar, and any sum so deposited shall be apportioned among the dependants of the deceased workman or any of them in such proportion as the Commissioner thinks fit, or may in the discretion of the Commissioner, be allotted to any one such dependant, and the sum so allotted to any dependant shall be paid to him or be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with for his benefit in such manner as the Commissioner thinks fit.

Distribution of compensation on death.

(2) Compensation payable where permanent disablement has resulted from an injury, and lump sums payable under the provisions of the preceding section where temporary disablement has resulted from an injury, shall be deposited with the Registrar, and any sum so deposited shall be paid to the person entitled thereto or be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with for his benefit in such manner as the Commissioner thinks fit.

Lump sums.

(3) Any other compensation payable under this Ordinance may be deposited with the Registrar and when so deposited, shall be paid by the Registrar to the person entitled thereto.

Other cases.

(4) The receipt of the Registrar shall be a sufficient discharge in respect of any amount deposited with him under the provisions of this Ordinance.

Receipt of Registrar.

(5) On the deposit of any money under subsection (1), the Registrar may deduct therefrom the actual cost of the workman's funeral expenses, to an amount not exceeding thirty-five pounds, and pay the same to the person by whom such expenses were incurred, and shall, if he thinks necessary, cause notice to be published or to be served on each dependant in such manner as he thinks fit, calling upon the dependants to appear before the Commissioner on such date as he may fix for determining the distribution of the compensation. If the Commissioner is satisfied, after any inquiry which he may deem necessary, that no dependant exists, he shall direct the Registrar to repay the balance of the money to the employer by whom it was paid. The Registrar shall, on application by the employer furnish a statement showing in detail all disbursements made.

Notice to dependants.

(6) Where a half-monthly payment is payable under this Ordinance to a workman under any legal disability, the Commissioner may, of his own motion or on application made to him in this behalf, order that the half-monthly payment be paid during the disability to any dependant of the workman or to any other person whom he thinks best fitted to provide for the welfare of the workman.

Workman under disability.

(7) Where, on application made to him in this behalf or otherwise, the Commissioner is satisfied that, on account of neglect of children on the part of a parent, or on account of the variation of the circumstances of any dependant, or for any other sufficient cause, an order of the Commissioner as to the distribution of any sum paid as compensation or as to the manner in which any sum payable to any such dependant is to be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with ought to be varied, the Commissioner may make such order for the variation of the former order as he thinks just in the circumstances of the case:

Variation of order.

Provided that no such order prejudicial to any person shall be made unless such person has been given an opportunity of showing cause why the order should not be made, or shall be made in any case in which it would involve the repayment by a dependant of any sum already paid to him.

Deductions for costs.

(8) The solicitor or agent of a person claiming compensation under this Ordinance shall not be entitled to recover from him any costs in respect of such claim or to claim a lien in respect of such costs on, or deduct such costs from, the sum awarded or agreed as compensation, except such sum as may be awarded by a Commissioner, subject to regulations made under this Ordinance, on an application made either by the person claiming compensation, or by his solicitor or agent to determine the amount of the costs to be paid to the solicitor or agent.

Compensation not to be assigned, attached or charged.

12. Save as provided by this Ordinance, no lump sum or half-monthly payment payable under this Ordinance shall be capable of being assigned, charged or attached or shall pass to any person other than the workman by operation of law, nor shall any claim be set off against the same.

Notice and claim.

13. (1) Proceedings for the recovery under this Ordinance of compensation for an injury shall not be maintainable unless notice of the accident has been given as soon as practicable after the happening thereof and before the workman has voluntarily left the employment in which he was injured, and unless the claim for compensation with respect to such accident has been made within six months from the occurrence of the accident causing the injury, or, in case of death, within six months from the time of death:

Provided that —

- (a) the want of or any defect or inaccuracy in such notice shall not be a bar to the maintenance of such proceedings if the employer is proved to have had knowledge of the accident from any other source at or about the time of the accident, or if it is found in the proceedings for settling the claim that the employer is not, or would not, if a notice or an amended notice were then given and the hearing postponed, be prejudiced in his defence by the want, defect or inaccuracy, or that such want, defect or inaccuracy was occasioned by mistake, absence from the Colony, or other reasonable cause; and
- (b) the failure to make a claim within the period above specified shall not be a bar to the maintenance of such proceedings if it is found that the failure was occasioned by mistake, absence from the Colony, or other reasonable cause.

(2) Notice in respect of an injury under this Ordinance may be given either in writing or orally to the employer (or if there is more than one employer to one of such employers) or to any foreman or other official under whose supervision the workman is employed or to any person designated for the purpose by the employer, and shall give the name and address of the person injured, and shall state in ordinary language the cause of the injury and the date at which the accident happened.

(3) The notice if in writing may be given by delivering the same at, or sending it by post in a registered letter addressed to the residence or place of business of the person to whom it is to be given.

(4) Where the employer is a body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, the notice, if in writing, may also be given by delivering it or by sending it by post in a registered letter addressed to the employer at the office, or, if there be more than one office, any one of the offices, of such body.

Medical examination.

14. (1) Where a workman has given notice of an accident or where an accident has occurred in respect of which the necessity of giving notice under this Ordinance is dispensed with, a workman shall, if the employer offers to have him examined free of charge by a qualified medical practitioner, submit himself for such examination, and any workman who is in receipt of a payment under this Ordinance shall, if so required, submit himself for such examination from time to time :

Provided that a workman shall not be required to submit himself for examination by a qualified medical practitioner otherwise than in accordance with regulations made under this Ordinance, or at more frequent intervals than may be prescribed.

(2) If a workman, being required to do so by the employer under subsection (1) or by the Commissioner at any time, refuses to submit himself for examination by a qualified medical practitioner or in any way obstructs the same, his right to compensation shall be suspended during the continuance of such refusal or obstruction unless, in the case of refusal, he was prevented by any sufficient cause from so submitting himself.

Refusal to be examined.

(3) If a workman, before the expiry of three days from the time at which service of notice of an accident has been effected or, when an accident occurs in respect of which the necessity of giving notice under this Ordinance is dispensed with, before the expiry of three days from the date of such accident, voluntarily and without due cause leaves the vicinity of the place in which he was employed without having been examined by a qualified medical practitioner, his right to compensation shall be suspended until he returns and offers himself for such examination.

Leaving vicinity prior to examination.

(4) Where a workman, whose right to compensation has been suspended under subsection (2) or subsection (3), dies without having submitted himself for medical examination as required by either of those subsections, the Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, direct the payment of compensation to the dependants of the deceased workman.

Death prior to examination.

(5) Where under subsection (2) or subsection (3) a right to compensation is suspended, no compensation shall be payable in respect of the period of suspension.

Compensation not payable during period of suspension.

(6) Where an injured workman has refused to be attended by a qualified medical practitioner whose services have been offered to him by the employer free of charge, or having accepted such offer has deliberately disregarded the instructions of such medical practitioner, then, if it is thereafter proved that the workman has not been regularly attended by a qualified medical practitioner and that such refusal, failure or disregard was unreasonable in the circumstances of the case and that the injury has been aggravated thereby, the injury and resulting disablement shall be deemed to be of the same nature and duration as they might reasonably have been expected to be if the workman had been regularly attended by a qualified medical practitioner, and compensation, if any, shall be assessed and payable accordingly.

Measure of compensation on refusal to be attended or disregard of medical advice.

15. Liability in the case of workmen employed by contractors or sub-contractors.

(2) Where the principal is liable to pay compensation under this section, he shall be entitled to be indemnified by any person who would have been liable to pay compensation to the workman independently of this section, and all questions as to the right to and the amount of any such indemnity shall, in default of agreement, be settled by the Commissioner.

- Proof in bankruptcy. (2) If the liability of the insurers to the workman is less than the liability of the employer to the workman, the workman may prove for the balance in the bankruptcy or liquidation, or, as the case may be, he may recover the balance from the receiver or manager.

Any person failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable on summary conviction by a court of summary jurisdiction to a penalty of five pounds.

21. The provisions contained in the proviso to the last preceding section shall mutatis mutandis apply in respect of a workman in the employment of any public or local authority where provisions exist by law or by by-law or regulation made under a law for the grant of a pension or gratuity to such workman in the case of injury received by him in the discharge of his duties, or to any other person in the event of the workman's death resulting from that injury.

(3) Notwithstanding anything herein contained, no appeal shall lie in any case in which the parties have agreed to abide by the decision of the Commissioner or in which the order of the Commissioner gives effect to an agreement come to by the parties.

After taking the prescribed oaths the Honourable L. Bedford, the Honourable H. Bennett, J.P., the Honourable G. C. R. Bonner, the Honourable R. V. Goss and the Honourable A. B. Monk assumed their seats on Council.

2. The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on the 15th December, 1959, were confirmed.

3. His Excellency delivered the following address to Council:

Honourable Members of Legislative Council.

This is the first meeting of the Legislative Council following dissolution and an election. I would like to extend a very hearty welcome to all Members, and particularly to our new Members, the Honourable Harold Bennett, the Honourable Adrian Monk, the Honourable Lewis Bedford, the Honourable Christopher Bonner, and the Honourable Richard Goss.

It is customary in this address to Legislative Council to take the opportunity of reviewing the principal events and the work of Government Departments during the preceding twelve months, in addition to referring specifically to some of the problems that must be faced and solved, and in general terms to the budgetary proposals that are to be submitted to Council for its consideration.

I think, however, that on this occasion it would be appropriate and indeed useful to review, if only in general terms, the work of the old Council, and some of the principal events and developments that occurred during its period of office. I think perhaps it does no harm to pause and take stock. In doing so I think it right that I should, at the outset, record my gratitude and appreciation of the work of Members of the previous Council who gave so much of their time to the work of Council, and did so to such good effect.

The years 1956 to 1960 witnessed some notable occasions in the Falkland Islands and their Dependencies. First and foremost, there was the historic visit of His Royal Highness the Prince Philip, and in recalling that event, I should like to say how glad I am that one of the elected Members of Council, who on that occasion had the privilege of reading and presenting a loyal address of welcome and of receiving His Royal Highness' reply, has again been returned to Council.

Another event to which I think it appropriate to refer was the epic Transantarctic journey made in 1958 under the leadership of Sir Vivian Fuchs, whom we so recently had the opportunity of welcoming back to the Falkland Islands, and Sir Edmund Hillary. Though we ourselves were passive spectators of this great effort, there were few of us who did not watch the expedition's progress with close concern and interest, remembering that its starting point and part of the route across the Antarctic continent lay in the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands. Those of us who had the opportunity of listening to Sir Vivian's lecture on the expedition, and of seeing his films and slides, will not easily forget the vivid impression of a great undertaking that they left in our minds.

When the time comes to weigh up and assess the events of these past few years, I personally have little doubt that the verdict will be a favourable one. There have been some set backs, notably that of the camp tracks scheme as it was originally envisaged. And yet I would very much doubt whether the dispassionate observer would put it down as an unmitigated failure, because it may well have done something towards sparking the interest there now is in movement between camp station and camp station, and the influx of jeeps and motor cycles which are I think contributing so much to life in the camp. Unfortunately, too, we have not succeeded in disposing of the Ajax Bay Freezer; and its buildings still stand as a monument to a project that failed, but one, let it not be forgotten, that originated solely in a desire to bring benefit to these Islands.

On the credit side, the period has in many respects been one of steady development in the camp and in Stanley. The Stanley Filtration Plant was built and has been working well for just over two years. It is not now so easy to recall the occasions, and there were several, when the people of Stanley, half the population of the Falkland Islands, were down to their last few hours supply of water. On Stanley roads substantial progress has been made, and with the roads has come new drainage and an end of the old methods of sewage disposal. Again it is not so easy to recall, but it was only a very short time ago, that there were still some hundred properties without water-borne facilities in Stanley. I am glad to record that in spite of the departure of the invaluable German labour gang, it has been found possible to continue with the roads project on a contract basis, and to tell you that Her Majesty's Government has recently approved a further grant of £51,470 from Colonial Development and Welfare funds to finance the continuation of this very important scheme.

The period under review has witnessed considerable fluctuations in the price of wool, and a drop in price that might well have been most serious, certainly for Government, had it not been for the substantial reserves put aside when times were better. The beginning of the period saw a wool price in the high fifties, and the year before last saw it at just a little over forty pence. I am glad to say, however, that prospects appear brighter, and it may well be that this year will see the price back again in the fifties.

To my mind, one of the most heartening things about the sheep farming industry over these past few years has been the developing interest in pasture improvement, and the increased awareness of the need to improve our grazing. I have in the past referred to the schemes in the West Falklands and in Lafonia, and would reiterate now that I regard these projects as being of the utmost importance. I hope that whatever the vicissitudes of weather and finance, this work will go forward and will be extended. You will recall that in January, 1957, in an address to this Council, Prince Philip said :

"I have just come from New Zealand, and, while there, I had a chance to see what marvels modern agricultural science can perform in the way of increasing production. Pastures have been improved to such an extent that they can now carry four times the amount of stock. Eight sheep where two were before, eight thousand where two thousand were before.

But I have no doubt that the sheep farmers of these Islands are well aware of the possibilities of well managed improvements; for without improvements prosperity does not last."

This is advice and opinion that clearly is being kept well in mind.

It was during this period, too, that we have seen the machine shears come to stay, and the initial experiments in spray dipping which, if successful here in the Falkland Islands, and surely there is no reason why it should not be, will no doubt prove to be of the greatest value and benefit to the industry for as long as dipping is necessary.

We have seen, too, a turning point, or even something of a minor revolution, in our educational system and policy - for it was in 1956 that the Darwin School first opened its doors to boarders, and it has since become so firmly established as a part of our life here in the Falklands, that in all probability few of us ever think back to the time when there wasn't a boarding school in the country and what it was like without one. I make no apology for stating my belief in the theory that the "better educated you are, the better you are" - whatever one's profession, one's calling, or one's job in life may be - and I have little doubt that in future years, people will look back on the start made with normal whole time boarding school education, as one of the most important landmarks in our social history. Certainly, I believe it to be one of the best investments in the future this Colony has ever made.

I would like to draw your attention to some of the legislation that was passed during the lifetime of the last Council. For many people legislation is a matter that holds little in the way of interest, and it is true that some of the laws we pass appear to have little immediate or apparent effect on our daily lives - but they are necessary, because we in the Falklands cannot live in isolation from the world to-day, any more, for instance, than a farm or group can nowadays live in isolation from the rest of the Falklands. Law-making is in fact one of the most important functions and responsibilities of this Council, and of those who sit as its Members.

Among the more important measures were those that empowered Government to pay old age pensions overseas, whereas formerly they could only be paid here in the Falklands; to ensure that people entering the Falklands are clear of Tuberculosis; and to increase the tax deductions allowed in the case of children. We have changed the electoral laws so as to reduce the chances that the names of electors will be inadvertently omitted from the electoral lists, and have introduced legislation that has had the effect of substantially reducing the rate of death duty in some cases, and of abolishing it altogether in the case of the smaller estates. For instance, an estate valued at under £5,000 no longer attracts death duties. These are but a few of the measures that were passed by the old Council in the four years of its life.

Now I propose to turn to three particularly important projects, that have been undertaken during the past few years, and which have recently been successfully concluded. Firstly, there is the topographical survey of the Falkland Islands. You will recall that in October, 1956, the Falkland Islands were photographed from the air by Hunting Aerosurveys under a Colonial Development and Welfare contract, and the arrangements for carrying out the requisite ground survey were put in hand shortly after the arrival of Mr. George Reid, of the Directorate of Overseas Surveys, in August, 1957. The field work was completed this month, after a period of 55 surveyor months. In the course of the survey, some two hundred trig. points were established, and apart from providing control for the new map series, these will also provide a basis for any future surveys, whether they be topographical farm surveys or hydrographic surveys.

I am sure that both Mr. Reid and Mr. Evans will be the first to acknowledge that the successful completion of their task was only made possible by the willing co-operation and assistance invariably provided by all the farms and farm managements; and I think we must also remember that the helicopters of H.M.S. Protector gave valuable help by landing the surveyors at points that were difficult to reach by other means. Much of the preliminary work on the air photographs has now been completed at the Directorate of Overseas Surveys, and when they get all field work results, the cartographers will be able to go ahead on full map production. Mr. Evans is leaving in a few days, and Mr. Reid will be following at the end of May. I think it would be your wish that I should convey to both these officers our appreciation of their valuable services to this Colony, and on your behalf wish them well for the future.

Then there were two medical projects of importance. First, there was the polio immunisation campaign that in recent months resulted in 906 people throughout the Falklands being vaccinated against polio. Practically everyone under the age of 21 was immunised. It is Government's intention, when further supplies of vaccine arrive, to give those already immunised a third injection, and to offer anyone, within an age group that might be susceptible to polio, the opportunity of being vaccinated. Secondly, there was the ophthalmic survey conducted by Dr. Stewart who arrived in July last year. During the 8 months he was in the Falklands, he saw almost 1,400 patients and performed 60 operations, figures that illustrate the magnitude and importance of this very successful survey.

I think that one of the most remarkable facts about the last few years has been the comparative stability in the cost of living. I know it has gone up, and particularly so during 1959, and that some essential items have recently become very much more costly. But there is no doubt that if one compares the Falklands to many other places, the picture that emerges is one of comparative price and cost of living stability. This is the more remarkable, because we have been injecting into the economy large capital sums, during a period of full employment, and at a time when too many jobs have been chasing too few people - something that usually leads to inflation. This comparative stability has also been maintained despite the quite substantial improvements in wages and conditions, which were negotiated so successfully during the period under review. Within the limitations imposed by our single commodity economy, our economic position is remarkably sound and buoyant. Even when in the 40-50d. price bracket, the price of wool is still well above the basic cost of production. Government still possess substantial reserves; and the sum of £1,044,000 stands to the credit of the 1,854 accounts in the Savings Bank. When we consider this background, against which we must put the problems and difficulties that lie ahead of us, and they are many, I would say that we have every reason, not for complacency, but certainly for confidence.

Now let us look ahead. Before turning, as I would like to do, to what I believe are some of the problems facing the Colony, there is an important project contemplated by the Falkland Islands Company to which I wish to refer. As Members are aware, the Falkland Islands Company have recently taken the first steps to establish a mink farming industry, and the first mink have arrived in the Colony. I think it will be the wish of all Members that we should welcome and encourage this initiative in establishing a much needed second industry in the Falklands. Since it is the Company's intention to combine the mink farm with the construction of a new and modern butchery, also a project that we shall all welcome, they will need to provide for approximately double the amount of mutton sheep, and consequently will require more adequate holding paddocks than are at present available to them. The most satisfactory site for this venture, bearing in mind the desirability of siting mink some way away from disturbance, noise, and traffic, is in the area of the Sixty Acre Paddock, and the three paddocks lying to the South of the Sixty Acre. Although it is obviously in the Colony's interest that this project should go ahead, and be given the best possible chance of success, Government also needs land in this area for dairy purposes. I am glad to be able to say that it has been found possible to work out an arrangement, whereby Government will lease to the Falkland Islands Company some 512 acres, consisting of the Sixty Acre and adjacent paddocks, subject to the continuing right of Government to allocate peat bogs in the southern parts of the land in question, in return for a lease to Government by the Falkland Islands Company of Fairy Cove, consisting in all of 301 acres. In addition the Company will surrender Dairy Paddock and the Butchery Paddock to Government, and will pay rent for the net difference in acreage. I believe such an arrangement, satisfactory to both parties, and one that I am sure will result in benefit to the paddocks concerned from concentrated but properly controlled grazing, to be in the best interest of everyone concerned, and we are all directly or indirectly concerned since the success of this new industry will be of undoubted benefit to the Colony.

In my view, there are five main problems for which we must find answers, and I hope that if I deal with them in order I shall not sound as if I were delivering one of those sermons which never seems to be coming to an end. Firstly, we must face the situation that has developed by virtue of the fact that the world to which we belong, and the United Kingdom in particular, has entered a period of unprecedented prosperity. Naturally we welcome this, but it has nevertheless created some rather special problems for us. This increased prosperity, and the fuller life and wider opportunities offered abroad, particularly in some of the Commonwealth countries such as New Zealand, have combined to form a powerful magnet that is drawing too many people away from the Falkland Islands. The vacuum their departure creates must be filled - so we turn naturally to the United Kingdom. But with high prosperity there, those who would make good settlers in the Falklands are increasingly reluctant to exchange their security, and all that the welfare state has to offer, for the uncertainties and, comparatively speaking, the lower wages and the more rugged conditions of the Falkland Islands. The difficulty is that so much, if by no means all, that would help us solve this problem, is beyond our control. We can do nothing about our climate. We cannot move the Islands to a more temperate zone. What we can afford in the way of higher wages, more schools and better educational facilities, and improved communications, is limited strictly by what we can get for our wool on the world markets. This is a problem to which we must all give some earnest thought, and endeavour to find, if not the whole answer, then at least a partial one. Let us not forget, though, that life in the Falkland Islands has much to offer. In my opinion far too much attention has been given overseas to the rigours of our climate, which anyway is not nearly as bad as it is generally believed to be, and far too little is known of the friendliness and warm-heartedness of the people whose home this is.

Secondly, I would say that in the Falklands there is an ever increasing awareness of the importance of education. With our sparse and scattered population I have little doubt that the next step, if and when we can afford it, is to increase the number of boarding school places that we can offer; and that this should be done by concentrating our boarding school facilities very largely at Darwin. This will mean another residential house, more staff, and much more in the way of class rooms and indoor recreational space. Both the capital and the recurrent expenditure would be very heavy indeed, although we would in all probability obtain assistance towards the capital costs from Colonial Development and Welfare funds. I do not suggest that we can immediately embark on such a project. But I do suggest, for your consideration, that this project should stand high on the list of priorities, and that as soon as ways and means of finding the money can be found, then the most serious attention should be given to its implementation.

Thirdly, I think it is most important, as I have already said, that we do not lose sight of the need for improving our pastures, the bank balance as it were, on which we exist. Some members will recall that, three years ago, there were discussions on the desirability of inviting a pasture agronomist to visit the Colony, and report on our problems and give advice. It was finally decided that it would be advisable to wait a little, to give the experimental work being done at Roy Cove and Darwin time to develop and mature. There is a feeling that it would now be opportune to make such an invitation, and preliminary discussions are now in hand to ascertain whether Dr. Waniop of the Hill Farming Research Organisation in Scotland would be prepared to come out for a visit, and whether Colonial Development and Welfare funds would be available to finance the project. I have little doubt that such a visit by an experienced and essentially practical agronomist would be of value and benefit to the industry.

Fourthly, we need to ensure that our Government services, particularly those that must be regarded as the essential basic services – medical – educational – communications – are at least maintained at their present standard of efficiency. To do so we need to ensure that we are competitive in the conditions of service we offer, so that good officers, whether from overseas or locally recruited, can be encouraged to remain in the Colony, and so that we can always be sure of filling vacancies if and when they occur. This again is a matter we need to keep under constant and constructive review. May I take this opportunity to express my thanks to the staff of all Government Departments for the work they have done during the past year.

Finally, and herein lies the root of many of our problems as they exist to-day and are likely to arise in the future – there is the question of finance. Our difficulty is simply stated, but not so simply solved. It is that of the recurring deficits which, if they continue for long, will drain the Colony of its reserves. With over half a million pounds in reserves, we could carry on for quite a few years, but we must also remember that the income from our investments is a very important revenue item, and if we take money from our reserves to meet our deficits, we are at the same time reducing our income. Fortunately, as far as the present financial year is concerned, and largely because of the very satisfactory sales of our new stamp issue, staff shortages, the fact that the price of wool was a little higher than was expected, and the Colonial Development and Welfare grant towards the cost of the roads project, the estimated deficit of some £80,000 has been reduced by half. The fact is that Government is geared to a wool price of the order of 55d. to 60d. By this I mean, that to finance our ordinary day to day expenditure, we need the revenue in the way of wool tax, companies tax and income tax, that we would expect to get when the average wool price is approximately 55d. a lb; and if we are to have something over – for capital expenditure and for setting something aside to build up our reserves, then we need something more than that. With a wool price of 60d. or more we would be in a happy position, but I don't think it would be wise, when planning for the future, to reckon on a price of over 50d.

The alternatives before us are obvious. We need to reduce expenditure very drastically, or we need to find new money to the extent of approximately £50,000 a year. There is in my opinion very little room in our estimates for any reduction that will solve our budgetary problems. I think it is clear, particularly when it must be remembered that the cost of supplies, services, and staff, are likely to go up and not down, that ways and means of finding more money will have to be found. This is a matter on which, as Honourable Members have been made aware, I have consulted the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and on which I shall be having discussions during my forthcoming visit to London. With regard to taxation policy as a whole, Government has in mind, and will in due course be submitting proposals for your consideration, the substitution of a graduated ad valorem export tax on wool, in place of the present graduated "ladder" system. The ad valorem rates will be calculated and adjusted to bring in approximately the same amount of revenue, but the amount of tax payable will be assessed on the average price obtained for its wool by each individual farm. This would seem to be a fairer system than that now in force. It is Government's present intention to put this proposal to the Legislature at a meeting later in the year.

These then are the five main problems as I see them – emigration from the Colony, improved educational facilities, the need to carry out and intensify research and experimental work in ways and means of improving our pastures, the maintenance of our essential services and provision of staff to man them, and finally the most important of all, our adverse budgetary position. These are the problems on which I believe we must concentrate in the years that lie immediately ahead of us.

The Colonial Treasurer will shortly be presenting and explaining to you the details of the 1960/61 budget, and I do not wish at this stage to anticipate what he will say. I would like, however, to make it clear that in drawing your attention to a budgetary problem we must solve, it is not my intention to convey to you the impression that our economic and financial position is unsound, that there are grounds for serious concern, or that I lack confidence in the future. I have said we need to take stock and adopt soon measures that will balance our budget; but by any standards and even within the limitations imposed by our single commodity economy, the industry and the Colony are financially and economically sound.

4. Council adjourned until 2.15 p.m.

5. On resumption the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, by Command, laid on the Table the following papers:

- (i) Report on the working of the Note Security Fund for the year 1958/59.
- (ii) Report on the working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the year 1958/59.
- (iii) Government Employees Provident Fund Report 1958/59.
- (iv) Report on the working of the Government Savings Bank for the year 1958/59.
- (v) Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Executive Council since the last meeting of the Legislative Council.
- (vi) Chief Constable's Report, 1959.

6. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the adoption of the following Resolution:—

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period November 1959 to March 1960, be adopted."

The Resolution was passed.

7. In introducing the Workmen's Compensation Bill the Honourable the Colonial Secretary said:

"Your Excellency,

There is little doubt that this is one of the most important and complex measures that has come before Council in recent years.

Members are aware that for some time now there has been a widespread feeling that the legislation governing workmen's compensation is out of date and is urgently in need of amendment.

Equally, however, there has been a wide divergence of opinion as to what form the amendments should take. General agreement that the wage limit of £350 a year, which limited the payment of compensation to workmen earning less than that amount, was far too low. But—when the matter was discussed by representatives of organised labour and employers—there was no agreement on what the figure should be—and opinion ranged from £450 to £700. But then what about the highly skilled man—such as a buffalo operator—employed in an accident prone job who might well earn more than £700?

And then again there was general agreement that the amount of compensation payable on death, fixed at thirty six months wages or £600—whichever was the less—was far too low—but there was no agreement on what that figure might be.

As a first step towards solving the problem Government considered the implications of introducing a contributory scheme along the lines of the United Kingdom National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act. But it was clear that even a simplified version of this vast and complex piece of machinery, magnificent as indeed it is, was beyond our resources because of the additional clerical and accounting work that would fall on Government and farm alike.

But it seemed to us that the main principles of the existing legislation were generally acceptable if some solution could be found to these two questions of who should qualify for compensation and how much compensation should be paid. And I believe that reasonable solutions to both these problems have been found.

Firstly, we have in the draft Bill which is now before you, abolished the arbitrary cash ceilings on entitlement to compensation and have instead provided for compensation for injury to be paid to any person who is employed by way of manual labour or anyone who is listed in a schedule to the bill—and that schedule includes—we believe—all persons who should reasonably be regarded as coming within the scope of this legislation.

Obviously, however, there must be some limit to the employer's liability—and we have provided for this by retaining the admittedly arbitrary time limits of 36 months' wages in the case of death, 48 months' wages in the case of permanent disablement and five years' in the case of temporary disablement.

In doing these two things we do limit the extent of the employer's liability, which is reasonable in the case of a non-contributory scheme—but have related the amount of compensation directly to the disabled man's earning power at the time of the accident.

The following figures will illustrate, in terms of money, the effect of replacing the existing ordinance with this new legislation, so far as a tradesman or labourer employed in accordance with the Stanley Pay and Working Rules would be concerned

	DEATH		PERMANENT TOTAL DISABLEMENT
Tradesman	600	1,214	750	1,618
Labourer	600	994	750	1,326

These are radical increases and from the point of view of those whom such legislation is designed to benefit, a vast improvement on the existing law.

There is one further point to which I must draw Council's attention—and that is the inclusion of the power to require employers or classes of employers to insure against the liabilities they may incur under this new Ordinance. The reason is the very obvious one—a small employer might—and I emphasise the word might—be able to afford a permanent total disablement payment of £750—whereas £1,618 may well be another matter.

I believe that this Bill which apart from the points I have specifically mentioned already for the main part incorporates most of the generally acceptable provisions of the existing law, does provide us with a reasonable answer to this very important and vexed problem of ensuring that an injured workman does receive reasonable and just compensation—and it does seem to have the quite considerable merit of having the support of both organised labour and representatives of the employers—who will after all have to foot the bill.

I have no hesitation, therefore, in commending the Bill as it now stands for the approval of Council."

The Honourable R. V. Goss seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and subsequently passed through all its stages.

8. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable A. Mercer, moved the first reading of the Old Age Pensions (Amendment) Bill, saying:

"Your Excellency,

The working of the Old Age Pensions scheme during the first five years of its existence has been reviewed by the Government Actuary in the United Kingdom and from his report two major conclusions may be drawn.

These are:

that the maximum number of pensioners we are likely to have on the books at any one time will be ten times the number in receipt of a pension on 30th June, 1957, plus half as many widows; that receipts into the fund will exceed payments by a margin sufficient to warrant consideration of a 30% increase in existing pensions rates.

According to the Actuary's report we should, therefore, expect to have, eventually, 80 married pensioners, 40 single and 60 widows drawing from the Fund. The weekly cost under the existing rates would be £190 and of this 30% would be £57.

The report has been considered by the Old Age Pensions Board of Management which was particularly invited to make recommendations as to how the proposed 30% increase in pensions should be applied. The Board recommended that the pensions of widows should be increased from 10/- per week to 21/6, those of single men increased from 20/- to 21/6 and those of married men increased from 30/- to 35/-. These increases would cost £57 10/- per week.

It has long been recognised that an increase for widows should be given priority if and when increased benefits were found to be practicable, but it was felt that the proposed increase of 11/6 per week for widows took too much of the total amount available and that the increases for married pensioners, and more particularly for single pensioners, was consequently too low. It is Government's view that a more equitable distribution of the surplus income would be for widows' pensions to be increased by 8/- per week, single men's by 3/6 per week and married men's by 6/6 per week and that if, at the next actuarial review, further increases are found to be possible a more generous share can again be applied to the pensions of widows.

Arising from a further recommendation by the Board of Management the Bill proposes to delete the proviso to section 11 of the Ordinance which will mean that a contributor will not be able to withdraw his employer's contributions as well as his own if he leaves the Colony after 21 years contributing. This is what the Ordinance permits at present. It will be remembered that at the outset the Ordinance did not provide for pensions to be paid overseas and it was probably for this reason that long standing contributors were singled out for more generous treatment if they left the Colony.

A third recommendation by the Board of Management is incorporated in the Bill and provides for men who leave the Colony to continue contributing as voluntary contributors. For the purpose of contributions they would be regarded as self employed, that is they would have to pay the same contributions as a self employed person living in the Colony. In making this recommendation the Board had in mind the man who, for one reason or another, leaves the Colony at an age between 50 and 60 and is too old to participate in the complementary scheme of the country to which he moves. If this proposal is adopted it will probably be attractive to men in their fifties, possibly so to men in their late forties but certainly not to men in their twenties or thirties.

The Bill introduces a section requiring audited accounts to be published. We are, in fact, doing this but it should be a statutory requirement.

The extended buying in arrangement ends on 30th June, 1960 and provision is made in the Bill to repeal the relevant section.

Finally, a minor amendment for the sake of convenience. When the Ordinance was introduced in 1952 the Colony's financial year ended on 31st March and provision was made for the actuarial reports to be made as at that date every fifth year. Now, however, the Colony's Financial year runs from 1st July to 30th June and a good deal of extra work can be avoided if the annual accounts on which the Actuary will base his conclusions can cover the same period.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

On the second reading of the Bill the Honourable L. Bedford said:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members.

I would recommend that the Old Age Pensions Board's proposals regarding the distribution of the 30% increase in pension rates be adopted, because I think that we should consider the fact that the cost of living is the same for a widow as for a single man. In view of the amount of work available for women in this Colony and the vast difference in wages paid, I feel that the widow, who may have children dependent upon her, should receive equal assistance. It may be argued that the widow has not made any contribution to the fund, but I think members should bear in mind that this is not so much a question of old age pensions or widows pension, but a question of social security which I feel should be the same for all - male or female."

The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner said:

"Your Excellency, Gentlemen.

I have noted with interest the Treasurer's remarks in introducing the Bill for the amendments to the Old Age Pensions Ordinance and particularly to those concerning the question of refunds of contributions to persons who are leaving the Colony. It is fundamentally right that they should receive that money that they themselves have contributed; however, it can be seen that in the case of a person returning for successive periods of duty in the Colony, it might constitute a drain on the Pension Fund.

I would like to enquire of Government whether they consider that it would be feasible to introduce into the Ordinance a proviso that any person returning to the Colony having once been a contributor to the fund, should refund the amount that he has withdrawn from the fund, i.e. a man returning to the Colony should "buy" his way back into the scheme again to the extent of his previous contributions."

The Colonial Treasurer then suggested that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee for consideration of the points raised by the elected Members for the West and East Falklands. This was agreed and the President appointed a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer and the Unofficial Members of Council and the Bill was referred to the Committee for its consideration.

9. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary then introduced a Bill "To Prevent the Pollution of the Sea by Oil", and said:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members.

In March 1958 this Council passed an amendment to the Harbour Ordinance which made the discharge of diesel or fuel oil into the harbour an offence punishable by a fine. Now this Ordinance was a very simple one, and it was designed in the first place as something of a first aid measure to afford immediate protection to our harbours and the declared harbours of the Falkland Islands and the Dependencies - Stanley, Port Foster at Deception Island and Cumberland and Stromness Bays in South Georgia. As I have said, it was a first aid measure, but the problem goes a little beyond that because as things stand at the moment, a ship can still ruin many of the beaches of the Falkland Islands or of the Dependencies by discharging oil outside the harbour, but nevertheless still within the three mile limit. Quite clearly, a ship moving within the three mile limit could discharge oil and it could come up anywhere on our beaches and so we referred the matter for expert legal advice.

It seemed to us that something along the lines of the United Kingdom law would be a far too complex and complicated piece of machinery to warrant or justify it in our circumstances, and our Legal Adviser was of the same opinion. Consequently the Bill is now before this Council for consideration, and its general effect, if it becomes law, is to discharge any oil, or oil residues, or any mixture containing oil into the seaward limits of the Colony, that is the territorial limits to which are navigable by sea-going ships. If this Ordinance or Bill becomes law, attention to apply it to the Dependencies.

Members will note that the Bill, as it stands, provides for a number of special defences, and such defences are particularly important in legislation of this nature, since if we have not got them, a genuine accident as opposed to downright carelessness can be penalized, or may be penalized in exactly the same way as a matter of pure negligence. Now I think it important that I should enumerate these special defences to a charge of discharging oil and the circumstances in which they can be made. It is a defence, but of course the onus of proof shifts to the defendant, to show that it was necessary for securing the safety of the vessel, preventing damage to the vessel or crew, or for the saving of life. It will be a defence to show that the discharge was due to damage to a vessel or loss due to leakage, providing that such leakage was not the result of the lack of reasonable care. It is a defence to say that the discharge was caused by a person who was in the place from which the discharge occurred without permission. It might happen that an unauthorised person, for some purpose best known to himself, deliberately allows oil to escape from some other person's tanks, in fact a deliberate act of sabotage. It would not then be just to impose these penalties on the owner of that installation. Similarly there is provision to cover the case of oil contained in an affluent produced by the operations for the refining of oil, a provision which is particularly required to cover circumstances of the whaling industry in South Georgia. There is a defence in the case of action taken in connection with the removal of wrecks or for avoiding or preventing navigable obstacles or hazards. These are all special defences. They are reasonable and are included in the very much more complex and complicated legislative machinery which they have in the United Kingdom.

Your Excellency, we feel that this Bill meets our requirements and should provide more adequate safeguards than we have at the moment, and I move that it be read a first time."

The Honourable A. L. Hardy seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was given a second reading and the Council went into Committee. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved an amendment of Clause 1 to substitute the figures 1960 for 1959. Clause 1, as amended, and Clauses 2 to 10, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed. The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

10. The Honourable H. Bennett, in moving the first reading of the Bill "To Amend the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance, 1959" said :

"Your Excellency,

This simple innocuous amending legislation seeks to amend section 9 of the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance, 1959, which provides for the enforcement in the Supreme Court of the Colony, of civil judgments given in superior courts of any part of Her Majesty's dominions, including territories under Her Majesty's protection and territories administered by the government of any part of Her Majesty's dominions, under trusteeship of the United Nations, provided those superior courts accord reciprocal treatment to judgments given in the Colony.

The Secretary of State has drawn attention to the fact that the use of the phrase "Her Majesty's dominions" in section 9 of the 1959 Ordinance precludes certain Commonwealth countries from the provisions of that Ordinance, and has advised that the deletion of that phrase and the substitution therefor of the term "British Commonwealth" would rectify the present anomaly.

It is with this object in view that the amending legislation is brought before Council and I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable A. B. Monk seconded the Bill and it was read a second time and subsequently passed through all its stages.

11. The Bill "To Amend the Government Employees Provident Fund Ordinance" was introduced by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer, who remarked :

"Your Excellency,

Some years ago the Colony's financial year ran from 1st January to 31st December, then it changed, firstly to 1st April to 31st March and later to 1st July to 30th June. It is convenient that the financial year of the Provident Fund should coincide with that of the Colony and in fact the Fund accounts have been produced as at the Colony year end. The first object of this Bill is to approve these changes with retrospective effect.

The 1948 revised conditions of service increased the salary rate at which contributing to the Provident Fund is compulsory from £100 to £140 but the necessary amending legislation was somehow overlooked. This Bill seeks to rectify the oversight and I beg to move the first reading."

The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion it was read a second time and passed through all its stages.

12. In moving the first reading of the Bill entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the service of the year 1960-61", The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said :

"Your Excellency,

According to the latest information at my disposal we shall embark upon the 1960/61 financial year with reserves totalling £515,000 which is considerably better than I dared think a year ago. It will be recalled that when the current estimates were presented to Council a deficit on the year's working of £83,000 was forecast. Now it seems certain that the deficit will be of the order of £42,000 and the main reasons for this considerable improvement are -

An increase of £9,389 in Export Duty on wool as the result of the average price of the 1958/59 clip exceeding 40d per lb.

Receipts from Income Tax up on the estimate by £4,000.

Sale of Postage Stamps increased by £18,000.

Assistance from Colonial Development and Welfare funds to the extent of £15,235.

The draft estimates for 1960/61 provide for an overall deficit of £43,490 which will bring our reserves to below the half million mark for the first time since 1952. Total revenue is expected to amount to £259,522 and expenditure to £303,012.

Ordinary Revenue is expected to total £238,622 compared with a revised estimate of £250,148 for the current year. The difference is a drop of £12,000 and is accounted for mainly by a decrease in the sale of stamps offset to some extent by increases from Export Duty and Companies Tax. It is reckoned that the average price of the 1959/60 wool clip may exceed 50d. and Export Duty has been computed on the assumption that this will prove correct. No final figure is yet available for the average price of the 1958/59 wool clip but it is known that it will be approximately 47½d. and Companies Tax has been estimated on this basis.

Total estimated Ordinary Expenditure for 1960/61 is £261,325, or £22,703 more than Ordinary Revenue, and shows little change from the revised, or for that matter the approved estimate for the current year. Increases amounting to several thousands of pounds or more will be noticed under the Education and Secretariat and Treasury Heads.

The total estimate for Special Expenditure is the lowest for more than a decade and is largely concerned with the continuation of work on the Stanley roads together with the associated works such as water pipe lines and underground cable installations. Provision is also included for the building of schoolrooms at two camp stations and for transferring the manager's house from Ajax Bay to Fox Bay where it will be re-erected for the Doctor.

Funds are provided to cover the cost of purchasing, dismantling and removing to Stanley two generators installed in the freezing plant at Ajax Bay. The estimate includes provision for purchasing the switchgear necessary to instal one of these machines in the Power Station almost immediately.

Finally it is pleasing to note the re-introduction of expenditure under the Colonial Development and Welfare Head together with the complementary revenue head. Government has been advised that during the period September 1959 to June 1962 88% of the expenditure on roads will be financed by Colonial Development and Welfare funds up to a maximum of £51,470. It is reckoned that we shall spend £23,750 on road work during 1960/61 and of this sum £2,850 will be met from Colony revenue or reserves and £20,900 from Her Majesty's treasury.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then moved that the Bill and draft Estimates for 1960-61 be referred to a Select Committee of the House and that Council adjourn. This was agreed and the President appointed a Select Committee consisting of the Colonial Secretary, the Colonial Treasurer and the Unofficial Members of Council.

Council then adjourned.

13. Council resumed at 6.15 p.m. on Friday 29th April, and in reporting the findings and recommendations of the Select Committee on the Old Age Pensions (Amendment) Bill, the Colonial Treasurer said:

"Your Excellency,

The Select Committee appointed to consider the amendment to the proposed increases in Old Age Pensions has agreed by majority vote that the Bill should be considered as it stands.

During the course of the discussion the following suggestions for the improvement of the scheme were made:—

- (a) That contributions refunded on departure should be repaid if the contributor later returns to the Colony.
- (b) That a pension should be awarded to a widow whose husband being a contributor dies between the ages of 60 and 65.
- (c) That enquiries be made regarding the increases in contributions necessary to pay pensions of 45/-, 30/- and 30/- per week to married men, single men and widows respectively.
- (d) That consideration be given to introducing old age pensions for persons who were too old to participate in the existing scheme when it was introduced in 1952.

The committee was fully aware of the need for careful consideration of these matters and agreed that the full implications should be investigated, expert advice being sought where necessary, and a comprehensive report submitted to Council at the earliest possible moment.

In the unchanged circumstances, Sir, I beg to move that we proceed with the second reading of the Bill."

The Bill was read a second and third time and passed.

14. Referring to the Appropriation Bill, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer reported that the Select Committee had proposed the following amendments to the draft Estimates :

That the words and figures "Three hundred and three thousand and twelve pounds" be deleted and the words and figures "Three hundred and seven thousand, three hundred and forty two pounds" be substituted therefor.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

15. Before adjourning. His Excellency addressed Council as follows.

"Honourable Members,

Before adjourning Council, I would like to thank you all for the hard work you have put in during this Council and in studying your papers beforehand. I am much looking forward to working with you during my remaining two years in the Falklands.

This, I fear, is the last meeting of Council which two of our Government members will attend. I refer, of course, to Aubrey Denton-Thompson and Alec Mercer. May I reiterate what was said at our last meeting. Alec Mercer, quietly and unobtrusively, has done a first-rate job for this Colony, and Mrs. Mercer's work for the Red Cross is well known to us all. We shall miss them very much indeed, and I hope that it will not be long before we see them back here again, at any rate for a visit.

I suppose that one of the things that a new Governor has uppermost in his mind is what his Colonial Secretary will be like. Well, it didn't take me long to realise I had a jolly good one. He and his wife, who left such happy memories with all who knew her, could not have been kinder and more helpful to my wife and me. I have had the most loyal and efficient service, and I could not wish for a better Colonial Secretary. He is now exchanging the winds of the Falklands for what the Prime Minister called the "Wind of Change" blowing over Africa. I am sure he will meet this hotter and really very much more trying wind with the courage and fortitude we so much admire.

On behalf of this Council I wish Alec Mercer and his wife and Aubrey Denton-Thompson every possible happiness in the future."

In thanking the President, the Honourable A. G. Denton-Thompson, speaking on behalf of himself and Mr. Mercer, said that their association with Council had been particularly pleasant and they deeply appreciated the unfailing courtesy and assistance that had invariably been extended to them by Members of Council. He concluded by wishing Council every success in the future.

Council adjourned sine die.

Provided that a person shall not be deemed to be a partial dependant of a workman unless he was dependent partially on contributions from the workman for the provision of the ordinary necessities of life.

“Earnings” includes any privilege or benefit which is capable of being estimated in money, other than a travelling allowance or the value of any travelling concession, or a contribution paid by the employer of a workman towards any pension or provident fund, or a sum paid to a workman to cover any special expenses entailed on him by the nature of his employment;

Provided that in the case of those forms of employment listed in the second part of the First Schedule only those persons who are employed on vessels registered in the Colony or employed in the coastal waters of the Colony shall be regarded as workmen for the purposes of this Ordinance:

Provided further that the following persons shall not be regarded as workmen for the purposes of this Ordinance -

- (a) persons whose employment is of a casual nature and who are employed or otherwise than for the purposes of the employer's trade or business, not being persons employed for the purposes of any game or recreation and engaged or paid through a club; or
- (b) out-workers ; or
- (c) persons in the naval, military or air forces of the Crown; or
- (d) members of the employer's family dwelling in his house.

(2) Any reference to a workman who has been injured shall, where the workman is dead, include a reference to his legal personal representative or to his dependants or other person to whom or for whose benefit compensation is payable.

(3) The exercise and performance of the powers and duties of a local or other public authority or of any department of the Government shall for the purposes of this Ordinance, unless a contrary intention appears, be deemed to be the trade or business of such authority or department.

(4) If on any proceedings for the recovery of compensation under this Ordinance it appears to the Commissioner by whom the claim to compensation is to be settled that the contract of service or apprenticeship under which the injured person was working at the time when the accident causing the injury happened was illegal, he may, if having regard to all the circumstances of the case he thinks proper so to do, deal with the matter as if the injured person had at the time aforesaid been a person working under a valid contract of service or apprenticeship.

(5) For the purposes of this Ordinance the term “time of the accident” where it applies or refers to an injury to a workman shall be regarded as denoting, where applicable, the time when the workman contracted a disease attributable to an accident or to the nature of his employment in accordance with section 3 (b) (i) and (ii) of this Ordinance.

Employer's liability for compensation.

3. If personal injury is caused to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall be liable to pay compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance :

Provided that the employer shall not be so liable and no compensation shall be payable —

Slight injury.

(a) in respect of any injury which does not result in the total or partial disablement of the workman for a period exceeding three days;

Disease.

(b) in respect of any disease contracted by the workman unless in the opinion of the Senior Medical Officer :—

(i) the disease was solely and directly attributable to a specified injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, or

(ii) it can be established or presumed with reasonable certainty that the disease was directly attributable to the nature of his employment.

Misconduct.

(c) in respect of any injury to a workman resulting from an accident which is directly attributable to :—

(i) the workman having been at the time thereof under the influence of alcohol or drugs, or

(ii) the wilful disobedience of the workman to an order expressly given, or of a regulation or rule, expressly made, for the purpose of securing the safety of workmen, or

(iii) the wilful removal or disregard by the workman of any safety guard, appliance or other device which he knew to have been provided for the purpose of securing the safety of workmen.

Employer's liability for negligence.

4. When an injury to a workman is caused by the personal negligence or wilful act of the employer or of some person for whose act or default the employer is responsible, nothing in this Ordinance shall effect any civil liability of the employer, but in that case the workman may, at his option, either claim compensation under this Ordinance or take proceedings independently of this Ordinance; but the employer shall not be liable to pay compensation for personal injury to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment both independently of and also under this Ordinance and shall not be liable to any proceedings independently of this Ordinance, except in the case of personal negligence or wilful act on the part of such employer or of some person for whose act or default the employer is responsible.

Independent action.

5. If, within the time hereinafter in this Ordinance limited for taking proceedings, an action is brought to recover damages independently of this Ordinance for injury caused by an accident, and it is determined in such action or on appeal that the injury is one for which the employer is not liable in such action, but that he would have been liable to pay compensation under the provisions of this Ordinance, the action shall be dismissed; but the Court in which the action is tried, or, if the determination is the determination of an appeal (by either party) by an appellate tribunal, that tribunal shall, if the plaintiff so choose, proceed to assess such compensation, but may deduct from such compensation all or part of the costs which, in its judgment, have been caused by the plaintiff bringing the action instead of proceeding under this Ordinance. In any proceeding under this section, when the court or appellate tribunal assesses the compensation, it shall give a certificate stating the compensation it has awarded and the directions it has given as to the deduction of costs, and such certificate shall have the force and effect of and shall be registered as an agreement under this Ordinance:

Provided that an appellate tribunal may, instead of itself assessing such compensation, remit the case to the Commissioner for the assessment of the compensation and in such case may direct the Commissioner to deduct from the amount of compensation assessed by him all or part of such costs as aforesaid.

6. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the amount of compensation shall be:—

- (a) as specified in the second schedule to this Ordinance where death results from the injury;
- (b) as specified in the third schedule to this Ordinance where permanent total disablement results from the injury;
- (c) as specified in the fourth schedule to this Ordinance where permanent partial disablement results from the injury.

Compensation for death, permanent total disablement and permanent partial disablement.

(2) Where more injuries than one are caused by the same accident, the amount of compensation payable in accordance with subsection (1) of this section shall be aggregated, but not so as in any case to exceed the amount which would have been payable if permanent total disablement had resulted from the injuries.

(3) There shall be deducted from any lump sum to which any workman is entitled or to which any dependant or dependants of a workman are entitled the amount of any payment or allowance which the workman or any dependant of a workman has already received from the employer by way of compensation subsequent to the injury and prior to the receipt of such lump sum.

7. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance the amount of compensation payable where temporary disablement, whether total or partial, results from the injury shall be a half-monthly payment payable on the sixteenth day from the date of disablement, and thereafter half-monthly during the disablement or during a period of five years, whichever period is shorter, of a sum equal to two thirds of the workman's monthly earnings at the time of the accident:

Temporary disablement.

Provided there shall be deducted from any half-monthly payments to which the workman is entitled the amount of any payment or allowance which the workman has received from the employer by way of compensation during the period of disablement prior to the receipt of the first half-monthly payment:

Provided further that any half-monthly payments may be so adjusted as to provide that the sum total of such half-monthly payments added to any earnings the workman is earning or is reasonably able to earn in some suitable employment or business after the accident does not exceed the sum total of the earnings of the workman at the time of the accident.

(2) When the workman ceases to suffer from the temporary disablement before the date on which any half-monthly payment falls due, there shall be payable in respect of that half month a sum proportionate to the duration of the disablement in that half month.

8. (1) For the purposes of this Ordinance the earnings of a workman shall be computed in such manner as is best calculated to give his true monthly earnings at the date of the accident, subject to the following provisions:—

Method of calculating earnings.

- (a) where the workman has been exclusively employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation during a continuous period of not less than six months immediately preceding the accident in the grade or form of employment in which he was employed at the time of the accident, his monthly earnings shall be deemed to be the average amount of his monthly earnings during the last six completed months of that period.
- (b) where the workman has been exclusively employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation in the grade or form of employment in which he was employed at the time of the accident during a continuous period of less than six months immediately preceding the accident, regard shall be had, in calculating the workman's earnings to the prevailing rates that may have been negotiated between the representatives of Employers and the representatives of Employees respectively in respect of the grade or form of employment in which the workman was employed at the time of the accident.

