"I welcome Honourable Members to this sitting of the Legislative Council. I must say it probably is a little surprising that after the rather marathon sitting we had a few weeks ago we should need to come together again. The purpose is to take a Bill which is of very considerable interest to everybody, rectifying an error which crept into one of the Ordinances which we passed at our last sitting."

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL (ELECTIONS) (AMENDMENT) (NO. 2) BILL 1977

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, the Legislative Council Elections (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance 1977 proposes to remedy an inadvertent misconstruction concerning the definition of "qualifying period" and the qualification of electors. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, it is perhaps unfortunate that we have had to return to Council, although it is much better to do this to make sure that we have got the proposals of the Select Committee absolutely right together with the wishes of the electorate, which was the charge put upon the Select Committee.

We attempted at great length in preparing the Bill taken by this Council only a month or so ago, to put those recommendations clearly into a law but, as I pointed out at the time and as I think Honourable Members all appreciated, it was a complex task and we were in many respects breaking new ground, not only in enlarging the elected element of the Council, but in a new type of procedure; and it is the procedure which has bedevilled us. The particular matter which this Bill now hopes to remedy concerns the qualifying period throughout which a person must be resident in the Colony if he is to qualify as an elector. The former Ordinance merely referred to "resided" or "residence" and therefore left a fair amount of discretion to the Registration Officer or those who had to hear appeals from him.

When drafting the previous Bill and incorporating into it the recommendations of the Select Committee to provide the different terms of qualification for electors born in the Colony and those not born in the Colony, the section was re-phrased so that it read that persons must be "continuously" resident in the Colony throughout the qualifying period, and accordingly the qualifying period was amended so that the twelve months' duration should remain for persons born in the Colony but was extended to three years for those not born in the Colony, and the residence duration for a candidate was changed from twelve months to three years.

The word "continuously" as I have said was used in the draft to clarify the word "residence" whereas formerly only the word "resided" had been used. The unfortunate consequence of this is that a fair number of persons, perhaps even a large number of persons, who previously would have been eligible to vote in the election, would now be disqualified from registration as electors because they had been or were temporarily absent. Even occasional absences, even sickness requiring an absence overseas, even a duty tour or leave, could have disqualified the person if that word "continuously" had been left in. This was never intended and consequently a proviso was inserted before the Bill reached Council on the last occasion, which hoped to remedy that restriction.

But it was discovered at short notice before the Bill was introduced in Council that the proviso was insufficient and Honourable Members will recall that a further proviso was tabled during the course of the Bill, which attempted to remedy the omission or oversight in the previous proviso. In fact, on close examination, it has emerged that this last proviso did not cover the point and in fact it could have only been covered by a series of provisos one succeeding another to accommodate every possible contingency.

And it emerged that the real culprit in this was the use of the word "continuously" which is unequivocal and means that a person must have been in the Colony throughout the qualifying period and as I said this was never intended. It was intended, and always has been, that occasional absences should be allowed for. Therefore if the word "continuously" was left in the legislation it would have the unintended and undesirable consequence of disenfranchising a considerable number of people. This is clearly unacceptable and a simple solution is to remove the word "continuously" and substitute for it the word "ordinarily".

"Ordinarily" and its cognate expressions in connection with "residence" or "resident" or "resided" has a clear meaning and definition in law and in our particular context it has the merit too that it is the terminology used in the Legislative Council Order in Council and is clearly defined in the schedules to that Order in Council.

So that what we now propose is a Bill which will remove the word "continuously" wherever it occurs with reference to "resided" and substitute for it the word "ordinarily". This means in fact that in Section 2 we replace the definition of "qualifying period" by the new definition set out in the Bill, and in Section 6 (c) we delete the word "continuously" and substitute for it the word "ordinarily".

To sum up, Your Excellency, the Bill proposes to remedy a defect, an inadvertent defect, which would have disenfranchised a considerable number of persons who ought not to have been disenfranchised. It was never intended that people should have to reside continuously without any absences at all during the qualifying period, it was meant to be interpreted in a just, generous and sensible way, but using the word "continuously" did not allow any flexibility at all and the Bill remedies this defect, I trust. I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time."

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and Honourable Members spoke as follows:

Mr. A. B. Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Honourable the Chief Secretary of course has put the whole thing so completely, that there is really little for me to say. Obviously I support the Bill because under the previous wording of "continuously" I was one of those persons who was going to be disenfranchised, so I can't be expected to like that. But also of course I support the Bill because we do want to get the Elections Ordinance correct and we don't want anybody to be disenfranchised because of incorrect wording. I beg to support the Motion."

The Bill passed through all its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

Chief Secretary

"I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die."

The Honourable Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and Honourable Members spoke as follows:

Mr. A. B. Monk

"Your Excellency, I don't want to take up Honourable Members' time, but in speaking to this Motion I would like to say it has given me enormous pleasure to have served on a Council at a time when major constitutional advances have been made. With an all elected Council people have now an opportunity to elect a council that will mirror their thinking. This I think places an enormous responsibility on the shoulders of the electorate. No longer will the people be able to blame the officials or somebody else for frustrating the wishes of the elected representatives. The elected representatives will be in the majority.

I would also like to say that it has given me great pleasure to have been on a Council serving with the other Honourable Members who I think I can say have been not only good friends but good advisers and also with the official members, who have given me an enormous amount of help and advice, although I have not always agreed with it they have been extraordinarily helpful. I would also like to point out that though official members, they have in my opinion, always worked sincerely for the benefit of the Colony.

Finally I would like to say that it has given me great pleasure to have worked on a Council with Your Excellency as President. I think you have given us a lot of very good guidance and advice and I would like to wish you a pleasant holiday when you go away. I support the Motion."

Mr. J. Smith

"Your Excellency, I will be brief, but I too would like to say how much I have enjoyed serving on this Council and would like to express my best wishes for a good holiday for you and your wife this coming week; and I also think this might be an appropriate time for me to say that during my recent visit to London I had a meeting with the Falkland Islands Committee and a very long and useful discussion with the Members and the Chairman and I feel that in the future there will be a very much better and clearer understanding between the Falkland Islands Committee and the Falkland Islands Government. Many things were clarified at that meeting and I am confident now that we both understand a lot more about each other. People in the UK are very much aware of our particular problems and both within the Falkland Islands Committee and outside we do seem to have a very large number of friends who are willing and able to help us when and where necessary. Thank you Sir, I wish to support the Motion."

Mr. A. B. Hadden

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I haven't got much to say either, for it's not long since we were standing here saying all these things, but I reiterate my thanks to everyone as this might be my last chance. And I am sure that everyone will welcome the Bill that we have just passed, this amendment which really only emphasises and legalises what was really intended by the Select Committee and the original Bill. I am pleased that the mistake was noticed and action taken to remedy it in good time. Everything is now in order for the elections, we should really be getting on with it and the sooner we have a new Council the better (not that there is anything wrong with this one!) but since that is the way of things, the sooner the better.

For my part I would really like to see the next Council composed entirely of indigenous 'kelpers' because I think the next few years are going to be very very important and very serious years for all of us, particularly the people who represent us and it is important that we are represented by people who live here and have the most to gain or the most to lose.

I would just like to wish you a good holiday, Sir, and hope the summer is not over before you get home. Thank you very much."

The President

"Thank you Honourable Members for your good wishes for a holiday. I hope I may in the course of the next few weeks use a few days of the time I shall spend in the UK to get a holiday, but as things look at the moment with the programme I am building up for myself I think it will be more work and not a great deal of play. However I hope I will enjoy some of the summer and see some of the cricket.

I shall take away with me a good many thoughts and ideas which I shall want to discuss when I get to London, things that have been building up in my mind since I have been here, and ideas which have been put to me by Honourable Members during our various sessions. I cannot promise to come back with a briefcase loaded with proposals and agreements, but I hope to come back at least with some feeling that the journey was worthwhile and we are moving along a progressive path.

Tomorrow I shall dissolve this Council, which will be in a sense for me a rather sad thing to do. I very much enjoyed sitting with you Honourable Members in our Council. The Honourable Member for East Falkland has sometimes referred to the word "dissolution" as implying that Councillors were just cubes of sugar. I might perhaps say that my new secretary when she first came here, who had not come across the word before, typed it from my dictation as "desolation" - and in a sense it is: it is a waste of Councillors; I think it has been an excellent Council. But I look forward to the next one whatever its composition, which will be elected by about the third week of October. The election period will have started I've no doubt before I get back but I wish everybody who takes part, both candidates and voters, well in their choice and of course they will have to consider deeply the problems which lie ahead of us in both voting and putting forward their candidatures.

At our last sitting I did thank everybody for all they have done to help me since I have been here and while, as I said, I look forward to the new Council, my thanks are very deep indeed to you Honourable Members of the present Council, who steered me through a very difficult time for me, and I think a difficult time for all of us, but I hope that we have now reached a situation where we can look ahead with calmness and while I am away I hope that the progress of the Islands will go in in this even tenor till I come back. Thank you all Honourable Members.

I now declare this House adjourned sine die."

PRAYERS

Prayers were said by the Reverend Gerald Smith, Chaplain of Christ Church Cathedral.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

In welcoming Councillors to this first meeting of the Legislative Council in the new session, I must add a particular word of welcome to those members who are taking part in our deliberations for the first time. To the Honourable the Chief Secretary, who has so recently arrived in the Colony, and to those who are now joining Council as a result of the recent elections. And here I would like to say a brief word of commendation for the way in which their election campaigns were conducted by all candidates - without personal rancour and with proper concentration on the real issues as they were seen to be.

I was not myself here for most of the time, and I understand that both the weather, and the complications in our newly tried-out voting procedures, made it a very difficult election to organise. All the more credit therefore to the Elections Supervisor, Mr Stuart Booth, and his team of officials, for the remarkably smooth and efficient way it was carried out. We now have some leisure to consider, in the light of this experience, whether or not it need be that our constitutional and legislative arrangements should be revised to make it a simpler business next time. Always provided, of course, that the true and clear voice of the people must be heard, and an undeniably democratic Council result, as it has on this occasion.

Before moving on, I would like to take this opportunity to pay a tribute to our former Chief Secretary, Mr Arthur Monk, at whose departure I was not, unfortunately, able to be present. During his term of office here, Arthur Monk served the Colony, my predecessor, and myself with commendable conscientiousness and devotion to duty. I am sure that all members of Council will wish him well in the future.

His successor, who is now sitting below me, needs, I think, little introduction as since his recent arrival he has energetically acquainted himself with a wide circle of people. But I have no doubt he will, quite rightly, seek the indulgence of members in his conduct of our business at this, his first, LEGCO session. I am equally sure that members will readily grant it. I well remember the kindness with which Council forgave my own sins of omission and commission during my early months, and I had longer to play myself in than Mr Massingham has had. His particular case does not quite create a new record. There was, I believe, an earlier occasion when a new Colonial Secretary was plunged into Legislative Council within a week of his arrival! But I should imagine that Mr Haddingham is feeling he has quite enough on his own mind today to waste too much sympathy on that poor chap.

To the newly elected members of Council, and I think this applies to us all, may I say that, elaborate and formal though our procedures may seem to be, they are in tune with the importance of the function we have to perform - to provide for the good government of these Islands by legislative process. We may only be a small Colony, but the matters we have to deal with are as important, if not on occasion more so, than those dealt with in larger communities. Some formality, and propriety of debate, must therefore be respected if we are not to err in what we do. And it is pertinent to remember that, in our peculiar situation, our words go out beyond this Chamber, beyond even these Islands, to a wider audience outside.

Honourable Members, you will no doubt shortly indicate to me your chosen Members to represent you on my Executive Council. I think this would be a good opportunity for me to clarify how I see the division of powers and responsibilities between these two Councils. They are in fact, in my view, complementary and not separate. The purpose of the Executive Council is to deal with the day-to-day management of our affairs, subject to the legislation passed, and views expressed, in ordinances and motions in Legislative Council. The legislative safeguarding of the public good lies here in this Council; the Executive Council carries this a stage further in general administration.

In the Legislative Council also resides the power of control of the Colony's purse. The Standing Finance Committee and the Select Committee on the Estimates, both of which are composed of the full membership of this Chamber, meet almost as regularly as the Executive Council, and have an enormously important role to play in approving, in detail, the supply of funds to keep the Colony running. While the purpose of the SFC may seem at times to be rather narrow, and while it does not, in itself, decide on matters of policy which are the prerogative of the Executive Council, I nevertheless look to the Committee to put forward, as often as they wish, recommendations which EXCO will consider for the better conduct of our affairs. I liken the whole system to that of a railway, with the train driven by the Executive Council, on lines laid down by LEGCO, with the SFC in the guards van, occasionally applying the brakes and locking out for signals of danger. Drivers, track-layers and guards, all have a complementary part to play in ensuring that the passengers safely reach their destination.

I do not intend, in my address today, to make a wide ranging and comprehensive survey of all our domestic affairs such as I gave, according to custom, at the July Budget Meeting. But I should highlight a few matters to show where we are going. When I went on leave, after the July Meeting, I took with me a whole bag-full of questions and problems. After nearly three exhausting months of it in London, I feel I have come back with a whole bag-full more. But that, I fear, is the way of it when the stage we are now at, in our new development upsurge, is reached. It is hard to see the wood for the trees. Or rather, like someone in the early stages of building a house, to see what one is going to do with all the muddle of timber, bricks, nails and paint, that are starting to arrive on the site.

One thing I should stress. Although, at times, my discussions at the Ministry of Overseas Development did not quite match up to my impatience for quick decisions, one must understand the Ministry's problems as well. Like all Government Departments, they have to account strictly for their monies, and rules of procedure have to be followed. This apart, there is certainly no unwillingness to move as quickly ahead as possible in helping us move ahead. But if we want their help - and our own resources are too limited for us not to want it - we must take things at the pace their procedures demand. We can spurt ahead in some directions, and this we will do whenever we can.

It is worth my saying that I had a long - in Ministerial terms - over an hour - highly useful discussion with Mrs Judith Hart, the Minister for Overseas Development. She now has a good understanding of our problems, and is sympathetic to them. This will help enormously in the future, and I am grateful to the Minister for her interest. The recent exchanges she had in Parliament, when she was subjected to a rather severe examination on some aspects of our aid requirements, must be seen in that light. I am sure it will not have adversely affected her personal concern for us, which she demonstrated in our conversation.

We now have with us Mr Jeremy Peat, an CDM economist, who is here to evaluate solutions to our transportation problems. He has joined another member of the infrastructure team, Mr Jameson, a civil engineer from the Forestry Commission, who is looking specifically at cheap, quick and simple methods of building our much needed all-weather tracks. I am glad to say that his first impressions are very encouraging and, unlike many expert advisers, he is keen not just to produce a report, but to get on with the job while he is here. I shall be discussing this in Council, and I hope we can give him the go ahead. Alongside these two we also have Captain Woodward of the Royal Engineers who is to look practically at our plant maintenance and related problems, particularly the plant we hope to acquire from Johnston Construction Ltd. And early in the new year we are promised an expert management adviser whose task it will be to help reorganise the Public Works Department, so that we have the capacity to get on with the many construction jobs that lie ahead of us.

The Committee I set up under Mr Robin Pitaluga to look into the future of the Air Service has produced a very valuable interim report, which is concise in its findings that we now need to move into a new aircraft type to supplement our ageing but beloved Beavers. I will be submitting this report to EXCC, and the evaluation of its main proposals will form part of Mr Peat's assignment. As to the current operations of FIGAS, I am glad to say they are now much improved, with our three pilots in service, and flying under better weather conditions than were experienced during the winter when Captain Russ Hooper had to carry on manfully alone, except for the valuable assistance given by Major Willoughby. Captain Emsley has taken to the job - I will not say quite like a duck to the water - but certainly as the very able pilot he is. And Captain Jim Kerr has now returned refreshed from his leave, after his exhausting single-handed operation throughout the earlier part of this year, and has resumed the direction of the Air Service. It is clear however that even with three able pilots, two Beavers alone cannot at all times now meet the demands placed on the Service.

Mr Ritchie, who is a very experienced man indeed - I knew him when he was in the Ministry of Finance in Fiji, and we are lucky to have his services - has quickly got down to an examination of our salaries structure in his role of Salaries Commissioner. I am sure we shall all look forward to his report, which he hopes to complete in a few weeks. It will then be laid before EXCC.

Another report EXCC will be asked to consider is that of Mr Pepper, who carried out a survey of our fiscal affairs during the winter. This is a lengthy, and most comprehensive document, which contains many suggestions we shall be seeking ways to implement so as to increase our financial and revenue resources.

Following on Mr Pepper's visit, and partly at his suggestion, we had Dr Barlow from the Tropical Products Institute, who looked into the possibility of simple, inexpensive methods of curing hides and skins. I must confess to a little initial uncertainty about this idea when it was first mooted, but we decided to welcome it, and I am glad we did so. Dr Barlow also turned out to be an expert who was not content just to produce a report, but to get down to really showing us how it could be done. I believe he generated a great deal of enthusiasm for his methods while he was here, which we must endeavour to maintain.

I am glad to learn that Home Industries is taking up the retail end of small-scale skins production. Home Industries, which I understand is shortly to form into a cooperative, is deserving of as much support as the enterprise can be given. I am glad to learn that, on the initiative of the Falkland Islands Company, a working relationship has been established with a woollen mill in North Wales which will lead to knitwear made from Falklands wool coming on to the market, through Home Industries, and hopefully to its eventual production in the Islands. As regards another of the Falkland Islands Company's initiatives, the experiments recently conducted by Mr Duran into the drying of fish hay, I understand, show enough promise for the Company to consider making a substantial investment to start commercial production.

On another drying process, that of kelp for fertilisers and animal feeding supplements, the Tropical Products Institute, which I mentioned earlier, has arranged to receive regular samples from the Grasslands Trials Unit for chemical and organic analysis, to see what benefits could be obtained. We may seem a long way from the Tropics, but the Tropical Products Institute, in spite of its name, has a wide-ranging expertise in all forms of agricultural production which can be drawn upon by countries seeking to diversify their development.

The Grasslands Trials Unit itself is now back into full-swing, with two new members, Mr Maitland, the Field Officer, and Dr Summers, the Goose Officer, following Mr Campbell Kerr's return from leave. Although from what I heard of his activities, there was not a lot of leave in it for him either - this seems to be a feature of UK leave for all of us; there is so much to do while one is able to tramp up and down the corridors of power, spare time for a holiday quickly gets taken up. The Honourable Financial Secretary himself got through quite a lot of business while he was in London, as I saw at the time, particularly in successfully concluding the negotiations with the World Wildlife Fund for a place for us on the Fund's important and lucrative, coin issue scheme.

We also had a quick visit, arranged while I was in London, by the ODE's architectural adviser, Mr Riley, who specifically looked into the construction of a school hostel in Stanley which we would like to see started as soon as possible. There may be a little delay in getting permanent buildings erected, but I am hopeful that we shall, in the meantime, be able to make suitable temporary arrangements. I have asked Mr Lamin, our newly arrived Superintendent of Education who has also got down to his duties with commendable energy, to plan, if possible, for an August 1978 date for the concentration of senior school education at Stanley. If this can be achieved, we will have made a good start into a new era for the education of our children, although much, I admit, still has to be done about primary education in the Camp.

I must also add a word of welcome to our third Doctor, to reinforce our excellent medical services team. I refer to Dr. Alison Mackintosh, who will be well known to many of you already. We travelled down in the John Biscoe, from Montevideo, with her husband who is to take up a two year assignment with BAS in the Antarctic. This young couple of doctors seem to be basing the early years of their marriage on the principle that absence makes the heart grow fonder - they recently, I believe, undertook separate assignments in Greenland. I am sure we must be grateful for it, as it has allowed us the services of a first-class lady doctor for the next couple of years.

There is one other matter which cropped up during my leave, to which I might perhaps refer, although I did mention it during the broadcast interview I had with Mr Patrick Watts in the evening of my return. It concerns the future of the Falkland Islands Company. As soon as I arrived home I learnt of the bid that the Laird Group Ltd. had made for Charringtons, the parent holding company of the Falkland Islands Company. I was in immediate and constant touch with Mr John Dowling, the Chief Executive of Charringtons, over this bid, which seemed to have serious implications for the future running of the Company. As a result of a meeting I had with Lord Shackleton I approached Kleinwort Benson, a large firm of city merchant bankers, to ask if they would advise in the matter on behalf of the Islands Councils. The Deputy Chairman of the Bank, Mr Caldecott, kindly undertook to do this on a courtesy basis, and we were able to make our concern known to the Office of Fair Trading which supervises such takeover bids. In the end Lairds withdrew their bid, and, as you will probably know, an agreed merger took place between the Coalite and Chemical Company of Bolsover and Charringtons. I remained closely in touch with Mr Dowling, who has now joined the Board of Coalite, up until the time of my departure from London and we have agreed to maintain correspondence on any developments that may ensue. The Falkland Islands Company is now part of a larger industrial organisation - which incidentally, does not otherwise have any interest in wool production - but hopefully it will now be left to manage its operations, which are so essential to the Islands affairs, in much the same way as hitherto. I am particularly interested in the Company's recently indicated intention to make land available for small-scale farming, and I am sure that any practicable proposal to this end will receive close attention in Council.

While on the subject of the Falkland Islands Company I would like to thank the local management for its cooperation in helping us over the recent fuel shortage problems, which arose as a result of the teething troubles encountered in the initial stages of the partial implementation of the YPF Agreement. We expect, as a result of the representations we have made, to have now got this matter on to an even keel, and our future fuel supplies will be assured.

Next, although it is now some little time since they returned, may I welcome back Councillor Adrian Monk and our Clerk, Mr Bill Etheridge, from their attendance, with Mrs Monk, at the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Conference in Canada. I understand they had an exhausting but exhilarating programme to undergo, during which Councillor Monk spoke up for the Islands' case and made many valuable contacts. If their modesty forbids them from saying so, I am sure we can all be certain they did an excellent job in this important forum, which would follow on the good work Mr Tim Blake did at previous conferences in other parts of the world.

Honourable Councillors, we are now shortly to see a resumption of the talks between Her Majesty's Government and the Argentine Government, at Ministerial level, within the framework of the negotiations which both countries agreed to hold consequent upon the then Secretary of State's statement in Parliament in February of this year, and subsequent to Mr Ted Rowlands' visit to the Islands later that month. I think I need hardly now repeat, in full terms, the Ministerial assurances we have received, and which have been reiterated many times, and which can be summed up in the guarantee that during these negotiations there will be close and continual consultation with the Islands Councils and their people, and that any changes which might be proposed must be acceptable to the Islanders. I am sure you will wish to bear this in mind in the course of our deliberations in this Chamber, and as we carefully consider the most prudent position we should adopt, at this time.

Honourable Members, the administration's legislative business at this meeting is confined to the presentation of only one bill - the amendment to the Family Allowances Ordinance. But we have a number of questions and motions on the Order Paper, and I propose we should now adjourn, to continue our sitting after luncheon, when Members may undoubtedly wish to speak to my Address.

The Council adjourned at 10.45 a.m. and resumed at 14.06 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The President

"The elected members of this Council have elected the Hon T J D Miller and the Hon W E Bowles to be members of the Executive Council for periods of eighteen and twelve months respectively in accordance with Royal Instructions."

MOTION OF THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY ON HIS ADDRESS TO COUNCIL

The Hon A B Monk JP

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to thank Your Excellency for your Address this morning. I am personally pleased and honoured to be an elected member of this Council - this Legislative Council represents an advance for democracy in this country and any advance in democracy means more responsibilities for the elected members. We've seen that some people have almost inferred that government of this Colony should be carried on from London. I consider that this Council and Executive Council, Your Excellency, is the government of this Colony. We've got to discharge our responsibilities; government rests here, not with commercially sponsored individuals overseas. I regard the opinions of anybody that is prepared to reside and work in this Colony as more important than the opinions of a Falkland Islander who considers the country is not good enough for him to live and work in. Your Excellency referred to possible reforms of Council which may be necessary in the light of the recent election, and I think that is quite true; the recent election was a very frustrating and difficult affair indeed and did point out some deficiencies. However, whatever reforms we introduce we must retain the essentially democratic nature of this Council, as Your Excellency pointed out.

I am unable to agree entirely with the analogy Your Excellency drew to the functions of Exco and Legco. May I refer to it perhaps as the railway analogy. Executive Council has, historically, made policy, but it need not be the sole policy-making body. Indeed it should not be, in my view. One of the reasons Executive Council has made policy in the past has, in my view, been that they have had the full availability of expert assistance from the Administration and even from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in drafting Bills and so forth. It also must be remembered, I think, that 95% of Bills and legislation, as it were, emanating from Executive Council, are, in fact, emanating from the Administration and merely passed on from Executive Council. There is no reason whatsoever why Legislative Council can't make policy. There is no reason why private members cannot sponsor their own Bills, Resolutions and Motions. The only limiting factor in the past has been the difficulty that Councillors had in getting the necessary expertise in drafting these things and researching the information, and very often, if the legislation has not met with the approval of the Administration it has, as I very well know, been very difficult to extract this expertise from the Administration; but Legislative Council should not consider itself as merely a pair of railway lines supporting the engine of Executive Council, deciding whether it's going to move forwards, backwards or not at all.

I suppose the most important thing on our horizon, obviously, is sovereignty, but I don't think we should allow ourselves to become so obsessed by the sovereignty problem that we ignore the other problems - the internal problems - as long as we stand fast on our view that we wish to remain British and encourage Members of Parliament in the British House of Commons and others overseas who support us in that view, I think we are doing our duty. But we must not become so obsessed by the problem that we lose interest in any form of improvement here.

Internally we have problems with communications, education, and medical services and we wish to develop. And with regard to communications I suppose it's fair to say that FIGAS is a definite must socially. Without FIGAS we cannot exist as a community and we've probably got to make some improvement in FIGAS. With the ever-growing cost of operating Beavers and the difficulty of getting spares and all the rest of it; and it would seem that our excellent FIGAS Committee recommend that we should buy an Islander aircraft. We've ample funds for doing this and I think we should get down to it and do just that. Roads would obviously be of enormous social benefit to those areas they service and I think it's been shown in the past that roads do tend to promote economic development. They do not necessarily mean that you'll get economic development, but without roads you almost certainly won't.

The Falkland Islands Government Air Service can only provide very limited development, in such things as a specialised tourist industry and so forth. With regard to roads I think we have probably got to make some fairly hard decisions. Once we determine - and if we determine we are going to have a road system then we've got to say to ourselves, 'We must acquire a strip of land along the route of the road before we build it', We must acquire the land at the unimproved prices, because along the route of the road is where future development will almost certainly take place; and it is in the interests of the citizens of this Colony that they should have the land where this development is to take place. We of course have, as it were, a committee of experts here, Mr Peat, Mr Jameson and Capt Woodward, reviewing all our communications, transport situation, and it would be invidious to come down and say we should do this and that until they have made their report. But with regard to sea communications versus roads and the air communications for small isolated island communities, I think it's been shown everywhere in the world that sea transport is notoriously inflexible and slow.

One of our services we have to give serious attention to is education; and the previous Council has strongly recommended that we should concentrate secondary education in Stanley, and indeed I thought we'd even approved a plan of a school hostel in Stanley and the site for it and I thought that in fact even some work had taken place - on the drains or something - up there. But it seems that the hostel is not approved or even started, and it's difficult for me to understand why this should be. I looked at what I thought was a very full plan of the thing and approved it along with other members. We must make headway here and if necessary we must spend our own money in starting this. We have our own money and we must spend it in order to get this thing off the ground; I am quite convinced. One of the problems with education in the Camp especially has been the shortage of staff, and since there's twenty or twenty-five thousand unemployed teachers in the United Kingdom, so I'm told, it's very difficult for me to understand why we can't get three or four here out of all that large number of teachers - there must be some that wish to come here. One of the reasons seems to be that teachers here only have to give a very short period of notice if they do not wish to renew their contract - something like three months - and I am told it takes nine months to recruit a replacement, so you automatically get a six months gap. Well, I think that whole situation needs looking into.

Also with regard to education, the overseas grants system is in my opinion an iniquitous situation, system, which is only benefitting those people with the means to take advantage of it - and I personally have been one of them. It does not necessarily benefit the child who could use the benefit of a higher education; it simply allows the parent with some money to send a child overseas. And I think we must alter the whole system and concentrate on providing full secondary education here and only after that - with the children that show the ability - provide overseas academic or technical education.

With regard to the medical service, I personally think we are extraordinarily lucky to have such a good medical service, and I really must commend the Medical Department for the quite obvious - in my view - quite obvious improvements that have been made in the last few years.

We have had a visit by Mr Pepper who, I understand, was going to produce a report telling us how we could overhaul our fiscal arrangements; how we can, I hope, get our hands on some of the money that is leaving the Colony and so build up our own development fund. It's very important that we should in my view invest some of our own money in development instead of asking ODM to put money up. I'm sure if we could put up our bit there would be greater keenness. I await Mr Pepper's report with interest. I think we must, with regard to development, mention the FIC's Green Patch proposition. I think we must seriously evaluate, seriously consider and seriously study this proposition. Maybe it's not what we want; maybe it's of no use. Maybe it's the very thing. But the fact that there is a proposition put up for providing opportunities to individuals must call for very serious study.

I would also like to talk if I may about services to isolated areas. Now I know there has been a lot of criticism in the past of services that are provided for isolated areas, and it has been perfectly valid. There is no question but that in some isolated areas we do not provide very good services. But I think at the same time we have to say to ourselves, 'How much can we afford to spend on services to very isolated areas? Should people in isolated areas be costing tax payers six times as much as people, say, in Stanley or Goose Green?' I think we've got to honestly say that we cannot provide a full service to some of these areas. Therefore we cannot expect them to pay full tax, or even in one or two cases, any tax at all. I don't think, in spite of the look of horror upon the Honourable Financial Secretary's face, that the financial loss in the one or two cases would be terribly serious, but it is really wrong in my view to expect these people to pay full taxes when they are getting very little for it.

I suppose one of the most important things for keeping this Colony going is keeping the people here. And if possible, increasing the population. And I think we'll only keep the people here if we can provide security. Obviously the sovereignty issue is one of the things which makes people insecure but I think if we view this sovereignty issue as something we've got to stand steadfast and firm on and keep our opinions before the British government, we must not become too obsessed by it. I think there are other things that make people here sometimes feel insecure.

We have no national pension scheme. I must commend the Falkland Islands Company for their private pension scheme and in fact for their publishing - giving firm conditions of service to their employees - laid out I believe in something called a 'little Blue Book'. I must admit that no FIC employee has ever allowed me to look at the little Blue Book but I am told that it is a very worthwhile document. A pension in old age and security are very important, but private pension schemes can be a bit restrictive. If you are an employee in a big private firm with a pension scheme after you have done your ten or twelve years and you begin qualifying for a pension you are, as it were, hooked. Also, private pension schemes are very difficult for the small employer to operate, for obvious reasons. I think we should have a national one, paid for in the same way as we pay for old age. Another, talking about security again - and we must have security - is full employment (which we have, very luckily - probably the only country in the world) but we must provide opportunities for our really enterprising people. I suppose you can say that contentment and security come from no external interference with your way of living, internal democracy, opportunities for employment and good social conditions.

I think I've probably spoken too long. I was told the other day - I don't know whether it was the Financial Secretary or the Chief Secretary who told me, but some Administration member anyway - that something like 14,000 sheets of paper were going to be used to print the minutes of the Budget meeting. I only hope that I haven't used up too many sheets and I can see the new members are very impatient because they have important messages to give us; and I must say I do welcome very much the new members. I suppose that you can say one of the faults of democracy is all the verbiage and talk that goes on - it gets very boring at times - but I think probably you will agree that that is better than police truncheons and the gums of dictator states.

I would like to thank Your Excellency."

/The Hon W E Bowles

The Hon W E Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I can assure our new Councillors that I will not take up as much paper in the minutes as the previous speaker has done. I welcome the new members, including our new Chief Secretary, to the now fully democratic Council. I'm delighted to be here and to publicly thank those people who voted for me and to put up with me for another session.

I know it might seem that Executive Council merely passes on a load of Bills from Government House, but I can assure my Honourable friends that they don't and they very often haggle a lot longer than Legislative Council members do about it at times, whether they be on Legislative Council or not. And it's not quite as easy as it may appear.

The new development upsurge I welcome. With the help of the Ministry of Overseas Development I think perhaps we may have got to the foundation stones stage and I hope, unlike our swimming pool, it gets a little further than that, Sir. I'm grateful to learn, too, that Mrs Hart is viewing our problems with sympathy and, we all hope, helpfulness. The advice of experts on transportation is of vital importance. We've relied on aircraft and small coastal vessels for many years and we are a country with the highest vehicle percentage per head in the world I believe, and I think it's high time we had some more roads to drive them on. And with the road to Darwin, I agree with my Honourable friend that it is of vital importance and it is going to open the place up and I think give people something to look forward to which has been long awaited. To go back to FIGAS, I shall be only too pleased to welcome the report of the Committee because we have to have our air service for the outlying areas - the West Falkland in particular - medical purposes and many other facilities we know they perform so well. I am not so sure in my own mind that a totally land-based service is the answer, because we are surrounded by water, we've got creeks running in all over the place, and if an aircraft has to make any emergency landing for any reason at all, I still wonder if float 'planes are not, at least the immediate answer, if not the long term one. I know that runways, maintenance costs and so on will play a big part in land-based aircraft, and I look forward to sizing up the two types of aircraft and perhaps the answer to this problem is the use of one to complement the other.

The Pepper Report: I think we can all look forward to that. I'm sure with his guidance we'll be able to sort out a lot of our problems for the future.

You mentioned in your speech, Sir, the hostel building which at the first stage we thought may well be temporary. I'm afraid I view this with a little suspicion because temporary buildings have a habit of becoming permanent. And I feel in the long term it is better to do the permanent building because, whatever your initial cost is, it's always cheaper today than it is likely to be tomorrow. If we do build a temporary building first, when we do get round to the permanent one it will probably escalate by such a wide margin that we may not, by then, be able to afford it. I think we should look at this question far more closely and then decide whether we go for a temporary one and/or a permanent one, or whether we just go for a permanent complex and have one job and not two.

You did say, too, in your speech Sir, that fuel supplies should be getting back on an even keel, and with the rationing now suspended I appreciate this and hope that our future fuel supplies will be assured. You did not say so, and I do not blame you, for how long! I only hope that we can keep a watchful eye on this and make certain that the fuel supplies can be ordered well in advance and that YPF can keep a watchful eye on local consumption so that orders for the supply of fuel can be placed well in advance and avoid further fuel rationing - especially when it comes in the middle of the peat-carting or the shearing season. I just make that as a point of observation.

I would also like to thank my Honourable friend and his wife, the Hon Mr Monk, and also Mr Bill Etheridge, for their visit to Canada and I look forward to hearing the report on the visit to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meetings there. And I also endorse what he said that it is security we need in this place, and the sooner we have security here the sooner people will stop leaving the Islands. I think this is what we basically want: security, opportunity and something we can get off the ground and so I welcome your Address this morning and would like to support the Motion of Thanks."

The Hon W H Goss JP

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't think Mr Monk has left much for the rest of us to say, and I don't intend saying very much.

I would like to speak briefly on the all-weather tracks. Let us hope this won't just end at Goose Green, as has been mentioned, but that it goes on to some suitable port in the Sound and that we have a ferry across the Sound. This would be a very expensive proposition if people are going to expect to be able to come down in a Land Rover and hop on and go across to the other side. She would have to be a dual-purpose vessel, something that would do the ferrying across the Sound and do other work around the Islands. The ideal type of vessel in my opinion would be a landing craft; she would do any bulk sheep-lifting - we have talked of the export of sheep and meat for years - I doubt if it will ever materialise, but she would be ideal when you get a ship of any size to come here to pick up sheep and transport them from shore to ship. There are plenty that would come here, but ships that are going to carry large numbers of sheep in many cases are not insured to lay aground and in many cases would be very reluctant to do so. And with all our short jetties you can't expect them to go alongside under such circumstances.

/Development:

Development: we hear a lot talked about but nothing has ever materialised. We've got meat by the hundreds of tons which we throw away every year and half the world is starving. The development of the processing of meat and fish I think could be combined to give us another export. We cannot have development without exports; just development within the Islands is nothing, unless we develop farming. That's the only way we can develop. The fact that we can't get reasonable fertiliser, and I don't see how farms can be developed much beyond what they are. They might be able to improve on pasture rotation but this would not be to any great extent. At the moment - not quite so much at the moment but in the past - the tendency has been to exploit; to take everything out and put nothing in. I think that must be halted.

Education: I think the standard of education in the Colony is deplorable, and has been for some years. But it is encouraging to think that there are now moves afoot. It has been said that if we improve the standard of education the people will only go away. That's rubbish. There are people in our midst now who have come here and settled, and been here for many years and others who show signs of staying here and settling, and who are educated people. This doesn't hold water in my opinion.

I beg to support the Motion of Thanks."

The Hon S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. In rising to support this Motion of Thanks I would like to thank the people of West Stanley for the privilege of representing them here today.