- (c) Where at the time of the accident a workman was employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation for a specific purpose or task in respect of which special terms of remuneration were agreed between the employer and the workman and where he had previously been employed by the same employer during a continuous period of not less than six months immediately preceding his being employed for the specific purpose or task in the course of which the accident occurred then for the purposes of this Ordinance his monthly earnings shall be deemed to be the average amount of his earnings during the last six completed months of that period during which he was employed previously to his employment for such specific purpose or task.
- (d) Where at the time of the accident a workman was employed by the employer who is liable to pay compensation for a specific purpose or task in respect of which special terms of remuneration were agreed between the employer and the workman but had not previously been employed by such employer or had been employed by such employer for a continuous period of less than six months, then for the purposes of this Ordinance his monthly earnings shall be calculated in accordance with paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section.

(2) Where a workman is employed in the same occupation under contracts of service with two or more employers under which he worked at one time for one such employer and at another time for another such employer, his monthly earnings shall be computed as if his earnings under all such contracts were earnings in the employment of the employers for whom he was working at the time of the accident.

(3) For the purpose of this section a period of service shall be deemed to be continuous which has not been interrupted by a period of absence from work, other than duly authorised leave of absence, exceeding fourteen days.

(4) For the purposes of this section the earnings of a seaman who, in the ordinary course of events, signs on or is employed on any vessel registered in the Colony or operating mainly in the coastal waters of the Colony for the purpose of making a single voyage or a limited number of voyages shall be calculated in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (a) and (b) of subsection (1) of this section.

Review.

9. (1) Any half-monthly payment payable under this Ordinance either under an agreement between the parties or under an order of a Commissioner, may be reviewed by the Commissioner on the application either of the employer or of the workman accompanied by the certificate of a qualified medical practitioner stating that there has been a change in the condition of the workman, or subject to regulations made under this Ordinance, on application made without such certificate.

(2) Any half-monthly payment may, on review under this section and subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, be continued, increased, decreased or ended, or if the accident is found to have resulted in permanent disablement, be converted to the lump sum to which the workman is entitled less any amount which he has already received by way of half-monthly payments.

10. Any right to receive half-monthly payments may, by agreement between the parties, or, if the parties cannot agree and the payments have been continued for not less than six months, on the application of either party to the Commissioner, be redeemed by the payment of a lump sum of such amount as may be agreed to by the parties or determined by the Commissioner, as the case may be.

Commutation of half-monthly payments.

11. (1) Compensation payable where the death of a workman has resulted from an injury shall be deposited with the Registrar, and any sum so deposited shall be apportioned among the dependants of the deceased workman or any of them in such proportion as the Commissioner thinks fit, or may in the discretion of the Commissioner, be allotted to any one such dependant, and the sum so allotted to any dependant shall be paid to him or be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with for his benefit in such manner as the Commissioner thinks fit.

Distribution of compensation on death.

(2) Compensation payable where permanent disablement has resulted from an injury, and lump sums payable under the provisions of the preceding section where temporary disablement has resulted from an injury, shall be deposited with the Registrar, and any sum so deposited shall be paid to the person entitled thereto or be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with for his benefit in such manner as the Commissioner thinks fit.

Lump sums.

(3) Any other compensation payable under this Ordinance may be deposited with the Registrar and when so deposited, shall be paid by the Registrar to the person entitled thereto.

Other cases.

(4) The receipt of the Registrar shall be a sufficient discharge in respect of any amount deposited with him under the provisions of this Ordinance.

Receipt of Registrar.

(5) On the deposit of any money under subsection (1), the Registrar may deduct therefrom the actual cost of the workman's funeral expenses, to an amount not exceeding thirty-five pounds, and pay the same to the person by whom such expenses were incurred, and shall, if he thinks necessary, cause notice to be published or to be served on each dependant in such manner as he thinks fit, calling upon the dependants to appear before the Commissioner on such date as he may fix for determining the distribution of the compensation. If the Commissioner is satisfied, after any inquiry which he may deem necessary, that no dependant exists, he shall direct the Registrar to repay the balance of the money to the employer by whom it was paid. The Registrar shall, on application by the employer furnish a statement showing in detail all disbursements made.

Notice to dependants.

(6) Where a half-monthly payment is payable under this Ordinance to a workman under any legal disability, the Commissioner may, of his own motion or on application made to him in this behalf, order that the half-monthly payment be paid during the disability to any dependant of the workman or to any other person whom he thinks best fitted to provide for the welfare of the workman.

Workman under disability.

(7) Where, on application made to him in this behalf or otherwise, the Commissioner is satisfied that, on account of neglect of children on the part of a parent, or on account of the variation of the circumstances of any dependant, or for any other sufficient cause, an order of the Commissioner as to the distribution of any sum paid as compensation or as to the manner in which any sum payable to any such dependant is to be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with ought to be varied, the Commissioner may make such order for the variation of the former order as he thinks just in the circumstances of the case:

Variation of order.

Provided that no such order prejudicial to any person shall be made unless such person has been given an opportunity of showing cause why the order should not be made, or shall be made in any case in which it would involve the repayment by a dependant of any sum already paid to him.

Deductions for costs.

(8) The solicitor or agent of a person claiming compensation under this Ordinance shall not be entitled to recover from him any costs in respect of such claim or to claim a lien in respect of such costs on, or deduct such costs from, the sum awarded or agreed as compensation, except such sum as may be awarded by a Commissioner, subject to regulations made under this Ordinance, on an application made either by the person claiming compensation, or by his solicitor or agent to determine the amount of the costs to be paid to the solicitor or agent.

Compensation not to be assigned, attached or charged.

12. Save as provided by this Ordinance, no lump sum or half-monthly payment payable under this Ordinance shall be capable of being assigned, charged or attached or shall pass to any person other than the workman by operation of law, nor shall any claim be set off against the same.

Notice and claim.

13. (1) Proceedings for the recovery under this Ordinance of compensation for an injury shall not be maintainable unless notice of the accident has been given as soon as practicable after the happening thereof and before the workman has voluntarily left the employment in which he was injured, and unless the claim for compensation with respect to such accident has been made within six months from the occurrence of the accident causing the injury, or, in case of death, within six months from the time of death:

Provided that—

- (a) the want of or any defect or inaccuracy in such notice shall not be a bar to the maintenance of such proceedings if the employer is proved to have had knowledge of the accident from any other source at or about the time of the accident, or if it is found in the proceedings for settling the claim that the employer is not, or would not, if a notice or an amended notice were then given and the hearing postponed, be prejudiced in his defence by the want, defect or inaccuracy, or that such want, defect or inaccuracy was occasioned by mistake, absence from the Colony, or other reasonable cause; and
- (b) the failure to make a claim within the period above specified shall not be a bar to the maintenance of such proceedings if it is found that the failure was occasioned by mistake, absence from the Colony, or other reasonable cause.

(2) Notice in respect of an injury under this Ordinance may be given either in writing or orally to the employer (or if there is more than one employer to one of such employers) or to any foreman or other official under whose supervision the workman is employed or to any person designated for the purpose by the employer, and shall give the name and address of the person injured, and shall state in ordinary language the cause of the injury and the date at which the accident happened.

(3) The notice if in writing may be given by delivering the same at, or sending it by post in a registered letter addressed to the residence or place of business of the person to whom it is to be given.

(4) Where the employer is a body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, the notice, if in writing, may also be given by delivering it or by sending it by post in a registered letter addressed to the employer at the office, or, if there be more than one office, any one of the offices, of such body.

Medical examination.

14. (1) Where a workman has given notice of an accident or where an accident has occurred in respect of which the necessity of giving notice under this Ordinance is dispensed with, a workman shall, if the employer offers to have him examined free of charge by a qualified medical practitioner, submit himself for such examination, and any workman who is in receipt of a payment under this Ordinance shall, if so required, submit himself for such examination from time to time :

Provided that a workman shall not be required to submit himself for examination by a qualified medical practitioner otherwise than in accordance with regulations made under this Ordinance, or at more frequent intervals than may be prescribed.

(2) If a workman, being required to do so by the employer under subsection (1) or by the Commissioner at any time, refuses to submit himself for examination by a qualified medical practitioner or in any way obstructs the same, his right to compensation shall be suspended during the continuance of such refusal or obstruction unless, in the case of refusal, he was prevented by any sufficient cause from so submitting himself.

Refusal to be examined.

(3) If a workman, before the expiry of three days from the time at which service of notice of an accident has been effected or, when an accident occurs in respect of which the necessity of giving notice under this Ordinance is dispensed with, before the expiry of three days from the date of such accident, voluntarily and without due cause leaves the vicinity of the place in which he was employed without having been examined by a qualified medical practitioner, his right to compensation shall be suspended until he returns and offers himself for such examination.

Leaving vicinity prior to examination.

(4) Where a workman, whose right to compensation has been suspended under subsection (2) or subsection (3), dies without having submitted himself for medical examination as required by either of those subsections, the Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, direct the payment of compensation to the dependants of the deceased workman.

Death prior to examination.

(5) Where under subsection (2) or subsection (3) a right to compensation is suspended, no compensation shall be payable in respect of the period of suspension.

Compensation not payable during period of suspension.

(6) Where an injured workman has refused to be attended by a qualified medical practitioner whose services have been offered to him by the employer free of charge, or having accepted such offer has deliberately disregarded the instructions of such medical practitioner, then, if it is thereafter proved that the workman has not been regularly attended by a qualified medical practitioner and that such refusal, failure or disregard was unreasonable in the circumstances of the case and that the injury has been aggravated thereby, the injury and resulting disablement shall be deemed to be of the same nature and duration as they might reasonably have been expected to be if the workman had been regularly attended by a qualified medical practitioner, and compensation, if any, shall be assessed and payable accordingly.

Measure of compensation on refusal to be attended or disregard of medical advice.

15. (1) Where any person (in this section referred to as the principal) in the course of or for the purposes of his trade or business, contracts with any other person (in this section referred to as the contractor) for the execution by or under the contractor of the whole or any part of any work undertaken by the principal, the principal shall be liable to pay to any workman employed in the execution of the work any compensation under this Ordinance which he would have been liable to pay if that workman had been immediately employed by him; and where compensation is claimed from or proceedings are taken against the principal, then in the application of this Ordinance references to the principal shall be substituted for references to the employer, and the amount of compensation shall be calculated in accordance with subsection (1) of section 8 of this Ordinance.

Liability in the case of workmen employed by contractors or sub-contractors.

(2) Where the principal is liable to pay compensation under this section, he shall be entitled to be indemnified by any person who would have been liable to pay compensation to the workman independently of this section, and all questions as to the right to and the amount of any such indemnity shall, in default of agreement, be settled by the Commissioner.

Indemnity.

- Contractor. (3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing a workman recovering compensation under this Ordinance from the contractor instead of the principal.
- Control of principal. (4) This section shall not apply in any case where the accident occurred elsewhere than on, or in, or about the premises on which the principal has undertaken to execute the work or which are otherwise under his control or management.
- Remedies both against employer and stranger. 16. Where the injury for which compensation is payable under this Ordinance was caused under circumstances creating a legal liability in some person other than the employer to pay damages in respect thereof :—
- Recovery of damages a bar. (a) the workman may take proceedings both against that person to recover damages and against any person liable to pay compensation under this Ordinance for such compensation, but shall not be entitled to recover both damages and compensation; and
- Indemnity by third party. (b) if the workman has recovered compensation under this Ordinance, the person by whom the compensation was paid, and any person who has been called on to pay an indemnity under section 15 shall be entitled to be indemnified by the person so liable to pay damages as aforesaid, and all questions as to the right to and amount of any such indemnity shall, in default of agreement, be settled by action, or, by consent of the parties, by a Commissioner.
- Bankruptcy of employer. 17. (1) Where any employer has entered into a contract with any insurers in respect of any liability under this Ordinance to any workman, then in the event of the employer becoming bankrupt or making a composition or arrangement with his creditors or, if the employer is a company, in the event of the company having commenced to be wound up or a receiver or manager of the company's business or undertaking having been duly appointed, or possession having been taken, by or on behalf of the holders of debentures secured by a floating charge, of any property comprised in or subject to the charge, the rights of the employer against the insurers as respects that liability shall, notwithstanding anything in the enactments relating to bankruptcy and the winding up of companies, be transferred to and vest in the workman, and upon any such transfer the insurers shall have the same rights and remedies and be subject to the same liabilities as if they were the employer, so, however, that the insurers shall not be under any greater liability to the workman than they would have been under to the employer.
- Proof in bankruptcy. (2) If the liability of the insurers to the workman is less than the liability of the employer to the workman, the workman may prove for the balance in the bankruptcy or liquidation, or, as the case may be, he may recover the balance from the receiver or manager.
- Priority. (3) There shall be included amongst the debts which —
- (i) under section 33 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1914, are, in the distribution of the property or assets of a bankrupt, to be paid in priority to all other debts;

- (b) in the second case the date of the commencement of the winding up of the company;
- (c) in the third case the date of the appointment of the receiver or of possession being taken mentioned in the said section.

Where the compensation is a half-monthly payment, the amount due in respect thereof shall, for the purposes of this provision, be taken to be the amount of the lump sum for which the half-monthly payment could, if redeemable, be redeemed if the employer made an application for that purpose under this Ordinance, and a certificate of the Commissioner as to the amount of such sums shall be conclusive proof thereof.

Lump sum in lieu of payments.

(4) The provisions of this section with respect to preference and priorities shall not apply where the bankrupt or the company has entered into such a contract with insurers as aforesaid.

No priority if insured.

(5) This section shall not apply where a company is wound up voluntarily merely for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another company.

The Governor may, by notification in the Gazette, direct that every person employing workmen, or that any specified class of such persons, shall send at such time and in such form and to such person as may be specified in the notification, a correct return specifying the number of injuries in respect of which compensation has been paid by the employer during the previous year and the amount of such compensation, together with such other particulars as to the compensation as the Governor may direct. Any person failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable on summary conviction by a court of summary jurisdiction to a penalty of five pounds.

Returns as to compensation.

19. Any contract or agreement, whether made before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, whereby a workman relinquishes any right of compensation from the employer for personal injury arising out of or in the course of his employment, shall be null and void in so far as it purports to remove or reduce the liability of any person to pay compensation under this Ordinance.

Contracting out.

20. This Ordinance shall apply to workmen employed under the Crown in the same way and to the same extent as if the employer were a private person, except in the case of persons in the naval or military or air service of the Crown and persons in the Civil employment of Her Majesty otherwise than in Her Government of the Colony:

Workmen in employment of Crown.

Provided that this Ordinance shall not apply in the case of a workman in, or selected for appointment to, the service of the Government of the Colony before the date on which this Ordinance comes into operation where, in consequence of injury received by any such workman in the discharge of his duties, a pension or gratuity which would not be payable if such injury were received otherwise, is paid to him, or, in the case of his death, to any of his dependants as defined in this Ordinance, under any ordinance or regulation providing for the grant of such pension or gratuity.

21. The provisions contained in the proviso to the last preceding section shall mutatis mutandis apply in respect of a workman in the employment of any public or local authority where provisions exist by law or by by-law or regulation made under a law for the grant of a pension or gratuity to such workman in the case of injury received by him in the discharge of his duties, or to any other person in the event of the workman's death resulting from that injury.

Workmen in employment of local authorities.

22. (1) If any question arises in any proceedings under this Ordinance as to the liability of any person to pay compensation (including any question as to whether a person injured is or is not a workman) or as to the amount or duration of compensation (including any question as to the nature or extent of disablement), the question shall, in default of agreement, be settled by the Commissioner.

Reference to Commissioners.

(2) No Court shall have jurisdiction to settle, decide or deal with any question which is by or under this Ordinance required to be settled, decided or dealt with by a Commissioner, or, save as in this

24. In the event of the appointment of Commissioners for districts :—

(1) Where any matter is under this Ordinance to be done by or before a Commissioner, the same shall, subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and to any regulations made hereunder, be done by or before the Commissioner for the district in which the accident took place which resulted in the injury.

(2) If a Commissioner is satisfied by any party to any proceedings under this Ordinance pending before him that such matter can be more conveniently dealt with by any other Commissioner, he may, subject to regulations made under this Ordinance, order such matter to be transferred to such other Commissioner either for report or for disposal, and, if he does so the Registrar shall forthwith transmit to such other Commissioner all documents relevant for the decision of such matter and, where the matter is transferred for disposal, the Registrar shall also transmit in the prescribed manner any money remaining in his hands or invested by him for the benefit of any party to the proceedings.

(4) On receipt of a report from a Commissioner to whom any matter has been transferred for report under subsection (2), the Commissioner by whom it was referred shall decide the matter referred in conformity with such report.

Applications to Commissioner.

25. (1) No application for the settlement of any matter by a Commissioner shall be made unless and until some question has arisen between the parties in connection therewith which they have been unable to settle by agreement.

(2) Where any such question has arisen, the application may be made in such form and shall be accompanied by such fee, if any, as may be prescribed and shall contain, in addition to any particulars which may be prescribed, the following particulars, namely —

Powers and procedure of Commissioners.

27. (1) Any appearance, application or act required to be made or done by any person before or to a Commissioner (other than an appearance of a party which is required for the purpose of his examination as a witness) may be made or done on behalf of such person by a legal practitioner or, with the leave of the Commissioner, by some other person duly authorised for the purpose by the person required to make such appearance or application or do such act before or to a Commissioner.

Appearance of parties.

(2) No person other than a legal practitioner who appears or acts on behalf of any party in connection with proceedings before a Commissioner under this Ordinance shall be entitled to any fee or reward for so appearing or acting.

28. The Commissioner shall make notes of the evidence of every witness as the examination of the witness proceeds, and such notes shall be written and signed by the Commissioner with his own hand and shall form part of the record :

Where the order directs the payment of compensation under this Ordinance or the variation of the amount or rate of payment of compensation previously ordered by the Commissioner or settled by agreement, the Commissioner shall direct the Registrar to record a memorandum of his order in a register in the prescribed manner.

Registration of orders.

31. (1) Where the amount of compensation under this Ordinance has been settled or varied by agreement, a memorandum thereof shall be sent by the employer, and may be sent by any party interested, to the Commissioner, who shall, on being satisfied as to its genuineness, direct the Registrar to record the memorandum in a register in the prescribed manner :

Registration of agreements.

Provided that -

- (a) no such memorandum shall be recorded before seven days after communication by the Registrar of notice to the parties concerned;

- (c) the Commissioner may at any time rectify the register;
- (d) where it appears to the Commissioner that an agreement as to the payment of a lump sum, whether by way of redemption of a half-monthly payment or otherwise, or an agreement as to the amount of compensation payable to a person under any legal disability, or to dependants, ought not to be registered by reason of the inadequacy of the sum or amount, or by reason of the agreement having been obtained by fraud or undue influence or other improper means, he may refuse to record the memorandum of agreement or may take such order, including an order as to any sum already paid under the agreement, as he thinks just in the circumstances;

- (e) the Commission may, within six months after a memorandum of agreement as to the payment of a lump sum whether by way of redemption of half-monthly payment or otherwise, or of an agreement as to the amount of compensation payable to a person under any legal disability, or to dependants, has been recorded in the register, order that the record be removed from the register on proof to his satisfaction that the agreement was obtained by fraud or undue influence or other improper means, and may make such order (including an order as to any sum already paid under the agreement) as he thinks just in the circumstances.

Costs paid by employer to workman's solicitor to be disclosed.

(2) Any memorandum of agreement to which this section applies shall disclose the amount (if any) paid or payable under or in respect of the agreement by the employer to the solicitor and counsel for the workman or his dependants as costs, and, if it appears to the Commissioner that the amount is excessive, the Commissioner shall, subject to regulations made under this Ordinance, tax such costs, or order the same to be taxed by the Registrar, and if the costs are reduced on taxation, the amount of such reduction shall either be applied or dealt with for the benefit of the workman or his dependants, or paid to the employer.

Enforcement of orders and agreements as Supreme Court judgments.

32. Every memorandum and every amendment to a memorandum registered under section 30 or section 31 and every order made under section 31, when recorded as required by the said sections, shall thereupon for all purposes be enforceable as a Supreme Court judgment.

35. Employers to insure.

(2) Any employer required to insure under this section may instead, in such manner as may be prescribed by the Colonial Treasurer, deposit such sum of money or furnish such other security as the Commissioner may approve and such money or other security shall be used to pay compensation to that employer's workmen as occasion may arise.

(3) Any employer who acts in contravention of any order made under the provisions of this section shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction therefor, to a fine not exceeding two pounds for every day during which such contravention continues.

(4) Every employer who insures himself in respect of any liability which he may incur under the provisions of this Ordinance to any workman employed by him, whether such employer has been required to insure under this section or not, shall inform the Commissioner that he has so insured himself, giving the name and address of the insurer.

36. (1) With the leave of the Judge, or upon the certificate of the Commissioner making the order that it is a fit case for appeal from his order, an appeal shall lie to the Judge of the Supreme Court from any order of a Commissioner where a question of law is involved in the appeal.

(3) Notwithstanding anything herein contained, no appeal shall lie in any case in which the parties have agreed to abide by the decision of the Commissioner or in which the order of the Commissioner gives effect to an agreement come to by the parties.

(4) Save in so far as the same may be modified by any rules made under this Ordinance, the rules of the Supreme Court for the time being in force as to appeals to that Court in civil matters shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to appeals under this section from orders of the Commissioner.

“Harbour Master” means and includes any person appointed by the Governor for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this Ordinance;

“Mile” means a nautical mile, that is to say a distance of six thousand and eighty feet;

“Oil” means oil of any description and shall include crude oil, fuel oil, diesel oil and lubricating oil and shall also include coal tar but for the purposes of this Ordinance shall not include seal oil or whale oil;

(2) Any reference in any provision of this Ordinance to a mixture containing oil shall be construed as a reference to any mixture of oil with water or with any other substance.

3. (1) If any oil or oil residues or any mixture containing oil or oil residues is discharged or allowed to escape into any harbour or waters to which this Ordinance applies from any vessel, or from any factory or place on land, or from any apparatus used for transferring oil from or to any vessel (whether to or from a factory or place on land or to or from another vessel) then subject to the provisions of this Ordinance—

Discharge of oil into the territorial waters of the Colony.

(Oil in Nav. Waters Act, 1958, s. 3.)

- (a) if the discharge or escape is from a vessel, the owner or master of the vessel, or
- (b) if the discharge or escape is from a factory the manager, and if it is from a place on land, the occupier of that place, or
- (c) if the discharge or escape is from apparatus used for transferring oil from or to a vessel, the person in charge of the apparatus, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding £500.

4. (1) Where a person is charged with an offence under the last preceding section as the owner or master of a vessel, it shall be a defence to prove that the oil or oil residues or mixture in question was discharged for the purpose of securing the safety of the vessel, or of preventing damage to the vessel or her cargo, or of saving life :

(Oil in Nav. Waters Act, 1958, s. 4.)

Provided that a defence under this subsection shall not have effect if the court is satisfied that the discharge of the oil or oil residues or mixture was not necessary for the purpose alleged in the defence or was not a reasonable step to take in the circumstances.

(2) Where a person is charged as mentioned in the preceding subsection, it shall also be a defence to prove—

- (a) that the oil or oil residues or mixture escaped in consequence of damage to the vessel, and that as soon as practicable after the damage occurred all reasonable steps were taken for preventing, or (if it could not be prevented) for stopping or reducing, the escape of the oil or oil residues or mixture, or
- (b) that the oil or oil residues or mixture escaped by reason of leakage, that the leakage was not due to any want of reasonable care, and that as soon as practicable after the escape was discovered all reasonable steps were taken for stopping or reducing it.

(3) Where a person is charged with an offence under the last preceding section as the occupier of a place on land, or as the person in charge of any apparatus, from which oil or oil residues or a mixture containing oil is alleged to have escaped, it shall be a defence to prove that the escape of the oil or oil residues or mixture was not due to any want of reasonable care, and that as soon as practicable after the escape was discovered all reasonable steps were taken for stopping or reducing it.

(4) Without prejudice to the last preceding subsection, it shall be a defence for the occupier of a place on land, who is charged with an offence under the last preceding section, to prove that the discharge was caused by the act of a person who was in that place without the permission (express or implied) of the occupier.

(5) Where a person is charged with an offence under the last preceding section in respect of the discharge of a mixture containing oil from a place on land, it shall (without prejudice to any other defence under this section) be a defence to prove –

- (a) that the oil was contained in an effluent produced by operations for the refining of oil;
- (b) that it was not reasonably practicable to dispose of the effluent otherwise than by discharging it into waters to which the last preceding section applies; and
- (c) that all reasonably practicable steps had been taken for eliminating oil from the effluent :

Provided that a defence under this subsection shall not have effect if it is proved that, at a time to which the charge relates, the surface of the waters into which the mixture was discharged from the place in question, or land adjacent to those waters, was fouled by oil, unless the court is satisfied that the fouling was not caused, or contributed to, by oil contained in any effluent discharged at or before that time from that place.

(6) Where any oil or oil residues or mixture containing oil or oil residues is discharged in consequence of –

- (a) the exercise of any power conferred by sections five hundred and thirty to five hundred and thirty-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (which relate to the removal of wrecks by harbour, conservancy and lighthouse authorities), or and apart from this subsection the authority exercising the power, or a person employed by or acting on behalf of the authority, would be guilty of an offence under the last preceding section, in respect of that discharge, the authority or person shall not be convicted of that offence unless it is shown that they or he failed to take such steps (if any) as were reasonable in the circumstances for preventing, stopping or reducing the discharge.

Duty to report discharges of oil into waters of harbours.

(Oil in Nav. Waters Act, 1958. s. 10.)

5. (1) If any oil or oil residues or mixture containing oil –
- (a) is discharged from a vessel into the waters of a harbour in the Colony for the purposes of securing the safety of the vessel, or of preventing damage to the vessel or her cargo, or of saving life, or
 - (b) is found to be escaping, or to have escaped, into any such waters from a vessel in consequence of damage to the vessel, or by reason of leakage, or
 - (c) is found to be escaping or to have escaped into any such waters from a place on land, the owner or master of the vessel, or the occupier of the place on land, as the case may be, shall forthwith report the occurrence to the harbour master, stating, in the case of a report by the owner or master of a vessel, whether it falls within paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of this subsection, and, if he fails to do so, shall be guilty of an offence under this section :

(2) A person guilty of an offence under this section shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds.

Legal proceedings.
(Ch. 76. sec. 12.)

6. (1) Proceedings in respect of offences under this Ordinance, or any regulations made thereunder, may be taken before the magistrate or any two justices of the peace in a summary manner, or in the Supreme Court :

Provided that any fine imposed by the Magistrate or two justices of the peace shall not exceed one hundred pounds exclusive of costs.

(2) Where, immediately before the date which (apart from this subsection) would be the date of expiry of the time for bringing proceedings in a court of summary jurisdiction in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed under this Ordinance, the person to be charged is outside the Colony, the time for bringing proceedings shall be extended until the end of the period of two months beginning with the date on which he next enters the Colony.

(Oil in Nav. Waters Act, 1958, s. 12. (4).)

(3) Proceedings for any offence under this Ordinance may be taken against a person at any place at which he is for the time being.

(Oil in Nav. Waters Act, 1958, s. 12 (5).)

7. (1) Where a fine imposed by a court in proceedings against the owner or master of a vessel for an offence under this Ordinance is not paid at the time ordered by the court, the court shall, in addition to any other powers for enforcing payment, have power to direct the amount remaining unpaid to be levied by distress or pounding and sale of the vessel, her tackle, furniture and apparel.

Enforcement and application of fines.

(Oil in Nav. Waters Act, 1958, s. 13.)

(2) Where a person is convicted of an offence under section 3 of this Ordinance, and the court imposes a fine in respect of the offence, then if it appears to the court that any person has incurred, or will incur, expenses in removing any pollution, or making good any damage, which is attributable to the offence, the court may order the whole or part of the fine to be paid to that person for or towards defraying those expenses.

8. (1) The provisions of this Ordinance do not apply to vessels of Her Majesty's navy nor to Government ships in the service of the Admiralty while employed for the purposes of Her Majesty's navy.

Application of Act to Crown.

7. (1) A man and his wife shall not be deemed for the purposes of this Ordinance to be living otherwise than together unless they are permanently living in separation either by agreement or under an order of a court, or one of them has deserted the other and the separation which is incident to the desertion has not come to an end.

(8) For the purposes of this Ordinance, a person shall be deemed not to have attained the age of fourteen until the commencement of the fourteenth anniversary of the day of his birth, and similarly with respect of other ages.

(2) Sums to be paid on account of an allowance for the family of a man and his wife, living together shall be receivable either by the man or by the wife.

(3) If in the case of a man and his wife living together a court of summary jurisdiction is satisfied on a representation made to the court by way of complaint by either of them, or by the Superintendent, that one of them is not, as against the other, a proper recipient of allowances for their family, the court may order that the sums on account of allowances for their family becoming receivable after the expiration of fourteen days from the date of the order shall, notwithstanding anything in the last preceding subsection, be receivable, as between them, by the other only, and any order made under this subsection may be revoked or varied by a subsequent order of a court of summary jurisdiction on a representation made as aforesaid.

(4) It shall be the duty of a court of summary jurisdiction to send notification to the Superintendent of any order made by them under subsection (3) of this section as soon as may be after the order is made.

Determination of questions as to right of allowances.

9. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and in accordance with regulations made thereunder, all claims for or in respect of allowances shall be made to the Superintendent, and any question as to the right to an allowance in respect of any person for any family shall be decided by him.

(2) If any person is dissatisfied by the award or decision of the Superintendent in respect of an allowance, the question shall, on application being made in writing within sixty days after notice of the award has been posted to him, be referred to the Governor whose decision shall be final:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to a decision given by the Superintendent as respects any matter which by this Ordinance is to be within his discretion, or to be certified by him, or for deciding an issue which by this Ordinance depends on any facts being shown to his satisfaction.

(3) The Superintendent may at any time and from time to time revise any award made or decision given by him under this Ordinance, if it appears to him that the award or decision was erroneous either in view of further information which has been brought to his notice since the date on which it was made or given as to the circumstances existing at the time by reference to which it was made or given, or by reason of some mistake having been made with respect to those circumstances or to the law:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to an award or decision relating to a matter which has been referred under this section, or until the time has expired for making an application to have the matter to which the award or decision relates so referred, unless the person on whose application the reference was made, or who is entitled to apply to have the matter referred, as the case may be, consents, and this subsection shall not apply to an award made by the Superintendent for the purpose of giving effect to a decision given by the Governor, unless the person to whom the allowance in question belongs consents.

(4) If in any case in which a decision has been given by the Governor with respect to a matter referred under this section it appears to the Superintendent that the decision might properly be reconsidered in view either of further information which has been brought to his notice since the date on which it was given as to the circumstances existing at the time by reference to which it was given, or of any apparent inconsistency between the decision and any other decision subsequently given either by the court or by the Governor, he may cause the decision to be referred to the Governor, and he may revise the decision.

Period for which allowances are to accrue.

10. (1) An allowance shall be for a continuous period ascertained under the subsequent provisions of this section, and any award of an allowance shall be made accordingly.

(2) Subject to the provisions of the next succeeding section, an allowance awarded shall begin to accrue —

(a) if the claim was made within six months from the date of entitlement, on the date of entitlement; or

- (b) if the claim was not made within six months from the date of entitlement, then at the beginning of the period of six months, immediately preceding the date on which the claim was made:

Provided that, if the award is a revised award made by the Superintendent in view of further information brought to his notice or an award made for giving effect to a revised decision given by the Governor in view of such information, this subsection shall have effect as if the claim had been made on the date on which that information was brought to his notice, and the Superintendent may for the purposes of this proviso certify the date on which information was brought to his notice.

In this subsection the expression "date of entitlement" means, in relation to an allowance awarded in respect of any person as being a child included in any family, the date on which all the requirements of this Ordinance and of any relevant regulations for the existence of a right to an allowance in respect of that person for that family became satisfied, or if when the award was made those requirements had become satisfied more than once, the date on which they last became satisfied.

(3) An allowance awarded in respect of any person as being a child included in the family of a man and his wife shall be awarded not only for their family but also, with effect after the death of either of them whilst they are living together, for any family for the time being of the survivor, or of the survivor and a spouse of his or hers.

(4) Subject to the provisions of the next succeeding section, an allowance awarded in respect of any person shall terminate when any of the requirements of this Ordinance or of any relevant regulations for the existence of a right to an allowance in respect of that person ceases to be satisfied, or that person is no longer included in a family for which the allowance was awarded, or any of the requirements of this Ordinance or of any relevant regulations for the existence of a right to an allowance for such a family in which that person is included ceases to be satisfied, whichever first occurs.

(5) When it appears to the Superintendent that an allowance awarded is about to terminate, or has terminated, under this section, he shall take all necessary steps for stopping payments on account thereof on its termination or as soon as may be practicable thereafter, and the stopping of payments on account of an allowance under this subsection shall be treated for the purposes of the last preceding section as a decision of the Superintendent that the allowance has terminated.

11. (1) Allowances shall be payable by sums on account thereof receivable at such times, in such manner, whether through the Post Office or otherwise, and subject to such conditions, as may be prescribed.

Method of payment and time for obtaining payment.

(2) The right to so much of an allowance as is payable by a sum on account thereof made receivable (whether unconditionally or subject to satisfaction of any prescribed conditions) on any day shall be extinguished at the expiration of six months from that day if payment thereof has not been obtained during that period.

(3) The regulations to be made for the purposes of this section may make provision for securing that the beginning of accrual of allowances shall coincide with a day in the month on which sums on account of allowances made receivable monthly are to become receivable, and that the termination of allowances shall coincide with a day next before such a day.

12. (1) If it is found at any time that a sum has been paid as on account of an allowance being a sum which was not properly

payable, the Superintendent may require it to be repaid, —

- (a) if it was paid to a person as in his or her own right, by that person; or
- (b) if it was paid to a person as on behalf of another, either by that person or by that other person:

Provided that the Superintendent shall not require repayment by a person who is shown to his satisfaction to have acted in good faith in all respects as to the obtaining and receipt of the sum in question.

(2) In the case of a sum paid as on account of an allowance for the family of a man and his wife living together which the wife could under the preceding subsection be required to repay, the husband may be required to repay it.

(3) If it is found at any time that a sum properly payable on account of an allowance has been paid to a person not being a person by whom it was properly receivable, the Superintendent may require it to be repaid by the person to whom it was paid:

Provided that the Superintendent shall not require repayment by a person who is shown to his satisfaction to have acted in good faith in all respects as to the obtaining and the receipt of the sum in question.

(4) In case of the death of a person who could be required to repay a sum under this section, the Superintendent may require it to be repaid by his or her personal representative.

(5) Any sum which a person is required under this section to repay to the Superintendent may be recovered by the Superintendent summarily as a civil debt, and proceedings for the summary recovery as a civil debt of any such sum may, notwithstanding anything in any Ordinance to the contrary, be brought at any time within twelve months from the time when that sum was paid, or, where the proceedings are for the recovery of a consecutive series of sums, within twelve months from the date on which the last sum of the series was paid.

(6) Any sum which a person is required under this section to repay to the Superintendent may, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recovered by means of deductions from any other sum receivable on account of any allowance by the person to whom the sum was paid, unless it was paid to that person as on behalf of another, and in that case it may, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable by means of deductions from any other sum receivable on account of any allowance by that other person.

(7) If, after an allowance in respect of a child has been awarded for one family, facts are brought to the Superintendent's notice from which it appears that the child was in fact not included in that family, but was included in another family, during a period for which sums have been paid as on account of the allowance awarded, and a subsequent award is made of an allowance in respect of the child for that other family so as to accrue during that period or any part thereof, sums on account of the allowance awarded for that other family shall be payable only —

- (a) for the period after such date as may be certified by the Superintendent as being the earliest reasonably practicable for taking the necessary action in view of the said facts for stopping payments as on account of the allowance for the first-mentioned family; and
- (b) for any period before that date in respect of which payment of sums as on account of the allowance for the first-mentioned family has not been made, or in respect of which payment has been so made but of sums which have been repaid or recovered under this section.

13. If any person —

- (a) with intent to obtain any sum as on account of an allowance, either, as in that person's own right or as on behalf of another, furnishes any information which he or she knows to be false in a material particular, or recklessly furnishes any information which is false in a material particular, or withholds any material information; or
- (b) obtains or receives any sum as on account of an allowance, either as in that person's own right or as on behalf of another, knowing that it was not properly payable, or not properly receivable by him or her;

Penalty for obtaining or receiving payment wrongfully.

that person shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds or to both such imprisonment and such fine.

14. A Bill for
An Ordinance

Further to amend the Application of Enactments Ordinance, 1954. Title.

Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows :—

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Application of Enactments (Amendment) Ordinance, 1960, and shall be read as one with the Application of Enactments Ordinance, 1954, hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance.

Short title.

2. The Schedule to the principal Ordinance is amended as follows :—

Amendment of Schedule to the principal Ordinance.

- (a) enactment No. 15 is amended by the insertion in the second column of the figures and comma "14," immediately after the word "Sections";
- (b) enactment No. 31 is amended by the insertion in the second column of the figures and comma "41," between the figures "39" and the figures "47";
- (c) enactment No. 63 is amended by the deletion of the modification of subsection (1) of section 64 and the substitution therefor of the following modification :—

"In subsection (1) of Section 64 there shall be inserted a comma and the words " , other than an order made in exercise of its civil jurisdiction under the Administration of Justice Ordinance as amended by the Administration of Justice (Amendment) Ordinance, 1954," between the word "sum" and the word "or".

OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The objects of this Bill are as follows:

- (i) amendment (a) applies section 14 of the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914, to the Colony, which allows summary proceedings (with the accused's consent) for wilful or malicious damage to real or personal property, if the damage does not exceed £20, and authorises the payment of reasonable compensation for the damage committed, to the party aggrieved, which amends the provisions of the Malicious Damage Act, 1861, confining the powers of a court of summary jurisdiction to dealing with cases of wilful or malicious damage to real or personal property, where the damage does not exceed £5;
- (ii) amendment (b) applies section 41 of the Criminal Justice Act, 1925, to the Colony, which prohibits the making of any sketch for publication, or the taking of any photograph in any court, whether criminal or civil. This provision exists in all British courts but at present there is no provision for such a prohibition in our laws;
- (iii) amendment (c) makes an alteration in the application of section 64 (1) of the Magistrates' Courts Act, 1952, clarifying that the powers given to the court of summary jurisdiction, to levy any sum adjudged to be paid on conviction or order of the court, are confined to matters of a criminal or quasi-criminal nature; whereas the powers granted to the courts by section 9 of the Civil Procedure (Extension) Ordinance, to order the execution of a decree of the court are limited to matters within the court's civil jurisdiction.

Accident to Aircraft.

On Tuesday the 9th August, 1960, at 09.55 (L.M.T.) Beaver Aircraft VP-FAH took off from Port Stanley and subsequently landed and took off, in the following sequence, at Darwin, Roy Cove, Beaver Island, New Island, Beaver Island, Port Stephens, Fox Bay and Darwin and landed at Fitzroy at 16.10 (L.M.T.) without incident. Shortly after 16.10 (L.M.T.) preparatory to taking off the aircraft slipped moorings at Fitzroy and due to the direction of a moderate and gusty (approximately North-westerly) wind, was compelled to taxi through 180° to port in the rather confined kelp free area of Fitzroy Harbour, in order to take up position for the take-off run from outside the harbour entrance. On coming abeam of the wind the rate of turn slowed down, the aircraft drifted into a kelp patch, the kelp fouled the water rudders causing them to lift out of the water with loss of directional control resulting in the aircraft turning to starboard, by which time the aircraft was very close to the beach. The pilot increased power hoping that the torque reaction of the propeller would assist in turning the aircraft to port as it was then obvious that the aircraft would otherwise ground. The increase in power did not produce the desired turning effect, the aircraft consequently struck the rocky beach whilst travelling at an estimated speed of 15 knots, and was extensively damaged. The pilot and all passengers escaped uninjured.

2. On the 20th August His Excellency appointed Mr. Harold Bennett, J.P., to carry out the statutory investigations prescribed by the Civil Aviation (Investigation of Accidents) Regulations, 1959. Mr. Bennett commenced his investigations on the 30th August, and took statements from the following witnesses:—

Mr. James Kerr	— Director of Civil Aviation and Pilot.
The Hon. R. H. D. Manders	} Passengers in the aircraft.
The Hon. Dr. R. S. Slessor
Mrs. Linda Street
Mrs. W. B. Jeffery

3. Mr. Bennett visited the hangar and inspected the damaged Beaver Seaplane VP-FAH and also inspected the relevant documents. After hearing the evidence Mr. Bennett formed the opinion that the accident could only be attributed to kelp fouling the water rudders aggravated by a gusty wind which rendered the aircraft difficult to control. It was also his opinion that the pilot could not be held responsible for the accident. This report has been accepted.

4. Delivery of the parts necessary to repair the aircraft will take twelve weeks.

Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony this 12th day of October, 1960.

By His Excellency's Command,

R. H. D. MANDERS,

Colonial Secretary.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Minutes of the Meeting held on 27th September, 1960.

Present: His Excellency the Governor.
 The Honourable the Colonial Secretary.
 The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer.
 The Honourable H. Bennett, J.P.
 The Honourable J. T. Clement.
 The Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P.
 The Honourable A. L. Hardy, O.B.E., B.E.M., J.P.
 The Honourable R. V. Goss.
 The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner, J.P.
 The Honourable L. Bedford.

The Meeting opened with prayers read by the Reverend J. O. Vere-Stead.

1. After taking the prescribed oaths the Honourable the Colonial Secretary R. H. D. Manders, O.B.E., assumed his seat on Council.

2. His Excellency extended a welcome to Mr. Manders and his family and hoped that they would have a happy stay in the Falklands.

3. The Minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 27th, 28th and 29th April, 1960, were confirmed.

4. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary, by command, laid on the Table the following paper: Report on the Accounts and Finances of the Falkland Islands 1958/59.

5. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable the Senior Medical Officer moved the adoption of the following Resolution:

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee on finance for the period April to August, 1960, be adopted".

The Resolution was passed.

6. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary introduced the Customs (Amendment) Resolution 1960, saying

"By this Resolution it is proposed to reduce the incidence of taxation on the whaling industry in South Georgia by means of a reduction in the rate of duty on whale and seal oil production. At present duty is assessed on the average market price per ton for the season of first grade oil and is at the rate of 6d. per barrel of 40 gallons for each £5 or part of £5 of such average market price. The companies do in fact pay 5/- per barrel before export and the balance (usually about 2/- to 3/-) when all the oil for that season has been disposed of and the average price determined.

The production costs of the industry have risen considerably. In addition to the normal increase in the costs of wages, supplies and equipment, the South Georgia based catchers are compelled to operate considerably further out to sea, thereby increasing running expenses and the post mortem time of the whales before processing, a factor that affects the quality and grade of oil produced. The United Kingdom Government is of course closely concerned financially because any reduction in revenue from South Georgia will mean a corresponding increase in H. M. G's contributions to the Dependencies Survey. After consultation with the Secretary of State it has been agreed that some reduction in taxation that will encourage the companies to continue operating is not only equitable but in fact essential. Indeed had not a prospect of relief been held out it is doubtful whether the companies would have continued to operate this year. It is therefore proposed to reduce the rate of duty to a flat 5/- per barrel payable on export. The net effect will be a reduction in the South Georgia revenue of approximately £20,000 a year at the present average price of £75 per ton. The overall revenue from South Georgia will still be more than sufficient to finance the administration and the annual subvention to the Colony. The necessary provisions to give effect to this proposal are contained in this Resolution."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable H. Bennett then moved the adoption of the following Resolution which was adopted unanimously.

In exercise of the powers conferred on the Legislative Council by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance, it is hereby resolved by the Legislative Council as follows:

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Amendment) Resolution, 1960.

2. Paragraph 3 of the Customs Order is hereby amended by deleting the words and figures from "The duty shall be assessed" to the words and figures "£5 of such average market price" and by substituting therefor the following words and figures: "Commencing with the 1960/61 season at the rate of 5/- per barrel, payable on export, for every barrel of 40 gallons, exported."

7. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary introduced the Bill "Further to amend the Legislative Council (Elections) Ordinance" and said

"The object of this Bill is to correct a minor error in drafting in the Legislative Council (Elections) Ordinance of 1959. Although an amending ordinance refers to the principal ordinance as the principal Ordinance and refers to itself as this Ordinance yet in any passages of the amending ordinance which become part of the principal ordinance, the principal ordinance must be referred to as this Ordinance and the amending ordinance must be referred to by its title. In the Legislative Council (Elections)

Ordinance of 1959 the titles were given incorrectly and it is now proposed to correct this minor error.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and subsequently passed through all its stages.

8. In moving the first reading of the Bill "To amend the Firearms Ordinance" the Honourable the Colonial Secretary said

"The object of this Bill is to correct a minor defect in drafting which has been noticed in the Firearms Ordinance. Section 12 subsection 2 of that Ordinance states that a licence shall remain in force for one year expiring on the 31st December but as a licence may be taken out at any time in the year the wording may be inconsistent in some cases. The amendment is intended to state quite clearly that a licence will remain in force for a period not exceeding one year and expiring on the 31st December.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and committed.

Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to.

The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

9. The Honourable H. Bennett proposed the first reading of the Bill "To regularize the payment of Family Allowances" and said

"I have no doubt that Honourable Members are aware that a system of non-contributory family allowances, payable in the case of each family with two or more children at the rate of 10/- a month in respect of each child, was introduced and approved by the Legislative Council on the 20th October, 1948, although no legislation governing the procedure for the payment and right to the allowances was enacted at that time.

As a scheme of this nature is virtually an indefinite commitment for the future, it is therefore desirable that it should be supported by legislation.

At first sight this Bill appears to be rather on the complicated side, although its objects, generally to regularize the payment of family allowances, are relatively simple.

The principal provisions of the Bill are:

- (a) to provide for the payment of family allowances to every family which includes two or more children under the age of 14 years at the rate of 10/- per month in respect of each child;
- (b) to specify the persons who constitute a family for the purposes of family allowances;
- (c) to stipulate the persons to whom family allowances are to be paid;
- (d) to determine questions as to the right of family allowances;
- (e) to specify the period for which family allowances are to accrue; and
- (f) to stipulate the method of payment of family allowances and the time within which such payment must be obtained.

It is proposed that this legislation should be given retrospective effect from the 1st January, 1949, the date on which the payments first became due.

I beg, Sir, to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill seconded by the Honourable the Senior Medical Officer was read accordingly.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time, committed and passed through all its stages without amendment.

10. In introducing the Bill "Further to amend the Application of Enactments Ordinance, 1954" the Honourable H. Bennett said

"The objects of this Bill are threefold.

Firstly, it extends the Criminal Justice Act, 1914, in its partial application to the Colony, by the application of section 14 of that Act to the Colony. Section 14 of the Act allows summary proceedings (with the accused's consent) for wilful or malicious damage to real and personal property, whether of a public or private nature, if the damage does not exceed £20, authorises the payment of reasonable compensation to the party aggrieved, and provides a statutory defence for a person charged with an offence under the section "where the alleged offender acted under a fair and reasonable supposition that he had a right to do the act complained of". Section 14 modifies the provisions of the Malicious Damages Act, 1861 (the principal existing law on this subject) which limits the powers of a court of summary jurisdiction to dealing with cases of wilful or malicious damage to real or personal property, where the damage does not exceed £5.

Secondly, it extends the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1925, in its partial application to the Colony, by the application of section 41 of that Act to the Colony, which section makes it an offence punishable by a fine of £50, to sketch for publication, or to photograph, in any court whether criminal or civil any of the persons concerned in a judicial proceedings.

The application of section 14 of the Act of 1914 and section 41 of the Act of 1925 to the Colony will bring the law of the Colony regarding these provisions into uniformity with that of the United Kingdom.

Thirdly, it clarifies the modification of section 64 (1) of the Magistrates' Court Act, 1952, in its application to the Colony, with a view to preventing conflict between section 64 (1), which gives power to a court of summary jurisdiction, to issue a warrant of distress for the purpose of levying the sum, or to issue a warrant committing the defaulter to prison, where default is made in paying a sum adjudged to be paid by a conviction or order of the court, in matters of a criminal or quasi-criminal nature; and section 9 of the Civil Procedure (Extension) Ordinance, which empowers the court to order the execution of a decree, by delivery of any property, or by attachment and sale or by sale without attachment of any property, or by attachment of debts, in matters within the court's civil jurisdiction.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and no objection being made the Bill was read accordingly.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and committed.

Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to.

The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

11. The Honourable H. Bennett next introduced the Bill "To make provision for appeals by prisoners of war or internees who have been convicted of offences" and said

"Her Majesty by Order in Council has directed that the Geneva Conventions Act, 1957, with the exception of section 4 (which relates to appeals from convictions of prisoners of war and civilian internees) shall extend to all Commonwealth territories for whose international relations the Government of the United Kingdom is responsible.

The Act gives effect to the following Geneva Conventions :

1. A Convention for the improvement of the condition of the wounded and sick in armed forces in the field.
2. A Convention for the improvement of the condition of wounded, sick and shipwrecked members of armed forces at sea.
3. A Convention relative to the treatment of prisoners of war.
4. A Convention relative to the protection of civilian persons in time of war.

Section 4 of the Act was not extended to Colonial territories by the Order in Council as it could not readily be modified in general terms that would be apt for all territories. The Secretary of State has advised that each territory should enact its own legislation on the lines of subsection (1) of the said section 4, to ensure that where a protected prisoner of war or a protected internee has been sentenced to death or to imprisonment for a term of two years or more, time for appealing does not begin to run until notice of the conviction and sentence has been given to the protecting power.

The Bill now before Council is designed to implement the provisions of subsection (1) of section 4 of the Act, as modified to meet the existing circumstances of the Colony.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was seconded by the Honourable L. Bedford and read accordingly.

The Bill was read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee without amendment.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

Council adjourned sine die.

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to a decision given by the Superintendent as respects any matter which by this Ordinance is to be within his discretion, or to be certified by him, or for deciding an issue which by this Ordinance depends on any facts being shown to his satisfaction.

(3) The Superintendent may at any time and from time to time revise any award made or decision given by him under this Ordinance, if it appears to him that the award or decision was erroneous either in view of further information which has been brought to his notice since the date on which it was made or given as to the circumstances existing at the time by reference to which it was made or given, or by reason of some mistake having been made with respect to those circumstances or to the law:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to an award or decision relating to a matter which has been referred under this section, or until the time has expired for making an application to have the matter to which the award or decision relates so referred, unless the person on whose application the reference was made, or who is entitled to apply to have the matter referred, as the case may be, consents, and this subsection shall not apply to an award made by the Superintendent for the purpose of giving effect to a decision given by the Governor, unless the person to whom the allowance in question belongs consents.

(4) If in any case in which a decision has been given by the Governor with respect to a matter referred under this section it appears to the Superintendent that the decision might properly be reconsidered in view either of further information which has been brought to his notice since the date on which it was given as to the circumstances existing at the time by reference to which it was given, or of any apparent inconsistency between the decision and any other decision subsequently given either by the court or by the Governor, he may cause the decision to be referred to the Governor, and he may revise the decision.

Period for which allowances are to accrue.

10. (1) An allowance shall be for a continuous period ascertained under the subsequent provisions of this section, and any award of an allowance shall be made accordingly.

(2) Subject to the provisions of the next succeeding section, an allowance awarded shall begin to accrue —

(a) if the claim was made within six months from the date of entitlement, on the date of entitlement; or

- (b) if the claim was not made within six months from the date of entitlement, then at the beginning of the period of six months, immediately preceding the date on which the claim was made:

Provided that, if the award is a revised award made by the Superintendent in view of further information brought to his notice or an award made for giving effect to a revised decision given by the Governor in view of such information, this subsection shall have effect as if the claim had been made on the date on which that information was brought to his notice, and the Superintendent may for the purposes of this proviso certify the date on which information was brought to his notice.

In this subsection the expression "date of entitlement" means, in relation to an allowance awarded in respect of any person as being a child included in any family, the date on which all the requirements of this Ordinance and of any relevant regulations for the existence of a right to an allowance in respect of that person for that family became satisfied, or if when the award was made those requirements had become satisfied more than once, the date on which they last became satisfied.

(3) An allowance awarded in respect of any person as being a child included in the family of a man and his wife shall be awarded not only for their family but also, with effect after the death of either of them whilst they are living together, for any family for the time being of the survivor, or of the survivor and a spouse of his or hers.

(4) Subject to the provisions of the next succeeding section, an allowance awarded in respect of any person shall terminate when any of the requirements of this Ordinance or of any relevant regulations for the existence of a right to an allowance in respect of that person ceases to be satisfied, or that person is no longer included in a family for which the allowance was awarded, or any of the requirements of this Ordinance or of any relevant regulations for the existence of a right to an allowance for such a family in which that person is included ceases to be satisfied, whichever first occurs.

(5) When it appears to the Superintendent that an allowance awarded is about to terminate, or has terminated, under this section, he shall take all necessary steps for stopping payments on account thereof on its termination or as soon as may be practicable thereafter, and the stopping of payments on account of an allowance under this subsection shall be treated for the purposes of the last preceding section as a decision of the Superintendent that the allowance has terminated.

11. (1) Allowances shall be payable by sums on account thereof receivable at such times, in such manner, whether through the Post Office or otherwise, and subject to such conditions, as may be prescribed.

Method of payment and time for obtaining payment.

(2) The right to so much of an allowance as is payable by a sum on account thereof made receivable (whether unconditionally or subject to satisfaction of any prescribed conditions) on any day shall be extinguished at the expiration of six months from that day if payment thereof has not been obtained during that period.

(3) The regulations to be made for the purposes of this section may make provision for securing that the beginning of accruer of allowances shall coincide with a day in the month on which sums on account of allowances made receivable monthly are to become receivable, and that the termination of allowances shall coincide with a day next before such a day.

12. (1) If it is found at any time that a sum has been paid as on account of an allowance being a sum which was not properly

payable, the Superintendent may require it to be repaid, —

- (a) if it was paid to a person as in his or her own right, by that person; or
- (b) if it was paid to a person as on behalf of another, either by that person or by that other person:

Provided that the Superintendent shall not require repayment by a person who is shown to his satisfaction to have acted in good faith in all respects as to the obtaining and receipt of the sum in question.

(2) In the case of a sum paid as on account of an allowance for the family of a man and his wife living together which the wife could under the preceding subsection be required to repay, the husband may be required to repay it.

(3) If it is found at any time that a sum properly payable on account of an allowance has been paid to a person not being a person by whom it was properly receivable, the Superintendent may require it to be repaid by the person to whom it was paid:

Provided that the Superintendent shall not require repayment by a person who is shown to his satisfaction to have acted in good faith in all respects as to the obtaining and the receipt of the sum in question.

(4) In case of the death of a person who could be required to repay a sum under this section, the Superintendent may require it to be repaid by his or her personal representative.

(5) Any sum which a person is required under this section to repay to the Superintendent may be recovered by the Superintendent summarily as a civil debt, and proceedings for the summary recovery as a civil debt of any such sum may, notwithstanding anything in any Ordinance to the contrary, be brought at any time within twelve months from the time when that sum was paid, or, where the proceedings are for the recovery of a consecutive series of sums, within twelve months from the date on which the last sum of the series was paid.

(6) Any sum which a person is required under this section to repay to the Superintendent may, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recovered by means of deductions from any other sum receivable on account of any allowance by the person to whom the sum was paid, unless it was paid to that person as on behalf of another, and in that case it may, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable by means of deductions from any other sum receivable on account of any allowance by that other person.

(7) If, after an allowance in respect of a child has been awarded for one family, facts are brought to the Superintendent's notice from which it appears that the child was in fact not included in that family, but was included in another family, during a period for which sums have been paid as on account of the allowance awarded, and a subsequent award is made of an allowance in respect of the child for that other family so as to accrue during that period or any part thereof, sums on account of the allowance awarded for that other family shall be payable only —

- (a) for the period after such date as may be certified by the Superintendent as being the earliest reasonably practicable for taking the necessary action in view of the said facts for stopping payments as on account of the allowance for the first-mentioned family; and
- (b) for any period before that date in respect of which payment of sums as on account of the allowance for the first-mentioned family has not been made, or in respect of which payment has been so made but of sums which have been repaid or recovered under this section.

13. If any person —

- (a) with intent to obtain any sum as on account of an allowance, either, as in that person's own right or as on behalf of another, furnishes any information which he or she knows to be false in a material particular, or recklessly furnishes any information which is false in a material particular, or withholds any material information; or
- (b) obtains or receives any sum as on account of an allowance, either as in that person's own right or as on behalf of another, knowing that it was not properly payable, or not properly receivable by him or her;

Penalty for obtaining or receiving payment wrongfully.

that person shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds or to both such imprisonment and such fine.

14. (1) Every assignment of or charge on, and every agreement to assign or charge, an allowance or any part of an allowance or any sum to be paid on account of an allowance, shall be void, and on the bankruptcy of a person to whom an allowance belongs or by whom sums on account of an allowance are receivable, no rights in respect of the allowance or of any sum to be paid on account thereof shall pass to any trustee or other person acting on account of the creditors.

Allowances to be inalienable.

(2) Sums receivable by any person on account of an allowance shall not be included in calculating his means for the purposes of section 5 of the Debtors Act, 1869.

15. (1) The Governor in Council may make regulations for prescribing anything which under this Ordinance is to be prescribed and generally for carrying this Ordinance into effect, and in particular —

Regulations.

- (a) for prescribing the manner in which claims to allowances may be made;
- (b) for authorising in such cases as may be prescribed the payment of any sum as on account of an allowance during any period intervening between the making of any claim or the referring of any question and the final determination of that claim or question;
- (c) for enabling a person to be appointed to exercise on behalf of a claimant, or of a person to or by whom an allowance belongs or is receivable, who may be or become unable for the time being to act, any right or power which that claimant or person may be entitled to exercise under this Ordinance, and for authorising a person so appointed to receive any sum on account of an allowance on behalf of the claimant or person;
- (d) for imposing upon persons to whom allowances belong or by whom or on whose behalf sums on account of allowances are receivable the duty to furnish to the Superintendent information of facts affecting the right thereto;
- (e) for making provision, in connection with the death of persons who had made claims for allowances or to whom allowances belonged or by whom sums on account of allowances were receivable, for enabling such claims to be proceeded with, for extending the period limited by section 11 of this Ordinance for obtaining payment of such sums, for authorising payment or distribution of such sums to or amongst persons claiming as personal representatives, legatees, next of kin or creditors of such persons (or, in cases of illegitimacy of deceased persons, to or amongst others), and for dispensing with strict proof of the title of persons so claiming.

(2) If any person contravenes or fails to comply with any requirement of regulations made under this Ordinance, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds.

Provisions as to legal proceedings.

16. Proceedings for an offence under this Ordinance shall not be instituted without the written consent of the Colonial Secretary.

Limitation of extent of application of Ordinance.

17. (1) It shall be a condition of the right to any allowance for the family of a man and his wife living together that each or one of them is in the Colony, and the like condition shall apply in the case of the family of such a man as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section 5 of this Ordinance as respects the man, and in the case of the family of such a woman as is mentioned in paragraph (c) of the subsection as respects the woman.

(2) It shall be a condition of a child's being treated as a member of any family that the child is in the Colony.

(3) For the purposes of the two preceding subsections the temporary presence of a person in the Colony or the temporary absence of a person therefrom shall be disregarded, and the question whether the presence or absence of a person is or is not to be treated as temporary for the said purposes shall be determined by reference to such regulations as may be prescribed.

(4) Sums to be paid on account of allowances shall be payable only in the Colony.

SCHEDULE

Section 5.

Circumstances in which a person is to be treated as maintaining a child.

1. (1) A person shall be treated for the purposes of this Ordinance as maintaining a child—
- (a) if that person is the only person who contributes to the cost of providing for the child, or if that person contributes to the said cost an amount greater than any other one person contributes thereto;
 - (b) if two or more persons of whom that person is one each of them contribute to the said cost an equal amount that is greater than any other one person contributes thereto, and it is agreed between the said two or more persons, or in default of agreement the Superintendent in his discretion decides, that, as between them, that person is to be preferred;

and not otherwise:

Provided that a person who under the preceding provisions would be treated as maintaining a child shall not be so treated if his or her contribution to the cost of providing for the child is at a rate less than ten shillings a month, unless the child is living with that person.

(2) For the purposes of this paragraph, a man and his wife living together shall be treated as one person and amounts contributed by them respectively shall be aggregated accordingly, and references to a person shall be construed as references to such persons as are mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) respectively of subsection (1) of section 5 of this Ordinance, that is to say, a man and his wife living together, such a man as is mentioned in the said paragraph (b) and such a woman as is mentioned in the said paragraph (c).

Determination of the family in which a child capable of being treated as included in more than one family is to be included.

2. Where a child could otherwise be treated under section 5 of this Ordinance as included at the same time in one family as being issue of his or her parents or either of them, and in another family as being maintained by a person other than his or her parents or either of them, the child shall be treated as then included in that family only in which he or she can be treated as included as being issue of the parents or parent.

3. Where a child could otherwise be treated under section 5 of this Ordinance as included at the same time in one family on the ground of the child's being issue of his or her father, and in another family on the ground of the child's being issue of his or her mother, the child shall be treated as then included in one of those families to the exclusion of the other as may be agreed between the father and the mother, or in default of agreement as the Superintendent may in his discretion decide.

E. P. ARROWSMITH,
Governor.

No. 2 of 1960.

By virtue of the powers vested in him by section 15 of the Family Allowances Ordinance, 1960, and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council His Excellency the Governor is pleased to make and hereby makes the following Regulations —

PART I.

Short title and interpretation.

1. (1) These regulations may be cited as the Family Allowances Regulations, 1960.

(2) In these regulations, except as hereinafter provided and unless the context otherwise requires —

“the Ordinance” means the Family Allowances Ordinance, 1960;

“allowance” means an allowance under the Ordinance;

“family” and “Superintendent” have the same meaning as in the Ordinance;

“month” means calendar month;

“parent” means, in relation to any child, the person in whose family such child would, if living with such person, be treated as included for the purposes of the Ordinance as being issue of that person or, in the case of a man and his wife living together, as being issue of either the man or his wife.

PART II.

Section 17 (2)

Presence in or absence from the Colony.

2. In this part of these regulations “presence” and “absence” means actual presence in and actual absence from the Colony respectively and “present” and “absent” shall be construed accordingly.

3. (1) For the purposes of section 17 of the Ordinance a person shall be treated as being temporarily absent in the following circumstances —

(i) if he is absent for a continuous period of less than nine months;

(ii) if he is on leave (overseas);

(iii) if he is in the service of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey or is a merchant seaman:

Provided, however, that absence for any period shall not be treated as temporary if it is, or was when it began, for a purpose other than a temporary purpose.

(2) Where at any date there is already in existence a right to one or more allowances for the family of a man and his wife, that family shall, for the purposes of this regulation, be treated as continuing in existence despite the death of either of them occurring while they are living together.

Absence from a parent and interruption or reduction of parent's contribution.

4. In determining whether any absence (other than at a school) of a child from a parent or any interruption or reduction of a parent's contribution to the cost of providing for a child is or is not treated as temporary for the purposes of sub-section (7) of section 7 of the Ordinance the following rules shall apply —

(a) any such absence, interruption or reduction due to the child undergoing treatment as an in-patient at a hospital shall be treated as temporary while the child is undergoing such treatment;

- (b) any such interruption or reduction due to the child being at a school shall be treated as temporary while the child is at that school;
- (c) any such absence which does not fall within sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph shall be treated as temporary for a period of twelve weeks and no longer, and any such interruption or reduction which does not fall within sub-paragraph (a) or (b) of this paragraph shall be treated as temporary for a period of four weeks and no longer:

Manner in which claims may be made.

(b) Forms of claim shall be supplied free on demand by every postmaster and by any officer or person whom the Superintendent may appoint for that purpose.

(c) If, owing to the absence of due signature or of due certification or of both, a claim fails to fulfil the requirements of sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph at the date of receipt by the Superintendent or by any officer or person appointed by him, he may, provided that the form of claim is returned duly signed and certified within one month of the date on which it is received for completion by the person making the claim, nevertheless treat the claim as valid as from the date on which it would have been valid if the claim had originally fulfilled the requirements of sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph.

(2) Where a claim has been made in accordance with paragraph (1) of this regulation, save that certain particulars have been either wrongly stated in or omitted from the form of claim, the Superintendent may in his discretion, provided he has not made his award or given his decision, allow the person making the claim to amend the claim or supply the particulars, as the case may be, by notice in writing sent by post or delivered to the Superintendent or to such officer or person as he may appoint, and in such cases he may treat the claim as valid as from the date on which it would have been valid if the claim had originally fulfilled the requirements of paragraph (1) of this regulation.

(3) (a) Where a person who is absent from the Colony makes a claim on the appropriate form, the date of the posting of the claim shall be treated as the date on which the claim was made.

(b) Where such a person in the first instance makes a claim in writing otherwise than on the appropriate form, the date of the posting of such claim in writing shall be treated as the date on which the claim was made, provided that a claim on the appropriate form is duly completed and posted or despatched to the Superintendent, or to such officer or person as he may appoint for the purpose, within one month from the date on which the form is received for completion by the person making the claim.

Information in support of claim.

7. Every person claiming an allowance (including any person appointed to act on his behalf under regulation 16) shall furnish such certificates and other documents and information as the Superintendent may require in connection with the claim.

Notice of award.

8. The Superintendent shall cause notice in writing of his award or decision in respect of an allowance to be sent or delivered to the person making the claim and any such notice shall be treated as duly sent to such person if sent to him by post at his usual or last known place of abode.

Awards before the coming into force of section 3 of the Ordinance.

9. Claims may be made and disposed of and allowances may be awarded before the coming into force of section 3 of the Ordinance.

Payment of sums as on account of an allowance pending final determination.

10. Where a claim for an allowance has been duly made or any question as to an allowance has been referred and the claim or question has not been finally determined, the Superintendent may, if he has prima facie grounds for believing that an allowance should be awarded but desires to obtain further information or to inspect any documents before making his award or giving his decision, authorise payment of a sum or sums as on account of an allowance for such period or periods as he may determine.

Accruer of allowances.

11. An allowance awarded shall begin to accrue on the first day in every month and shall terminate on the last day in every month, provided that no allowance shall begin to accrue before the date of entitlement.

Method of payment of sums on account of allowance.

12. Sums on account of an allowance shall become receivable at the times hereinafter prescribed and shall be paid either —

(1) by means of allowance orders payable in respect of every month to a person by whom such sums are receivable at the appropriate post office; or

(2) in such other special manner as the Superintendent may in any particular case and for any particular period determine.

Allowance order books.

13. (1) In every case in which sums on account of an allowance are payable by means of allowance orders the Superintendent shall cause arrangements to be made whereby —

(a) on furnishing such evidence of identity and such other particulars as may be required the person to whom the allowance belongs or (where an order has been made under sub-section (3) of section 8 of the Ordinance) by whom sums on account of the allowance are receivable, or any person appointed under regulation 16 to act on behalf of any such person, may obtain, either through the postmaster of the appropriate post office or otherwise, a book of allowance orders;

(b) written intimation shall be sent to that person of the appropriate post office and of the arrangements so far as they effect that person; and

(c) a fresh book of allowance orders may be issued to that person on the expiration of the previous book either by the postmaster at the appropriate post offices or otherwise.

(2) A book of allowance orders issued to any person shall remain the property of the Government.

(3) Any person having possession of an allowance order book or an unpaid allowance order in respect of an allowance shall, on the termination of that allowance or on the request of the Superintendent, as the case may be, deliver such book or order to the Superintendent or to such officer as he may appoint.

14. Sums on account of an allowance shall be receivable —

Date on which sums are receivable on account of allowance.

(1) in the case of a sum payable by means of an allowance order, on the first day of the month in respect of which it is to be paid;

(2) in the case of a sum to be paid in any other manner under these regulations on such day as the Superintendent may in any such case determine.

15. Any person to whom an allowance belongs or by whom or on whose behalf sums on account of an allowance are receivable (including any person appointed to act on behalf of any such person under regulation 16) shall, in such manner and at such time as the Superintendent may determine, furnish to the Superintendent such certificates and other documents and such information of facts affecting the right to the allowance as the Superintendent may require, whether as a condition on which any such sum or sums shall be receivable or otherwise, and in particular shall notify the Superintendent in writing of any change of circumstances affecting the right to the allowance as soon as practicable after the occurrence of any such change.

Further information and notification of change of circumstances.

16. Where any person, being a person who is alleged to be entitled to make a claim or a person to whom an allowance belongs or by whom sums on account of an allowance are receivable, is or becomes unable for the time being to act, the Superintendent may appoint any person whom he may consider suitable and who is prepared to be so appointed, to exercise on behalf of the person unable to act any right or power which that person may be entitled to exercise under the Ordinance and to receive any sum on account of an allowance on behalf of that person:

Representation of persons unable to act.

Provided that —

(1) the Superintendent may at any time in his discretion revoke any appointment made under this regulation;

(2) any person appointed under this regulation may, on giving the Superintendent one month's notice in writing of his intention so to do, terminate his appointment.

17. (1) On the death of a person who had made a claim for an allowance or to whom an allowance belonged the Superintendent may appoint such person as he may think fit to proceed with or to make a claim for the allowance.

Claims and payments after death.

(2) The period limited by section 11 of the Ordinance for obtaining payment of a specified sum shall, in respect of any specified sum made receivable on any day within six months before the death of a person by whom it was receivable, be extended until the expiration of six months following the date on which such sum is made payable by the Superintendent to any one or more of the persons to or amongst whom it may be paid or distributed in accordance with the provisions of sub-paragraph (a) of the next succeeding paragraph:

Provided that this shall not apply to any such sum for the payment of which written application has not been made to the Superintendent within six months after the date of death or within such longer period as he, having regard to the circumstances of the particular case, may determine.

(3) (a) Any specified sum may be paid or distributed by the Superintendent to or amongst persons claiming as personal representatives, legatees, next of kin or creditors of a deceased person who had made a claim for the allowance to which the specified sum relates or to whom the allowance belonged or by whom sums on account of the allowance were receivable or, in the case of illegitimacy of such deceased person, to or amongst others:

Provided that the receipt of any one or more persons so claiming of the age of sixteen years or upwards shall be a good discharge to the Superintendent for any specified sum so paid, and that in the case of such a person being a child under the age of sixteen years the Superintendent may, if he is satisfied that the specified sum or any part thereof is needed for the benefit of the child, obtain a good discharge therefor by paying such specified sum or part thereof, as the case may be, to a person (who need not be a person specified in this sub-paragraph) who has satisfied the Superintendent that he will apply the sum so paid for the benefit of that child.

(b) The Superintendent may dispense with strict proof of the title of persons so claiming as aforesaid.

(4) For the purposes of this regulation "specified sum" means any sum referred to in paragraph (e) of sub-section (1) of section 15 of the Ordinance.

C. W. HALL,
Accounting Officer, Dependencies.
21st October, 1959.

GENERAL.

1. The accounts of the Stanley Town Council have been examined in accordance with section 97, Cap. 68, of the Laws of the Falkland Islands.

2. Subject to the comments contained in this report, the accounts have been kept and rendered in a satisfactory manner.

AUTHORITIES FOR EXPENDITURE

3. The approval of the 1959 Estimates by the Council, as recorded in the minutes, did not specify either the total expenditure authorised for the year, or the sums provided under the various heads. This has been brought to the notice of Council and the matter is being kept in view.

4. The authority of the Council has not been seen for the excess expenditure on the various heads amounting to £1,124 6s. 3d. The two additional items of expenditure shown separately in the abstract as Transport £17 6s. 6d., and Advances £20 7s. 1d., are both expenditure items above-the-line, and should therefor have been provided for in the Estimates, or by supplementary approval. This has been brought to the notice of Council for retrospective approval of the total excess expenditure of £1,191 19s. 10d. The matter is being kept in view.

ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF REVENUE.

5. The revenue for the year ended 31st December, 1959, is understated by £75 17s. 3d., being the accrued interest on the Cemetery Fund Investments from June, 1958, December 1959. The interest had not been cleared from a deposit account at the Treasury.

6. The total of the revenue of £6,187 13s. 8d., shown on the abstract is further understated by the following amounts transferred from below-the-line accounts to the credit of Surplus and Deficit Account. A Town Hall deposit of £5., Savings Bank Interest of £18 18s. 0d., in respect of the Capital Account Fund, and Savings Bank interest of £9 17s. 5d., in respect of the Fire Brigade Fund.

7. The rating valuation list for 1959, would not appear to have been signed by the Assessment Committee, and it has therefor not been possible to ascertain whether the rates assessed for 1959, have been approved by the Committee.

8. There would appear to be rates totalling £90., outstanding at the date of this Report in respect of the 1958, and 1959, assessments. There would also appear to be approximately £200., outstanding as at the above date in respect of the current year. More vigorous action will have to be taken by Council to recover the outstanding rates including court action if necessary. The matter is being kept in view.

STATEMENT OF ASSETS AND LIABILITIES.

LIABILITIES.

9. Surplus and Deficit Account :— The balance on this account as at 1st January, 1959, of £315 12s. 0d., has increased to £552 17s. 9d.

10. The balance of this account includes £33 15s. 5d., transferred direct from below-the-line accounts instead of to a revenue head. Paragraph 6, above refers.

ASSETS.

11. Cemetery Investments £1,685 18s. 7d. :— These investments have been valued in the books as at 31st December, 1959, at 'par'. The middle market value of these investments as at the above date is £1,540 10s. 1d. If it is intended to leave the investments at 'par' and not to revalue each year, a footnote to the Statement of Assets and Liabilities showing the middle market value would seem desirable.

12. The existence of the above investments as at the 31st December, 1959, has been verified from certificates rendered by the Comptroller and Auditor-General.

13. Savings Bank Deposits and cash in hand £3,286 0s. 5d. :— The balances on the various deposit accounts with the Government Savings Bank as at 31st December, 1959, have been verified from the Treasury Books. No board of survey was held on the cash in hand of £156 0s. 5d.

Remission of Income Tax

Section 55 of the Income Tax Ordinance prescribes the penalty for non-payment of tax within 60 days of service of notice.

Previously it was considered necessary to impose this penalty only in exceptional cases. It has now been held that the Commissioner is legally bound to recover the penalty in all cases when the tax has not been paid within the prescribed period. It was, however, considered unreasonable to adopt a new procedure without any warning and to impose the penalty on those who had every intention of paying their tax but had not realised that the limit of 60 days was to be strictly enforced since it had not been enforced in the past. The Governor-in-Council has therefore been pleased to use the powers given him by Section 90 of the Ordinance to remit the penalty. In future the penalty will be imposed in all cases of failure to pay the tax within the prescribed period of 60 days.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony at Government House, Stanley, this 3rd day of February, in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Sixty-one.

By His Excellency's Command,

R. H. D. MANDERS,

Colonial Secretary.

Pay and Working Rules for Hourly Paid Employees in Stanley.

These Rules shall constitute an agreement between Stanley Employers and the Labour Federation and shall be reviewed annually in October by the Government and the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd. as employers, and the Labour Federation. These Rules shall be effective for a period of twelve months beginning on the 1st of January, 1961.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation up or down, in accordance with the cost of living and the conditions in industry. Reviews shall take place at annual intervals and any changes based on the four previous Cost of Living Indices (published quarterly) shall operate automatically, any changes being applied to the nearest penny. The Labourer's rate shall be regarded as the basis for fixing all other rates and the existing relationships between the various rates shall be preserved.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised:—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) APPRENTICES.

The rates of pay for apprentices shall be as follows—

Year.	Fraction of Craftsman's Rate.
1st	One Third
2nd	Two Fifths
3rd	One Half
4th	Two Thirds
5th	Four Fifths.

(c) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board. The minimum rate for Handymen shall be one penny more than the Labourer's rate and the maximum one penny less than the Craftsmen's rate.

(d) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be paid one penny more than the Labourer's rate and shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid 2d. per hour more than the Labourer's rate while engaged in this work.

2. Actual Rates until December 31st, 1961.

The following rates shall apply until December 31st, 1961.

Class			Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	3/6½d.
2. Apprentices	1st year		1/2½
	2nd year		1/5
	3rd year		1/9½
	4th year		2/5
	5th year		2/10
3. Handymen			3/- to 3/5½ according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen	3/-
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers			3/1
6. Labourers	2/11
7. Boy Labourers	Age	% of man's rate
	14-15	40	1/2d.
	15-16	50	1/5½
	16-17	66½	1/11½
	18	100	2/11

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 1d. per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 30 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall receive from 4d. to 8d. per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 2/- per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 2d. per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 1d. per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 6d. per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 45 hours per week made up as follows :-

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

Saturday - 7.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 45 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows :-

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
 (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 45-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Holidays.

(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following seven days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday, Empire Day, December 8th, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Stanley Annual Sports Meeting.

The Diplomatic Privileges (Extension) Ordinance (Cap. 20)

ORDER

(under Section 2 of the Ordinance)

E. P. ARROWSMITH,
Governor.

No. 1 of 1961.

Whereas by Section 2 of the Diplomatic Privileges (Extension) Ordinance (hereinafter referred to as the Ordinance), it is enacted: That the provisions of this section shall apply to any organisation declared by an Order of the Governor in Council to be an organisation of which Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the Government or Governments of one or more foreign sovereign Powers are members:

That the Governor may, by Order in Council, provide that any organisation to which this section applies shall, to such extent as may be specified in the Order, have the immunities and privileges set out in Part I of the Schedule to the Ordinance and shall have the legal capacities of a body corporate:

That the Governor may, by Order in Council, confer on the representatives (whether of Governments or not), on any organ of the organisation and upon officers and servants of the organisation, the immunities and privileges set forth in Parts II and III of the said Schedule to the extent specified in the Order: and

That Part IV of the Schedule to the Ordinance shall have effect for the purpose of extending to the staffs of representatives and to the families of certain high officers of the organisation any immunities and privileges conferred on the representatives or officers, except in so far as the operation of the said Part IV is excluded by the Order conferring privileges and immunities:

And Whereas Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom applied the provisions of the Convention on Privileges and Immunities for the Specialized Agencies of the United Nations to the Inter-governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation by Order in Council made on the 28th July, 1959, under the International Organisations (Immunities and Privileges) Act, 1959, by which said Order it was declared that the Inter-governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation is an Organisation of which Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the governments of foreign sovereign Powers are members:

Now, Therefore, His Excellency the Governor, in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Section 2 of the Ordinance and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of the Executive Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered as follows:—

1. This Order may be cited as the Diplomatic Privileges (Inter-governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation) Order, 1961.

PART I.

The Organisation.

2. The Inter-governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation (hereinafter referred to as the Organisation) is an Organisation of which the United Kingdom and foreign sovereign Powers are members.

6. The Organisation shall have exemption from taxes on the importation of goods directly imported by the Organisation for its official use in the Colony or for exportation, or on the importation of any publications of the Organisation directly imported by it, such exemption to be subject to compliance with such conditions as the Collector of Customs may prescribe for the protection of the Revenue.

7. The Organisation shall have exemption from prohibitions and restrictions on importation or exportation in the case of goods directly imported or exported by the Organisation for its official use and in the case of any publications of the Organisation directly imported or exported by it.

8. The Organisation shall have the right to avail itself, for telegraphic communications sent by it and containing only matter intended for publication by the press or for broadcasting (including communications addressed to or despatched from places outside the Colony), of any reduced rates applicable for the corresponding service in the case of press telegrams.

PART II.

Representatives.

(iii) Part IV of the Schedule to the Ordinance shall not operate so as to confer any immunity or privilege on the official staff of representatives of members of the Organisation other than alternates, advisers, technical experts and secretaries of delegations.

(iv) Neither the provisions of the preceding paragraphs of this Article nor those of Part IV of the Schedule to the Ordinance shall operate so as to confer any immunity or privilege on any person as the representative of Her Majesty's Government in the Colony or as a member of the official staff of such a representative or on any person who is a citizen of the United Kingdom and Colonies.

““Ordinary resident” in reference to any place means a person who habitually resides in that place except for such absence therefrom as seems to the Commissioner to be of a temporary nature.”.

3. The proviso to section 5 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the deletion of the words "income arising outside the Colony" and the substitution therefor of the words "income arising from a source outside the Colony".

6. Section 24 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the deletion of the words "income arising out of the Colony" and the substitution therefor of the words "income arising from a source outside the Colony".

Amendment of section 24 of the principal Ordinance.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill seeks to clarify the conditions for the taxation of seasonal workers at South Georgia. Some doubt has been cast upon the effect of the present law for the taxation of seasonal workers in that one method of assessment appears to apply to the earnings during the summer months and another to the earnings during the winter months. Provision is now sought to amend the law so as to make it clear that one method of assessment shall be adopted for the whole year and to give clear legal authority for the practice which has always been followed.

Stanley, Falkland Islands.
29th May, 1961.

S.C. 29/61.

Report by the Auditor on the accounts of the Stanley Town Council for the year ended 31st December, 1960.

GENERAL

1. The accounts of the Stanley Town Council have been examined in accordance with section 97, Cap. 68, of the Laws of the Falkland Islands.
2. Subject to the comments contained in this report, the accounts have been kept and rendered in a satisfactory manner.

AUTHORITIES FOR EXPENDITURE

3. The approval of the 1960, Estimates by the Council, as recorded in the minutes, did not specify either the total expenditure authorised for the year, or the sums provided under the various heads. The omission to properly record the approval by Council of the annual estimates, was commented on at paragraph 3, of the previous report, and it would appear that the 1961, Estimates have been correctly authorised.
4. The authority of the Council has been seen for the excess expenditure on the various heads amounting to £1,512 7s. 10d., for the year 1960.
5. The retrospective approval of Council for excess expenditure of £1,191 19s. 10d., in 1959, has now been seen, paragraph 4, of the previous report refers.

ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF REVENUE

6. Revenue Head IX, sub-head Cemetery Investments, is understated by £25 3s. 9d., being six months interest not cleared from the Treasury deposit account at the 31st December, 1960. Paragraph 5, of the previous report refers.
7. The rating valuation list for 1960, has not been signed by the Assessment Committee, this was commented on in respect of the 1959, year at paragraph 7, of the previous report. It would appear however, that the 1961, valuation list has been correctly signed by the committee.
8. As reported at paragraph 8, of the previous report, there are still considerable arrears of rates still outstanding, and the matter is being kept in view.

STATEMENT OF ASSETS AND LIABILITIES

LIABILITIES.

9. Surplus and Deficit Account :— The balance on this account has increased during the year from £552 17s. 9d., to £1,002 19s. 3d.

ASSETS.

10. The middle market value of the Cemetery Fund Investments as at 31st December, 1960, amounts to £1,504 1s. 5d.
11. The Savings Bank interest on the Fire Brigade Fund and Capital Account which is credited to the General Revenue of the Town Council, was not transferred to the General Savings Bank Account. Consequently the Fund Investments accounts for the two Funds are overstated by £9 15s. 0d. and £40 12s. 6d., respectively. These amounts have now been transferred.
12. The existence of the above investments as at the 31st December, 1960, has been verified from certificates rendered by the Comptroller and Auditor General.
13. Savings Bank deposits and cash in hand :— The balances on the various deposit accounts with the Government Savings Bank as at 31st December, 1960, have been verified from the Treasury books. No board of survey was held on the cash in hand of £44 15s. 10d.

Convinced also that a treaty ensuring the use of Antarctica for peaceful purposes only and the continuance of international harmony in Antarctica will further the purposes and principles embodied in the Charter of the United Nations;

Have agreed as follows :

ARTICLE I

2. The present Treaty shall not prevent the use of military personnel or equipment for scientific research or for any other peaceful purpose.

ARTICLE II

Freedom of scientific investigation in Antarctica and cooperation toward that end, as applied during the International Geophysical Year, shall continue, subject to the provisions of the present Treaty.

2. In implementing this Article, every encouragement shall be given to the establishment of cooperative working relations with those Specialised Agencies of the United Nations and other international organizations having a scientific or technical interest in Antarctica.

ARTICLE IV

1. Nothing contained in the present Treaty shall be interpreted as :—

- (a) a renunciation by any Contracting Party of previously asserted rights of or claims to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica;
- (b) a renunciation or diminution by any Contracting Party of any basis of claim to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica which it may have whether as a result of its activities or those of its nationals in Antarctica, or otherwise;
- (c) prejudicing the position of any Contracting Party as regards its recognition or non-recognition of any other State's right of or claim or basis of claim to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica.

2. No acts or activities taking place while the present Treaty is in force shall constitute a basis for asserting, supporting or denying a claim to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica or create any rights of sovereignty in Antarctica. No new claim, or enlargement of an existing claim, to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica shall be asserted while the present Treaty is in force.

ARTICLE V

1. Any nuclear explosions in Antarctica and the disposal there of radioactive waste material shall be prohibited.

2. In the event of the conclusion of international agreements concerning the use of nuclear energy, including nuclear explosions and the disposal of radioactive waste material, to which all of the Contracting Parties whose representatives are entitled to participate in the meetings provided for under Article IX are parties, the rules established under such agreements shall apply in Antarctica.

ARTICLE VI

The provisions of the present Treaty shall apply to the area south of 60° South Latitude, including all ice shelves, but nothing in the present Treaty shall prejudice or in any way affect the rights, or the exercise of the rights, of any State under international law with regard to the high seas within that area.

ARTICLE VII

1. 4. Aerial observation may be carried out at any time over any or all areas of Antarctica by any of the Contracting Parties having the right to designate observers.

Penalty for false statements, etc., and repayment where pensioner found not to have been entitled to pension.

(2) If it is found at any time that a person has been in receipt of an old age pension under this Ordinance while the statutory conditions were not fulfilled in his case, or while he was disqualified for receiving the pension, he or, in the case of his death his personal representative, shall be liable to repay to the Government any sums paid to him in respect of the pension while the statutory conditions were not fulfilled, or while he was disqualified for receiving the pension, and the amount of those sums may be recovered as a debt to the Government.

(3) Where any person who is in receipt of an old age pension under this Ordinance is liable to repay to the Government any sum under this section the Treasurer shall be entitled, without prejudice to any other means of recovering such sum, to direct the deduction of such sum from any sums to which that person becomes entitled on account of an old age pension :

Provided that, in the case of a personal representative the deduction shall only be made from any sums to which that person becomes entitled, or which he could claim as such personal representative.

11. (1) The Governor in Council may make regulations generally for carrying this Ordinance into effect, and in particular—

Regulations.

- (a) for prescribing the evidence to be required as to the fulfilment of statutory conditions;
- (b) for prescribing the manner in which claims to pensions may be made;
- (c) for providing for the payment of old age pensions;
- (d) for authorising the payment of any sum by way of old age pension during any period intervening between the making of a claim and the final determination thereof;
- (e) for enabling a person to be appointed to exercise, on behalf of any claimant or pensioner who is, by reason of any mental or other incapacity unable to act, any right to which that claimant or pensioner may be entitled under this Ordinance, and to authorise any person so appointed to receive on behalf and for the benefit of the claimant or pensioner any sums payable by way of old age pension;
- (f) for prescribing anything which under this Ordinance is to be prescribed.

(2) Any regulations made under this Ordinance may provide that a contravention thereof shall be an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding five pounds.

The Meeting opened with prayers read by the Reverend Dr. W. F. McWhan, M.B.E., D.D.

2. The Minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 27th September, 1960, were confirmed.

3. His Excellency the Governor addressed Council as follows —
 Honourable Members of Legislative Council.

When I addressed you last in April 1960, I said that we hoped to arrange for a visit to the Falklands by Mr. Wannop, Director of the Hill Farming Research Organisation in Scotland. As you know, that was done, and Mr. Wannop visited the Falklands from November to January. During that time he saw almost every farm on the East and West Falkland, and visited many of the Islands. Everywhere he went Mr. Wannop received the greatest kindness and hospitality, and I think all of us who had the pleasure of entertaining him, would agree that we could not have had a more pleasant or more interesting guest.

I mention Mr. Wannop's visit first of all, to focus attention on the most important of our problems in the Colony, namely, the improvement of our pastures and of the sheep industry as a whole. Throughout his tour, Mr. Wannop was most impressed by the efforts which farmers are making to achieve this end. I hope before long to receive his full report, and some of you have already seen a short report which he wrote entitled 'Impressions of Falkland Islands' Farming', and which is at present being published in the Monthly Review. This concludes, "I hope that these pioneering efforts by enthusiasts will not only continue, but will have imitators. There are certainly many with a keen desire to improve, and progress will be greatest when the most promising techniques are tried under a wide variety of conditions. A small improved area may seem slightly absurd when compared with the immensity of the Camp, but from a small area the technique of successful improvement can be acquired and the economics of large scale ventures worked out. Though fencing sub-division and grazing control is likely to effect the most economical improvement of Camp swards, land improvement of selected areas is an equally necessary development."

The greatest credit is due to those who have initiated and are carrying on what Mr. Wannop describes as "these pioneering efforts", and I am sure they have done much to spark the interest which is now being shown throughout the Colony in land improvement and grazing control.

We cannot escape the fact that in the Falklands everything depends on our one industry, and that this is unlikely ever to change. It is, therefore, vitally important that this industry should be run as efficiently as possible. We are not in the happy state here of receiving large subsidies for our produce, and our wool has to travel 8,000 miles to its market, but even with these disadvantages, I see no reason for depression about the future. I shall be dealing later in my speech with the financial position of the Colony, but you may, perhaps, recall that last year I said that we were geared on Government expenditure to a wool price of approximately 55d to 60d. I think, that with measures we are proposing, to raise more revenue, this might now be nearer 50d, and this figure is, of course, based upon the number of sheep we are now running, and the amount of wool we are exporting. If the Colony were able to run 5% more sheep, the figure of 50d could be reduced to 48d, and if the pastures could support an increase of 25% more sheep, the figure would be reduced from 50d to 40d. Similarly, if the average weight of our fleeces could be increased, the same result would be achieved without there having to be such large increases in the number of sheep. That is why the efforts which farmers are making to improve their grazing and lambing, and to reduce losses, are so vital to the future of the Islands.

During the past year, one of the most worrying problems with which Government has been concerned, has been the serious violations of our mails, routed via South America, which continued during 1960 with monotonous regularity. During that period, no fewer than 211 parcels were violated. Every opportunity is, of course, taken to arrange that surface mails should be shipped direct from the United Kingdom, but we cannot confine shipments only to these direct opportunities. The General Post Office in London has been most concerned with our problems, and an official of the General Post Office visited Montevideo in March, where most valuable discussions were held with the Uruguayan postal authorities. I am happy to say that violations of mails have now virtually ceased, and I trust that this satisfactory state of affairs will continue.

Throughout the year the Post Office has been bedevilled by staffing problems, but the Postmaster and his staff have dealt promptly and efficiently with all inward mail, and have made every effort to distribute it as rapidly as possible. During the summer when we have Royal Research Ships and Naval Ships taking mails from the Colony, as well as the regular 'Darwin' sailings, we shall do all we can in future to ensure that adequate notice is given of these additional opportunities to get mail away.

Both our external and internal wireless services have been maintained satisfactorily throughout the year. Our communications with the outside world depend on second-hand equipment, which although it continues to give satisfactory service, has a limited life. Credit is due to Mr. W. H. Roberts, who, in spite of staff shortages, has kept the station working so well.

Telephones, R/T and Broadcasting Services have been well run by Mr. C. Reive, who has done much - mainly in his own time - to improve the field of broadcasting. He is ably assisted by an energetic Broadcasting Committee and Programme Secretary.

During the year communications with the Camp were seriously interrupted by the accident to the Beaver aircraft at Fitzroy on August 8th when taxi-ing prior to take-off. Unfortunately, when this happened the second aircraft was undergoing a major overhaul for its Certificate of Airworthiness, and there was no flying for a period of one month. This may seem a long time, but when someone not mechanically minded looks at an aircraft completely stripped down for its C. of A., one is inclined to wonder whether it can ever be put together again. The Air Department staff worked extremely hard on the Beaver to get it flying in a month, and it was due to their efforts that the delay was not several weeks longer. They also had an extremely difficult task in adapting the new fuselage, which was obtained to replace the one which had to be written off after the accident. In spite of these difficulties, a total of 2,911 passengers were carried during the year, and aircraft flew 848 hours and some 6,800 lb. of freight was flown.

The 'Philomel' proved most useful in bringing the damaged Beaver from Fitzroy to Stanley, and once more this little ship proved her worth in delivering cargo and mail round the Islands. During the year 1960 she steamed a distance of 5,451 miles; and a further most useful service she performed was the loading of two diesel generator units at Ajax Bay, and transporting them to Stanley for installation in the Power House. This most difficult operation was ably supervised by Mr. Gutteridge and Mr. Sollis, and owing to good team work, was successfully carried out. Each unit weighed some 14 tons, and they were loaded at Ajax Bay and discharged in Stanley without one single piece having been damaged or broken. One unit has been rebuilt and installed in Stanley, bringing the total output of the station to 725 kilowatts. The second unit has been placed in store, where it is being held in reserve.

The Power and Electrical Department continued work throughout the year on house wiring and repair and maintenance of domestic appliances, and improvements to the distribution system. Street lighting is now in position along the whole of Davis Street, and other improvements are planned for the coming year. These include Brandon Road, Allardyce Street, Pioneer Row, St. Mary's Walk, and Ross Road East and West. There has been an increase in the use of domestic electrical appliances of all kinds, and it is expected that the output of the station will reach over a million units during the present year.

Work on the Stanley roads has continued, and at present is in progress on the road to the hangar. This is not as easy an operation as some, for the complete road cannot be closed, and half of it has to be done at a time. When it is completed, sick people coming into Stanley from the Camp will be carried in the Red Cross ambulance very much more comfortably and safely than was possible over the bumps and pot-holes of the old road.

The ambulance has proved to be most useful during the past year, and while on the subject of the Red Cross, I am very happy to say that through some very generous contributions, the Red Cross has now been able to acquire its own headquarters in Jubilee Villas. I should also mention the really splendid response by the people of the Falklands to the appeal for help for the victims of the Chilean earthquakes in 1960. No less than £1,030 were subscribed, and 62 crates of clothing were despatched. This magnificent effort was very greatly appreciated by the Chilean Authorities.

Mrs. Walton, who had been Treasurer of the Red Cross, left the Colony with her husband, the Chief Constable, in April, at the conclusion of his three year contract. I would like to extend to them our good wishes for the future, and also to welcome our new Chief Constable and Mrs. Baker, who arrived here last month.

One of the most serious difficulties the Public Works Department is now facing, is the shortage of artizans. At the present moment, we have not a single carpenter, apart from the Foreman Carpenter. I hope that measures which may result from proposals which Honourable Members will be considering in connection with the Budget, will result in an improvement, for it is most important that essential maintenance work on Government property should not perforce be neglected through lack of staff.

In October, Mr. Draycott was appointed Superintendent of Education, and I am sure we would all like to wish him every success in this most interesting and challenging job. There is an increasing awareness throughout the Colony of the importance of education, and it must be our aim to ensure that all children, and not only the scholarship winners, should, age for age, be equal to children attending schools in the United Kingdom. During the year we were sorry to say good bye to Mrs. Greta Pitaluga, who had done so much for the infant school, and only the other day, to Mr. Honeyman, the first headmaster of the Darwin Boarding School. The success of this school is due to the wise management of Mr. Honeyman, and I am sure Honourable Members will join with me in wishing him and his wife every happiness in their retirement.

I think, Honourable Members, the time is now ripe for us to consider the further extension, and the provision of further facilities, at the Darwin school. I would hope that funds may be obtainable from Colonial Development and Welfare for the capital expenditure that may be necessary. There is a waiting list for this school, where the number of pupils during the past year was 46, of whom 11 were day pupils. The number of children attending Stanley school rose from 155 to 165, and 20 children attended Port Howard School, now under the headmastership of Mr. Chivers. The largest number of boarders at any one time at this school was four.

We received most welcome assistance in camp teaching throughout the year from volunteers of the Voluntary Service Organization, two of whom came out originally, and who have now been replaced by another two. I hope that this service will continue, and may even be extended in the future. Lack of men teachers continues to be a problem, and we have been quite unable to obtain men teachers for the Stanley School.

The staff of the Medical Department has continued to work as hard as ever, and we were fortunate last year to obtain the services of Mr. Carr as a dental surgeon for Stanley, and Mr. Wedgwood as the Camp dentist. We have also been very glad to welcome Sister White, who arrived last month. Last winter, which was an exceptionally bad one, caused a marked increase in what the S.M.O. calls "upper respiratory tract infections." These took the form of influenza, tonsillitis, quinsy, and a very bad version of the common cold. Darwin school was particularly badly hit with tonsillitis. I hope we shall have an easier time this winter.

Now, Gentlemen, I have dealt only with the activities of some Departments. Were I to mention all of them, I fear I should keep you too long. But may I thank the staff of all Departments for their work during the past year, and say that it must always be our aim to extend and improve the services we give to the people of this Colony.

Honourable Members, may I now turn from the past to the future. You will recall that last year I said that one of our problems was to ensure that our Government Services are at least maintained at their present standard of efficiency, and to do this we need to ensure that we are competitive in the conditions of service we offer, so that good officers, whether from overseas or locally recruited, can be encouraged to remain in the Colony, and so that we can always be sure of filling vacancies if, and when, they occur. You will also recall that we increased salaries to the Medical Department, because we felt that an improvement in pay was essential if we were to keep this Department, which is vital to the health and lives of the people of the Colony, adequately staffed. There can be no doubt that our present salaries are not competitive, and moreover they are insufficient to attract young men to enter the Civil Service.

This staffing problem, Honourable Members, is one which affects all Colonies, including those which have recently become independent, those which are about to become independent, and others, like ourselves, which are rather small, and which have difficulty in obtaining staff. Her Majesty's Government has been conscious of this problem, and immediately after the Christmas Recess the Overseas Service Bill was debated in the House of Commons. It is proposed under the terms of the Act that Her Majesty's Government will give all Colonial Governments who wish to participate, substantial financial assistance towards the cost of employing expatriate officers, and it is anticipated that this assistance will amount to £16,000,000 annually.

The assistance proposed is on the following lines. Her Majesty's Government will meet the cost of inducement allowances, that is, the amount that has to be paid to secure the services of an expatriate officer over and above the amount that would be paid to a local officer performing similar duties. In other words, if the local rate of pay is, say, £1,000 a year for a particular job, and there is no local officer to fill it, and if an expatriate officer cannot be obtained for less than £1,400 a year, a Colony would pay the £1,000 and Her Majesty's Government the £400. In addition to this, H.M.G. is prepared to meet half the cost of passages on appointment and on leave of all expatriate staff, and half the compensation that would be paid to them by a Colony for loss of career if they are replaced by local officers; and also H.M.G. will meet the cost of education allowances paid to expatriate staff.

Now how do these proposals affect the Falklands? Our problem here is a special one. With our small population it is unlikely that all jobs can be filled by local officers - doctors, dentists, schoolteachers, and so on. We shall, therefore, continue to rely on officers from overseas, at least for the foreseeable future. But that is only half the problem. Falkland Islanders have none of the difficulties that are encountered by people from most other Colonies in obtaining employment, if they leave to seek their fortunes overseas. There has been a steady stream of emigrants leaving the Colony, and this I believe presents a very real threat to our future. As far as Government is concerned, and perhaps not only Government, the problem is both to induce expatriates to come and serve here, and also to induce Falkland Islanders to stay and serve here. We have no large reservoir of young people clamouring for jobs in Government service. You know, Gentlemen, how difficult it is to find any, and how many have left Government service to go abroad. In the past expatriation allowances were paid to officers from overseas, but these allowances were abolished in the 1957 salaries revision. This principle has been maintained in the proposals which are now being submitted for your consideration, and since there is no distinction in the suggested scales between expatriates and locally born, we shall receive no general assistance from H.M.G. in the form of "inducement allowances" to expatriate officers.

I would emphasise particularly, Gentlemen, the position of officers both locally born and expatriate on the permanent and pensionable establishment. These officers, certainly the more senior of them, have decided to make their career in the Colony. Opportunities for transfer, which may have existed when they joined the Service, are becoming less and less, and it is little exaggeration to say, that these opportunities have virtually disappeared. These officers have given us good and loyal service, they know local conditions, and if they were to leave us we could certainly not obtain replacements for them at our present salary scales - perhaps not even at enhanced rates. I suggest it is only fair that the rates we are prepared to pay our present staff should relate as closely as possible to what we would have to offer new and untried men in these positions.

But what would happen if, in spite of these increases, some vital post remained unfilled, there is no local candidate, and we are unable to recruit anybody for it? If this unfortunately were to happen, we would have to consider that post on its merits, and if we were able to show H.M.G. that we were quite unable to obtain an officer, even at an enhanced salary, H.M.G. would then be prepared to meet the difference between our new rate and the amount we would be forced to pay. Although, therefore, the inducement element in this assistance is not of overall benefit to the Colony, it is something which I think we can consider as being in reserve.

There remain the other forms of assistance I have mentioned. Compensation is unlikely ever to concern us. It is paid to officers whose careers have been terminated when a Colony nears or achieves independence. We shall receive assistance from H.M.G. towards the cost of passages on leave and on appointment, and at end of contract, or on retirement of all overseas officers. H.M.G. will pay half the cost of these passages, and will also pay education allowances to expatriate officers whose children are at school overseas.

To get down to figures, proposals are put forward in the Estimates for an increase in Personal Emoluments amounting to some £26,000 over the figures for last year. We hope to receive from H.M.G. an amount of £7,650 towards the cost of passages and education allowances. In other words, if all posts paid under Personal Emoluments are filled, and this is unlikely to be the case, at least in the coming financial year, there will be a net increase of some £18,350. I think that next year it is likely to be nearer £15,000.

I welcome the suggestion put forward by Unofficial Members that Old Age Pensions should be provided for certain persons who were excluded from the contributory old age pension scheme in 1952. The necessary legislation has been prepared and is on the Agenda for this session, and the cost is estimated to be £3,500 for the first year.

Well, Gentlemen, I am sure the question which is uppermost in your minds is the one we always have to face - "Where's the money to come from?"

While the price of wool remains at its present level, even without including this additional expenditure, the Colonial Treasurer cannot present a Balanced Budget, and it is, therefore, necessary to consider the raising of additional revenue. The Budget, which will be presented to you, makes provision for increased revenue in the sum of £55,962 more than the revised Estimates of 1959/1960. I have already mentioned the contribution of £7,650 from H.M.G., and in addition to this, proposals will be put forward for raising a further £52,000 in income and companies tax, and a further £4,000 from Customs Duties. The first figure, that of £52,000 from income and companies tax, may appear alarming, but all it means in effect is that we propose to recover, by increasing the rate of companies tax to 7/6d in the pound, a large proportion of the amounts which companies registered in the United Kingdom now pay to H.M.G. in companies tax. At present these companies pay 3/6d to the Falkland Islands Government, and 4/3d to H.M.G. To avoid discrimination the same rate of tax must be charged to locally registered companies but individual shareholders resident in the Colony can claim refunds, which will have the effect of their paying the same in income tax as they do at present, unless their incomes exceed £2,000, in which case they will pay slightly more.

I am sure we should do nothing to discourage farmers from ploughing back their money into their farms, and therefore it is proposed that the rate of 7/6d in the pound will be charged only on distributed profits and the charge on undistributed profits will still remain at the present rate of 3/6d in the pound. It is proposed that this new rate will be effective from the 1st January, 1962, and legislation to bring it into effect will be placed before the end of the year.