In your Address, Sir, you likened our present situation to that of the initial stages of constructing a house. As with any house it is essential that we too build to last. Even more important, that we do not end up with a building which has lowered the tone of the neighbourhood with the result that the people it was intended for have gone elsewhere. All our plans for the future are threatened by the continuing decline of our population. If we do not halt this exodus, very soon we shall not have enough people to call a viable community, far less build for the future.

But I recognise that there are other causes for people deciding to emigrate. One factor that I think greatly contributes to the final decision and is not sufficiently appreciated, is the knowledge that our social services are now virtually controlled by Argentina. For many folk a most unsettling aspect of the situation is not just the fact that these services are controlled by that country - for after all few people would deny that the weekly air service has been of great benefit to our community; what people find more unsettling is that our government, in the past, has appeared to allow LADE and YPF to operate in whatever fashion they please. The most recent example of this was of course the fuel crisis when, with no warning, we were informed that there was no more petrol and very little kerosene. But before that the price /of fuel fluctuated of fuel fluctuated as many as three times in a month despite previous assurance that it would be adjusted monthly. My point is, Sir, that it can hardly give people confidence to see their government stand by helpless in that sort of situation. Everything else apart, it does not seem unreasonable to ask that any company supplying such a vital service do so with some degree at least of competence and efficiency.

You remarked in your Address this morning, Sir, that we were shortly to receive the report prepared by the Fiscal Adviser. I hope that this report will include proposals for stemming the flood of potential revenue out of the Colony. One of the more aggravating aspects of the situation is that while we must tighten our belts, absentee shareholders live on the fat of our land.

I was pleased to hear that we are to receive advice on the reorganisation of the Public Works Department. The majority of Government departments are the target of criticism at some time or another, deservedly or not, but the PWD seem to receive more than most; and since this department will play an ever-increasing role in our development it is essential that it is operated efficiently and that its resources be fully utilised. Mention of the Public Works Department brings me to one or two problems here in Stanley which, though relatively unimportant, are nonetheless the cause of considerable inconvenience and dissatisfaction.

The first is what are jokingly called 'the Stanley roads'... I appreciate that the necessary permanent repairs will be costly, but I don't understand the thinking behind throwing lumps of cement into the craters; the results on past showing seem to be of very short-term benefit. Cement is not cheap. Is it beyond our capability to lay a few yards of tarmac?

The other matter is the condition of the Stanley boundary fence and cattle grids. Again I expect it is a matter of cost and priority. But it is certainly wrong to attempt to penalise owners of animals which, in the absence of any fence, stray into town. It is, after all, difficult to instruct a cow on the finer points of common grazing rights.

In your Address to Council this morning, Sir, you mentioned the delegation sent from here to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association conference, and the excellent address given by the Hon Adrian Monk on that occasion. We should continue to make and take opportunities to promote a better awareness of our situation both within the international community and also in the United Kingdom. In this respect we should not forget the work of our friends in London. Some of us doubt the motives behind their efforts, but no one can doubt the support we now have is due almost solely to their work. It is unfortunately true that the word 'Colony' is not very well received in many quarters and it must therefore be for us who live here to demonstrate that we are proud of our heritage and wish to remain as we are: a British Crown Colony.

/This brings me to the

This brings me to the resumption of the talks between Her Majesty's Government and the government of Argentina. I believe my views on these talks and indeed on the sovereignty position are well known so I will not dwell on them here, except to reiterate my view that representatives from this Council should be present as observers at any future talks. We have, as you said in your Address, Sir, been given assurances that we will be kept fully informed, and I have no doubt that this will be so; but I believe that with Councillors present at these talks we should be able to make more accurate appraisal of any proposals that Council here may be called upon to consider.

Finally, Sir, it is my opinion that, though we should certainly explore possible avenues of co-operation with our neighbour, we cannot allow any further erosion of our sovereignty if we are to maintain the confidence of the people of the Falkland Islands.

Your Excellency, I wish to support the Motion."

The Hon D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. In speaking to the Motion of Thanks I would first of all like to say how much we appreciate the effort you put in on our behalf in England, on what was supposed to have been a holiday. I would like to congratulate you on the amount you achieved. I was particularly interested to hear of your long talk with Mrs Judith Hart and the sympathetic attention our troubles received. I think that news more than offsets the worrying remarks that Mrs Hart made on a previous occasion.

I did know that I would be near the end of the list of people speaking, and I knew that many of the points would be covered, so I haven't really attempted to cover the same points.

The sovereignty issue will be well covered in this meeting of Legislative Council and I don't really propose to go into any details now. Since becoming a member of Legislative Council I am naturally much better informed on the situation as a whole. I must say now that in some cases my beliefs have had to be modified; in other cases they have been strengthened. This is bound to happen and in no way means that I feel less strongly about our situation. For instance I can now see that the hold-up of the hostel and the roads is nothing more than the slowness of bureaucratic processes. Councillors have done their very best to ensure that all the important issues that concern us are brought up and discussed openly in this meeting of Legislative Council.

We are also determined that whatever happens we'll try and take positive decisions, and not shirk our responsibilities or leave to others decisions that are truly ours.

/I must admit that I came

I must admit that I came to these meetings wondering if I was wasting my time, wondering if anything was going to be achieved and wondering if I was going to be swallowed up in the bureaucratic machine. What I have found is immensely encouraging. I've found in the Administration a great desire to break clear of the old choking paperwork and get on with something positive, the willingness to take calculated risks to get things moving. I've found a Council who want to work together, taking their responsibilities very seriously, and above all, who want to keep things open so that the people of these Islands know how and why decisions have been taken.

This Colony has been in a state of stagnation for a long time now. It is absolutely vital that we begin to move forward. It is even more vital that we move forward together, as one unit, people and government. This can only be done with trust and a willingness on both sides to count the good that has been achieved and not automatically look for the bad. We must help ourselves: it's no good sitting back expecting that Britain will do it all for us, and blaming her for being slow about it. There's no sense of pride in that; there's no sense of achievement. Only by helping ourselves can we gain a belief in ourselves. The next few years are vital: if this Administration is willing to take chances and get things moving, then this is one Councillor who is willing to back them all the way. I'd rather do something - even at the risk of making an unholy mess of it - than do nothing. We have the guidelines along which we should move: they've been well discussed this afternoon - the hostel, improved communications, an attempt to keep more money within the Islands; an attempt to begin expansion. What we can do on our own will be limited, but a community working together - there's virtually nothing that a determination to make a go of it can't achieve and often produces near miracles, while all the money in the world can do nothing if it's matched with apathy. I'm absolutely convinced the key to our future lies fundamentally in the attitude of the people of this Colony. We've got to stop bemoaning our fate; we've got to get down to doing something about it ourselves; I think at this time we have the Council and the Administration that can get things going. If we don't move now we never will. I hope that the people of these Islands will help us and encourage us, and forgive the inevitable bunglings and mistakes and judge us on the progress we achieve rather than the mistakes we make.

I wonder how many people in town and in the Administration have really examined the truth in the statement that without Camp Stanley could not exist. Some will automatically reject that statement; others won't have thought about it. Yet it is true. Falkland Islands Company and government employ most of the people in town. Without wool there would be no reason for the FIC to exist, and without the revenue from wool Government could not function. Therefore even if it's for the most selfish reasons it is in the interests of everyone in town to make sure that people stay in Camp. I wonder how many people in town have given any thought to what it must be like living in Camp right now. It's certainly no good adopting the attitude that if they don't like it and find it a bit tough they should get out. This Colony and you can't afford that.

We're one community, not two separate communities. It is hard to describe how catastrophic the effect of the curtailed air service has been in Camp. Island people have virtually been made prisoners on their own islands. Mail at times has been a complete rarity. I know that time after time I wondered why I hadn't had a reply to a letter and on thinking about it remembered that the letter hadn't even got away.

Take Sea Lion Island for example. Some will say 'they should not be there', or shouldn't be paying any tax. But it's my belief that if we pull back off any of our land we are making a fatal mistake. Sea Lion Island went well over two months without mail, and I think it was a lot more than that, actually. It was only after telegrams and a request for a reduction in tax that any real effort was made to try and improve things. I doubt whether they had more than two mails in six months. What do you feel like in town if the Fokker misses just one overseas mail? This is typical of what happens in Camp. The services are there, but almost grudgingly. Is this the way to encourage people to stay in Camp?

Take the medical situation. I realise I'm on dangerous ground mentioning doctors if the past is anything to go by. I wonder if the doctors have bothered to think about the fact that by choosing to take Councillors' remarks personally they are depriving Camp of a chance to right possible wrongs. I don't advocate the return of a doctor to the West; but I would say that more trips like the one that Dr Cox has just completed are needed. A quick in-and-out visit of a couple of hours is not sufficient. It would be a help if more overnight stays could be arranged. It has a very bad psychological effect to be told - as we were during the crisis - that no doctor could be spared to come out to Camp because there had to be two doctors in Stanley. That makes one feel a very second-hand citizen.

Education in Camp is very poor. In the last year or two it's been appalling, with anything up to three or four months without a teacher. It's extremely disturbing to hear that the beats have been spread out even more. I haven't confirmed this, but this is the rumour that's going round. There is very little excuse that I can see for the fact that taped programmes are not now available in Camp settlements. Every possible thing that can improve standards to help the Camp teachers should be done. The taped programme was a good idea: that idea seems to have bogged down, in Stanley. At the age of eight we have had to send our children to Darwin School; it's very young. We accept this but it isn't easy, especially when we hear so many stories about the conditions at Darwin School. I intend making it my business to find out just what the conditions are really like. Children have rights as human beings as well as grown-ups. There must be no neglect of Darwin School because we'll be getting a new hostel. We are all very well aware of how long that kind of project can take to achieve. I'm already getting an insight into the attitude that was adopted with regard to Darwin School. As you may remember, in my election speech

/I said I would get something

I said I would get something done about the Darwin R/T. We've only one opportunity a week to talk to our children. Can't you see how frustrating it is to know that your child is talking to you on the R/T but he or she can't hear you and you can't talk to them. It isn't in the least bit funny and it's been going on for a long time now. I wrote to Darwin to find out more facts and I wrote to the appropriate government department. From Darwin I found they had borrowed a battery and a battery charger from a caretaker, because no one had seen fit to fulfil their requests for a battery charger for the school. From the government department I received a letter saying they had compared the signal strength with that of other stations and it was all right, and words to the effect that before long there would be a new R/T system anyway. Next time I'm exploding with frustration because I can't hear my son I'll remember those choice remarks with real affection.

This particular government department doesn't know me very well. Darwin school R/T is not right, and it is going to be fixed, one way or another. I don't sit here just to berate any government department: rather to show the general attitude. It is this kind of thing that does no good to the relations between Camp and town. We've got to work together as one community.

I went to a recent meeting of the local branch of the Falkland Islands Committee here and the most encouraging thing I saw was that one of the younger members of our community was elected to the committee. To me this is extremely important. There are the usual complaints about bored kids but few attempts to give them the encouragement to take an active part in the community. This has got to be done.

I would very much like to see the schools take an active part in this, if necessary within the curriculum. We have an older section of our community; I would love to see the younger people keeping an eye on the older ones: someone to talk to, someone to get a bucket of peat in, do some messages - it could spread to a bit of help in the garden, fixing things, helping out when an injustice is done, painting. Just company for the old people, and a little bit of help. Can't anyone see that these are the basic skills that we wish to teach our children anyway. They would be an active part of the community and give them a sense of responsibility that will stand them and our community in good stead. The idea of this is sound but can only be got off the ground if it has enthusiastic leadership. Again a half-hearted effort would fail. It's time we all stopped thinking only of ourselves and looked outward to see how we could help others.

I'd just like to add a little bit more to my speech - I didn't intend putting it in until I heard the speech of the Hon member for East Falklands. And I hope the Honourable member's attempt at washing his hands of government's responsibility for outlying areas is not universally shared by other Legco members. Are our outlying areas to do without mail? Are they to provide their own emergency service? I think the Hon member must be responsible for the 3p communications stamp. I've talked enough - not more boring speeches, as my young son would say. In conclusion I would just like to say that what I've found and heard since arriving in town gives me personally hope that we can move forward out of the doldrums we're in now.

Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion."

The Hon T J D Miller

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members. In replying to your Address of this morning I also would like to thank you for the amount of work that you put in on your recent trip to England on our behalf on what was supposed to have been a holiday. I welcome in particular what you said about development and the Ministry of Overseas Development. Perhaps at long last the message is getting through. I certainly hope so, because develop we must in order to survive and advance, and we have very little time left. I am also in full agreement with what you said about the Falkland Islands Company, now a small part of a large industrial organisation which is, no doubt, very happy to have Company profits but this does not necessarily help the Islands. The time may well come when this government may have to consider action to safeguard the interests of the Islands.

Regarding YPF and the recent fuel shortage, I do not consider that a shortage of some drums in a State company of a country with a population of 25 million can be described as teething troubles. To me it was just plain bad management on behalf of YPF. Also I deplore the silence from the previous administration here when that company altered the fuel prices on dates other than those previously specified, and, at one time, charged more than exchange rates suggested. We now know only too well just who controls fuel supplies and prices in these Islands. I recently lived in Argentina for a time, and it was my experience there that fuel shortages were a not too infrequent occurrence. Unless this government takes a firm line with YPF we will, in all probability, have a fuel shortage again sometime in the future although next time it might not be petrol - it could be gas oil - and I don't like to think what that would mean, not only to Stanley but also for the Camp and the industry on which the Colony relies for its livelihood.

Your Excellency, I welcome the forthcoming talks between Her Majesty's Government and the Argentine Government. We and the people of the Islands will approach them calmly and coolly, knowing full well our rights, and I fully support the views of the Hon Mr Stuart Wallace on this. Concerning development, we cannot continue as we are. The black cloud of the sovereignty issue has caused and is causing a feeling of insecurity in us all. This cloud must be removed once and for all. We cannot progress by sweeping the issue under the carpet or sovereignty umbrella, twenty-five year freeze or other deal. These will all inevitably affect our nationality and thus our security. Time is running out and the people of the Islands are losing confidence in the future, and no amount of talking will regain their confidence or that of overseas investors. We need action.

/There is in most of us

There is in most of us an earthy streak, a love, almost unconscious, of owning a piece of land, though regrettably too few who actually own land here take any practical steps to improve what they own. And large areas of these Islands are crying out for that improvement. Where opportunity to develop a piece of land or a small business is not forthcoming it is also from the best and most enterprising of our people that emigration begins. We must hold out to the enterprising business builder a reward which matches the risks of building up a firm or a farm. Government can stimulate and, if required, subsidise agricultural industry and fishing. Government can help to iron out the irregularities that make life in these Islands different and certainly not easy. But we need in the main leadership people of our own blood and tradition, reared amongst us, but with intelligence, drive and vision. During the 1939-45 war, one of Winston Churchill's calls to Roosevelt was "Give us the tools, and we will finish the job". This government must seek ways to give the willing and active Falkland Islander the chance of development in the form of low-interest loans and some farms are already making or planning to make land available. Such action will help develop these Islands as they should be developed, and the potential is here both on land and in the sea.

It is however of great importance if government, in part fulfilment of Lord Shackleton's advice, really does intend to appoint a Development Officer, as it should, then great thought must be given to this officer's selection. He must know and understand the Islanders who are looking for economic help in development whatever its form. Let us help people by all means but let us help them to help themselves. We in this Colony will not get anywhere unless we do it ourselves. No amount of overseas aid will help us unless we are prepared to work as well. Men and women of the best type look for opportunities requiring courage, vision and sacrifice and such people as these are not rare within these Islands. We must kindle the spark of incentive in our economy, because without that jobs cannot and will not be created.

Your Excellency, I welcome the arrival here of the Ministry of Overseas Development team to examine our internal transport problems as these problems are not only vital in our everyday lives but are crucial to development. We must improve things for Camp and the further you get from Stanley the worse the problem.

Moving now to a matter which has been concerning me for some time - that of our industry and the prices received for the wool produced. Traditionally on the open market Falkland wool has always received a slight premium over other wools of its type due to its special qualities. For the last few years our wool has not been sold at an open auction but generally by telephone between two firms. We were told then that this was in our interests. I wonder if it is still in our interests. Whenever a third buyer appears from time to time prices have risen noticeably. At the most recent sale this third buyer did not operate and prices realised for quality Falkland wool were the same, I repeat, the same, as for such British wools as Red Kempy and light grey Welsh, and for cast Swaledale.

Now woolmen will know that there is little comparison between those classes of wool and hogget and shearling Falkland wool. At the same time wool comparable to those classes from the Falklands realised prices some 20% higher than did ours. I am wondering, therefore, whether we are receiving a true and fair price for our wool, our only product and one on which not only private farms rely but also the product on which this government relies for the major part of its income.

Being the last member to rise to speak to the Motion of Thanks most of the things have been said and I'm in complete agreement, particularly with what was said by the Honourable Member for East Falkland and the Honourable Member for West Falkland. On more localised issues, I am pleased that there has recently been an extensive visit to Camp by a Medical Officer. I sincerely hope that this can be repeated in the not too distant future. These sort of visits help a lot in easing the Camp medical problems.

Your Excellency, we look forward with great optimism to hearing a report on the recent trials with VHF radio communications in the Camp. So far, unofficial reports are very promising. I trust that if this should be the best answer for future Camp radio communications, then we will move as quickly as possible to get the system operational. FIGAS is now thankfully returning to a near normal scale of operations, but I think that we are all agreed that alternative aircraft are needed. Not only to cope with the present demands but for future increases as we develop.

I am delighted to hear of the proposal to start centralising secondary education in the near future. It will indeed be as soon as we can do it as a higher standard of education is a very important matter for us all and particularly for families in the Camp.

Finally Your Excellency, may I make an appeal for unity. We are in a difficult period and will undoubtedly face a troubled time in the next few months. We can, and will, safely overcome our problems if we are all working together. I appeal for unity between Stanley and the Camp, for a better working relationship between the government and the Falkland Islands Committee; but above all, I appeal for unity between the people.

Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion."

The Hon The Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, even if it was appropriate for an official to criticise, I don't think there is anything left to criticise! However I will look for something outside the Islands in a few moments to criticise. The first thing I would like to associate myself with is the tribute you paid to the Hon Mr A B Monk and Mr Etheridge - their representation of the Falkland Islands at the talks in Canada. I should also like to welcome the new members to this Council, including my colleague, the new Chief Secretary. And I would also like to welcome back some of the old sparring partners!

One thing which you referred to was my visit abroad, and I must say that I enjoyed it a great deal; even the work was very enjoyable.

However there was one very small matter which relates to the Falkland Islands which I was not very pleased with, and that was the exhibit at the Commonwealth Institute in London. I was absolutely appalled when I visited the Institute. I thought it did not represent the Islands at all. I think that we here should guide the Commonwealth Institute and put forward a much better exhibit. I don't think we can put all the blame on them. I think there's probably been a lack of direction and assistance from us all here. If nothing better can be thought up I would suggest a model farm in miniature be assembled at the Institute building, because the very small and unrepresentative display there is terrible. I also noticed the Antarctic Territory was not much better and I advised the members of the British Antarctic Survey of this.

I've nothing further to add. I beg to support the Motion."

The Hon The Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency. Sir, in rising to support this Motion I may have to call for some slight credit on the indulgencies that you so generously asked for on my behalf earlier today. And particularly because I understand that it is a Parliamentary convention for a new member not to be controversial, but I notice that the Honourable Mover of this Motion indicated some misgivings about your analogy of the railway. And I myself was certainly worried, at first hearing, to your drawing attention to the muddle in the builder's yard. However if there is a muddle in the builder's yard, one of the things that I've learned in the very short time that I've been here is that there are some excellent people to help sort it out, and I'd like to place that on the record, because I've heard today, and have heard in informal meetings of my colleagues, of the tremendous range of tasks which face the official sector of our community. I would have been worried if I had not met and seen the quality of the work that goes on in all the departments. I think it's important to say that because we are a small community and I think the Falklands is well served in that sector. I have no misgivings about the support that I shall receive, and thereby the whole community, from all the departments, and in particular my own. I think I'm allowed on this occasion, Sir, to make points on clarification. I think it is important, since there was a misgiving expressed about the school hostel. It is not the intention to go for a temporary solution. On the contrary, in order to speed up the move, the possibility is being examined of some temporary solution which would accelerate the move while the permanent building was under construction and I think that it is this matter, which is still only being considered as a matter of feasibility, which demonstrates the mood we are attempting to inject of purposeful movement forward, cutting corners, not at the expense of efficiency but to inculcate some of that spirit which my colleagues have mentioned about seeing things happen.

I was pleased to hear one of my colleagues mention, Sir, that we must not be frightened of making mistakes. Inevitably some may be made, but if their dimension is small and they are made for the right reasons then I don't think we have to fear the comments of the community, if we can show that things are moving forward.

Having said that, Sir, I am delighted also to support this Motion."

The President

"Well, thank you, Honourable Members. I think excellent speeches and some very valuable points were made, one of which I shall take. I must be careful with my analogies.

Now might we move on to other business before we take a natural break - in about a quarter of an hour."

PAPERS LAID ON THE TABLE BY THE HON THE CHIEF SECRETARY

Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor-in-Council since June 1977.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

Clerk

"Question No 13 of 1977 by the Hon W E Bowles"

"Can the Chief Secretary indicate when the pot-holes in Brandon Road and the surface of lower Hebe Street will be repaired to a publicly acceptable condition?"

Chief Secretary

"I regret that I am not yet able to give a precise date when work will be starting on making good the road surface in the two places to which the Hon Member has made reference. However I am pleased to be able to say that experiments are beginning this week using the tar spreader and spot-mix machine by a small group of the Public Works Department staff who have experience in using tar. These experimental trials will, it is hoped, prove a new method which is both more effective and cheaper than the previous use of cement. The PWD are confident of this and it will tackle the Hebe Street problem first and then surface a whole section of Brandon Road, work which will in itself help to test the suitability of the unfamiliar equipment and the method used."

Clerk

"Question No 14 of 1977 by the Hon W E Bowles"

"Will the Financial Secretary disclose the total cost to date of the oil jetty project?"

Financial Secretary

"Sir, the amount charged for this development project which is being financed by a grant from the British Government, up to the end of October, amounted to £8,274."

Mr A B Monk

"Will the Financial Secretary please tell us who is going to build the jetty, and why?"

Financial Secretary

"Could I ask this to wait please; there is a question on this later in the meeting?"

Chief Secretary

"May I, Sir, rise on a point of clarification and inform him that a written question has been tabled on these precise points, in the name of the Hon Stuart Wallace, and for the benefit of people who may not have read the answer it is expected that action on site construction will start next September."

Clerk

"Question No 15 of 1977 by the Hon W E Bowles"

"What is the maximum time limit before Stanley Airport is expected to earn some revenue?"

Chief Secretary

"With your permission, Sir, I would like to answer this question, together with Question No 18 in the name of the Hon Stuart Wallace. We have always been thinking, Sir, in minimum rather than maximum terms, and I am not unhopeful that the first revenues from Stanley Airport may be received this week.

The delay arose in opening the airport from the need to ensure that the LADE services to and from the new airport would be fully covered by the sovereignty umbrella in the same way as those from the temporary airfield. This was of course a matter between Her Majesty's Government in Britain and the Argentine Government. We have been continually pressing for an early decision. I am pleased to be able to say today, Sir, that HMG have now had the Argentine Government's confirmation that the 1972 Exchange of Notes also covers the LADE services to and from Stanley Airport. Accordingly we are informing LADE and private flyers that the airport is now open for their use."

/Mr T J D Miller

Mr T J D Miller

"May I ask the Hon The Chief Secretary, will there be an official opening ceremony involving British officials and British aircraft?"

Chief Secretary

"There will be an official opening of the Airport, Sir, but for obvious reasons it is preferable to have this following an adequate proving period. We have already asked the authorities in London to let us know what VIPs might be available to open it, but I can't give the Member an assurance of a British aircraft."

Mr W E Bowles

"Can the Hon The Chief Secretary indicate what amount of revenue is expected on the first week?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, this is difficult because I am proposing to lay before the first meeting of Executive Council Regulations governing the revenue factors and this is beyond my powers to predict at this stage, until I have had Executive Council's opinions."

Clerk

"Question No 16 of 1977 by the Hon S B Wallace":

"Would the Administration explain what action it has taken to ensure that there is no repetition of the recent events leading to drastic fuel rationing being imposed?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, the Administration is compiling a detailed record of the demand for, and the usage of, all types of fuel oils so that it is better able, in consultations with YPF, to represent any case for increasing both supplies and the reserve stocks."

Mr T J D Miller

"Sir, may I ask the Hon The Chief Secretary once this appraisal has been made, will the Administration ask YPF to maintain minimum fuel stocks in line with other international agreements?"

Chief Secretary

"I readily give the assurance that the Administration will take the point that the Councillor and my Honourable colleague has made."

/Question No 17 of 1977

Clerk

"Question No 17 of 1977 by the Hon S B Wallace":

"What aliens, if any, have enquired about or been granted, a licence to hold land in the Colony in the last twelve months?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, Government has received no applications from aliens in the last twelve months for a licence to hold land, nor have any such licences been granted."

Clerk

"Question No 18 of 1977 by the Hon S B Wallace":

"What is causing the delay in bringing the permanent airstrip into operation?"

This Question was answered in conjunction with No 15 of 1977.

Clerk

"Question No 19 of 1977 by the Hon T J D Miller":

"It is apparent that FIGAS can no longer cope with a steadily increasing work load using only two Beaver aircraft on floats. The 'Islander' would appear to be suited to our needs to relieve the strain on a purely float 'plane service.

What action is the Administration taking in this field and are they still considering alternatives to the 'Islander'?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, the 'Islander' and all alternatives are still under consideration. The Aviation Advisory Committee to look into the future of FIGAS, the establishment of which you announced at the last meeting of this Council, has just submitted an interim report which is to be laid before the new Executive Council at its first meeting. Meanwhile, as you've heard, Mr Jeremy Peat, of the Economic Planning Staff of the Ministry of Overseas Development, who arrived in Stanley on 17 November, is to prepare an integrated study of the Islands' internal transport system. It will be part of his brief to indicate how best resources may be deployed in maintaining communications which will meet the social, economic, commercial and developmental needs of the community. The Administration has been doing everything possible to help with these investigations and it would naturally be premature for them to anticipate the policy decisions of government."

Clerk

"Question No 20 of 1977 by the Hon T J D Miller":

"What action is the Administration taking to prevent the possible entry of foot and mouth disease into the Colony from South America?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, an official committee was appointed in September to investigate and implement ways of reducing the risk of introducing foot and mouth disease, from every possible source, not just from South America. On 12 October a Special Warrant was approved to enable the committee to implement its decisions.

The measures so far taken include: first, the provision of small printed forms for distribution on LADE aircraft requiring passengers to declare to the Customs Officer all foodstuffs, livestock, plants and seeds, and also to inform him if they have been on a farm or in contact with farm animals during the last three months.

The second measure is that visiting vessels are now being asked to store their food-waste in plastic bags for burning at the government incinerator, instructions for the construction of which have just been given. A third measure is that supplies of these plastic bags have been ordered so that these can be given to ships whenever necessary and the Public Works Department are constructing a special trailer for the transportation of this waste to the incinerator.

A fourth measure is that disinfectant mats and metal trays to form foot-baths have been purchased to be placed at the gangways of any visiting ships which arrive without these things. And finally the controls on the importation of a wide and extended range of animal products, which have previously been incorporated in a number of different Proclamations, have been consolidated within one Proclamation which has been prepared for His Excellency the Governor's signature."

Mr T J D Miller

"Sir, may I ask The Hon The Chief Secretary, in view of the risk that rats have been known to be carriers of foot and mouth disease, what action will the Administration take to ensure that rats from visiting ships do not come ashore?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, I am pleased to be able to tell you that almost one of the first things which happened on my arrival here was a note from the Medical Officer pointing out the problem of rats on ships. I am assured that the Medical Department inspect ships very thoroughly and certainly, on two of the last three occasions, the ships have been virtually free of rats. We have a lively interest in this problem: the Medical Department and the Harbourmaster's Department are very aware now of the measures which we expect ships to take and also that I have made representations to the Argentine authorities about this problem."

Clerk

"Question No 21 of 1977 by the Hon T J D Miller":

"What action is Government taking to implement the recommendation that a boarding hostel be built in Stanley for Camp children in order to centralise secondary education?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, the proposed establishment of a permanent boarding establishment in Stanley was the subject of a visit by Mr Riley, an Architectural Adviser from the Ministry of Overseas Development, last September. His report was brought by hand to us last Thursday and is now receiving urgent attention. Meanwhile the Superintendent of Education is actively exploring the feasibility of building a temporary hostel with prefabricated buildings which were surplus to the requirements of Johnston Construction Limited."

Clerk

"Question No 22 of 1977 by the Hon D S Evans":

"Could Government explain why, when the beat system of Camp teaching is already inadequate and stretched to the limit, they appear to be reducing the number of teachers on the beats thus aggravating the situation further?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, the current reduction of Camp teachers is only temporary and is due largely to the return of the VSOs to Britain in August. Although indents for new teachers were sent forward some time ago, replacements will not be interviewed in Britain before December and cannot therefore be expected to arrive here before February or March. Our new Superintendent of Education is devising a system designed to avoid repetition of such gaps in the Education Department."

Clerk

"Question No 23 of 1977 by the Hon D S Evans":

"Could Government explain why, when an officer was appointed especially for the position and is now into his second tour, there is still no visible sign of the system of taped programmes for Camp children being implemented?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, the cassette teaching system is now under way and the first basic teaching tapes are already in use in Camp. This project was originally frustrated by the long delays in the supply of the necessary equipment, and current plans aim at accelerating production and introduction of teaching tapes. All settlement schools now have players or audio units and transformers and teachers on beats are being supplied with players and transformers, as the material becomes available for the age groups concerned."

/Mr D S Evans

Mr D S Evans

"Sir, could you give any indication of when these things will be made available to beat teachers?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, as I understand the problem, this is a sequential development from a basic age group developing as and when the material is produced and, of course, not all settlements will have such material if they do not have children of the age group for which material has already been prepared."

Clerk

"Question No 24 of 1977 by the Hon D S Evans":

"Could Government give assurances that now that we have a full complement of pilots every effort will be made to go back to a regular system of mail dropping so that irrespective of whether there is UK mail or not, all stations, including outlying islands such as Sedge and Sea Lion, can look forward to mail at least once every two weeks and preferably weekly?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, I'm pleased to renew an assurance which has, I understand, been given to successive Councils, that every effort will be made to ensure that all inbound letter mail is delivered to the Camp within three flying days of its receipt in Stanley, a target which the Air Service has generally managed to achieve in the past and intends to maintain in the future. Close liaison is maintained between the Air Service and the Post Office, with particular interest in the smaller isolated settlements to ensure prompt delivery."

Mr D S Evans

"Sir, it's difficult because I have to ask another question. I would like to say a lot but it would be statement rather than question. I think I haven't the experience to do this well so I'll just thank the Honourable Member for this reply."

Chief Secretary

"May I say something, Sir, to encourage the Honourable Member to talk both with FIGAS and the Head of the Post Office to determine what his precise problems are, and I'm sure they'll be very ready to help him solve them."

Clerk

"Question No 25 of 1977 by the Hon W H Goss JP":

"What measures are envisaged to control the drift of sand on the North side of Cape Pembroke Airfield, and at the temporary airstrip when it is lifted?"

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

"Sir, it is expected that the drift of sand will lessen considerably once the grassing which is already in progress at the new airport is completed and the new grass takes root. It is also envisaged that the area of the old airport will be grassed when the runway plates are lifted. It's been tentatively agreed already with the LADE authorities that the runway plates will not be removed before the spring of 1978 to enable government to take steps to prepare grassing of this area in the 1978 spring season. Government are also taking steps to prevent cattle grazing in the Cape Pembroke peninsula for the next two years in order to enable the sand grasses destroyed in the area by heavy machinery during the process of constructing the new airport to grow again. This safeguard ought to restore the landscape to its original condition and thus put an end to sand drift."

Mr W E Bowles

"One supplementary on that one. Can the Chief Secretary give us any indication how long it will take before the sand drift is in fact stopped?"

Chief Secretary

"I'm not prepared to offer any promises or even predictions on that, Sir. I have no knowledge of grass or the problem. But it's something we can look into and try and satisfy my Hon Colleague on what the expectation is."

Clerk

"Question No 26 of 1977 by the Hon W H Goss JP":

"Has anyone been reimbursed on the increase in air fares from Comodoro Rivadavia to Buenos Aires, and if not, how much money is involved?"

Chief Secretary

"I believe, Sir, that the Hon Member is referring to the increase charged in the return fare between Comodoro and Buenos Aires from £53.92 to £118.48, in May and June of the early part of this year. We are well aware of the claims for refund made on behalf of passengers here by the Falkland Islands Company, and there may have been others made individually. Her Majesty's Embassy in Buenos Aires were informed about the increase in May and were passed details of individual claims for reimbursement when these were made available to us, in August. The Embassy took the matter up promptly with the Argentine authorities with the result that in June the fare was returned to its earlier level. Reimbursement has not yet been made and this question is still being pursued energetically with the Argentine authorities by the Embassy. I have also made personal and informal representations to the Argentine authorities here and asked if they can do anything to hasten the resolution of this matter."

/Clerk

Clerk

"Question No 27 of 1977 by the Hon W H Goss JP":

"What plant and machinery does Government intend to purchase from Johnston Construction Limited and when?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, we are hoping to acquire a range of different items of plant and machinery to be used in certain capital works projects planned. The items include such things as a grader, mechanical shovel, water pumps, rock drills and vehicles. I have deliberately used the word 'acquire' rather than 'buy' as it had been expected that these items might be transferred to government as part of the final settlement of the construction of the new airfield. Negotiations on that are still continuing in London and may, we understand, have run into some difficulties. The urgency of our having access to at least some of the equipment is well appreciated. Mr Jameson, the Roads Engineer on loan from the Forestry Commission, is already here and would like to start making use of certain items. The Hon Member may also be interested to know that Captain Woodward of the Royal Engineers arrived last Thursday to advise on the long-term problems of maintaining and operating heavy plant."

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, could the Honourable The Chief Secretary please tell me if Captain Woodward or some suitable authority will be surveying this machinery as to its condition before we pay?"

Chief Secretary

"That, Sir, is an integral part of Captain Woodward's job here."

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

Question No 7 of 1977 by the Hon S B Wallace

"What is the current situation regarding the recommended extension to the permanent airstrip?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary

Sir, in recommending a 900 metre extension of the runway at a cost of £3 - 4 million, the Shackleton Report last year conceded that "This is likely to be somewhat greater than the present value of additional income that might be generated by the extension, via additional economic activity."

This year three different Ministers, speaking in the House of Commons, have put forward HMG's views on the subject:

/On 2 February,

On 2 February, the late Mr Anthony Crosland, then Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, said: "The Government, like Lord Shackleton and his colleagues, are in no doubt that the potential for development is there, and they will at the appropriate moment commission the essential preliminary studies to determine whether airport enlargement is likely to be practicable and cost effective."

On 30 March, Mr Ted Rowlands said: "The extension of the runway, costing more than £5 million on current estimates, is a serious and important project, but it seems to us that on present evidence it would be hard to justify it. It could bear very heavily on the current revenue problems of the Islands. We have not closed the door to the project, but we need more convincing that it is viable."

On 13 July, answering another question in the Commons, Mr John Tomlinson said: "It is the Government's view that any extension of the airport would need to be based on a study of likely traffic and the cost effectiveness of a larger airport. This study could be undertaken only when we know what the major economic developments are likely to be."

The Falkland Islands Government are therefore waiting to hear further from HMG.

Question No 8 of 1977 by the Hon S B Wallace

"What explanation has been offered by YPF for the recent rapid fluctuation in the price of fuel?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary:

Sir, variations in prices of YPF products have been due to two factors - increases in prices in Argentina, and variations in the pound/peso exchange rate.

Due to a failure in communications on YPF's part, implementation of these price adjustments was delayed with the result that several adjustments took place in a short time. Our Embassy in Buenos Aires have taken the matter up with the Argentine authorities with a view to stabilising the situation.

Question No 9 of 1977 by the Hon S B Wallace

"When will full implementation of the YPF Agreement begin?"

Question No 10 of 1977 by the Hon S B Wallace

"When is it planned to begin work on the fuel jetty, and what labour is to be used?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary:

Sir, with permission I shall reply to questions Nos 9 and 10 together.

/It is expected

It is expected that actual on-site construction of the proposed YPF jetty will begin next September, although some preparatory work will commence earlier. Responsibility for the provision of this jetty falls to Her Majesty's Government and, after considering a number of alternatives, the Ministry of Overseas Development in London have decided in favour of an Argentine Air Force Maintenance team under Vice Comodoro Remorino, who is known to many Falkland Islanders from his work on the temporary airstrip. In reaching their decision the CDM are understood to have been strongly influenced by the lower price (£282,700) and shorter construction period (200 days - i.e. completion around April 1979) quoted by Vice Comodoro Remorino, in contrast to any other possibility. The Ministry also had in mind the likelihood that all available Island manpower would then be absorbed by other essential projects.