We shall also at this session be considering a Resolution whereby wool duty will be charged on an ad valorem basis rather than on the present "ladder" system. This will mean that instead of the price being averaged over the whole Colony, the amount of tax will be assessed on the average price obtained for its wool by each individual farm. At the present prices there will be no great change in the amount of revenue received, but the system proposed seems to be fairer than that at present in force. The additional £4,000, which we hope to receive in Import Duty, will be obtained by an increase in tax on spirits.

In spite of these increases in revenue, we are still allowing for a Budget deficit of some £38,000 during the forthcoming financial year, but we have the advantage of starting the year in a very much better position than was anticipated twelve months ago. You will recall that a deficit of £83,000 was expected for the year 1959/1960, but instead of this very substantial deficit, revenue actually exceeded expenditure by over £5,000. This at first sight looks as if there must have been some exceptionally bad estimating. I must admit that sometimes in our anxiety not to give too optimistic a picture, I think we are inclined to paint too gloomy a one. We are apt to be rather on the high side in our estimates of expenditure, and rather on the low side in our estimates of revenue. But this very substantial difference in 1959/1960 was caused largely by the extremely satisfactory results obtained from sales of our new stamp issue. These exceeded the original estimate by almost £27,000. We also received more in income tax and companies tax, and in wool duty than we had originally anticipated. Our original estimate was based on a wool price of less than 40d per pound, when, in fact, the clip sold for an average price of 47.9d. We are, therefore, in the position of beginning the next financial year with an estimated reserve balance of no less than £503,000.

In considering our future policy, we must always keep a very close watch on expenditure, and do all in our power to meet expenditure from our own resources, but there is a limit to how little we can spend, and to how much we can raise. We must guard, as far as lies in our power, against inflation, and do all that we can to maintain stability in our cost of living. We have a very good record in this respect, and I know that all concerned are most anxious to maintain it.

May I close as I began, and say how glad I am to see the action that farmers are taking to improve their farms and to improve conditions for those who work on them. This cannot fail to benefit the Colony, and although we shall never be without our problems, I feel we can look forward to the future with confidence.

6. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the adoption of the following Resolution —

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee on finance for the period September 1960 to May 1961, be adopted."

The Resolution was adopted.

7. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable H. Bennett, next moved the adoption of the Customs (Amendment) Resolution, 1961, saying —

“Your Excellency,

Export duty on wool has been an important source of revenue for some considerable time but the method of levying it is regarded as rather unfair. The rate of duty, expressed in pence per pound, is established by finding the average selling price of the entire wool clip for any one season and applying the result to a sliding scale. The amount of duty payable by any one exporter is assessed by multiplying the rate by the number of pounds of wool that he exports. The rate is the same for all and the amount that each exporter pays varies only according to the number of pounds of wool produced. No consideration is given to its worth.

A poor grade of wool is not always the result of inferior farming methods and it has for some time been thought that duty should be so arranged that it bears some relation to the prosperity of the producing farm. Accordingly, the resolution that I shall introduce in a moment seeks to replace the present scale of duty by an ad valorem tax. In this manner exporters will pay a percentage of their gross proceeds and this percentage will be determined annually from a sliding scale operated by the average selling price of their entire clip.

I should add that the revenue will not be greatly influenced although, generally speaking, a little more will be collected under the proposed new method of assessment.

I beg to move the following Resolution —

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Amendment) Resolution, 1961, and shall come into force forthwith.

2. Paragraph 3 of the Customs Order is hereby amended as follows —

(a) by deleting the words and comma ‘Commencing with the 1950/51 season,’ at the beginning of the paragraph and by substituting a capital letter for the small letter in the word ‘the’;

(b) by deleting the words and figures from ‘When the average gross selling price per lb. of the whole Falkland Islands clip does not exceed 15d. . . nil.’ to the figures and words ‘10d. or part of 10d. increase in the gross selling price . . . 0.5d. per lb.’ and substituting the following words and figures:

‘Commencing with the 1960/61 season at the following ad valorem rates on the average gross selling price per lb. of the whole clip of each farm and butchery specified in the Schedule hereto —

	Ad valorem rate of duty.
When the average gross selling price is less than 20d.	Nil.
Reaches 20d. but is less than 60d.	3½%
Reaches 60d. but is less than 80d.	4%
Reaches 80d. and above	5%.

3. The following Schedule shall be added to the Customs Order —

‘SCHEDULE

1. Carcass Island. 2. Chartres. 3. Darwin (including Walker Creek and Lively Island). 4. Douglas Station. 5. Fitzroy North and Bluff Cove. 6. The Resolution was adopted.

8. The Bill for “An Ordinance to Repeal the Stamp Duty Ordinance” was introduced by the Honourable J. Bound who said —

“Your Excellency,

The object of this Bill, as its title implies, is to repeal the Stamp Duty Ordinance. The Stamp Duty Ordinance was brought into force in 1948 as a revenue measure. Broadly speaking it required that a duty of twopence be paid on each receipt for money of an amount of two pounds or more. The duty to be denoted by affixing a twopenny postage stamp to the receipt and cancelling it.

The Ordinance is difficult, if not impossible, to enforce and any such law is bad law, — and revenue derived from stamp duty is negligible. It is therefore proposed to repeal the Ordinance.

The repeal would not however have the effect of abolishing or altering stamp duty payable under the Land Ordinance, in respect of deeds relating to transfer of land.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.”

The Honourable H. Bennett seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and committed.

Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause and the Title were agreed to.

The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

9. In introducing the Bill "Further to amend the Pensions (Increase) Ordinance" the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency,

This Government has been advised by the Secretary of State that pensioners from the United Kingdom Civil Service have been awarded a further increase in pensions with effect from 1st August, 1959. The increases range from 2 to 12% of the actual amounts being paid on 1st August, 1959, and will apply to all pensions being paid before 1st April, 1957.

We have, in the past, relied entirely on Her Majesty's Government to give us a lead in matters like this. Her Majesty's Government has at its command expert opinion regarding the affect of rising prices on incomes such as pensions and the proposal contained in this Bill is, in effect, that we again accept the recommendations as being equally applicable to pensioners from the Falkland Islands Civil Service.

Two minor variations from the United Kingdom Act are contained in the Bill now before Council. The first is that the increases will only be applied to pensions being paid before 1st January, 1957 (the date of the last salaries revision) and that two rates of increase should replace the longer scale adopted by Her Majesty's Government. These are —

on pensions awarded prior to 1st October, 1953	12%
on pensions awarded between 1st October, 1953 and 31st December, 1956		8%

The annual cost will be small, £560 in the first instance reducing as time goes by.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was seconded by the Honourable J. Bound.

The Bill was read a first time and no objections being raised it was read a second time. In Committee, Clauses 1 to 3, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to. The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

10. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the first reading of the Bill "To legalise certain payments made in excess of the expenditure sanctioned by Ordinance No. 6 of 1959" saying —

"Your Excellency,

Little need be said to explain the purpose of this Bill; it occurs regularly each year and its form is familiar to all members of this Council. The amounts appearing on the Schedule are of expenditure during 1959/60 that exceeded the amounts provided in the Appropriation Law for that year. All have been dealt with in detail by the Standing Finance Committee and have appeared in the reports of that Committee to this Council.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill received its first reading and on further motion made and seconded was read a second time. In Committee, Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause, Title, Preamble and Schedule were agreed to. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

11. The Bill entitled "An Ordinance further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance" was proposed by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and seconded by the Honourable H. Bennett.

When introducing the Bill the Honourable the Colonial Secretary remarked —

"Your Excellency,

This Bill seeks to clarify the position with regard to the taxation of the winter earnings of those who are engaged in the whaling and sealing industry in South Georgia but are not ordinarily resident there. The proviso to the present section 21 (1) of the Ordinance which has been in force since 1948 provides for a special method of assessing the tax to be recovered from such people. The reason for this special provision was that it is difficult to check particulars of wives and children of those who live and whose families live perhaps in the United Kingdom or perhaps in Norway, and therefore it would be difficult to work out for such people the deductions for wives and children which are provided for by section 16 of the Ordinance in respect of permanent residents. It was therefore provided that no deductions should be allowed for wives and children in the case of those engaged in the whaling and sealing industry in South Georgia who are not permanently resident there. Instead special low rates of taxation are imposed.

The whaling season in South Georgia is from the 1st October to the 31st March, but certain personnel stay in South Georgia each year for the winter season 1st April to 30th September. In the case of such people the tax has always been recovered at the rates laid down in the proviso for what one may term the whole whaling year, that is the whaling season and the winter season. A query was, however, raised as to whether this was the correct interpretation of the law as drafted and pending a final decision on the matter the winter earnings for the year 1959 were not taxed at all. Our legal adviser Sir Henry Webb was therefore asked to draft amendments giving clear legal sanction for the method of collection of taxes from such personnel which has always been adopted by Government and accepted by the tax payers.

In the Colony the income tax year is the same as the calendar year and up to now this has legally been the position in South Georgia, but it is obviously a most inconvenient arrangement since the income tax year ends in the middle of the whaling season. This anomaly it is also sought to remedy. It will be noted that the Bill also clarifies certain other matters by defining the term "ordinary resident" and also by improving the wording of the proviso to section 5 and section 24 by substituting the words "income arising from a source outside the Colony" for the words "income arising out of the Colony". If the Bill is passed it will establish beyond doubt that with effect from the income tax year commencing 1st April, 1960 and ending the 31st March, 1961 all the income derived from whaling and sealing in South Georgia of those who are not ordinarily resident in South Georgia and who go there to carry out the occupation of whaling or sealing are taxable at the rates given in the proviso to section 21 of the Ordinance."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable H. Bennett moved the first reading of the Bill which was read accordingly.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

In the Committee stage Clauses 1 to 6, the Enacting clause, Title and Date of Commencement were agreed to and stood part of the Bill.

The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

12. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer in moving the first reading of the Bill "Further to amend the Old Age Pensions Ordinance, 1952" said —

"Your Excellency,

This Bill seeks to further improve the range of benefits payable under the Old Age Pensions Ordinance in that a widow will qualify for a pension if her husband, who has fulfilled all the requirements of the Ordinance, dies between the ages of 60 and 65 years. Where a pension is to be paid in these circumstances no refund of contributions will be made.

The Government Actuary in the United Kingdom has confirmed that no increase in contributions will be required to meet the small increase in the Fund's liabilities.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable L. Bedford seconded the Bill and it was read a second time and subsequently passed through all its stages.

13. The Honourable H. Bennett moved the first reading of the Bill for "An Ordinance to make provision for the application of part of the Homicide Act, 1957, to the Colony" stating —

"Your Excellency,

The object of this Bill is to apply portions of the Homicide Act, 1957 (which makes amendments in the law of murder and as to the liability to suffer the death penalty on conviction to that crime) to the Colony.

I will give a brief explanation of the Act as it stands in force in the United Kingdom, taking Part by Part.

Part I of the Act, which contains amendments of the law of murder, abolishes the doctrine of "constructive malice", introduces into English law the Scottish doctrine of diminished responsibility, puts an end to the rule that only in circumstances of a most extreme and exceptional character can words alone amount to provocation sufficient to reduce murder to manslaughter, and provides that the survivor of a genuine suicide pact shall be liable to be convicted of manslaughter not murder.

Part II abolishes the liability to suffer the death penalty on conviction of murder, except in respect of certain types of murder which are considered in the circumstances prevailing in the United Kingdom as striking most clearly at law and order.

Part III provides for a shortened form of sentence of death, abolishes the duty to post notices of execution at a prison but provides instead for the publication of certain information by the Secretary of State, and makes it possible to avoid double executions in one prison by empowering the Secretary of State to direct the removal of one condemned man to another prison.

The portions of the Act which are being considered as suitable for application to the circumstances of the Colony are: Part I (sections 1-4) and sections 10 and 11 of Part III.

Section 1. This section abolishes the doctrine of "constructive malice". Under that doctrine malice was implied in those cases where a killing had been caused in the course or furtherance of some other felony involving an act of violence or an act dangerous to life, or where the person killed was legally arresting or imprisoning the accused or executing other process of law in a legal manner even if there had been no actual intent to kill or do grievous bodily harm. Under the new law no killing will amount to murder unless it is done with intent to kill or do grievous bodily harm, or with knowledge that the act in question will probably cause death or grievous bodily harm.

Section 2. This section introduces into English law the doctrine of diminished responsibility. That doctrine permits a person accused of murder to raise the defence that he was at the time suffering from an abnormality of mind which substantially reduced his responsibility, but it does not provide a defence to persons who are merely hot-tempered or kill in a sudden access of rage or jealousy. The onus of showing that such an abnormality existed is placed upon the defence, and a person who establishes this defence will be liable to be convicted of manslaughter. The introduction of the doctrine of diminished responsibility does not affect the validity of the McNaghton Rules as to the determination of insanity.

Section 3 deals with provocation, and enables a jury to take into account everything both done and said according to the effect which it would have on a reasonable man. Previously the jury's discretion was fettered by previous judicial rulings - notably by Holmes v Director of Public Prosecutions, in which it was held that "in no case could words alone, save in circumstances of a most extreme and exceptional character" reduce murder to manslaughter. The proposed law will give the jury absolute discretion to decide on the facts. It does not, however, alter the rule that it is for the judge to decide whether there is any evidence of provocation to go to the jury, nor the rule that the provocation must be sufficient to lead to loss of self-control by a normal reasonable man.

Section 4. Previously where two persons agreed and attempted to commit suicide together, and one committed suicide and the other did not, the survivor was guilty under the common law, of murder. Under this section the survivor of a "suicide pact" will be guilty of manslaughter, not only in cases where the other party kills himself but also where he is killed by the survivor. The pact must be genuine: if a person incites another to commit suicide, without any such agreement, and the person does so, the one who incited will, as previously, be guilty of murder.

Section 10 provides a new and simplified form of death sentence.

Section 11 abolishes the requirement that notice of execution shall be posted outside the prison where it took place. Under this section the appropriate authority is required to give notice in such manner as he thinks fit of the impending execution, and, after the event, the fact that it has taken place, and also to publish a copy of the coroner's inquisition.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill received its second reading and the Council went into Committee. Clauses 1 and 2 were agreed to as were the Enacting Clause, Title and Schedule. The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

14. The Bill for "An Ordinance to provide for Non-contributory Old Age Pensions" was introduced by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer who said —

"Your Excellency,

The purpose of this Bill is to provide a small measure of relief to most of the old people who are excluded from contributing to the Old Age Pension Fund and, consequently, from deriving any benefits therefrom.

These people are hard hit by rising prices and the amounts payable under this proposed Ordinance, although small, should be a welcome aid to them. The proposed rates are —

Married man 36/-. Unmarried man, or widower, or man whose marriage has been dissolved by decree of a competent court, or man separated or living apart from his wife who cannot prove that he is contributing to her support 18/-. Widow 18/-.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was seconded by the Honourable R. V. Goss.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill received its second reading.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then said —

"Your Excellency,

So far as I am aware this is a unique step for a Colonial Territory and consequently we have not had the assistance of model legislation in drafting the Bill now before Council. Since it went to print several points have arisen that require further consideration and I think that these points, when considered, might lead Honourable Members into modifying the Bill in one or two respects and I therefore propose that it be referred to a Select Committee of the House".

This was seconded by the Honourable R. V. Goss. The motion was carried and the President appointed a Select Committee comprising the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer, the Honourable H. Bennett and all Unofficial Members.

15. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then introduced the Bill entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the service of the year 1961/62" and stated —

"Your Excellency,

According to the latest estimate of revenue and expenditure for the current year all pointers seem to indicate that the deficit will be in the region of £35,000 or £10,000 less than the original estimate. Following a small surplus of £5,000 for the 1959/60 financial year (when we were reckoning on a revised deficit of £42,000) the position is considerably more favourable than I was able to report a year ago and we embark upon the 1961/62 financial year with reserve balances estimated at £503,000.

We are estimating for a total revenue of £306,539 during 1961/62 of which £288,677 will be ordinary revenue. This latter figure represents an increase of £55,962 over the revised figure for the current year.

Total expenditure during 1961/62 is expected to amount to £344,750 of which £314,192 is ordinary expenditure. Ordinary expenditure exceeds the revised estimate for the current year by £56,536.

The principal proposals of the budget are these —

- i. provision for a salaries increase to take effect from the 1st July, 1961.
- ii. proposals to amend the rates of Companies and Income Tax.
- iii. a new (and it is considered a fairer) method of levying duty on wool exports.
- iv. assistance from Her Majesty's Government towards the cost of passages of expatriate staff and the payment in full by Her Majesty's Government of the overseas educational allowances for children of expatriate officers.
- v. proposed new regulations for the granting of passages.
- vi. a proposal to grant pensions to aged persons.
- vii. continued assistance from Her Majesty's Government towards the cost of the roads programme.
- viii. small but essential special expenditure where labour and other conditions permit.

The estimated result of all this is that we expect to end the year with a deficit of about £38,000 although considerable savings will probably again be effected as the result of unfilled staff vacancies, at least in the early part of the year.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then moved that the Bill and draft Estimates for 1961/62 be referred to a Select Committee of the House and that Council adjourn. This was agreed and the President appointed a Select Committee consisting of the Colonial Secretary the Colonial Treasurer and Unofficial Members of Council.

Council then adjourned.

16. Council resumed at 2.30 p.m. on the 19th June, and in reporting the findings and recommendations of the Select Committee on the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions Bill, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer stated that their recommendations were as follows —

"Clause 2 to be amended by the substitution of a semi-colon for the full stop at the end thereof and by the addition thereto of the following new definition —

"unmarried person" means a person who has never been married, or a widower or widow, or a man or woman whose marriage has been dissolved by a competent court.'

Clause 4 to be deleted and replaced as follows —

4. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the statutory conditions for the receipt of an old age pension under this Ordinance by any person are —

- (a) the person shall have attained the age of 74 years on or before the 1st July, 1961;
- (b) the person if a married man living with or maintaining his wife shall satisfy the Treasurer that his yearly income received from any source does not exceed £300;
- (c) the person if an unmarried person shall satisfy the Treasurer that his yearly income received from any source does not exceed £150;
- (d) the person if a man or woman separated or living apart from his wife or her husband shall satisfy the Treasurer that his or her yearly income received from any source does not exceed £150.'

The Schedule to be deleted and replaced as follows —

'SCHEDULE

Section 3 (2)

Rates of Pension

Married man	36/-
Unmarried person	18/-
Man or woman separated or living apart from his or her husband or wife				18/- "

The President then declared Council to be in Committee. Clauses 1 - 11 were agreed to with the exception of Clauses 2 and 4 which were amended as recommended by Select Committee.

The Enacting Clause was agreed to.

The Title and Date of Commencement were also agreed to.

The Schedule was amended as in the Report of the Select Committee.

The Bill then received its third reading and passed.

17. Referring to the Appropriation Bill, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer reported that the Select Committee had proposed the following amendments to the draft Estimates —

The Enacting clause and Title were agreed to and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

18. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then moved the adoption of the Resolution entitled The Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution, 1961, saying —

"Your Excellency,

One of the measures that Government proposes to take to increase revenue is to amend the rate of duty on the importation of spirits. At the moment the tax on such importations is at the rate of 36/- per gallon for Rum and 52/- per gallon for all other spirits. The proposal is that a rate of 66/- per gallon be imposed on all spirits, the special considerations that led to a lesser tax being imposed on Rum being no longer applicable. To implement this proposal I beg to move the adoption of the following Resolution —

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution, 1961 and shall come into operation forthwith.

2. Item 2 of Paragraph 2 of the Customs Order is hereby amended as follows —

(a) by the deletion of sub-item (a).

(b) by the deletion from sub-item (b) of the word "other".

(c) by the deletion from the third column of sub-item (b) of the figures "52/-" and the substitution therefor of the figures "66/-".

(d) by re-lettering sub-items (b), (c) and (d) as (a), (b) and (c) respectively."

The Resolution was seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and adopted.

19. On the motion for the adjournment of the House the Honourable the Elected Member for the East Falkland (Hon. G. C. R. Bonner, J.P.) said —

"Your Excellency,

Before this House adjourns I feel that it is fitting that some record should be made of the grave misgivings and concern of the entire Unofficial Representation on Council with regard to —

Firstly the increasing cost of Administration and the Establishment.

Second H.M.G.'s apparent unconcern over our problems and Third H.M.G.'s apparent discrimination towards this Colony on account of our colour and lack of racial strife.

We are fully aware of the reasons underlying the need and causes of the rise in the first of the above. We would maintain that the main factors influencing this are —

(a) Rising freights and costs due to our geographical position;

(b) The need to import labour due to a shortage of labour — brought about by emigration from the Colony to areas where pay and conditions are more lucrative;

(c) Increasing cost of skilled expatriate labour necessary for our administration. For which training facilities do not exist should we obtain suitable local candidates.

These factors are completely beyond our control and we feel that H.M.G. should recognise this.

The second and third points are ones on which we wish H.M.G. to give serious consideration when formulating future policy regarding this Colony.

Considerable disappointment and resentment was felt by us by the apparent discriminatory attitude of H.M.G. towards our Government as expressed in the conditions laid down in the recent White Paper on 'Service with Overseas Governments'. The main part of the paper regarding inducement allowances which might have had considerable effect on our recruiting question is not applicable to this Colony because we are not prepared to discriminate between salaries paid to our locally born and recruited officers with equivalent qualifications to salaries paid to those recruited overseas.

Our essential services must be maintained and for the major services Health, Education, Communications we need expatriate officers. We have been pleased this year to vote money to increase salaries throughout the Service which we hope will improve conditions and recruitment. We are well aware, however, that to maintain our staff in two or three years' time these present increases may not be sufficient inducement to attract new or keep existing officers, despite all our efforts to resist and halt inflation.

Further increases cannot be afforded by revenue. Our industry faces a recession with a strong probability of a falling demand. Our level of taxation, considering that it falls mainly on the section of the community that provides a livelihood for us all, is already high. The proposed increases in this Budget brings the level per man woman and child to £89 per head.

Even with this increase in direct taxation Expenditure will exceed Revenue by approximately £15 per unit of the population for the coming year. In all probability this gap is likely to widen.

We are advised that we must become financially destitute before a penny of direct aid will be given from H.M.G. This appears to us to be a most remarkably shortsighted and negative policy. No matter what we do our reserves will become depleted. Changes in the industry as so admirably outlined in your speech, Your Excellency, are most desirable and to be encouraged. But such developments require capital outlay which with an increased taxation level may not be forthcoming. In other areas such improvements to the land, the National Heritage as it is sometimes called are gladly subsidised by Government. No such development appears likely here.

Depletion of our reserves will mean H.M.G will be faced with the task of fully financing our Budget deficits perhaps involving them in hundreds of thousands of pounds per annum. It would surely, Sir, be in their interest to help us keep our reserves.

We are now part of a rapidly dwindling Empire and only an extremely small unit in the Commonwealth. On all sides former Colonies are achieving nationhood. As they go forward on their independent ways, grants in aid and vast gifts are given them to distribute or spend as they think fit. Let not the Mother Country when launching these new states forget her smaller dependents which cannot ever hope for independence and will always remain dependent upon her. We are proud, Sir, of our Island home and equally so of our Gracious Queen and the Mother Country from which most of us have come. It is our hope as Members of H.M.'s Most Loyal Legislative Council for these Islands that this pride will not become obscured by a sense of injustice and regret.

I would ask, Sir, that when you visit London on our behalf in the near future that you present, with our humble duty, these our grave misgivings and wonderings on H.M.G.'s future policy towards this Colony to H.M.'s Secretary of State."

In reply the Honourable the Colonial Secretary remarked —

"Your Excellency,

I would like to make a few remarks in reply to the speech made by the Honourable Elected Member for the East Falklands. I would submit that it is not correct to say that Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom are not concerned with our problems and certainly I do not think it is correct to say that there is any discrimination against us. Assistance is offered in the White Paper to all the Colonies in the Empire. No — that is not quite correct — there are certain Colonies which are excluded, but as far as we are concerned we can say that the same assistance is offered to us as to other Colonies. It consists of education allowance, and contribution towards cost of passages both of which are of great assistance to us and from which we estimate that we will obtain over £7,000. There is also the inducement allowance. This means that Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom is prepared to pay the difference between what is paid locally for any post and what it is necessary to pay to secure a candidate for that post from the United Kingdom. That inducement allowance is offered to us in the same way as it is offered to other colonies. By the offer of an inducement allowance what is meant is that Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom offer the difference between what is paid locally for any post and what it is necessary to pay to induce a candidate from overseas to take the post. We have given up all discrimination against local officers and therefore we cannot in general make any use of this particular form of assistance but it is possible that we might have to accept it in certain cases. The Honourable Member has referred to the need to encourage companies to put capital back into the industry. It was with this in view that certain measures of our taxation were introduced. The Honourable Member has also referred to grants to other countries but it must be remembered that we have also received grants through the Colonial Development & Welfare Fund.

When all this has been said I must add that the official elements in the Government entirely agree that it is very desirable that we should try to balance our budget from year to year and if we cannot do so by our own efforts we sympathise with the desire of the Honourable Member that the United Kingdom Government should help us to do so, and I have little doubt that His Excellency will ensure that the point of view of the Honourable Member is put before the appropriate authorities."

Before adjourning Council His Excellency thanked Members for the hard work they had done in considering the Estimates this year. He congratulated the Elected Member for the East Falkland on his excellent speech and assured him that the problems which he had raised were very much in our minds and that the views of the House would be put forward during his forthcoming visit to the United Kingdom. His Excellency concluded by reiterating how grateful he was for the service of Members and wished them a pleasant journey home.

Council adjourned sine die.

Made under section 24 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council)
Orders in Council, 1948 to 1955.

IN THE NAME of Her Majesty ELIZABETH II., by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Her other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

R. H. D. MANDERS — By His Honour RICHARD HENRY DAVID MANDERS, of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.*

(LS)

WHEREAS by subsection (1) of section 24 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders in Council, 1948 to 1955, it is provided that the sittings of the Council shall be held at such times and places as the Governor shall from time to time appoint by Proclamation :

Date of commencement. [1st January, 1961]

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows:—

Short title and commencement Cap. 32. 1. (1) This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance, 1961, and shall be read as one with the Income Tax Ordinance (hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance).

(2) This Ordinance shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st January, 1961.

Amendment of section 54 of the principal Ordinance. 2. Section 54 of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting the words "sixty days" and substituting therefor the words "ninety days".

OBJECTS AND REASONS

It has been found that the period of sixty days from the date of assessment in which a taxpayer is required to pay his tax is insufficient for certain parts of the Colony having due regard for the infrequency of mail deliveries. The period is to be extended by a further 30 days which is thought to be adequate for all parts of the Colony.

R. H. D. MANDERS — By His Honour RICHARD HENRY DAVID MANDERS, ESQUIRE, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Officer Administering the Government of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.

By Command of the Officer Administering the Government,

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Minutes of the Meeting held on 18th August, 1961.

Present: His Honour the Officer Administering the Government (R. H. D. Manders, O.B.E.).
 The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer (Dr. R. S. Slessor, O.B.E., M.B., B.Ch.).
 The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer (L. C. Gleadell, J.P.).
 The Honourable H. Bennett, J.P.
 The Honourable J. Bound, E.D., J.P.
 The Honourable A. L. Hardy, O.B.E., B.E.M., J.P.
 The Honourable R. V. Goss.

The minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held 13th - 19th June, 1961, were confirmed.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable J. Bound moved the first reading of the Bill entitled "An Ordinance Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance" saying —

"Your Honour,

Some time last year our attention was drawn to Sections 54 and 55 of the Income Tax Ordinance which require the Commissioner to add 5% to all assessments not paid within sixty days from the date of assessment. The law is quite definite on this point and the Commissioner is given no authority to exercise discretion.

Up to last year we had not been strictly applying these sections of the Ordinance and their effect on the various groups of the community has not before been seriously tested or considered. So far as residents of Stanley are concerned, and for that matter those who live on the larger Camp stations as well, a period of sixty days is probably ample time in which either to pay the amount due or to challenge the assessment, but we must consider whether the period is a fair one for all who are subject to taxation on their incomes. I refer particularly to those persons who live on outlying islands where mailing opportunities are rather infrequent.

With an opportunity to despatch a mail perhaps not more than once a month, and remembering that upwards of a month may have elapsed between the date of the assessment and its receipt by the taxpayer, I think it will be readily agreed that a sixty day period for payment is insufficient for those people who live in the more remote places. The object of this Bill is to increase the period to ninety days.

The 5% penalty is intended for those who deliberately delay payment and in this respect we must ensure that we can distinguish between those who are late in paying through their own fault and those who are late for reasons largely beyond their control. My own experience is that the former will require additional pressure to pay no matter what the stipulated period might be while I am assured that a period of ninety days will eliminate the latter group, and consequently relieve the Commissioner of any misgivings that the fault for the delay lies anywhere than with the taxpayer.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was read a first time and no objections being raised it was read a second time. In Committee, Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause, Title and Date of Commencement were agreed to. The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

Before adjourning Council, His Honour the Officer Administering the Government stated that Honourable Members were aware that the Meeting had had to be advanced because of the departure of the Honourable A. L. Hardy for medical reasons and that he knew that he was speaking for the Council and Colony when he said that our thoughts would go with him and that we wished him a speedy recovery and safe return.

Council adjourned sine die.

Assented to in Her Majesty's name this 21st day of August, 1961.

Officer Administering the Government.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Title. Further to amend the Old Age Pensions Ordinance, 1952.

Date of commencement. [1st January, 1962]

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement. 1. (1) This Ordinance may be cited as the Old Age Pensions (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance, 1961, and shall be read as one with the Old Age Pensions Ordinance, 1952, hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance.

Ord. No. 3 of 1952.

(2) This Ordinance shall come into force on the 1st day of January, 1962.

Amendment of section 6 of the principal Ordinance.

2. Subsection (2) of section 6 of the principal Ordinance is amended —

- (a) by deleting the figures "2/-" and "1/3" in paragraph (a) and substituting respectively the figures "3/-" and "2/-";
- (b) by deleting the figures "3/-" and "1/9" in paragraph (b) and substituting respectively the figures "4/6" and "2/6";
- (c) by deleting the figures "5/-" and "3/-" in paragraph (c) and substituting respectively the figures "7/6" and "4/6".

Amendment of section 6A of the principal Ordinance.

3. Subsection (2) of section 6A of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting the figures "5/-" and "3/-" and substituting respectively the figures "7/6" and "4/6".

Amendment of section 14 of the principal Ordinance.

4. Subsection (1) of section 14 of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting the figure "(3)" and substituting therefor the figure "(2)".

Amendment of Schedule to the Principal Ordinance.

5. The Schedule to the principal Ordinance is amended by the deletion of the figures "36/6", "23/6" and "18/-" and by the substitution therefor of the figures "52/-", "26/-" and "26/-" respectively.

OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to increase the weekly rate of Old Age Pension from 36/6 to 52/- for married men and from 23/6 and 18/- to 26/- for both unmarried men and widows. To cover this increase in expenditure from the Pensions Equalisation Fund it has been found necessary to increase the rates of contributions :

- (a) from 2/- to 3/- for employed persons over 21 years of age and from 3/- to 4/6 for their employers;
- (b) from 1/3 to 2/- for employed persons between the ages of 18 and 21 years and from 1/9 to 2/6 for their employers;
- (c) from 5/- to 7/6 for self-employed persons over the age of 21 years; and
- (d) from 3/- to 4/6 for self-employed persons between the ages of 18 and 21 years.

It also corrects a minor drafting error which appears in subsection (1) of section 14 of the principal Ordinance.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Minutes of the Meeting held on 24th October, 1961.

Present: His Excellency the Governor (Sir Edwin Arrowsmith, K.C.M.G.).
 The Honourable the Colonial Secretary (R. H. D. Manders, O.B.E.).
 The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer (Dr. R. S. Slessor, O.B.E., M.B., B.Ch.).
 The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer (L. C. Gleadell, J.P.).
 The Honourable J. Bound, E.D., J.P.
 The Honourable R. V. Goss.
 The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner, J.P.

The Meeting opened with prayers read by the Reverend Dr. W. F. McWhan, M.B.E., D.D.

The minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 18th August, 1961, were confirmed.

In moving the first reading of the Bill "To legalise certain payments made in the year 1960/61 in excess of the Expenditure sanctioned by Ordinance No. 6 of 1960" the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency,

As the title implies the proposed Ordinance is supplementary to the Appropriation Ordinance. It will be recalled that the Appropriation Ordinance set out in a schedule the total amounts that were voted under each Head of Expenditure. In the event these amounts were exceeded in two cases — Audit and C. D. & W. — and it is necessary to provide legal authority for these excesses. This is purely a formality as the amounts involved have already received the approval of the Standing Finance Committee and have been, or will be, included in the reports of that Committee to the Legislature.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time. His Excellency declared the Council to be in Committee. Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause, Title, Preamble and Schedule were agreed to. The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

In introducing the Bill "Further to amend the Old Age Pensions Ordinance, 1952" the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency,

The object of this Bill is to introduce increased benefits into the Old Age Pensions scheme by increasing the contributions payable by employers and employees. The measure is one that will find support from all members of the House and arises from suggestions originally made by an unofficial member. It is known that organisations such as the Sheepowners Association and Falkland Islands Labour Federation are in agreement with the proposals. What actually is proposed is that benefits payable should be increased from 36/6 for a married man, 23/6 for an unmarried man and 18/- for a widow to 52/- for a married man and 26/- each for an unmarried man and a widow. It will be noticed that the pension of a widow will now become equal to that of an unmarried man — an objective to which we have been working for some time — and that the combined pensions of an unmarried man and a widow equal that of a married man. A natural consequence of such an improvement in the benefits of the scheme is that there will have to be increased contributions. Expert advice has been obtained in this respect and we are advised that the existing contributions of 5/- and 3/- should be increased to 7/6 and 4/6 respectively. Of these amounts employees will pay 3/- per week if they are over 21 years of age and their employers will pay 4/6, and employees between the ages of 18 and 21 will pay 2/- per week and their employers 2/6. Self employed persons will continue to pay the full weekly contribution of their age group.

It is the intention that the increases should take effect as from 1st January, 1962.

Opportunity is also taken to amend a minor error in the drafting of Section 14 (1) where the figure 3 should be replaced by the figure 2.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time. After further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee without amendment. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

On the motion of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, seconded by the Honourable the Senior Medical Officer, it was resolved that the Council should adjourn sine die.

Pay and Working Rules for Hourly Paid Employees in Stanley.

These rules shall constitute an agreement between Stanley Employers and the Labour Federation and shall be reviewed annually in October by the Government and the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd. as employers, and the Labour Federation. These Rules shall be effective for a period of twelve months beginning on the 1st of January, 1962, subject to the quarterly review of wage rates. (See 1, below.)

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes, up or down, arising from fluctuations in the cost of living shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates. In measuring the cost of living for the purposes of wage adjustments an average of the findings for the last four quarters shall be used.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) APPRENTICES.

The rates of pay for apprentices shall be as follows—

Year.	Fraction of Craftsman's Rate.
1st	One Third
2nd	Two Fifths
3rd	One Half
4th	Two Thirds
5th	Four Fifths.

(c) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board. The minimum rate for Handymen shall be three pence more than the Labourer's rate and the maximum two pence less than the Craftsmen's rate.

(d) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be paid one penny more than the Labourer's rate and shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid 3d. per hour more than the Labourer's rate while engaged in this work.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	4/6d.
2. Apprentices		1st year		1/6
		2nd year		1/9½
		3rd year		2/3
		4th year		3/-
		5th year		3/7
3. Handymen	3/9 to 4/4 according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	3/7
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	3/9
6. Labourers	3/6
7. Boy Labourers	Age	% of man's rate
	14-15	40		1/5d.
	15-16	50		1/9
	16-17	66½		2/4
	17-18	80		2/10
	18	100		3/6

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 2d. per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 30 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall receive from 4d. to 8d. per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 2/- per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 3d. per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 3d. per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 6d. per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 45 hours per week made up as follows :-

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

Saturday - 7.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 45 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows :-

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 - (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 - (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 - (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 - (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 45-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Holidays.

(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following seven days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday, Empire Day, December 8th, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Stanley Annual Sports Meeting.

Individual employers shall be entitled to decide whether or not to observe the remaining Public Holidays or to treat them as normal working days but in no circumstances may they be treated as unpaid holidays.

(c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.

(d) When a dated holiday falls on a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

7. Sick Pay.

(a) Employees who have not completed one year's service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.

(b) The following rules apply to employees who have completed one year's service with their employer.

(i) There shall be no entitlement to sick pay for the first week of absence caused by sickness, but if sickness lasts for more than one week, an employee shall be entitled to half pay for the second, third and fourth weeks. While off work through illness an employee shall have the option of taking part or the whole of any annual leave due to him.

(ii) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.

(c) An employer may demand a medical certificate before applying any of the rules 7 (b) (i), (ii).

(d) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work.

8. General.

(a) Employment is normally terminated, either by employer or employee, at the end of the working week, but employment may be terminated at the end of any working day. A minimum of two hours' notice shall be given, except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed.

(b) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.

(c) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.

(d) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.

(e) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.

Report on the working of the Government Savings Bank for the year 1960/61.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
10th November, 1961.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit the following report on the working of the Government Savings Bank for the period 1st July, 1960, to 30th June, 1961, together with the accounts and statements listed below.

1. Revenue and Expenditure Account.
2. Deposits and Withdrawals Account.
3. Investments Adjustment Account.
4. Reserve Account.
5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Summary of Transactions.
7. Statement of Investments.

Revenue (from interest on investments) exceeded expenditure by £18,897 : 17 : 9, and a profit of £2,857 : 4 : 11 resulted from the sale of investments. The book value of investments depreciated a further £2,677 : 14 : 10 on revaluation at the mid-market prices quoted on 30th June, 1961.

The number of depositors increased by 18 to bring the total at 30th June, 1961 to 1,845. The total amount due to depositors fell during the year from £1,056,742 : 11 : 0 at 30th June, 1960, to £1,052,533 : 13 : 8 at 30th June, 1961.

The deficit at 30th June, 1961, stood at £26,044 : 8 : 1 compared with £45,121 : 15 : 11 a year earlier. The situation brought about by the continued low valuation of investments is being steadily rectified by the considerable annual surplus income of the Bank and a return to a state of solvency is shortly to be expected.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,
Colonial Treasurer.

Report on the working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the year 1960/61.

To The Honourable
The Colonial Secretary.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands,
7th November, 1961.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the year ended 30th June, 1961, together with the following accounts and statements.

1. Statement of Income and Expenditure.
2. Investments Adjustment Account.
3. Statement showing the balance of the Fund at 30th June, 1961.
4. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
5. Statement of Investments.

2. Receipts into the fund during the year amounted to £14,395 : 14 : 6 compared with £14,866 : 2 : 3 during the previous year. This latter figure included £2,179 : 10 : 0 in respect of "lump sum" contributions — a form of qualification for a pension that is no longer available. Expenditure out of the Fund amounted to £4,587 : 7 : 10 compared with £4,001 : 5 : 0 during the previous year. Income during 1960/61 exceeded expenditure by £9,808 : 6 : 8 compared with £10,864 : 17 : 3 for the previous year.

3. The market value of investments held at 30th June 1961 depreciated a further £2,713 : 9 : 5 during the year and holdings disposed of sold at a loss of £573 : 10 : 6. During the year a review of the investment policy for the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund was carried out by the Crown Agents and as a result several changes have been introduced so that the fund is invested to the best advantage.

4. The balance of the Fund increased by £6,521 : 6 : 9 from 30th June 1960 to 30th June 1961.

5. Sixty new contributors registered during the year. Forty-nine contributors applied for refunds on departure and refunds were made in respect of four contributors who died before reaching pensionable age.

6. Claims to a pension were allowed in ten cases; four pensioners died, and one pensioner (a widow) remarried. At 30th June, 1961, there were thirty-seven persons receiving a pension — nineteen married, fourteen unmarried and four widows.

7. During the year legislation was introduced to increase pensions from 30/- per week for a married man, 20/- per week for an unmarried man and 10/- per week for a widow, to 36/6, 23/6 and 18/- respectively. Other amendments to the law included the withdrawal of the right to a refund of employers' contributions to a contributor who leaves the Colony permanently after twenty-one years contributing, and the introduction of pensions for the widows of contributors who die between the ages of 60 and 65.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,
Colonial Treasurer.

THE SCHEDULE

Section 2(1)

THE ANTARCTIC TREATY

The Governments of Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Chile, the French Republic, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, the Union of South Africa, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America,

Recognizing that it is in the interest of all mankind that Antarctica shall continue forever to be used exclusively for peaceful purposes and shall not become the scene or object of international discord:

Acknowledging the substantial contributions to scientific knowledge resulting from international cooperation in scientific investigation in Antarctica;

Convinced that the establishment of a firm foundation for the continuation and development of such cooperation on the basis of freedom of scientific investigation in Antarctica as applied during the International Geophysical Year accords with the interests of science and the progress of all mankind;

Convinced also that a treaty ensuring the use of Antarctica for peaceful purposes only and the continuance of international harmony in Antarctica will further the purposes and principals embodied in the Charter of the United Nations;

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

1. Antarctica shall be used for peaceful purposes only. There shall be prohibited, inter alia, any measures of a military nature, such as the establishment of military bases and fortifications, the carrying out of military maneuvers, as well as the testing of any type of weapons.

2. The present Treaty shall not prevent the use of military personnel or equipment for scientific research or for any other peaceful purpose.

ARTICLE II

Freedom of scientific investigation in Antarctica and cooperation toward that end, as applied during the International Geophysical Year, shall continue, subject to the provisions of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE III

1. In order to promote international cooperation in scientific investigation in Antarctica, as provided for in Article II of the present Treaty, the Contracting Parties agreed that, to the greatest extent feasible and practicable:—

- (a) information regarding plans for scientific programs in Antarctica shall be exchanged to permit maximum economy and efficiency of operations;
- (b) scientific personnel shall be exchanged in Antarctica between expeditions and stations;
- (c) scientific observations and results from Antarctica shall be exchanged and made freely available.

2. In implementing this Article, every encouragement shall be given to the establishment of cooperative working relations with those Specialized Agencies of the United Nations and other international organizations having a scientific or technical interest in Antarctica.

ARTICLE IV

1. Nothing contained in the present Treaty shall be interpreted as:—

- (a) a renunciation by any Contracting Party of previously asserted rights of or claims to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica;
- (b) a renunciation or diminution by any Contracting Party of any basis of claim to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica which it may have whether as a result of its activities or those of its nationals in Antarctica, or otherwise;
- (c) prejudicing the position of any Contracting Party as regards its recognition or non-recognition of any other State's right of or claim or basis of claim to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica.

2. No acts or activities taking place while the present Treaty is in force shall constitute a basis for asserting, supporting or denying a claim to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica or create any rights of sovereignty in Antarctica. No new claim, or enlargement of an existing claim, to territorial sovereignty in Antarctica shall be asserted while the present Treaty is in force.

ARTICLE V

1. Any nuclear explosions in Antarctica and the disposal there of radioactive waste material shall be prohibited.

2. In the event of the conclusion of international agreements concerning the use of nuclear energy, including nuclear explosions and the disposal of radioactive waste material, to which all of the Contracting Parties whose representatives are entitled to participate in the meetings provided for under Article IX are parties, the rules established under such agreements shall apply in Antarctica.

ARTICLE VI

The provisions of the present Treaty shall apply to the area south of 60° South Latitude, including all ice shelves, but nothing in the present Treaty shall prejudice or in any way affect the rights, or the exercise of the rights, of any State under international law with regard to the high seas within that area.

ARTICLE VII

1. In order to promote the objectives and ensure the observance of the provisions of the present Treaty, each Contracting Party whose representatives are entitled to participate in the meetings referred to in Article IX of the Treaty shall have the right to designate observers to carry out any inspection provided for by the present Article. Observers shall be nationals of the Contracting Parties which designate them. The names of observers shall be communicated to every other Contracting Party having the right to designate observers, and like notice shall be given of the termination of their appointment.

2. Each observer designated in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article shall have complete freedom of access at any time to any or all areas of Antarctica.

3. All areas of Antarctica, including all stations, installations and equipment within those areas, and all ships and aircraft at points of discharging or embarking cargoes or personnel in Antarctica, shall be open at all times to inspection by any observers designated in accordance with paragraph 1 of this Article.

4. Aerial observation may be carried out at any time over any or all areas of Antarctica by any of the Contracting Parties having the right to designate observers.

5. Each Contracting Party shall, at the time when the present Treaty enters into force for it, inform the other Contracting Parties, and thereafter shall give them notice in advance, of

- (a) all expeditions to and within Antarctica, on the part of its ships or nationals, and all expeditions to Antarctica organized in or proceeding from its territory;
- (b) all stations in Antarctica occupied by its nationals; and
- (c) any military personnel or equipment intended to be introduced by it into Antarctica subject to the conditions prescribed in paragraph 2 of Article I of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE VIII

1. In order to facilitate the exercise of their functions under the present Treaty, and without prejudice to the respective positions of the Contracting Parties relating to jurisdiction over all other persons in Antarctica, observers designated under paragraph 1 of Article VII and scientific personnel exchanged under subparagraph 1 (b) of Article III of the Treaty, and members of the staffs accompanying any such persons, shall be subject only to the jurisdiction of the Contracting Party of which they are nationals in respect of all acts or omissions occurring while they are in Antarctica for the purpose of exercising their functions.

2. Without prejudice to the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article, and pending the adoption of measures in pursuance of subparagraph 1 (c) of Article IX, the Contracting Parties concerned in any case of dispute with regard to the exercise of jurisdiction in Antarctica shall immediately consult together with a view to reaching a mutually acceptable solution.

ARTICLE IX

1. Representatives of the Contracting Parties named in the preamble to the present Treaty shall meet at the City of Canberra within two months after the date of entry into force of the Treaty, and thereafter at suitable intervals and places, for the purpose of exchanging information, consulting together on matters of common interest pertaining to Antarctica, and formulating and considering, and recommending to their Governments, measures in furtherance of the principals and objectives of the Treaty, including measures regarding:

- (a) use of Antarctica for peaceful purposes only;
- (b) facilitation of scientific research in Antarctica;
- (c) facilitation of international scientific cooperation in Antarctica;
- (d) facilitation of the exercise of the rights of inspection provided for in Article VII of the Treaty;
- (e) questions relating to the exercise of jurisdiction in Antarctica;
- (f) preservation and conservation of living resources in Antarctica.

2. Each Contracting Party which has become a party to the present Treaty by accession under Article XIII shall be entitled to appoint representatives to participate in the meetings referred to in paragraph 1 of the present Article, during such time as that Contracting Party demonstrates its interest in Antarctica by conducting substantial scientific research activity there, such as the establishment of a scientific station or the despatch of a scientific expedition.

3. Reports from the observers referred to in Article VII of the present Treaty shall be transmitted to the representatives of the Contracting Parties participating in the meetings referred to in paragraph 1 of the present Article.

4. The measures referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall become effective when approved by all the Contracting Parties whose representatives were entitled to participate in the meetings held to consider those measures.

5. Any or all of the rights established in the present Treaty may be exercised as from the date of entry into force of the Treaty whether or not any measures facilitating the exercise of such rights have been proposed, considered or approved as provided in this Article.

ARTICLE X

Each of the Contracting Parties undertakes to exert appropriate efforts, consistent with the Charter of the United Nations, to the end that no one engages in any activity in Antarctica contrary to the principals or purposes of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE XI

1. If any dispute arises between two or more of the Contracting Parties concerning the interpretation or application of the present Treaty, those Contracting Parties shall consult among themselves with a view to having the dispute resolved by negotiation, inquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. Any dispute of this character not so resolved shall, with the consent, in each case, of all parties to the dispute, be referred to the International Court of Justice for settlement; but failure to reach agreement on reference to the International Court shall not absolve parties to the dispute from the responsibility of continuing to seek to resolve it by any of the various peaceful means referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

ARTICLE XII

1. (a) The present Treaty may be modified or amended at any time by unanimous agreement of the Contracting Parties whose representatives are entitled to participate in the meetings provided for under Article IX. Any such modification or amendment shall enter into force when the depositary Government has received notice from all such Contracting Parties that they have ratified it.

(b) Such modification or amendment shall thereafter enter into force as to any other Contracting Party when notice of ratification by it has been received by the depositary Government. Any such Contracting Party from which no notice of ratification is received within a period of two years from the date of entry into force of the modification or amendment in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph 1 (a) of this Article shall be deemed to have withdrawn from the present Treaty on the date of the expiration of such period.

2. (a) If after the expiration of thirty years from the date of entry into force of the present Treaty, any of the Contracting Parties whose representatives are entitled to participate in the meetings provided for under Article IX so requests by a communication addressed to the depositary Government, a Conference of all the Contracting Parties shall be held as soon as practicable to review the operation of the Treaty.

(b) Any modification or amendment to the present Treaty which is approved at such a Conference by a majority of the Contracting Parties there represented, including a majority of those whose representatives are entitled to participate in the meetings provided for under Article IX, shall be communicated by the depositary Government to all the Contracting Parties immediately after the termination of the Conference and shall enter into force in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of the present Article.

(c) If any such modification or amendment has not entered into force in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph 1 (a) of this Article within a period of two years after the date of its communication to all the Contracting Parties, any Contracting Party may at any time after the expiration of that period give notice to the depositary Government of its withdrawal from the present Treaty; and such withdrawal shall take effect two years after the receipt of the notice by the depositary Government.

ARTICLE XIII

1. The present Treaty shall be subject to ratification by the signatory States. It shall be open for accession by any State which is a Member of the United Nations, or by any other State which may be invited to accede to the Treaty with the consent of all the Contracting Parties whose representatives are entitled to participate in the meetings provided for under Article IX of the Treaty.

2. Ratification of or accession to the present Treaty shall be effected by each State in accordance with its constitutional processes.

3. Instruments of ratification and instruments of accession shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, hereby designated as the depositary Government.

4. The depositary Government shall inform all signatory and acceding States of the date of each deposit of an instrument of ratification or accession, and the date of entry into force of the Treaty and of any modification or amendment thereto.

5. Upon the deposit of instruments of ratification by all the signatory States, the present Treaty shall enter into force for those States and for the States which have deposited instruments of accession. Thereafter the Treaty shall enter into force for any acceding State upon the deposit of its instrument of accession.

6. The present Treaty shall be registered by the depositary Government pursuant to Article 102 of the Charter of the United Nations.

ARTICLE XIV

The present Treaty, done in the English, French, Russian, and Spanish languages, each version being equally authentic, shall be deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America, which shall transmit duly certified copies thereof to the Governments of the signatory and acceding States.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned Plenipotentiaries, duly authorized, have signed the present Treaty.

DONE at Washington this first day of December one thousand nine hundred and fifty-nine.

[Here follow the signatures on behalf of the Governments of:— Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Chile, France, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, Union of South Africa, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America.]

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Minutes of the Meeting held on 6th February, 1962.

Present: His Excellency the Governor (Sir Edwin Arrowsmith, K.C.M.G.).
 The Honourable the Colonial Secretary (R. H. D. Manders, O.B.E.).
 The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer (Dr. R. S. Slessor, O.B.E., M.B., B.Ch.).
 The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer (L. C. Gleadell, J.P.).
 The Honourable H. Bennett, J.P.
 The Honourable J. Bound, E.D., J.P.
 The Honourable J. T. Clement, J.P.
 The Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P.
 The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner, J.P.
 The Honourable R. V. Goss.

The Meeting opened with prayers read by the Reverend Dr. W. F. McWhan, M.B.E., D.D.

In a tribute to the memory of the late Honourable A. L. Hardy, O.B.E., B.E.M., J.P., who passed away earlier in the morning, His Excellency said—

"Honourable Members of Legislative Council,

We have received the sad news that Arthur Leslie Hardy died this morning on the day before his birthday. Mr. Hardy had a distinguished record of public service in this Colony. He was made a J.P. in 1946, and was the first Chairman of the Stanley Town Council in 1948. He was first elected to this Council in 1949, and was our Senior Elected Member since 1952. He served with distinction on numerous Government Boards and Committees. In 1946 His Late Majesty King George VI awarded him the B.E.M., and in 1960 he was awarded the O.B.E.