When the jetty is completed, the way will be open to full implementation of the YPF Agreement, which will mean that the Colony's most used fuel, gas-oil, will also go on sale in Stanley at mainland prices.

Question No 11 of 1977 by the Hon T J D Miller

"What reasons have LADE given for the forthcoming alteration of flights from Thursday to Monday? Is the Government aware that this will necessitate many camp residents intending to fly out having to come into Stanley some four days beforehand instead of two days as at present?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary

Sir, according to the local LADE office the change in the local flight schedule had to be made in order to take into account seasonal changes in the flight schedules both of other national carriers within Argentina and of international airlines so that connections with those airlines could be satisfactorily assured.

Government is well aware of the difficulties that the proposed change will create for travellers from Camp and representations have accordingly been made to LADE.

Question No 12 of 1977 by the Hon T J D Miller

"Will the Government give camp patients who are brought into Stanley for medical treatment priority with the Air Service to return home once cleared from the Hospital?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary

Sir, the Air Service staff will continue to try to give priority to all patients returning home to Camp after their discharge from hospital. In practice, however, patients frequently request postponement of their return. Then, in common with all other travellers, it is impracticable for them to retain their priority status.

Question No 13 of 1977 by the Hon T J D Miller

"What plans have Government for repairing and improving the camp road system?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary

Sir, the Government has taken a major step towards the construction of a camp roads system, which hardly exists in any recognisable form at present.

Recognising that the social, economic, and agricultural development of the Islands is dependent upon an efficient integrated internal transport system; and realising too that to achieve this would be beyond our own resources, Government approached the Ministry of Overseas Development for assistance and advice.

An integrated Internal Transport Study began on 10 November with the arrival in Stanley of Mr Jameson, a Civil Engineer on loan from the Forestry Commission in Britain, with specialist experience in the construction and maintenance of all-weather tracks in rugged conditions.

Mr Jameson is looking initially at the possibility of constructing an all-weather track from Stanley to Darwin and from Stanley to Estancia, but he will also be advising on possible techniques of inexpensive construction of tracks throughout the two main islands, the likely costs of their efficient maintenance as well as evaluating their role within a flexible communications network.

The task of preparing the overall study, the emphasis of which should be to devise a practicable system, will fall to Mr Jeremy Peat of the Economic Planning Staff of the Ministry of Overseas Development, who was expected to arrive in Stanley on 17 November.

In the light of this study an application for the necessary funds will be made to the Ministry of Overseas Development.

Question No 14 of 1977 by the Hon D S Evans

"What progress has been made in investigating the possibility of having a national lottery?"

Reply by the Hon the Financial Secretary

Sir, Government asked the Ministry of Overseas Development early this year for expert advice on the fiscal structure of the Colony including, inter alia, the possibility of introducing a state lottery in the Falkland Islands.

The Fiscal Adviser, Mr Pepper, undertook this assignment on his recent visit to the Colony and has now given a clear exposition of the problems which may be encountered in introducing a state lottery.

/The outcome of the examination

The outcome of the examination is not encouraging and it can be said that the Government would itself be taking a gamble in introducing a state lottery.

The report by Mr Pepper will be considered in Executive Council shortly when a policy decision on the introduction of a state lottery will be taken.

Question No 15 of 1977 by the Hon D S Evans

"Could Government say whether they have any contingency plans in the event of the 'Monsunen' being found no longer economically viable and withdrawn from service before any replacement is obtained?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary

No, Sir. The Government have had no intimation that such contingency plans are necessary. It is true that the 'Monsunen' has incurred growing losses over the past two years, mainly owing to heavy increases in dry-docking charges. But it is understood that only a small loss is envisaged in the year ending 30 September 1978, and we have no reason to suppose that a shipping service so essential to the well-being of our wool industry is likely to be withdrawn.

Question No 16 of 1977 by the Hon W H Goss JP

"Territorial Waters"

"What are the limits of our Territorial Waters and if we have such limits, has it been internationally accepted?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary

Sir, Great Britain, like most nations, claims territorial waters to an extent of one marine league (three miles) measured from low-water mark. This claim is generally accepted internationally, but certain nations (Norway for one) claim that the marine league should be measured not from low-water mark but from arbitrary base lines joining points on the coast.

The British Government in support of its claim enacted section 7 of the Territorial Waters Jurisdiction Act 1878 which provides that:-

"The territorial waters of Her Majesty's dominions", in reference to the sea, means such part of the sea adjacent to the coast of the United Kingdom, or the coast of some other part of Her Majesty's dominions as is deemed by international law to be within the territorial sovereignty of Her Majesty; and for the purpose of any offence declared by this Act to be within the jurisdiction of the Admiralty, any part of the open sea within one marine league of the coast measured from low-water mark shall be deemed to be open sea within the territorial waters of Her Majesty's dominions."

The Act of 1878 applies to any Colony.

Question No 17 of 1977 by the Hon W H Goss JP

"Rome Talks"

"Is it envisaged to send a Falkland Islands representative to any further talks that may take place, and if so would he be sent as observer only?"

Reply by the Hon the Chief Secretary

Sir, these are matters for Councillors to decide in the light of all the factors involved and having regard to the repeated assurances of Her Majesty's Ministers.

MOTION by the Hon the Chief Secretary

"That, in accordance with Standing Rules and Orders, section 40A, the following Committees of this Council be constituted:

Education Committee consisting of all Elected Members under the Chairmanship of the Hon D S Evans.

Development Committee consisting of the Hon A B Monk, the Hon W H Goss JP and the Hon D S Evans under the Chairmanship of the Chief Secretary.

In each case the Chairman and two members shall constitute a quorum."

Chief Secretary

"I rise to propose the adoption of this Motion, conscious that my colleagues have been giving careful thought and attention to the priorities that face them, and I think that these proposals are indicative of two of the principal problems to which this Council will wish to address itself. As you will observe, Sir, the Education Committee will consist of all the Elected Members and the Development Committee, on a rather more selective basis, under my own Chairmanship - but I think and expect on a temporary basis. I think there is nothing that I need add to this because the importance of this proposal is self-evident and I have nothing more to say, Sir, than to propose the adoption of this Motion."

The Motion was seconded by the Hon the Financial Secretary and adopted without debate.

/MOTION by the Hon the Fin Secretary

MOTION by the Hon the Financial Secretary

"That the Income Tax (Annual Values) Rules 1977 made by the Governor-in-Council on 19th July, 1977 in exercise of the powers conferred by sections 5. (b)(ii) and 5.(c) of the Income Tax Ordinance be confirmed, in accordance with the second proviso of section 5 of the Ordinance."

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, the prescribed values for the Income Tax assessment of benefits in kind are now hopelessly out of date. The last revision was made in 1968. The inflation in the past decade has made many of the values completely unrealistic. A review of annual values of benefits in kind was considered necessary at the time of the last Budget session and was in fact taken into account when the estimates of income tax revenue were compiled for the purpose of considering the income tax Bills passed by the Legislative Council at that meeting.

The Income Tax Ordinance requires the Rules to be made by the Governor-in-Council, and although the Rules were in fact made on the 19th day of July it has not been possible to refer them to the Legislative Council for confirmation until today. The majority of the values have been increased by approximately fifty per cent. Although the revised values are still not considered to be realistic, it is considered prudent not to go any further at this stage, largely because of the steep percentage increase. The matter will, however, be kept under review. It is generally felt that the right course is to make minor adjustments frequently rather than large infrequent adjustments.

I beg to move that the Motion be adopted."

The Motion was seconded by the Hon the Chief Secretary and Hon Members spoke to the Motion as follows -

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I do reluctantly support the Motion. I've got to make one little point. The Honourable the Financial Secretary said that the rates were hopelessly out of date, because they were set some time ago. Well, I don't know, but after all the houses are getting more and more out of date too. I think my house is absolutely out of date and perhaps I should get a reduction! Another point, I always feel about this: especially in the Camp you have no option whatsoever - you've got to live in whatever house is allocated to you for the particular duty, whether an outside shepherd or a shepherd in a settlement, and that's the shepherd's house. That's it; you live in it; you can't say 'No, I don't like that house, I would like to go in a smaller one, it'll be cheaper for me'. It's just one of the facts of life. And so does the manager, of course.

/You can't decide to live

You can't decide to live in Stanley and manage from there. So that I always think that the condition of this tax is a little unfair, but I suppose we have to accept it. Harold's got to balance his Budget somehow!

The Motion was then adopted without further debate.

MOTION by the Hon the Financial Secretary

"That it be resolved that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period 22nd June 1977 to 19th July 1977 be adopted."

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, during the period ending 19th July 1977 the Standing Finance Committee met on 22nd June and 19th July and approved expenditure of £28,411 for 1976-77 and £3,520 for 1977-78 financial year. As the Report does not deal with expenditure proposed but not approved by the Committee, I beg to move that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee be adopted without debate."

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion, which was then adopted without debate.

MOTION by the Hon D S Evans

"That this House wishes it to be conveyed to Her Majesty's Government that the people of the Falkland Islands have shown overwhelmingly that they wish to remain British and therefore calls upon Her Majesty's Government to honour the pledge that has been made by successive British Governments to respect the wishes of the Falkland Islands' people and declare unambiguously that as the people of the Falkland Islands wish to remain British they will be allowed to do so."

Mr D S Evans

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think this Motion is self-explanatory. I don't think it should ever have been necessary in the first place. The British Government indicated that if we wished to remain British they would let us do so, and I think we've on many occasions shown overwhelmingly that we do wish to remain British. But there's been no reply to that, no confirmation that we can remain British. That's the purpose of this Motion. To just ask them to confirm that they will allow us to remain British. It's very necessary that we know this, and that we're told this for our own peace of mind, because it's the key to expansion. It's just a clear question, asking them to let us remain British as we've shown very clearly that we wish to remain so. And I think I needn't say any more."

Mr W D Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish to support this Motion, not because I doubt the British Government's sincerity in any way, but we need security and we need a statement from the British Government that we will always remain British. It might be a difficult one for the British Government to make, inasmuch as they accept that the wishes of the people will always be respected. If the wishes change - or the people do, of course - then they've got room to move. I don't think this type of attitude now is what the people really require. And, as I said in my election speech, that Great Britain is well aware of our wishes but yet we're living in a state of uncertainty. I would like to support this Motion and I'm pretty certain that the British Government is not just going to throw it out of the window, they are going to consider it very carefully and I would like to urge Honourable Members to give this their full support. Thank you, Sir."

Mr J H Goss

"Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion. There has been a considerable change in the wording of this pledge from time to time and a reassurance would do a lot of good; for the peace of mind of people. Sometimes it's 'the wishes of the people', 'the interests of the people'; the Islanders - the Falkland Islanders - we see a change from time to time, to suit the occasion - for that's all it is. Thank you."

Mr T J D Miller

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to support this Motion I feel that what the people of these Islands want from Her Majesty's Government is a clear statement that our wishes, not our interests, will be respected and upheld. At one time we were told that our wishes would be upheld, but recently this word has disappeared, and been replaced by the word 'interests'. The word 'interests' of the Islands is open to wide interpretation. What we, the Islanders, feel is in our best interests, is not necessarily what somebody else thinks is in our best interests. We know that the British Government has our thoughts - they know how we feel - but they haven't been able to express our wishes clearly and in a language that a layman can understand. We have had speeches from Ministers in Parliament supporting our case but they have put it in such a way that we are left thinking afterwards 'what did they really say'. They didn't really say anything. They certainly didn't say what we wanted them to say. What we want is a clear, forthright statement from the British Government that the Falkland Islands are British and will remain British, unless the people of those Islands decide otherwise. And it is highly unlikely that that is going to happen. What we want Britain, too, to do, is not just talk about our sovereignty but openly assert the British sovereignty of these Islands. Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion."

/Mr S B Wallace

Mr S B Wallace

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, my Honourable Friend on my right expressed my views exactly. What we require now is reassurance. The word 'interests' has crept in recently, and it must be our wishes that will be respected. Sir, I beg to support the Motion."

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish to strongly support the Motion."

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, I have no reason to believe that the British Government will not respect the wishes of the people, but I also go along and support the private Motion."

The Motion was adopted.

MOTION by the Honourable T J D Miller

"That this House deploras the lack of visible movement by the British Government towards implementing the major recommendations of the Shackleton Report which is now eighteen months old."

Mr T J D Miller

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in introducing this Motion I wish to make it clear that the Shackleton recommendations to which I am particularly referring are those of the airport extension and proposals for a fishing industry. Our fish resources are a fact, not just a theory like oil. It is a fact that this area of the South Atlantic has a tremendous fishing potential in a world that is increasingly becoming short of protein. The Russians, the Japanese, the Koreans, the Polish, the Germans: they are not fishing around these waters for the fun of it, they are here because it is worth while for them to be here. What is Britain doing about it? Virtually nothing, except to tell us that nothing can be done without the approval of the Argentine dictatorship. We must not be deterred from initiating and developing such ventures as coastal and off-shore fishing and similar activities merely because this would be against the appeasement policy of the British Government towards Argentina. Britain should remember the fate of its appeasement policy towards Adolf Hitler and Mussolini in 1939, or 1938. Neither Alginate Industries nor any other major investor can be expected to appear here until the British Government openly asserts her sovereignty over these Islands, instead of just talking about it.

One of the ways - not the only way - in which Britain could show herself is by extending the airstrip so that as we develop larger aircraft will be able to come here, as they will need to. The present airstrip at Cape Pembroke cannot even take a medium-haul jet from Buenos Aires or other South American city should the need arise. I am not talking in terms of an airport to receive direct flights from London - it would be very nice if they could come here but until we develop more it's just not on financially. What we do need, however, as pointed out by the Shackleton Report, is an airport capable of receiving medium-haul jets and partially loaded long-haul aircraft from South America in the first instance. Undoubtedly this will cost us more to run initially, but this cost would with time be offset by the inflow of investment in other industries using our two known resources: alginates and fish, for a start. British fishing concerns are at long last showing an interest here and are looking to the British Government to provide active support. This Britain must do before it is too late. In 1950 an Order-in-Council defined the boundary of our continental shelf as being the 200m isobath, that is 100 fathoms. Therefore, as I see it, we have no problem in that field for an in-shore industry. We have the raw material in abundance. Regarding the prospects for deep sea fishing, these are in some way tied up with international limits still to be settled. And the matter of policing the 200 mile limit must also be considered, but this is not insurmountable if you think of an aircraft. The fact is, though, that other countries are already starting to exploit these waters and Britain has no valid excuse for not doing so. Argentina, I understand, has claimed a 200-mile limit which, naturally, to their idea, includes us as part of their zone. I regret the fact that Britain has not, to my knowledge, lodged a counter-claim to protect our rights. We cannot continue as we are. The British Government must face up to the issue and the decision must be made. And once made, backed up by action and not just words and more experts. Thank you."

Mr S B Wallace

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the most relevant word in the Motion of the Honourable Mr T J Miller is 'major' - implementing the major recommendations of the Shackleton Report. The Shackleton Report made many recommendations, many of which we see are bearing fruit now. The airport extension was the most important, and there has been no move on that. It is important that we remember that the airport extension will not allow us to receive Concorde, simply short-haul jets from Buenos Aires or other South American cities. If we are to see any progress with tourism or alginates, we need at least to be able to have an economically loaded short-haul jet to land here. Nine hundred metres - another argument against the runway - has been the extra cost of maintaining it; I don't see how an extra 900 metres will be so relatively costly. The Honourable Tim Miller put his case fairly concisely and there's not much more I can say, but I would like to stress that the major recommendation was the airfield extension and so far there are not, I believe, sufficient reasons for the British Government to not go ahead with that. Sir, I beg to support the Motion."

/Mr A B Monk

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I do support the Motion. I'm not certain in my own mind, and never have been, that the airport extension is of such major significance. It certainly had nothing to do with deterring Alginat Industries. We all know perfectly well why they didn't come. They found more profitable areas elsewhere. And it certainly would not deter an oil company. Building airstrips to oil companies is like spending pocket money. If an oil company wants to operate, they'll build an airstrip; they'll build a five-mile airstrip if they want it, and they might not even use the one at Cape Pembroke if they find it more convenient to go somewhere else. I don't believe it's got anything to do with deterring off-shore fishing whatsoever. I'm not certain even that off-shore fishing would to us make much difference. Pelagic whaling and pelagic fishing and that sort of thing is a self-contained business and, even supposing we had the right of an EEZ (Exclusiva Economic Zone) around our shores, very little would rub off on us except a very small licensing fee. But to imagine that we could ever police a one hundred fathom limit, or an EEZ of two hundred miles is like tilting at windmills. The Australian Government told us clearly - delegates from Australia when in Canada we were talking about this sort of thing - that they were totally unable to police their own two hundred mile limit. The New Zealand delegate told us the same thing. The Malayan delegate told us the same thing, that they were unable to control these areas - totally unable to. The British Government has before now announced that they haven't got the suitable ships to police their own area. How anyone expects they are going to police an area 8,000 miles from home, I don't know: I think one's got to be realistic about this. It's no use saying "This is our area, everyone else keep out", if you can't see that they keep out. If we declared an area for the British Government and everybody else fished in it, presumably British fishermen would get their share if they came down in sufficient numbers, but that's all; we couldn't deter the others, unless we have some form of joint agreement with our neighbour. Like it or not, if we want to exploit off-shore fishing and oil, we have to have some sort of participation agreement with our neighbour and it doesn't matter how you argue around it. I think - as I said, I support this Motion - but I don't attach quite the importance to the airport extension mentioned by previous speakers, nor to the fact that off-shore fishing hasn't come here yet. And I think the British Government has done quite a lot to implement the Shackleton Report. Probably a bit too slowly, but I think lately the tempo has stepped up, and I think, Sir, we have quite a lot to thank you yourself for your energetic approach to them in these matters. With those reservations I support the Motion."

Mr W F Goss

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, regarding the lengthening of the airstrip in my own mind I am quite confident that the British Government will just do that if somebody comes along and says "I'm going to spend 'x' million pounds when you do it". They have to say they'll use the field if it's /put there. I am quite put there. I am quite certain that the Government will do that. I don't entirely agree with the Honourable Mr Monk that we have to have participation with Argentina on fish. Oil, yes, but I don't see that we have to have it on fish. And as for pelagic fishing, nothing, as he says, will rub off on us. Thank you, Sir."

Mr W E Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the Motion and I would like to thank Lord Shackleton for his work on his Report. It seems that the two major recommendations appear to be the airstrip and fishing. I am not too sure from memory that these were the two major ones, but they are the ones we have been talking about today. But I am pretty certain, if my memory serves me right, that the British Government did say they would consider extending the airstrip if it could be justified. That justification - I don't think we can expect in eighteen months, or five years even - we've got to get our development off the ground before we can expect the British Government to consider extending the airstrip. But they will do it. I am convinced they will do it. I can remember at one stage when some of my constituents in 1970-71 said we'd never even get a temporary airstrip, let alone a permanent one; and now we've got two airstrips. So I'm now worrying at all about the extension. If it's necessary we'll get it, and we'll welcome it if it gives us another outlet to the rest of the world with less restrictions and less dependence on other countries.

I'm sorry, Sir, I'm no authority on fishing. I've only gone fishing up the Murrel river and I'm not very good at that - but there is a small in-shore fishing thing on the cards, and let's have a look at it. Let's see how it goes. Let's try it out; let's see its potential, and then we can snowball the thing after that if there's big money in it for us. I would agree that deep-sea fishing is not going to bring a large income for us, unless one day we are going to own the whole fleet and sell the produce to somebody else, but I can't see that happening for a day or two! I think the recommendations from the Shackleton Report are now just starting to materialise. I am pretty convinced that they are starting to move and certainly with the present team we have I can foresee some visible movement on the Shackleton Report, and having worked very closely with Lord Shackleton on his visit here I am delighted with this and I support the Motion."

Mr D S Evans

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I deliberately stood up last because I am not sure of anything on this, I am quite happy to admit. The airport extension - it could be necessary, but I think we will have to wait until it is necessary. I think we've got enough on our hands with projects we're trying to implement now. It's going to extend all the facilities we have to do just these few things at home and, obviously if the need is there I'm pretty sure the airport will be extended. On fishing I don't think we have any chance of joining the pelagic fleets - it will have to be in-shore fishing. And there are attempts to get that going. It is moving: it's not being neglected altogether. And Alginates - I wasn't sure that they are interested in coming back. I was under the impression that if the sovereignty issue is settled, and things start to develop here, then Alginates will come back. But I think we'll have to wait until that happens. I think we've got to be a little clearer on the sovereignty before there'll be any hope of development in that way at all. I'm quite content that things are moving, possibly not on all the major recommendations, but things are moving and it's a good sign. And I think things may start to escalate if it starts to go right. And I just hope it does go right. I am quite happy to support the Motion."

/have to be in-shore fishing.

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, I welcome the Motion put forward by Mr Miller because it gives an opportunity to discuss the matter though I'm afraid I do not support it, for the following reasons. For instance, as far as I know, there has been no rejection by Her Majesty's Government of any of the recommendations so far. It's purely a matter of timing and capacity. The British Government have mentioned on occasions that there should be a feasibility study before consideration of spending a large sum on the airport. And certainly as Financial Secretary of this Colony I would welcome that because I know what the cost - or some of the cost - of the maintenance of the present airport is, and also of the road, and also of the communications equipment. You may require greater capacity for much of the equipment there. Also this Council as far as I know have put forward to Her Majesty's Government a number of different priorities, but what I would like to see coming from this Council is a list of priorities stating exactly what we should go for. I would support that. I think we haven't done enough ground work - we have no development plan at present. The Shackleton Report gave us the basis for forming one but since that time there are very different views on the list of priorities. I think we should get our priorities right and then move forward. I noticed in your Address this morning you welcomed the Falkland Islands Company's initiative in establishing a fishing industry and we expect this cost may have to come from the private sector. However, I think we should give what we can to encourage it and Her Majesty's Government is looking into the question of fishing in the deep-sea areas of the South Atlantic, but first there have to be consultations with Argentina. I believe this. I go along completely with the Honourable Adrian Monk's view that it would be impossible for us to go alone - or even the British Government. It is a matter of international discussions and these are already in hand. We have had the talks in Rome which we were promised by the Minister Mr Edward Rowlands, and we have also noted that there is to be a follow-up meeting at Ministers' level. I think the British Government has done a lot so far, and although we would like to see the pace speeded up, as it is put, I don't think I can support the Motion."

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

"Sir, I welcome the attempt by the Honourable the Financial Secretary to put this question into perspective. I'm not here as an apologist for the British Government - I represent the Falkland Islands Government and share fully the impatience of everybody to get things moving. I think we do have to remember perhaps what the Shackleton Report said about the airfield, and if I may just read a quotation from it: Lord Shackleton's comment was that the extension of the runway at a cost of 3 to 4 million pounds (the prices at the time of the report) is likely to be somewhat greater than the present value of additional income that might be generated by the extension by additional economic activity. This was faint but damning praise and is the point which British Ministers picked up. Most recently Mr Ted Rowlands on the 30th of March said the extension of the runway, costing more than 5 million pounds on current estimates, is a serious and important project but it seems to us on present evidence it would be hard to justify it. It could bear very heavily on the present revenue problem in the Islands. We have not closed the door on the project but we need more convincing that it is viable. Well, that's also a hedging statement, but I think the British Government still stands on the late Secretary of State's remark in the House of Commons in February, when he said that at the appropriate moment the essential preliminary studies will be made to determine whether it is likely to be practicable and cost-effective. I don't think that the British Government are likely to renege on that.

I think it is also significant that the attempts by the British Government through the Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Fisheries have shown that the British private enterprise has been less than firm in its view of moving into this area to fish. I don't think it right to blame the British Government for whatever reasons for the indifference of the British fishing industry. It is very hard in a democratic society to stimulate private interests into doing something they don't want to do. Nevertheless, the point behind this Motion is one we all share.

We need to implement, and I think it is instructive that the Shackleton Report contained ninety-one recommendations and in January of this year the Ministry of Overseas Development, to mention one part of the British Government, had moved in some way, though perhaps not far enough, on twenty-three of them. They had either initiated action or commented on a way forward. It is difficult for us, sitting here, to understand sometimes the problems at the other end, but nevertheless it doesn't detract from the fact that we must aim to pick out those things that we can, and recognisably, get moving at once. I share the reservations expressed by the Honourable the Financial Secretary. Thank you."

/Mr T J D Miller

Mr T J D Miller

"Your Excellency, some Honourable Members have, I think, misinterpreted me. I was talking about the major recommendations of the Shackleton Report, not the recommendations of the Shackleton Report. I welcome the fact that a number of recommendations have been moved on, both here and in Britain, but there hasn't been an awful lot of movement on the major recommendations - the principal recommendations in the Report. Also, regarding the airport extension, Alginate Industries did say that they would in fact be prepared to invest here if the airport was extended. Surely that was evidence enough for the British Government to start their preliminary studies. Regarding deep-sea fishing, the point of deep-sea fishing allied to a coastal fishing industry is not so much the revenue that would come in directly from a deep-sea fishing industry but from the fact that hopefully, and I'm sure that subsidiary industries would spring up associated to it and also it would bring more people here thus leading to more population. Thank you."

The President

"....there is a difficulty. Several Councillors have got up to speak on the Motion and have in fact questioned it, and then in the end said 'I support the Motion'.

The Motion is in rather strong terms which will, as it goes from this House deplore the lack of visible movement by the British Government towards implementing the major recommendations of the Shackleton Report, when I think the speeches this afternoon qualified in many ways the intents of the Motion. As I say I do feel in some difficulty. Does the House accept the Motion in its entirety? Do all Members accept it as it stands?"

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, I criticise the Motion as it is and therefore I don't support it in its present wording."

Mr D S Evans

"I don't think I would like it to go forward as an outright condemnation of what's happened. I think things are moving, perhaps not as fast as we would like, but I'm quite hopeful."

The President

"As it stands I don't think it has the Agreement of the House, am I right?"

The President directed that the Motion lie on the Table and the Council adjourned at 16.52.

/The Council resumed

The Council resumed at 10.13 a.m. on Tuesday 22nd November 1977.

The President

"Good morning. May I go back to the business as we left it last night. We had a Motion before us and I said at the time there seemed to be indications of support for the Motion but not for its wording. And I felt that there was in fact an expression of opinion struggling to come out, so rather than talk the Motion out or to ask the Mover to withdraw it I let it lie on the Table, with the hope that we might, perhaps, possibly come to an agreed Motion. I have been informed this morning that Councillor Miller would like to replace his Motion with a further Motion and, while these circumstances are exceptional, I am perfectly agreeable to it because I would like a view expressed by this Council on the matter that Councillor Miller so ably put forward yesterday, and on which other Members spoke during the debate..."

Mr T J D Miller

"Your Excellency, if there is no objection I wish to withdraw the Motion as it was worded in its original form and I wish to propose the following Motion:

"That this House strongly urges the British Government to take every possible step to assist with the urgent implementation of the recommendations made in the Shackleton Report."

Thank you, Sir."

The revised Motion was seconded by the Hon S B Wallace and adopted without further debate or amendment.

MOTION by the Honourable S B Wallace

"That this House requests that representatives from this House are included as observers in any delegation sent by Her Majesty's Government to the forthcoming negotiations with the Government of Argentina."

Mr S B Wallace

"In introducing this Motion I would like to draw the Honourable Members' attention to the statement made by Her Majesty's Government to the effect that if we desired we shall have representatives included in any delegation sent by Her Majesty's Government to the forthcoming talks. It seems apparent that if they have made provision for us they recognise and accept that it is probable that we shall want to be represented there. It is however clearly up to us to make the request. It is always tempting to take the easy way out and do nothing, and that way some people may think there is less risk involved. But I believe that the people who elected us expect more than to see us sit here in ignorance and wait for someone, however trusted, to inform us about proceedings that can very much affect our community. I would like to emphasise that my Motion requests that we have observers present. These observers would not have authority to participate in any way, simply to be there and enable this Council to hear of the proceedings from some of our own people and to fulfil the obligations we have to the people we represent. Sir, I beg to propose the Motion."

Mr T J D Miller

"In rising to second the Motion I would like to say that not only should it be the wish of elected representatives of this House to be present at negotiations with Argentina, but also it is our duty to the Islands and to our supporters in Parliament to do so. Had it not been for our support in Parliament and outside in 1968, I feel that it is unlikely that we should be assembled here today. Our presence is what the people of these Islands want, it is what they voted us on to Council for. It is indeed a very important decision for us to take, but when we stood as candidates for election to this House we knew and accepted that decisions must be made. We knew that decisions had to be made and we knew what the public wanted. They still want the same. I have talked with people who have been present at previous negotiations. They have assured me that the process is not as complicated as one might expect. And we have absolutely nothing to lose by being present. We have a lot to lose and would, I feel, be avoiding our responsibilities as Councillors if we did not go. The eyes not only of the Islands are on us at this time: the eyes of the free world are upon us, and I feel that unless we show that we care about our future and our Island home, then we cannot expect anyone to support our case and in the very near future we are going to need all the support we can get. I beg to second the Motion."

Mr D S Evans

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this is a real problem which has given me a lot of heartache and I have spent a lot of time thinking about it. I have made my mind up about this one and it is my opinion that we should not go. I should like to explain the background, really why this Motion is up. I am trying to represent the people of the West as far as possible. Obviously I have my own ideas, and talking to the people of the West they do very much want to have an observer at the talks; and although I never have been happy about it I believe that this kind of thing should be brought up in Council and should be discussed, openly, so that people can see why we are for it or against it and see the difficulties, too, in trying to come to a decision. I also put in a Motion which is more open-ended than this one just to make sure that this was discussed in Council. In fact we decided to take the Motion that was more specific, because we felt that we must make decisions, where possible and not just leave things vague - but we are inexperienced; we don't, to a great extent, know what we are doing.

Since coming into town and talking and finding out more facts, I can now see that although things are moving slowly things are moving. The British Government is not just ignoring things as I thought and just waiting for the Argentines to participate and we won't get anything until they do participate. That isn't true; I can see that things are moving ahead and we are making progress. I can see now that the extension to the airstrip is not as simple as I thought it was; I suppose we are paying a lot of money on the upkeep of this one and in effect it is a white elephant. But we can manage the upkeep of this one, then if we get a bigger airstrip and we don't get the expected expansion, then we've got something on our hands that's going to be considerably more expensive than this one. And then we might find that we have to draw on our reserve funds used for better things. Things that will help our development. So I'm quite happy to see the airstrip stay as it is and if expansion comes then we move on the airstrip. This is the British Government's point all along the line and I'm beginning to understand what they're talking about now. I think I agree with that. I think the money can be better spent on things that can help us immediately: things like the hostel and internal expansion. So I can see the point on that. I don't think that they're deliberately stalling us on that.

I can see that if we've got fishing here, if we want to go beyond these shores, and the Argentines wish to cause trouble, it would be impossible to manage. They could cause all kinds of obstructions if they so wished. I can see that the oil couldn't possibly - if there's going to be oil taken from round these shores between us and Argentina - it's got to be a joint operation. So there have got to be talks. I think that these talks must go ahead. I think if we reject these talks altogether we've got to put ourselves in an intolerable position. All right, we might manage; maybe we could go back to a boat and forget about the air service, but if we just went back to the 'Darwin' era, then there's no hope of expansion. And I think we've got to expand. If we stay as we are, we just start to go downhill, so we've got to have some expansion, so we've got to consider ourselves and all these other things. We can't afford to alienate the Argentinians altogether. I think these talks are important. I think we have got to trust the British Government. Otherwise nothing will go forward.

I believe if we send an observer it is a good thing in that it shows people we are interested and we want to see what is going on; it has a bad effect in that it shows people that we don't trust the British Government. It's got another bad effect. It shows people - it shows us, it shows everybody - we've got no say in the matter. If we sit there as an observer whatever goes on we can do nothing about it. I feel that we are in a stronger position here. Anything that comes out of the talks has to come back here, has to be discussed here; there are assurances that it has to have our approval before anything will be done. And then, if it does have our approval it has to go before Parliament, so we have got safeguards. If there is going to be any double dealing, it will be done whether we are there or not. So I think we must indicate our trust in the British Government and wait and see what comes out of the talks."

Mr V E Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I appreciate Councillor Wallace's courage in putting this Motion forward, and I am pleased we can stand up here and talk about it today. I know everybody is concerned about this. But let us go back to the beginning. The United Nations asked Great Britain and Argentina to settle their differences about the Falkland Islands. They did not ask the Falkland Islands to assist or resist. We have many assurances from the British Government and the delegations that nothing will be done behind our backs. If there are any substantive policies or ideas coming out of any of these talks, they will be referred back to the Islands' Councils - and I mean Joint Councils - where they can be discussed and any decisions taken on our own territory. To confirm my faith in the British Government, I would like to draw Council's attention to the role of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office regarding our position. This Department is responsible for the discharge of British responsibility in the dependent territories mainly for defence and external affairs. We are also, Sir, in close contact with the Diplomatic Service. And I would like to quote from 'Britain 1977', the Jubilee edition: "The Diplomatic Service is also responsible for administering British aid, presenting British ideas, policies and objectives to people of overseas countries" - and this is the most important part - : "and protecting British interests abroad." I'm sure, Sir, that this includes the Falkland Islands. When we are formally invited to take part in talks and both sides are agreeable, then that is the time, in my mind, to take part in these talks. Sir, with all the faith I have in the British Delegation, and in Great Britain herself, my conscience is that of many of my constituents and does not permit me to support the Motion. Thank you."

Mr V H Goss

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I do not support the Motion. If we send an observer, I think he would virtually bring back nothing: his lips would be sealed. You had the Rome talks. Does anybody here know what transpired at the Rome talks? Does anybody in Britain? Does anybody in Argentina? At least if they do, I've never heard of it. Anybody who was sent, that's all he would be: an observer. And they're not going to let people into the House where the Conference is taking place who are going to bring out the information at this stage. It's all behind locked doors. They're talking; well, let them go on talking.

/We've got nothing to talk about.

We've got nothing to talk about. The dispute is between Britain and Argentina, not us. They're arguing it out, and I have faith in Britain. I object to the Motion."

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am completely confused as to what some previous speakers really do mean. Take the Honourable Member for the West Falklands. He says the people of West Falkland consider that somebody should be sent. Well, he represents them - I can only imagine that he is representing New Island, not the West Falkland. I consider we should send an observer. I do not agree with the Member for East Stanley who said that an observer would know nothing and could tell us nothing, and that they'd be behind locked doors and they would be standing outside like messenger boys. I've been to these talks twice, and in fact you were in the very room where the talks were and you heard every word, and on each occasion we reported to Joint Councils exactly what transpired, so it's nonsense to say he wouldn't know what was taking place. The only reason we don't know what was taking place is because no beggar was there. That's why. If we'd had an observer at Rome we would have known everything that took place. Maybe the talks were unimportant, but we certainly shan't know what really takes place in New York or Santiago or wherever the devil they're held if we don't send an observer. The Honourable Member for Stanley seems to think that everything should be left to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, that all decisions should be taken by them and that it's entirely their responsibility. I don't know what all the pressure groups and anguish that's been taking place over the last few years are doing, then. They have been simply wasting their time, if FCO could have done the job perfectly well. It's perfectly obvious that we wouldn't be British subjects now if it had all been left to the FCO. I think Members are ducking their responsibility, if they don't send observers, and I deplore that attitude. I strongly support the Motion."

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, I notice that some are for and some are against sending people, and I thought it may be of use if I put forward my views on this matter. In fact, I am inclined to think that at this stage of the meetings there is little to gain by sending an observer to the talks. We haven't an agenda, we don't know what is being talked about as yet, and I think that before we send an observer we would want to know exactly what was being talked about and also that this Council gives some direction. The dispute is between the British Government and the Argentine Government. We have no dispute. All we want is self-determination. Therefore I feel that before any person is sent we should have more details. If there is, as I heard in a certain place, some tacit agreement at this stage I don't think that I would like to see a Falkland Islander included in a delegation who gave that tacit agreement. Therefore my view is that we should not send a representative to the talks at the moment."

/The President

The President

"Before I ask Councillor Wallace to respond to the debate, may I say a few words. There is clearly no united opinion on this, and I think on so important a matter it is essential that what goes out from this Council should reflect the united voice of the Councillors. It is an important matter; it could affect our future to a great extent. I don't want to guide Councillors to what my opinion on the matter is, but I think I would like to suggest that perhaps Councillors go into private session - to suspend Standing Rules and discuss this matter further - to see whether it's not possible to get an agreed Motion."

The Council went into a Select Committee of the whole House at 10.35 a.m. and when the Council resumed at 12.28 p.m. the Honourable S B Wallace spoke as follows:

"Sir, the essential purpose of my original Motion was to allow people to air their views on this issue which is of crucial importance to our community. I think that this has been done and in Committee we considered this issue of vital importance with correct regard to the sensibilities of our situation. Some Members of Council expressed a desire that we should not be represented; that this would be dangerous and might lead to a hardening of attitudes which might not be in the interests of our community. We have therefore agreed on the deletion in my original Motion of all the words after "That" and the insertion of the following:

"this Council is concerned about participation in any Anglo-Argentine talks about the future of the Islands and wishes to be consulted about the nature and timing of representation at substantive talks, on which the Islanders have already had assurances."