But it is not only for his public service that we shall think of Les Hardy, as he was known to all of us. We shall remember his ability and enterprise as a storekeeper, and his up-to-date ideas, which have done much to make life more pleasant in Stanley.

I shall always remember his love for children and flowers, and the happy twinkle that was never long absent from his eye—but I think what I shall remember best of all was his pride in being a Falkland Islander and in this Colony in which he was born.

His courage during his last painful illness is a fine example to all of us.

On behalf of all Members of this Council, I extend to his widow and family our most sincere and heartfelt sympathy. It will be a long time indeed before his name is forgotten in this Colony which he served so well."

The Honourable J. T. Clement replying on behalf of the Elected Members expressed regret at the news of Mr. Hardy's passing and said that he had little to add to His Excellency's remarks but he would like to say how greatly he would be missed for the sound advice he was always so ready to offer particularly to the younger Members.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable G. C. R. Bonner moved that as a mark of respect, the House should stand adjourned. The motion was carried and Council adjourned.

Council resumed at 2.30 p.m.

After the confirmation of the Minutes of the previous Meeting the Honourable the Colonial Secretary laid on the Table the following papers—

- (i) Report on the working of the Note Security Fund, 1960/61;
- (ii) Report on the working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund, 1960/61;
- (iii) Government Employees Provident Fund Report, 1960/61;
- (iv) Report on the Government Savings Bank, 1960/61;
- (v) Financial Report, 1960/61;
- (vi) Chief Constable's Report, 1961;
- (vii) Certificate of Director General Overseas Audit 1959/60 Accounts;
- (viii) Governor's Despatch on 1959/60 Audit Report.

In moving the adoption of the Income Tax (Amendment) Bill the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer explained the purpose of the Bill, saying—

"Your Excellency,

In order to explain fully the purpose of this Bill and the events leading up to its introduction in its present form it is necessary for me, first of all, to refer back to your address to Council at the Budget meeting last year when you outlined Government's proposals to increase Companies Tax to 7/6 (with relief of 4/- in the £ for every £ not distributed) and to extend the Income Tax scale through several steps to 7/6 in the £ where personal incomes exceeded £10,000. By these means it was intended to increase revenue without seriously increasing tax burdens; by far the greater part of the additional revenue anticipated would be that which has hitherto found its way into the British Treasury by way of tax imposed by the British Government on the British firms that operate here. The rate of Companies Tax in Britain is 7/9 and this tax is levied on all profits distributed by Overseas Trading Companies. It is sufficient for the purposes of a general description of the position to explain that when the Falkland Islands Government takes 3/6 from these firms the British Government takes 4/3, that is the difference between our and their rate. Our plan was to increase the Companies rate to 7/6 leaving, as we thought, 3d to the British Government. As the British Government imposes no tax on the undistributed profits of Overseas Trading Companies it seemed that by retaining our rate of tax on this portion of the profits at 3/6 we would demonstrate Government's desire to avoid discouraging farmers from undertaking extensive programmes for the improvement of their farms.

When details of the proposal became known our attention was quickly drawn to the fact that far from restricting tax burdens at more or less their present level while the wool prices continue to average about 47d. the result would be an increase of something like £10,000 in the overall tax bill of the British companies that operate here. It was pointed out that in deciding what measure of relief should be granted in respect of tax paid abroad the Inland Revenue Department of Britain work on the average tax paid on the total profits, whether these profits are subject to British taxation or not. Instead, therefore, of paying the Falkland Islands Government 7/6 and the British Government 3d. the result would be nearer 7/6 and 1/3, which was precisely the kind of situation that Government wished so strongly to avoid.

There was no doubt that the situation as it had turned out required urgent attention and it soon became evident that the problem, so easily explained, was by no means so easy to solve. Various proposals all had their weaknesses ranging from unwarranted generosity to one group or another to unacceptable increases in the tax burdens of others. At this stage it might be a good thing to describe the problem to which a solution has to be found. We are planning an increase in revenue mainly by diverting tax from the British Treasury to the Colony Treasury; there is no desire to appreciably increase the tax burden of any person or body of persons. We have a wool industry divided, for tax purposes, into three groups — Companies controlled in Britain, Companies controlled in the Colony and unincorporated bodies. It is the tax paid to the British Treasury by the first of these groups that we are after and this group is also anxious that their entire taxation should accrue to the Falkland Islands Treasury. We cannot introduce discriminatory legislation against this group as it would result in the cancellation of the double taxation agreement that we have with Britain, therefore any increases in taxation rates must apply equally to all while endeavouring at the same time to restrict the overall tax burdens of each of the groups to what it is at the moment.

The solution that has been decided upon is only partly provided for in the Bill now before Council. It is a very simple Bill that provides, with effect from the 1st of January, 1962, for the extension of the Income Tax scale to a maximum of 5/9 on chargeable income that exceeds £6,000 and the increasing of Companies Tax to 5/9. It also proposes to amend the deduction that may be claimed by Companies registered in the Colony, the majority of whose shares are held by persons residing in the Colony. The other parts of the proposal are the introduction of a Profits Tax to take effect on 1st January, 1963, and the abolition of Export Duty after it has been paid on the 1960/61 clip. Legislation for the introduction of a Profits Tax will be introduced later in the year but Honourable Members will require to know the broader aspects of what it involves to enable them to consider the Bill now before Council in its proper perspective. The rate of tax will be 10% if the profits subject to the tax exceed £12,000. No Profits Tax will be imposed where profits are less than £2,000 and an abatement of one fifth of the difference between the actual profits and £12,000 will be allowed where the profits are between £2,000 and £12,000. If this sounds a little complicated let me say, as an example, that the tax on a profit of £3,000 would be £120 which means that there would be abatement of £180. Other important features of the proposal for a Profits Tax are that any tax so paid will not be set off against one's personal assessment to Income Tax as can be done with Companies or Income Tax deducted at source and the profits assessable to Profits Tax will not be subject to the deduction permitted by Section 19 of the Income Tax Ordinance.

The proposal to abolish Export Duty marks a milestone in the Colony's taxation policy and is one which, I think, will be widely welcomed. If this proposal is adopted the sheepfarming industry will be entirely free from any sort of direct taxation that is not based on profits and the importance of this one can hardly emphasise too much.

Now how do these proposals affect the revenue? Will they produce the revenue that the earlier proposal was expected to do? Can the Colony afford to relinquish the Export Duty in favour of a taxation system that depends entirely on there being profits to tax? These are the kind of questions that are likely to be asked and I think I should anticipate them by attempting to give the answers now. With wool prices averaging about 47d. as they have done for the last year or so and on the assumption that profits from such a wool price remain largely the same, it is estimated that about £35,000 to £40,000 more revenue will be collected than under the existing system of Income Tax and Export Duty. This is slightly higher than was expected under the earlier proposal as we now intend to collect 7/9 (5/9 plus 10%) from the larger companies. If wool prices go up there will be a trend towards a greater amount of revenue than we had expected to receive under the earlier proposals. A fall in wool prices would naturally mean less revenue but because we are now to receive the revenue that has formerly gone to the British Treasury the decline will not be so sharp as one might expect. For example I estimate that when wool falls to an average of 41d. (as it did for the 1957/58 clip) our revenue under the proposed system of taxation will be about £18,000 more than under the present one although the point will probably have been reached where the tax burdens of sheepfarming businesses will be less than the present system imposes.

As for the future and the revenue prospects should wool prices fall to a point where profits are small or non-existent, it is Government's opinion that if and when that situation arises the time will have arrived for considering how to tide ourselves over the crisis. The scale of tax payable by way of Export Duty provides for it to be imposed when the average price of wool falls to 20d., that is when the majority of farms would be operating at a loss. The question of whether Government would, or even could, continue to impose an export duty at such a time is, I feel, a matter that can only be answered when we are face to face with the reality.

The proposals are not without advantages to the taxpayer. Tax paid by way of Export Duty does not rank for Double Taxation relief in Britain but a profits tax does and this will be particularly welcomed by shareholders and other interested parties who live abroad."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded the motion and the Bill was read a first time. After reading the Bill a second time the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer proposed that it be referred to a Select Committee of the House. The motion was seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and carried.

His Excellency then appointed a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer and all the Unofficial Members. Council adjourned.

At 3.45 p.m. Council resumed and the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer reported that all Members were in agreement with the Bill in its present form and the Council went into Committee. Clauses 1 to 3, the enacting clause and the Title were agreed to. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Honourable H. Bennett introduced the Bill "Further to amend the Application of Enactments Ordinance, 1954", saying—

"Your Excellency,

The object of this Bill is to bring into force in the Colony certain amendments made to the English law by the Administration of Justice Act, 1956, relating to the Admiralty Jurisdiction of the English Courts. The application to the Colony of Part I of the Act of 1956 as varied or modified by this Bill is necessitated by the United Kingdom's ratification and extension of two International Conventions on Maritime Law to all maritime Colonies of the Commonwealth. This Law will give to the Supreme Court of the Colony powers equivalent to those exercised by the English Courts in maritime matters.

The two Conventions are :

(1) The International Convention on Certain Rules concerning Civil Jurisdiction in Matters of Collision, which seeks to unify the law in all maritime countries as regards the place in which a plaintiff may initiate proceedings in the case of any collision occurring between seagoing vessels.

This Convention provides that an action for collision occurring between seagoing vessels can only be introduced—

- (a) either before the Court where the defendant has his habitual residence or a place of business;
- (b) or before the Court of the place where arrest has been effected of the defendant ship or of any other ship belonging to the defendant which can be lawfully arrested, or where arrest could have been effected and bail or other security has been furnished;
- (c) or before the Court of the place of collision when the collision has occurred within the limits of a port.

Under the present law a plaintiff may only institute proceedings in a case where :

- (i) the defendant himself is personally present in the Colony and it is therefore possible to serve a writ upon him here;
- (ii) or the defendant ship could be found and arrested in a local port.

(2) The International Convention relating to the Arrest of Sea-going Ships, which produces international uniformity in the law relating to the arrest of a ship to secure a maritime claim.

This Convention permits not only the arrest of the ship in respect of which the claim arose but also the arrest of any other vessel which was under the same ownership.

Previously only the ship in respect of which the claim arose could be arrested.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Honourable A. B. Monk seconded and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

On the motion of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary supported by the Honourable the Senior Medical Officer Council adjourned sine die.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to apply the following Acts to the Colony.

- (a) The Sexual Offences Act, 1956, which consolidates the statute law relating to sexual crimes. It concerns intercourse by force, intimidation etc., with girls under 16 years of age, and with defectives. It also concerns incest, unnatural offences, abduction, prostitution procurement, etc, solicitation and suppression of brothels. The mode of prosecution and punishment for each offence is set out in a table contained in the Second Schedule to the Act;
- (b) the Adoption Act, 1958, which consolidates the existing law relating to the adoption of children. It concerns such matters as the making of adoption orders, the age and sex of the applicant, the care and possession of infants before adoption, power to dispense with the consent of a parent or guardian of an infant, interim and provisional adoption orders, the extinguishment of the rights and duties of the natural parents of an adopted child, the rights of an adopted person regarding the devolution of the property of the adopter and the citizenship of an adopted infant, etc;
- (c) the Fatal Accidents Act, 1959. The Fatal Accidents Act, 1846, provided that if death resulted from a wrongful act, neglect or default, an action for damages could be brought by the wife, husband, parent or child of the deceased. The Carriage by Air Act, 1932, listed the relations of the deceased to whom a carrier by air was liable. The Act which it is now proposed to apply enlarges the class of persons for whose benefit actions may be brought under the two Acts. It now includes brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts, step-children, half-brothers, half-sisters and illegitimate children. The above two Acts make it necessary similarly, to amend a section of another Act which refers to actions for torts being brought by or on behalf of "the wife, husband, parent or child of the deceased". It also provides that the fact that there is payment of insurance money, pensions, gratuities or benefits as a result of the death shall be ignored in assessing damages;
- (d) the Obscene Publications Act, 1959. This Act repeals the Obscene Publications Act, 1857, and supersedes the common law offence of publishing an obscene article. The act of 1959 provides that an article shall be considered obscene if the effect of the article or the effect of any one of its items, if taken as a whole, is such as to tend to deprave and corrupt persons who are likely, having regard to all the relevant circumstances, to read, see, or hear the matter in it. It makes obscene publications punishable summarily by a fine not exceeding £100 or imprisonment not exceeding six months, and on indictment punishable by a fine or imprisonment not exceeding three years or both, and provides for the seizure of articles believed to be obscene articles and kept for publication for gain, and for the forfeiture of such articles if the court is satisfied that at the time when they were seized they were obscene articles. It is a defence to prove that publication is justified as being for the public good and is in the interests of science, literature, art or learning.
- (e) the Legitimacy Act, 1959, provides for three things. Firstly, it provides that the child should be regarded as legitimate if either of the parents reasonably believed at the time of the act of intercourse that the marriage was valid. Secondly, it provides that a person may be legitimated by the subsequent marriage of his parents despite the fact that at the time of his birth either his father or his mother was married to a third party.

The third provision relates to the Custody of a legitimate child and gives the father or mother the right to apply to the Court to make an order regarding its custody and the right of access thereto.

1. The Minutes of the meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 6th February, 1962 were confirmed.

2. His Excellency the Governor addressed Council as follows —

“Honourable Members of Legislative Council.

One of our great difficulties in this Colony is that so little is known about us in the outside world, and what little is known, is mostly bad. I am sure that all of us have had the experience when we go to Britain of meeting people whose impression of the Falkland Islands — if indeed they happen to know where they are — is of a country with an Antarctic climate, across which gale force winds never cease to blow, and where only the most hardy types dare to venture out of doors at any time of the year. I suppose that this very widespread belief is partly a heritage of the last century, when we were known for the number of sailing vessels which put in here for repairs after getting into difficulties sailing round the Horn, and more recently because of the publicity which the Falkland Islands Dependencies in the Antarctic have received. You know now that a new Colony, the British Antarctic Territory, comprising the Falkland Islands Dependencies south of 60° south latitude, has been created. This will prove, I think, of advantage both to the Colony and to the former Dependencies. As far as the Colony is concerned, this separation will help in dispelling the mistaken idea, which is so prevalent, that we are part of the Antarctic: and, on the other side, advertisements calling for men to serve in the British Antarctic Territory make it very much clearer where they will have to serve, than do advertisements for people to serve in the Falkland Islands Dependencies. I believe some people have wondered whether the headquarters of the new Colony will move, and whether the Royal Research Ships will continue to call in Stanley. The headquarters will remain here, and the ships will continue to call.

In an effort to take some positive action to combat the prevailing ignorance about this Colony, Government arranged last year for a film to be made of life in the Falklands. Mr. Moss, who is well-known to most of us, spent over two months in the Colony taking photographs of all aspects of life here. The Central Office of Information is arranging the distribution of the film, and I hope it will be widely seen. Our object is not to make money from this, but to help us in recruiting both for Government and the farms, so that people who may be thinking of coming to work here, can get a really good idea of the place they would be coming to.

During the past year, one of our main troubles has been the lack of staff in some departments, and our failure to recruit them. This is not entirely due to ignorance or misconception of life in the Islands, although I believe this plays a considerable part, but also to the great shortage of people in some professions in Britain. Take Doctors for instance. The following is an extract from an article written in the “Sunday Times” of December 31st by Lord Taylor, himself a famous Doctor, which is headed “Too Few Doctors — The Crisis Facing Britain”. “The present situation is that outside the great teaching hospitals and the more attractive areas in the south of England, there is scarcely a hospital which could keep going without its junior doctors from India and Pakistan, Egypt, Iraq and Africa, Malta and Portugal, Turkey and China, Greece and Ceylon. These young doctors are coming here to learn and after a year most of them return to their homes.” The “Lancet” of the 9th of December reported that in the Sheffield region, of 705 advertised hospital posts, only 188 were filled and only 50 by doctors born in Britain. This may give you some idea of the difficulties we face when trying to recruit doctors from Britain for this Colony.

We have been fortunate in obtaining two locums while Dr. Slessor and Dr. Cunningham are on leave, but we have had a vacancy for another Medical Officer for over a year, and we have been unable to fill it. We are concerned too that we have no dentists in view for when Mr. Carr leaves us. We think that our best way of filling these vacancies is by personal contact in Britain, and the Senior Medical Officer will be doing his utmost to obtain people when he is home on his very well-earned leave.

Similarly, we have had no success in recruiting male teachers for Stanley, and our Camp teacher system is being kept going only through the help of the Commonwealth Volunteers, for whose assistance we are most grateful. Two qualified teachers, husband and wife, will be going to the Darwin Boarding School in August, but another married couple we were hoping to obtain in May have fallen by the wayside.

Our depleted staff in the schools continue to do good work, and it was encouraging that the scholarship winners of the past year were younger than is usual. Indeed, one of them was the youngest ever to win a scholarship, and the marks of this candidate were outstanding. In the County of Dorset, where scholarship winners from the Falkland Islands go to school, the Education Authorities take great interest in us, and our problems, and they are willing to release one of their most senior and experienced officers to pay a short visit to the Falklands. I feel that this will be of great benefit to the Colony, and will serve to strengthen the link between us. The officer concerned, will be able to see our conditions here at first hand, and to exchange ideas with the Superintendent of Education. I feel too, that this personal contact may help in the recruiting of teachers, and Mr. Bradshaw, the County Education Officer in Dorset, has promised to do all he can to help.

A year ago we revised our scales of salaries, but I am sorry to say that even at these enhanced rates we have been unable to recruit artisans for the Public Works Department. We are continuing to do our best to get people, but frankly I do not think that we shall be able to do so without some added inducement. Mr. Picton, our new Superintendent of Public Works, arrived some four months ago. He has worked very hard since he has been here, but he is bedevilled by this shortage of staff, and there is a very great deal of essential maintenance work that must be done as soon as possible.

Other departments have been short handed through officers being absent on leave, and during the past winter both Mr. Kerr and Mr. Jones were away from the Aviation Department. The service was excellently maintained during that time. We have not had two aircraft flying together very often during the last year, but in spite of that over 2,000 passengers were flown, and as many as five flights have been carried out in one day. There has also been a marked increase in the weight of freight carried, and during the final six months of 1961 3,293 lbs. were carried as against 2,159 lbs. during the last six months of 1960. A major overhaul is at present in progress on Alpha Hotel, the newer of the two Beavers, which we hope will be completed before Mr. Smith goes on leave in May, and we should then have two Beavers flying together in their new livery of vermilion and black.

From air to sea transport. The "Philomel" has given us a lot of trouble, and during 1961 she steamed only 3,633 miles compared with 5,451 in the previous year. Surveys of her engines and hull have now been completed, and these will be available for Honourable Members to consider during the course of their deliberations on the estimates. We have also obtained particulars of what a replacement for the "Philomel" might cost if built in Scandinavia. But whatever we do decide for the future, it seems to me essential that we should have a slipway so that repairs to whatever vessel we have can be properly carried out. Various sites for a slipway are now being investigated, and although it may prove an expensive business to construct one, I think it would turn out to be a wise investment.

Last year I commented on the serious violations of our mails which were routed via South America. I am glad to say that since the Uruguayan Postal Authorities have built a special cage at the Port for the storing of Falkland Islands mails, these violations have ceased. We have, however, been concerned that four airmail bags have gone astray since December. The matter has been taken up with the G.P.O. in London, and investigations are proceeding.

The sorting of parcel mails in Stanley has always been difficult, and this Council Chamber has had to be used through lack of other suitable space. The gymnasium has recently been handed over to Government by the Town Council, and a scheme is in being to convert it into a parcels office, using the remainder of the building as a central telegraphic office, radio control, and R/T office. Provision for this conversion is included in the estimates, and apart from solving our parcels problem, telegrams would then be handed in and transmitted from the same building, thus dispensing with the present laborious and costly method of taking all telegrams to and from the wireless station. In addition we hope that by siting the receiving aerial for the Camp R/T service outside the town when the move is made, we shall improve reception at this end, and cut out the interference from washing machines and the like, which so often prevents clear reception.

The broadcasting system continues to give good service, but it has not been easy to vary programmes, because the B.B.C. has temporarily suspended the production of new serials in their transcription service. I hope that this will be merely a temporary suspension, and in the meantime we have the Archers, one of the most lively features of conversation in the town being between those who like them and those who don't.

We hope that revenue from the Post Office will be increased this year by a commemorative issue of stamps which will be released in September next to commemorate the 50th anniversary of radio communication from the Falklands to the outside world. Three stamps of 6d, 1/- and 2/- will be produced, and we hope that this will bring us in an extra £10,000 or so. On the radio side, revenue will also be increased by messages sent from the satellite tracking station now installed in the Ionospheric office.

The consumption of electricity has increased during the year, and units generated now exceed a million. This naturally has led to an increase in fuel consumption, and the fuel stocked at the Power Station can now only supply a little over a year of our needs. We are giving immediate consideration to the provision of increased fuel storage to meet all Government's needs, and also to enable us to supply the needs of the public. We hope also to provide storage in Stanley for the Royal Research Ships in a separate tank, to be erected at the same time, which would enable the Colony and the Survey to share the costs of erection. The Mirrlees 200 kw. set which was moved from Ajax Bay to Stanley has given good service, and had up to February completed over 1,700 hours in operation. It was overhauled after 1,500 hours, and no faults were discovered. The second Mirrlees is stored and will be installed when P.W.D. labour becomes available to carry out extensions to the buildings and give room for the new set.

Before turning to other matters I would like to take the opportunity to thank the staff of Government Departments for their work during the past year, and to reiterate that it must always be our aim to do all we can to extend and improve the services we give to the people of this Colony.

Now Honourable Members, what of the future? Of one thing I am quite convinced, that is that in this Colony we cannot afford to stand still. We depend, and I believe we shall always depend, upon our sheep industry, and therefore I think it Government's duty to assist as far as it can in encouraging farmers to improve their properties and increase their production. Some really outstanding work has been done on some farms to improve their grazing and all farmers have shown considerable interest in the recommendations of the Wannop report. You will recall that Mr. Wannop said that in his opinion the greatest return from expenditure on improvement is likely to be obtained from money invested in sub-division. Fencing is costly, and I believe Government encouragement is necessary, but it must be in the form that provides the greatest assistance to those who take up the challenge in the biggest way. It must also be simple to apply, and by that I mean we do not want to do anything that requires the setting up of a special Government department, or even the extension of any that exist.

I do not think we can contemplate subsidies for the reason that the money to pay them would have to come – owing to our one crop economy – from the industry it is proposed to subsidize. What we have decided upon, and have in fact introduced as from the 1st January, 1962, is both simple and practical. One of the many mysteries of income tax, that officials and accountants wrangle over each year, is the matter of depreciation that can be claimed, in respect of the various assets employed in the production of the profit that is to be taxed. Very simply stated, this amounts to estimating the life of the asset, and working out how much of its original cost should be charged against the profits of each year. Fencing, for example, is depreciated at the rate of only 7% per annum. For the next five years, however, it will be possible for farms to claim an initial allowance of 50% of the cost of any fencing that has been erected for the general purpose of applying the recommendations of the Wannop report. The arrangement goes further. Recognising that some farmers have already embarked on a programme of concentrated and rotational grazing, and have erected many miles of fencing for this purpose, it will be possible, in computing the profits liable to tax in 1962, to take into account the expenditure on fencing during the last five years and to claim an additional 43% of the original outlay. Certain types of machinery are also included in the arrangement, but the increased annual allowance is not nearly so great, nor is it possible to take past purchases into account.

This form of assistance does not involve the paying out of any money, but it certainly means a reduction in the amount of money coming in. Nevertheless I regard this as a sound investment. In return for smaller revenue in the next few years, I believe that the Colony will reap the benefit in the form of an increase in the number of sheep that can be carried, which will in turn mean a greater weight of wool for export. A heavier clip will in its turn produce a larger income, which will make us less vulnerable to a drop in the price of wool. As I said last year, an increase of only 5% in the number of sheep would produce the same cash return with wool at 48 pence per pound as we would receive from our present numbers with wool at 50 pence per pound.

Our whole system of taxation has been constantly under review during the past year, and we have now taken measures which, without increasing the burden of taxation to any marked extent, will nevertheless lead to increased revenue in the future. Even should the price of wool fall considerably, we can hope to obtain more than we would under our present system. You will recall that last year we had planned that by increasing the tax on distributed profits to 7/6d., that is 3d. below the British rate of 7/9d., and by holding our tax on undistributed profits at its present level – that is 3/6d. – we would succeed in recovering the difference of 4/-d. which companies registered in the United Kingdom now pay to the British Government in companies tax. We found, however, that it was not quite as easy as that, and that the British Income Tax Authorities would average the rate of tax paid on all profits yielded abroad, whether distributed or undistributed, and would, therefore, receive 1/7d. on every £ distributed in Britain, which was very different from the 3d. we had in mind. This problem was not an easy one to resolve, but we think we have solved it by proposing to introduce companies tax at the rate of 5/9d., a profits tax of 10%, and by abolishing export duty on wool.

Export duty has for so long been a feature of our economy that most careful thought had, of course, to be given to its abolition. We last year introduced a different system of assessing it on an ad valorem basis, which was certainly fairer than the previous method, but even so it is not an entirely satisfactory method of raising revenue. The system we now propose means in its simplest terms that the more profit farms make, the more tax they will pay, and should unhappily the wool market collapse, and the farms cease to make any profit, they would not as in the past be liable for export duty.

Profits tax will be charged on profits of over £2,000 a year, but the full rate of 10% only becomes effective when profit exceeds £12,000 a year. For instance, a business making £3,000 would pay £120 in profits tax and not £300. A further advantage is that profits tax paid to this Government by companies registered in the United Kingdom can be set off against income tax paid there, whereas export duty can not. The result will be that companies registered in the United Kingdom making a profit of over £12,000 will pay 7/9d. to this Government, which was what we hoped to achieve, or indeed 3d. better than we hoped to achieve, in our original proposal. We calculate that with wool at 48 pence per pound we would receive from our present rates of taxation with export duty £76,000, and under the new method £118,000, without increasing the burden of taxation on the farms.

While investigating the taxation structure we have come across certain anomalies which we also propose to put right. Over the years, but more particularly in the last few years, wages have increased considerably following awards to improve the standard of living, and awards to maintain that standard in the face of increasing prices. The lowest pay packets now contain something like £8 a week, compared with £3 or £5 of a few years ago, and although there have been amendments to the income tax law, they have not kept pace with the changing economic situation as it is seen through the wage-earners eyes. You will find by reference to the Income Tax Ordinance that a married man commences to pay tax when his income, if it is earned income, exceeds £250 or about £5 a week. That was all right a few years ago when pay packets rarely contained more than this, and when money was worth a good deal more, but the time for adjustment seems overdue. The amendments that are proposed make no sweeping changes, for we have to be cautious when we are still so far from balancing our annual budget, but when the Bill has been tabled you will see that no tax will be imposed on the earned income of a married man unless it exceeds £350, or nearly £7 a week, and as a further small measure of relief, we propose to remove the income tax liability on the value of a house that is occupied by the owner.

The Budget, Honourable Members, which will be presented to you at this session envisages a deficit for our next financial year of over £70,000, and you may well wonder why this is, in view of what I have said to you about the increased revenue we anticipate from our new taxation system. The reason for this large deficit is that we cannot hope to obtain the increased revenue from profits earned in 1962 until shortly after the close of the 1962/1963 financial year, but even taking this into consideration I can give no hope of our being able to produce a balanced budget next year or the year after, unless there is a considerable increase in the price of wool. This, as far as one can tell, is unlikely to happen, but it is certainly encouraging to be able to report that the average of the March sales was approximately 50½d., that is 1½d. better than last year.

Every year we show savings in expenditure because we have been unable to fill posts, but this is not a true saving. For all that, in spite of our ups and downs during the past few years, we still have reserves not far short of half a million pounds. The return on investments is a valuable source of revenue to us, and we should be careful not to dip recklessly into our reserves, but at the same time I think it is bad policy for us to set our faces rigidly against any but the most essential expenditure, merely because we anticipate a deficit. I think we can be pretty sure of one thing, and that is that prices and wages will continue to rise rather than to fall. To take one example, we thought we should have increased oil storage in 1959, but we put it off then because we were budgeting for a deficit. Had we taken the plunge it would certainly have cost us less than it will now. We have said for years that it is essential that we should have a new P.W.D. store. Had we built it five or six years ago, it would certainly have cost us far less than it will cost us now. So I believe that if there are things which really require doing, and which the best interests of the Colony indicate we should do, it is a wise policy to do them and to pay for them from reserves.

I hope the picture I have given you is not too gloomy. There are certainly no grounds for complacency, but neither do I think there is any reason to despair. The measures which farmers are taking to improve their land should pay dividends within the next few years, and unless there is a very sharp drop in the price of wool, I hope that we can continue to maintain and improve the services of this Colony from our own resources."

3. On the motion of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer, Council adjourned until 2.30 p.m.

4. On resumption the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the adoption of the following Resolution —

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period June 1961 to January 1962, be adopted".

The Resolution was adopted.

5. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer introducing the Bill entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the service of the year 1962-63", said —

"Your Excellency,

It is estimated that receipts during 1962/63 will total £292,949 and that expenditure for the same period will be £364,318. A quick mental calculation will therefore reveal that we are budgeting for a deficit of £71,369.

The budget for the current financial year was approved with an estimated deficit of £33,765 so that the corresponding figure for 1962/63 appears to show that the situation has worsened to the extent of £37,604. Before passing judgment, however, the circumstances should be carefully examined and a clear picture obtained of what these figures really mean. In order to do this effectively a comparison with the corresponding figures in the estimates of the current year seems the best line of approach.

Revenue for 1961/62 was estimated at £306,539 so that there is a decrease of £13,590 in the estimate for 1962/63.

Expenditure in 1961/62 was expected to total £340,304 compared with the £364,318 that we are providing for in 1962/63. This is an increase of £24,014 of which £12,137 is represented by Special Expenditure.

If I have put this clearly enough it will be recognised that the change in the budgetary situation — I am not prepared to describe it as a deterioration and hope to show during the next few minutes that in fact it is not — is due to three factors —

- i. a shortfall in ordinary revenue amounting to £13,590;
- ii. an increase in ordinary expenditure amounting to £11,877;
- iii. an increase in the special expenditure amounting to £12,137.

Reference to the revenue estimates under Head VIII, Internal Revenue, will show that we reckon on receiving only £8,000 from profits tax during the year 1962/63 although it has previously been stated that this source would yield about £30,000 while wool prices remain at their present level. How then has the figure of £8,000 been arrived at? The answer is a very simple one and it is that we do not expect to receive the bulk of this tax until shortly after the close of the financial year on 30th June, 1963, and that consequently the full effect of the new taxation system will not be apparent until the 1963/64 financial year. If our financial year coincided with the tax year of assessment we would not be budgeting for less revenue than we expected in the current year but something like £10,000 more. It is nothing more than a matter of timing.

Reference to the ordinary expenditure estimates will show that substantial increases are provided for under Head XV Public Works and XVI Public Works Recurrent. These increases are for additional staff including two foremen and for materials that will be used in a stepped-up programme of repair and maintenance. Expenditure at this level is likely to continue until arrears of maintenance work have been cleared when it is expected that the annual cost of this type of work will revert to something like the figure we have been providing, but seldom utilising, for some years past.

I hope I have conveyed the impression that the increased deficit, insofar as it is influenced by the ordinary revenue and ordinary expenditure, is of a temporary nature and that there is no evidence of any appreciable change in the general level of Government ordinary spending.

Special Expenditure for 1962/63 totals £24,633 and includes provision for assistance to the Stanley Town Council at a cost of approximately £6,000. It will be appreciated that the Town Council is in no financial position to undertake commitments of this magnitude and if the projects they have in mind are to be undertaken at all it will only be after an assurance of generous assistance from Government. There are, however, a number of important items of a really major nature to which Government is now giving serious consideration and it is likely that a supplementary budget of Special Expenditure might be presented during the course of the year.

It is estimated that the Colony will embark upon the financial year 1962/63 with reserves totalling just under half a million pounds and it is against this background that the prospect of a deficit of £71,000 should be viewed. There are signs that the average price of wool might increase slightly and this, together with the knowledge that our ordinary revenue and expenditure may be considered for all practical purposes as balancing, adds to the mild satisfaction that can be gained from a study of the overall picture of the Colony's financial position.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill received a second reading.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then moved that the Bill and draft Estimates be referred to a Select Committee of the House. The motion was seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and carried. The President appointed a Select Committee consisting of the Colonial Secretary, the Colonial Treasurer and Unofficial Members of Council.

6. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer moving the first reading of the Bill for an "Ordinance further to amend the Government Employees Provident Fund Ordinance", stated —

"Your Excellency,

The object of this Bill is to provide Government backing for the Provident Fund in the event of its assets being insufficient to meet the claims of all depositors. It is the accepted thing for Governments to underwrite funds of this nature and it is rather surprising that this provision was omitted from the original Ordinance.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable J. Bound seconded the Bill and it was read a second time and subsequently passed through all its stages.

7. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer introduced the Bill for an "Ordinance further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance", and said —

"Your Excellency,

The objects of this Bill are best described by dealing with each clause separately.

Clause 2 provides for the rewording of the section dealing with the liability to income tax of rewards from employment that are received otherwise than in money. We are having increasing difficulty in applying this section because it embraces such a variety of forms of income in kind and, in addition, we are frequently faced with the problem of deciding what exactly constitutes an allowance within the meaning of the section. What is now proposed is that the Governor in Council should have authority to list the services that shall be regarded as allowances for the purpose of this section and that these shall be published. It is considered that this should be much more satisfactory from every point of view.

The clause also seeks to remove the liability to income tax of the annual value of a privately owned house when it is occupied by the owner. The propriety of this imposition has long been the subject of conflicting opinion and it is interesting to hear from the B.B.C. that the Chancellor of the Exchequer has already acted as we are proposing to do. The cost to the revenue would amount to about £600 per annum.

The first part of clause 3 together with clause 4 might well be described as the important part of the Bill. Together they will increase the minimum earned income of a married man without children on which tax will be payable from £251 to £351 per annum and there will be a substantial increase in the minimum taxable income of an unmarried person also. This proposal recognises that tax adjustments over the past few years have not kept pace with the increasing cost of living and that we are still applying a tax system designed for a period when pay packets seldom contained more than £5 - £6 per week. It is estimated that the cost to the revenue of these amendments will be between £2,000 and £3,000 per year.

The last part of clause 3 seeks to amend the conditions governing the deduction that may be claimed when a tax payer has a dependent relative and to increase the deduction that may be claimed. At present the deduction is £25 provided the relative does not have an income exceeding £50 per annum. This, also, appears to be another case where we have not kept pace with the times and it is now proposed that the deduction should be increased to £50 and the qualifying income of the dependent relative should be "not exceeding £100". The cost to revenue of this proposal is not expected to exceed £50 per year.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable R. V. Goss seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and on the motion of the Honourable G. C. R. Bonner seconded by the Honourable J. T. Clement the Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the House for further consideration. In appointing the Select Committee His Excellency nominated the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer and all Unofficial Members.

8. On the motion of the Honourable H. Bennett seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary the Bill "to apply certain Acts of Parliament to the Colony" was read a first time. The Honourable H. Bennett explained the Bill, saying —

"Your Excellency, this Bill if passed by Council will apply the Sexual Offences Act, 1956, the Adoption Act, 1958, the Fatal Accidents Act, 1959, the Obscene Publications Act, 1959, and the Legitimacy Act, 1959 to the Colony. These Acts make very important amendments to the existing law and I will give a brief outline of each Act. Other Acts to which I refer are in force in the Colony.

The Sexual Offences Act, 1956, is a consolidation measure and consolidates the statute law relating to sexual crimes, to the abduction, procurement, and prostitution of women, intercourse by force or intimidation with girls under 16 years of age and with mental defectives. It also concerns incest, unnatural offences, solicitation and suppression of brothels.

The Adoption Act, 1958. This Act consolidates, subject to transitional provisions, the enactments relating to adoption. It concerns such matters as the making of adoption orders, the age and sex of the applicant, the care and possession of infants before adoption, power to dispense with the consent of a parent or guardian of the infant, interim and provisional adoption orders, the extinguishment of the rights and duties of the natural parents of the adopted child, the rights and duties of the adopted parents, the rights of an adopted person regarding the devolution of the property of the adopter and the citizenship of an adopted infant.

The Fatal Accidents Act, 1959 amends the law relating to the recovery of damages under the Fatal Accidents Acts and the Carriage by Air Act, 1932, by extending the classes of dependants for the purposes of the Acts, and providing for excluding certain benefits in assessing damages. Under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1846, if death resulted from a wrongful act, neglect or default, an action for damages could be brought by the wife, husband, parent or child of the deceased person, whereas the Act of 1959 enlarges the classes of persons for whose benefit an action may be brought to include brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts, step-children, half-brothers, half-sisters and illegitimate children. It also provides that payments of insurance money, pensions, gratuities, and payments by a friendly society or trade union should be left out of account in assessing damages under the Acts as consolidated.

The Obscene Publications Act, 1959. This Act implements most of the recommendations of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Obscene Publications. It repeals the Obscene Publications Act, 1857, and supersedes the common law offence of publishing an obscene article. The statutory test of obscenity is if the effect of the article or the effect of any one of its items, if taken as a whole, is such as to tend to deprave and corrupt persons who are likely, having regard to all the relevant circumstances, to read, see, or hear the matter in it. It makes obscene publication punishable summarily or on indictment. Summary proceedings must be brought within 12 months and a prosecution on indictment within 2 years of the commission of the offence. Two special defences to prosecution are created. It is a defence for a person charged to prove that he had not examined the article in respect of which he is charged and had no reason to expect that it was obscene, and it is also a defence to prove that publication was justified as being for the public good and in the interest of science, literature, art or learning or of other objects of general concern.

The Legitimacy Act, 1959, amends the Legitimacy Act, 1936, to legitimate the children of certain void marriages, and otherwise to amend the law relating to children born out of wedlock. It allows children born in adultery to be legitimated by the subsequent marriage of their parents and children of void marriages, in certain circumstances, to be deemed legitimate despite the fact that at the time of the child's birth either the father or mother was married to a third party. It also provides that the father or mother of an illegitimate child may apply to the Court for custody of the infant, and the right of access to the infant.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Bill was read a second time and committed. Clauses 1 to 3, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to. The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

9. His Excellency then adjourned Council for the Select Committee to consider the Draft Estimates and the Income Tax Amendment Bill.

10. Reporting back to Council at 10.0 a.m. on the 16th April, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer stated that the Select Committee had considered the Draft Estimates and agreed to the following amendments:

EXPENDITURE

decrease the provision against item 5. Labour from £1,530 to £1,100.

HEAD VI. EDUCATION.

decrease the provision against item 8. Provisions Port Howard Boarding School from £400 to £300.

HEAD XV. PUBLIC WORKS.

1. Personal Emoluments. Delete iii. Garage Foreman £1,000. Delete xxi. Bonuses in Lieu of Pension £680. Insert xx. Inducement Allowances £1,000.

HEAD XX. SPECIAL EXPENDITURE.

Education. ... Delete item 18. Porch and Concrete Paths Port Howard School £150.

Public Works. Increase the provision against item 30. Calculating Machine from £50 to £60.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill subject to the following amendments—

	Head	Delete	Insert
II.	AGRICULTURE	3,785	3,355
VI.	EDUCATION	45,646	45,546

XX.	SPECIAL EXPENDITURE	24,633	24,493
	Total Expenditure	364,318	362,968

It was agreed that the Schedule, as amended, should stand part of the Bill and that Clause 2 should stand part of the Bill with the following amendments—

That the words "Three hundred and sixty four thousand three hundred and eighteen pounds" should be deleted and the words "Three hundred and sixty two thousand nine hundred and sixty eight pounds" substituted therefor. That the figures £364,318 be deleted from the marginal note and the figures £362,968 substituted therefor.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

11. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer reported that the Select Committee had recommended that the Income Tax Amendment Bill be passed as originally presented to Council.

His Excellency declared Council to be in Committee and Clauses 1 to 4, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

12. Before adjourning, His Excellency addressed Members as follows —

Before putting the motion of adjournment, I would like to thank all Members of Select Committee for the very careful consideration they have given to the Estimates for the next year, during the past few days.

Several Members of this Council are leaving the Colony shortly and I would like to wish them on their leave, weather such as we have enjoyed in the Falklands for the last two weeks, pleasant holidays overseas and a safe return to the Colony.

On the motion of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable the Senior Medical Officer the Meeting adjourned sine die.

Citation, commencement and revocation.

1. (1) These Instructions may be cited as the British Antarctic Territory Royal Instructions, 1962.

(2) These Instructions shall come into operation on the same day as the British Antarctic Territory Order in Council, 1962, and thereupon the Instructions issued to Our Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and dated the 13th December, 1948, and the Additional Instructions issued to the said Governor and Commander-in-Chief and dated the 27th November, 1951, and the 15th November, 1955, shall, without prejudice to anything lawfully done thereunder, cease to have effect in respect of the British Antarctic Territory as defined in the British Antarctic Territory Order in Council, 1962.

2. (1) In these Instructions "the High Commissioner" means the High Commissioner for the British Antarctic Territory, and includes the person who, under and to the extent of any authority in that behalf, is for the time being performing the functions of his office.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply, with the necessary adaptations, for the purpose of interpreting these Instructions and otherwise in relation thereto as it applies for the purpose of interpreting, and in relation to, Acts of Parliament of the United Kingdom.

Instructions to be observed by deputy.

3. (1) These Instructions, so far as they are applicable to any functions of the office of High Commissioner to be performed by such person as is mentioned in paragraph (1) of the preceding clause, shall be deemed to be addressed to, and shall be observed by, such person.

(2) Such person may, if he thinks fit, apply to Us through a Secretary of State for instructions in any matter; but he shall forthwith transmit to the High Commissioner a copy of every despatch or other communication addressed to Us.

4. In the enacting of Regulations the High Commissioner shall observe, so far as is practicable, the following rules —

Rules for the enactment of Regulations.

- (1) The words of enactment shall be "Enacted by the High Commissioner in accordance with the provisions of section 11 of the British Antarctic Territory Order in Council, 1962."

- (3) All Regulations shall be distinguished by titles, and shall be divided into successive sections consecutively numbered, and to every section there shall be annexed in the margin a short indication of its contents.
- (4) All Regulations shall be numbered consecutively in a separate series for each year commencing in each year with the number one, and the position of each Regulation in the series shall be determined with reference to the day on which the High Commissioner enacted it.

5. The High Commissioner shall not, without having previously obtained instructions through a Secretary of State, enact any Regulation within any of the following classes, unless such Regulation contains a clause suspending the operation thereof until the signification of Our pleasure thereon, that is to say —

Certain Regulations not to be enacted without instructions.

- (1) any Regulation for the divorce of married persons;

- (8) any Regulation whereby persons of any community or religion may be subjected or made liable to disabilities or restrictions to which persons of other communities or religions are not also made liable, or become entitled to any privilege or advantage which is not conferred on persons of other communities or religions;
- (9) any Regulation containing provisions which have been disallowed by Us:

Provided that the High Commissioner may, without such instructions as aforesaid and although the Regulation contains no such clause as aforesaid, enact any such Regulation (except a Regulation the provisions of which appear to him to be inconsistent with obligations imposed upon Us by Treaty) if he shall have satisfied himself that an urgent necessity exists requiring that the Regulation be brought into immediate operation; but in any such case he shall forthwith transmit a copy of the Regulation to Us together with his reasons for so enacting the same.

Regulations to be sent through Secretary of State.

6. When any Regulation has been enacted, the High Commissioner shall at the earliest convenient opportunity transmit to Us, through a Secretary of State, for the signification of Our pleasure, a transcript in duplicate of the Regulation duly authenticated under the Public Seal of the British Antarctic Territory and by his own signature, together with an explanation of the reasons and occasion for the enactment of the Regulation.

Power of pardon in capital cases.

10. Whenever any offender has been condemned by the sentence of any court having jurisdiction in the matter to suffer death for any offence committed in the British Antarctic Territory, the High Commissioner shall call for a written report of the case from the judge who tried it, and for such other information derived from the record of the case or elsewhere as he may require, and may call upon the judge to attend upon him and to produce his notes; and if he pardons or respites the offender, he shall, as soon as is practicable, transmit to us through a Secretary of State a report upon the case, giving the reason for his decision.

2. In the event of the Government of the Falkland Islands on or after the appointed day paying the allowances, and providing for the passages referred to in clause 3 of this Agreement, the Government of the United Kingdom will, in accordance with such procedure as may mutually be agreed between the said two Governments, reimburse the Government of the Falkland Islands the following sums —

- (a) the aggregate amount of the allowances, referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b) of clause 3 of this Agreement, and paid to designated officers less the sum agreed by the said two Governments as being equivalent to the proceeds of taxation received by the Government of the Falkland Islands on the inducement allowance referred to in paragraph (a) of clause 3 of this Agreement and paid to designated officers;
- (b) one half of the aggregate amount paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands in providing for designated officers the passages referred to in paragraph (c) of clause 3 of this Agreement;
- (c) one half of the aggregate amount paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands as compensation to designated officers;
- (d) that part of any gratuity paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands to a designated officer which accrues to that officer by virtue of the addition to his emoluments, after the appointed day, of the inducement allowance referred to in paragraph (a) of clause 3 of this Agreement;
- (e) that part of any pension paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands to a designated officer which accrues to that officer by virtue of the addition to his pensionable emoluments, after the appointed day, of the inducement allowance referred to in paragraph (a) of clause 3 of this Agreement which shall bear the same proportion to the total pension payable to that officer by the Government of the Falkland Islands as the total amount of inducement allowance as aforesaid paid to him by the Government of the Falkland Islands bears to the aggregate pensionable emoluments earned by him, before or after the appointed day while in the public service of the Government of the Falkland Islands.

3. The allowances and passages mentioned in clause 2 of this Agreement are as follows —

- (a) an inducement allowance at such annual rate as may be specified by the Government of the United Kingdom;
- (b) any education allowance to which a designated officer may be entitled at rates and under conditions specified from time to time by the Government of the United Kingdom;
- (c) passages on such occasions as the Government of the Falkland Islands may with the concurrence of the Government of the United Kingdom prescribe.

4. The Government of the United Kingdom and the Government of the Falkland Islands will each take such steps as may be necessary to exempt the allowance referred to in paragraph (b) of clause 3 of this Agreement from the operation of any income tax law for the time being in force in their respective territories.

5. (1) On or before the first day of October in each year the Government of the Falkland Islands will provide the Government of the United Kingdom with such information, including information concerning any variation in the number of designated officers which results from the establishment requirements of the Government of the Falkland Islands, as the Government of the United Kingdom may require to calculate the amounts payable by the Government of the United Kingdom under clause 2 of this Agreement during the ensuing financial year of the Government of the United Kingdom.

(2) The Government of the Falkland Islands will, whenever requested so to do by the Government of the United Kingdom, supply to the Government of the United Kingdom such accounts and other information in connection with the operation of this Agreement as may be specified in such request.

6. The Government of the Falkland Islands will consult the Government of the United Kingdom before effecting any changes in policy which might affect the recruitment, terms of service and numbers of designated officers so as to vary the amounts reimbursable by the Government of the United Kingdom under clause 2 of this Agreement.

7. Subject to the provisions of clauses 5 and 6 of this Agreement, nothing in this Agreement shall affect the right of the Government of the Falkland Islands to vary its dispositions or requirements of officers in its public service as it sees fit.

8. This Agreement shall terminate, unless some other date is agreed between the Government of the Falkland Islands and the Government of the United Kingdom on the 31st day of March, 1971:

- (i) this Agreement shall not be terminated on a date earlier than the 31st March, 1971, unless all the obligations arising thereunder, other than those in respect of pensions referred to in paragraph (e) of clause 2 of this Agreement, have been discharged;

and

- (ii) the termination of this Agreement shall not affect the liability of the Government of the United Kingdom to make the reimbursements in respect of pensions referred to in paragraph (e) of clause 2 of this Agreement.

9. This Agreement shall come into operation on the appointed day and may be cited as the Overseas Service (Falkland Islands) Agreement 1961.

For the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

(Sgd.) E. P. ARROWSMITH.

For the Government of the Falkland Islands.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

A recent White Paper (Command 1193) outlined new arrangements proposed by Her Majesty's Government for the provision of assistance to the Government of the Falkland Islands in relation to the employment of expatriate staff. In fulfilment of these arrangements an Agreement has been executed by the two Governments, and this Bill contains provision for giving statutory effect to that Agreement.

The Bill makes provision for charging the necessary expenditure on the consolidated fund, and contains a schedule setting out the terms of the Agreement between the two Governments.

In view of the substantial assistance which will be forthcoming from Her Majesty's Government in implementation of the Agreement, the enactment of this Bill will not result in any additional expenditure of public moneys, but in a significant saving.

A Bill for
An Ordinance
Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance.

[, 1962]

Title.

Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 3) Ordinance, 1962, and shall be read as one with the Income Tax Ordinance hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance.

Short title.

Cap. 32.

2. Section 85 of the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced as follows —

Repeal and replacement of section 85 of the principal Ordinance.

“Penalty for making incorrect returns, etc.

85. (1) Any person who without reasonable excuse —

- (a) makes an incorrect return by omitting or understating any income of which he is required by this Ordinance to make a return; or
- (b) gives any incorrect information in relation to any matter or thing affecting his own liability to tax or the liability of any other person or of a partnership, shall be guilty of an offence against this Ordinance and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £100 and double the amount of tax which has been undercharged in consequence of such incorrect return or information, or would have been so undercharged if the return or information had been accepted as correct, and in default of payment to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months.

(2) No person shall be liable to any penalty under this section unless the complaint concerning such offence was made in the year of assessment in respect of or during which the offence was committed or within six years of the expiration thereof.”

Addition of new section 85A to the principal Ordinance.

3. The principal Ordinance is amended by the insertion after section 85 of the following new section —

"Penal provisions relating to fraud, etc.

85A. (1) Any person who wilfully and with intent to evade or to assist any other person to evade tax —

- (a) omits from a return made under this Ordinance any income which should be included; or
- (b) makes any false statement or entry in any return made under this Ordinance; or
- (c) gives any false answer, whether verbally or in writing to any question or request for information asked or made in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance; or
- (d) prepares or maintains or authorizes the preparation or maintenance of any false books of account or other records or falsifies or authorises the falsification of any books of account or records; or
- (e) makes use of any fraud, art or contrivance whatsoever or authorises the use of any such fraud, art or contrivance, shall be guilty of an offence, and shall for each such offence be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £500 and treble the amount of tax for which he is liable under this Ordinance for the year of assessment in respect of or during which the offence was committed, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both such fine and imprisonment.

(2) Whenever in any proceedings under this section it is proved that any false statement or entry is made in any return furnished under this Ordinance by or on behalf of any person or in any books of account or other records maintained by or on behalf of any person, that person shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, to have made that false statement or entry with intent to evade tax."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The penalty for knowingly making a false return of income or aiding and abetting another person to make a false return, or keeping or preparing false accounts or particulars of income on which tax is payable has hitherto been £100 or six months imprisonment.

In 1939 when the Ordinance was enacted a £100 fine was probably a severe penalty and closely related to the alternative of six months imprisonment. Following the decline in the value of money since that time the need for the penalty to be reviewed seems overdue; in doing this opportunity is also taken to provide for offences to be classified and treated according to their nature as well as according to the amount of tax involved.

Ref. 0747/III.

- (d) in the case of a trade or business carried on by a company the directors whereof have a controlling interest therein the deduction to be allowed in respect of the remuneration of the directors shall not exceed 15% of the chargeable income derived from the trade or business in the basis period (computed before making any deduction in respect of the remuneration of the directors) or £1,500 whichever is the greater, so however that the deduction shall in no case exceed £7,500. For the purpose of this paragraph a company shall be regarded as director-controlled if more than 50% of the issued ordinary shares are held by the directors and their relatives, or by the directors themselves or by the relatives of the directors;
- (e) where a trade or business is carried on by two or more persons jointly, the income of all the partners therefrom, computed as provided by subsection (1) of section 35, shall be aggregated and paragraphs (b) and (c) of this subsection shall apply as if the aggregated profits represented the chargeable income of a company;
- (f) (i) in the case of a trade or business carried on by an individual or individuals in partnership he or they may claim that there shall be allowed as a deduction in respect of the basis period the greatest amount which could have been allowed under paragraph (d) of this subsection in respect of the remuneration of the directors if the trade or business had been carried on in the basis period by a company the directors whereof have a controlling interest therein:

Provided that where a deduction is made under this paragraph as respects any period the chargeable income shall be assessed to profits tax at the rate applicable to a body corporate.

- (ii) any claim under this paragraph shall be made by notice in writing to the Commissioner within six months from the end of the period in question or such longer time as the Commissioner may in any case allow;
- (g) in all cases where the profits relate to a period of less than 12 months the figures of £2,000 and £12,000 in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this subsection and the figures of £1,500 and £7,500 in paragraph (d) of this subsection shall be reduced proportionately;
- (h) all income from dividends or other property shall be included in the chargeable income of a company except sums received by way of dividend from another company within the charge to profits tax :

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to exempt in the hands of the recipients thereof any payments made wholly or partly out of the income exempted under the provisions of this paragraph;

- (i) no company shall be entitled to deduct the whole or any part of the profits tax from dividends paid to any shareholder in respect of any period.

For the purposes of this subsection "relative" means husband, wife, ancestor, lineal descendant, brother or sister."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill seeks to introduce the second part of the new taxation policy. It provides for the introduction of a tax on profits at the rate of 2/- in the £ for incorporated bodies, subject to abatement where profits do not exceed £12,000, and for the option of two rates (1/6 and 2/-), also with abatement where profits do not exceed £12,000, for unincorporated bodies.

A Bill for An Ordinance

To amend the Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance.

Title.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions (Amendment) Ordinance, 1962, and shall be read as one with the Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance (hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance).

Short title.

No. 7 of 1961.

2. Section 4 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the addition to subsection (a) of the following —

Amendment of section 4 of the principal Ordinance.

“Provided that where the person is a widow whose husband died before 1st July, 1952, or whose husband although alive on that date was excluded by age from contributing under the Old Age Pensions Ordinance, 1952, she shall have attained the age of 65 on 1st July, 1961.”

3. Section 7 (2) of the principal Ordinance is amended —

Amendment of section 7 of the principal Ordinance.

(i) by deleting the words “has been” and “from” in subsection (a) and substituting therefor the words “was” and “on”.

(ii) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection —

OBJECTS AND REASONS

It has been found that certain widows have been excluded from receiving Old Age Pensions by reason that they were temporarily absent from the Colony during the period 1952 to 1961 or that they are excluded by age from the benefits of the Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance while at the same time unable to claim on the Contributory scheme because their husbands were either dead before the introduction of the scheme or excluded by age from contributing to it.

ment) Ordinance, 1962, and shall be read as one with the Road

of the principal Ordinance.

2. Section 5 of the principal Ordinance is amended by inserting after subsection (3) the following new subsection —

“(3A) A valid driver’s licence issued under any law in force in the United Kingdom shall for a period of six months from the date of the holder’s first entry into the Colony be deemed to be a driver’s licence granted under the provisions of this Ordinance :

Provided that the holder on first entering the Colony shall submit such licence to the Superintendent of Police and the latter shall endorse and affix his date stamp thereon.”.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to enable the holder of a valid United Kingdom driver’s licence to drive a motor vehicle in the Colony, of the class or classes authorised in such licence, for a period of six months without holding the driver’s licence required under the Road Traffic Ordinance.

Report by the Auditor on the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the year ended 30th June, 1962.

1. Refunds amounting to £66 : 13 : 9 were paid during the year in respect of self-employed contributions which were incapable of being verified by this department. No action appears to have been taken to remedy this defect in the security of the fund.

2. As the rate of contribution is the same for both employed and self-employed, the solution appears to be to either restrict the refunds in all cases to the employee's contribution, or to cease all refunds.

3. No charge has been made for administration expenses in accordance with section 24, of Ordinance No. 3, of 1952.

Government Employees' Provident Fund 1961/62

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
24th October, 1962.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the working of the Government Employees' Provident Fund for the period 1st July, 1961, to 30th June, 1962, together with the statements listed below.

1. Revenue and Expenditure Account.
2. Deposits and Withdrawals Account.
3. Investments Adjustment Account.
4. Reserve Account.
5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Summary of Transactions.
7. Statement of Investments.

At 30th June, 1962, there were 44 contributors to the fund and the total amount due to them was £6,697 : 8 : 8. At 30th June, 1961, there were 48 contributors whose accounts totalled £6,517 : 11 : 0.

The fund is steadily being run down as contributors retire and withdraw their balances and the creation of pensionable posts for all females on the permanent staff has practically shut off the intake of new contributors. Consequently the progressively reducing balance of the fund can no longer earn sufficient interest from its investment to meet the Administrative Charge and also pay interest on deposits at the rate of 2½%. It will be seen that during 1961/62 the revenue of the fund fell short of expenditure by £6 : 13 : 8.

The market value of investments held on behalf of the fund showed appreciable improvement when revalued at 30th June, 1962, and in spite of the deficit on the Revenue and Expenditure Account the statement of Assets and Liabilities at 30th June, 1962, shows the deficit to have been reduced to £174 : 1 : 0 from the £294 : 10 : 10 of a year earlier.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

SCHEDULE

Service with Overseas Governments Agreement between the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Government of the Falkland Islands.

WHEREAS the Government of the Falkland Islands considers that it would be in the public interest to employ in the public service certain officers from other countries;

AND WHEREAS Her Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (hereinafter referred to as the Government of the United Kingdom) is prepared to contribute to that part of the cost of employing such officers as is attributable to the fact that such officers will be serving outside their own countries;

NOW, THEREFORE, it is agreed between Her Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Government of the Falkland Islands as follows —

1. In this Agreement unless the context otherwise requires —

"appointed day" means the first day of April, 1961;

"child" means the son or daughter of a designated officer including a stepson, stepdaughter, adopted son or adopted daughter, not having passed his or her nineteenth birthday and being unmarried and wholly dependent upon the designated officer;

"compensation" means any sum of money, not being a pension or the commutation thereof or a gratuity, which is payable by the Government of the Falkland Islands, on or after the appointed day, either in one payment or by instalments, including any sum payable by way of interest thereon or any additions to or any sum paid by way of commutation of additions to a pension, to a designated officer by virtue of arrangements for the payment of compensation approved by a Secretary of State for the purposes of this Agreement;

"contract officer" means a designated officer who is on or after the appointed day a party to a contract of service in writing with the Government of the Falkland Islands and whose service under that contract does not qualify him for a pension;

"designated officer" means an officer designated as such by a Secretary of State who is

(i) an expatriate officer in the service of the Government of the Falkland Islands on or after the appointed day and

(ii) who

(a) is a member of Her Majesty's Overseas Civil Service;

or

(b) was selected for appointment by or with the approval of a Secretary of State, or was recruited by the Crown Agents for Oversea Governments and Administrations;

or

(c) was otherwise recruited to a post for which a normal channel of recruitment is either the Colonial Office or the Crown Agents for Oversea Governments and Administrations and whose appointment for the purpose of this Agreement is approved by a Secretary of State;

"gratuity" means the sum payable to a contract officer, in addition to salary and allowances, under his contract or service and described therein as such or in the laws or regulations applicable thereto, in return for services rendered, whether such sum is paid at the conclusion of that service or otherwise;

"passage" means transportation of a designated officer, his wife, children and effects by such means, by such routes, in such classes of accommodation and in accordance with such conditions as the Government of the Falkland Islands may with the concurrence of the Government of the United Kingdom prescribe;

"pension" means the pension payable to a designated officer under the pensions Laws and Regulations applicable to him, including any sum paid to him by way of commutation of such pension, but excluding any compensation;

"Secretary of State" means one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State in the United Kingdom.

2. In the event of the Government of the Falkland Islands on or after the appointed day paying the allowances, and providing for the passages referred to in clause 3 of this Agreement, the Government of the United Kingdom will, in accordance with such procedure as may mutually be agreed between the said two Governments, reimburse the Government of the Falkland Islands the following sums —

(a) the aggregate amount of the allowances, referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b) of clause 3 of this Agreement, and paid to designated officers less the sum agreed by the said two Governments as being equivalent to the proceeds of taxation received by the Government of the Falkland Islands on the inducement allowance referred to in paragraph (a) of clause 3 of this Agreement and paid to designated officers;

(b) one half of the aggregate amount paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands in providing for designated officers the passages referred to in paragraph (c) of clause 3 of this Agreement;

- (c) one half of the aggregate amount paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands as compensation to designated officers;
 - (d) that part of any gratuity paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands to a designated officer which accrues to that officer by virtue of the addition to his emoluments, after the appointed day, of the inducement allowance referred to in paragraph (a) of clause 3 of this Agreement;
 - (e) that part of any pension paid by the Government of the Falkland Islands to a designated officer which accrues to that officer by virtue of the addition to his pensionable emoluments, after the appointed day, of the inducement allowance referred to in paragraph (a) of clause 3 of this Agreement which shall bear the same proportion to the total pension payable to that officer by the Government of the Falkland Islands as the total amount of inducement allowance as aforesaid paid to him by the Government of the Falkland Islands bears to the aggregate pensionable emoluments earned by him, before or after the appointed day while in the public service of the Government of the Falkland Islands.
3. The allowances and passages mentioned in clause 2 of this Agreement are as follows —
- (a) an inducement allowance at such annual rate as may be specified by the Government of the United Kingdom;
 - (b) any education allowance to which a designated officer may be entitled at rates and under conditions specified from time to time by the Government of the United Kingdom;
 - (c) passages on such occasions as the Government of the Falkland Islands may with the concurrence of the Government of the United Kingdom prescribe.
4. The Government of the United Kingdom and the Government of the Falkland Islands will each take such steps as may be necessary to exempt the allowance referred to in paragraph (b) of clause 3 of this Agreement from the operation of any income tax law for the time being in force in their respective territories.
5. (1) On or before the first day of October in each year the Government of the Falkland Islands will provide the Government of the United Kingdom with such information, including information concerning any variation in the number of designated officers which results from the establishment requirements of the Government of the Falkland Islands, as the Government of the United Kingdom may require to calculate the amounts payable by the Government of the United Kingdom under clause 2 of this Agreement during the ensuing financial year of the Government of the United Kingdom.
- (2) The Government of the Falkland Islands will, whenever requested so to do by the Government of the United Kingdom, supply to the Government of the United Kingdom such accounts and other information in connection with the operation of this Agreement as may be specified in such request.
6. The Government of the Falkland Islands will consult the Government of the United Kingdom before effecting any changes in policy which might affect the recruitment, terms of service and numbers of designated officers so as to vary the amounts reimbursable by the Government of the United Kingdom under clause 2 of this Agreement.
7. Subject to the provisions of clauses 5 and 6 of this Agreement, nothing in this Agreement shall affect the right of the Government of the Falkland Islands to vary its dispositions or requirements of officers in its public service as it sees fit.
8. This Agreement shall terminate, unless some other date is agreed between the Government of the Falkland Islands and the Government of the United Kingdom on the 31st day of March, 1971:

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Whereas Her Majesty in Council is satisfied upon consideration of a report from the Lord Chancellor and the Secretary of State for the Colonies that, having regard to the law of the Colony of the Falkland Islands as to the recognition therein of public registers of the United Kingdom as authentic records and as to the proof of the contents of such registers and other matters by means of duly authenticated certificates issued by public officers in the United Kingdom, it is desirable in the interests of reciprocity to make with respect to public registers of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and certificates issued by public officers in or in respect of the said Colony such provision as is hereinafter mentioned :

Now, therefore, Her Majesty, by virtue and in the exercise of the powers conferred on Her by the evidence (Foreign, Dominion and Colonial Documents) Act 1933 (a) and all other powers in that behalf in Her vested is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :

1. The registers of the Colony of the Falkland Islands specified in the first column of the Schedule to this Order shall be deemed to be public registers kept under the authority of the law of the Colony and recognised by the courts thereof as authentic records, and to be documents of such a public nature as to be admissible as evidence of the matters regularly recorded therein.

2. For the purposes of the preceding Article all matters recorded in the register shall be deemed, until the contrary is proved, to be regularly recorded.

3. Subject to any requirements of rules of court, a document which purports to be issued in the Colony of the Falkland Islands as an official copy of an entry in a register specified in the first column of the Schedule to this Order and which purports to be authenticated by an officer of the said Colony in the manner specified in that Schedule, shall, without evidence as to the custody of the register or of inability to produce it and without any further or other proof, be received as evidence that the register contains such an entry.

4. Nothing in this Order shall be taken to prohibit or restrict the admission in evidence of any copy, extract, summary, certificate or other document whatsoever which, apart from the provisions of this Order, would be admissible as evidence of any particular matter, or to affect any power which, otherwise than by virtue of this Order, is exercisable by any court with respect to the admission of documents in evidence.

5. (1) This Order may be cited as the Evidence (Falkland Islands) Order 1962.

(2) This Order extends to all parts of the United Kingdom.

2. The Minutes of the Meetings of Legislative Council held on 12th – 16th April, 1962 and 12th May, 1962 were confirmed.

3. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary, by command, laid on the table the following papers—

 Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Executive Council since June, 1961.

4. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the adoption of the following Resolution—

“BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period February, 1962 to September, 1962, be adopted.”

The Resolution was passed.

5. The Bill “Further to amend the Firearms Ordinance” was introduced by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary who said—

“Your Excellency.

This Bill deals with the question of exemptions from the need to hold a fire-arms certificate to possess fire-arms as defined in the Ordinance, that is rifles, revolvers etc., and a gun licence to use or carry any form of gun and seeks to extend the exemptions given by the Ordinance. The Ordinance, as it is at present worded, gives exemption to members of the Falkland Islands Defence Force when carrying fire-arms for target shooting only but the present Ordinance extends this so as to give them exemption whenever they are carrying fire-arms in the course of their duty. It also exempts from the need for a fire-arms certificate or gun licence as the case may be, Government officers who possess guns or fire-arms as ordered by their Head of Department for Government purposes. It also exempts the F.I.D.F. Rifle Club and also the members of the Girls' Life Brigade and Boys' Brigade when they are using guns or fire-arms at a range under the supervision of officers. There is a small anomaly in the present Ordinance in that penalties are prescribed for misuse of a firearm but not for misuse of any other kind of gun and this anomaly is remedied in the Bill.

When the Bill was first drafted the term “miniature rifle” was used but it was pointed out that this was incorrect and consequently wherever the word “miniature” occurred we wished to substitute the words “small bore”. But unfortunately owing to a small typing error in the Bill before the House the word “miniature” does still appear in one place and I propose to seek permission to alter that mistake when the Bill reaches the Committee stage. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.”

The Honourable J. T. Clement seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and committed.

Clauses 1, 2, 3 and 5 and Clause 4 amended by substituting the words “small bore” for the word “miniature” were agreed to, likewise the Enacting Clause and Title.

The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

6. Introducing the "Supplementary Appropriation Bill (1961-62)," the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency.

The title of this Bill is self explanatory. As the result of additional funds having been voted and utilised during the year the amounts provided in the Appropriation Ordinance have been exceeded on four Heads of Expenditure.

The object of the Bill is a formality to give covering legal authority for this particular expenditure and I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read accordingly.

The Bill was then read a second time and in Committee Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause, Preamble, Title and Schedule were agreed to and stood part of the Bill. The Bill was read a third time and passed.

7. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer introduced the Bill "To ratify and confirm the Overseas Service (Falkland Islands) Agreement, 1961, and to provide for matters connected therewith", saying —

"Your Excellency.

The object of this Bill is to ratify the agreement between the Government of this Colony and that of the United Kingdom wherein the latter undertook to give certain financial assistance to the Colony in relation to the engagement of staff from overseas.

Very briefly this assistance falls within the categories of salaries (where something greater than the local rates is required to attract suitable recruits) passages and education allowances. These forms of assistance are available to other overseas territories and the principal object is to permit the continued employment of overseas officers until suitable replacements are available from local recruitment. The scheme has a life of ten years in the first instance and this period, no doubt, is considered sufficiently long for most of the territories concerned to become largely self sufficient to their demand for professional and technical staff.

That such a situation is ever likely to be the case in this Colony seems hardly worth a second thought but the agreement does provide valuable assistance towards the cost, increasing rather than decreasing, of providing staff from overseas.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded the Bill and it was read a second time and subsequently passed through all its stages.

8. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the first reading of the Bill "Further to amend the Road Traffic Ordinance", stating —

"Your Excellency.

The object of this Bill is to enable the holder of a United Kingdom driving licence to use that licence in the Falkland Islands for six months. This privilege is granted by the United Kingdom in respect of driving licences granted in the Colony and it is suggested that it is suitable that we should grant a similar privilege to the holders of United Kingdom driving licences. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

The Honourable L. Bedford seconded and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill received a second reading and Council went into Committee to consider the individual Clauses. Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to and on resumption the Bill was read a third time and passed.

9. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary introducing the "Bill to provide for the immunity of certain classes of persons from the jurisdiction of the Courts of the Colony" said —

"Your Excellency.

The Antarctic Treaty Order in Council in July, 1961 provided in accordance with the terms of the Antarctic Treaty that observers, exchanged scientists and their staff should not be liable to the jurisdiction of any Court in the Falkland Islands or the Dependencies in respect of any act committed by them when in the Antarctic. When the British Antarctic Territory was constituted the Order in Council which I mentioned previously was revoked and instead of that Order in Council the British Antarctic Treaty Order in Council was passed. Naturally this Order in Council only dealt with the British Antarctic Territory and could not deal with the jurisdiction of Courts in the Falkland Islands and Dependencies. Although it seems very unlikely that the case of a person being brought before a court in the Falkland Islands or in the Dependencies in respect of an act committed in British Antarctica would ever arise, yet to conform with the Treaty it is necessary for us to give the same immunity from the jurisdiction of Courts in the Falkland Islands and Dependencies as was given by the previous Order in Council. There was also provision in the 1961 Order in Council for the Governor to grant exemptions from the provisions of any enactment in force in the Colony or its Dependencies to such observers and others in respect of baggage, instruments, etc., to enable them to carry out their functions in Antarctica and it is necessary to grant the same exemptions in respect of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies as was given by the previous Antarctic Treaty Order in Council. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer seconded and the Bill received its first reading. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time. His Excellency declared Council to be in Committee and Clauses 1 to 4, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed.

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

10. Moving the first reading of the Bill "Further to amend the British Nationality Ordinance" the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer remarked —

"Your Excellency.

The object of this Bill is to bring the fees in connection with naturalisation into line with those payable if the application is made in the United Kingdom where increases have recently been introduced.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill"

The motion was seconded by the Honourable G. C. R. Bonner. The Bill was read a second time and subsequently passed through all its stages.

11. A Bill "Further to amend the Application of Enactments Ordinance, 1954" was introduced by the Honourable H. Bennett, who said —
"Your Excellency.

Part I of the Administration of Justice Act, 1956 (which relates to the Admiralty Jurisdiction of the English Courts) was recently applied to the Colony.

Since its application the Secretary of State has drawn our attention to two very technical defects in the Act as modified in its application to the Colony.

The Secretary of State points out —

- (a) that questions which fall to be determined under international law should be left to the decision of the Secretary of State and not delegated to the Governor;
- (b) that jurisdiction to hear and determine matters covering ships and shipping should be retained by the High Court of Justice in England and not given to the Supreme Court here.

Opportunity is taken to correct two small drafting errors. The word "may" is deleted from subsection (4) of section 3 and the words "No Court in the Colony" substituted for the words "No Court in England and Wales" in the modification of section 6 of the Act.

The object of this Bill is to remedy the defects and correct the two small drafting errors.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable A. B. Monk seconded and the Bill was read a first time. The Bill was read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee without amendment.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

12. The Honourable H. Bennett seconded by the Honourable J. Rowlands moved the first reading of the second Bill "Further to amend the Application of Enactments Ordinance, 1954," and said —
"Your Excellency.

This Bill is designed to apply the Adoption Act of 1960 and the Suicide Act of 1961 to the Colony.

1. The Adoption Act, 1961, although quite short requires reference to earlier laws in order to explain the reason for its enactment. The other Acts to which I may refer have been applied to the Colony.

The Legitimacy Act, 1926, for the first time in English law, recognised to a limited extent the principle of legitimation by subsequent marriage.

The Adoption Act, 1958, provided that where any person adopted by his father or mother alone, has subsequently become a legitimated person, under the provisions of the Legitimacy Act, 1926, on the marriage of his or her father and mother the Court may on the application of the parties concerned, revoke the Adoption Order.

The Legitimacy Act, 1959, repeals the provisions of the Legitimacy Act, 1926, which excludes the operation of that Act in cases of an illegitimate person whose father or mother was married to a third person at the time of the birth, thus making such person legitimate on the subsequent marriage of his or her parents.

The Adoption Act, 1960, (the Act being considered) makes provision (similar to the provision of the Adoption Act, 1958) for the revocation of an adoption order where a person legitimated by the Legitimacy Act, 1959, had been adopted by his or her father or mother before the commencement of the Act of 1959.

2. The Suicide Act, 1961. Suicide was a felony at common law. Section 1 of the Suicide Act, 1961, abrogates that rule of law and suicide is no longer a crime, but under the provisions of section 2 of the Act, a person who aids, abets, counsels or procures the suicide or attempted suicide of another is liable on conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years. To be convicted as an aider and abettor a person must know all the circumstances which constitute the offence; whether he or she realises that the circumstances constitute an offence is immaterial.

Under the provisions of section 4 of the Homicide Act, 1957 (which applies to the Colony) if in furtherance of a "suicide pact" a person killed himself or herself the survivor was guilty of manslaughter. That provision is repealed by section 3 and the Second Schedule of the Suicide Act, 1961, and in such a case the survivor would not be guilty of that offence, but a person who in pursuance of a suicide pact, kills another, or is a party to that other being killed by a third person, is still guilty of manslaughter under the Homicide Act, 1957.

The enactment of this Bill will bring our law into line with the English Law in connection with these matters.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was read a first time and no objections being raised it was read a second time. In committee Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause, Title and Schedule were agreed to.

The Council resumed and the Bill received a third reading and passed.

13. In moving the first reading of the Bill "To amend the Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance" the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —
"Your Excellency.

The object of this Bill is to amend the Ordinance where it has been found inadequate. It was appreciated at the outset that because of its rather unique nature and the consequent lack of guidance from similar legislation the provisions of the Ordinance might not be sufficiently broad to benefit all those elderly people whose circumstances were receiving particular attention. Two such groups have emerged and this Bill now proposes to extend to them the small but useful benefits of the scheme.

The first amendment is to section 7 (2) where the present requirement is that an applicant for a pension must have been ordinarily resident in the Colony since 1st July, 1952. This, of course, excludes anyone who has spent sufficient time between then and now out of the Colony to disqualify him (or her) from being regarded as ordinarily resident, and a person who was here then and has now returned after a few years elsewhere cannot be granted a pension. It is proposed to amend the wording of section 7 (2) to remove the element of continuous residence and to make the residential qualification for a pension depend solely upon having been living here on 1st July, 1952. As the pension is not payable during any period spent away from the Colony this does not lead to departures from the fundamental objects of the scheme.

The second amendment is to provide pensions for widows whose husbands were dead before the introduction of the Old Age Pensions Fund in 1952 or, if alive at that time, were excluded by age from contributing. The amendment provides that widows in this group may qualify for a pension provided they themselves were 65 or over on the 1st July, 1961, the day the non-contributory scheme came into operation.

The cost of these amendments will be small. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable R. V. Goss seconded the motion and the Bill passed to its second reading. The various Clauses were considered in Committee and agreed to and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

14. Introducing the Bill "Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance" the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency.

This Bill seeks to amend the section dealing with penalties for incorrect returns of income. The present wording of the section has remained unchanged since 1939 and is somewhat out of date in both design and effect. For example the maximum fine that can be imposed for a false declaration under the Income Tax Ordinance itself is £100 and however adequate this might have been as a deterrent in 1939 it would be quite inadequate nowadays to discourage anybody who contemplated a deliberate fraud. There is, of course, the Perjury Act under which a false declaration would be charged but it is felt that details of penalties printed on the form, and the publicity that could be given to amendments, might be far greater deterrents than those that are not generally known. It is earnestly hoped to avoid court actions of this nature.

The proposed new sections 85 and 85A provide for offences to be classified according to their nature and punishable according to their nature and according to the amount of tax involved. The first part of the Bill deals with offences where incorrect information is provided without reasonable excuse or, in other words, where the element of fraud is either absent or not apparent. Here the maximum penalty remains at £100 except that double the amount of tax under dispute may also be added. Imprisonment as a penalty for the offence is removed but may be imposed in default of payment of the fine.

The second part of the Bill provides for penalties where there is a deliberate attempt to defraud the revenue and here the maximum penalty is increased from £100 to £500 and treble the amount of tax for which the offender is liable. Imprisonment is an alternative penalty and the maximum period is increased from 6 months to three years.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The motion was seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary. The Bill was read a second time and passed through its Committee stages without amendment. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a third time and passed.

15. The second Bill "Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance" was also introduced by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer and seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary. In his address the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency.

This Bill introduces the second stage of the new taxation policy that was outlined in some detail at the meeting of this Council on 6th February of this year. It is a comparatively simple piece of legislation providing for the payment of a further income tax to be called Profits Tax where the income is derived from a trade or business. The rate is to be 2/- in the £ unless the profits concerned are less than £12,000 in which case abatement equal to one-fifth of the difference between the assessable profit and £12,000 will be permitted. Special conditions limiting the deduction for directors fees in director controlled companies are included and where the tax is imposed on a partnership or individual the option of being taxed at 2/- or 1/6d., with abatement where the profits do not exceed £12,000 is available. This provision is designed to remove unfair tax burdens from partnerships and individuals where deductions in respect of payments made to the owners — what might be called the equivalent of directors fees — are not allowed when ascertaining the taxable profits.

The deductions provided for in sections 15, 16, 17 and 19 are not to be allowed for the purposes of ascertaining the profits assessable to profits tax.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was read a first time and on further motion made and seconded, was read a second time. In Committee, Clauses 1 and 2 were agreed as were the Enacting Clause and Title.

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved and the Honourable the Senior Medical Officer seconded that the House be adjourned sine die.

Before adjourning the Meeting, His Excellency thanked Honourable Members for their attendance at a time of the year when he knew it was not very convenient and wished Camp members good flying weather so that their return would not be too long delayed.

Council adjourned sine die.

2. The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on 28th November, 1962 were confirmed.

3. His Excellency delivered the following address to Council —

"Honourable Members of Legislative Council.

One of the most encouraging pieces of news we have had for a long time was that at the March sales 2,519 bales of Falkland Island wool were sold at an average price of 57.38d. a lb. This compares very favourably with the March sales in 1962 at which 2,147 bales were sold at an average price of 50.6d. a lb. The next sales are due early next month and, as usual, we can expect a certain fall, but it seems clear that our overall average for the year will show a good increase over last year's average price for the whole clip of 47d. a lb.

This increase in price is particularly welcome, because after our very mild winter in 1962 there was a much heavier clip than usual, and exports this year are likely to be a quarter of a million pounds in weight more than last year. I hope very much that these good results may encourage farms to set something aside for pasture improvement schemes. Two years ago I quoted Mr. Wannop, who said that he hoped that the pioneering efforts by enthusiasts will not only continue but will have imitators. These efforts have continued at Roy Cove and Hill Cove in particular, and the results on the ground are impressive. I am sure what these farms have done and hope to achieve will be discussed at the forthcoming meeting of the Sheep Owners Association, and other farms may perhaps be inspired to follow their lead. You will remember that Mr. Wannop also recommended that we should employ a trained investigator on grassland improvement, and you will see that provision has been included in next year's estimates for his appointment. Arrangements are proceeding to recruit a good man and Mr Wannop is assisting in this.

I will deal later with how the improved price of wool may affect our future financial position, but now I will turn to some of the activities of various Government departments during the past year.

To take Education first, we were fortunate that the Dorset education authorities agreed to a visit by their County psychologist Mr. R. J. M. Taylor to the Falkland Islands. Mr. Taylor has also had extensive teaching experience, and during his time in the Colony from 26th September to 2nd November 1962, he was able not only to see the Stanley and Darwin schools, but also to cover a good deal of the Camp. His conclusions were that the children in the Falkland Islands have the normal range of ability found in England, the average level being that of a child from the remoter rural areas in Britain. Mr. Taylor felt that our population would never justify the setting up of a system of full secondary education, but there would always be a few children of superior ability who would benefit from the type of education which is not available in the Colony. He thought we should not be too rigid over the number of scholarships that are awarded each year, and he emphasised that scholarships should only be awarded when it is clear that the children are able to undertake grammar school education successfully, provided they apply themselves to their studies. He recommended that scholarships should be awarded in the first instance for a two year period only, because in that time it becomes clear whether children are going to work successfully or not. If they are not, the scholarship should end, but on the other hand, if they are taking full advantage of the education they are receiving, scholarships should continue as long as justified. This could mean, that instead of the normal period of three years for which scholarships are now awarded, they would be extended to five years, and in some cases even to seven years. Such a long period away from home, and perhaps without seeing his parents, would not be good for a child, and Government therefore proposes that if scholarship children continue at school in Dorset for longer than two years, they should be flown home to the Falklands at government expense every two years.

Mr. Taylor was critical of the school buildings and equipment, particularly of the senior school in Stanley, where, he said, a new school is needed on a more spacious site. Steps have already been taken to improve equipment on his recommendations, and this policy will continue. Standing Finance Committee approved expenditure of the sum of £500 for this purpose during the current financial year, and next year estimates for school materials have been increased by £500 over the 1962/63 estimate. Necessary though a new senior school is, that does not mean that good work cannot be done in the present school. We must keep a new senior school very much in mind, but the more immediate need would seem to be to extend the Darwin school to accommodate more boarders. As Honourable Members will recollect, I have referred to this before, and we hope to obtain assistance for the extension from the Colonial Development & Welfare Act which last month was extended to 1966. The main problem at Darwin is the water supply, which is now barely adequate for the school, and would be quite insufficient if the school is to be extended. Investigations into how to improve the water supply have been proceeding, but the problem is not an easy one to solve, and I feel we might save money in the long run by getting a water engineer out from England to investigate conditions and draw up a plan.

The ideal, of course, would be that all Camp children from the age of eight should attend the Darwin school, but for a variety of reasons this is not a practical proposition, and we have to consider how best our educational system can be adapted to the needs of the community. The comparison of children in the Camp between the years 1953 and 1962 is interesting. The 1962 census revealed that, compared with 1953, there are now 40 per cent more children under school age in the East Falkland and 20 per cent more in the West Falkland. With these numbers in mind, it seems that something more will be needed than the extension of the Darwin school and the continued employment of Camp teachers, and that at the main settlements there may well be sufficient children to justify a settlement school, where children can receive continuous education uninterrupted by the teacher having to visit other farms and outside houses. Government is at present considering a scheme whereby it would give assistance to farms to employ a bookkeeper/teacher. He would be the employee of the farm and Government would pay a sum to the farm for his teaching services. He would have to be approved by the Department as a suitable person to teach, and would have to put in a fixed number of hours each week as a teacher. The plan is not without its difficulties, for farm employees move from one farm to another and a family with four or five children leaving a farm could cause a dramatic drop in the number of children attending the farm school; but I feel that if a satisfactory plan can be worked out, farm employees might think twice before moving from a farm where their children are receiving continuous education, and that this plan would be of benefit not only to parents and children but also to the farms. It might well be, too, that arrangements could be made whereby children from outside houses on the farm could obtain accommodation at the settlement during the week, and be able to visit their parents during the weekend.

I do not think that these plans will mean that Camp teachers will disappear, because there will always be the smaller islands with only a very few children, and the more distant outside houses where parents do not wish to be separated from their children, although in this question of separation I would urge parents to think not only of themselves but what is best for their children. Whatever plans Government may have, in the long run the education of children depends on the fullest co-operation from their parents. Without this no system of education can succeed. Our Camp teachers and the Voluntary Service Organisation teachers are doing excellent work, but their task is not always made easy for them. The great weakness of this system is its lack of continuity and the long gaps which occur between the teacher's visits, and unless parents co-operate and take a real interest in the education of their children very little can be achieved.

As Honourable Members are aware, we have very close ties with the Dorset education authorities and Mr. Taylor's visit has made these even closer. He has seen conditions out here for himself and is taking a keen personal interest in all our children now at Dorset schools. We have received good reports of the progress these children are making, and the reports on one of them, the youngest ever to be given a scholarship, are quite outstanding.

We have still vacancies for teachers, but I think the vacancy which has been felt most during the year has been that of the Darwin doctor. Since Dr. O'Connor had to leave last December because of his wife's most unfortunate illness, we have not succeeded in recruiting a medical officer for Darwin. At one time, two candidates looked hopeful, but they eventually withdrew, and it has become perfectly clear that we cannot hope to recruit doctors on our present scale of pay. I shall deal with this later in my speech, but Government has been advised of the rate at which it is thought a doctor might be attracted to come to the Falklands, and this rate is now being offered. You may have seen that in March of this year the Prime Minister announced that the British Government had accepted the advice of the Standing Review Body on Doctors and Dentists Remunerations, and that a general increase of 14 per cent would be paid with effect from the 1st of April.

The Medical Department has had a busy year. The mild winter brought with it a respiratory virus infection, which affected many in Stanley and the Camp, and which is still hanging about. 168 patients were admitted to hospital, and 19 major and 9 minor operations were performed. Our dentists have visited almost all Camp settlements, and I am very glad to hear that much more interest is being taken by parents in their children's teeth. The dentists examined almost all the children in the settlements they visited.

Up to the 6th of June, the Air Department had flown in 113 passengers in need of medical attention, and to this date also 2,571 passengers had been carried during the year. Our two aircraft were in service throughout the period, except when they were withdrawn in turn to undergo overhaul for the renewal of certificates of airworthiness. There was only one occasion during the year when it was possible to announce that no flying would be carried out, because there were no bookings on hand. 766 hours were flown and 1,558 landings were made. The luggage scales installed in the hangar have paid dividends, for the amount of excess luggage carried during the year amounted to 7,909 lbs. The overhead travelling hoist, which has been installed in the hangar, has proved of great value when our engineers are dismantling and reassembling the aircraft.

Freight carried by the aircraft amounted to 5,944 lbs.; but our main freight carrier, the "Philomel", I am glad to say, has had a more successful year than last. Up to the 31st of May she made a total of 23 voyages, steaming a distance of 4,475 miles. Of these voyages, four were to the far West Falklands, five to Falkland Sound ports, and 14 to East Falkland ports. She was out of commission for quite a time in September and October, when it was found that the checks and bolts supporting her rudder shoe had become badly eaten away owing to galvanic action. With the help of Mr. Ross, the Falkland Islands Company's diver, the shoe was removed and a new rudder shoe and supporting cheeks were finally secured in position with 18 bolts on the 18th of November. During the latter part of January, cathodic anodes were fitted to "Philomel's" rudder, and on the 12th of March divers from H.M.S. "Protector" examined "Philomel's" stern assembly and secured further bolts. They reported favourably on the condition of the bolts which Mr. Ross had fitted. I am reluctant to make any prophecies, but it does seem that these anodes should go a long way towards overcoming the constant trouble we have had with galvanic action, and since March, "Philomel" has completed three months of trouble-free service. Government is pursuing enquires on what it would cost to replace "Philomel" with a new vessel, and consideration is also being given to the construction of a suitable slipway to permit regular examinations and repair work to be carried out.

The Public Works Department has, very rightly, concentrated on maintenance during the year. Money spent on maintenance is to my mind always money well spent, but with the very important proviso that if maintenance is not properly carried out it is money wasted. It is no good putting a beautiful coat of paint on rotten wood. I can assure Honourable Members that maintenance is being properly done, but the state of some Government property is such that what may appear on a casual examination to be a fairly minor job may turn into a major one if repairs are to be lasting. Again with the object of improving maintenance, arrangements have now been made for all Government vehicles to come in for service at regularly scheduled intervals.

Of the major jobs, one of the largest was to construct new foundations for the oil tanks which you can see are now going up. These may not be very beautiful, but at least they will ensure that we do not run the risk of running out of oil, and it will be possible to convert some of the larger Government buildings to oil firing. I am afraid that oil firing will always be more expensive than peat for the small household, but there may be some who would rather pay £30 or £40 a year more for oil firing, and at least the conversion of the larger Government buildings will make more peat available locally.

Householders, formerly supplied with water from the present high-level tank, have always suffered from very poor pressure, and this should be very considerably improved when the new tank is erected and connected to the system. It was originally planned to put this tank up near the present one, but it was found that this would not have any significant effect on the pressure, and it was therefore decided to put the tank to the east of Sapper Hill and connect it to the present mains.

We have talked for a long time about improving the P.W.D. store and putting up a new one, but one of the troubles has been that so much junk, if I may so call it, had been accumulated that it was difficult to see what actual store space was available. Throughout the year, whenever the opportunity offered, old unserviceable stores, some of them dating back to pre-war days, have been moved, and it appears that the present stores building in the P.W.D. yard, with some modifications to its interior, can cope with the ordinary everyday stores, and that arrangements can be made to store goods, which are not needed regularly, elsewhere. There is an adequate building for heavy bulk stores at the old wireless station, provided that arrangements could be made with the Admiralty for P.W.D. to use it. This would be very much cheaper than building a new store. The only snag is that it is some way from the centre of the town, but it only takes about ten minutes to reach it by lorry.

Honourable Members will see in the Estimates that provision is made for the appointment of a Supplies Officer during the coming financial year. Mr. Campbell, our present storekeeper, who has given us excellent service since 1947, will shortly be retiring. It is intended that the scope of the P.W.D. stores should be increased, and the new Supplies Officer will be responsible for the ordering, cataloguing and accounting not only of all P.W.D. stores, but also of stores such as those ordered by the Education Department for Darwin. The Power & Electrical stores would also be moved from the Power Station and become the responsibility of the Supplies Officer. He will be able to relieve the Superintendent of Public Works and his staff of work which takes up much of their time, and this will apply also to the Education and Power & Electrical departments.

In March and April Mr. O'Reilly of the Road Research Laboratory visited the Colony, to investigate the possibility of building a road system in the East and West Falkland. His report is awaited so I can make no comment at this time, but it is perfectly clear that the building of any road system would be an extremely costly business.

The Power & Electrical Department has experienced no operational troubles during the year and the output for the year is estimated at 1,120,000 units. Replacements to the overhead power cables were erected along Brandon Road and Pioneer Row, and many minor improvements were made elsewhere. Additional street lighting units have been installed in many areas, and indeed one visitor from the Camp remarked, when I was driving him down by the Memorial, that it looked like Rio. The Power Station is as immaculately kept as ever, and is far and away the best that I have seen in any Colony in which I have served.

The Post Office has had a good year financially and the radio commemorative issue brought in £9,950. Sales of the definitive issue, the birds of the Falkland Islands, are still good and the total revenue from sale of stamps, including the commemorative issue, is likely to be £16,000 for the year. I was hoping that at this meeting I would be able to tell Honourable Members that there had been no violation of Falkland Islands mails during the year, but unfortunately there were minor violations in March and April, five parcels in all being damaged. I am happy to say, however, that the last mail which the "Darwin" brought from Montevideo was received intact. In November last, the Superintendent paid an official call on the Director of the Uruguayan Postal Services in Montevideo and discussed matters of interest to both administrations, in particular the speedy transit of Falkland Islands airmails routed through Montevideo. The discussions were most cordial, and have resulted in a considerable improvement in the service. Several airmails have since been received here in record time, that is five days from London.

Honourable Members will recall that last year it was intended that the Gymnasium should be taken over by the Post Office for use as a parcels sorting centre, and also to accommodate staff from the Wireless Station and the R/T Station. This proposal has been reconsidered. The main need is to take parcels sorting away from the Council Chamber, and this can be done in the gym without much extra work, and while making the gym available for other activities except at a time when the mail comes in. Government has, therefore, decided not to proceed with the plan as originally envisaged, but the despatch and receipt of telegrams has been expedited by a land line between the Post Office and the Wireless Station. Telegrams for despatch are typed on a machine at the Post Office and received on paper tape at the Wireless Station ready for despatch; similarly, telegrams received at the Wireless Station are put in a machine, which produces the words of the message on paper tape at the Post Office, ready to be pasted on to the telegraph form and delivered.

I am glad to say that the supply of tapes from the B. B. C. transcription service has improved, and more variety in programmes has been possible, although new serials are still difficult to come by. "The Archers" remain as popular as ever, and I believe that some people, who did not think much of this programme when it began, are now regular listeners.

Mr. S. P. Atkins, the senior operator at the Wireless Station, retired on pension last month after 40 years service. He joined the department in 1923 as a messenger in the Post Office, later going to South Georgia where he studied radio and became a wireless operator in 1929. From 1930 to 1950 he alternated between Stanley and South Georgia Wireless Stations, eventually settling in Stanley, where he served for the past 12 years. He was a most efficient operator, and set a fine example to the younger men who worked under him during the years. His departure from the Falklands will be a great loss to Government and to the community, and he takes with him our very best wishes for a long and happy retirement in New Zealand, where he will re-join his family later this year.

Mr. Alex Mercer, who retired in 1960 and re-joined the department in a temporary capacity in 1961, has also left us on final retirement. He too takes with him the best wishes of his many friends and colleagues here, where he will be long remembered for his untiring work and ingenuity in the field of radio and telecommunications.

From January, Sergeant Williams carried on most efficiently as Officer in Charge of the Police, until the arrival of Mr. Gray in December. During the year 79 vehicles were imported, making the total number of vehicles now registered 731. Of these, 400 are registered in Stanley alone. You have seen the new white lines which have now been put down in many places, but these in themselves will not prevent accidents. 14 traffic accidents were reported during the year and I am glad to say that no persons were injured. We do not register bicycles, but I am sure that many more children are riding bicycles than ever before, and therefore I particularly welcome the instruction of children in road safety and traffic regulations at the school. We have been most fortunate that there have been no serious accidents or injuries, or loss of life, as a result of accidents and I would particularly appeal to all drivers of motor vehicles to drive with care and courtesy at all times. I am sorry to say that drunkenness continues to be a predominant factor among the offences brought to court, and there were five cases of persons convicted for being drunk in charge of a motor vehicle. This is a most serious offence, for a motor vehicle in charge of a drunk man is a lethal weapon and can so easily result in death or injury to some innocent person or child.

Well, Honourable Members, I have dealt with the main activities of most Government departments during the past year, and although I seem to have been talking for a long time I have by no means covered all they and other departments have done. I would like to thank Government servants for their services during the past year and to repeat that it must always be our aim to give of our best in the service of the people of this Colony.

Later in this meeting the Colonial Treasurer will be addressing you on the Estimates for the forthcoming year, and I will only speak on them briefly. But I would like to say something about revised salaries and the salary scales which are being put forward for your consideration. Honourable Members may remember that two years ago I spoke in Council of the Overseas Service Aid Scheme. This is a scheme whereby the British Government agrees with Colonial Governments to meet certain charges which are incurred because Colonial Governments still have to employ officers from Britain. In Colonial territories which have large native populations every effort is being made to train local people to fill all posts in the Civil Service, and the Overseas Service Aid Scheme is designed to help these Colonies during the transitional period. Under this scheme the British Government agrees to pay half the cost of passages of officers recruited in Britain on first appointment and when they go on leave, and also to meet the cost of education allowances. Moreover, it is agreed that officers recruited in Britain should receive the same basic pay as natives of these Colonies doing similar jobs, but that the extra amount needed to retain officers from Britain in Colonies, or to induce them to accept employment in Colonies, should be paid by the British Government. This scheme is of great benefit to the larger Colonies, for the Colonial Treasury is paying no more for British officers than for local people; but its application is not so easy in a small Colony such as this, where everyone has the same racial background and similar standards of living, and where it is unlikely that all posts in the Government service will be filled in time by Falkland Islanders. We certainly benefit and are most grateful for the assistance we receive towards passages and education allowances, but the question of our acceptance of inducement allowances is a difficult one. In some departments we have permanent and pensionable officers, some recruited in the Falklands and some overseas, doing the same jobs, and Government considers that they must receive the same total remuneration. Expatriation pay, which had caused so much ill feeling and which I believe was a contributory cause to people in Government service leaving the Colony, was abolished in 1957, and we do not want to return to it in another form.

This is the position as far as permanent and pensionable officers are concerned, and I emphasize I have been speaking about permanent and pensionable officers. But there is no longer any recruitment in Britain on a permanent and pensionable basis, and this means that all officers recruited overseas will, in future, come to this Colony on contract. It has been ruled for other Colonies, that no officers may transfer from contract terms to permanent and pensionable terms for the reason that there is no longer a career in the Colonial Service as we have known it in the past. But I have secured agreement, that as far as this Colony is concerned, consideration will be given to officers transferring to the permanent and pensionable establishment after a period here on contract, should they wish to do so. I think what we want to do is to get away from talking about local and expatriate officers and to refer instead to permanent and pensionable and to contract officers.

In most Colonies officers are paid gratuities at the end of their contract by the Colonial Government, but this is not the case in the Falkland Islands except for doctors and dentists. Since we do not pay gratuities and since contract officers have to leave their homes and set themselves up again when they return, and have no pensions to look forward to, it is reasonable that they should receive something extra if the Colony scale is insufficient to attract them to service here. The question is, how much should this difference be? Government considers that a differential in the order of 15 per cent would be fair, and that if in the future it proves to be impossible to recruit at Colony rates or even at Colony rates plus 15 per cent, then the Colony salary would have to be adjusted, and not the differential.

That leaves us with the problem of deciding on what the Colony scales of pay for various jobs should be. In a small place such as this there is no easy basis for comparison. In larger Colonies where people are employed in the professions, in commerce, and in various trades outside the Government service, comparison is much easier. Government considers it reasonable to compare Colony salaries, as far as we can, with those paid for similar jobs in Britain, and that we have been attempting to do. In making this comparison we have also to remember that in Government service leave conditions are comparatively good, and passages are paid at regular intervals.

We are now faced with the problem that in two departments, Medical and Public Works, we are unable to obtain doctors and artisans on our present rates of salary. In the case of the Medical Department, Government proposes that the Colony scales should be increased to a level at which we can hope to interest doctors from Britain, the extra inducement needed to continue to be in the form of a gratuity as it is at present. Incidentally, we have no choice but to pay gratuities if we are to recruit doctors and dentists from the National Health Service.

As far as artisans are concerned, Government considers that the Colony scales should bear comparison with those in Britain, and since in our experience these rates are insufficient to induce artisans for the P. W. D. to leave their homes and come to the Colony, the difference required should be in the form of an inducement allowance on the lines I have already mentioned, and which will be reimbursable by the British Government.

Government cannot accept the position that because the pay of doctors, with whom I include dentists, and P. W. D. artisans should be increased, the pay of all Government officers should be increased by similar amounts, and no general salaries revision is contemplated. But during the past three years there has been a steady increase in the cost of living, and under the present system, the wages of unestablished staff automatically increase when the increased cost of living passes a certain percentage figure. This, of course, does not apply to established staff although they are equally affected. I do not think that we should apply any rigid formula to employees on the permanent staff, but it is right that salaries should be reviewed from time to time taking into account any increase, or indeed any decrease if such ever were to occur, in the cost of living.

Since the last salaries revision, which became effective on the 1st of July, 1961, the cost of living has increased sufficiently to warrant awards totalling 3d. an hour to hourly paid workers. This is approximately £30 a year, and it is proposed that the salaries of all officers, with two exceptions and except for those directly affected by revised scales, should be increased by this amount.

In larger Colonies there is considerable competition for Government posts and, as I have said, their services will be staffed, in time, entirely by permanent and pensionable officers of local origin. Although I think there is little likelihood of that happening here, we must face it that at the present time there is very little inducement for a young man to enter the Government service and make his career in it. Government feels that the present long scales do not encourage young men to join the Government service, and considers that the length of the lowest scales should be considerably reduced, and proposals for this are incorporated in the Estimates. The opportunity has also been taken to cut off the bottom steps in some other scales, because officers are no longer recruited at these lower rates.

The cost of all the increases I have mentioned amounts to approximately £8,000.

To turn now to our general financial position, a considerable programme of special expenditure was initiated during the past year, for which provision was not included originally in the Estimates, but even so, the deficit has been increased by only £1,750. Revenue exceeded the estimate by almost £7,000, and the revised estimate of ordinary expenditure is some £7,000 less than the approved estimate. It is calculated that we will begin the forthcoming financial year with reserves amounting to some £426,000. Ordinary expenditure for the forthcoming year is estimated at £338,530 which is £43,000 more than the estimated total ordinary revenue for the period. This is a significant difference, but it would be considerably larger had not our new taxation policy been introduced last year. Next year will see the first full effect of this policy in which the standard rate of income tax of 5/9d. and a profits tax of 2/- in the £. replaces the standard rate of 3/6d. and export duty on wool. The objective of increasing the revenue, without seriously increasing the tax burden of any of the companies or firms that operate here, will be largely achieved, and the extra £30,000, which we calculate the new system will bring in in revenue in 1963/64, will come mainly from the companies controlled abroad. What they pay in additional tax to the Colony treasury will be offset by what they receive in relief from the United Kingdom treasury. The new system has the advantage that revenue will benefit much more in periods of prosperity, for export duty on wool increased along fixed steps according to the average price of wool, but receipts from the new taxes will tend to increase more steeply as profits go up. I am hopeful, that if the final results of the wool sales this year are as good as anticipated, the gap between ordinary revenue and expenditure will be considerably reduced, and may even disappear, in 1964/65.

Special expenditure for the forthcoming year amounts to £36,000, which will bring the overall anticipated deficit for the year to £79,000, thus reducing the total reserves a year from now to about £348,000. When reserves fall, the income from our investments naturally falls too, and I think it would now be wise to consider whether special expenditure might not perhaps be better financed by means of a loan. This requires expert advice, which I propose to seek when I am in England.

Once more, I hope that the picture I have given Honourable Members is not too gloomy a one. We have the encouraging fact of the rise in the wool price, and in spite of the competition from synthetic materials, I think that wool will always be needed and that increased world-wide prosperity may even intensify the demand.

This is the last session of Council which will be attended by Mr. Manders, our Colonial Secretary. I am sure that it is the wish of all Honourable Members that I should extend to him and to his family our very best wishes for the future."

4. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary laid on the Table the following papers—

- (i) Medical Report 1962.
- (ii) Police Report 1962.
- (iii) Certificate of Director General Overseas Audit 1961/62 Accounts.
- (iv) Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Executive Council since November 1962.

5. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the adoption of the following Resolution—

“BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period October 1962 to May 1963, be adopted”.

The Resolution was adopted.

6. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then introduced the Bill entitled “An Ordinance to provide for the service of the year 1963/64”, saying—

“Your Excellency,

This Bill seeks authority for Government expenditure in 1963/64 amounting to £380,412, but before going into the details of how this figure is made up and how it is to be financed may I spend a few moments in reviewing the state of the current year's affairs as they now appear.

The revised deficit for 1962/63 is £70,777 or £1,758 more than was originally expected. May I draw particular attention to this small increase and then point to the considerable programme of special expenditure introduced during the year - a new motor vehicle for the Aviation Department and new aircraft seats for the same department, oil storage tanks, the high level water tank, the extension to the Stanley Cemetery and the equipping of Government Offices with fire fighting appliances, to list the principal items, at a cost in the region of £22,000 - and say that there is some reason for satisfaction that such a programme could be carried out without more seriously increasing the deficit. Ordinary Revenue up by £7,000 and Ordinary Expenditure down by £7,000, together with a number of Special Expenditure items that will not now be executed, explain why this was possible.