Sir, I would like to propose this amendment."

The Motion for the amendment was seconded by the Honourable T J D Miller and passed without debate.

FAMILY ALLOWANCES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, this Bill seeks to increase Family Allowances by one hundred percent with effect from the 1st of January 1978. Family Allowances are paid to a family with more than one child and are provided wholly out of general taxation. The present monthly allowances are paid at the rate of 50p each for the first two children and £1 per child thereafter. The proposed monthly rates are £1 each for the first two children and £2 for subsequent children.

/Select Committee

Select Committee on the 1977/78 Estimates agreed to make provision for the revised allowances in the Budget Meeting to take effect from the 1st of January. The annual estimated cost is £2,400. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to second the Motion I would like to point out that I have frequently in the past requested that this allowance be increased. I don't think it's been increased since 1960 - the 100% increase that is proposed now represents about 15% of the increase that should have been made in order to keep the value of the original 50p. In other words people drawing this allowance, even with the 100% increase, which my Honourable friend speaks of so proudly, are considerably worse off than they were in 1960. However, it is a small improvement. I only hope that my Honourable Financial friend will see his way to making a real improvement in bringing at least the value of the payment up to that which it was originally. The cost of the increase is somewhere about half the cost of the Police Land Rover, half the cost of one Land Rover to all the people that are eligible to draw this money. However it is an improvement and I support the Motion."

The Bill was read a first time and on the Motion for the second reading Honourable Members spoke to the Motion as follows:

Mr W E Bowles

"Your Excellency, I naturally support this Bill and, like my Honourable friend in East Falkland, know full well that it is a bit out of proportion perhaps to 1960 but I think we should reconsider this again at Budget time in 1978, and do a full scale analysis of the situation. In the meantime, Sir, I support the Bill."

Mr T J D Miller

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too welcome this Bill and also agree with the views expressed that although it goes some way, it doesn't go far enough. And I feel that in the Budget next year not only the Family Allowances but all the social security payments should be revised and we should consider bringing them into line with the present day value of money. Sir, I beg to support the Bill."

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, I should like to assure Members of Council that I have taken note of their wish for another early review of the Family Allowances. I always like to make the point that we did consider earlier in the year the question of the allowances for families in connection with Income Tax.

/We did make some quite

We did make some quite large improvement there. But, however, I have taken note of this and we certainly will consider it further at the next Budget."

The Bill then passed through its remaining stages without amendment, or further debate, and was passed.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die."

Financial Secretary

"I beg to second the Motion."

The President

"The Motion is that this House stands adjourned sine die. Does any Honourable Member wish to speak?"

Mr D S Evans

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I didn't know you could speak now, so this is off the cuff. Very much so. I would just like to say that it's been a very interesting meeting for all of us and we have tried to look at matters sensibly and take sensible decisions, decisions that haven't been easy at all. Views change; obviously my views have changed quite a lot since coming in, now that more facts have become available. But we were chosen by the people of our areas who must have thought we had some common sense and this is what we tried to use. I look forward to the next meeting, which I hope is as interesting as this one."

Mr A B Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in supporting the Motion for the Adjournment I would like to say that I think that this short Council meeting has been quite one of the most interesting that I have attended and I think all the credit must go to the latest, as it were, Members of Council, who I think have provided some extraordinarily useful facts and discussions on many subjects. Also if I may briefly say so, I would like to say that I will submit today a report on my visit with Mr Etheridge to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Conference, and copies will be distributed, and I would like to express my sincere thanks for being sent there. And in winding up, Sir, I would like to say that I think we are fortunate that you worked so hard during your holiday and seem to have stirred things up to our benefit! I wish to support the Motion."

/Mr S B Wallace

Mr S B Wallace

"Sir, I also haven't anything prepared for this Motion for the Adjournment, but I would like to support the remarks of the Honourable Derek Evans. In this meeting we have dealt very much with issues which are the most in people's minds and we have tried to deal with them and make decisions which are in the best interests of the people we represent. I also would like to say that I have a much better awareness than I did three days ago of the complexities that beset our Administration. In this meeting we owe a lot of gratitude for the advice of the older Members of Council. I beg to support the Motion."

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, in rising perhaps to make a concluding speech in this meeting, I must admit that I approached it with some trepidation as an entirely new experience. I think that it's marked - we are not here to congratulate ourselves but some formidable decisions and problems were presented to Council. As a newcomer, I think the thing that struck me most was the spirit of tolerance and understanding of other people's points of view every Member showed. It's not important to present unanimity simply for its own sake, but that we reach unanimity without any rancour and with a complete regard for the differing points of views we presented, whether we represented the different parts of the Islands or, in the case of my colleague on my left and myself, the Administration. This I think augurs well for the future of this Council. If we can continue like that I think that the people who elected the Council need have no fears, the problems will be properly, sensibly and tolerantly considered. Perhaps I may conclude, Sir, by thanking you for your own guidance and help in making sure that those of us who were uncertain in what we were doing didn't feel too nervous about the way we did it."

The President

"Well, thank you Honourable Councillors. I think this has been a most useful and interesting meeting. We've had very good debates and there's no need to say they were on major matters of very considerable concern to us all. May I convey my own thanks to the new Councillors - and congratulations - for adapting so quickly to our procedures. I understand there was on the part of some Councillors a certain nervousness at coming into this Chamber. All I can say is that it was not apparent to me sitting up here. There have been some excellent debates, which followed the rules of procedure, the rules of debate, in every sentence. I think we can now all look forward to some very constructive debates in the future, and affairs will be conducted on the right lines even if they are not railway lines!

/There is one thing

There is one thing I would like to mention which has been mentioned to me before, and that is our seating. It's not entirely satisfactory sitting way up here. If Members would like to think about how we can better arrange the table to facilitate the debates and arrange the papers, I think we should be only too grateful to get these ideas put forward. If everyone is happy with the way we sit then we'll remain as we are. But it's possible that we can get a better arrangement of the room in future.

Once again, thank you, Gentlemen, and the House stands adjourned sine die."

Appointment of Governor's Deputy and specification of powers and functions vested in the Governor which he may exercise and perform.

WHEREAS paragraph (1) of Article 8 of the Falkland Islands Letters Patent, 1948 to 1962, provides that whenever the Governor has occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which he has reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which he has reason to believe will be of short duration he considers it desirable so to do, he may, by Instrument under the Public Seal, appoint any person in the Colony to be his Deputy during such absence or illness, and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor during such absence or illness all such powers and functions vested in the Governor as shall be specified in such Instrument:

AND WHEREAS Article 3 of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Letters Patent, 1908, provides that the Officer for the time being Administering the Government of the Colony of the Falkland Islands shall be Governor for the time being of the Falkland Islands Dependencies:

AND WHEREAS I shall have occasion to leave Stanley on the 16th day of December 1977.

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers aforesaid I, JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, do hereby appoint GORDON JAMES AUGUSTUS SLATER, ESQUIRE, to be Governor's Deputy in and for the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor (except while and in so far as provision to the contrary made by the Governor under Article 8 of the said Letters Patent is operative) and subject always to the provisions of the said Letters Patent, all such powers and functions as are vested in the Governor other than those vested by sections 6, 18 and 21A, sub-section (1) of section 24 and sub-section (1) of section 26, of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders, 1948 to 1973, by paragraph (1) of Article 10 and Articles 13, 15 and 16 of the said Letters Patent and by paragraph (b) of clause 3, sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (1) of clause 5 and clause 22 of the Royal Instructions to the Governor dated the 13th day of December 1948.

This Instrument shall come into operation on the 16th day of December 1977 and shall remain in force until my return to Stanley.

LS

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 15th day of December in the year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-seven.

J. R. W. PARKER.
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Instrument under the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands appointing Lieutenant-Colonel Richard Victor Goss, O.B.E., E.D., to be a Member of the Executive Council.

J. R. W. PARKER,

By His Excellency JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER,
Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS by certain Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the 13th day of December 1948, constituting the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands, it is amongst other things declared that there shall be an Executive Council in and for the said Colony which shall consist of such persons as may be directed under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet.

AND WHEREAS by Instructions under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet, bearing date the 13th day of December 1948, it is declared that the Governor may, from time to time, appoint persons other than ex-officio Members to be Members of the Executive Council of the Colony.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, do hereby appoint—to be a Member of my Executive Council.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony at Government House, Stanley, this 16th day of January in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-eight.

By His Excellency's Command,

D. R. MORRISON,

Deputy Chief Secretary.

Appointment of Governor's Deputy and specification of powers and functions vested in the Governor which he may exercise and perform.

WHEREAS paragraph (1) of Article 8 of the Falkland Islands Letters Patent, 1948 to 1962, provides that whenever the Governor has occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which he has reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which he has reason to believe will be of short duration he considers it desirable so to do, he may, by Instrument under the Public Seal, appoint any person in the Colony to be his Deputy during such absence or illness, and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor during such absence or illness all such powers and functions vested in the Governor as shall be specified in such Instrument:

AND WHEREAS Article 3 of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Letters Patent, 1908, provides that the Officer for the time being Administering the Government of the Colony of the Falkland Islands shall be Governor for the time being of the Falkland Islands Dependencies:

AND WHEREAS I shall have occasion to leave Stanley on the 28th day of February 1978 for the purpose of visiting East and West Falkland:

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers aforesaid I, JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, do hereby appoint JOHN DUDLEY MASSINGHAM, ESQUIRE, to be Governor's Deputy in and for the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor (except while and in so far as provision to the contrary made by the Governor under Article 8 of the said Letters Patent is operative) and subject always to the provisions of the said Letters Patent, all such powers and functions as are vested in the Governor other than those vested by sections 6, 18 and 21A, sub-section (1) of section 24 and sub-section (1) of section 26 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders, 1948 to 1977, by paragraph (1) of Article 10 and Articles 13, 15 and 16 of the said Letters Patent and by paragraph (b) of clause 3, sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (1) of clause 5 and clause 22 of the Royal Instructions to the Governor dated the 13th day of December 1948.

This Instrument shall come into operation on the 28th day of February 1978 and shall remain in force until my return to Stanley.

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 27th day of February in the year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-eight.

A Bill for
An Ordinance

Further to amend the Employment of Women,
Young Persons and Children Ordinance 1967.

(19)

Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children (Amendment) Ordinance 1978.

Short title.

2. The Schedule to the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Ordinance 1967 is amended —

Amendment of Schedule.
(1 of 1967)

(a) in Article 2 of Part I —

(i) by deleting "fourteen" and substituting the following —
"fifteen";

(ii) by deleting the comma after "thereof" and substituting a full stop;

(iii) by deleting "other than" to the end of the Article;

(iv) by adding the following proviso —

"Provided that, except in the case of employments which, by their nature or the circumstances in which they are carried on, are dangerous to the life, health or morals of the persons employed therein, national laws or regulations may permit such children to be employed in undertakings in which only members of the employer's family are employed."

(b) in Article 3 of Part I by deleting "Article 2" and substituting the following —

"this Convention";

(c) in Article 4 of Part I by deleting "sixteen" and substituting "eighteen";

(d) in Article 2 of Part IV —

(i) by deleting "fourteen" and substituting the following —
"fifteen";

(ii) by adding the following proviso —

"Provided that national laws or regulations may provide for the issue in respect of children of not less than fourteen years of age of certificates permitting them to be employed in cases in which an educational or other appropriate authority designated by such laws or regulations is satisfied, after having due regard to the health and physical condition of the child and to the prospective as well as to the immediate benefit to the child of the employment proposed, that such employment will be beneficial to the child."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to bring the law into line with two International Labour Conventions which fix the minimum age for admission of children to employment in industry and at sea.

A Bill for An Ordinance

- Title. Further to amend the Registration of United Kingdom Patents Ordinance (Chapter 58) by providing for the registration in the Colony of certain patents granted in countries which are parties to the European Patents Convention and for matters incidental thereto.
- Date of commencement. (19)
- Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows—
- Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Registration of United Kingdom Patents (Amendment) Ordinance 1978.
- Amendment of section 2. 2. Section 2 of the Registration of United Kingdom Patents Ordinance (hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance) is amended by the deletion of the words "patent in the United Kingdom" appearing therein and by the substitution therefor of the words "United Kingdom patent (which expression shall in this Ordinance include a patent treated under any Patents Act in force in the United Kingdom as being granted under such Act by reason of its being a European Patent (UK))".
- Amendment of section 3. 3. Section 3 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the deletion of subsection (2) and the substitution therefor of the following—
- “(2) Two certified copies of the complete specification or specifications and in the case of a patent treated as being granted in the United Kingdom by virtue of the provisions of section 2, a certificate by an officer duly authorized under the Patent Act that the United Kingdom has accepted the European Patent (UK) designating the United Kingdom as being effective in the United Kingdom and that the particulars of the application are true (including the drawing, if any) in relation to any patent.”
- Amendment of section 8. 4. Section 8 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the addition immediately after the figures "1949" appearing therein of the words "or any other Patents Act for the time being in force".

OBJECTS AND REASONS

Under the Patent Act 1977 there are two kinds of patents having validity in the United Kingdom. Those granted under the United Kingdom domestic law and covered by the Falkland Islands existing legislation and those granted under the European Patent Convention (which in due course will include "Community Patents") which might not be covered. Under section 77 of the Patents Act 1977, any such patent designating the United Kingdom would be deemed a United Kingdom patent for the purposes of domestic United Kingdom law. As some doubt arises whether those granted under the European Patent Convention would be covered by section 2 of the Registration of United Kingdom Patents Ordinance (Cap. 58) the amendments set out in the Bill are considered appropriate to rectify the position.

Appointment of Governor's Deputy and specification of powers and functions vested in the Governor which he may exercise and perform.

WHEREAS paragraph (1) of Article 8 of the Falkland Islands Letters Patent, 1948 to 1962, provides that whenever the Governor has occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which he has reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which he has reason to believe will be of short duration he considers it desirable so to do, he may, by Instrument under the Public Seal, appoint any person in the Colony to be his Deputy during such absence or illness, and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor during such absence or illness all such powers and functions vested in the Governor as shall be specified in such Instrument:

AND WHEREAS Article 3 of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Letters Patent, 1908, provides that the Officer for the time being Administering the Government of the Colony of the Falkland Islands shall be Governor for the time being of the Falkland Islands Dependencies:

AND WHEREAS I shall have occasion to leave Stanley on the 30th day of May 1978, for the purpose of visiting West Falkland Islands:

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers aforesaid I, JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, do hereby appoint JOHN DUDLEY MASSINGHAM, ESQUIRE, to be Governor's Deputy in and for the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor (except while and in so far as provision to the contrary made by the Governor under Article 8 of the said Letters Patent is operative) and subject always to the provisions of the said Letters Patent, all such powers and functions as are vested in the Governor other than those vested by sections 6, 18 and 21A, sub-section (1) of section 24 and sub-section (1) of section 26 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders, 1948 to 1977, by paragraph (1) of Article 10 and Articles 13, 15 and 16 of the said Letters Patent and by paragraph (b) of clause 3, sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (1) of clause 5 and clause 22 of the Royal Instructions to the Governor dated the 13th day of December 1948.

This Instrument shall come into operation on the 30th day of May 1978 and shall remain in force until my return to Stanley.

LS

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 29th day of May in the year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-eight.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

PROCLAMATION

- (d) Lowering pensionable age from 65 to 64 years.
- (e) Lowering the age of entering the scheme from 18 to 17 years.
- (f) Providing for Government assistance to a male contributor, who is over 50 years of age, with Old Age Pensions Contributions in a case of hardship.
- (g) Increasing the level of income, in section 6B of the Old Age Pensions Ordinance, where a female contributor becomes liable to contribute to the Old Age Pensions Fund:
 From £300 per annum together with an additional £100 per annum for every child of school age maintained by her, to £800 and £250 respectively.

Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance.

Date of commencement.

(1st January 1980)

Enacting clause.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amendment) Ordinance 1978 and shall apply to assessments for the year of assessment commencing on the 1st day of January 1980 and to all subsequent years of assessment.

Amendment of section 5.
(Cap. 32)

2. Section 5 of the Income Tax Ordinance is amended —
- (a) by deleting the colon at the end of paragraph (f) and substituting a semi-colon; and
 - (b) by adding after paragraph (f) the following new paragraph —
“(g) family allowances paid under section 3 of the Family Allowances Ordinance 1960:”.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to make family allowances paid by the Falkland Islands Government taxable. The reason for the proposed legislation is to ensure that the greatest benefit of family allowance is received by those who are more in need of it.

A Bill for An Ordinance

To amend the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance 1977.

Title.

Date of commencement.

(11th July 1977)

Enacting clause.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Interpretation and General Clauses (Amendment) Ordinance 1978 and shall be deemed to have come into operation on the 11th day of July 1977.

Addition of new section
(14 of 1977)

2. The Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance 1977 (hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance) is amended by adding after section 81 the following new section —

“Laws of
in force.

81A. (1) The common law and the general statutes in force in England on the 22nd day of May 1900, shall be in force in the Colony in so far as the circumstances of the Colony permit, and provided they are not inconsistent with, or repugnant to, any Ordinance or Order in Council.

(2) So much of the enactments specified in the Schedule to this Ordinance as is not already in force in the Colony, and is capable of being applied therein by Ordinance, shall apply therein with such modifications as the circumstances of the Colony require.”

Addition of Schedule.

3. The principal Ordinance is amended by adding after section 106 the following Schedule —

“SCHEDULE

- (1) Merchant Shipping Acts 1894-1948.
- (2) Married Women's Property Act 1907.
- (3) Protection of Animals Act 1911.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meetings of Legislative Council held during 1978, viz. those held from 14th to 22nd June, 19th July and 21st/22nd November, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members,

May I bid you welcome to this, our second meeting in the current session of Legislative Council. We are without the presence of Councillor Tim Miller this morning, who should be on his way back from the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Regional meeting in Trinidad and Tobago. He will hopefully be with us tomorrow when we shall be interested to hear, in due course, an account of his experiences at the meeting. This is of course perhaps our most important meeting of the year, during which the Honourable Financial Secretary presents his Budget and reports on our financial situation. It is, therefore, very much his occasion.

It is however customary for me to give an account, from this chair, of our general affairs, reviewing progress made in the various departments of the Administration. I want however, this morning, to concentrate less on the past and more on the future. I am sure that what you - and indeed your constituents throughout the Islands - most want to hear from me is some positive news about the progress that is being made with the various development projects upon the success of which so many hopes for the Colony's future prosperity depend.

At the time that I last addressed you in this Chamber Mr Peat of the Ministry of Overseas Development and Mr Jameson of the Forestry Commission had just embarked upon their study of the Colony's internal communications. Working in close liaison with them was Captain Woodward of the Royal Engineers, whose task it was to assess the problems that would attend our acquisition of the heavy machinery left behind by Johnston Construction Limited, and to make recommendations how best these problems could be solved.

Other visitors followed close upon them: first Mr Hodges, ODM's Engineering Adviser, and then Mrs Johnson and Mr Sparkhall of the same Ministry. These visits were of great significance to the Colony in maintaining a dialogue with the Ministry of Overseas Development and fostering a good understanding with the Ministry, the principal source not just of our development aid funds but our agent in Britain for recruitment, training, and the provision of expert advice of every sort. These intervening months have therefore proved exceptionally busy ones for those principally concerned with tackling our development problems. I should not like to have to calculate the time that has been spent in formulating and presenting the Colony's case for funds, nor to have to measure the yards of teleprinter tape that have carried it.

The general public - indeed, you yourselves - have, if I may say so, shown remarkable restraint at what must often have seemed a totally static situation. I freely admit that I have been watching the weeks passing with growing impatience and mounting frustration at my inability to make any statement that substantial progress had been made, let alone an announcement that an actual project had begun.

So I am especially pleased to be able to open this meeting by confirming that a significant agreement has now been reached which will enable a major start to be made on the largest of our communications projects.

I refer of course to the construction of an all-weather track from Stanley to Darwin, capable of taking vehicles of all descriptions, which will be the first stage in a road development programme that should gradually and systematically extend, so far as is practicable, throughout the Islands. The Ministry of Overseas Development has recently agreed to make grants totalling just on £870,000 towards the cost of this project over a period of three years. To match this liberal grant, Government has readily agreed to make its own contribution of a maximum of £120,000 over the same period of time.

Following this agreement, the first preparatory steps are now being taken. These are to convert the old power station and the BAS workshop into plant and mechanical workshops for the heavy machinery without which we cannot hope to undertake either the imminent - or any longer term - development projects.

This was one of the results of Captain Woodward's visit. The second was the arrival, early in May, of Warrant Officer Buckett of the Royal Engineers and Staff Sergeant Tangui of the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers to give us their expert help in overhauling all the plant and machinery we have acquired. In welcoming them to the Islands I should like to place on record the Colony's gratitude to Captain Woodward for his help, and to the Ministry of Defence for having agreed to make their services available at no cost to ourselves. I was pleased that many Honourable Councillors were able to accompany me recently to see what is being done at the workshops. Following that visit I do not think that any of us have any illusions about the magnitude of the task which Mr Buckett and Sergeant Tangui have before them.

As an initial part of their contribution to the cost of the project the Ministry of Overseas Development ordered a new grader, which arrived only last weekend on the Annette Danielsen. This brings me to a significant aspect of the project as a whole. A substantial part of the money granted to us for the project will be devoted, as time goes on, to the repair and, where necessary, replacement of the heavy plant and equipment. The intention is that, at the end of the day, we shall not only have used the plant on the construction of the road but will have a completely refurbished kit of plant and machinery that can go on to be used, effectively, on further projects.

In other words we shall not just use up and discard the machines as we go along. They will be re-built and replaced as they wear out. To this end a Bill will be placed before you at this meeting to enable the necessary accounting authority to be set up.

A physical start on the actual road will now have to await the better weather and the arrival of the new substantive Director of Public Works, Mr Alan Mason, who should be here in the next week or so. Fortunately he is a highly qualified Civil and Structural Engineer of great experience, and we shall be demanding a great deal of him. Apart from the basic design of the road, he will soon be engaged in supervising the site works and infrastructure for the new School Hostel as well as tackling the innumerable other tasks that fall to the Public Works Department.

It will be a formidable task, but I am confident that the Department will give him strong support. We have been fortunate in having Mr Ted Pike with us for three months earlier this year. I should like to pay tribute not just to the prodigious amount of work that he accomplished in his short stay, but to his having engendered a new confidence in the Department.

Mr Pike succeeded in demonstrating what good professional management can achieve, and his successor will be able to count on having the support of three Superintendents. Let no-one think that this is extravagant. If the Public Works Department is to accomplish the tasks that we are going to demand of it, then the work must have skilled and experienced supervision.

Happily the Superintendent in charge of road construction will be Mr Basil Morrison, who is at present receiving specialist instruction whilst on attachment to the Forestry Commission. We are indebted to the Commission and to Mr Vic Jameson for having made all these arrangements. Another member of PWD, Mr Rudy Clarke, is also receiving specialist training whilst he is on leave in Britain.

I have made particular mention of this because it is now a basic element of Government policy that every opportunity must be given to members of the public service - at all levels and in every department - to receive training to enable them both to enhance their existing capabilities and eventually to reduce the need to recruit officers overseas.

Proposals will be coming before you for expanding the Nurses' Training Scheme and for introducing in-service secretarial and clerical training in the Public Service for school-leavers. Meanwhile, every effort will be made to encourage training overseas; but not just in academic institutions but by means of individually arranged working attachments.

/Meanwhile

Meanwhile it is most encouraging to hear that Mr Vernon Steen and Mr Peter King have been doing so well on their training courses. Mr Gerard Robson will be going to Britain in September for training in the preparation of educational material for Camp teaching. The pace of training is indeed beginning to quicken and we have been encouraged by the flexible, constructive and sympathetic way in which ODM is responding to our requests for special assistance in this key area.

Whilst speaking of education in its widest sense, I should now refer to the new Stanley School Hostel project. This, too, has not moved along quite as fast as I would have wished but the contractual arrangements for its design and construction are at this present moment being finalised in London. In addition, Mr Pike and Mr Mason are now engaged there in estimating and ordering the materials that will be required for all the site and other works. Much hard work by many people has already gone into this project and we should be able to see its beginning as soon as the better weather comes. The estimated date for the completion of the Hostel is now around the Spring of 1979.

I want to return now for a moment to our other problems of inter-island communication. Government is conscious that the investment in a road link to Darwin from Stanley is of little immediate encouragement to people living on West Falkland, even though such a road may ultimately offer the possibility of establishing a ferry link for which, I am glad to say, the Ministry of Overseas Development have offered to set up a feasibility study at the appropriate time. Mindful of this, Government is all the more determined to press forward with the early introduction of a larger land-based aircraft for FIGAS, a recommendation of the Future of FIGAS Committee which I set up last year under the chairmanship of Mr Robin Pitaluga.

I have been most impressed, in going round the Islands, to see the enthusiastic response which settlement managers have made to the suggestion they should seek suitable sites for airstrips and the amount of preparatory work which has already gone into them. It may take some time for all the airstrips to be ready for use, but I am glad to say that a most encouraging start has been made.

Our ideas have centred around the acquisition of a Britten-Norman Islander aircraft, and the Administration has long since been in correspondence with the manufacturers about detailed specification and performance data. It is inevitable that a good deal of this investigatory work must go on before a firm order can be placed. And here I must mention an important matter which I feel must govern our decision. The cost of the acquisition of such a new aircraft, and of the ancilliary equipment and hangar that must go with it, will be high. It is just possible that we could find the money from our own resources, but that would leave our reserves, as I am sure the Honourable Financial Secretary would emphatically agree, at an uncomfortably low level. I therefore have felt it essential that we should seek to obtain aid support for the venture, and urgent discussions are now in train with the Ministry of Overseas Development to seek their assistance. I am not unhopeful of the outcome - we have considerable Ministerial support, not least from Mr Ted Rowlands - but we may have a tough little battle on our hands to convince the Ministry of the economic viability of the project, apart from its social and welfare considerations.

The one other question of communications - in its widest sense - that I should mention is that of the R/T. I am only too well aware, from personal experience, of the difficulties that people in Camp are now encountering with our ageing Berrys. I am glad to say that an order has been placed for a number of new transceivers to replace the worst of the existing Berrys and they should be with us very soon. In the meantime the R/T Committee and its Technical Sub-Committee is looking urgently into the possibility of an island-wide VHF link. We have recently had from the Home Office in London some encouraging advice about the use of VHF frequencies for general communications. It should be possible to make a firm announcement about this in the near future.

So much for development projects.

It has been, as I have said, customary on these occasions to review the more important events that have taken place since Council last met, and to mention the achievements and aspirations of departments. While, as I have indicated, I do not intend to do so in detail now, there are three items that I would not want to pass unremarked.

In June 1977 ten pupils took the 'O' level English examinations and six sat the 'O' level examination in Spanish. This month the total number of 'O' level examinations taken locally will have risen to forty-seven, with eleven candidates taking from three to six subjects. Everyone will, I am confident, be most encouraged by this very vivid evidence of the Education Department's determination to provide, here in the Islands, a sound educational course that is internationally accepted, and thus to put an end to our having to send our children away from their home environment.

Honourable Members will soon be examining plans for the further improvement of our Medical Department. I should not like this opportunity to pass without paying tribute to the work that Dr Derek Cox has achieved during his service in the Colony. He worked with great dedication and considerable success, much of which was - as he himself would be the first to admit - due to the strong support that he received from the Matron, Miss Dorothea Wilson, who will be retiring very soon. Everyone in the Colony owes much to them and we wish them both - and Mrs Cox - every success in the future.

Now for the last item in this brief review of domestic events. As everyone knows, the work of the Grasslands Trials Unit was recently reviewed during a visit by Mr John Eadie of the Hill Farm Research Organisation; Professor Dunnet of Aberdeen University; and Mr Bob Taddell from the Ministry of Overseas Development. Although, as a result of their visit, some technical alterations and changes of emphasis will be made in the Unit's programme, the work that GTU is doing was not merely commended, but ODM has agreed to extend its commitment to the underwriting of the costs of this project, that lies at the very heart of the Colony's economy. The team's Agronomist, Mr Jim McAdam, will be leaving us tomorrow on the completion of his tour of duty. I should like to thank him for the work that he has done and to extend to him and his family our best wishes.

In reviewing the financial progress of the Colony the Honourable Financial Secretary will no doubt refer to the future wool market prospects on which our economy so heavily depends. I am glad to say these are, at the moment, not unfavourable, judging by the best advice we can get. We must however bear in mind that the costs of wool production are moving ever upwards while the price the world offers us tends to be of a static nature. We must hope to see the gap between the two kept as wide as possible; if it narrows too much our revenue will suffer. Our farm management is, I am also glad to say, at a high level of efficiency; the work of the GTU can help to add to that efficiency but it will of course be a slow process and sudden breakthroughs are not to be expected. It is all the more important, therefore, that every encouragement should be given to that major part of our community which works so hard to our overall benefit in the Camp. On then, our future depends. However, we must, at the same time, pay close attention to the problems of Stanley in the provision of housing, good services, and of course attention to the perennial problem of the Stanley roads.

I am conscious that there are other matters and people that I might have mentioned, but I want now to pass from our domestic to our external affairs, which are very much in people's minds at the moment. I notice there are a number of Questions and Motions on the Order Paper which will give Honourable Members an opportunity to express, freely and fully, their deeply held opinions on these matters, but with, I am sure, the usual restraint and care we have to exercise in our choice of words when speaking about these subjects. Since we met Mr Ted Rowlands in Rio in December, for what I think Members would agree was a valuable and frank exchange of views with him, Falklands affairs have been discussed several times and at considerable length, in both Houses of Parliament in London, with leading members of both Government and Opposition, including the Prime Minister and other Ministers, making clear statements on policy towards the major issues which concern us, which I am sure it has been reassuring for us to hear.

One thing we can be certain of is that the case of the Falkland Islanders is being kept well to the fore in the minds of both Parliament and public in Britain. We are in no danger of being forgotten, although we are so many thousands of miles away. I can assure you that the Administration and my Office play their full part in this; our telex machines are kept very busy, keeping those at the London end busy as well.

Of late however, we have been sorely troubled by a series of intrusive adventures against our sovereign interests - on land, on the sea, in the air. They have been totally objectionable, not only to us here in the Islands, but also to Her Majesty's Ministers in London. As you will have heard, the firmest expressions of the serious view taken of these incidents have been lodged on each occasion. And here perhaps I might correct an impression which some people might have about the effectiveness of such protests. For a responsible Government, such as that of the United Kingdom, to deliver a formal note of protest to another, is a very major step indeed in international and diplomatic affairs. The fact of it has very significant international implications, within the context of the manner in which peaceful countries are expected by the world community to order their affairs, one with another. As I have indicated, the United Kingdom Government does not take this sort of action lightly; the fact that they have lately done so, promptly and repeatedly, is, to my mind, a reassuring affirmation of Ministers' concern for our interests and security.

These all-too-frequent irritants which we have suffered lately do no good at all. They are no incentive to the maintenance of a willingness on the part of the people of these small Islands to endeavour to find some agreed way of living in peace, harmony and co-operation with our neighbours - an aim I think we all share, for it is essential to the well-being of everyone in this part of the world.

It was the Islanders' sensible wish to achieve some measure of that happy co-operation which encouraged them to give their agreement to the effort Mr Rowlands undertook to make in his negotiations. I think we would all still wish those negotiations to bear fruit, so that we can continue our way of life in peace and mutually beneficial development. If you will allow me, I am sure I can say on behalf of every right-minded person here that we are sincerely appreciative of the help we are given in hospital and medical care, in the much improved external air service, in fuel and other supplies.

But any extension into a wider co-operation will only be possible on the basis of an acceptance of the principle that the wishes of the Islanders as regards their future must be fully recognised as the main concern, and that the Islanders are entitled, as are all other such national communities, to the internationally accepted right of self-determination. I am sure we were all glad to know that those sentiments were so fully endorsed, on all sides, in both Houses of Parliament, where our final safeguard lies.

Finally, and returning to our domestic affairs, during my travels about the Islands, I have been struck most forcibly not only by the typically British calm of the ordinary people in the face of all our uncertainties, but also by the remarkably democratic atmosphere which now pervades our way of life. It may find a quiet and polite expression, but ordinary folk, in their ordinary way, have a very sensible appreciation of what they want and what they lack. I have always found talking to working people in their homes a happy, enjoyable and stimulating experience indeed.

But I have also come to recognise that, working within our present, perhaps rather over-elaborate manner of constitutional Government can present difficulties to Councillors, who have to combine the responsibilities of being the representatives as well as the leaders of their community, with those of Executive Government. When I spoke at the opening of this Session, with a Council elected under the revised Constitution, I suggested that we might perhaps consider from time to time how these new arrangements were working out. I think they are not doing too badly, but perhaps some readjustment might be possible in one or two respects, and I shall be interested to hear from Honourable Members whatever views they may have on the matter.

Now we should proceed to our business. Apart from the Questions and Motions I have referred to, and the Honourable Financial Secretary's Budget statement, we also have a number of Bills to consider. As they are listed on the Order Paper, I will not detail them here, and the more important of them stem in fact from the budgetary proposals. We shall, however, have a heavy workload to get through and if Honourable Members are agreeable I suggest we now go into recess to sit again at a quarter past two o'clock this afternoon.

On the direction of the President Council then adjourned and re-assembled at 2.18 p.m. on Tuesday 20th June 1978.

MOTION OF THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT ON HIS ADDRESS TO COUNCIL

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

In rising to propose a Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency for your Address this morning, I am frankly worried. My first concern is that because I seem to be the longest surviving member of Council, both with regard to actual age and also with regard to service, I've got to get up first - or it is usual that I should get up first. One therefore cannot learn anything from previous speakers!

Also I am worried about our position vis-a-vis Argentina. Your Excellency explained, and I entirely accept the explanation, that a formal protest that a peace-loving country such as Britain recently made to Argentina about Southern Thule and the overflying of our air space is a major diplomatic move. However Argentina apparently does not recognise this fact, since they have rejected this formal protest, or these formal protests, as we heard on the BBC at 12.15 this morning. Of what use are formal protests from peace-loving nations if the other side pays no attention? It is a bit like the peaceful citizen being accosted by an armed bandit: in spite of strong protests the bandit takes his money anyway.

Your Excellency mentioned development and it is very reassuring to hear that Falkland Islanders will be playing such leading roles in the building of our Colony road system and the new school hostel and other projects. I would like to refer again to the Colony road system; in my view the Stanley-Goose Green section is merely the first part, between the two largest population centres, of a general Colony road system. And in that context I welcome the information that ODM are prepared to sponsor a feasibility study on the East-West ferry which such a Colony road system would require to be of any use. I am convinced that without a road system no development is possible; with it development is not necessarily inevitable, but without it real development internally will never happen. There are of course opponents of this concept. Real internal development will alter the way the material benefits are distributed: significantly alter it. Properly handled far more should rub off on people here; the stranglehold held by an overseas monopoly subsidiary company will be loosened. But is it being properly organised? Have we got legislation on the books to acquire areas for development that we think necessary? The answer of course is no. Is it even in the pipeline? The answer of course is no. What, I think we are entitled to ask, is our Legal Adviser in the UK doing? The answer unfortunately seems to be, copying Hong Kong legislation, and such matters as the Interpretation and General Clauses Bill - and even then getting it wrong, it seems, since we seem to have to amend the thing this session. The result of no comprehensive legislation being on the books when the road is started, or even before it is started, means that owners through whose land we propose to put the road will see their properties increase tremendously in value and will be the largest beneficiaries of the scheme. At the moment we have legislation on the books which enables us only to acquire a narrow strip a few yards wide for a public purpose or a road.

/Legal Adviser in the UK

I do not propose to mention the Bills we are asked to consider, I think that is better done at the time they are presented. I do detect however a continuation of the old idea of penny pinching increases in small petty fees and taxes; fees and taxes that virtually yield nothing when one is talking about expenditure of £1,700,000 as we are for 1978-79, but fees and taxes which are a hardship for pensioners and people without much money and extremely irritating and extremely costly to collect usually.

When talking of development Your Excellency mainly talked about new projects, and very worthy ones. However our main industry, sheep farming, was mentioned but in my view insufficiently. Some - repeat, some - smaller ranches and farming is essential in my view - more is essential in my view - to give people a stake in those Islands. However I think it's honestly got to be said that when one looks around the farms and small ranches that are presently being run, that the emphasis usually, not inevitably, is on extraction and not improvement. Fairly often our smallest farms, farmed by owners resident in the Falklands, are the poorest examples of how farming should be done. If we get further subdivision in some area I hope we shall see something different; I hope we shall see some farmers improving their holdings, putting something back into them.

The GTU has recently issued a paper purporting to show that an expenditure of about £20 an acre in materials will produce a significant increase in production from ewes. If one includes labour etc the figure probably will be nearer £35 an acre of ewe ground. Obviously if applied to thousands of acres of ewe ground this represents very large money. I wonder if perhaps we should seek some finance, long term soft loans or something of that nature, to enable this concept to be tested on an industrial scale. Obviously safeguards will have to be made to ensure the Colony gains some benefit from this sort of thing but I feel that to get off the ground on an industrial scale some sort of subsidy or incentive of that nature is going to have to be given. This of course would not be the case if Government had an experimental farm of sufficient scope and size.