For 1963/64 Ordinary Expenditure is estimated to be £338,530 or £17,917 more than the approved estimate for the current year. Expenditure reimbursable from Colonial Development and Welfare funds is estimated at £5,706 and this represents the balance of the grant towards the cost of the roads programme. Special Expenditure is estimated to total £36,176 and includes among the principal items a tentative estimate of £7,300 for buildings for the Education Department, £5,000 for transferring the Ajax Bay house to Stanley (it will be recalled that we earlier planned to transfer it to Fox Bay), £6,443 for the completion of the Oil Storage Tanks together with £5,000 for partly filling one of them, £1,000 for machinery for the Public Works Carpenters' Shop and £4,200 for automatic typesetting equipment for the Printing Office.

It is proposed that this expenditure should be financed in the following manner. From Ordinary Revenue, £295,440; from Colonial Development and Welfare funds, £5,706; from Reserves, £79,266. A summary of the budget might be expressed in these terms—

Expenditure totalling £380,000 or £18,000 more than the estimate for the current year.

Revenue totalling £300,000 or £19,000 more than the estimate for the current year.

Ordinary Expenditure to exceed Ordinary Revenue by £43,000 compared with £44,000 estimated for the current year.

A deficit of £79,000 compared with £69,000 estimated for the current year. In both cases the deficit is to be met from reserves.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.”

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time and on further motion made and seconded, was read a second time.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary, seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then moved that the Bill and draft Estimates be referred to a Select Committee of the House. The President appointed a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer and all unofficial members of Council and adjourned Council to await the Report of the Select Committee.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer reporting back to Council at 10 a.m. on Friday 28th June stated that the Select Committee had considered the draft Estimates and agreed to the following amendments—

REVENUE:

HEAD XVI. TRANSFER FROM RESERVE FUND.
increase from £79,266 to £84,616.

EXPENDITURE:

HEAD II. AGRICULTURE.

11. Building Materials. Increased from £30 to £200.

HEAD VII. MEDICAL.

1. viii. Dental Technician. Decrease from £1,050 to £730.
 16. Heat, Light, and Fuel. Increase from £5,500 to £6,000.

HEAD XX. SPECIAL EXPENDITURE.

Insert new item 31. New High Level Water Tank £5,000 and reduce the revised figure for 1962/63 from £11,000 to £8,000.

His Excellency then declared Council to be in committee and Clause 1 was agreed to. Consideration of Clause 2 was postponed until after consideration of the Schedule.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill subject to the following amendments—

Head	Delete	Insert
II. AGRICULTURE	5,676	5,846
VII. MEDICAL	36,552	36,732
Total Ordinary Expenditure	338,530	338,880
XX. SPECIAL EXPENDITURE ...	36,176	41,176
Total Expenditure	385,112	385,762

It was agreed that the Schedule, as amended, should stand part of the Bill and that clause 2 should likewise stand part of the Bill with the following amendments—

By the deletion of the words "Three hundred and eighty-five thousand, seven hundred and twelve pounds" and the substitution of the words "Three hundred and eighty-five thousand, seven hundred and sixty-two pounds"; and by the deletion of the figure "£385,112" in the marginal notes and the substitution therefor of the figure "£385,762".

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

7. Introducing the Post Office (Amendment) Ordinance, 1963, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said—

"Your Excellency,

This is a rather formal matter and seeks only to set a limit on the time that obsolete issues of postage stamps can be used for postal purposes. The Post Office Ordinance makes no mention of invalidating stamps although it is clearly necessary that it should. When an issue of stamps is withdrawn from sale ample time is always given for people who have stocks to either use them or have them exchanged for the new issue. Eventually this obsolete issue must cease to be acceptable for postal purposes and in fact foreign countries are likely to surcharge the addressees of letters bearing obsolete stamps even though they are still acceptable to us as payment for postage.

The Bill now before Council proposes that the power to invalidate issues of postage stamps and other postal matter should vest in the Governor in Council.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable L. Bedford seconded and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill received a second reading and during the Committee stage the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer moved that Clause 2 stand part of the Bill but that Clause 1 be amended by substituting the figures 1963 for 1962. This was agreed to as was the Enacting Clause and Title. Council resumed and the Bill, as amended was read a third time and passed.

8. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary proposed the first reading of the Bill entitled the "Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) (Amendment) Ordinance, 1963" saying—

"Your Excellency,

This Bill seeks to amend the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance of 1959. When the Colonial Secretary moved the original Ordinance in 1959 he pointed out that it was important with a view to bringing us into line with other Commonwealth Countries rather than for any great effect it was likely to have on this Colony. However the Ordinance did provide that with regard to Foreign Judgments arrangements could be made with other countries whereby a Foreign Judgment of that Country could be enforced in the Falkland Islands and similarly our Foreign Judgments could be enforced in such Foreign Countries. Now naturally in an international matter like this we have to be guided entirely by instructions from the Colonial Office as to the wording of the Bill and the final Ordinance and in this case we were so guided, but since that time the Legal Advisers of the Colonial Office have pointed out that in the Ordinance as passed here (and in other Colonies no doubt) there was a mistake. Now the mistake was as follows - sometimes of course a case instead of being decided by a Court is referred to Arbitration and the award of the Arbitrators has the effect of a judgment in almost all respects and indeed an Arbitration award in one Commonwealth Country can be enforced in another Commonwealth Country. But an Arbitration award made in the United Kingdom could not be enforced in a Foreign Country - that is just the way that things are - and similarly the Arbitration award of a Foreign Country could not be enforced in the United Kingdom or here and so it has been necessary to amend the Ordinance which was passed in 1959 by altering the definition of a judgment so as to make it clear that it did not include an Arbitration award. As a result of that followed all kinds of other amendments which it is very difficult to follow but that is the point. But this drafting of such laws must present peculiar difficulties because even since this Bill has been gazetted the Secretary of State has brought to our notice one very small trilling amendment which has to be made in the suggested Bill which he gave us before, and that's a very small matter, but in the Bill before you it is said that this Ordinance will apply to any part of the Commonwealth outside the United Kingdom and it should be "any part of the Commonwealth outside this Colony"; and again at the end of the Bill it says "references in this Section to any part of the Commonwealth outside the United Kingdom" and it should read "outside the Colony". And so in Committee I will ask permission to make that other amendment. I think that explains the object of the Bill.

I beg to move the first reading."

The motion was seconded by the Honourable A. B. Monk and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and His Excellency declared Council to be in Committee. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved that clauses 1 and 2 be accepted as part of the Bill but that the words "United Kingdom" where they occurred in Clause 3 be deleted and replaced with the word "Colony". This was adopted and the Enacting Clause and title were also agreed to. The Bill, as amended, was then read a third time and passed.

9. When introducing the "Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) (Amendment) Ordinance, 1963" the Honourable the Colonial Secretary said —

"Your Excellency,

This Bill is a very small matter. Again I think it is perhaps more in order that we should fall into line with other Commonwealth Countries, but the point is that a Maintenance Order at present can only be served on the Governor and if we bring in this Amendment it can be served on the Governor or the competent authority appointed under the law of the Colony which would probably be the Registrar Supreme Court. It doesn't make much difference here but in other Colonies it would save time and so it has been suggested that we should make that very small amendment. And when we were amending the law we found out that section 8 of the principal Ordinance had a mistake. It referred to some other Ordinance and it referred to section 68 of that Ordinance whereas the proper section was section 69 so it is sought to remedy that mistake at the same time.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable J. T. Clement seconded the motion and the Bill received its first reading. The Bill was read a second time on further motion and Council went into Committee. Clauses 1 to 3 together with the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to, the Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

10. Introducing the "Matrimonial Causes (Amendment) Ordinance, 1963", the Honourable the Colonial Secretary said —

"Your Excellency,

This Bill seeks to amend the Matrimonial Causes Ordinance. There are two points. Now section 4 of the Matrimonial Causes Ordinance at present gives the four grounds for divorce briefly adultery, desertion, cruelty and insanity. Now in dealing with insanity it provides that a person is considered to be insane if he is to the satisfaction of the court incurably of unsound mind and has been continuously under care and treatment for a period of at least five years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition. Care and treatment is defined as follows — "for the purpose of the preceding section a person of unsound mind shall be deemed to be under care and treatment while he is detained in pursuance of any order made under the provisions of the Mental Treatment Ordinance". Well of course our Mental Treatment Ordinance in this Colony can only deal with people who are found to be of unsound mind in this Colony but it is quite possible that the person might have a husband or wife who is declared to be of unsound mind in England or anywhere else and therefore it is necessary to amend the Ordinance so as to include that; and there is a second point which sounds a little bit technical but it is the word "intentionally". Of course when a person is of unsound mind he can't do anything intentionally so it might happen that in a case of desertion you might have to prove that a person has intentionally deserted for a certain time and it might happen that intentional desertion might have been considered to have been broken by a period of insanity and now if this Bill is passed the law will make it quite clear that a person will be considered to have deserted intentionally even in such a case unless there is evidence to show that he would have gone back if he had been of sound mind.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was seconded by the Honourable the Senior Medical Officer and read a first time. No objections being raised it was read a second time and in Committee Clauses 1 to 3, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

11. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer presented the "Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions (Amendment) Ordinance, 1963", saying —

"Your Excellency,

The Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance provides for the widows of men who died before the introduction of the contributory scheme in 1952, or, although alive at that date were excluded by age from contributing, to be granted a pension provided they were 65 years of age on 1st July, 1961.

So far as it goes this is satisfactory, but what about the widows to whose cases similar circumstances apply except that they had not reached the age of 65 on 1st July, 1961. Are they to be excluded?

Quite clearly the object of the non-contributory scheme is to make special provision for those people who were excluded from the benefits of the contributory scheme. Accepting the age of 65 as the minimum pensionable age we have extended the scope of the scheme to most of the widows whom it is the intention to include, but by adding the proviso that they must have been 65 on 1st July, 1961, we have (unwittingly, I suggest) excluded a few who we wish equally to help.

This Bill proposes the deletion of the words "1st July, 1961" from the proviso to section 4 (a) of the Non-Contributory Ordinance which would mean that any widow whose circumstances are those described earlier would receive a pension on reaching the age of 65. This, I am sure, is what we have had in mind from the start.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The motion was seconded by the Honourable R. V. Goss and the Bill received its first reading. Seconding the second reading of the Bill, the Honourable R. V. Goss remarked —

"Your Excellency,

The amendment now before Council introduces an added improvement in social security and it also shows that Government is on its toes, so to speak, in this respect. I am very pleased to be associated with the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer in raising the amendment for Legislation, as indeed I am pleased to be associated with any scheme which improves the welfare of the people of this Colony."

No objections being made the Bill was read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee without amendment. The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

12. Introducing the "Stanley Common Ordinance, 1963" the Honourable the Colonial Secretary said —

"Your Excellency,

This Bill seeks to prevent the uncontrolled dumping of rubbish on the Common.

I beg to move the first reading."

The Honourable J. R. Rowlands seconded and the Bill was read accordingly. During the second reading of the Bill the Honourable J. R. Rowlands addressed Council saying —

"Your Excellency,

This Bill together with its attributing fine, if passed by Council, will do away with this rather untidy habit of depositing rubbish on various parts of Stanley Common, and perhaps here I should mention Government being one of the many offenders. Not only is this rubbish becoming a hazard to our animals, but is also an eyesore to many of our citizens and visitors.

While speaking on this Bill I consider it worthy of mention, that I believe the ash and other waste materials from Stanley could well be put to good account, if a scheme whereby controlled dumping were instigated and a small sum put aside by Government each year to finance such a scheme. As can be seen much of the peat has been removed near Stanley, leaving much scarred and barren land, a scheme of this nature with the co-operation of Stanley householders, the Town Council and its contractors, I feel certain would turn what is now a liability, into an asset, as the present frontage of Ross Road East proves."

Replying to the Honourable J. R. Rowlands, the Honourable the Colonial Secretary remarked —

"Your Excellency,

I would like to thank the Honourable Member for his support of this Bill. If Government has indeed been an offender in the past in this respect I think it is very regrettable and I feel sure that it will not happen in the future. With regard to the proposal for the control of the dumping of ash to improve the Common I can assure the Honourable Member that this proposal is having and will have the very careful consideration of Government."

The Bill was then read a second time and committed. Clauses 1 to 5, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to and the Bill proceeded to its final reading and passed.

13. The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer moved that the House stand adjourned sine die.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary in his farewell address to the House said —

"Your Excellency,

Before this House adjourns and before my last Meeting of the Legislative Council comes to an end I should like to take this opportunity in the first place of thanking Your Excellency for the gracious remarks and good wishes which Your Excellency made in the address at the beginning of this Meeting. And I should also like to take the opportunity of thanking all the Members of this Council, and may I also add the Members of the Executive Council, for all the courtesy and kindness and patience which they have extended to me which have made my work here so much more pleasant than it would otherwise have been. Your Excellency in the address, referred to the loyal service given by the public servants during this year and I would also like to thank the public servants for all the very loyal support they have given me during the three years I have been here. And I think it is not inappropriate in this House to take this opportunity of thanking all the inhabitants of the Falkland Islands for the great kindness they have shown to myself and my family which has made these years so happy. And finally I would refer to the various plans which have been considered here and elsewhere for the improvement of this Colony and would wish this Council all success in bringing these and other plans to a successful conclusion."

Before putting the motion for adjournment, His Excellency informed the House that on the previous day he had received the news that Mr. S. P. Atkins had been awarded the Imperial Service Medal. He knew the House would join with him in congratulating Mr. Atkins on this very well deserved award. His Excellency also thanked Honourable Members for all the care and attention they had given to considering the Estimates. He remarked that he had said this regularly and meant it most sincerely. He also referred to the fact that this would probably be the last Budget Session of this particular Council and quite probably of his own. Throughout its life the Council had given the very closest attention to all aspects of Government business, and particularly to Government expenditure. His Excellency said he had heard the view expressed that Members of Council were rubber stamps. Nothing could be further from the truth. He pointed out that all Government matters were carefully considered before being submitted to Council and that some proposals never even got as far as Standing Finance Committee, because it was considered they would have no possibility of receiving approval. Government could put up schemes which it knew very well would be shot down by Standing Finance Committee, but he did not think this was the way to conduct Government business. Although it might not be immediately obvious to everyone, the mere presence of the Unofficial Members on Council had a decisive influence on Government planning and policy. His Excellency welcomed the presence of two Elected Members of Legislative Council on Executive Council. Their advice had been most helpful and they were able to explain matters in Standing Finance Committee which had been considered in Executive Council. It might well be that on occasions Standing Finance Committee would bring up points which Executive Council had missed, for no one is infallible, and the two Members would then bring the matter back to Executive Council for further consideration. His Excellency concluded by thanking Honourable Members again for their services during the Session.

Council adjourned sine die.

Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) APPRENTICES.

The rates of pay for apprentices shall be as follows—

Year.	Fraction of Craftsman's Rate.
1st	One Third
2nd	Two Fifths
3rd	One Half
4th	Two Thirds
5th	Four Fifths.

(c) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board. The minimum rate for Handymen shall be three pence more than the Labourer's rate and the maximum two pence less than the Craftsmen's rate.

(d) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be paid one penny more than the Labourer's rate and shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid 3d. per hour more than the Labourer's rate while engaged in this work.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	4/9d.
2. Apprentices	1st year 1/7½
	2nd year 1/11
	3rd year 2/4½
	4th year 3/2
	5th year 3/9½
3. Handymen	4/- to 4/7 according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	3/10
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	4/-
6. Labourers	3/9
7. Boy Labourers	Age % of man's rate

	16-17 66½ 2/6
	18 100 3/9

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 2d. per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 30 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall receive from 4d. to 8d. per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 2/- per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 3d. per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 3d. per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 6d. per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 45 hours per week made up as follows :-

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

Saturday - 7.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 45 per week.

5. Overtime.

(a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows :-

TIME AND A HALF.

(i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.

(ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

(i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.

(ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.

(iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.

(iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.

(v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.

(b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.

(c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 45-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Holidays.(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following seven days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday, Empire Day, December 8th, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Stanley Annual Sports Meeting.

Individual employers shall be entitled to decide whether or not to observe the remaining Public Holidays or to treat them as normal working days but in no circumstances may they be treated as unpaid holidays.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

7. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed one year's service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.
- (b) The following rules apply to employees who have completed one year's service with their employer.
 - (i) There shall be no entitlement to sick pay for the first week of absence caused by sickness, but if sickness lasts for more than one week, an employee shall be entitled to half pay for the second, third and fourth weeks. While off work through illness an employee shall have the option of taking part or the whole of any annual leave due to him.
 - (ii) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (c) An employer may demand a medical certificate before applying any of the rules 7 (b) (i), (ii).
- (d) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work.

8. General.

- (a) Employment is normally terminated, either by employer or employee, at the end of the working week, but employment may be terminated at the end of any working day. A minimum of two hours' notice shall be given, except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed.
- (b) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.
- (c) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.
- (d) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.
- (e) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.

 The Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P.

 The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner, J.P.
 The Honourable R. V. Goss.
 The Honourable J. R. Rowlands.

The Meeting opened with prayers read by the Reverend E. Thornley.

1. The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on 25th June, 1963, were confirmed.
2. Moving the adoption of the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution, 1963, the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary said —

"There must be a feeling of curiosity within Council as to why we should be about to consider a Resolution which deals with Export Duty on Whale and Seal Oil when neither of these products are exported from the Colony. The answer is a very simple one and it is that the laws of the Colony are applied to South Georgia where there is a whaling and sealing industry. The South Georgia Administration wishes to reduce to 1/- per barrel the export duty on whale and seal oil and the simplest manner in which this can be done is for the Colony legislation to be amended and the amendment applied to South Georgia in the usual manner.

This amendment in no way commits the Government of the Colony to an export duty of 1/- per barrel should whaling or sealing re-open in the Colony. In this event it would be for the Government of the day to consider what duty should be charged and to legislate accordingly.

I beg to move that the following resolution be adopted."

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance, it is hereby resolved by the Legislative Council as follows —

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution, 1963.
2. Paragraph 3 of the Customs Order is hereby amended by deleting the words and figures from "Commencing with the 1960/61 season" to the words and figures "40 gallons exported." and by substituting therefor the following words and figures —

"Commencing with the 1963/64 season at the rate of one shilling, payable on export, for every 40 gallons or part thereof exported."

The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer seconded the motion and the Resolution was adopted.

3. The Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary introduced the Bill "Further to amend the Old Age Pensions Ordinance, 1952," saying —

"May I introduce this Bill by reading section 11 (1) of the Old Age Pensions Ordinance —

'A contributor who is leaving the Colony permanently before attaining the age of 65 years may, upon application to the Board in the prescribed manner, obtain repayment of the total amount of the contributions paid by him.'

The Old Age Pensions Fund is designed to pay pensions at the age of 65 and for this purpose three shillings per week is collected from each contributor and 4/6d. per week is collected from his employer. The employer withholds the 3/- from the employee's wage and buys one stamp valued at 7/6d. which he affixes to the Social Security Card. Although these two contributions appear on the Social Security Card in the name of the employee as one weekly contribution it seems correct to say that so far as the employer is concerned he is providing for the ultimate pension of the person who does a certain job for him rather than for the particular person whose name appears on the Social Security Card. For example, a certain job is done for the ABC Company by J. Smith. Smith becomes dissatisfied with the conditions in the Falklands and goes to New Zealand. He must be replaced and the Company engages Brown from England. Brown does several tours and then he, too, feels that he wants a change. The Company then brings in Jones to do the job and he stays on long enough to qualify for a pension. The money that pays his pension has been largely provided by the Company in their contributions in respect of Smith, Brown and Jones.

Take, however, the case of the self-employed person who leaves the Colony. He also must be replaced as any organised society requires its complement of bakers, barbers, small shopkeepers and so on. When one of these people decides to go abroad an opportunity presents itself for another person to become a small business-man. If this person is an employed person he will require replacement from abroad; if he comes from abroad then the number of employable people will not be reduced. Whatever his origin he will be required to contribute to the Old Age Pensions Fund and he, or someone who in turn takes over the business, will eventually qualify for a pension. But where is the money to come from to pay this pension? Under the existing legislation each time a self-employed person leaves the Colony the entire amount contributed towards the ultimate pension of that person is withdrawn so that, when the last owner of the business qualifies for a pension it will be on the strength of what he, and he alone, has contributed during the period that he has been a self-employed person. It might well be that for many years prior to his branching out as a small business-man he was an employed person and that considerable sums were contributed both by himself and his employer. It is contended, however, that in considering the economics of the fund this money should be earmarked for the payment of the pension of the employed person who filled the vacancy created when his predecessor became a self-employed person.

It is contended that there is no case for refunding what might be described as the "employers" part of the contributions made by a self-employed person and if the matter is viewed through the eyes of an employer it will be seen that the contribution in respect of an employee is an operating expense of the business but that the contributions made by a self-employed person are, in the event of him not qualifying for a pension, merely a deposit to be claimed at convenience.

It is suggested that this is incorrect and that the employers' contributions should always be regarded as operating expenses of any business whether it be a Company, a shop managed by the owner with or without paid assistants, or a single person taking jobs on his own. The law should be amended to restrict the amount that may be withdrawn in respect of contributions made by self-employed persons to that which is refundable to an employed person; in this manner the "employer" (by which I include a person who employs himself) in all businesses would be making proportionately equal contributions towards the fund that eventually provides for Old Age Pensions. There is provision for anyone who leaves the Colony before reaching pensionable age to continue contributing for the few remaining years if he wishes to retain his pensionable rights, and the Social Security Schemes in many other countries are such that people who go there comparatively late in their working life benefit from what has been paid for years past by those who were there before them. In other words there is no moral case for refunding the "employer" part of the contribution to a self-employed person and it seems that, economically speaking, it is unsound to do so.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Senior Medical Officer seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and committed. Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

4. Presenting the Bill "Further to amend the Live Stock Ordinance" the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary said —

"This Bill anticipates an important accomplishment in the battle against parasites that threaten the health of our sheep and consequently the quality of our wool. It authorises the inspector of stock to give exemption from dipping to the owner of any mainland station if he is satisfied that the sheep on that station have been absolutely free from ked, lice and scab during the preceding shearing season. In approving the exemption from the statutory requirement to dip the inspector must be satisfied that the boundary fences of the station concerned are in sound condition and properly maintained and he will also require the owner to produce the written consent of the owners of adjoining properties to the application for exemption.

Government is advised that this proposed amendment to the Live Stock Ordinance has the full support of the Sheepowners' Association and I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable J. T. Clement seconded and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill received a second reading and Council went into Committee to consider the individual Clauses. Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to and on resumption the Bill was read a third time and passed.

5. The Bill "Further to amend the Pensions (Increase) Ordinance, 1959," was introduced by the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary, who said —

"The Pensions (Increase) Act, 1962 provides for the payment of pensions increases and additional increases to pensioners from the United Kingdom Civil Service. In addition it also provides for the payment of similar increases to pensioners from the Overseas Services and to widows and dependants of former members of these services. As the Overseas Service includes the Falkland Islands it would seem at first sight that this is a most welcome form of financial assistance, but there are factors related to its limitation that make it unacceptable. The Act restricts the payment of increases to those pensioners from the service of this Colony who are Overseas Officers, which in other words means officers recruited abroad. No increases can be paid under the terms of the Act to officers who were recruited locally. It is felt that there should be no discrimination in matters like this and that if increases in the pensions paid to overseas officers are warranted, then similar increases in the pensions paid to locally recruited officers are also necessary. We cannot, however, introduce legislation for the payment of similar increases to those officers whom the Act ignores and if we wish to pay these increases to locally recruited officers then we must shoulder the burden of paying increases to all officers who have retired from our service, and thus relieve the British Treasury of the liability they have undertaken. That is what this Bill proposes to do.

Pensioners from the Falklands service may be grouped for the purpose of this exercise into those who retired before 1st January, 1957 and those who retired between 1st January, 1957 and 1st July, 1961. Applying the British scale of awards to these groups the first would receive an increase of 12% and an additional £20 if the pensioner is over 70 years of age and the second would receive an increase of 10% and an additional £17 if the pensioner is over 70.

It is proposed that the increases take effect from 1st January, 1963 and it is estimated that the cost of applying these increases to all eligible Colony pensioners would be about £600 per year.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable H. Bennett seconded. The Bill was read a first time and no objections being raised it was read a second time. In Committee Clauses 1 to 4, the Enacting Clause and Title were agreed to.

The Council resumed and the Bill received a third reading and passed.

6. The Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary seconded again by the Honourable H. Bennett, moved the first reading of the Bill "To provide for the increase of the pension granted to William Bleaker Myles" and said —

"This is in effect a continuation of the Bill dealing with a general increase in the pensions of former Colony officers. Mr. Myles who was unfortunate enough to reach pensionable and retiring age 6 months before his post was declared to be a pensionable one was later granted a pension by means of a special Ordinance. This Ordinance came into force in 1958 but the pension it authorised was based on the salary being paid to Mr. Myles on his sixtieth birthday which he celebrated in 1953. The object of this Bill is therefore to authorise the increase payable to Mr. Myles to be in accordance with the first of the two groups previously mentioned, that is for those who retired before the 1st January, 1957.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Bill was read a first time and passed through its second reading and Committee stage without amendment.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a third time and passed.

7. The Bill "To amend the Income Tax Ordinance" was also introduced by the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary, who said —

"This Bill proposes to repeal section 19 of the Income Tax Ordinance which permits a deduction of 12½% of the chargeable income of a company registered in the Colony the majority of the shares being held by individuals who are resident in the Colony.

This section is not to be found in the model Ordinance from which our Income Tax Ordinance was taken and its inclusion was rather reluctantly approved by the Secretary of State who yielded to insistence on the grounds that it would encourage absentee landlords to take up residence in the Colony. The measure has met with little success and as a means of rewarding people who take up residence in the Colony the section leaves much to be desired. If reduced Income Tax is to be used as a reward for living here it would appear that all who do so should benefit. It is wrong to single out the shareholders of locally registered companies of whom those holding 49% of the shares might live abroad.

While the measure has met with little success insofar as attracting people who would otherwise live abroad to live here it leaves open the possibility that small businessmen who already live in the Colony might take the necessary action to qualify for this tax reduction. There are also several sheep-farms that could qualify by incorporation without attracting owners to the Colony; the majority of the owners already live here. The Colony revenue is in no state to stand further reduction as the result of concessions to a minority group.

The more effective way of influencing people to live in a certain place by methods related to taxation is by keeping personal rates low. In this manner all who live in that place can benefit and no group is singled out for special consideration. Unfortunately no early further reductions in personal rates can be foreseen but as a first step towards recognising this principle it is now proposed that section 19 of the Income Tax Ordinance be repealed and I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Honourable J. Bound seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On the motion that the Bill be read a second time, the Honourable G. C. R. Bonner opposed the second reading and addressed Council as follows —

"Your Excellency,

I wish to oppose the further progress of this Bill through Council. Less than two years ago the Income Tax Ordinance was extensively amended and this clause was at that time adjusted so as to continue to give some measure of taxation relief and encouragement to those amongst us who choose to live and work where their incomes are derived, instead of receiving it through the letter-box in some much pleasanter part of the world. If, as the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary informs us, this clause is so ineffective and useless, why was it not abolished then?

The answer seems that, as the farming industry and indeed every successful enterprise in the Colony is having to bear a much higher rate of tax, it was a little hard to eliminate all concessions at once. Now less than two years later it is to be removed.

It is pointed out that section 19 is an anachronism and an inefficient clause. It is also said that it is not to be found in the tax laws of any other territory. There are a good many things here which are not found elsewhere and I cannot see why we should conform in every detail.

It is perhaps inferred that now income tax is higher more people might wish to avail themselves of relief under this section. It is argued that this would result in a loss of revenue and it would seem that this is the reason for its removal. I would argue that the primary object behind the clause is to stimulate property owners and others to remain in the Colony and that the more people that avail themselves of its provisions the better. It is to the Colony's advantage to keep all capital that it can in the Colony. There is little enough inducement to persuade owners of capital to stay in this Colony if they can find means of obtaining their income from it elsewhere. Transport facilities are negligible, most amenities, unless one provides them oneself especially in the Camp, are lacking and now with the repeal of this clause the slight concession that they enjoyed as being local owners and residents is to be removed.

The main object behind the desire for its removal, we are told is that it is wrong that there should be a clause in an Ordinance which applies to one sector of the community to the exclusion of others and any benefits should be spread as benefits for all.

I note, however, that no allowances or further concessions are even contemplated. If this is such a wrong clause I am at a loss to understand why it has taken 24 years of Income Tax legislation to find it out.

The only result of the repeal of this clause will be to hasten the flight of capital from the Colony and to put more money into the treasuries of other countries.

I beg to move that the Bill be deferred for the first meeting of the new Legislature."

The Honourable A. B. Monk seconded and it was agreed that the Bill be deferred accordingly.

The Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary moved and the Honourable Senior Medical Officer seconded that the House stand adjourned sine die.

Before adjourning the meeting, His Excellency addressed Council —

"Honourable Members,

This will be the last meeting of the present Council, for in order to hold the next elections at the most convenient time of the year, and in order that the new Council may be constituted before the Budget Session, I propose to dissolve Council before the close of the year.

Perhaps the most significant thing that has happened during the life of this Council has been the major change in fiscal policy, which has involved the abolition of export duty on wool and the imposition of a profits tax. I am sure that this is a fairer method of collecting revenue than was the former system.

Another item of legislation which I may mention is the Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance of 1961, which has been of some help in easing the lot of the oldest members of the community.

It would be wearisome if at this meeting I were to refer in detail to the many Ordinances which have been passed and to the many financial problems which have concerned Honourable Members at the Budget sessions and in Standing Finance Committee. Much useful and constructive action has been taken, and, as is inevitable, much remains still to be done. But may I before putting the motion for the adjournment, thank all the Unofficial Members of Council for their services during the past four years. In spite of the many demands on your time you have given unfailing service to the affairs of this Colony, and I am truly grateful for all you have done. Thank you, gentlemen, very much indeed."

Council adjourned sine die.

Government Employees' Provident Fund 1962/63

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
16th January, 1964.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the working of the Government Employees' Provident Fund for the period 1st July, 1962, to 30th June, 1963, together with the following statements —

1. Revenue and Expenditure Account.
2. Deposits and Withdrawals Account.
3. Investments Adjustment Account.
4. Reserve Account.
5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Summary of Transactions.
7. Statement of Investments.

There were 34 depositors at 30th June, 1963, and their combined accounts totalled £6,635 : 6 : 5. A year earlier these figures were 44 and £6,697 : 8 : 8.

The revenue of the fund again failed to cover expenditure, this time in the sum of £9 : 8 : 11. The deficit for the previous year was £6 : 13 : 8.

The market value of investments improved by a considerable margin and as a result the fund was again solvent at 30th June, 1963. The reserve was then put at £569 : 15 : 9 which is satisfactory.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

A Bill for
An Ordinance

Further to amend the Pensions (Increase)
Ordinance, 1959. Title.

[19] Date of Commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting Clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Pensions (Increase) (Amendment) Ordinance, 1964, and shall be read as one with the Pensions (Increase) Ordinance, 1959, hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance. Short title.

2. Section 7A of the principal Ordinance is hereby repealed and replaced as follows — Replacement of section
7A of the principal
Ordinance.

from 1st January, 1963.</sup>

7A. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance where an officer has retired —

(1) (a) from the service of the Falkland Islands before the 1st January, 1957, or

(b) from the service of a Scheduled Government before the effective date of the third general revision of salaries by that Government after the 31st December, 1944.

his pension, may, in respect of any period beginning on or after the 1st January, 1963, be increased by an amount equal to twelve per cent of the adjusted rate of that pension;

(2) (a) from the service of the Falkland Islands on or after the 1st January, 1957, and before the 1st July, 1961, or

(b) from the service of a Scheduled Government on or after the effective date of the third and before the effective date of the fourth general revision of salaries by that Government after the 31st December, 1944,

his pension, may, in respect of any period beginning on or after the 1st January, 1963, be increased by an amount equal to ten per cent of the adjusted rate of that pension:

Provided that the Governor may direct that in the application of paragraphs (1) (b) and (2) (b) of this section the effective dates of any other general revision of salaries by the Scheduled Government as he may determine to be appropriate shall be substituted for the effective dates of the third and fourth such revisions.”

Amendment of section 7B
of the principal
Ordinance.

3. Paragraphs (a) and (b) of subsection (1) of section 7B of the principal Ordinance are repealed and replaced as follows —

- “(a) if the pension may be increased under subsection (1) of the foregoing section of this Ordinance, £20;
- (b) if the pension may be increased under subsection (2) of the foregoing section of this Ordinance, £17.”

OBJECTS AND REASONS

Ordinance No. 10 of 1963 authorized increases in pensions according to whether a pensioner had retired before or after certain revisions in local salaries. The application of the effective dates of local salaries revisions to officers who retired from the service of another territory (having earlier served in the Colony) is inappropriate. Salaries revisions in other territories do not correspond to those approved for the Colony nor are they introduced with the same frequency. This Bill seeks to remove the restrictions imposed by the references to the dates of local salaries revisions where pensioners retired from the service of other territories, but at the same time retaining the limitations intended by inserting references to the numerical sequence of the revisions of the other territories since the 31st December, 1944.

In the odd case where reference to the numerical sequence of a revision is also inappropriate the Bill gives discretionary powers to the Governor regarding the date to be taken.

Report on the working of the Government Savings Bank for the year 1962/63.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
17th January, 1964.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit the following report on the working of the Government Savings Bank for the year that ended on 30th June, 1963, together with the accounts and statements listed below.

1. Revenue and Expenditure Account.
2. Deposits and Withdrawals Account.
3. Investments Adjustment Account.
4. Reserve Account.
5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Summary of Transactions.
7. Statement of Investments.

2. Revenue for the year totalled £51,349 : 1 : 9 which is the highest on record. It exceeded expenditure by £24,365 : 9 : 6. This surplus was only £615 : 2 : 9 less than the total interest credited to depositors accounts.

3. The total amount due to depositors fell by a net amount of £24,360 : 3 : 4. Withdrawals exceeded deposits by £49,340 : 15 : 7.

4. Investments held on behalf of the fund showed considerable appreciation when revalued at 30th June, 1963. The balance of the Investments Adjustment Account which records the effect of revaluation and trading in investments was £75,738 : 8 : 8.

5. The financial position of the bank has improved considerably (it was reported last year that solvency had been regained) and as the result of the improved market prices for investments together with the substantial surplus on the revenue/expenditure account the Bank reserves at 30th June, 1963, were put at £109,805 : 0 : 7. This figure is £2,720 : 4 : 2 over the reserve of 10% referred to in section 13 (2) of the Savings Bank Ordinance.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,
Colonial Treasurer.

2. After taking the prescribed Oaths, the Honourable Mrs. Marjorie Vinson assumed her seat on Council. The other new Members of Council, the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, the Honourable S. Miller, the Honourable L. G. Blake and the Honourable F. J. Cheek were sworn at an earlier joint Meeting of the Legislative and Executive Councils held on 2nd April, 1964.

3. The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on the 14th December, 1963, were confirmed.

4. In his opening address to the Legislature, His Excellency said —

Honourable Members of Legislative Council :

Before I leave the Colony next week, I am very glad to be able to preside at this, the first session of the new Legislative Council, because it gives me the opportunity to extend a very warm welcome to our new Members, Official, Nominated, and Elected. I have been fortunate in the past in the care and attention which Unofficial Members have given to the affairs of the Colony, often at considerable inconvenience to themselves. I am sure this tradition will continue, and I wish all Members every success in their undertakings and the satisfaction that comes from a job well done.

It is, too, a unique occasion, for we have, sitting in this Council, our first lady Elected Member. Ladies have in the past been nominated to Council, but this is the first time that a lady has been elected, and I would like to extend a special welcome to our Elected Member for the East Falkland. And while speaking of Elected and Nominated Members, I know that this is appreciated by Members of Council, but I think I should make it quite clear, that Nominated Members are in no sense "Government men", and are as independent in the expression of their views and the way they vote as are the Elected Members.

Once more I am able to begin my review of the affairs of the Colony with a piece of good news. I refer, of course, to the excellent price that was obtained at the March sales for Falkland Islands wool, at which 2,260 bales were sold for an average price of 67.35 pence a lb. This compares very favourably with the March sales of 1963, at which 2,519 bales were sold at an average price of 57.38 pence a lb., and more favourably still with the March sales in 1962, when 2,147 bales fetched an average price of 50.6 pence a lb. As usual, we can expect a certain fall-off at later sales, but the price received for the whole clip should show a good increase over that of last year.

It is pleasant to record a good wool price which, like a calm sunny day in the Falkland Islands, pleases everybody and, in particular, both Government and the farmers. Government can expect more revenue and I feel sure that farmers will take the opportunity of ploughing back a proportion of their profits into improvements on the farms. This may indeed reduce the amount of revenue which Government can expect, but it is certainly action which Government would favour. We are always conscious of our dependence on our one industry, and the more efficiently that industry is run and the more the quality of sheep and the land on which they feed is improved the sounder our position becomes. The pasture improvement efforts on two of our farms in the West Falkland are now showing results, and I hope that the good price we are receiving for our wool will encourage other farmers to follow their example and to continue subdivision as suggested by Mr. Wannop and which has already proved beneficial to some farms.

May I now turn to the activities of some of our Government Departments during the past year. Once again I shall take Education first, because I regard a sound education policy as of vital importance to the future of the Colony. I am encouraged to hear from the Superintendent of Education that academic progress during the past year has been most satisfactory, and that it has been proved that children are now sufficiently advanced to take the Moray House Eleven Plus tests at ten plus years of age. This is encouraging not only for the children but for the staff who set themselves a high standard and make a real effort at their tasks. Our children here in Stanley and at Darwin have the great advantage that classes are small and that they receive much closer supervision than is possible at schools in the United Kingdom, where classes are two and three times as large. But however hard children and teachers work, an educational system can never be all that it should be without the whole-hearted co-operation of parents. I remember once, when speaking in Stanley, I said that the educational system could be compared with a firm in which the names of the three partners were Parent, Teacher and Child. Let me emphasize this once again. Children will never make the most of their opportunities at school unless the parents take a real interest in what they are doing, and particularly in the Camp, where the visits of teachers are irregular, make sure that children get on with the work they have been set during the teacher's absence. I am very glad to hear that more and more parents are taking this most vital interest in their children's education.

At the Stanley School, 1964 introduces the first Commercial Year. Six senior pupils are studying shorthand, typing and book-keeping, and will be entered for the Royal Society of Arts examinations in each subject, which are held in December. There are regular openings in Stanley for boys and girls both in Government and in Commerce, and this Course should result in their becoming better qualified before taking on these jobs. The Department is not concentrating solely on people for white collar jobs, and on the technical side interest is now centred on woodwork and metalwork. It is hoped that in the not too distant future special courses for senior boys will be available in woodwork and metalwork at the Stanley School.

In the Camp, the Darwin School is now fully staffed with qualified teachers and I am sure would be the envy of some Education departments in the country districts of England or Scotland. It has been completely redecorated and the children work and live in an excellent atmosphere, for which much credit is due to the Headmaster and Mrs. Poltock and the Staff. I have spoken in the past about possible extensions to this School, but for the present at least it would appear that accommodation is adequate and that Government should not plan to extend it unless it is quite confident that the extra places will be filled. This possibility will always be kept in mind but the most immediate requirement is the provision of a Gymnasium where children can play when the weather is unsuitable for them to play outside. Whether or not the School is extended will depend on parents and whether they wish to keep their children at home or send them to Boarding School. Although Government is doing its best to improve education throughout the Camp, I think one of the most important things in children's education is that they should work and play with other children of their own age, and team games which do much for a child's character are not possible at most farm settlements. Incidentally, the education at Darwin is by no means cheap, and Honourable Members may be interested to hear that the cost of educating each child at the Darwin School for the financial year which ended on the 30th of June, 1963, was £342.

Camp Education continues as it has in the past, but with the very great difference that our staff of travelling teachers is better than it has been for many years and we continue to receive the most valuable assistance from our volunteers from the Voluntary Service Organization. The task of Camp Teachers is not an easy one, but with the reduction in the size of their beats they can see results much more readily than in the past, and all of them, both volunteers and contract officers, are doing a most valuable job.

Port Howard was re-opened as a full-time Settlement School last February, under the guidance of Mr. J. Pirrie, and I am sure that he will be anxious to emulate his predecessors there in producing a scholarship winner from the Camp, although I know there will be some pretty stiff competition from the Darwin School.

Radio has played a considerable part in education in isolated communities such as the outback of Australia, and it is planned to do some experiments with this form of teaching in this Colony. Four experimental domestic-type receivers have been ordered, and the firm supplying them showed such interest in the project that the radios and adaptations were obtained at less than £9 each. Initially the programme will be short and lively, and if the sets prove satisfactory more will be obtained.

In an isolated community such as ours the regular receipt of mails and the prompt dispatch and receipt of telegrams are most important. I am glad that at last I am able to say that in the interval between my last budget speech and this one there have been no violations of parcel mail dispatched to the Colony. Those who remember the constant trouble we had three or four years ago will, I am sure, welcome this news. But the receipt of mails is not yet entirely satisfactory, for although we can rely on receiving all letters which come in closed bags by air or by sea direct from England, the arrival of letters dispatched direct to the Falklands from other countries such as the United States, Canada, and the West Indies is much less satisfactory. Air communications nowadays are such that the delay in routing letters through London is negligible, but our difficulty is in getting Postal Administrations to send their letters that way. If people write "via London" on the envelope there is no guarantee that the letter will be so dispatched, for a postal clerk may feel he is better at geography than the letter writer and may send it via South America. Government is at present investigating the possibility of arranging with the General Post Office that letters can be sent in the same way as letters addressed to H. M. Ships, that is, care G.P.O. London. We have heard, however, that this form of address might cause confusion with ships of the Royal Navy, and we are investigating the possibility of some other address which would achieve the same objective.

As Honourable Members are aware, revenue from stamps is an item which should not be neglected, and during the coming financial year there will be a special issue to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary, on December 8, 1964, of the Battle of the Falkland Islands. This will consist of four stamps of the following values: 2½d. (H.M.S. Glasgow), 6d. (H.M.S. Kent), 1/- (H.M.S. Invincible) and 2/- (Battle Memorial). We are trying to find out the names of all officers and ratings now living who took part in the Battles of Coronel and the Falklands so we can send each of them a complimentary First Day Cover. It is anticipated that this issue should bring in about £12,000, for Honourable Members will remember that the Radio commemorative issue, which I would think was considerably less attractive, produced just on £10,000. Our Bird issue continues to do well, and it is flattering that other countries in the Commonwealth have followed our lead in depicting birds on their stamps. While definitive issues, that is, issues like the Birds of the Falklands, should run for at least seven years or longer, there is no objection to the issue every year or so of a low value set to commemorate some special event. The trouble in a small place like this is that there are not all that many events to commemorate, but if Honourable Members or their constituents can put forward any bright ideas, I am sure that Government would be very ready to consider them.

The installation of the Creed automatic morse equipment in the Post Office for the transmission and reception of telegrams between the Post Office and the Wireless Station, and the employment of a telegraph messenger, have greatly speeded up the dispatch and delivery of telegrams. A telegram to London, handed in before 10 o'clock in the morning, or 11 o'clock Stanley time in the summer, is delivered to London that afternoon, and a reply is possible the same evening. On the old system, taking into consideration the difference in Stanley and London time, similar telegrams were not delivered in London until the following day.

It may not be very long before we may have to consider seriously the conversion of our present morse system to telex. This means that instead of messages being tapped out in morse, they are typed and appear as a message at the other end. At the moment, Venezuela, Columbia, Chile and Uruguay are still on the morse system. We share the same London transmitter according to an agreed schedule, but when these South American countries convert to telex we shall have to consider seriously the question of following suit, for, although I am sure the G.P.O. would find a way to maintain our present morse circuit, and indeed they have said they would do so, it would be unreasonable to expect them to continue to run such a circuit indefinitely for a negligible revenue return.

The Radio Telephone service has missed for some time the familiar voice of Mr. S. R. Summers, who had been in indifferent health for some time and had to retire last July. Syd was really the father of this service and did a most excellent public relations job in keeping Stanley and the Camp together. One of my officers, who is no longer in the Service, once expressed the view that it was a terrible thing that there was no privacy in messages sent over the R/T and that everyone knew everyone else's business or ailments, and that we should seriously consider installing some sort of scrambler system. I must admit that I was completely opposed to any such suggestion, for the fact that it is known that everyone listens to the R/T does much to keep up community spirit and to keep Stanley and the Camp together. I feel differently about people who listen in to telephone conversations, for not only is this an invasion of privacy but it makes it difficult to hear what the person on the other end of the line is saying. I would like on behalf of all of us to wish Mr. Summers every happiness in his retirement, and to congratulate Miss Edith McMullen on proving herself such an excellent substitute for him.

We hope that the R/T system will be considerably improved by the erection of a new aerial system in the Sapper Hill area, which should eliminate the interference from various electrical appliances, and the noise which Syd used to describe as "frying chops" which at times blots out reception from the Camp. The masts have already been erected and the feeder lines should be completed before long; and this, with the new receiver which was bought last year, should go a long way to improve the efficiency of the Stanley R/T station.

The Broadcasting Station continues to give excellent service, and Honourable Members may have noticed in the intervals between the playing of "Just for Kicks" there have been rather more live programmes than in the past. I am sure that this will continue, and we appreciate the efforts of the staff in putting on programmes of general interest, particularly sporting programmes, at times outside regular broadcasting hours. During the forthcoming winter I am sure those interested in cricket will have much enjoyment in listening to the Test Matches against Australia. "The Archers" continue to be as popular as ever, and newcomers to the Colony, who have had the advantage of hearing rather more recent editions, should all be warned before arrival not to give away what has happened.

From communications by post and radio to communications by air and by sea. The Air Department has had a most successful year, unmarred by unserviceability or accident, the two aircraft being available for service throughout the period except when each was withdrawn in turn to undergo overhaul for the renewal of the certificate of airworthiness. To give some figures: 2,571 passengers were carried. We must be the only country in the world where the number of passengers carried in a year exceeds the population; but this is also due to our lack of roads — a subject which I shall mention later. Freight carried amounted to almost 6,000 lbs. and excess luggage to almost 8,000 lbs. 113 medical patients were brought into Stanley. 766 hours were flown and 1,558 landings were made. The overhead travelling hoist which has now been installed in the Hangar has proved of great value, and has improved the safety factor in the dismantling and re-assembly of the aircraft by at least one hundred per cent. I would like to congratulate the staff of the Air Department on this most successful year's operations.

On communications by sea, the "Philomel" had quite a good year in spite of many troubles. The distance steamed was 5,845 miles. It is hoped that the new shoe and attachments which were made from non-ferrous metals by Mr. Thorsen and fitted by the diving team from H.M.S. Protector will do much to stop the troubles which we have had in the stern assembly for so long. Government is most grateful to the Royal Navy for its readiness to help us in every way to keep "Philomel" in commission, but how long a life she has ahead of her is a debatable point and Honourable Members will be asked at this session to consider the provision of funds for a replacement.

Mr. Grierson, the Collector of Customs and Harbour Master, among whose duties is the supervision of the "Philomel" operations, was away on vacation leave and sick leave from the 6th of May to the 23rd of December. We were all very pleased to see him looking so well, although perhaps a little thinner, on his return, and delighted that he has made a complete recovery.

And now something about Roads.

Mr. O'Reilly's report, additional copies of which took rather a long time to get here, and which have been distributed to Members of Council and Camp Managers, revealed that to construct a network of roads connecting the main settlements of the East and West Falkland, some 400 miles of gravel road, would cost between 1½ and 2 million pounds, and the recurrent costs of maintenance would be between £20,000 and £30,000 a year. There are, therefore, two things to be considered, — first, the capital cost, and secondly the maintenance cost. I am afraid, Honourable Members, we would be under a delusion if we think that we could obtain a free grant for the capital cost from Her Majesty's Government. Free grants from Colonial Development funds are geared very much to the number of people that such grants are expected to benefit, and the provision of 1½ million pounds for roads would amount to £703 per head of our population. We might expect some assistance, certainly, but I think there is little doubt we would be expected to realise all our reserves, and to raise a loan, the interest and sinking fund on which would have to be met from revenue. Then we would also have to meet the annual cost of maintenance, and to import labour to do the work. I think there would be no prospect of our tackling this without a very considerable increase in taxation. You see the trouble here is that roads would be a social amenity; they are not an economic necessity. On my way to England I shall be visiting a Colony where an all-weather road system was begun some fifteen years ago and where I should think that by now over a million pounds has been spent. But that is a place where the opening of roads brought new areas of land into cultivation for the production of such crops as bananas, where all produce had to be moved by road to the ports, and where the provision of roads was really an economic necessity for the 60,000 inhabitants. That, I fear, is not the case in the Falklands.

We have, however, no fewer than 875 registered motor vehicles in the Colony — I should think more per head than any country in the world, including the United States — and we should certainly consider whether something cannot be done to make travel easier by the provision of bridges and improvements to the worst places on the tracks. One of our difficulties here is that farmers who are themselves using more and more wheeled vehicles could do much to improve camp tracks but are, understandably, reluctant to do so if the tracks get chewed to pieces by vehicles travelling over them in the wet months of the winter. Some managers have spoken to me about this. One would naturally feel reluctant to take any action which would deprive people of the pleasure they get from their Rovers and Jeeps, but people would perhaps think it worth while to have a close season on travel in the Camp by four wheel vehicles during the winter, except, of course, for the doctor, if they could be assured of much more pleasant travelling during the long days of the summer. This is something I commend to you for consideration.

While still on the subject of motor vehicles, I am very glad to be able to report that there was a considerable reduction in the number of traffic accidents in 1963 as compared with 1962 and 1961. Only 5 traffic accidents were reported, as against 14 in 1962 and 10 in 1961, in spite of the increase in the number of vehicles on the road in Stanley. I wish I could report that there were no convictions for being drunk in charge of a motor vehicle, but there were, however, only 2 convictions as compared with 5 in 1962. There have been no convictions for this offence so far in 1964, and I hope that at the end of the year the Superintendent of Police will be able to report a white wash. It does seem that people are driving with more care and attention than in the past, and are more conscious of the number of children riding bicycles on the roads. Their instruction in road safety and traffic regulations at the School continues.

Of other offences, drunkenness continues to be a real social problem. I am glad to say that the Superintendent of Police reports that through the co-operation of publicans, drunkenness in Bars has noticeably reduced. The Black List, as we call it, serves a most useful purpose and there is no social stigma attached to being on it. But the real villains are the people who supply liquor to prohibited persons at profiteering prices, and if such people are caught they can expect a severe sentence.

Our small Police Force has done very well, and while, of course, their duty is to preserve law and order, their prime concern is to prevent the commission of crimes and not to bring people to court. They work long hours and deserve full co-operation from the public. Police Sergeant J. D. Williams will be retiring on pension at the end of August after 18 years of excellent service. He will be succeeded by Senior Constable Shackel. Police Constable Peck is now attending a Basic Training Course of 13 weeks duration at the Metropolitan Police Training School at Hendon, and this will be followed by a 4 weeks attachment to a County Constabulary before he returns to the Colony.