Recently a Falkland Islands Committee sponsored commercial organisation has once again been interfering in our affairs by actively lobbying ODM in a blatant attempt to interfere with our intention to purchase an Islander aircraft. The gentleman responsible for this, who is shortly to visit the Colony, will doubtless try to persuade individuals and industry to support this commercially sponsored organisation. The organisation is an off-shoot of the Falkland Islands Committee, but it is a long way different to that Committee and there is no resemblance to that worthwhile organisation which was set up by such patriots as the late Mr A G Barton. I think we must make it quite clear to this individual when he visits us and to other members of the organisation, that we want government here, not government by commercial hacks in London.

Your Excellency mentioned education and the advances we are making in the standards. I believe you said that forty-seven persons took 'O' level exams for various subjects - I may be wrong in that statement, perhaps you said forty-seven people passed exams; I think it was the number that took exams. The important thing of course is how many people do pass the exams. Virtually anyone can take these things, but it's the passing of them, and I hope there is a high level of passes. I think we owe a great deal to our present energetic Superintendent of Education; I also think that our present Chairman of the Education Committee has really livened that organisation up, and it should have good results.

With regard to agriculture, as Your Excellency and Honourable Members know, we were recently advertising for an Agricultural Officer, as we think the Department will grow in importance and there should be somebody in charge who really can develop this, and we were unsuccessful. I wonder, Your Excellency, Honourable Members, whether it may be an idea to consider looking around and advertising for suitable applicants with necessary educational standards who would be sent for training to an agricultural college for a course, or an agreed degree if they had sufficient academic qualifications, so that they could come back here and eventually take over our Agricultural Department. Meanwhile it seems to me we might reasonably ask ODM if they would second somebody through the GTU unit to take charge of our Agricultural Department, and I think it would be quite reasonable for us to pay our share of the salary that we intended to pay whoever we got through the advertisement.

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think I have probably talked far too much and I'm afraid I shall probably be talking far too much again. I would like to propose the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency for the Address.

/The Hon W E Bowles

The Hon W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

First of all, Sir, may I welcome you and your wife back to the Capital. Your recent tours of the Camp and especially those parts of the West Falkland you visited were no doubt appreciated by all concerned and well worthwhile both to yourselves and to campers.

It is pleasing for me to see some of our Senior School pupils present at this meeting. If I may add, the first Legislative Council meeting I attended was during my latter years at school and on that particular occasion nearly all the members walked out. I do not expect that to happen at this meeting. It is good to see the pupils here and it is good for them.

I would like to turn Council's attention now to Stanley rates, a topical subject at the moment. The time has come with inflation for me to urge that legislation be drawn up to consider extending the time limit for the payment of rates to September or thereabouts. Stanley rates are made in late May of each year and at present have to be paid by June 30th if a 5% penalty is to be avoided. This time limit is too short, and an extension of the limit is surely not much to ask. Regarding rates remission on account of poverty, I would urge consideration of a Bill to remove the word "poverty" and replace it with a more suitable word or phrase to suit this community. I think "reduced circumstances" would seem adequate.

Your Address this morning hinged heavily on development which is important to us all. This meeting has a long way to go I would like now to support the Motion of Thanks.

The Hon V H Goss MBE JP

In rising to support the Motion of Thanks, Your Excellency, I would like first to say something about education. It is very encouraging to see that education is slowly coming forward. I still think it's got a long way to go; we have heard it talked of ever since I was a small boy: improve standards of education. But we saw very very little materialise and in fact in many cases it went back. It is encouraging to see that this now is going forward. When we met here last in this House we talked of the hostel and I think we all thought that the foundations had been laid and the hostel perhaps on the way to being built, but it is still not even in sight as far as I can see. It is a long way off but we hope it will still come. The present Superintendent of Education I think is doing a good job; he is certainly on the right track and let us hope that he will get somewhere in this very urgent and needed move.

/Regarding the all-weather

Regarding the all-weather road, we keep saying, to Darwin; I think that is ridiculous. It should go right through to the Sound. It is not just one community we should consider, we must consider the lot; the West Falklands too. The ferry across the Sound will be a long way off yet but we could make do with what we've got. Brenton Loch is still the obvious place for me for the termination, not Darwin. Let Darwin be connected by a branch road the same as all the other farms are going to be, let the farms do it themselves if they want to; but not just go there and stop. Go up to the head of the Boca and when it comes round to festivals, people wanting to get to town, all those instances we had when there were no aircraft, the 'Monsunen' is quite capable of that: it could probably bring ten Landrovers across at a time; she has a sea truck; as there is no jetty the 'Forrest' is out unless she goes to San Carlos.

We've all talked about development and we could carry on talking a lot more. There will be no development in this Colony until the political situation is solved. Solve that and we will get somewhere. Until then we won't.

Your Excellency, I support the Motion of Thanks.

The Honourable S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

In rising to support this Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency's Address I would first like to comment on Your Excellency's remarks regarding the necessity for limiting any extension of the links we presently have with our neighbour. Now and again someone says that if we do not co-operate with that country we are burying our head in the sand. On the contrary, I have felt increasingly that we are being wilfully blind if we think for a moment that it is even remotely possible for us to have a purely commercial relationship with a country which has a population of millions, a military dictatorship, and which has for many years claimed sovereignty over our country. I feel it must be the policy of Government not to permit any further exploitation of these links which we already have with our neighbour. We have made it abundantly clear that we do not wish to be any more involved with Argentina than is absolutely necessary. Government must reflect on those wishes in our day-to-day dealings with that country.

We will have ample opportunity later in this meeting to air our views on the recent activities of Argentina on and around our territory so I will not dwell on these here except to say that these totally illegal and aggressive acts do not demonstrate the lasting mutually acceptable solution to any problem. I was interested to hear your comments on the protests made by Her Majesty's Government about these all too frequent provocations. Lacking as we certainly are in intimate knowledge of the workings of international diplomacy in common with many people, I wonder about the effectiveness of such protests. It certainly does not seem that the Argentine view such protests in the same light as Your Excellency. I cannot entirely agree that recent statements in another place have indicated a clear policy. I have frequently felt that often they are open to many interpretations.

I feel too that one of the most encouraging signs of progress on our domestic scene has been the increased opportunities for our people to go overseas for further training and to my mind the very obvious efforts of our Education Department to provide our young people with the knowledge and ability to enable them to best benefit from these opportunities.

If we are to expect our PWD to cope with projects that the generous help of ODM make possible, we must provide them with the necessary resources. In my opinion, for too long we have simply not given them the tools to do the job. Once the PWD is re-organised I hope that as soon as possible something will be done about the Stanley roads. I appreciate there is much to do, but Stanley is our capital, it is the first place that people visiting the Falklands see, it is also a home for some one thousand people who cannot be expected to have a great sense of civic pride when often they cannot leave their property without first donning wellingtons.

While speaking of Stanley affairs, it has been suggested to me that we should consider forming a committee to deal with some of the less important but nonetheless irritating problems we have in town. I think this is an excellent idea. Such a committee could be responsible for things like the upkeep of the Town Hall, which at present is almost sordid; keeping the greens tidy - that sort of thing. At the moment as things are it is inevitable that these things are relegated to a back seat in our list of priorities. This need not happen. I am not thinking of another Town Council; rather a properly constituted committee possibly consisting of Stanley Councillors and perhaps three other people, with an annual allocation from general revenue.

We have recently benefited greatly from the sale of postage stamps. I think we must take care that we do not kill this provider of golden eggs. We must not adopt a sales policy that ultimately results in there being no market for our stamps. Equally we should not be guided solely by the self-interest of a small group of people. Personally I contribute very little to this sort of revenue - I average about three stamps a week and don't worry unduly if they are not a gutter pair!

/Your Excellency mentioned

Your Excellency mentioned wool prices and the increased cost of wool production. Although I know very little about marketing wool, this always seems to be the cry of one section of our community -yet they don't look noticeably slimmer!

Your Excellency quite rightly commended Dr Cox and the Medical Department on their efforts. We are now more than ever aware of the need to maintain vigilance regarding the presence of hydatid disease. I was therefore appalled to learn recently that one farm had not been complying with essential regulations regarding this matter. I hope that this situation will not continue.

I would like, lastly, to depart a little from tradition and say something complimentary about our Administration. Several people have commented to me on the new sense of purpose and desire to help which they felt has become evident in the Secretariat in recent months. I find this most heartening. It has never been so important that we have confidence in our Administration; it is equally necessary that the public are kept fully informed, and in this respect, the regular Government bulletins are excellent. If we are to continue to progress we must have the support of the entire community and if people are not kept fully informed we will certainly not get it.

I would like to support the Motion.

The Hon D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

In speaking to this Motion of Thanks I try to look back over the last seven or eight months to the last Legco meeting. I try to gauge how we are progressing with our efforts to develop. To people in Town and Camp it probably seems that nothing much has been achieved. There is more positive talk of a road but no road started; there is talk of a school hostel but where is it? There is talk of an Islander aircraft but where is it? It all seems to be moving painfully slowly. From my position as a Councillor working with the Administration I can say that great efforts are being made to get things done; not only here but with Her Majesty's Government, especially Ted Rowlands. Choking paper work is not just a Falkland Islands disease; it is a world-wide sickness and we have to live with it. We are moving forward; tremendous efforts are being made and results will come despite the red tape.

/I think we all realise

I think we all realise that we will have to develop to survive. What worries me is that as soon as a line of development is adopted, everyone rushes in to tell you that it is no good and that this, that and the other should have been done instead. If we waited for people to agree on the right way to develop we'd wait for ever. It worries me because no matter what steps Government take to provide opportunities for development, only the people of these Islands can make development work. It is essential that we look for the good in the opportunities that are provided and capitalise on them. We must work together, not against each other. Far too many people continually hark back to the bad things that have happened in the past. The past is gone. We must leave it and look to the future.

The first section of our island road system will link Stanley to Darwin and go on to the Sound. It is only the first section that could be justified in terms of CDM expenditure. A lot of people are unhappy because they feel that the main beneficiaries of the first section of the road will be the FIC. Government must make sure that the opportunity is provided for development along the road so that it isn't just the FIC who benefit. Any thinking person must feel uneasy about the position of the FIC: they've been involved in several takeovers now and are becoming a smaller and smaller part of bigger and bigger concerns, all profit-motivated. Possibly the Directors of the FIC still care for the welfare of the Colony, but can the same be said of the people who give them their orders? I don't feel strongly that it would be a good idea to break up the big farms, but I do feel strongly that more of the land should be owned by the people of these Islands. The obvious place for small one-or two-family units are the smaller islands. I do take the point that the Councillor from East Falkland made. I think it is quite correct; a lot of the small islands aren't being run as they should be run. But I think these are the places where small units have the best chances of making a go of it. Undoubtedly the FIC will benefit greatly from the first section of the islands' road. In return it would be a magnificent gesture on the part of the FIC and a true indication of their interest in the welfare of these Islands if they rented or sold their islands to private individuals.

I now would like to turn to a theme I first thought of at the last Legco meeting. I have often wondered why the standard of school work falls off so badly when the children reach their teens. I could never put my finger on the answer. But it is obvious; it is there in the Bell report: the children lose interest because they're not being taught the right things. With the exception of children who choose to go on to try to get GCEs, the older children must be taught those things that are relevant to their life in these Islands. We are now trying to change the system so that it does cater for their real needs. Part of that change is to show the children that they belong to a community and have a worthwhile part to play in that community. I am still pushing to have the idea accepted that the children can help the older section of the community. I know they can. It is a matter of having the right guidance. One of the excuses I am given is that the parents will object. Why? Can't we all see that at present the children are bored because they haven't enough to occupy their minds? They would still be learning their three R's but there is more to education than that. They have to learn to fit into our community as useful members. We have to build a community spirit in this Colony. If the present generation is content only to find fault in everything, then our only hope lies in the next generation. They must learn to accept responsibility.

There is a great tendency in these Islands to think that Government is a fairy godmother: Government must do this, leave it to Government, it's Government's responsibility. I am afraid Government is too short of money to fill all requirements. We should be helping ourselves and each other. On the subject of old people and helping each other, a lot of the old people in town are ex-campers; I feel that Camp should be doing more to help: mutton, beef, butter and cream is what the old people miss. Don't tell me that Camp can't spare it and pay for its freight. It could soon be arranged for someone in town to collect and share out. It is a far more useful cause than the sweepstake. And there's plenty of money for sweepstakes. I would like people to think about that in Camp and if they were willing to help let me know and I will try to organise things in Stanley.

The sovereignty issue is always hanging over our heads. If at all possible it must be solved by peaceful means. Obviously we want friendly relations with Argentina and I believe that HMG is right to pursue that policy. I have strong reservations - very strong reservations - as to how often we can play down the insults that Argentina is dishing out and yet still have talks that mean anything. Provocations such as these must eventually lead to confrontation; we can only hope that someone over on the coast will realise that confrontation is not in the best interests of either side. If the protests by Her Majesty's Government to Argentina were a major diplomatic move, then the rejection of those protests by Argentina must be viewed in the same light.

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I beg to support the Motion of Thanks.

/The Hon the Financial Secretary

The Hon The Financial Secretary

Your Excellency,

This is purely for the Elected Members to put forward their views and only in cases where the record needs to be put straight do the Officials rise.

On this occasion I find that I have very little to put forward. I think the only point which was raised in connection with the finances of the Colony was that the Elected Member for Stanley has put forward a request that Government should consider introducing legislation for lengthening the period that the people of Stanley are given to pay their rates. I can see no objection whatsoever to this and I can assure him that Government will now look at his request and hope that legislation will come forward before the next year which we require to collect Stanley rates.

I should like to support the Motion of Thanks.

The Hon The Chief Secretary

Sir, in rising to associate myself with this Motion I find that I particularly want to thank you for a stimulating speech, because it stimulates so many interesting ideas which the Administration can now consider and, unlike the Honourable Member who proposed the Motion, I don't have the difficulty of not knowing what's been said, but rather the difficulty of trying to pick up all the very many points which are of interest; and I don't think that I should attempt to do all of these things. But it is perhaps worthwhile placing on the record just one or two points which may need clarification.

If I may trespass slightly on the preserve of the Hon. the Financial Secretary, my colleague, in terms of looking at the fiscal arrangements of the Colony, which have been criticised, that we hope soon to have a Fiscal Adviser join us on a long-term advisory contract funded by the Ministry of Overseas Development, and we shall look forward to discussing before long some of his proposals in a positive form in this Chamber.

We have heard too at the last meeting some criticism from the Honourable Member who would normally be sitting opposite me about the way in which our wool is marketed, and one of the Honourable Members touched on this in the course of his speech this afternoon. I have recently heard from the Commonwealth Secretariat that they have agreed to provide a specialist to look at the wool marketing arrangements of this Colony, to assure us that we are doing things in the best possible way and to the advantage of the Colony and of the industry. It is not an inquisition, it is an attempt to assure ourselves that the foundation of our prosperity is being conducted in a correct commercial manner.

Another point which I think I ought to mention is the question of what Government might do to improve the assistance that the agricultural industry gets. It is very disappointing to us that our search for an Agricultural Officer has proved abortive, because it is not easy in the Administration to consider what is after all our major industry without having anybody - and I don't mean to disparage the officer who very excellently combines the head of that department's work with all the other duties he has to do - it is not very reassuring to have nobody with any special qualifications and Government is looking ahead and we are hoping that a Technical Co-operation award will be made to go and study at the North of Scotland College of Agriculture so that in whatever capacity he may return here to lend his knowledge to this important sector. We are not just concerned at the immediate future; we are looking as far as possible to the far distant future as well.

This is an opportunity for the Administration to tidy up a few points. It is also an opportunity I think to dispel a popular misconception that prevails in most of the world, certainly in these Islands and, I suspect, even around this table where I am standing now, that public servants get some sort of pleasure about shuffling paper. Now it is our profession and duty to shuffle it but if we can see results at the end, then we as taxpayers and citizens share the satisfaction of the rest of the community, and the thought that at last some major projects are getting under way is as encouraging to officials as it is to Honourable Councillors and to members of the public.

Having said that, Sir, I will say no more and very heartily support the Motion of Thanks.

The President

Thank you, Honourable Members. Could I just explain that when the Honourable Tim Miller returns tomorrow I shall offer him the opportunity to speak to the Address which he hasn't yet heard - by then he'll have got the jist of it - and to put forward his Questions and Motions, so we may need to break into the business we are at at the time for Councillor Miller to speak.

I would like also at this point to offer congratulations and thanks, before we go on to the Orders of the Day, to Councillor Bill Goss for the award in the Birthday Honours of the MBE and also, if I might say so at this time, as I haven't had an opportunity otherwise, to congratulate Mrs Velma Malcolm on the award of the British Empire Medal. I am sure Honourable Members too were delighted at the recognition of the services of these worthy people. Thank you very much.

PAPERS LAID ON THE TABLE BY THE HON. THE CHIEF SECRETARY

Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Council since the 21st November, 1977.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

On behalf of the Education Committee I would like permission to read a statement on Camp education. This is in place of the paper which should have been laid on the Table but which has not yet been prepared.

I would like to explain that this statement has been produced to try and indicate what is happening with Camp education now and ideas and plans that are being discussed for the future.

I would like to start with recruitment. This is of immediate interest to everyone in Camp and we have some quite good news on this. One Camp teacher is due to arrive this Saturday, and a second one should leave the UK on the 27th and arrive here on the 1st of July. Three further candidates have been accepted and Camp education should be up to its full establishment by August. The achievement of a full establishment will enable the Education Department to arrange beats to follow a more regular and less erratic routine. Discussions with the Director of Civil Aviation have helped to plan beats which could be more effectively maintained. Several beats, on the advice of farm managers, will involve a good deal of overland travel and it is hoped that, with the co-operation of farms, it will be possible to maintain these more effectively even when flying is difficult.

The Education Committee has discussed several moves to upgrade the quality of education in the Camp. An increased portion of recurrent funds for materials and equipment is to go to children in Camp to help this process.

The Education Department hopes to increase the in-service training given to Camp teachers in order to ensure that the most effective use is made of all new aids.

The Education Committee recommended that Government should encourage the development of settlement schools by introducing a more relevant scale of subsidies for farm-employed teachers and adopting a common scheme for granting subsidies for farm school buildings. Government will also be asked to consider schemes to permit children to travel into settlements for schooling.

Through an ODM-supported link with the Faculty of Education at Brighton it is hoped that specialist staff will visit us and help to plan and produce aids geared to the particular needs of Camp children.

Under the cassette teaching programme, more than half of the basic tapes have now been completed. The current programme should be fully completed by October. This will enable the cassette organiser to make more visits to Camp.

To support these developments the Education Department plans to move two Falkland Islanders into new and significant posts. Mr Gerard Robson will leave in September on a British Council-organised course on the planning and production of educational materials. Miss Coleen Carey, who is currently completing a British Council-sponsored degree course in the UK, should return in September to take up a post which will involve the selection and supply of school materials and library books to children in Camp.

All these moves to strengthen settlement schools and improve the quality of materials used by children in Camp homes should help to reduce our dependence on the irregular visits of travelling teachers. The Camp teachers should work increasingly with basic aids to support an organised syllabus.

At the adult level, a new British Council scheme will provide several thousand pounds during the next three years for the purchase of resource books for use in settlements and Camp homes. These are not intended to be the heavy tomes so popular with 'winter quiz' organisers, but more handy reference books for the home handyman, housewife, horticulturalist and hobbyist, and the Education Department would in fact welcome suggestions from Camp for suitable titles for books.

Preparatory to the introduction of some of these innovations the Superintendent of Education plans to visit a number of settlements and islands during the next few months, and the cassette teacher hopes to visit all settlement schools on completion of his production programme.

The Education Committee later hopes to see the appointment of a Camp Education organiser on a par with our current head teacher posts, who would oversee these plans for development of Camp education and integrate the schemes of work and materials used in all our schools.

On the establishment of the Stanley hostel and the addition of facilities for the development of secondary education, it is hoped that the parents of all the children in Camp will wish them to have the opportunity to benefit from the workshop facilities and specialist teaching offered. With the eventual extension of the hostel facilities and appropriate communications, it might ultimately be possible to consider the admission of younger children from isolated homes, perhaps initially on a weekly boarder basis.

However our immediate objectives must be to bring Camp teaching staff up to full scale, to improve the quality of learning material and to enable teachers and parents to take full advantage of any outside assistance that is offered.

Thank you, Your Excellency.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

No 1 of 1978 by the Hon D S Evans

At this time, when it is important to attract more people to these Islands, what has Government done to introduce a proper immigration policy?

Chief Secretary

Sir, whilst Government would generally welcome suitable immigrants, particularly from Britain, it has regretfully not yet proved possible to offer suitable inducement to newcomers. Honourable Members are of course aware that funds are available to assist Islanders who may wish to return.

Mr D S Evans

What is the present procedure if someone from overseas applies for a job?

Chief Secretary

If there is an application for a job it is submitted by the employers to the Immigration Officer, with full details of the man, his family, the type of contract he is being offered and the terms of his contract, for consideration by the Immigration Advisory Committee who then advise the Governor in Council what decision should be taken about the issue of an entry and work permit.

Mr D S Evans

May I ask the Honourable Member another supplementary question - could you please tell me who are the members of the Immigration Advisory Committee?

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

I should do my best to answer that, Sir. It is chaired by Lt Col The Hon R V Goss; other members include Mr F M Milne, one other member of the General Employees' Union, one other member representing the Sheepowners' Association and of course the Immigration Officer is also in attendance.

Mr S B Wallace

How have Falkland Islanders in England been made aware that there are funds for passages to the Falklands?

Chief Secretary

I am sorry to say Sir I can't answer that question, except that where applications have been made since I arrived here, the position has been explained to those who have asked about it.

Mr A B Monk

You mentioned that preference was given to British citizens but since Britain is part of the EEC do we have in fact to consider them in the same way?

Chief Secretary

I think the Honourable Member has misunderstood what I said: no preference is given to British people; I said Government would welcome immigrants particularly from Britain.

Mr S B Wallace

What is the policy regarding the issue of work permits to people arriving?

Chief Secretary

Each case is taken on its merit - the position is considered sympathetically by the Committee and advice is then taken. It is impossible to generalise on a subject which must depend on the integral and basic merit of each particular case.

Mr D S Evans

Has an attempt been made to keep a register of available jobs? This would be especially useful for people who are thinking of entering these Islands.

Chief Secretary

I will be very happy Sir and look forward to Honourable Members proposing a new post to get under way the work involved!

/Mr A B Monk

Mr A B Monk

What is the situation with regard to EEC citizens? Do they get preference over other non-British citizens or not?

Chief Secretary

The question is a hypothetical one because it hasn't arisen so far as I am aware since I've been dealing with it, and no doubt the position will be considered again on its merits if it should arise.

Mr A B Monk

I suggest the Honourable Member is dodging the question. There must be a policy; what is it?

Chief Secretary

Certainly the Honourable Member is dodging the question. Sir, I would take the point that the Honourable Member is making and will consider with my colleagues in Government what that policy should be.

Mr A B Monk

Do I take it that there is no policy then?

Chief Secretary

Certainly Sir, there is a very distinct policy about the encouragement of immigrants to these Islands.

Mr A B Monk

I think Sir the question referred to EEC citizens. What is the policy with regard to them? Is it different from other non-British citizens or not?

The President

I think if I might interject this is becoming something of a debate. I think the Honourable the Chief Secretary has indicated that he would consult on this matter.

Chief Secretary

I think the Honourable Member is making a very important point but one on which I need consult my colleagues in Government.

No 2 of 1978 by the Hon D S Evans

Two fishing surveys have been carried out by a Japanese company around these Islands during the last three years; what were the results of these surveys?

Chief Secretary

Sir, these two surveys were commissioned by private interests. Whilst a copy of one was kindly made available to Government and a brief summary of the other, I am doubtful about the propriety of my revealing more than that their findings seem to Government generally inconclusive, but as in-shore fishing might prove of some significant development to the Colony, perhaps I might be allowed to take this opportunity briefly to explain what plans Government has for investigating these resources.

At present no-one has an accurate idea of exactly what fish may be lurking in our inshore waters - that is to say within approximately fifty miles of our coastline. Accordingly Dr Dennis Hall, Principal Fisheries Adviser of the Ministry of Overseas Development, is planning to visit Stanley in September or October of this year to assess the methods required and the manpower and equipment available locally for carrying out an inshore fishing survey. Such a reconnaissance visit would apparently be an essential preliminary before the Ministry could contemplate investing the considerable funds needed for any full-scale programme.

Meanwhile Government has agreed that the Tropical Products Institute, a misnamed but important part of the Ministry, should investigate as a matter of urgency the market potential for salmon from the Falklands, taking into account the problems of transportation, and to assess the scale of the likely markets and present prices and future price trends. If the results of this preliminary investigation are favourable, a salmon ranching expert would also visit the Colony at about the same time as Dr Hall. Then if so recommended a private project for breeding and catching salmon would be set up and carried out for a minimum period of three years.

Mr S B Wallace

Who were the private interests involved in the original surveys?

Chief Secretary

I understand that this was the Taiyo Fishing Company.

"What assistance is Government intending to give to the smaller islands to help them prepare the new grass airstrips?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, the FIGAS Advisory Committee has stressed that the responsibility for the preparation, maintenance and marking of farm strips should be that of the farms themselves although the Aviation Department will provide advice in all matters concerning the strips. Government may eventually also be in a position to help in preparation of the strips by providing some of the plant, though transportation problems could prove a severe constraint on this.

Mr D S Evans

Have Government considered the possibility of cash grants or interest-free loans?

Chief Secretary

Not so far Sir but I cannot anticipate what Government's reaction might be to any requests that might be put forward.

Questions No 4, 5 and 6 of 1978 were submitted by the Hon T J D Miller. The Clerk explained that, as The President had indicated, these would be taken when Mr Miller was present.

"At what precise date does the Administration propose the opening of Stanley airport, what steps are envisaged for the ceremony and at what date will the temporary airstrip be removed?"

Chief Secretary

With permission, I shall take this Question with No 10 in the name of the Honourable Member for West Stanley and No 15 in the name of the Honourable Member for East Falkland.

Neither date nor plans for the ceremony of opening the airport have yet been finalised. In answer to the second part of the Honourable Member's question, I have to say that no definite date has been fixed for the removal of the temporary airstrip, which is likely to remain for some time yet.

/Mr J E Bowles

Mr W E Bowles

Does the Chief Secretary envisage that there will be a formal opening of Stanley airport?

Chief Secretary

That I very much hope, since we have planned a rather fine issue of stamps to celebrate the occasion.

Mr S B Wallace

Did the Administration not give an undertaking that the temporary airstrip would be removed this Spring?

Chief Secretary

I am not aware that the Administration gave any such undertaking but I stand to be corrected.

Mr J H Goss

There wasn't an assurance given that it would be removed, but it was anticipated that it would be removed in September when the question was raised regarding re-grassing.

Chief Secretary

Sir, again, I am not aware that an undertaking was made; there is an obligation eventually for the airstrip to be removed but I myself have no knowledge of any undertakings or assurances having been made or given.

No 8 of 1978 by the Hon W E Bowles

"Sir, will the Chief Secretary indicate whether Government is fully satisfied with the standard of safety equipment currently carried on all local coastal vessels?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, as there are no laws requiring small boats to carry safety equipment, Government has no real means of satisfying itself about standards. The Harbour Master does of course try to maintain a close liaison with boat owners in an informal effort to ensure that adequate safety equipment is carried.

Mr A B Monk

I think the Honourable Secretary referred to small coastal vessels. The question refers to local coastal vessels.

Chief Secretary

That is an important distinction and I am grateful to the Honourable Member for drawing my attention to it. The major vessels plying for hire here are subject to Merchant Shipping Acts and there are very strict rules governing the safety equipment they should carry. My understanding in drafting this reply to refer to the small vessels was in my belief that the Hon. Member proposing the question wanted to know about the types of vessels not governed by the Merchant Shipping Acts.

"In view of the growing number of proposed new posts in Government for the Civil Service, including those of a temporary nature, will the Chief Secretary give details of the estimated overall cost which will be financed by the Falkland Islands taxpayer?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Budget proposals which will shortly be laid before Honourable Members for consideration, include 18 possible new posts, the estimated cost of which would be £35,000. The proposed new posts are as follows, and I will take them by Department:-

Within the Agricultural Department,
One Agricultural Officer;

In the Customs & Harbour Department,
An Engineer for m.v. 'Forrest', and this would be a transfer from unestablished to Permanent and Pensionable staff;

In the Education Department,
One school teacher,
Two camp teachers,
One handyman for the Stanley schools;

In the Medical Department,
Two junior nursing posts,
One district nurse,
One social worker,
One handyman for the hospital;

Within the Secretariat,
A Development Officer,
A secretary for the Development Officer,
A Clerical Training Supervisor, and up to 4 trainee clerk-secretaries who would be available for all Departments of Government.

"On what projects do the Administration plan to utilise the money promised by the Ministry of Overseas Development for expenditure on our internal communications?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Ministry of Overseas Development have granted £788,500 over a period of three years towards the total estimated cost of £908,500 for the construction of the Stanley-Darwin link of the Islands' road development programme. This grant, as you explained this morning, Sir, will be matched by Government expenditure of up to £120,000 over the same period.

Additionally the Ministry have granted an initial sum of £80,000 towards the cost of rehabilitating equipment acquired by Government from Johnston Construction Limited. This sum includes cost of the services of Warrant Officer Buckett and Staff Sergeant Tangui, whose arrival in Stanley has been so welcome, the cost of materials for converting the new heavy engineering workshop and store and purchase of the new grader that arrived last weekend on the 'Annette Danielsen'. Apart from internal communications the Ministry have also agreed to give an as yet unspecified amount for the construction of the new school hostel. Together the combined amount should be well in the region of one and a quarter million pounds.

"Have Government considered linking Old Age Pensions to the Retail Price Index?"

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

Sir, I am pleased to be able to assure the Honourable Member that there will be no difficulty about implementing his helpful suggestion. Indeed, pensions are already normally paid on Thursdays whenever a public holiday falls on a Friday.

Mr W H Goss

I thank the Honourable Member. They weren't, not last Christmas.

Actually, Sir, we regret any person who may have suffered because of the deficiency.

"I understand that Upland geese are considered a potential danger to aircraft at Stanley airport and that controlled shooting is carried out. Will the Administration consider permitting the public to take geese from the Peninsula by means other than the use of firearms or permit organised shooting?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Cape Pembroke Peninsula has been declared a Sanctuary under the Wild Animals and Birds Protection Ordinance and to allow the indiscriminate trapping or shooting of Upland geese there would not be in the public interest and might constitute a possible hazard to the safety of those many people who use it for recreation.

Mr A B Monk

Can the Honourable Member tell me if they ever advanced this as an objection?

Chief Secretary

Not to my knowledge.

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

Appendix I.

M O T I O N S

Motion by the Honourable the Financial Secretary:

"That it be resolved that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period 20th July 1977 to 24th May 1978 be adopted."

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, since the last meeting of this Council the Standing Finance Committee have met on five occasions and approved £833,597 in additional provisions. The bulk of these relate to the transfer of funds largely for development purposes from the Ordinary Reserves of the Colony to the Colony's Development Fund and for expenditure on overseas aid for the rehabilitation and storage of the Public Works Department equipment, which came to us under the Airport contract. The Report does not contain any proposals put to the Committee which were not approved and I therefore beg to move that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee be adopted without debate.

The Motion was seconded by the Honourable the Chief Secretary and carried without debate.

/Motion by the Hon

Motion by the Honourable A B Monk JP:

"That this Council views the shortage of teachers in Camp with great concern and instructs the Administration to take energetic steps to remedy the situation and report back to Council at the earliest opportunity."

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in view of the fact that the Honourable Member for West Falklands, Chairman of the Education Committee, has given us a very considerably detailed statement about this very matter, I wish to withdraw the Motion.

Motion by the Honourable A B Monk JP:

"That all dogs imported into the Colony shall be quarantined for 180 days. The period of 180 days may be reduced by the Governor in Council to not less than 90 days if the importer can produce proof that neither the dogs nor the carriers have had any contact with any rabies-infested area within 180 days previous to landing the dogs in the Colony."

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I really think it is very important that dogs imported into the Colony, whether from Britain or anywhere else, by ship or by air, which could touch any rabies-infested country, should under no circumstances have the quarantine period reduced. I know people argue that if the dogs are in cages on board a ship that touches Argentina or anywhere else, that there is no possibility of infection by rabies; but I disagree strongly with that hypothesis since any person who has travelled on ships, or especially any person who has been to sea, knows how easily rats find it to walk up a gangway - they can do it a lot easier than some of the crew returning late at night, I can assure you! And I am sure Honourable Members, Your Excellency, will agree with me that the disease once seen in human beings rather horrifies you and it must be avoided at all costs.

Some importers of dogs also argue that by the end of six months young dogs if they are kept in quarantine are of no further use, but of course that argument is completely fallacious. I have imported dogs into the Colony three times myself and one lot were young dogs and in no case were they useless when they came out of quarantine, although they didn't do quite as long as that. The main object of bringing dogs into the Colony, in my view, is to import the blood so that you can breed from them. Generally speaking imported dogs when used in our conditions, on large numbers of sheep, have in my experience been virtually useless. It is the blood you want for future generations.

I do strongly urge Honourable Members to seriously consider the proposal that under no circumstances should we relax our rules with regard to the importation of dogs if there is any chance that the carrier or the dogs have had any contact with a rabies-infested area within the last 180 days of landing here.

Mr S B Wallace

I wish to support this Motion. In fact I am told that our vet, Mr Whitley, is at this moment gathering information about this subject in England, so I would like to support the Motion subject to the advice which he gives us on his return.

Chief Secretary

Sir, I myself welcome the Honourable Member's Motion because as the previous speaker has already indicated, this is something which has been giving the Administration some concern. I wouldn't like to prejudge the issue by going the whole way with the Honourable Member's suggestion until there has been an opportunity thoroughly to explore what our quarantine regulations and rules should be. He may be entirely right in his suppositions but the Honourable Stuart Wallace has mentioned that Mr Whitley, our vet, is engaged in consulting the proper authorities in Britain about this. We have been in contact with the Veterinary Attache of Her Majesty's Embassy in Buenos Aires about conditions prevailing particularly in the Argentine, and I am not unhopeful that the Government will be able to lay before this Council suggestions for the emendation and improvement of present rules and regulations at present governing quarantine as a whole.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't know a lot about this. In the first place I couldn't understand why this Motion was necessary, but I did go and check in the Agricultural Department and apparently the rules as they stand state the minimum period of quarantine is 90 days; that is the minimum period and really the length of quarantine is up to the Officer-in-Charge of the Agricultural Department, and he accepts I assume advice from the Veterinary Officer, so the period although the minimum is 90 days, will be whatever the Veterinary Officer thinks necessary, so it did seem to me that we are fairly well covered anyhow. But we certainly don't want rabies here, not at any cost, so I will support the Motion.

Mr W H Goss

There seems to be, or may have been, a loophole somewhere, or the Honourable Member wouldn't have brought this forward. I think rabies is a very, very serious disease and all precautions should be taken to prevent it getting into the Colony. In fact if someone wants his dog sooner this should not be considered. If there is a rule or a regulation laid down that the dog must do 180 days, or 90 days, well that's that.

The President

I gather that this Motion has general acceptance and the Chief Secretary has suggested that the Administration will invite advice to bring forward amendments to our present legislation - which I think it wants, I think the legislation is inadequate; it's ambiguous, which is the whole problem. Perhaps Honourable Members can then accept the position that the Chief Secretary will bring forward more advice in due course.

Motion by the Honourable A B Monk JP:

"That Her Majesty's Government be urged to declare that under no circumstances would the ceding of uninhabited areas of the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies be considered as a means of obtaining an agreement with Argentina concerning the sovereignty of the remainder."

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the reason I would like this Motion to be adopted is that I detected - not a desire, perhaps the idea, that this might possibly be one way in which our sovereignty problems could be solved: by ceding uninhabited areas of the Falkland Islands and Dependencies; the inhabited bits might be left in peace. But I strongly oppose this concept because uninhabited areas may be unattractive bare rocks and may be hundreds of miles from us here; they at the same time might control areas of sea which ultimately would be the main areas for our development in fishing and oil and that sort of thing, and also one has to consider that there are uninhabited areas here, very close to this town, and where does one end when talking about an uninhabited area. Therefore I think it is vitally important that when talking sovereignty, when discussing sovereignty, considering sovereignty of the Falklands and its Dependencies which is the sovereignty of the whole, the uninhabited parts and the inhabited parts of the whole, and that no ceding of the uninhabited parts would be considered in order to gain an agreement with regard to the inhabited bits.

Mr S B Wallace

I wish to oppose this Motion. I don't see that there is any way in which Her Majesty's Government would make such a declaration without jeopardising the talks. I think also that we have agreed to these negotiations; it would be a serious mistake for us to say "yes, you may negotiate," and then in the next breath say "but you may not even consider such and such a move."

/This may provide

This may provide the other party with all the justification they need to turn around and say well, we tried to talk about it but they wouldn't even consider it. I think this would be an extremely dangerous image for us to project especially at this time when the opposition are doing a tremendous job tarnishing theirs. Regarding the Dependencies, it is totally inconceivable to me that the Argentine would consider a solution of this nature, but imagining that the impossible were to happen and it turned out that we could possibly rid ourselves of the anxiety we've had for years over that uninhabited remote lump of rock one thousand miles away, then I think at least we ought to consider it. As far as the Falkland Islands are concerned, we have made it absolutely clear to Her Majesty's Government that we wish every part of it, inhabited or not, to remain British. We have been told that any solution should be acceptable to us and I see no way in which a solution which sought to cede any part of our Islands would be in any way acceptable, since no matter what is considered the solution must be acceptable; I feel it would be unwise to hamper the effectiveness of Her Majesty's negotiations. I must oppose the Motion.

Mr V E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish to firmly support the Motion. This is a matter of principle, not a matter of bits of rock or bits of this or bits of that. It is a matter of principle. If the British Government have a dependent territory, whether it's a bit of rock, a bit of sea or a bit of land, they must do the utmost to protect it. We may have a piece of rock out there; if it is part of the Falkland Islands Dependencies or part of the Falkland Islands themselves I think we have every right to defend it. As it is a dependent territory and therefore a responsibility of Her Majesty's Government, I cannot see even Her Majesty's Government acceding to anything of this nature.

Mr J E Goss

Your Excellency, Councillors, I rise to support this Motion. I think it would be weakness on our part to consider what at this stage appears unimportant. Extreme weakness: it's only letting the wedge come another few inches further under the door. I support the Honourable Member's Motion.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I also wish to support the Motion. These lumps of rock are not in the Falklands; I think they are the key to the Antarctic. I also think that if we start allowing the Argentinians to have little lumps of rocks there is no telling where it will end. We could eventually find ourselves ringed by Argentinian possessions. If that were to occur then our chances of survival would be nil. Your Excellency, I would like to support the Motion.

The Motion was carried.

/Motion by the Hon A B Monk

Motion by the Hon A B Monk JP:

"That this Council wishes to inform Her Majesty's Government that we consider it essential that one or more elected members of Council be invited to form part of any United Kingdom delegation engaged in Ministerial or other definitive talks concerning our future."

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in making this Motion I do so because this very subject was debated in this Council last meeting and I have always been rather confused as to what the final decision was. It did seem to me that it was rather a deadlock. In my view it is vitally important that an elected member or elected members of Council should be part of any United Kingdom delegation engaged in definitive talks with the Argentine Government. Some of the views advanced against it when we talked about it before were that "oh well, if an agreement is made which we don't like, well then, the members will be blamed." Well, if members of Council elected by the people cannot take the responsibility for saying what they think when members of a delegation or anywhere else in the people's interests, then they shouldn't be elected and they shouldn't be on this Council. We have to realise that we must be prepared to take the responsibility if necessary. In my view if we do not have Councillors as members of the UK delegation, then we cannot blame the United Kingdom Government if they don't fully appreciate our points of view when talking with the Argentine. I wish to propose the Motion.

Mr W K Goss

Your Excellency, I rise to strongly oppose the Motion. Argentina does not recognise us as part of the argument; the argument is not between us and Argentina, it is between Argentina and Britain. And as for anybody to go there and expect to bring back anything more beneficial to us than we already have from the British Government is just a waste of time. The Councillor himself who goes may know just what transpires but, say, they decide to go along with something and he's in a minority, he's got to go along with it. He's part and parcel of the meeting, and yet we'll have a representative there who went along with what they agreed on, and when he comes back here it may be something that we do not agree to. No; I oppose the Motion. Thank you.

/Mr S B Wallace

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, my copy of this Motion says it is essential that one or more elected members of Council form part of any United Kingdom delegation. To my mind that has got nothing to do with whether we wish to go or not, simply that we be invited. So I would simply like to support the Motion, Sir.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I feel the same as the Honourable Member for Stanley. This Motion to me reads that we ask to be invited. We have been invited; we've been told by Ted Rowlands several times that if we wish to go we can go. We have had the other discussion before, and if the earlier discussion is what we're discussing I'm quite willing to talk about it, but this appears to me just to say that we ask to be invited; we know we've been invited so I don't think this Motion is necessary, so I'll stand against it.

Chief Secretary

It is convention that Official members of Council don't talk on controversial issues and I only wish to make a point of clarification which indeed the Honourable Member for West Falkland has made, that if, as I understand it, we have already received an invitation, which Councillors themselves agreed in the joint communique issued after the Rio Talks, and which was subsequently confirmed by Lord Goronwy-Roberts in a Statement in the House of Lords on 17th January, perhaps Honourable Members might wish to consider the possibility of amending the Motion to say that it welcomes the invitation that has been offered by Her Majesty's Government. This is simply a point of clarification.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am a little bit confused exactly what the Motion is now. As it stands if we think we should be invited to go there then we make up our minds at the time considering what the talks are going to be about whether we go or we don't. I proposed a similar sort of Motion last time because I agreed with what Councillor Goss said, that the argument is not between the Falkland Islands Government at all, it's got nothing to do with it, it's between Britain and Argentina, it's for them to sort out, and if we're invited to take part then we make up our minds when the invitation arises. Thank you, Sir.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am nearly as confused as the Honourable Mr Bowles now, but certainly

/as the Motion was written as the Motion was written it is "be invited". I still think the Motion should go through under those words because it is a reminder that we want to be invited and we may not always be dealing with this present British Government, and it's not a bad thing to periodically remind the British Government that this is our feeling, that we want to be invited; so I consider the Motion as it is printed should go forward.

In answering Mr Goss, the Honourable Member for East Stanley, who says that if you go as part of a delegation you are tarred with the brush of whatever decision they come to, is of course nonsense. If you go as part of a delegation and you find that the stance which is going to be taken in the negotiations is one with which you disagree, there is nothing whatsoever to stop you leaving the delegation then and there, and there is no point more strongly made that you disagree with what they are going to talk about than by walking out on the thing. I think we are dodging our responsibility if we don't want to attend these things and I think in fact if there is any confusion, any sign that this Council does not consider that members should attend these things, then I really think we should go to the public and ask them in an election what they think about it, because there are very strong views held in the public about this matter and I think we should have it quite clear in our minds what the public think.

The President

The Motion as it is proposed by the Honourable Councillor seems to comply with the facts as they are at the moment, that an invitation has been issued and we wish to maintain that invitation and I think the Motion on that basis is carried.

Motion by the Honourable S B Wallace:

"That this House ask the Administration to prepare and put before Council the legislation necessary for the control and operation of co-operatives."

Mr S B Wallace

In the Shackleton Report it was recommended that this Government should stimulate and encourage opportunities for local investment. A co-operative is in my view one of the most practical ways for those with perhaps less capital to invest. They can invest in an enterprise which can benefit not only themselves as investors but many other people besides. However as things are at present we have no co-operatives ordinance; there is therefore no legal framework in which the business of such an enterprise can be conducted. I understand that there is, as things are, no limit to the liability of those people who invest in them. This unlimited liability makes it an extremely unfavourable proposition for any investor; I think that new concerns have enough problems getting off the ground here without an obstacle like this. People would be even more reluctant to invest in an undertaking which has no legal basis. I think it is important that we encourage and promote initiative in all sectors of our community, yet in this particular case the lack of necessary legislation is an obstacle in the path of success of, in my opinion, an extremely desirable venture. I propose the Motion.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish to second the Motion. I am slightly confused by what Councillor Wallace said, because I think he said at one stage that the investor had no liability and probably he meant in fact that the investor's liability is unlimited, and I think that is the aspect of it which prohibits the setting out and investing in co-operatives, because if you set up a co-operative without this legislation and the thing goes broke, well then, all the belongings of each investor are deemed to be, as I understand it, part of the co-operative's assets, and of course that is rather a daunting prospect if the manager absconds with the cash or can't pay the bills. I strongly support the Honourable Member's Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too feel that if we are going to expand, legislation will be necessary to get these things going and I would like to support the Motion.

Mr W H Goss

In rising to speak to the Motion, Sir, I would say we've gone along quite a long time without such legislation but if it is necessary then we must have it. Regarding liability I sometimes wonder about these limited companies that we see about with limited capital. We know perfectly well that their expenditures and debts could be a lot more than that and surely the money would be recoverable from somebody, be it limited or not. I support the Motion.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I also support the Motion. I am a member of the Co-op and I don't like the idea of this unlimited liability! I don't really know much about this business at all but if forming co-ops is going to help development then I'm all for it. I would like to support the Motion.

Chief Secretary

I rise only to add my views to those that have already been raised, that this seems to be a timely and useful suggestion, to which we will look with the least possible delay.

The Motion was accepted.

/Motion by the Hon S B Wallace

Motion by the Honourable S B Wallace:

"That this House request of Her Majesty's Government that Falkland Islanders be entitled to a right of abode in the United Kingdom."

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am sure that this is not the first time by any means that this matter has been discussed by Council but until recently I did think it was the first time we had a Motion. It seems clear to me that we must make representations to Her Majesty's Government to have returned to all Falkland Islanders the right of abode in the United Kingdom. It seems probable that our failure to make known our wishes in the past may have resulted in the loss of that right in the first place. I think members are sufficiently aware of our feeling but I would like to emphasise that as an entirely British community, all of us with close ties and most having their family origin in the United Kingdom, we are unique among other British territories and colonies; for us Britain is the Mother country; for us there is no alternative. It seems natural that people if they wish to take advantage of the benefits of an industrialised society should turn to that society from which we derive our heritage, yet a small number of our people may not, even if they wish, enter the United Kingdom entirely free of any restrictions. The number of people involved at this moment is not great but it will increase as future generations of islanders come along, and for this reason I make this request now. I beg to propose the Motion.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, we are in an entirely different position to people in New Zealand or Australia or any other former Colony; the fact that this is a Crown colony and with a foreign power having designs on it may mean that if we don't accept their flag we would have to get out; we have nowhere else to look but to Britain. I strongly support the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think everybody supports this Motion, but I was under the impression that Falkland Islanders already have the right of abode in the United Kingdom. This was talked about at length in 1975 with David Ennals in Rio and he gave us an assurance that if we applied to the Foreign & Commonwealth Office, who was our link with the British Government, the right of abode would be granted to any Falkland Islanders wishing to take up residence in the UK. A lot of the problem has come about because Falkland Islanders have gone to the United Kingdom and applied to the Home Office for the right of abode and this is the wrong procedure; given the right procedure, those people who want to take up abode in the United Kingdom should not have any problem. If there is it is new to me. Although I firmly support the Motion I thought in some ways the Motion was not really necessary, but I do admire Councillor Wallace for bringing it forward.

/given the right procedure

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I strongly support the Motion. I would have liked to have seen it worded slightly different and to have included the right of work also, because I think that is very important. As it is presently worded it is only requesting the right for pensioners or wealthy people to live there, obviously the rest couldn't if they weren't allowed to work there. But I think the Honourable Member for Stanley is incorrect to say that Falkland Islanders have the right to live in the United Kingdom. I think what David Ennals told us in fact was that a sympathetic approach would be made to bending the rules to allow them to live in the United Kingdom, but that as the rules read they were not in fact entitled as of right.

I think that is entirely wrong, that kind of approach; they should not have to bend the rules to let Falkland Islanders live in the United Kingdom: the rules should say that they should be allowed to live in the United Kingdom as British citizens. With the reservation, as I say, that I would have preferred the words also "to work" in the United Kingdom, I strongly support the Honourable Stuart Wallace's Motion.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I also would like to support the Motion. There is an awful lot of strong feeling about this in the Islands and I think the more we can bring it up for debate and present it to Her Majesty's Government the better. I think everything's been said that needs to be said; I don't think I'll say any more, I'll just support the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

I would just like to thank Honourable Members for supporting the Motion.

The Motion was carried.

Motion by the Honourable D S Evans:

"That this Council would like to express its thanks to all the Members of Parliament and ordinary people of Great Britain, whose support to us in our wish to remain British is vital at this crucial time and is greatly appreciated."

/Mr D S Evans

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I introduced this Motion because I think it is high time that we let people in Britain who are supporting our wish to remain British know how much we appreciate their efforts. I sometimes worry that the sounds of this Council at times of "mini-crises" if you like, must make them wonder if what they are doing is worthwhile and if in fact we care whether they support us or not. This Motion is merely to let them know that we do appreciate their support and that it is vital at this time and it is only because of their support that we have been able to agree to talks and to allow some issues to be discussed, because we know that we have strong support in Britain and in effect the British Government would find it very hard to do anything against our interests.

Mr W E Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support this Motion and agree with what the Honourable Member said, not that very much can be said on it other than to show our appreciation for what the Members of Parliament and the British Government are doing on our behalf. I support the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

I simply wish to strongly support the Motion, Sir.

Mr A B Monk

I wish to support the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

I shall not go against the Motion either, Sir.

The Motion was carried.

Motion by the Honourable D S Evans:

"That this Council would like to request that the Administration of this Colony prepare legislation to provide for the compulsory purchase of land by Government when necessary to help promote development."

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this is an obvious step to take; this had to be brought up. There is no point in building a road unless we can have development along the road. We are talking about development in several fields nearly all of which will require land. We have already discussed this at length in our speeches I think and there really isn't much left to say. I know that we already have legislation which says (I may be corrected on this) that the Governor can acquire land for a public purpose. The definition of a public purpose seems to be causing some confusion and really we cannot go ahead if this confusion continues and nothing is done about it. I don't know in fact if this requires new legislation or if the public purpose piece can be clarified, but I do think we must go ahead at all speed and make sure that we can acquire the land that we need for development.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to speak to this Motion I touch on the matter referred to in my reply to the Address. It is absolutely vital of course and I cannot understand why we haven't made a lot more progress already towards having this legislation. It seems to me that there is a lot of foot dragging somewhere. I cannot understand what our legal expert in the UK is doing, why he hasn't managed to produce something along these lines; it seems fairly obvious that we are still not going to have this legislation when the road starts and it would be very unfortunate indeed if the main beneficiaries of the road turned out to be the owners of land along this road. It would be very unfortunate if the road is through before we come up with some form of legislation; it would be too late then, the land would have doubled, trebled, quadrupled in value and the best sites for development would have been selected already. It maybe that the most worthy citizens who should be encouraged won't get the opportunity. I really do strongly feel that urgent efforts must be made to get this legislation on the books before we start the road. I beg to support the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too support the Motion and until we have the line of the road fully confirmed I cannot see how we can get this compulsory purchase of land going until we know exactly where the land is. But as for preparing legislation for it when necessary I think we should go ahead as soon as possible. I don't know what the proposer means by "when necessary" if he means before the road starts, after it gets going or when the line of the road is confirmed. I would like to support the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't entirely agree with the Honourable mover of this Motion that there is any confusion regarding the definition of a "public purpose". A road is obviously a public purpose. However I do think this Motion will encourage the Administration to ensure that our existing legislation is adequate for our coming needs.

/I equally strongly oppose

I equally strongly oppose the idea that we should take land from anyone before we have a road. I must oppose the Honourable Member for East Falkland. At the same time I would not favour taking land from a company without good and sufficient reason; as a government we must be just and in my opinion it would not be any sort of justice to compel someone to sell land simply because we hope to use it some time in the future. Equally, since we are investing large sums of public money in our development I would hope that no-one would obstruct its progress. I wish to support the Motion.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I support the Motion. Regarding the acquiring of land along the road, I think it's absolutely unnecessary for us to specifically state any particular spot. We just put the machinery in action that we can acquire land, or the Government can acquire land or take land, anywhere they think fit, for the benefit of the community or for development. There may not be any need to take land; probably the people who already own the land along the road are prepared to develop it. I support the Motion.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I would like to rise on a point of explanation. During the study undertaken, or in progress, by the Green Patch Committee, I had reason to communicate with our Legal Adviser in Britain, Mr Frederick Cooke, and in a recent letter he pointed out that he was now engaged in producing some legislation for the purpose of obtaining land for development purposes, and also we have consulted him on a proposal to introduce legislation for the issue of land bonds so that we have the funds or the means of paying for such land. The two proposals I think go together and I trust that we will soon be having something concrete to bring before Councillors.

Chief Secretary

I can add very little to what the Honourable the Financial Secretary has already said, but that the points made so forcibly by Honourable Members will not be lost on Government.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, just two points that came up. I think the definition of "public purpose" would apply possibly to development along the road rather than to acquiring the land for the road itself. As to when we take the land over I think really that is a matter for Council as a whole to decide.

The Motion was carried.

/Motion by the Hon D S Evans

Motion by the Hon D S Evans:

"That this Council views the Argentine action of occupying Southern Thule and the subsequent incident involving the Polish fishing vessels as acts of deliberate provocation, and such acts if continued would prejudice the outcome of future talks with Argentina."

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think this is something about which we all feel very strongly. My purpose in putting this Motion forward is to make sure a statement goes out from this House on this matter. I don't think we can leave it and ignore it even though the British Government is doing all it can to remedy things. I do think that this House should issue a statement on how it feels. I felt very strongly about the Thule Island affair, but I feel even more strongly about the fact that 'planes apparently came over here deliberately to scare off fishing vessels that were in our waters with our permission. To me that was extremely serious. I would like very strongly to back Her Majesty's Government's protests. I only hope that they aren't rejected and I do feel very strongly if this does continue then it is jeopardising future talks. These things really are, to me, insults; if we are talking then this kind of thing shouldn't be going on behind our backs, or what's the point of talking. I could say an awful lot on this but I think I shall just leave it at that, and let the Honourable Members have a say.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support the Motion, with particular reference to the Southern Thule aspect of it. I am not absolutely certain in my mind frankly about the Polish fishing vessels incident. I think the British Government - I may be quite wrong, maybe I have the facts quite wrong - but I think in effect the British Government complained formally about the intrusion of aircraft over our airspace. I don't think that they complained about the fishing vessels. I do not myself see how they could complain about the incident of the fishing vessels, nor frankly do I see how we legally can either. Our territorial limit extends for three miles, no more, and what two foreign countries do outside that 3-mile area, whether it's Argentine ships with Polish fishing vessels or Russian ships with British ships, is nothing whatsoever to do with us in my view. I simply cannot see that we can legally complain about it. If the Argentine vessels had come into Berkeley Sound and chased out the factory ship which was anchored there (I saw it there when we were at Green Patch, it was inside our territorial waters), yes, you have a cast iron case for making a complaint. But if the Argentine naval vessel interferes with a foreigner's shipping on the high seas, outside our territorial waters, I don't think there is anything we can do to complain about it.

/The intrusion into our

The intrusion into our airspace, that I resent strongly and insofar as it refers to that I support the Motion; I support the Motion with regard to Southern Thule; but with regard to the Polish fishing vessels I honestly don't think that we can make a protest to the Argentine Government about that on the grounds that they are infringing our territorial position.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the Motion and I don't agree with the Honourable Member for East Falklands about the fishing incident, that it's got nothing to do with us. For Argentina to chase that ship away from there she must be claiming those waters and if we ever got the political situation sorted out it is obvious that we are going to want to claim a 200-mile limit. The position of this ship was right on the hundred-fathom line as mapped out on the present-day chart. I think I am right in saying that we have got some coverage regarding our continental shelf; the hundred-fathom line I am quite prepared to accept is slightly further South. It is a little more to the East than charted; but we are still on that gradient, which I think goes down to about 400 metres which is the accepted thing. I beg to support the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think the most significant fact about this Motion is that it is on our Order Paper at all today. Since negotiations began we have taken care, almost excessive care, to say nothing which could in any way jeopardise them; the same cannot be said of Argentina. I did not wish, and still do not wish, to jeopardise the negotiations but if they are not to become a farce, acts like the occupation of Southern Thule and these flights and in my view the most ominous act so far, that of stopping another nation's ship on the international waters around our islands, must cease. I beg to support the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Councillor for the East Falklands did get me a little bit confused at one stage over the legality aspect of this Polish vessel incident but with the marine knowledge of the councillor sitting at the other side of the table I accept his better judgement and I think in every respect the British Government will expect us to support their protest, therefore I support the Motion.

The Motion was carried.

Motion by the Honourable D S Evans:

"That this Council review the present arrangements for payment of allowances to Councillors."

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members - a slight change from the last Motion. I have brought this up because it appears to be the right procedure for trying to obtain an extra allowance so that I can visit my constituents. You will appreciate that living on New Island it is not possible to walk to other stations, or swim, but I do feel strongly that I ought to be able to get around to all the camp stations simply to explain things, explain what is being done, explain what is happening, give reasons. I think this is very important, it can't be done - it's impossible to do it - over the R/T, it's not easy to do it in letters. The only way to do it is to go and talk to people. I can't afford to do this on the allowance I have been given so I put forward this Motion to see whether Councillors will agree either to change the present arrangements for payments or find some way by which I can be allowed to go round camp stations on the West.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, democracy obviously has its price and I agree that camp councillors probably require additional allowances. I would like to propose that we discuss this in Select Committee.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the Motion. We have to face the fact that we here in Stanley can contact members of the public, or they can contact us, much easier than a member in the camp can, and if he has got to pay all his own expenses ... flights particularly in the case of the member on New Island, it would be very expensive. I beg to support the Motion.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I always was given to understand that members had to declare an interest at times like this; I think we've all got an interest and I don't quite know how we can talk about it; however I would like to support the Motion by the Honourable Stuart Wallace that the matter be referred to Select Committee. I don't really think it's very feasible for us to fix it without that. This is a Motion I support.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I take the point by the Honourable Member for West Falklands and I share his concern for his constituents. It is a difficult subject to talk about and I would like it referred to Select Committee so we can come back and make a public statement at a later date.

/to talk about

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I see no objection if Honourable Members wish to discuss it behind closed doors but I would think that we should ensure whatever the outcome it is embodied in legislation, and I would propose that the discussions which they wish to undertake in Select Committee should be followed by referring legislation to Council to provide for, perhaps, an increase in the allowances to cover this.

The Motion was accepted and referred for consideration to the Select Committee on the Appropriation Bill.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

The Appropriation (1978/79) Bill 1978.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, principally because of the good news from the Postmaster that the net income from philatelic sales will be £150,000 more than his original estimate for 1977/78, there is a considerable improvement in the Colony's income and expenditure account for the current year. The revised estimates for 1977/78 show that expenditure is now expected to reach £1,413,000, i.e. approximately £60,000 more than estimated. The revised estimate of revenue is over £1,600,000, approximately £200,000 more than the original estimate. This improvement indicates that the surplus of revenue over expenditure for the current year will be increased from £53,000 to £189,000, i.e. an increase of £136,000. With the transfer of £490,000 to the Colony's Development Fund which was agreed to during the year, the reserves supporting the ordinary revenue and expenditure account are now estimated to amount to slightly over £340,000 at the end of this month, which is the end of our current financial year.

The Budget for the coming year 1978/79 balances at £1.76 million. Revenue from companies' tax is estimated at £575,000. The element of tax from sheep-farming companies included in that estimate is based on the proceeds of the 1976/77 wool clip, which averaged approximately 115.8p per kilo.

/The major proposals

The major proposals related to taxation this year are relevant to income tax. It is proposed to increase the personal allowance from £350 to £400 and the allowance for a wife from £300 to £350. It is proposed to increase the child allowance from £250 to £300 and the allowance in respect of a child at school overseas from £280 to £320. It is proposed to increase the earned income relief maximum from £750 to £850 and to up-lift the maximum earned income relief limit in the case of a wife from £200 to £230. It is proposed that persons over 60 be able to claim old age relief when their income is not more than £1,050 rather than the present level of £900 per annum. It is proposed that the allowance for a female relative in charge of children be increased from £150 to £175. It is proposed that the allowance for a dependent relative be increased from £250 to £300.

There is only one proposal relating to customs duties this year and that is an increase in the import duty on spirits from £13.50 to £15 per gallon. This will increase the duty on a bottle by 25p.

A revision of the Falkland Islands Government Air Service fare structure is proposed; the major proposal is an increase in the mileage rate for non-residents, from 15p to 25p. It is proposed that the boarding fee applicable to all adult passengers should be increased from £6 to £8, that is an increase of £2 on every journey regardless of the destination. On a short flight, for example from Stanley to Green Patch, the percentage increase would amount to just under 30% whereas on a longer flight, for example from Stanley to Port Stephens, the increase would be only 17%. Some minor adjustments are proposed to charges for medical flights, mainly streamlining. It is also proposed to revise the charges for air freight. The proposal is to introduce a minimum charge of 50p for up to 5lb, thereafter a rate of 10p per lb up to 50lb. In excess of 50lb the rates to be 15p per lb. The air freight rates have not been changed for a considerable time, and with the erosion in the value of money the present charges are way below the level in value at the time they were last revised and require up-dating.

It is proposed to increase the electricity tariff in Stanley from 4.76p to 5.25p per unit. A straight calculation of the tariff on the customary basis indicates that the tariff should be increased to 6.03p per unit, but because of the exceptionally large increase cognizance has been taken of the advice given in the Shackleton Report, that is to adjust the price down by a factor to avoid depressing consumption by too large a tariff increase.

Besides the above mentioned revenue proposals some other adjustments in rents and fees are proposed, to up-date the charges. An increase in the telephone rentals by 50p per month is proposed, and a £1 increase per month for business telephones. An increase of 15p per minute in telephone calls to Argentina is proposed.

/It is proposed that fees

It is proposed that fees under the Licensing Ordinance should be increased, the majority of which have not been up-dated for more than 30 years. It is proposed to double the fees for the main licenses, for example the whole-sale liquor, publicans' retail, club, tobacco and restaurants.

Other significant items of revenue in the 1979 estimates include £180,000 from the sale of stamps. The following issues are included in this figure: £60,000 for the Coronation issue; the opening of the Airport issue, first stamp commemorative issue, and the maps and charts issue are all expected to amount to £15,000 each. The sale of the current definitive issue in the 1978/79 year is expected to realise £60,000.

It is estimated that £50,000 will be received in 1978/79 from the sale of Jubilee coins. This will bring the total proceeds from the Jubilee coinage issue to £80,000.

Finally on the revenue side of the estimates the sum of £50,000 is included being surplus revenue from the Government Savings Bank.

In turning to the expenditure side of the estimates I will comment on the items as they appear on the estimates: the first Head requiring comment being Head II, Agriculture. The expenditure proposals for this year include provision for the recruitment of an Agricultural Officer.

In the Customs and Harbour Department provision is made for new lights for Navy Point and Blanco Bay; in the m.v. 'Forrest' section of expenditure provision is made for the up-grading of an engineer to the permanent and pensionable establishment. A deep-freeze and a number of replacements are also included, for example a new radio, and radar aerial drive unit. Provision of £15,000 is made for docking of the 'Forrest' in South America.

Several changes are made in the estimates relating to the Education staff: certificated teachers have been re-designated qualified teachers and the establishment is being increased from 17 to 18. The establishment of uncertificated teachers is increased from 7 to 9. The increases in staff are largely due to the proposed appointment of a Camp Education Assistant, the up-grading of a temporary teacher and the phasing out of personnel who have assisted the Colony in recent years from a voluntary service organisation in Britain.

A proposal is made to recruit a full-time handyman for the Stanley schools; he will also be required to undertake repairs and maintenance at the Stanley school hostel.

Proposed additions to the Medical staff include an increase of two junior nursing posts, a social worker to continue after the expiry of the current term of engagement of the present VSO social welfare officer. A token sum is inserted for the new post of district nurse. Provision is made for a full-time handyman to carry out all repairs and maintenance in the hospital, both interior and exterior. Bids for special expenditure items in the Medical Department amount to £11,700 and range from £4,000 for an oxygen concentrator to £200 for a potato peeler. Other items include the conversion of beds, replacement of mattresses, up-dating Camp medicine chests, including the provision of special emergency equipment; kitchen refrigerator, trailer and office furniture.

The Police and Prisons estimates include provision for the recruitment of a cadet. Provision is also made for two filing cabinets and a finger-print camera.

In the Posts and Telecommunications Department estimates, substantial expenditure is envisaged on improving the philatelic division of that department. The Administration places great importance on forward planning and the need to maintain attractive stamp issues and the expansion of sales and so it is proposed to establish a Philatelic Bureau consisting of a Controller and two Clerks. A proposal is also included in the P&T estimates for the broadcasting secretary to be re-graded and to be brought on to the permanent establishment.

A number of posts have been re-designated in the Public Works Department, following the recent re-organisation undertaken by Mr Pike and the decision made by this Council earlier this year to strengthen the supervisory capability of the department to undertake major development projects. The new establishment includes three supervisory officers, namely a Buildings Superintendent, a Mechanical Superintendent and a Roads Superintendent, all working under the direction of the Director of Public Works. Other posts proposed for re-designation are as follows: the Senior Plumber, to be changed to Water Supervisor, and the Workshop Supervisor now becomes the Mechanical Assistant Superintendent. In the Electrical Division it is proposed to employ a standing watchkeeper. Mr Pike has proposed that all labour engaged on maintenance of roads, buildings, fences and minor works be charged to one sub-head under the title of Labour, to ease the work in the office, thereby avoiding an increase in the office staff because of the development projects.

The estimates of public works special expenditure total just over £50,000. The majority of this expenditure relates to items carried forward from the 1977-78 year.

The estimates relating to the Secretariat include the newly approved post of Development Officer, his Private Secretary, a Clerical Training Supervisor and four trainee clerk-secretaries. It is also proposed to purchase an electronic stencil cutter for the Secretariat.

The Social Welfare Head includes provision for an increase of 100% in family allowances. The Charitable Relief vote is to have a new name from the 1st July: it will in future be known as Social Welfare Grants. It is proposed to make substantial increases in Old Age Pensions, which will cost the OAP fund in the region of £18,000 in 1978/79, thereafter increasing. Approximately £2,000 from the tax-payer is required to meet proposed increases for non-contributory pensioners.

The estimates of expenditure make provision for training and the sum of £15,000 has been inserted.

The 1978/79 development estimates are of great significance and of paramount importance in the policy of maintaining and strengthening internal communications in the Colony. The sum of £400,000 is included to cover the first year's expenditure on the first section of the Colony's road programme; the first section being of course from Stanley to Darwin. The sum of £290,000 is included for the purchase of an Islander aircraft and hangar. For replacing and improving the R/T network £70,000 is included.

A provisional estimate of £400,000 is included for another item of major importance: the Stanley school hostel.

A number of small farms have shown interest in fencing programmes for pasture improvement and a figure of £13,000 is provided for subsidies to farmers.

The provision for loans has been increased this year to £50,000. The development estimates also incorporate both receipts from the British Government and payments made on the two projects for which they are totally responsible, i.e. the causeway and berth for off-loading oil products and the permanent airfield. The payments relating to the permanent airfield represent the retention money which will become due to the contractors.

The sum of £15,000 has been inserted for the possibility of commencing a house building programme in 1978/79 to alleviate the housing shortage in Stanley. Provision is also made to replace the ambulance and purchase hospital theatre equipment. A modest sum is included for re-surfacing of Stanley roads. Approximately £20,000 is provided for local expenses relating to Technical Assistance, the majority of which is for the continuation and expansion of the Grasslands Trials Unit. Other TA projects include the re-arrangement of the Colony's archives,

/Fiscal Adviser,

Fiscal Adviser, Camp Education Adviser and other experts likely to be visiting the Colony from the Ministry of Overseas Development. It is forecast that expenditure of £1,481,000 will be borne by the United Kingdom Government during the year and £146,000 will fall to be met from the Colony's Development Fund.

The Colony's finances at the end of June 1979 are estimated to total £574,000 i.e. £343,000 in ordinary reserves and £231,000 in the development fund. These reserves are in my opinion now below what I would describe as a healthy minimum. While I do not advocate maintaining reserves to a standard more than necessary it is important that careful consideration is given to maintaining a reasonable level of reserve balances.

Ordinary expenditure, of which the majority is recurrent, has grown by approximately £400,000 in the last 12 months. It is of course pleasing to note that a substantial percentage of the increase is attributable to attempting to improve the services provided by Government and increasing the ability of Government to undertake vital development projects. It is fortunate that we are able to estimate for matching revenue, principally tax on the net proceeds of the 1976/77 wool clip and higher receipts from the sale of postage stamps.

The estimates also include an element of revenue which can be described as windfall revenue and which will not be available to us in future years. However after sounding a note of caution it seems that future prospects are not altogether gloomy. I am advised that wool prices at present are firm. The future prospects as far as we can tell are also not gloomy - in fact it would seem that we could expect to have reasonable prices and our stamps revenue is still climbing.

Other sources of revenue are under examination and in this connection Mr Ritchie, who has had an enormous experience in South Pacific regions and who undertook the recent salaries revision, will be arriving in the Colony in the coming financial year to continue the fiscal survey which was started last year by Mr Pepper. A considerable amount of work is still necessary in this field before the major proposals can be considered in depth. Information has already been passed on to Mr Ritchie and more information is now being sought from other territories which he requires for the commencement of studies relevant to our taxation system.

I will not go into details here but there are a number of hurdles to contend with before proposing major changes in taxation policy. If progress is good, any proposals that may commend themselves for implementation will be brought before Legislative Council at a very early date for consideration. I would imagine that we would have some proposals ready for the summer meeting of this Council.

/Besides the study

Besides the study of fiscal measures there is a considerable amount of other activity in the financial division of government. A much needed new index of retail prices is to be drawn up soon. The extension of the Government Savings Bank services is being planned, the introduction of a funding scheme coming under the Plant and Transport authority is receiving attention, and the Public Works Department voluntary PAYE system is to commence in July as a first step in PAYE.

I will lay on the Table the calculations produced by the Income Tax Officer showing the effect of the new income tax proposals. The public will undoubtedly be interested in some comparisons of tax on sample incomes; a married man with two children receiving an annual earned income of £1,800 will pay £9.27 compared with £46.92 on the present system. A married man with three children receiving an annual earned income of £2,100 and who would be paying £45.52 at present, would on the new rates not have to pay any tax.

Finally there is the question of the outflow of funds from the Colony. In order that I am able to give some indication to Mr Ritchie of Councillors' views it may be helpful if Honourable Members would state their views on the size of the margin of the profits that should be retained in the Colony and the purpose to which these should be applied. We have already the views of previous serving Councillors; the answers from new Councillors should be a considerable help to Mr Ritchie. I look forward to hearing from Councillors on this matter perhaps either during the debate or during the course of the Select Committee meeting.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Honourable the Chief Secretary seconded the Motion; the Bill was then read the first time and Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to offer my congratulations to the Financial Secretary and his staff for the presentation of the Estimates - I don't wonder that the Treasury require new calculators! I will not commit myself to opposing or for that matter supporting any of the proposals at this stage but I would like to comment on one or two of them.

I do not think the idea of employing handymen to work only in one department is a good one. Surely we should instead aim at enlarging the PWD pool of labour and then deploying them effectively. I am also dismayed at the apparent policy of converting Government quarters to oil fires; I appreciate that in some cases it is desirable and there is no point in paying somebody a vast salary and having them chop peat all day, but I don't think it makes economic sense having a cheap fuel we can produce locally and Government encouraging the import of an expensive substitute.

The increase in electricity tariffs seems to be massive. I think we should consider a two-tier tariff system, one in which domestic consumers and commercial concerns are charged at separate rates.

Regarding the margin of profits which may be retained in the Colony, in order to give any advice on this I really must seek advice from people who are rather more informed than I am on this.

I was pleased to see the emphasis on development which is evident in these Estimates; the expense is daunting but if we are to avoid further stagnation we must invest in our future; if we do not we cannot expect to see any degree of social or economic improvement. Thank you.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, like the Honourable Stuart Wallace I don't propose to either endorse or otherwise any of the specific proposals for increasing revenue, raising revenue or spending it. There are one or two interesting little points I think nowadays in our budget.

Seventeen years ago the revenue from company tax and the revenue from income tax showed a difference of about two to one in favour of company tax; the revenue from income tax was quite small. Since then company tax, which includes profits tax, has increased roughly 500%. Personal income tax on the other hand has increased 1,000%, so that nowadays personal income tax is assuming a very much greater percentage of our revenue than it did before, and it is rapidly approaching the amount that is paid on company tax. Whether that is because the individual earners are getting better rewarded and so paying more in tax than they did before is a good point, but I think it really wants to be reviewed; I would like our fiscal expert to consider this when he comes and to see whether the two systems of tax have not got a bit out of line, whether we should be increasing our company tax more or altering it in some way to attract more revenue. I have always said and I still say even with the improvements that the tax on the lower paid individuals is excessive. I intend to propose an amendment in the Income Tax (Amendment) Bill later on concerning private personal tax, but I won't go into that now, but I think it might go some way to remedying the present situation.