Although fire-fighting is not a direct Police responsibility, they are often either the first to see or to receive reports of fires, and are naturally concerned in investigating how fires start. And here, Honourable Members, I would like to sound a note of warning. There were three major fires in Stanley during 1963, either of which could have caused more damage or loss of life than in fact happened. I have had the pleasure of presenting a Certificate from the Society for the Protection of Life from Fire to Mr. Frederick Whitney for his distinguished conduct in the rescue of life at one of these fires. If a fire got away in a high wind, considerable damage could be done in the town and many houses could be destroyed. Some fires can happen due to causes which one cannot foresee, such as a short circuit in a car's electrical system, but others are often the direct results of carelessness. I think throughout this Colony, and not only in Stanley, for we remember the fire in the wool shed at Port Stephens in 1962 and the recent disastrous fire at Goose Green, we need to be much more conscious of fire risk. Most people here smoke, and it is a good thing, I think, that most roll their own instead of smoking tailor-mades. But yet I must confess to some alarm when I see people filling up the tank of a Land Rover while smoking a cigarette, and I have noticed people in small boats and on jetties smoking within a few feet of the engine of the plane. This is a very real danger, and apart from the risk to pilots and passengers, it would be, to put it mildly, a pity if the Colony had to spend £30,000 on a new Beaver merely due to someone's carelessness or lack of thought.

The key to fire control in a town is for the fire-fighting appliance to get to the scene of the fire at the very earliest possible moment, and the new Land Rover Fire Engine which we have should be a considerable help in this. It has already been called out to 11 chimney fires.

I am glad to say that the Police had only occasion to bring one criminal case before the Supreme Court during the year; but nevertheless our Legal Department had plenty to do in the way of routine work, and Mr. Rex Browning carried on ably during the absence of the Registrar who, since his return, has had numerous Bills and Regulations to draft. Much time is taken up with giving advice to the general public on various points of law, and in the absence of any practising solicitors in the Colony I am sure that this rather unusual work for a Government Department is appreciated.

The Medical Department has had a busy year. The milder winter brought with it a respiratory virus infection which affected many people both in Stanley and the Camp. 168 patients were admitted to hospital, and 19 major and 9 minor operations were performed. We are still experiencing considerable difficulty in recruiting a Doctor for the East Falkland, and we were grateful for the services of Dr. Corner of the British Antarctic Survey, who agreed to leave Britain before the main expedition to help us out. We now have Dr. Maclean there but unfortunately he is due to leave the Colony towards the end of the year.

On the Dental side, it is encouraging to hear that people in the Camp are taking very much more interest in their children's teeth than has been the case in the past, and practically all children have been examined in the settlements visited by the Dentist. It seems that in this, the Camp is going ahead of Stanley, but I hope this is only a temporary phase. Mr. Hasenhoeller, who had been Dental Technician here for ten years, had to leave the service on medical grounds, and he was replaced by Mr. Steel who, I am sorry to say, has since left us for domestic reasons.

The Hospital is better staffed than for some time, for Miss Halliday and Mrs. Stewart, both Nursing Sisters, took up their duties at the end of December. In all my colonial experience I have not seen a better equipped hospital nor a more devoted staff.

During the winter the Hospital must be one of the most pleasantly warm buildings in Stanley, and the oil heating installed by the Power & Electrical Department has proved to be most successful. When giving me notes for this speech, the Superintendent of Power & Electricity wrote "There are no real problems in the Department, technical or otherwise". Like the Hospital, the Power Station is the best I have seen in a Colony. During the year, the output from the Power Station increased by 7.5 per cent over 1962, but the reserve capacity is adequate to meet all normal increases. New distribution lines were erected in areas where the service had previously been poor, and street lighting was further improved. The overall general condition of the distribution system is considered satisfactory, but there are still minor lines which are earmarked for renewal.

The Public Works Department concentrated on maintenance throughout the year, and the major works undertaken were the erection of the two 1,500 ton oil tanks by Mr. Thorsen and Mr. Amundsen from South Georgia, assisted by P.W.D. labour, with which the welders expressed themselves as being very satisfied. The construction of the base for the new high level water tank was completed and the erection of the 156,000 gallon water tank is proceeding. The manager's house at Ajax Bay was dismantled and has been erected in Stanley as two houses.

During the forthcoming year Government hopes to proceed with a plan to erect new houses in Stanley with assistance from C. D. & W. funds, thus making more married accommodation available for Government employees. It is planned that these houses should be built on contract, once the funds have been made available, for the regular staff of the Department is unable to take on a major task such as this, unless it were to abandon maintenance work. I am sure this would be unwise, for we have suffered too much in the past from poor maintenance, and if maintenance is neglected it becomes a very much more expensive process in the long run. Maintenance now involves some major repair work, but there should be less of this in the future once all properties have been thoroughly overhauled, and credit is due to the Superintendent of Public Works for his insistence on proper standards of maintenance.

Lack of staff, too, is responsible for the fact that there has been virtually no work on the Stanley roads, except in the way of minor repairs, during this summer; but it is proposed that work on the roads should begin in the spring by the employment of a contractor, and the road past Hodson's Villas will be the first priority. Redecoration and repairs to the interior of Government property will continue during the winter months, and the quality of the work produced by the painting gang is of a very high standard.

Last January a further consignment of salmon ova, again most kindly presented by the Lancashire River Board, was received in the "Darwin". I am afraid that I have to leave the Colony without catching the first grilse — that is, a maiden salmon returning for the first time from the sea — but it is possible that they may appear next year. I understand that the introduction of salmon has been regarded with apprehension by some trout fishermen, but there is no need for this. Salmon do not feed on other fish in fresh water, and they take a fly or a spinner as an irritant rather than something which they think is good to eat. There need be no fear, therefore, that the salmon will affect the trout in the same way that the imported trout have affected our local trout. The trout is a great predator and our main difficulty in getting salmon established will be for enough of them to get down the rivers and go to sea without being eaten by the brown trout.

While on the subject of fishing, Honourable Members, I think that with the ever increasing interest in this most pleasant pastime it is important that fishermen should remember that they are allowed to fish in the Camp through the co-operation of the landowners, and that the fish in a river are just as much the property of the farm as the sheep which graze in the Camp. It is up to fishermen, who go out to the rivers from Stanley and from Camp settlements, not to leave the banks strewn with empty beer cans and broken bottles, and not to throw them into the river, and to see that landowners have no complaints about this sort of thing. Nor should they forget to seek permission before going out to fish. I hope that before next season an Angling Club will be formed which will be able to lease the fishing rights on one or two rivers.

Well, Honourable Members, although I have been speaking for a long time I have by no means dealt with all the activities of our various Departments; but once again — and I fear for the last time — I would like to thank the staff of all Departments for their services during the year, and I am sure that their aim will continue to be to give the best service they possibly can to the people of this Colony.

Later in this session the Colonial Treasurer will be addressing you on the Estimates for the coming year, and I do not propose to comment on them at any length. But I can say that we are now beginning to see results from our new financial policy in which we substituted a higher rate of Companies and Profits tax for our former system of an export duty on wool. With the good price we received last year and are receiving this year it is anticipated that Ordinary Revenue will increase in 1964/65 to almost £370,000, compared with £295,000 for 1963/64. Ordinary Expenditure of £334,000 is expected for 1964/65, compared with £324,000 for last year. The increase is mainly due to normal increments of salaries and the filling of posts that the poorer salaries we paid in the past failed to fill. We must be always conscious of the fact that in order to get posts filled in the Falklands we must pay the market price, and possibly a bit more, to get people to leave their homes, and I think that we have been perhaps somewhat slow and reluctant to realise this fact in the past.

Special Expenditure for the forthcoming year is estimated at £45,000 and the deficit at the end of the year at just under £10,000. We are inclined to be somewhat conservative in our estimates of Revenue, and I think that the Budget which the Colonial Treasurer will present to you is to all intents and purposes a balanced one. While we must always remain conscious of the substantial income we receive as interest on our Reserves — it will amount to almost £24,000 next year — I think we must also be aware of the danger of having too much the outlook of Mr. Micawber in our financial policy. Our Reserves of £423,000 look well on paper, but in another ten years' time those £423,000 may only purchase £200,000 worth of goods and services. If, therefore, Honourable Members are convinced that the purchase of something such as, for instance, a new vessel to replace the "Philomel" is worth doing, I suggest it is a wiser policy to go ahead with this now, rather than to put it off for another year or two.

And what of the outlook for the future? It would seem that certainly in their present stage of development man-made fibres will not replace wool, and that although we are weak in depending on our wool industry alone, there is no need to regard the future with despondency, and it seems clear that this Colony will continue to be self supporting certainly for some years to come.

But what, you may ask, IS the future of the Colony? Almost every day it seems some former Colony becomes independent, and what will the position be when we are one of the very few Colonies left? I believe the answer to this is that we are unique in being a Colony in the oldest sense of the word, and that is, a settlement of people from the Mother Country in a distant part of the world. Over the past 130 years the Falkland Islands have been settled and developed by people from the United Kingdom with a few from other parts of Europe. There is no more loyal Colony than this, and far from wishing to sever its links with the United Kingdom, I believe the wish of its people is that, while continuing to retain the right to run their own system of Government, those links should be drawn closer. How this may best be achieved is, of course, a matter for much thought and deliberation, but I have no doubt we can look to the future with confidence.

5. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary laid the following papers on the Table —

Medical Report 1963, Police Report 1963, Financial Report 1962/63, Report on the Working of the Government Savings Bank year 1962/63, Report on the Working of the Government Employees' Provident Fund year 1962/63, Report on the Working of the Note Security Fund year 1962/63, Report on the Working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund year 1962/63, Copies of Subsidiary Legislation made or approved by the Governor in Executive Council since May, 1963.

6. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer, seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, moved the adoption of the following Resolution —

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period June, 1963, to December, 1963, be adopted".

The Resolution was adopted.

7. Moving the adoption of the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution, 1964, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency.

The new taxation policy in which a Profits Tax was introduced and the Export Duty on farm products abolished is now well established. The requirement to pay Export Duty, however, remains in the statute book. This was a deliberate part of the policy as it afforded a safeguard for the revenue in the event of the new arrangement being found to be unsatisfactory. The duty has not, of course, been imposed since the introduction of the Profits Tax.

We must now remove all references to Export Duty from our laws and to do this I beg to move that the following Resolution be adopted —

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance, it is hereby resolved by the Legislative Council as follows —

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution, 1964.

2. Paragraph 3 of the Customs Order is amended —

- (a) by deleting the words and figures from 'Commencing with the 1960/61 season at the following ad valorem rates' to the words and figures 'Reaches 80d. and above 5%';
- (b) by deleting the words 'On Tallow, Hides and Skins, two and a half per centum of the selling price of such goods.'

3. The above amendment shall not apply to the Dependencies.

4. The Schedule to the Customs Order is hereby revoked."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Resolution was adopted.

8. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer, introduced the Bill entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the service of the year 1964-65", saying —

"Your Excellency.

The Estimates propose Government expenditure totalling £384,492 which shows little change from what was proposed for the current year. Ordinary Expenditure is put at £334,583 compared with £338,880 for the current year. Special Expenditure is put at £44,909 compared with £41,176 for the current year. There is, however, one particular point on which the estimates differ from those of 1963/64 and that is that revenue is expected to equal (to all intents and purposes) expenditure. In other words there is a balanced budget.

On that pleasant note let us review the position of the current year in the light of ten months experience. We reckoned on spending £385,000 but now think the figure will be about £353,000 or £32,000 less than the original estimate. We expected to receive £301,000 but now consider £296,000 a more accurate figure. We expected a deficit of £85,000 but now consider that the contribution from reserves will not exceed £58,000. Financially speaking these are improvements but we should note carefully that they arise from our failure to do things we planned to do or to recruit staff we need, and against the financial gain we should consider the retarded progress or lack of achievement that these failures cause.

The Colony is, nevertheless, financially strong and embarks upon the financial year 1964/65 with reserves totalling not less than £423,000. We expect no significant change in this figure during the next twelve months.

That the 1964/65 budget is a balanced one results from the improved price obtained for the Colony's 1962/63 wool clip together with the higher than usual weight of the clip. We expect to receive £170,000 in Companies and Profits tax compared with the estimate of £108,000 in the current year. Smaller contributions are made by our other "industry" - the selling of stamps - and by an increased transfer from the Currency Note Income Account.

In the proposals for 1964/65 there is provision for preliminary expenditure of £1,000 on a replacement for the 'Philomel', the total cost of which is expected to be £60,000. School buildings for Stanley and the Camp are estimated to cost £7,300, and a new carpenters' shop for the Public Works Department £7,000. The power plant at Darwin School, although still in serviceable condition, is now inadequate for the demands made upon it. Provision is made for a new plant and building at a total cost of £4,070. Provision is also made for jobs in progress to be continued and completed. These include the high level water tank and the laying of a 6" pipe line from the pumping jetty to the new oil tanks. Finally there is provision for the purchasing of the Automatic Typesetting Equipment at an increased figure of £6,000. Approval was given for this purchase in the 1963/64 estimates when the cost was put at £4,200.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary supported by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer then moved that the Bill and Draft Estimates be referred to a Select Committee of the House. The motion was carried and the President appointed a Select Committee consisting of the Colonial Secretary, the Colonial Treasurer and all Unofficial Members of Council.

Council then adjourned.

Resuming at 11.0 a.m. on Wednesday, 6th May, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer reported that the Select Committee had considered the Draft Estimates and recommended the following amendments—

HEAD II. AGRICULTURE. Item 12. Fencing, be decreased from £1,000 to £500.

HEAD XIII. POSTS & TELECOMMUNICATIONS. Item 12. Maintenance of W/T Station, Stanley, be increased from £1,925 to £2,000. Item 22. Programme Secretary, be increased from £276 to £300.

HEAD XVII. SECRETARIAT & TREASURY.

Item 11. Heat and Light be increased from £2,200 to £2,500.

HEAD XX. SPECIAL EXPENDITURE. Item 3. Prefabricated Buildings, be increased from £7,300 to £7,990. Item 6. Generating Plant and Engine House, Darwin Boarding School, be decreased from £4,070 to £3,070.

In the Committee stage Clause 1 of the Bill was agreed to and consideration of Clause 2 was deferred until after consideration of the Schedule.

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill, subject to the following amendments—

Head	Delete	Insert
II AGRICULTURE	5,535	5,035
XIII POSTS & TELECOMMUNICATIONS	53,807	53,906
XVII SECRETARIAT & TREASURY ...	24,970	25,270
Total Ordinary Expenditure	334,583	334,482
XX SPECIAL EXPENDITURE ...	44,909	44,599
Total Expenditure ...	384,492	384,081

It was agreed that the Schedule, as amended, should stand part of the Bill and that Clause 2 should likewise stand part of the Bill subject to the following amendments—

That the words and figures "£384,492" be deleted and the words and figures "£384,081" be substituted therefor.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

9. Explaining the second reading of the Income Tax (Amendment) Ordinance, 1963 which had been deferred at a previous Meeting of the Legislature, the Honourable the Colonial Secretary said—

"Your Excellency.

At the last Meeting of the Legislature the then Honourable Elected Member for the East Falkland opposed the enactment of the amendment in respect of section 19 of the principal Ordinance. That section reads 'in ascertaining the chargeable income of Companies registered in the Colony, the majority of the shares being held by individuals who are resident in the Colony, there shall be allowed a deduction of 12½% in respect to the amount of such income.' It was introduced into the original Ordinance in 1939 as a measure of encouragement for Company shareholders to live in the Colony and it is a section of the Tax Laws which is not found in the Legislation of any other Colony. The Government's case at the time was, that this concession was a means of rewarding people who took up residence in the Colony, but it is a section which in the opinion of Government leaves much to be desired. If we reduce Income Tax as a reward for living here it would appear that we should reduce it for all people and not just for a few. All residents have an equal claim. Government feels it is wrong to single out a few shareholders of locally registered Companies: as most of which have shares which are not easily available to the public. The section was introduced with the sheep farming industry in mind and probably at a time when the absentee landlord was the subject of much political discussion. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that all small businessmen in the Colony might take the opportunity to forming themselves into Companies thus qualifying for this tax reduction. There are still a number of sheep farms which could qualify by incorporation and the Colony Revenue is in no state to stand reduction by tax concessions to minority groups. After discussion in the Select Committee at the last Legislature, it was agreed that this matter should be referred back to the Council as a whole. It is now the intention of Government to proceed with this matter and I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time."

The Honourable J. Bound seconded the motion.

The Honourable G. C. R. Bonner replied —

"Your Excellency.

In December I opposed this measure. My main reason for so doing was that this measure was a small concession to some members of our sheep farming industry and that no further redistribution of the concession was envisaged in the amendment. It was the majority opinion among the Unofficial Members of the Council, at that time, that any concessions to the taxpayer in the main Ordinance should be jealously guarded. Since December I have had further expressions of support for my opposition from private individuals in the Colony. I also could see no reason why if it was such a 'bad' clause it had not been abolished in 1961.

Since December I have seen no reason to alter my views as expressed then. The sheepfarming industry is the one sure foundation of our economy; because of a resurgence of world wool prices, we have a balanced Budget, and I feel that any measures benefiting any members of this industry should be preserved.

I do not know the extent of my support in this House and I have no doubt that Government will continue to press for this amendment, which will probably be approved. However, I must be permitted to register my disapproval of the amendment and would be grateful if the Clerk would record this accordingly."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary replied —

"Your Excellency.

The Honourable Nominated Member has made his point and it does not appear that he is going to press it very strongly: however I must state on behalf of Government that we are not trying to be unreasonable. It cannot be argued that there can be no change. This is rather like saying Queen Victoria established a fashion for whalebone corsets, therefore we must all wear them today; but look at the ladies, they don't wear them today! In other words we live in a world of change and Legislation must change as well. It is no good saying 'why wasn't it abolished in 1961?' The answer is we had not really woken up to this one: but we are awake to it now.

I am not going to keep this Council a long time: I'm not going to read out a list of points: but there is one thing I would like to draw to your attention, Sir, and that is International Legislation. We are a contracting party to International Agreements and part of the Agreement on taxation reads as follows — "The Nationals of one contracting party shall not be subjected in the Territory of the other contracting party to any taxation or any requirement connected therewith, higher or more burdensome than the taxation of the connected requirements of which the National or the latter party are subjected." In simple language this means: if we bring in people from outside, and we encourage companies to come here we must in all equity give them the same concessions as are given to locals. We cannot give them more burdensome taxation, and we must level out and remove this discriminatory clause to bring us into a common line for all people whoever they are."

The motion for the second reading was carried by a majority vote and the Bill was read a second time.

In Committee the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved that clause 2 should stand part of the Bill and that clause 1 be amended by deleting the figures "1963" and inserting therefor the figures "1964" and by inserting the word and figure "No. 3" after the word "amendment" in the Short title. The Honourable J. Bound seconded and the Bill passed through the committee stage without further amendment.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

10. Explaining the Supplementary Appropriation (1962-63) Ordinance, 1964, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer said —

"Your Excellency.

When one has to introduce this Bill, which has been described as a hardy annual, for too many years in succession one is inclined to run short of new ways in which to explain its purpose. It is in fact the work of the Standing Finance Committee summarised in the briefest possible manner.

The Schedule to the Bill gives references to six Heads of Expenditure on which spending has exceeded the amounts approved in the Appropriation Ordinance for 1962-63. The details have been examined in Standing Finance Committee and the additional spending approved. The reports of the Committee are laid on the table in this Council from time to time.

The Bill is a formality, its purpose likewise. I beg to move the first reading."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded the motion and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee. It was then read a third time and passed.

11. The Mining (Amendment) Ordinance, 1964 was introduced by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary —

“Your Excellency.

Honourable Members are well aware that in the southern parts of South America, Patagonia, Tierra del Fuego oil has been discovered and geologists have reported that the strata of these islands is not dissimilar to the strata of Patagonia where oil has been found. This does not mean that we have oil; but it does mean that this is a good place to prospect for it. If we want oil companies to come here and prospect (and we already have enquiries from major companies) then we must be in a position to control them. The object of the Bill which I am presenting is to control. It is limited in its application to Crown land or land leased from the Crown. We already have a mining Ordinance, but it is an unsatisfactory one. It fails to define fully what we mean by mineral oil, and it also fails to define our territorial claims and responsibility. We have therefore taken the opportunity to put it right.

We propose that section 3 of the principal Ordinance be repealed and replaced with ‘this Ordinance is to apply only to alienated Crown lands including the sea bed and subsoils beneath the territorial waters and on the continental shelf of the Colony, and to lands the subject of existing Crown grant or Crown lease the effect of which is to reserve minerals to the Crown’. This will make it quite clear that it is Crown land involved.

We also propose to replace section 12 of the principal Ordinance and to lay down quite clearly what powers the Governor in Council may have in controlling any exploitation company (should they appear on the local scene) and we have laid down in this draft a great number of matters on which the Governor in Council may make regulations. A formidable list I regret to say: but this is modern and proper drafting. In the old Ordinance it merely says that the Governor in Council has power to make Regulations. In other words the Governor could in theory do pretty well what he liked, but these amendments lay down quite clearly what the Governor in Council may do and what he may not do. This is much better legal drafting than in the old Ordinance.

This amending Ordinance is based upon a model which has been provided by the legal advisers in London: suitably amended to suit our local situation and conditions. It is a simple one and I see nothing terribly difficult or contentious in it, and I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.”

The Honourable H. Bennett seconded the motion and the Bill was read a first time.

During the second reading the Honourable S. Miller opened the debate saying —

“Your Excellency, Honourable Members.

I am not very happy about this Mining Ordinance and the Honourable the Colonial Secretary has just told us that it is based upon an overseas or general Commonwealth standard wording — in fact he calls it a formidable list and so it is, but four out of the six unofficial members around this table have only seen the two sheets of draft Ordinance which is a very small precis and cuts out quite a lot. Because they have not been on Executive Council they haven’t seen the main bulk which is quite a wad of paper — the formidable lists the Colonial Secretary referred to — and I think it is quite wrong for this Council to pass a Bill now most of which they haven’t seen or been able to see.

I have no objection to the Bill — of course it has got to go through but I do not think we can possibly pass it today: I think it is wrong to do so. Honourable Members are being asked to pass all that formidable bundle that they have not had a chance to see and there is one clause in this — section 13 of the Mining Lease — which they have not seen and which says that the Lessee is required to furnish the Governor with a proof that agreement has been made with the owner of the land. That may be alright as far as it goes, but I can foresee that the Lessee is going to have quite a considerable argument with the owner of the land as to its value and that would mean arbitration, and presumably arbitration in Britain.

And I suppose arbitration in Britain means that there they will have to look up land values in the Falklands. They will probably find that the Colony carries about one sheep to five acres and a sheep is only worth a few shillings, so we are not going to get very satisfactory arbitration.

I am only drawing attention to the possibilities of this. But the fact is that if oil is explored or found, besides the actual area where the exploring is done, the lessee will probably have to travel over quite a lot of other good country and they are likely to wreck this as far as sheepfarming is concerned and it is very difficult to see when you look through that thick wad of regulations whether the owner is going to get satisfactory compensation or whether in fact he is going to get any at all.

Therefore I beg to move that Council is not in a position to pass this Bill now, because they have not had a chance to read it properly.”

The Honourable L. G. Blake: “Your Excellency. The Honourable Elected Member for the West Falkland has just stated that a certain amount of damage in oil exploration will be done to the land and the sheep farming industry. There will also be a certain amount of disturbance with regard to Mining Settlements, with mining gangs about the Colony. During my recent visits to Patagonia I have seen a certain amount of oil exploration and oil mining, and it seems to be the general practice, particularly with a State owned company. (It is possible that with a private company this practice may be less troublesome) of driving on compass bearings for the purpose of exploration straight across country and cutting fences just as you go. Having discovered the oil, they run off a certain quantity for testing and you get a quantity of oil stained fleeces. Each sheep as it comes in which is oil stained will stain a second sheep that rubs beside it and I feel that from the Bill, as we have seen it at the moment, it provides inadequate protection to the major industry of this Colony and I could not support it in its present form.”

Honourable G. C. R. Bonner: “Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I should like to associate myself entirely, with the remarks of the Honourable Elected Member and the West Falkland Honourable Nominated Member. It is certainly not clear to me at all what the position of the private land owner is under this Ordinance. I would be very grateful if the Honourable the Colonial Secretary would briefly explain how the rights of the owners of freehold land are to be safeguarded and what jurisdiction the landowner has over these preliminary investigations. Company X wants to prospect over Y’s land, can he object? Can Y, the owner of the land object to his land being exploited, and furthermore if oil or some other mineral was found would he have any royalties or compensation? As a sheep farm Manager, I note the Honourable Mr. Blake's remarks very much as regards to Patagonia. With all due respect to the march of progress I would be very loathe to see the same things happening here. Our limited labour forces and high maintenance costs, this sort of thing would not lead to easy relations between any prospecting company and the land owners, especially when the land owners stand to gain little from the venture. Please don't think Sir, that I am opposed to this measure; I think it would be an excellent thing if oil or some other minerals were found here, so that we may get our road system yet, but I do think that with the amount of free-hold land there is in this Colony, we should be absolutely clear on the position of the private land owner before we give our approval of this Bill."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary : "We are mixing up two things : a Bill and Regulations. All that we are presenting to this Council today is a Bill to allow us to make Regulations. It is quite obvious that the Honourable Members opposite do not understand the difference between a Bill and Regulations. Firstly we have to have a law to give us powers. Without a law we cannot move. All I am asking today is that we provide the law, (the machinery to allow us to move) and no more. We must define our area of sovereignty, we must define Crown lands and Crown rights; and lay down what Regulations His Excellency in Council may make. These Regulations have not yet been made.

If Honourable Members will look at the Bill in front of them at the replacement for the original Section 12 of the principal Ordinance, they will see quite clearly what Regulations the Governor in Council, may make. The Bill does not say we are making them at this very moment: it gives authority for the future. All I am asking is for authority to begin negotiating with oil companies. The price of oil in the world today and the wealth that oil can bring in, is something which a small Colony of this size cannot ignore. We would look extremely foolish if we lost our chance.

Now we come to the second step; the Regulations which the Governor in Council is empowered to make. There they are; an enormous wad of them all in highly technical language; and about things which are hard to understand. We are not going to push these through. It is not the intention of Government to produce a set of Regulations which no one will see (far from it). I can assure you, that no Governor; our present Governor; or any future Governor of this Colony, would put his signature to them without prior discussion. There is no objection to these Regulations being discussed with representatives of the farmers before they are approved. Then we will all know where we stand.

The Honourable Elected Member for the West Falkland came into my office the other day, and raised one or two points, and valid points they are too. I have given him my assurance that we will look at them and, indeed, amend the draft Regulations as they stand at this moment. I am prepared to go through these Regulations word by word, comma by comma, with representatives of the farming community, before Government makes any final move. We have companies awaiting our word at this moment, and I want to be able to write to them and say we can begin negotiations. I would beg of the Honourable Members opposite to withdraw their opposition to this Bill. I agree with them that to issue Regulations they have not seen, nor heard of, and which they do not understand is wrong. We can meet their objections in further discussion. I would now like to refer to some of the points made by Honourable Members. We were quoted the example of Patagonia. I am quite sure we can exercise rather more control than is being done in Patagonia. We are bound by English law on Arbitration. That is quite simple. In effect it says that when contracting parties cannot agree the Courts may appoint arbitrators. This is easy enough to understand but I agree with the Honourable Member for the West Falkland that this section of the Regulations should be made more clear. I assure this House that we will guard the farmers and their interests, but if oil is here, and exploration companies want to come here we should do all we can to encourage them. Again I beg Honourable Members to withdraw their opposition to this Bill. I repeat that the Ordinance only enables us to make Regulations. The Regulations have not yet been made, and they will not be made until full and proper consultation with all interested parties has taken place."

Honourable S. Miller : "Your Excellency, Honourable Members. Of course we have got to have a Mining Bill and I will thank the Honourable the Colonial Secretary for his reassurance and guarantee of looking after owners' interests, but I think he is wrong in pressing this Bill through by saying that we must hurry to have the Ordinance complete as oil exploration companies are on the doorstep and before proceeding they must be able to sign a proper lease. The wording of this lease is in this big wad of paper and in the event of a representative coming down next "Darwin", if Council passes this Bill mostly unseen, that representative may also be in a hurry, and in arranging a lease he will be agreeing with Government over regulations which most of this Council has not yet seen. I think this is fundamentally wrong. I do not wish to oppose this Bill going through eventually, or as soon as possible, but it has been presented in an incomplete manner."

President : "I think the point is as the Honourable the Colonial Secretary said, this is merely to give powers which will be taken at a later date in the making of Regulations. Indeed we already have a Mining Ordinance, but it is in no form for Government to be able to deal with this very complicated matter of oil exploration. I certainly appreciate Honourable Members' fears in this, it is a most important step for the Colony, but I think the point as stressed by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary was that this merely enables Government to do something when the time comes.

The very fullest consultation is obviously necessary with farming interests before these Regulations are made. We can take the second reading now and then we can go into Committee and Members can raise any individual points there."

The Bill was read a second time and during the committee stage the Bill was further debated —

Honourable S. Miller : "Your Excellency, Honourable Members. As I have said before, I do not want to oppose the eventual passing of this Bill. Any other industry which we can get here is in the interests of all of us.

It is mainly a matter of procedure to which I am objecting and although Members who have not seen the main bulk of Regulations can look at these two pages, it doesn't convey the whole story to them. I know the rest is largely Regulations but there are copies of leases or proposed leases, and I know also that if we were now to pass this Bill in toto, the Governor in Council may make these Regulations or he may alter them, but that is not going to be done around this table; it will be done in Executive Council and that is really what is at the back of my fears.

We are now asked to pass a Bill to amend the Mining Ordinance and the bulk of that Mining Ordinance is governed by these Regulations, Leases – all this stuff here, and if we pass this Bill now and somebody turns up within the next two or three months, something will have to be done. There will be an Executive Council Meeting for the Governor, or Acting Governor to make Regulations so that the business can be proceeded with as far as this particular person will be concerned; and in such case the majority of the Unofficial Members would not be aware of the full contents of these Regulations, so I am not happy about it and do not consider that we as a Council should pass that Bill."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary: "Your Excellency. To avoid any further misunderstanding let me make it quite clear that we already have a Mining Ordinance. Unfortunately it is a defective one. I suppose if we wanted to rush people, and if we wanted to conclude a quick agreement with some person of the next "Darwin", we could do so; but we do not want to do so. We have a Mining Ordinance, and all we are saying here is that it is not good enough. It is out of date. I have quite clearly said that we will discuss this with representatives of the farming industry. We will go through it with them clause by clause. I cannot say more than that. Members must not think we are trying to pass a new Ordinance – we are not – this is only an amending Ordinance. Under the present Ordinance we do not make really clear what area of land we, as a Colony, claim. We must have this amending Ordinance through pretty quickly.

We have 3 interested oil exploration companies. Unless I can tell them that we are getting on with our laws and that we shall soon be ready to start negotiations, they may lose interest. Oil companies are interested in exploring every part of the world. To them it is important to know whether oil exists. If it does not then they can cross a little bit off the map. They needn't bother about it any more. Honourable Members have nothing to fear at this stage. I am not going to sign any leases. I wouldn't dare. Major oil companies have the most expert legal advisers, and the poor little Colonial Secretary of the Falkland Islands isn't going to sit at the other side of the table initialing things madly. He too will be taking advice.

This is not a matter of hurry. We want to be in a position to start negotiations with the interested companies and we do not want to lose them.

Negotiations may take years. The Honourable Member for the West Falkland has the wrong idea of the Civil Service. By the time we have given the oil people some of our Secretariat tea, and talked over this enormous wad of paper, many years will have passed."

Honourable G. C. R. Bonner: "Your Excellency. I won't prolong this any longer but I'm still not very clear in my own mind of the rights. In the Colonial Secretary's proposal he emphasised that this Ordinance refers to Crown lands and Crown lands only. I'm not at all clear yet as to the position of the freehold lands and there doesn't seem to be anything in section 3 about the rights of the private land owner. I'm afraid I am not conversant with the rest of the Ordinance; perhaps I'm not speaking for the subject and there are clauses in the Ordinance which do safeguard the private landowner. I would like an assurance on this subject."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary: "I can't give the Honourable Member the assurances he desires without notice. I have already said twice that we will guard the interests of the farmers and private landowner."

President: "Well I think the Colonial Secretary has made his point here. This is merely giving Government powers (there are powers now in this Ordinance) but it is an extremely bad Ordinance. We could not even begin to negotiate with oil companies on the old Ordinance, and this merely enables regulations to be made. The point is they are not making valid and they can't be made on these specific things although they could be made in general terms until the Ordinance is passed you see until the Bill becomes law. This is merely giving powers to do things I think that was the point and I don't think in view of the assurances given by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary you need have any fears about this at all by passing this it merely tidies up a rather untidy situation."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary: "Your Excellency. I am sure I could give one further assurance to this House. And that is if we are of the opinion that we can negotiate an agreement with any oil exploration company we will consult with all members. Nothing will be done secretly. I can assure Honourable Members of that."

Honourable S. Miller: "Your Excellency. Honourable Members. I will accept that assurance because the last thing I wish to do is to impede anything that is likely to help this Colony; I now feel this matter has been well aired and I personally am prepared to accept the Colonial Secretary's assurances.

I would not wish it to happen that if any of these oil mining prospectors come along that they find themselves baulked and push off elsewhere and don't come back here.

I would hate it to be recorded and felt within this Colony that that old so and so from Rove Cove stopped us from getting an oil industry."

President: "Honourable Members, it has been moved and seconded that clauses 1 to 3 stand part of the Bill. Is there any objection? The clauses 1 to 3 stand part of the Bill."

On the motion of the Honourable the Colonial Secretary seconded by the Honourable H. Bennett the Bill was read a third time and passed.

12. The Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the first reading of the Defence Force (Amendment) Ordinance, 1964, and said —

"Your Excellency.

We have an excellent and well disciplined Defence Force, but any force of arms must have a law to control it and the existing Defence Force Ordinance is deficient in certain respects. The amendment Ordinance which is now before Honourable Members is designed to deal with these deficiencies. I will go through the sections. Section 13 states 'every member shall pay to the Commandant the cost of repairing or replacing any rifle or appointments damaged, destroyed or lost'. In other words if Private Snooks loses anything he can be surcharged. This is unfair drafting and it is proposed to amend section 13 by inserting the words 'wilfully or negligently'. If a soldier wilfully damages or negligently loses something it is fair to charge him. Accidental loss or damage should not be surcharged.

Section 21 reads 'when a person is deemed to commit an offence'. What do we mean by deemed to commit an offence? Either he commits or he doesn't, and we have amended, and included the simple and more definite word 'commit'. It is preferable and tested in law.

Section 22 subsection 4 thereof gives the Commandant power to set up his own Court Martial. That was never the intention. It is bad drafting. Obviously the Commandant of the Defence Force can't set up private courts, and the amendment makes it clear that any Court Martial must be in accordance with the law.

Section 25 of the Ordinance is deficient. It says that if any Member of the Defence Force is found guilty of any offence the findings of the Court Martial must be confirmed by the Governor. At present we have no way of holding an offender pending confirmation of sentence. The amendment gives power to hold in custody until the confirming officer's report is received. This is not a major amendment Ordinance it is just a tidying up job."

The Honourable H. Bennett seconded and the Bill proceeded through all its stages without dissent.

13. Introducing the Income Tax (Amendment) Ordinance, 1964, the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer explained —

"Your Excellency.

This Bill proposes to add interest on deposits in the Government Savings Bank to the list of items exempted from income tax by section 8 of the Income Tax Ordinance.

The Bank income more than doubles the amount credited to depositors and in general the Bank's financial position is sound. This is good news when one considers that only a few years back the assets of the Bank fell short by over £200,000 of the amount that was due to depositors. Government has been warned, however, against undue eagerness to pass on to depositors the newly-found prosperity (such as an increase in the rate of interest) and in particular against attracting to the Bank what is described as 'uneasy money'. We must bear in mind that we have neither the facilities nor the know-how for branching out into commercial banking, nor are the rules of the Bank designed for such a situation.

It is felt, however, that some small measure of encouragement or reward is due to the depositors, particularly as the regained solvency of the Bank means that a transfer of some of its surplus funds to the revenue of the colony becomes a distinct possibility. For the time being the most suitable form that this could take is considered to be the exemption from tax of the interest on deposits, and I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The motion was seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and the Bill was read a first time.

Speaking to the motion during the second reading the Honourable S. Miller said —

"I would like to speak to the motion but certainly not to oppose it. All these Bills are printed and made available to the public — I think that is correct and constitutional — but it may be difficult for one which concerns income tax. Supposing we on this side of the Table throw it out. The Chancellor of the Exchequer does not reveal any secrets about tax increases or concessions at home — the Stock Exchange would go haywire and so indeed would the whole country if he did. I'm merely trying to draw attention to Council that although its constitutional to publish these Bills it might be necessary in some cases to give some thought as to whether or when such Bills should be published."

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer: "I don't think there is much I can say to that. If we are to pass this Bill it must be published beforehand and that's that."

President: "I think it worth mentioning this in Committee. The motion is that the Bill be read a second time."

The Bill received its second reading and in Committee the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer moved that clause 2 be amended by deleting the figures "1964" and inserting therefor the figures "1965".

Before putting the motion His Excellency remarked —

"Just before putting the Motion, I think notice should be taken of the point raised by the Honourable Elected Member for the West Falkland, but I am not at all sure that there is indeed any way out of it. Bills certainly have to be published. Measures of actual taxation are not revealed before they are actually debated. Suppose that Government decided to increase the duties on liquor, we would not publish that in time for people to make enormous importations beforehand. Taxation measures as such are not revealed, but I don't know if there is any way round a Bill such as this; I think probably not. However it can be investigated."

Clause 1, clause 2 as amended, the Enacting clause and the Title were agreed and the Bill moved to its third reading and was committed.

14. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer in moving the first reading of the Bill entitled "The Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2.) Ordinance, 1964" said —

"Your Excellency.

This Bill seeks to amend the Income Tax Ordinance as it relates to the deductions that can be claimed in respect of children. Deductions are permitted up to the 16th birthday except when the child is at school abroad, in which case the age limit is removed.

Income Tax was introduced in 1939 when children rarely remained at school in the Colony for very long after reaching the leaving age of 14, and certainly not after their 16th birthday. The provision of a deduction up to the 16th birthday was therefore adequate as by that time the children were working and contributing quite appreciably to their own keep.

That we should now find reasons for wishing to amend the law as it relates to deductions in respect of children at school in the Colony is one that cannot fail to create satisfaction, and the Bill proposes to lift the limitation of the 16th birthday when children continue at school in the Colony beyond that age.

Opportunity is also taken to redraft the section in two other respects. Firstly the word 'maintained' is inserted. Cases have arisen where parents have successfully claimed deductions for children they do not maintain: this would not appear to be the intention of the law and the requirement that they should maintain the child is designed to clarify this point. The other amendment is the insertion of the word 'unmarried' in describing a child for whom a deduction may be claimed. While no case has ever arisen where a parent has claimed a deduction in respect of a married child still at school, it is by no means uncommon that married people do seek further education and that the parents bear the cost.

Finally, there is the matter of illegitimate children. At present no claim can be allowed for an illegitimate child but the Bill proposes that it should be allowed. Whatever one's views on the subject of illegitimacy may be a child is a child and someone must feed, clothe and educate it. That is what Income Tax should recognise and take into account — nothing more and nothing less.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

The motion was seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and the Bill was read accordingly.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and Council went into committee to consider the Bill clause by clause. Clauses 1 and 2, the Enacting clause and Title were agreed and the Bill received its third reading and passed.

15. The Nature Reserves Bill was introduced by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary who said—
"Your Excellency.

Honourable Members know full well that certain parts of this Colony (particularly the small and remote outer islands) are inhabited by various species of wild animals and birds which are not found in any quantity in any other parts of the world. Government feels that we should do something towards protecting them. Recently we had a very distinguished visitor, Ambassador Crowe of the United States who is a Vice-President of the World Wild Life Organisation. He has just been around South America and in his view our small attempts to conserve nature are well ahead of South America.

We still have a good number of birds and animals with us and we are not yet shooting them out. Even so certain people need controlling. Not so long ago five innocent penguins met with an unkind death on the local beach. I suppose someone felt rather nasty towards a penguin that day. I can't think why. Why do people shoot for the sake of killing?

We want to do something towards setting up nature reserves without inconveniencing the farmers in any way. And we have produced the draft Ordinance which Honourable Members have already seen. The core of it is that the Governor in Council may declare any area of crown land to be a Nature Reserve, and with the consent of the owner, or the lessee of any crown land, other areas may be included. We realise that Nature Reserves can conflict with farming and we have been careful to allow for objections. We have not made any Regulations yet, nor have we started to draft any, but the provision for them is there. We feel very strongly that if we can conserve our wild life without overdue interference with the economy we should do so. Even if the rest of the world is letting wild life waste away we should try and keep our wonderful birds and animals alive. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

This was seconded by the Honourable H. Bennett and the Bill was read a first time.

During the second reading, the Honourable G. C. R. Bonner remarked —
"Your Excellency.

I welcome this Bill and trust that it will achieve the very worthy objects behind its formation. I congratulate the people in the Colony who have worked to bring this to Government's notice and look forward to seeing the first list of sanctuaries declared.

Though the human population of the world is increasing at a bewildering rate each year, more and more of the wild creatures of the globe are disappearing completely.

I do not suppose that human overpopulation will ever be one of our problems, but perhaps by careless robbing and indiscriminate killing we may well unwittingly contribute to extermination of another wild animal or bird. If, by declaring some part of our islands to be a nature reserve, some part of the earth's flora and fauna can be preserved in its original state, then I think we shall have done something worthwhile for posterity.

This Bill has my wholehearted support."

The Bill was then read a second time and passed through all its stages in Committee. The Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

16. The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Honourable the Colonial Secretary moved the first reading of the Pensions (Increase) (Amendment) Bill, saying —

"Your Excellency.

Ordinance No. 10 of 1963 authorized the payment of pensions increases. The increases were of either 10 or 12 per cent with additional sums where the pensioner was over 70 years of age. Whether a 10 per cent or a 12 per cent increase should be made depended on the date on which the pension commenced. Pensions that commenced before 31st December, 1956, were to be increased by 12 per cent and pensions that commenced between that date and the 1st July, 1961, were to be increased by 10 per cent. These dates relate to salaries revisions for the Colony civil service.

It has been pointed out that while the intention of the Ordinance is understood and appreciated, the dates relating to local salaries revisions cannot properly be related to the adjustment of pensions where pensioners retired from the service of other territories. The effective dates of similar revisions in these territories would not necessarily coincide with those in the Falkland Islands, nor would they necessarily be made with the same frequency.

It is recommended that the Ordinance be amended to include provision for increases to be made to the Colony part of a pension payable to a pensioner who finally retired from the service of another territory according to the numerical sequence of the last salaries revision of that territory before the officer's retirement. In this manner the proposed increases would be awarded according to whether the officer retired before the 1st January, 1957, (if he retired here) or before the effective date of the third salaries revision since 31st December, 1944, of the territory in which he finally served, or before 1st July, 1961, if he retired here or the effective date of the fourth salaries revision of the territory in which he finally served.

One small snag arises in that some territories have had fewer salaries revisions than the Falklands and reference to the numerical sequence is as inappropriate as reference to local dates. To overcome the odd case where this situation may arise some discretionary power would appear to be necessary and a proviso to the proposed amended Section 7A permits this.

The amendment does not materially depart from the intention of the Legislature in passing the Ordinance last year. It only takes into account certain conditions that were omitted from the earlier Ordinance or which were unduly restricted in their application because of the particular reference to the dates of local salaries revisions."

The Bill was read accordingly. On further motion made and seconded, the Bill was read a second time. In Committee clauses 1 to 3, the Enacting clause and Title were agreed. Council resumed to take the third reading and the Bill was passed.

17. In his final address to Council, His Excellency said —

"Honourable Members,

This is the last session of Legislative Council at which I shall preside, and I am very sorry that this is so. May I, before the motion for the adjournment is moved thank you for your services during this session and the care and attention you have given to the Estimates for next year.

Over the years there has been a steady development in our constitution from the days when membership of Councils was almost entirely official to the present time, and this policy will continue.

There will certainly be changes sooner rather than later in the life of this Council, and the next four years will be interesting ones.

I have always been encouraged here by the excellent relations which exist between officials and unofficials, and I am sure that this will continue. This is as it should be, for we are all after the same thing and that is to do our best for the Colony and its people.

Thank you again for your services, and may I wish you every success in the future."

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary replied —

"Your Excellency,

Before moving the adjournment I would like to say what a sad occasion this is for us all. It is not easy to say farewell to a friend but when one has to say farewell to a friend who is also your guide, adviser and a person as approachable as your good-self, the task is even harder. The other Honourable Members of this house are all persons of long standing here in these Islands, and I am the new-comer, but let me say because of your help and encouragement I feel anything but a new-comer. Like you Sir, I have been brought up in the Colonial Service (I refuse to use its more modern title which makes me feel like a nationalised transported bus conductor) and know how you feel when you are approaching the end of your time on such a good Service. There have been few more honourable Services in which to serve. Like you, Sir, I also work for these Islands and I already know what it is to be happy here, and I would hate to be leaving next week. What your feelings are after 7 long years I cannot say. On behalf of this House, Sir, and the members of the Falkland Islands Civil Service of all branches and categories I ask you to accept our very grateful thanks for what you have done. You are leaving us but you are not just going into retirement and I know that you are departing with a briefcase full of papers, possibly a packing case full of papers, and a very large mutton bone to bash London heads with. I hope you won't have to use the bone but if you do I know the aim will be true. No tribute to you Sir would be complete without a reference to your charming wife Lady Arrowsmith. She has done a lot behind the scenes for you and for us. A Governor's wife has to support her husband in many things, not the least of which is to calm him after sessions of this Council — business sessions of course. May you both have a very happy leave and retirement. I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die."

In seconding the motion for adjournment, the Honourable R. V. Goss, added —

"Your Excellency,

In rising to second the motion of adjournment I would, on behalf of the Unofficial Members of this House, like to express to you our sincere appreciation of your services in and to this Colony.

We from the unofficial side are grateful for the help and encouragement you have so readily given us. We have always found it easy to approach you and you have always been most sympathetic.

Often our discussions have been of a very forceful kind and it is pleasant to record that dealings on both sides have been straight and frank, but always amicable.

You have cast many flies into local waters but never into the ointment.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary has mentioned Lady Arrowsmith and I too, as do all other Unofficial Members thank her very much for all she has done and for the charm with which she has carried out her tasks.

We wish you Sir, Lady Arrowsmith and your family a very happy future and we all hope to see something of you again in the days ahead.

I now formally beg to second the motion for adjournment."

His Excellency thanked Honourable Members for their kind messages of farewell and declared the House adjourned sine die.

A Bill for
 An Ordinance
 Further to amend the Land Ordinance.

[, 19]

Title.

Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Land (Amendment) Ordinance, 1964, and shall be read as one with the Land Ordinance, hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance.

Short title.

2. The principal Ordinance is amended by inserting the following new heading and new section immediately after section 28 —

Insertion of new heading and new section 28A in the principal Ordinance.

“PART IIIA.

FENCES.

Fencing etc, on country and suburban land.

28A. The following provisions shall have effect with respect to fences and fencing on country or suburban land —

Owners must join in fencing boundaries.

(1) Where there exists no sufficient natural boundary or no sufficient boundary fence, an owner may by notice in writing call on the owner of the adjoining land to come to an agreement as to the extent or nature of the fence to be erected, or the repairs to be done to the existing fence, and such owners may agree, in writing, that such boundary fence shall not exactly follow the boundary of their lands when the physical features of the ground render a deviation necessary, and the cost of the erection or repair, as the case may be, of the boundary fence shall be divided between them in such manner as they shall agree.

Failing to agree. (2) If the owners cannot come to any agreement, or where an agreement has been made but one of the parties fails to complete his part thereof, the owner who gave notice, or the other owner as the case may be, may request the Colonial Secretary to appoint a person to view the boundaries and to report upon the necessity for a fence, the line of such fence, or what repairs or additions to the existing fence are necessary to make it sufficient.

Appointed Officer to report.

(3) The person appointed under subsection (2) of this section shall thereupon view and inspect the land and report in writing upon the extent of the fence that it is necessary to erect, or the repairs or improvements that are necessary to make the existing fence sufficient, and shall deliver his report as soon as practicable to the owners and to the Magistrate.

Magistrate to determine question and issue order.

(4) Upon receipt of the report of the person appointed under subsection (2) of this section, the Magistrate shall require the attendance of the parties interested, and shall determine the question at issue, and, if satisfied that an existing fence should be repaired or that a new fence is necessary, he shall issue an order to the owners of such land for the repair or erection of such fence within such period as shall be shown to his satisfaction to be sufficient for the proper completion of the work. Any owner who shall wilfully fail to comply with such order shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every month he shall remain in default.

When owner has not the means to meet expenses.

(5) If it is shown that one owner has not the means immediately to pay his proportion of the cost of repairing or erecting a boundary fence, then the Magistrate may —

- (a) upon the application of the other owner, grant him leave to erect or repair the whole of such boundary fence, and, on a certificate from the person appointed under subsection (2) of this section that the work has been properly done, he shall be entitled to recover from the other owner one-half of the cost of the work so done;
- (b) on the hearing of an application under the foregoing paragraph, issue an order granting the defendant time, upon sufficient security being given, for the repayment with interest of his proportion of the cost of the work at such periods and by such instalments as may be ordered;
- (c) where the defendant fails to comply with the terms of the order made under the preceding paragraph, whether by non-payment of an instalment when due or otherwise, if he thinks fit to order the recovery of the amount outstanding by distress and sale of the defendant's property, so, however, that where the sale of the defendant's property is not sufficient to satisfy the claim the plaintiff shall be entitled to recover any payment of the balance due from any surety who may have entered into bond as security for the payment of the judgment debt by the defendant.

Liability for damage to a boundary fence by stock.

(6) When a fence forming the boundary between the lands of two adjoining owners is damaged by stock permitted to be upon the land of one of them such last-mentioned owner shall be liable to repair the fence, and if he refuses or neglects to do so the adjoining owner may at once proceed to repair the same and shall be entitled upon completion of the work immediately to recover the cost thereof from him.

(7) For the purposes of this section the term "owner" includes a lessee under a lease for a term of not less than one year."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

To introduce a law regarding fences and fencing in suburban and country land in the Colony, and for purposes connected therewith. The present law on these subjects is unwritten and based on the custom of the country and it is now considered advisable to provide for these matters by enactment.

A Bill for An Ordinance

To amend the law about the property of persons dying intestate, and to amend the law relating to testamentary dispositions, and for purposes connected therewith.

[, 19] Date of commencement.

Ch. 45) (as amended by the first-mentioned Act) are applied to the Colony with the following modifications — Application of the Intestates' Estates Act, 1952, and the Inheritance (Family Provision) Act, 1938 to the Colony.

- (a) references to "the commencement of this Act" shall be construed as reference to the coming into force of this Ordinance; reference to "England" as reference to the Colony; and reference to "the principal probate registry" as reference to the Supreme Court;
- (b) for the definition of "the court" contained in subsection (1) of section 5 of the Inheritance (Family Provision) Act, 1938, there shall be substituted "the Court" means the Supreme Court".

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The objects of this Bill are :

- (a) to charge the residuary estate (other than personal chattels) of an intestate who leaves issue, with the payment of a net sum of £5,000, to the surviving spouse;
- (b) to charge the residuary estate (other than personal chattels) of an intestate who leaves no issue, with the payment of a net sum of £20,000 to the surviving spouse;
- (c) to give to the surviving spouse, who has a life interest in part of the residuary estate of an intestate, the right to redeem his or her life interest within 12 months of probate or letters of administration being taken out;
- (d) to amend the law regarding partial intestacy;
- (e) to enable the surviving spouse of a person dying intestate to acquire the matrimonial home within 12 months of probate or letters of administration being taken out;
- (f) to empower the Court to order that such provision as is necessary be made out of the estate of a deceased person (who dies testate or intestate) for the maintenance of the surviving spouse, a daughter who has not been married, an infant son, or mentally or physically disabled child, in such cases where the deceased has failed to make reasonable provision for maintenance.

This Bill does not impose a direct restriction on what a testator may dispose of by Will. A testator still has complete freedom in this respect but the court is given discretionary power to alter those dispositions where any dependant has not in its opinion been sufficiently provided for.