I think the presentation by the Honourable Chief Financial Secretary was admirable and I fully endorse the words of the Honourable Councillor who said that he could fully understand that they wear their calculators out; I don't wonder they don't wear themselves out too, frankly.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to convey my congratulations to the Financial Secretary on his presentation of the Appropriations Bill. I am not going to say anything about it now because we have an awful lot of work to do before we say yea or nay to it anyway, and I look forward to Select Committee.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the Motion and also congratulate the Financial Secretary on his efforts. To try and take any section or tear any one bit to pieces here, this is not the time nor the place to do it and I look forward to tearing much to bits in Select Committee.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as a very new member I don't think I have anything to say at this stage. I think here I have to rely very heavily on the experience of the members such as the Honourable Member for East Falkland. It sounds as though it may be an interesting experience if we are tearing people to pieces but I will just wait and see! I would also like to congratulate the Financial Secretary on an awesome effort.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to thank Honourable Members for their kind remarks and to take up just one or two points which they have raised I would like to refer to:

The point on company tax and personal tax; this is of major importance and it is a point that we have under consideration at the moment. I think Honourable Members will be aware of the interim report which was written by Mr Pepper and there are still some difficulties in implementing the proposal and obtaining more details for the introduction of a new company tax. We are bedevilled with two types of companies, locally resident companies and UK resident companies. In this connection we are also considering the ways and means of introducing a withholding tax, but there is little point in expanding now. This, I can assure Honourable Members, will be looked into before the next tax year, which will commence on the 1st January next. I hope it will be finalised by then.

The details of the expenditure which the West Stanley Councillor referred to certainly can be looked at; we are not committed in any way; it is not a fait accompli; and each Head of Department will be able to put his case in detail to the members of the Select Committee and then if the expenditure is not justified obviously Honourable Members will then axe it.

/I feel that there is

I feel that there is a great pleasure now in noting the views of Councillors and also the public generally in the explanations referred to both in Council and outside Council on the development projects of the Colony. It seems at last we are moving ahead and developing and despite the very high expenditure, I feel that we may have some trimmings in Select Committee, but we will not have anything that will jeopardise the move forward, nothing that will hold back development.

The Bill was then read a second time and, on the proposal of the Chief Secretary, seconded by the Financial Secretary, it was referred to a Select Committee of the whole House. Council then adjourned at 5.40 p.m.

Council resumed at 10.00 a.m. on 26th June 1978.

The President

Good morning, Honourable Councillors. The House now resumes. Before we proceed to the Report of the Select Committee for the next stage of the Appropriations Bill, now we have the Honourable Councillor Miller with us after his delayed flight back from Trinidad and Tobago caused by the snowy weather we had last week, I would like to suggest to him, if he wished, he may like to speak on the Motion of Thanks to the Address which he wasn't here to hear, but I think probably by now he might have seen, and afterwards proceed to his Questions, which we weren't able to take last week. I am sure in speaking Councillor Miller will no doubt give us an account of what took place at the CPA Conference. I have had the privilege of seeing a transcript of the speech he made at the Conference, which did in fact make headline news in the local press, and I think using the time-old phrase for that occasion I can say "Councillor Miller, you spoke well" on our behalf.

Mr T J D Miller

Thank you, Your Excellency.

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, ladies and gentlemen, firstly may I say how glad I am to be back here after a frustrating three days in Comodoro Rivadavia trying to guess what my colleagues were brewing up in my absence.

As most will know, I left the Islands on 7th June to attend the 14th Caribbean Regional Conference of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, held in Trinidad and Tobago from the 10th to the 18th June. First of all I would like to thank the President and other members of our local CPA Branch for selecting me to represent the Falklands there. It was a great pleasure to do so and I only hope that my efforts there would lead to more understanding and support in our fight for self-determination. Nearly everyone I met knew more or less where we were and what the basic problem is. All were extremely interested to know the details and appeared to be very sympathetic with our cause. As well as imparting information I spent some time gathering information of use to us. Two items I found particularly interesting were: that Bermuda, a British Colony the same as us, claims its own 200 mile fishing limit. Like us Bermuda lacks the means of patrolling its waters. Yet apparently all concerned pay the necessary licences; in fact it appears to be self-policing, as those who pay make sure that others do so as well. The Bermuda Government also reserves the right to put people on any ships for inspection purposes,

The other item was that the Cayman Islands, at one time had a sovereignty dispute so to speak with the United Nations, who thought that they should become independent even though they did not want to. Eventually an investigating team of the Committee of Twenty-four, the decolonization committee of the UN, visited the Islands and had their eyes opened for them. Consequently the United Nations has now left the Cayman Islanders in relative peace.

Rather than go into all the other details now of my visit to the CPA Conference, I hope to be interviewed on a radio broadcast shortly and will also be giving a full report to the local CPA Branch, and I would now like to move on to other matters. Before I do so, though, I would like to record my thanks to the Trihidad and Tobago Branch of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, their government and their people for the tremendous hospitality offered to me and all the other delegates throughout our stay there.

Your Excellency, in replying to your Address I welcome in particular your reference to the intention of giving local members of the public service every opportunity to receive training to enhance their capabilities and eventually reduce the need to recruit overseas officers.

The future of the Falkland Islands depends not only on Britain's attitude to us; it depends very largely on ourselves and it is up to us, the Islanders, to make every effort to advance. It is no good sitting back criticising everyone else for not doing so and so when you yourself are not doing much about it either and that, I am afraid, is what many people in these Islands spend their time doing. Nobody, nobody is going to help you unless you are prepared to make an effort yourself. Many people rightly criticise the failure of some landowners to invest capital here, but ironically many of those same people have their own money either invested overseas or sitting virtually idle in the local savings bank,

The small industries and co-operatives that we all need, need the support of all of us. Many people here shout about what so-and-so should do with his money, but those same people themselves seem to be strangely reluctant to put their own money where their mouth is, as the phrase goes. I firmly believe in the future of the Falkland Islands but if we fail to survive - I don't think we will - but if we fail to survive the blame will only lie with us, the Falkland Islanders; not with Britain: it will lie with us because we were not prepared to make an effort. As I've said, I firmly believe in the future of the Falklands, but our future will be largely what we make of it, and it is up to all of us to make an effort where we can.

Equally however it must be the aim of this government to encourage and stimulate new enterprise where possible in the private sector and we should not duck from any action or legislation needed to get the corporate sector to invest in the Islands and develop. There are still some firms, both overseas and locally based ones, which are doing absolutely nothing towards increasing output by investment, and this government cannot let that situation continue.

I welcome the proposed construction of a road from Stanley to Darwin, so long as it does not end there, and I am sure it will not. If it did I fear it would be a fatal mistake for the rest of the camp. However, first things first; we have to make a start and it is logical that one starts from Stanley and moves out, initially westwards. We have got I believe the support of the top of the Overseas Development Ministry but there appear to be frustrating delays in implementing an approved project by civil servants' bureaucracy and inefficiency somewhere along the line. The two Royal Engineers now with us - I would like to extend a welcome to them - spent I understand six weeks doing nothing waiting to come out here; six weeks they could have spent here. Also they were given the impression that there would be a team of Royal Engineers here to work with.

Moving on now to the proposed school hostel, I had hoped to hear during this meeting who was going to build the hostel and when they were going to start it. I hope we will hear publicly very soon.

I would like also to add my name to those who have thanked people for jobs well done. Mr Fike, the temporary Director of Public Works, Jim McAdam of GTU and especially to Dr Derek Cox of the Medical Department; I hope that one day he will perhaps return to us.

Your Excellency, referring to the purchase of a new aircraft for FIGAS, a Britten-Norman Islander; we need that aircraft, regardless of who is to pay for it and we must have it soon. Therefore I cannot see why we are not going ahead with the purchase and construction of a hangar to receive the aircraft when it finally comes. Surely if Her Majesty's Government eventually agree to help us re-equip FIGAS, then a new hangar is an essential part of that programme, so I assume that they would take over the cost.

Concerning the present operation of FIGAS, I would like to say that last Spring I did not believe that our air service would ever return to the efficient friendly service that we all knew. I know, as we all do that during the last three months it has been hit by one problem after another, but last Summer we did have the old service that we all knew back again. And I want to congratulate not only our pilots, Jim Kerr, Dave Emsley and more recently Gary Studd, but also the hard-working mechanics and ground crew who, together with pilots, make a good service possible.

Your Excellency, you referred rightly to the totally objectionable actions taken against us recently by Argentina. I fully accept that it is indeed a very major step in international and diplomatic affairs for a responsible government such as that of the United Kingdom to deliver a formal note of protest to another. That is very true. The point is however that I do not concede that the other government, namely the Argentine one, to be responsible. They certainly do not behave like a responsible government. Their abysmal record of human rights speaks for itself, and their rejection of the Beagle Channel Arbitration Court's findings makes, to my mind, their signature to any document concerning the Falklands to be virtually worthless. They are breaking the Communications Agreement over the white card - they have been doing so for a long time. Britain tells us she is protesting and pursuing the matter, For two years Britain has been pursuing the matter, to what result? Nothing. I suggest that it is about time we insist on all Argentines coming here having valid Argentine passports.

Southern Thule has been occupied and the British protest rejected by Argentina. We hear that London is pursuing the matter and in the view of the Foreign & Commonwealth Office our protest legally covers our sovereignty; this I regret does not completely reassure me. I think that in practice possession is nine-tenths of ownership.

Polish ships are molested in international waters close to us, and claimed by Argentina. Argentine aircraft overfly our territory, not only an illegal action but also endangering the lives of those in other aircraft which were flying at the same time. I do not believe that Argentina has any real intention of coming to an agreement which would respect our wishes and rights as people; I suspect that they are out for one thing:

territorial expansion. We have no quarrel with the Argentine people; we just want to be left in peace so that we and they can get on with the job of developing the resources of this part of the world as any two countries working together for the benefit of both. It is my view, though, that in the face of continued Argentine aggression, the sovereignty umbrella is becoming a bit of a farce, and I firmly believe that we must draw a line somewhere. Therefore I wish to make it clear that I cannot support any future Anglo-Argentine negotiations which include sovereignty until the situation on Southern Thule Island, and that of who has rights over waters within 200 miles of the Falklands and Dependencies have been resolved.

Your Excellency, I am sure that my colleagues will have covered all the other items I am interested in, such as camp education, pensions, tax relief for married working couples etc., and I am as keen as anyone to learn from my friend across the table, the Financial Secretary, what happened in Select Committee last week.

I wish to support the Motion.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

No 4 of 1978 by the Hon T J D Miller:

"What defence security measures are taken at Stanley airport during overseas flight operations, and are they considered adequate by the defence authorities?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, the security measures are considered adequate but if I were to divulge their nature here it would defeat the very purpose for which they have been made, and I hope Sir that Honourable Members would therefore be willing to observe the convention that generally applies in Houses such as this of not pressing Government to reveal matters of this sort.

Mr T J D Miller

I would like to thank the Honourable the Chief Secretary for his reply but would like to further ask if he would be able to answer, do these security measures taken at Stanley airport include anti-hijacking precautions?

Chief Secretary

This is a point which the defence authorities do keep in mind, Sir.

No 5 of 1978 by the Hon T J D Miller

"Is it proposed that the planned road from Stanley to Darwin will end at Darwin or continue by ferry across the Sound and into West Falklands?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, it is envisaged that the proposed road from Stanley to Darwin will only be the first stage in the development of a road system throughout the Islands. Government therefore welcomed the suggestion made by Messrs Feat and Jameson in their internal communications study that before the road to Darwin is completed the whole question of coastal shipping requirements should be re-examined with the specific view to continuing the road to Darwin and establishing a ferry link with West Falkland. It is Government's intention that this suggestion should be taken up with the Ministry of Overseas Development at the right time and we are reassured that the Ministry themselves have indicated that they will be sympathetic to our approach.

Mr T J D Miller

I wish to thank the Honourable the Chief Secretary for his most excellent reply, which I think will go a long way to reassuring people in Camp, particularly those on West Falkland, that they are not going to be more cut off than they were before.

No 6 of 1978 by the Hon T J D Miller

"For what reason will the Argentine STN vessel 'Canal de Deagle' be visiting Stanley next month?"

Chief Secretary

Sir, we were advised that the 'Canal de Deagle' will soon be making her maiden voyage and calling at a number of ports, and we also received an informal request for confirmation that the visit would be acceptable, and we have replied that we have no objection to the visit. No reasons have been given.

Mr T J D Miller

Sir, I would like to ask the Honourable the Chief Secretary if it is not true that this ship on her maiden voyage as an Argentine ship will be visiting a number of Argentine Patagonian ports?

Chief Secretary

I believe this is to be so, Sir, but I have had no formal notification of this from the Argentine authorities.

/Mr T J D Miller

Mr T J D Miller

Sir, in view of the fact that this ship is visiting a number of Argentine ports and she wishes to come to Port Stanley for no apparent reason - I understand that this ship is of such a size that in fact she could not come alongside any of the jetties here, and therefore there is no economic reason for her visit here - I would like to ask the Chief Secretary if it would be possible for him to agree that the reason for the visit of this ship here is political?

Chief Secretary

I take the point that the Honourable Member is trying to make, but I can't know the reasons which the Argentine authorities may have in mind, and since we have had no formal notification it is very difficult for me to comment on the purpose.

MOTION

The President

We have had a late Motion by the Honourable A B Monk which I agreed to add to the Order Paper.

Motion by the Honourable A B Monk JP:

"Notwithstanding the acquisition of the actual land required for the construction of the Stanley to Darwin road, and any future roads, under Section 44 of the Land Ordinance (Cap 36), this Council considers that the Colony and not the individual landowners should be the sole beneficiary of the betterment value which will accrue to the whole lands through which these roads will pass, and, in the immediate case of the Stanley to Darwin road, accordingly requests the Administration to enter into urgent negotiations with the landowners with a view to an agreed resumption to the Crown at existing use value of an adequate area of such land as will have a potential developmental interest. Such land to be then leased back on such non-transferable and other conditions as the Governor in Council may deem expedient"

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to propose this Motion I really find it very difficult to say very much more about it because the Motion is, I think, self-explanatory. What the Motion seeks to do is to separate the present powers which Government has, to take without compensation for a public purpose a narrow strip of land so many yards wide - the figure escapes me - in order to build a road for a public purpose between two points. The purpose of this Motion is rather different and I am not entirely happy that the present legislation covers this particular case, and we think a rather different form of legislation, which would rely on the voluntary co-operation of the landowners through which the road passes - on a voluntary rather than a mandatory basis - and which would of course involve negotiations concerning the existing use value of the land. What we have in mind, of course, is that the road passing through land will inevitably increase the use value of the land if development takes place along it, and we think the definite value, as it is termed, should accrue to the whole Colony and not to the individuals who by chance own the land through which roads will go. I beg to propose the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I rise to second this Motion. The Honourable Member for East Falkland has explained the purpose of this Motion admirably and there is not much else I can say. Obviously it is desirable that the entire community benefit from any development rather than those who happen to own the land which is to be improved at some public expense. I think the idea that the Administration negotiate with a view to an agreed resumption to the Crown is excellent; in this way all the parties involved will have an opportunity to make representations since the land would be leased back to the original owner who would not be deprived of the use of such land but neither would he be able to cash in at the expense of the whole community.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, there isn't much I can say on this Motion now; I think the ground has been extremely well covered by the two Honourable Members who have already spoken. To me this is a logical extension to the Motion which we passed earlier in this session asking that the Administration should look carefully into the question of preparing legislation to allow for the acquisition of land for development. I welcome this Motion and would like to support it.

Mr T J D Miller

Sir, I would like to add my general support to this Motion as I would like to take it not as anything specific but a general guideline to the Administration to start negotiations for this sort of thing. I would like to say - I hope I am correct in saying - that this does not rule out the possibility of the present landowners coming up with ideas for developing the land to the mutual benefit of everybody in the Falklands, I would hope that they would be given a chance as well. Thank you.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, yes, I would like to support this Motion. It does not only give the Company a chance, or whoever may own the land along the line, but it gives everybody a chance of coming along and I think it is machinery which is long overdue in being put into operation.

/the Company a chance,

The President

If no other Members wish to speak I take it the Motion has the approval of the House.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE APPROPRIATION BILL

Chief Secretary

Sir, I rise to report only that on Friday evening the Select Committee on the Appropriation Bill concluded its investigation and discussion of the details of the Bill and I shall leave it to my colleague the Honourable the Financial Secretary to explain the findings of the Committee. Thank you Sir.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, during the course of the Select Committee meeting the revenue proposals were discussed in detail and there is a general consensus of opinion that they should be implemented. I will briefly summarise the recommendations in order that they are recorded for public information.

The Income Tax proposals were in general accepted. The Bill for the income tax reform will be considered later at this meeting and it is understood that one Honourable Member will be proposing an amendment to the Wife's Earned Income Relief.

It was agreed that the duty on spirits be increased and a Resolution for the adjustment of these duties will be introduced immediately after the Appropriation Bill has passed through all its stages.

It was agreed that the air service fare structure be revised as detailed in the budget proposals, i.e. the boarding fee to be increased by £2 for all adult passengers and in the case of non-residents the mileage rate be increased from 15p to 25p. The proposed adjustments to the FIGAS air freight rates were approved and I think it may be of interest to mention that during the discussion with the Director of Civil Aviation on the revenue proposals the Committee noted that the mileage charge, which is now 5p, was the same, one shilling, when Mr Kerr first arrived in the Colony in 1954!

It was agreed that the tariff for electric energy be increased from 4.76p to 5.25p per unit and that the Stanley telephone rental be increased by £6 per annum, that is for domestic telephones, and double that amount for business telephones.

The increases in the fees payable under the Licensing Ordinance were also accepted.

The following amendments have been made to the Estimates in Select Committee:

Revenue Estimates:

Head X - Posts and Telecommunications Department

Item 1. Sale of Stamps -
Increase from £180,000 to £200,000

On the Expenditure side of the Estimates, under

Delete £300

Item 17. Photocopier PWD -
Delete £1,100

Head XVI - Secretariat, Treasury & Central Store

Decrease provision under Personal Emoluments in respect of the Clerical Training Supervisor from £2,376 to £10

Head XVIII - Social Welfare

New Item 6. Subsidy to Old Age Pensions Equalisation
Fund £25,000

Changes made in the Estimates increase the surplus of revenue over expenditure from £655 to £19,386.

At the Committee stage, clause 1 of the Bill was agreed and consideration of clause 2 was deferred until after the Schedule had been considered.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed.

The Financial Secretary, seconded by the Chief Secretary, moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill, subject to the following amendments -

Head III - Aviation

Delete £ 37,645
Insert £139,195

Head V - Education

Delete £200,590
Insert £199,119

insert £1,767,117

Total Expenditure : delete £3,392,558
insert £3,393,827

It was agreed that the Schedule as amended should stand part of the Bill and that clause 2 should also stand

/part of the Bill

part of the Bill subject to the following amendment -

That the words and figures "£3,392,558" be deleted and "£3,393,827" be substituted therefor.

Council resumed.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION

To implement the decision of the Select Committee to increase the import duty on spirits the Financial Secretary moved the following Resolution under a Certificate of Urgency -

BE IT RESOLVED in exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance that paragraph 2 of the Customs Ordinance be amended in item 2 by deleting "£13.50" and substituting the following -

"£15.00".

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion which was carried with immediate effect.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1976/77) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is a pure formality but it is necessary to legalize all the expenditure in excess of the provision included in the Appropriation Ordinance and all items on the Schedule to the Bill have been considered in the Standing Finance Committees which have been held from time to time and all SFC Reports with which this expenditure deals have been included in this report and have been accepted by this Council. This is a pure formality and I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then passed through all its stages without debate or amendment.

STANLEY TOWN PUBLIC SERVICES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Bill we have before us is a further amendment to the Stanley Town Public Services Ordinance because the amending ordinance last year contained a number of offences but prescribed no penalties. The 1977 Ordinance is thus ineffective and this Bill seeks to remedy this. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

/but prescribed

The Motion was seconded by the Financial Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, I would like to say a few words on the Motion, and I support the Motion really but I think it would be much nicer if at the same time we are increasing the penalties for doing things wrong the services were increased in value to the citizens of Stanley as well. I beg to support the Motion.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

PROTECTION OF WRECKS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Sir, when the Ordinance, which was passed last year, was submitted for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure, the Falkland Islands Government were advised that it is considered undesirable in law to prescribe minimum penalties. Accordingly a new Bill is now being brought forward prescribing a maximum penalty. This should suitably rectify the matter and I therefore beg to move that the Bill be given its first reading.

The Bill then proceeded through all its stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

CHRIST CHURCH TRUST (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, this is a straightforward measure to amend the Christ Church Trust Ordinance of 1893 to take account of the revised constitution of Christ Church Cathedral which took effect on the 22nd day of December 1974, having been approved by the registered vestry, the trustees and the then Bishop of the Falkland Islands. I beg, Sir, to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through all its stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN, YOUNG PERSONS AND CHILDREN (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Bill that we have before us seeks to bring up to date certain references in the schedule of the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Ordinance of 1967. The International Labour Conventions to which reference is made in parts 1 and 4 of the schedule to the Ordinance have themselves been revised and this Bill is designed simply to substitute appropriate references. No change of policy or substance is proposed and our Ordinance is fully in accord with our obligations under the respective Conventions. I therefore beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through all its stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

REGISTRATION OF UK PATENTS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, the United Kingdom has recently modified its patent system to make it compatible with the European Patent Convention and the practices of the European Community. Two significant changes have been made by the enactment of the UK Patents Act 1977: first the procedure for the granting of a patent application has been modified to accord with those laid down in the European Convention, and there are now to be two kinds of patents having validity in the UK - those granted under British domestic law and those granted under the European Patent Convention itself. The situation regarding patents registered in this Colony under the UK Registration of Patents Ordinance has become unclear since the enactment of the UK Patents Act of 1977 and at the suggestion of the Department of Trade, the Bill before us has been prepared to allow the registration in the Falkland Islands of all patents having validity in the United Kingdom. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't really profess to understand anything about the registration of patents, but it is very evident to me that we have to go into this legal procedure, print these things, do the ground work and spend quite a lot of time and money having our Administration officials preparing this sort of legislation just because the EEC or the British Government thinks it is desirable, and I would like to make just one point: does the fee for registering patents out here cover the expense of preparing this sort of legislation adequately - in other words paying for the time of our highly paid Administration officials - and I would hope that the Administration keep this in mind and if necessary revise the schedule of fees. I beg to support the Motion.

/The President

The President

I wonder whether the Registrar of the Supreme Court might at this stage answer the Honourable Member's point?

Financial Secretary

Perhaps I can mention one thing here - I am pleased that the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland has brought this up. The fee of £1.00 does appear to require revision and we will look into this at the earliest opportunity and bring it up to date. I think it is a valid point which the Honourable A B Monk has made.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, during the course of the debate on Family Allowances at the last meeting of this session of the Legislative Council I was requested to consider keeping Family Allowances up to a realistic level. This consideration has been given and during the course of it I found myself in some difficulty in coming to a decision on the matter; not being a family man I thought I should get an unbiased view from outside the Colony. This I have done. I had noticed that elsewhere in the world family allowances are subject to income tax and it seemed that this should be the appropriate thing to do here. My Hon. Friend the Elected Member for East Falkland has, as long as I know, been asking this Government to keep the family allowances under regular review. I think what has been inhibiting perhaps previous Councils on this matter is that many of the families are quite well off and they do not really require the same extent of benefit as a poorer family. I put this to our Income Tax Adviser in the UK and he came back with the following answer:

"I think the suggestions contained in your letter are very reasonable. Since there is presumably no means test the allowances received by well off families will be the same as those received by poor families who are more in need of them. Making the allowances subject to income tax goes a long way towards equalising the position. Some years ago we had a similar debate in this country as regards the family allowances paid here and by one means or another they were made taxable."

This Bill that we are now considering is for the taxation of family allowances. I would like to mention at this point that there is a further Bill to be considered on the Agenda today, and also there is a Bill changing the income tax structure to give more benefit to families in the way of allowances under income tax for wives and families, and I hope that Honourable Members will note this when we are considering the Bill before us. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill was then read a first time. Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I object to the family allowances being taxed. We are prepared to make a small sum of £10,000 available for family allowances, that is all we are going to make available under the proposed increase in the Bill which is going to come before us. I think it is a penny-pinching and mean policy if we are then going to consider taking £1,000 or £1,500 of it back again. I think it is fully in line with our penny-pinching and mean policy with regard to a lot of miserable little fees and fines in other areas. I therefore beg to oppose the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I agree that this does not seem an extremely good idea bearing in mind that the family allowance is not large at this moment, but as the Honourable Member for East Falkland said in terms of Colony expenditure is £10,000 and I feel this is a significant amount of money. I think that as we also have plans to increase this in coming years it seems reasonable to me that those most in need receive greater benefits and since we have no means test this to me is an acceptable alternative. I support the Bill.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think it is an excellent thing that we are increasing these allowances and are hoping to continue to increase allowances. I don't see why rich people should have the same benefit from it as the poorer people and to a rich, or richer family, this amount is pocket money. I think it is a reasonable thing to tax it. I would like to support the Bill.

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, I would like to support this Bill. I don't like the thought of family allowances being taxed but in fact of course those whom it will affect taxation-wise will tend to be those who can afford to pay the tax anyway but those who really need the family allowances, the lower paid people with fairly large families, with the larger income tax allowances it's unlikely that they would be taxed anyway, but it is a very fair means I feel, since we have no means test, of ensuring that the benefits go, or we try to put the benefits, where they are most needed.

/Mr N E Goss

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I rise to support the Bill. I think it's quite right and just that anybody who is getting the allowances and does not really need them can quite afford to pay the tax that will be paid on them, and it eases the pressure on the lower paid person. Irrespective of income or salary you all get the same amount of money. I beg to support the Bill.

Mr W E Dowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too support the Bill. I don't think the Financial Secretary had any intention of pinching pennies from anybody; I think what he wanted was a fair and reasonable answer to a problem which I think he has solved adequately.

The President

There seems to be a consensus to support the Bill so the Bill will be read a second time.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

FAMILY ALLOWANCES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is more or less self-explanatory. It proposes an increase in family allowances by 100%. This is to take effect from the next year in which family allowances start, the 1st January 1979, and it seems that we should keep up our family allowances to a reasonable level and now that we have agreed to tax them I will ensure that these family allowances are considered annually. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have supported the increase in family allowances for many years and it is very nice to see it come along and of course I would heartily support the Motion. I would like to correct the Hon. the Financial Secretary on one point: when he says that the Bill provides for a 100% increase in family allowances. In fact it provides for a variable increase of from 100% for the people with very little means, to only 55% for those paying the maximum tax rate - not that I object that those paying the more tax will only get 55% of it, but I think that if one is going to have a variable allowance of that nature it would have been much better if we had had a means test instead of taxing it as per the last Ordinance. However I wish to support this particular Bill.

Mr W E Dowles

Mr W E Dowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to support this Bill and I would also like to commend the Financial Secretary once again for his decision to consider this annually. I think this is another good step.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the Bill and I also support the idea of a means test. It would be a very good thing indeed because you are still getting an allowance; if someone is paying tax on this in the higher brackets I think he can well afford to do without the family allowance. It would mean a reduced expense for Government. Thank you.

Financial Secretary

Taking note of the points raised by the two Honourable Members on the question of a means test and quite frankly Government will consider any suggestion put forward by them, but at this stage I certainly think that a means test in the Falklands is a relatively difficult thing and it will create extra work on the part of the Administration, whereas we have a sort of means test by introducing taxation on the allowance.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT)(No 2) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is designed to ensure that all income arising from a source outside the Colony as constitutes remuneration for services actually performed in the Colony is subject to Falkland Islands income tax. I see no good reason for not taxing such income in full and therefore propose that the Bill be read a first time.

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr S D Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think it is reasonable that if someone derives an income from this Colony in whatever manner it should all be subject to our tax so that this Colony benefits. I support the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is one of the more significant pieces of legislation that we have under consideration for this meeting. It is the first stage of the implementation of the Harris Report. Honourable Members will recall last year Mr Colin Harris from the Overseas Actuary's Department visited the Colony to advise us on the Old Age Pensions scheme and during the course of his stay here many members of the public and also members of the last Council had many discussions with Mr Harris.

His findings have been published in a report issued to Government and we have decided in picking out those more urgent matters which we want to get on with; there are some items which will require further investigation. We rather hurriedly brought this matter to Council because of its importance to the community as a whole. If I could ask Honourable Members to refer to the Objects and Reasons of this Bill and I will take each proposal separately and comment on them.

The first proposal is to increase pensions. This we consider as very important with inflation as it is. It is proposed that a married couple should receive a pension of £13.50. At the present time they are receiving £10.50. It is proposed that the pension for a single person should be £9.00 per week rather than the £7.00 currently paid.

In order to finance these increases and keep the Fund in a reasonably healthy state it is proposed that the weekly contribution should be increased. The proposal is that an employed person should be required to pay £1.00 rather than the 72p per week at present, and the increase for a self-employed person is from £1.80 to £3.34 and the employers' element of contribution for an employee is from £1.08 to £2.34.

Another very important point which arises from this report is consideration of extending the period of contributing to the Fund. At present a person ceases to contribute on reaching the age of 60. It is considered in the report, after discussions here in the Colony, that there was no good reason for this period of marking time, that is from the date you attain the age of 60 when you cease contributing, to the date when you become entitled to a pension, at 65; and even more relevant in this connection is the fact that the majority of people in the Colony are still working until they reach the age of 65. I admit there are a few exceptions. It is a fact, those people who are now awaiting the payment of a pension are in fact working, or the majority of them are.

The question of phasing this feature in has quite some significance; do we ask people to pay all the arrears of contributions if we are going to make the period of contributing longer? It was rather felt that the answer to that question is that we should not ask for any contributions which would have fallen due if this provision had been in before. In other words we do not intend to collect any arrears of contributions but it is considered that we should ask those people to commence contributing from the date when this Ordinance comes into operation until they reach pensionable age. It is felt that this would not be too great a hardship. However if there is hardship in any case there is provision in this Bill to provide for Government to give that person assistance and we already have provision for a female contributor to obtain assistance on application to the Board in the case of hardship, and now it is proposed that we should extend it to the male contributor. That should overcome this problem.

One point which the Actuary considered was the fact of reducing the pensionable age. He states in his report that he received many requests for reducing the pensionable age to 60. This he considers is far too expensive and in considering the recommendations of the Harris Report the Board of Management of the Old Age Pensions Fund considered that we should move some way in this direction. It was felt that many people did not live very long to enjoy a pension so we considered that even if we got a reduction of one year, from 65 to 64, it would be a greater spread of the benefit of pensions throughout the Colony, and therefore we are proposing that the pensionable age be lowered from 65 to 64. In order to help to finance the proposals it is felt that there is no good reason why a person who takes on a job when they are 17 years old should not pay a contribution towards the Old Age Pensions and therefore it is proposed to reduce the age of contributing from 18 to 17 years. This would mean that if a person took a job at 17 years of age he or she would be required to contribute to the Fund; it would not mean that a person who was not gainfully occupied should contribute. So therefore someone who is 17 and still goes to school would not pay; this would apply only when they are gainfully occupied in the Colony.

Another item which Honourable Members asked for consideration at the last meeting of Council, or during a short informal meeting after, was that we should consider increasing the level of income where a female contributor becomes liable to contribute to the Old Age Pension Fund. At present it is £300 per annum together with an additional £100 for every child of school age maintained by her. It is proposed that we should increase the income limit to £800 per annum and £250 respectively.

/As the Bill was rather

As the Bill was rather rushed we find that there are some important features which were not taken into account and it will have an effect on widows in particular, and we are proposing amendments at the Committee stage to ensure that the widows are not detrimentally affected; in fact they will still continue to receive a pension at 60 and their contributions will also cease at 60. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr. A. B. Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish to speak to the Motion but I find that the largest part of my notes are now useless because the Honourable Chief Financial Secretary has given us such a full summing-up of the reasons for the various proposals. Obviously I strongly support the increased pension rates in some cases - I beg your pardon, I support the rates proposed but I do not support the proposed contribution rates in some cases. I think the employees' contribution rate proposed of £1.00 which is 30.8 recurring percent increase is right and can well be afforded, but the proposed employers' contribution rate of £2.34 represents an increase of 116.67%; now I don't object to that increase as such, I think employers can probably well afford to pay, but what it in fact means is that the self-employed person is going to have a very much increased rate to pay, because he or she pays the same as the employees' and the employers' contribution rates added together. There may also be some effect on the unemployed if they have to refund payments. I consider that the rate of £3.34 is too high a rate to expect a lot of self-employed people to pay. However as the Honourable Chief Financial Secretary has said, Mr Harris in his Actuarial Review showed quite conclusively that unless this rate of contribution was made, well then we would gradually deplete the Fund. I think that he said that in round about ten years' time the income from contributions and from the interest on investments would start becoming less than our outgoings, having regard to the increase in pensions which we hope to make continually, and also our age structure which apparently is going to mean that we are going to have more pensioners, and the effect of that of course would be that we would start spending the capital of our fund and gradually depleting it. Obviously that is a very irresponsible policy so we have to recover in some manner enough money to keep the fund viable as a long-term proposition, and I suggest that we should consider returning to a system which we had for many years, where a subvention was made annually from General Revenue to the Fund and I suggest if the employers' contribution is increased at the same percentage rate as the employees', in other words at 38.9% near enough, then the employers' contribution would be raised from £1.08 to £1.50 and this would mean that a self-employed person's contribution would be £2.50, which is a more reasonable figure in my view. However this would cause a short-fall in income to the Fund of somewhere in the region of £23,000 per year annually, that is if we are to maintain the Fund at its level, and therefore I consider we should make an annual subvention from General Revenue of £25,000. There are all sorts of implications which possibly only the Chief Financial Secretary with his intimate knowledge of the details could tell us, and there are also of course implications as he pointed out with regard to the proposal to lower the age limit when you have to start paying. There are even implications in my view - what happens if the 17-year-old is at school, and so forth. Also at the other end if you are going to start paying out at 64 instead of 65 you have implications too. I mention all the ideas which I think should be incorporated but I think it would be better if instead of proposing specific amendments at this stage I proposed that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee for further discussion.

Mr I E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am not going to add anything to what my Honourable Friend for East Falkland has said because I think he has covered the ground pretty well. We want to go into detail because there are an awful lot of people involved and there are an awful lot of phrases which want clarifying to my way of thinking; I don't want to argue with the Actuary because he is a very clever man and has given us a very good report but sometimes in this Colony on paper and in theory some things which may well seem to be adequate have a different aspect when subjected to local conditions. I think in this particular case these things do arise. I think it is heartening to know that by the time I am ready to receive my pension I will be able to have one more enjoyable year on a pension than perhaps those who are already receiving it have done, and I would also like to support the Motion that we refer this to a Select Committee.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I welcome any measure which increases benefits that old folk receive especially when they are the result of what I thought was a professional yet sympathetic report. This is one area where I feel my lack of experience on these matters. I agree with the Honourable Member for East Falkland that contributions of three pounds odd may be too high for some self-employed or unemployed people but it did

/seem to me that seem to me that possibly a cheaper and easier way would be to make special provision for those people rather than the whole Colony; however since I understand that this Government subvention has been recommended by the Actuary several times in the past I agree that this may be a solution. One thing which concerns me about this subvention is that it will be an ever-increasing item of expenditure and although I agree that it ensures that the larger tax-payer contributes most, it is also true that we already spread our revenue thinly and have an extremely low surplus without this added expenditure. I think that the proposal to make contributions payable between the ages of 17 and 64 is acceptable, bearing in mind that significantly increased benefits will now be paid from the lower age of 64. I was concerned also about those people between the ages of 70 and 80 and 60 and 64 who would be required to recommence contributing. However I see that the Hon. the Financial Secretary has assured us that this could be paid from General Revenue and that sympathetic consideration will be given to aiding those claiming hardship. I support the Motion that we discuss this in Select Committee.

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to add my full support to the proposal put forward by my colleague from East Falklands that the total contribution figure be reduced and a corresponding amount put into the Fund in the form of a Government subvention. Also referring to the last speaker's remarks that this is going to be a recurring burden on Government's expenditure, I think if Government is going to spend money in a particular field they must ensure that their revenue comes in to offset that expenditure in some form of revenue proposal; on the corporate sector we must get a certain amount of that money back again. There is one particular item that I am not at all happy about and that is the proposal that those people who are now over 60 although they won't have to make any back contributions will be expected to recommence payment until they reach the age of 64. There will be a provision for them to appeal under hardship for a reduction in their payments or a waiving of any payment at all, but we all know that everybody quite rightly has a degree of pride and the majority of people although they are probably entitled to relief are very reluctant to ask for relief. Also what would happen to these people if the employer is unwilling to recommence contributing for them? Somebody who's been working for a firm for 20 or 30 years retires in the early sixties age group then doesn't expect to have to pay any more, and neither does his employer. I am not at all happy about this particular part of the Bill and I support the proposal that we go into Select Committee.

Mr H H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in the event of a person having to recommence paying I feel that he is to a point compensated inasmuch as he starts his pension one year earlier than he does on the present scheme. As for the 17- and 18-year-olds we must have 18-year-olds in a similar position, either at school or not working, so if they start at 18 now in a few years' time we will be taxing quite a few more people. I beg to support the Motion.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think all the points that I wanted to make have been covered and I am not an expert on this anyhow. I do think it will all be thrashed out when we go into Select Committee. There is only one point which I would like to make which hasn't been stressed so far; it is this business of increasing the level of income before a contributor becomes liable to contribute into the Pension Fund. I am very pleased that it has been put up to the amount it has but I would like to urge the Financial Secretary to keep this under consideration from year to year so that we don't get to a position where it becomes ridiculous again. I would like to support the Motion that we refer the Bill to a Select Committee.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, in rising on some points of explanation I think there are some valid points being made around the Table today and I like the responsible way in which they have been made. For instance everybody realises that when you pay pensions you have to have some way of financing them, and I agree that there are so many factors here and it is such an important piece of legislation that referring it to a Select Committee will obviously be the best way, especially when there are so many details required. I think the proposal made by the Honourable Member for East Falkland will be welcomed certainly by the Old Age Pensions Board of Management; they were under the impression that the contributions were rather high; so before going further I think we should agree if some Member will propose that the Bill be put to a Select Committee after the second reading. But before taking my seat again I would just like to congratulate the East Falklands Actuary on the tables compiled by him for the contributions.

The Bill was then referred to a Select Committee of the whole House, under the Chairmanship of the Chief Secretary, which was instructed to report back to the present meeting of the Council.

NON-CONTRIBUTORY OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is much more easily explained than the last one. It contains two main provisions, the first is to increase the pension for a non-contributory pensioner from £8.50 to £11.00 per week in the case of a married man and for a single person from £6.00 to £8.00 per week. The other important provision relates to the income limit for the receipt of a pension. Honourable Members asked at the last meeting that this be reviewed and we have agreed to increase the maximum statutory income for the receipt of a pension: in the case of a married man from £650 to £1,300 per annum and in the case of a single person from £400 to £800. Honourable Members will note that the actual cost to the Colony diminishes gradually for this pension. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I had somebody approach me on this problem of maximum income before your pension steps and obviously it was completely out of date; if I am correct in saying this as it stood once you were earning £400 a year then your pension was affected if not stopped altogether, which is ridiculous in this day and age. I am extremely pleased to know that the rates have been doubled and I would just like the Financial Secretary to know that I for one would like him to keep it under review. I beg to support the Bill.

Financial Secretary

Sir, I will note the point made by the Honourable Member for West Falklands and I agree that it was delayed but it will be kept under review in the future.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) (No 3) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is designed to implement proposals made in the Budget for increasing the allowances for income tax.

The first proposal is that the maximum allowance for Earned Income Relief should be increased from £750 to £850. That the deduction for a wife be increased from £300 to £350. The deduction for a female relative in charge of children to be increased from £150 to £175; that the allowance for a dependent relative be increased from £250 to £300, and that the maximum limit of the relative's income to which a dependent relative's allowance applies be increased from £350 to £500. That the personal allowance which all tax-payers enjoy be increased from £350 to £400. That the maximum Wife's Earned Income Relief be increased from £200 to £230; that the allowance for a child be increased from £250 to £300 and in the case of a child receiving education overseas it be increased from £280 to £320. The qualifying limit for old age relief to be increased from the present £900 to £1,050; in the case of a married man the difference is two thirds and in the case of a single person the difference is one third. Honourable Members have been supplied with details of how this will affect tax-payers at various levels of income. The table was prepared by the Income Tax Officer and I trust that this will give them a fully detailed explanation. I therefore beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I welcome the increased allowances that the Financial Secretary has detailed. I don't think that they go far enough but one has to consider the implications on our revenue. One of the interesting things I think about our revenue is that personal taxation has increased, if you consider it as a percentage of total personal and company taxation, then personal taxation has increased at double the rate of the company taxation - that is the revenue from it. And if you look at this table which was prepared by the Income Tax Officer you see even under the new proposals the single man is going to start paying tax at round about £900 income and so on. Well, really, those are almost derisory levels of income, the sort of levels that one would expect in a Third World African country, and to expect people to support a wife on £900 income and to pay tax is terrible. However the improvements are welcome but I do not consider the purely derisory improvements in the maximum Wife's Earned Income Relief; it's purely derisory: £230 from £200, £30. I consider that a wife should be entitled to the same Earned Income Relief percentage as the husband, that is to say I think that the WEIR should be as is detailed for the husband or the main tax-payer in Section 14 sub-section 1 of the present Income Tax Ordinance. I am told that this would have a very detrimental effect upon our revenue. It is beyond my capacity to make a calculation and it may well be that until a better scale of taxation can be devised which taxes the lower end less and the upper end more we will have to consider a lower rate of Earned Income Relief for the woman, but still I am quite certain very much higher than the proposed maximum rate of £230. Therefore I am, at the appropriate time, going to propose that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee so that we can get expert advice about this matter.

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to support the proposal of my colleague from the East Falkland that this Bill be referred to a Select Committee to consider the increase in the Earned Income Relief of a married woman who is working. As the other members will know I had the intention a while ago of introducing a Motion during this session to the effect that working wives should have equal rights with their husbands as regards Earned Income Relief but obviously as there are financial implications to this I agreed to wait until we could get the information from the Financial Secretary. However I do agree with my friend from East Falklands that we should try to see if we can find some way of increasing the figure mentioned of £230; the increase of £30 is ridiculous. I wish to support the Bill.

Mr S D Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think all of us are concerned with the working wives' lot at the moment; I think we all realise that throughout the Islands the working wife contributes greatly to our well-being and I too look forward to discussing the matter of Earned Income Relief in Select Committee. I think it is very encouraging to see these allowances go up along with other allowances; obviously we are making a start to keep these things under review. I would like to support the Bill.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I think the course proposed by the Member for East Falkland would seem to be the way to deal with the Bill and obviously he will be making a proposal that it be referred to a Select Committee on the second reading. I think it is better that it be discussed in detail in Select Committee because there are quite a number of implications which Members should be aware of before they make an amendment.

At the second reading it was proposed by the Honourable A D Monk that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee. The Motion was seconded by the Honourable T J D Miller and carried.

LICENSING (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members have referred this morning to the fact that we should keep fees and allowances up to date especially when they are expressed in monetary terms. The Licensing Ordinance appears not to have been reviewed for a very long time - it certainly has not received attention since I joined the Treasury in 1948, thirty years ago, and I think that it calls for some review at this stage. In some cases the paper on which a receipt or license is issued must be costing twice the price of the fee! It is, therefore, proposed that the following fees be increased:

That for a wholesale liquor license which runs for 12 months be increased from £30 to £60;

For a retail license which is valid for 6 months increase from £15 to £30;

A club license which runs for a year from £10 to £20;

The annual tobacco license in Stanley from £3 to £6; for outside of Stanley from £1.50 to £3;

Restaurant license, which is valid for 6 months, from £5 to £10 and a packet license, which is current for 12 months, from £10 to £20.

I should like to mention at this point that one person asked me whether I was going to tax all packets in the Colony and I explained that this license refers to the selling of liquor in the coastal waters of the Falkland Islands, and the last issued was in respect of RMS 'Darwin'. However it may be that if there are tourist ships around the Islands we may use it again.

Auctioneer's license - it is proposed should be increased from £5 to £10 for a year, and occasional auctioneer's license from £1 to £2 for one day.

Billiard table license from £2.50 to £5 for 6 months, and the billiard table special license from 10p to 20p per hour to £1 and £2 per hour. This relates to billiard tables that are hired out and the last license we issued was to the Stanley Arms.

Special publican's license, extension of opening hours, which runs from 25p for any hour before midnight to 50p for every hour thereafter, it is proposed to increase to £3 and £5 per hour. Occasional liquor license from 50p and 25p depending on whether it's Stanley or outside, to £2 and £1.

Publican's license for additional bar from £5 to £10 and the occasional tobacco license from 12½p to £1.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

/The Motion was seconded

The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support nearly all the Bill, with the exception of a section - I am not quite sure which number it is - but it refers to the occasional liquor license and that part of it which is concerned with the camp. It does seem to me that under the Bill we are going to be expected to pay £1 per hour if we have a little bar to sell liquor to a few outsiders who come for two nights' dancing or something like that in the winter, and it seems to me that if we have a two-nighter dance and the bar happens to be open in the total of the two days for a matter of about twelve hours, we've got to charge £12 to the little dance committee which really is not very funny considering that it is a purely social occasion, so I would like to propose an amendment to the Bill that the figure of 25p per hour be retained in that section where it refers to occasional liquor licenses for the camp.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would just like to say that after thirty years I think the proposed increases are reasonable and I support the Bill as a whole.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I am pleased the Honourable Member for East Falkland brought this matter to my attention; as a matter of fact in the Objects and Reasons, which of course do not form part of the Bill, we do have £1 per hour but should be £1 per day. That is my error, I'm sorry, and so it's not quite so severe and I trust that the Honourable Member will now be able to accept the revised charge. My apologies.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, I withdraw my amendment.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

INTERPRETATION AND GENERAL CLAUSES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, I detect probably some signs of dismay from Members of the previous Council that I should have to rise this morning to propose an amendment to the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance; but we have before us a Bill which is seeking to remedy an omission in the Ordinance of 1977. The omission has meant that the common law and certain general statutes enforced in England on the 2nd May 1900 and upon which reliance is placed in our Courts ceased to be in force with effect from the 11th July last year when the Ordinance came into operation. It is essential for the proper administration of justice that until the enactment of a comprehensive ordinance setting out the Imperial enactments applicable to the Colony, that the status quo ante should be restored, so that the position before enactment of the 1977 Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance is preserved in respect of the particular enactments listed in the schedule of the Bill before us. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through all its stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

BRITISH NATIONALITY (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, the British Nationality Ordinance provides inter alia for the levying of fees for services provided in connection with nationality matters. These fees are reviewed from time to time by the Home Secretary and the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs has now notified Government of a revision to be effective as soon as possible after the 1st March 1978. This Bill seeks to do this and revised fees will become effective immediately on publication of the Ordinance. This opportunity has also been taken to simplify any future revisions of fees by providing that the schedule of fees should be amended by the Governor in Council after notification by the Secretary of State rather than by the preparation and consideration of an amending ordinance on each and every occasion. I therefore beg to move that the Bill be given its first reading.

The Bill then proceeded through all its stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

PLANT AND TRANSPORT AUTHORITY BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, before introducing the Bill I lay on the Table of the House the Certificate of Urgency under which I introduce the Bill now before us. Naturally I regret that we are having to proceed with this with what may appear to Hon. Members to be somewhat indecent haste, but Members will recall that when the Ministry of Overseas Development indicated that they were prepared to make us a grant towards the construction of the Stanley-Darwin section of our road development programme, one of the conditions that they laid down was that we should implement a funding scheme in order that provision should be made eventually to replace without further recourse to ODM funding, the machinery which has been acquired from Johnston

Construction Limited and indeed from the Ministry of Overseas Development itself. It was indicated to us at the time that certain other administrations had model schemes which we might follow and we attempted to see if there were any models which would be useful to us but to our surprise we found that in other areas there was no similar legislation and indeed one or two territories had simply proceeded under the fiat of the Executive Council or Cabinet or Ministerial Council, whichever was appropriate. I think although this was as it were a condition of ODM's grant, it is not a condition which we felt any hesitation about accepting, since Mr Pike who was then professionally advising us in the construction sector, indicated that this normally works well elsewhere, and indeed it would provide a good and viable method of charging to the Ministry of Overseas Development grant the hiring of plant and machinery for the road project. Of course it will also enable us to hire out machinery to any enterprise which might want to make use of it.

The Bill before us, and perhaps I may be allowed to offer congratulations to a colleague, because it's not an easy one to start from scratch, and the Registrar of the Supreme Court has worked fast and in his customary way very expeditiously on this. The Bill before us is simply designed to enable us to set up an authority. Having that authority with its general powers and its due legal constraints it will then be for the authority to work out the precise way in which it operates, and this is something for which we will have to await the arrival of the substantive Director of Public Works, who will not only be, if this Bill is passed, the Vice-Chairman of the authority, but of course a key figure in its operation.

Beyond that, Sir, I think there is very little more that I can say except that it provides yet another organ of Government but it will not be an undue strain upon the resources of Government, since the people who will man it will be taken from within the Government and if in setting it up we have to take on any staff there will be a charge against the authority on the cost of the projects involved, so that it should not be a drain on the Colony's resources. Having said that, Sir, I beg to move the first reading of this Bill.

The Motion was seconded by the Financial Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A D Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, at the appropriate time I would like to propose that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee.

/Mr D S Evans

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this is the one thing I spoke out against in my initial speech. We had a Bill placed before us at five minutes' notice and cannot possibly even begin to understand it until we have looked at it very carefully. I would like to second Councillor Monk's proposal that we look at it in a Select Committee.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as my Honourable Friend the Member for West Falkland said, we have had this Bill at very late notice, but I also think that we are going to have enough problems getting this project on the road and that this Bill may better facilitate the efficient functioning of the scheme. I look forward to Select Committee.

At the second reading the Honourable A B Monk proposed that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee. The Motion was seconded by the Honourable S B Wallace and carried.

Council then adjourned and resumed at 10.00 a.m. on Tuesday 27th June 1978.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, I rise to report that the Select Committee on the Old Age Pensions Bill met yesterday afternoon to consider possible changes in the proposed provisions of the Bill.

The Committee agreed to adopt the proposal made in this Chamber by the Honourable Member for East Falkland that the weekly contribution from self-employed persons should be increased from £1.80 to only £2.50 and not to £3.34 as was originally proposed. Similarly, the contribution from employers should be increased to only £1.50. To offset these lower contributions a provision of £25,000 is being made from General Revenue. Appropriate amendments will be tabled when the Bill reaches the Committee stage and certain other consequential amendments will also be made at that time, especially to ensure that the status quo for widows is preserved.

Contributors between the ages of 60 and 64 who have ceased making contributions will now be asked to resume making payments but I want to place on the record the express and unanimous wish of Honourable

/Members that due

Members that due account will be taken in any case where the resumption of this obligation causes hardship. Any such cases will be considered sympathetically, for it is the overall intention of this Bill to improve the lot of our older citizens and not to make it more difficult.

At the Committee stage of the Bill the following amendments were proposed and agreed:-

(1) In clause 4 by deleting paragraphs (a) to (d) and substituting the following -

(a) in paragraph (a) -

(i) by inserting after "female contributor" the following -

"other than the widow of a contributor";

(ii) by deleting "72p" and substituting the following -

"£1.00"; and

(iii) by deleting "18 and 60 years" and substituting the following -

"17 and 64 years";

(b) in paragraph (b) -

(i) by inserting after "female contributor" the following -

"other than the widow of a contributor";

(ii) by deleting "£1.00" and substituting the following -

"£1.50"; and

(iii) by deleting "18 and 60 years" and substituting the following -

"17 and 64 years";

(c) in paragraph (c) -

(i) by inserting after "female contributor" the following -

"other than the widow of a contributor";

(ii) by deleting "£1.80" and substituting the following -

"£2.50"; and

(iii) by deleting "18 and 60 years" and substituting the following -

"17 and 64 years"; and

(d) by deleting the proviso;

- (2) by deleting clause 5 and substituting the following -
- "5. Section 6A(2) of the principal Ordinance is amended -
- (a) by deleting "£1.80" and substituting the following -
"£2.50"; and
 - (b) by deleting "18 and 60 years" and substituting the following -
"17 and 64 years"; and
 - (c) by adding at the end thereof the following -
"or in the case of the widow of a contributor between the age of 17 and 60 years"; "
- (3) in clause 6 by deleting paragraph (b) and substituting the following -
- " (b) in paragraph (e) -
- (i) by inserting after "female contributor" the following -
"other than the widow of a contributor";
 - (ii) by deleting "60" and substituting the following -
"64"; "
- (4) by deleting clause 7;
- (5) by deleting clause 8 and substituting the following -
- "8 Section 9 of the principal Ordinance is amended -
- (a) by deleting "ten consecutive years" and substituting the following -
"14 consecutive years";
 - (b) by deleting "sixty years" and substituting the following -
"64 years"; and
 - (c) by deleting the full stop at the end thereof and substituting a colon and by inserting thereafter the following proviso -

"Provided that contributions shall not be payable in respect of the period between the day any contributor or female contributor attained the age of 60 years and the 3rd of July 1978." ; and
- (6) by renumbering clauses 8 to 10 as 7 to 9.

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT)
(NO 3) BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Select Committee met yesterday afternoon to consider the Income Tax (Amendment) (No 3) Bill and agreed that the maximum Earned Income Relief that may be claimed by a wife should be increased to £850. The proposed figure had been only £230. The Committee gave careful consideration to the question of the entirely separate tax assessment of husbands and wives; however the Committee recognises that this might have fundamental repercussions on our tax structure. Accordingly the Committee is content that the matter should be further studied as a matter of urgency by our new Fiscal Adviser.

At the Committee stage of the Bill the following amendment was proposed and agreed - "that clause 3 be amended in paragraph (e) by deleting "£230" and substituting "£850".

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE PLANT & TRANSPORT AUTHORITY BILL 1978

Chief Secretary

The meeting of the Select Committee yesterday afternoon enabled Honourable Members to consider the Bill for the establishment of the plant and transport authority more carefully. Whilst in general no major alterations have been made, the Committee felt that there might be value in changing the wording of certain clauses to associate the Executive Council more closely with the working of the authority, and I shall be proposing an amendment accordingly when the Bill reaches the appropriate stage.

At the Committee stage of the Bill the following amendments were proposed and agreed -

"that the words "the Governor" shall be deleted wherever they occur in clauses 4, 6, 11 and where they occur in clause 16(1) for the second time, and substituted respectively by the words "Governor in Council"."

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

Chief Secretary

I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, in rising to second the Motion for the Adjournment I will, with your permission, Sir, make a short statement on the progress of the Committee set up by you to investigate the feasibility of the venture proposed by the Falkland Islands Company for the division of Green Patch farm into smaller farming units. The Committee has now completed its study of the project. The three experienced farmers on the Committee made an extensive on-the-spot inspection of the area. The Committee has discussed the project with some of the younger islanders who were interested in having a stake in the country. The Committee will be reporting to you within a couple of weeks and there is no doubt whatsoever that the report will indicate that the venture is most promising. It would be wrong for me to go into further details in this House at this stage.

I beg to second the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, first of all I would like to extend a warm welcome back to Mr Tim Miller and extend our thanks to him for his excellent public relations exercise performed in Trinidad & Tobago on our behalf. Once again we extend on behalf of everyone our good wishes to Mr and Mrs Monk who will be representing us in Jamaica at the forthcoming Annual Conference of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

To our new Councillors after their first Budget meeting having given their full interest I think this, the first real democratic budget, has been a step forward in our future planning and welfare. What of the future - something we all have to face; the sovereignty issue, our state of indecision. As the United Nations have asked Britain and Argentina to settle their differences over our Islands it would appear we should be able to ask the UN if a special concession could not be granted in our unique and unusual situation. Until this state of indecision is solved a new industry will not be forthcoming, but if we are to retain our population then new industries and opportunities to my mind is the way to do it. It appears at times that if the people will not change their wishes then the other solution is to change the people, but if we grant local opportunities - which this Government is doing - then we should in theory be able to retain the people.

Sea passages: the 1971 Agreement is now all but forgotten and there seems to be no prospect for the carriage of passengers by sea. If this is to be so then I feel we should amend the Agreement, or implement it. At the moment as it reads it is a partial agreement.

However I am satisfied that Falkland Islanders have been given generous opportunities for training to key posts in the Civil Service and the more they can be encouraged the better and our stability should then become as it should for the future.

I was heartened by the remarks of the Financial Secretary on Green Patch. I think this too is something which should benefit the Islands and the community as a whole.

Sir, I beg to support the Motion for the Adjournment.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, the emphasis on forward thinking that was evidenced in this year's Estimates and in our business during this meeting has been very welcome. I was particularly pleased that we have created new opportunities for our young people to gain secretarial skills within the Administration - this is certainly the right kind of progress.

I am concerned, though, that in our need to develop we take care that we safeguard those things which we already enjoy; it must be remembered that it is the people who live here now upon whom our hopes for the future rest.

Another thing which I found encouraging in the Estimates was the sum of £50,000 set aside for loans. This is vital if people are to be able to launch new enterprises or buy homes; the £15,000 for the construction of houses, though perhaps small, is in our circumstances a heartening indication of our awareness to make better provision in this regard.

There are so many things about our fiscal scene that need looking at, I was therefore pleased to hear that we shall soon have expert advice on these matters; it is obviously essential that if we decide to make any changes they are in the best interests of the Colony and not made for purely short-term gain. I have always felt that we must keep people informed. I would find it very difficult if I could not hear people's views on our affairs. Here in town there is no difficulty about this but in camp the situation is of course quite different. I was therefore pleased when in Select Committee it was unanimously agreed to increase the allowances of the Members representing the East and West Falklands by £100 to £350 and that of the Member representing both East and West Falkland by £150 to £400. These increases are primarily intended to enable camp members to make more regular visits around their constituencies and also to, at least, partly cover the additional expenses which Councillors who do not live in Stanley incur when they visit town on Council business.

/In winding up

In winding up, Sir, I would like to say that I found my first Budget meeting stimulating and informative although a little hard on the nerves.

I would like to support the Motion for the Adjournment.

Mr A D Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the previous speakers of course have largely said all the things which I had noted down so there is not too much left for me now except to express my thanks to colleagues for their faith in choosing me to go to represent the Council at the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Conference in Jamaica. I will undoubtedly try and see that the delegates of all countries are reminded of our views and our sovereignty problem; I only hope I am able to do it as well as the Honourable Tim Miller has done it at the Regional Conference in Trinidad and Tobago.

I think our views on sovereignty have been clearly expressed by all Members in this Council so I don't think there is any point in going over that.

I believe we have made some advances in our tax structure lately; we have tried, and I think we have succeeded in lifting the burden a little from the shoulders of those who are least able to bear it. There is a great deal more to do and, as the Hon. Stuart Wallace has said, we look forward to the arrival of Mr Ritchie and to his recommendations. Old age pensioners have had a small increase in their pensions; I think it is still too low but there again, we have to take into consideration our available means, and perhaps when Mr Ritchie comes he might be able to tell us how we can increase it yet more.

The enormous cost of the Government to administer so few people is I think cause of great alarm - to me anyway; it comes up every year not only because of inflation but also because it seems to have generated that sort of movement in excess of inflation, and I think it behoves all of us to try and see that the money is wisely spent.

I was somewhat dismayed when one of my constituents visiting Stanley met me on the road the other day; we were talking about the Budget and I said I hoped that some of the amendments might "help you and others", and he said "Mr Monk, please don't do anything more for me; I really can't afford it". It was a little bit dismaying.

I would like to say thank you again to all Councillors for selecting me to go to the CPA Conference, and I would like to support the Motion for the Adjournment.

/Mr D S Evans

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to speak to this Motion for the Adjournment I would like first of all to comment on the proceedings of the last week. As a new Budget boy I tended to rely on the experience of the long-standing members of Council. In this context I must congratulate the Member for East Falkland for his understanding of financial matters. Yesterday I spent a fascinating hour watching the Financial Secretary and the Chief Secretary bobbing up and down like yo-yos as they went through the procedure for taking Bills. Obviously it would pay the Honourable Elected Members to allow the first dozen Bills to go through unchallenged, tire out the two Official Members and then pounce on them when they are too exhausted to speak.

The Select Committee has provided an excellent chance not only to learn how Government is financed but to talk to Heads of Departments and find out their problems and I found it a most useful experience. It would have been very nice if we could have squashed all the proposed increases in the cost of services but I am afraid that with rising costs in all sectors these increases are inevitable and we can only attempt to cushion the blows and make sure no-one suffers real hardship.

I welcome the move to try to get ahead with this business of sorting out how we acquire land for development; we can no longer afford to delay on this matter. We have all had a chance to say what we feel about the political problems of the moment. In this context it is my belief that it is the actual wording of the Motion we passed that is important; more so than the debates around it. It is this wording that is read overseas. At this time I feel it is extremely important to let both sides know that we are extremely anxious and apprehensive about these latest incidents and that in our view if they continue these incidents they will jeopardise future talks. There must be a limit to our tolerance; if Argentina continues to make these offensive moves we will have to harden our attitude. The Honourable Member for East Falkland continues to press Council into committing the Council to attend the next round of talks. My attitude has not changed and the views I expressed at the last Council meeting stand. In fact with the increased aggression of Argentina, it has hardened. However I feel that it would be unwise for us to commit ourselves either way at this time. The situation is changing constantly. Why commit ourselves now and lose our options; far better to wait until we know that talks are about to take place and then decide.

Your Excellency, I wish to support the Motion.

/Mr T J D Miller

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to speak to the Motion for the Adjournment I still rise to a certain extent as someone who has yet to go through a Budget in Select Committee as unfortunately, due to bad weather, I was not here. However I wasn't completely in the dark as to what was going on as I had of course been through the Budget proposals a week or so beforehand when they were considered in Executive Council.

Some have said that it is a standstill Budget because there are no dramatic revenue increases. I find that hard to understand. I would have thought the last thing anyone would have wanted was dramatic revenue increases. I think it is indeed very much a forward looking budget; there are a number of new ideas and new proposals in it and we have tried to keep the small increases in revenue down in such a way that they least affect those who cannot afford to pay them.

One thing I would particularly like to refer to is the proposed creation of a Philatelic Bureau. I am very pleased with this proposal indeed as our stamp sales, that is the philatelic side of our revenue, is now I believe our second biggest source of income after taxation. I believe we must do all that we can to increase this within a sensible stamp policy. My colleague across the table, the Honourable Chief Secretary, will know that I have my reservations over the latest stamp issue but however I am prepared to wait and see and the proof of the pudding is in the eating. However I feel we must be very careful in the future with our stamp policy in the type of stamps that we issue; they must be very closely related to definite events in the Islands and those of omnibus issues which obviously we join in, Royal events, we must ensure that they are of very high quality. I had a number of discussions with CMA delegates in Trinidad who were interested in philatelic policies and they fully agreed with me. One or two of them in particular came from countries in the West Indies who have gone too far and commercialised their stamp policies, and ruined their markets, and they are now getting far less income than they used to. Also, I would like to see in the future perhaps the Falkland Islands Philatelic Bureau will be able to participate in international stamp exhibitions in different parts of the world and further boost our sales and advertise our stamps overseas.

Also in the Budget I was very pleased to see that we are managing to do a little bit more for our old people. As I said yesterday, I am not too happy with the idea of asking the over 60s to start paying the contributions again, but then of course they will be getting a pension a year earlier now and I think the general principle is right; we want to try and pay a higher pension, which of course means higher contributions and the old saying is that you cannot please everybody all of the time.

/One thing that I was

One thing that I was a little bit disappointed in was that nothing as yet has come out of the Tepper Report, the first fiscal report. I know it was a very complicated report and many things in it will need further study and clarification. However there were one or two items which I thought we might have been able to include in this Budget - in particular the introduction of landing charges for tourists, either per head or port dues on a ship according to the number of passengers it carries. Obviously it could not be a very high figure as we provide very few on-shore services, but at least if we introduced a fairly low figure, say £1 a head or something like that, we would then be able to build up a fund to provide for the on-shore tourist facilities which we so badly need.

One thing does trouble me though with our present state of financial affairs. Everything, whatever form of taxation or revenue, everything eventually comes off the sheep's back and as everybody knows farming production costs are rising. Fortunately the world wool price is holding fairly well and the outlook is not too bad, but the sheep's back cannot remain straight for ever. Sooner or later, as Government expenses carry on rising, the sheep's back is going to start to bend a bit, therefore I fully agree with my colleague the Honourable Member for Stanley that not only is there a need for new and improved infrastructure but there is a need for new industry to produce more revenue.

Finally Your Excellency I would like to thank my colleagues for their confidence in sending me to Trinidad and Tobago to represent the Falklands there. I hope I achieved something; however, once again, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Also, I don't think I mentioned it yesterday, I would like to say thanks to Mr Tim Blake and my colleague for East Falkland, Mr Adrian Monk, who have represented the Falklands previously in such conferences, and a number of delegates had either met them personally at previous conferences or had met people who had met them and were asking after them. I would also like to extend my best wishes to the Hon. Adrian Monk on his forthcoming visit to Jamaica.

Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion for Adjournment.

Mr V H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to support this Motion I find I have very little to say. I don't think there is any object in us trying to analyse what we have done or what we have achieved. I think the best judges of that ought to be the people as time goes on. If the sheep's back does bend then I think we could perhaps consider making recommendations to grow more grass or perhaps get a subsidy from the Post Office or general taxation in the camp. I beg to support the Motion.

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, in rising to wind up this Motion I would like to take this opportunity to mention a topic which has been very much in people's minds but about which very little has been said at this meeting, for reasons quite beyond the control of all of us: it is the school hostel.

You mentioned in your opening Address the yards of teleprinter tape that are involved in a project, and a few more yards arrived only yesterday from the Ministry of Overseas Development, and the information that was contained in them was that CDH are now recommending that a final agreement should be made with Transocean Associates, the joint venture, for the construction of the school hostel. This recommendation, which I think may surprise a number of Members, has been reached only after the most careful and serious appraisal of all the tenders and the information that we have received indicates that the joint venture will provide us with the best design and certainly the most readily maintained school hostel. There are a number of other factors but it is quite clear that there is no viable alternative but to accept the recommendations that have been made to us and we can therefore expect two members of the contracting company to be here in early July to make their exploratory investigation of the site.

Beyond that, Sir, I think there are only three short points that I want to make: the first one if I may take this opportunity of reaffirming that the stamp policy of the Islands, which is so important to us, so dramatically important - I think the revenue figures indicate that stamps are a major industry in these Islands - that there is no intention of lurching into that area of gimmickry and nonsensical sales that have destroyed so many other stamp issuing ventures. The object of the Philatelic Bureau is to improve marketing methods, make them more aggressive and more enterprising in order to enhance the revenue so far as is possible, because we cannot always expect to rely on the very large sales of the omnibus issues associated with the Silver Jubilee and the Coronation. I think it is important that people should realise that we are not departing from the statement which was made in the early part of last year.

The other point that I would like to make, Sir, is that these occasions are always immensely valuable to my Colleague the Honourable the Financial Secretary and myself, to listen to the very interesting and helpful suggestions that come from our colleagues on Council.

We have a vast quarry of ideas on which to mine and upon which to work as soon as this House adjourns, and it is particularly helpful to us that our deliberations were conducted without pyrotechnics and passion and that we grappled with the very considerable problems we tackled in a spirit of unity.

//And that then brings

And that then brings me to a last point, Sir, and as always it is not simply a matter of courtesy, it is a great help to us to be guided with such kindly tolerance by yourself; your occasional lifting your eyes from Standing Orders enables us to conduct our business much more expeditiously and for that, Sir, we all thank you.

The President

Well Honourable Members I really have got very little to say. I echo most of the sentiments that have been expressed around the Table today. I am very grateful to the Financial Secretary for intimating that we will shortly have a report from the Green Patch Investigating Committee and I would like to thank the Committee for their hard work; I was very gratified to hear that the prospects are hopeful.

This has been I think a very constructive meeting and a good many wise and forward-looking speeches have been made. Our speeches aren't long but I was most impressed with their content and I think that probably lengthy speeches tend to obscure a lack of content. I think we had good, solid points made by Honourable Councillors and those Councillors who are not so new to the game now, have been around for quite a number of months, have been sitting with me in Council, I think they are expressing themselves and feeling for their constituents in an exceedingly - perhaps I might say so - statesmanlike way.

Councillors have done good work upon our Bills and on the Budget and here I would of course wish to offer my congratulations to the Financial Secretary for the hard work that I know he puts in, has put in, on preparing the papers for us, and also if I might say so to the Registrar of the Supreme Court, the results of whose work on the papers that you saw before us was the cause for us - as one Member said - to be always bobbing up and down.

Councillors have been particularly vigilant in picking out one or two flaws and faults which necessarily creep into Bills; they are things which probably I should have noticed, because I'm supposed to look at these Bills before they come before Council; yet these little things have been picked up by Councillors and I am very grateful to see that Councillors are really doing their job.

We've resolved quite a number I think of long-standing problems, income tax and pensions have been resolved but there are still quite a number more for the future.

/We are I think from

We are I think from where we sit on the Administration very conscious of the rise in cost of Government, and very conscious of the fact that our main income to some extent is a static one, or at least we have little control, we cannot push up our revenue as easily as we can push up our expenditure, and we must watch this for the future, and we must look very much to the future now. I do share Councillors' impatience over the slowness in getting projects started; it's been extremely frustrating but I think things are now coming together, we shall be moving, there will be some movement, very soon. I know people are tired of hearing me say this but I think we are now on the brink of doing so. The Chief Secretary has mentioned the hostel; I have had a very encouraging letter in last Saturday's mail about aid for the aircraft; we still have a lot of questions to answer, but the tone of the letter is very encouraging.

If I might just mention something that Councillor Goss referred to, about the road. We talk about it as the Stanley to Darwin road, or the first stage of the road network; well of course Darwin isn't necessarily the end of it: if the road-building gang gets a sufficiently good, high rise, who knows where the impetus will carry them! It's not all that far down to the Sound. And I might add in that connection some information which might be of interest; I have asked that in next year's survey programme that HMS 'Endurance' should do a complete survey of the waters in the Sound, from Port Sussex, Brenton Loch, Egg Harbour on the one side across to the Port Howard area on the other side, to find the best harbour and the best crossings for any future ferry that we might be able to establish there. We will do a complete survey of all the waters in that area.

I did mention in my opening Address the possibility that Councillors might have some views on amending our procedures or on any improvement in our Constitution. Nobody has yet, but I think some reflection on this point might produce some ideas which we are all always ready to listen to. We certainly do have a very complex way of going about things, it is rather complex for such a small Colony; it gets it right, there is no doubt about that, but we do seem to bob up and down quite a bit, and I seem to be going through rather a pantomime up here which I wondered if some of the school children yesterday when they were sitting there understood quite what was going on. But it does get it right. But if we can streamline it then I think it will be all for the good.

Finally in thanking Honourable Members for their patience with me up here on this dais, I would also like to add my thanks to the Clerk who is now sitting beside me and keeping me somewhat straighter on the procedure than I have been on previous occasions, and also for the hard work he does on preparing our papers.

The Motion is that this House stand adjourned sine die and I accordingly adjourn it.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

APPENDIX I

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

20th June, 1978.

Question No. 1/78 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"Now that we are to get a new Development Officer can Government say what development he will be responsible for?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

Working in the closest collaboration with the Financial Secretary and the Chief Secretary the Development Officer will have principal responsibility for the organisation, implementation and supervision of the Government's development strategy; for monitoring the progress of actual projects; for encouraging both new and existing enterprises; for maintaining liaison with the Ministry of Overseas Development and other development agencies and donors as well as with potential investors; for assessing the value of new proposals coming forward from all sources; and for reviewing both the local situation and also external trends.

These responsibilities follow closely those envisaged for this particular post by the Shackleton Economic Survey at page 84 of Volume Two of the Report.

Question No. 2/78 by the Hon. D. S. Evans

"Could Government indicate what efforts are being made to overcome the frustrating delays in getting the new Camp teachers down here and what steps are being taken to avoid this type of delay in future?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

Government has been very conscious of the need to recruit Camp teachers as quickly as possible and is therefore pleased that information recently received from the Ministry of Overseas Development indicates that Mr. Hamblin will arrive on Saturday, 24th June, and that another teacher, Mr. Sinclair, should arrive on 1st July. Three other teachers (Messrs. McCarter, Hodgkinson, Langston) have been nominated and we are awaiting confirmation that they have accepted appointments. The establishment would then be complete.

Indents were placed as far back as July 1977 and augmented in January of this year.

ODM have now provided Government with a list of candidates for Camp teacher posts, which should help speed up the process of recruitment by eliminating the need to hold further interviews. This means that we nominate a suitable candidate and ODM initiates the standard recruitment procedures.

Unfortunately Government has been unable to propose any short cut that would significantly reduce recruitment procedures in Britain, which are beyond Government's control. These involve advertising; convening interview boards; medically examining selected candidates; and then calling for references, etc. Possible further delays can happen because candidates generally can only give notice to their employer once selection has been confirmed. Sometimes, moreover, candidates withdraw when the recruitment process is already well-advanced. (This has happened with at least one of the candidates recently).

Government is in continuous touch with ODM about delays in recruitment which, of course, affect almost all departments.

Question No. 3/78 by the Hon. D. S. Evans

"Once the air service is back to normal operation would Government consider the possibility of mail pick-ups from the small islands in the winter time when there are very few landings, even if it were only with a frequency of once a month?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

Once FIGAS is operating again at full strength the opportunity will be taken to review the possibility of including more frequent mail pick-ups from the small islands during the winter months.

Question No. 4/78 by the Hon. T. J. D. Miller

"On a recent occasion when an F28 aircraft of LADE was carrying out trials at Stanley Airport an aircraft of the Argentine Navy flew low over parts of the Falklands without permission from Stanley Airport control. What action has been taken by the Administration here and HMG in the face of this illegal and dangerous action?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

This incident was referred to in a Government House statement broadcast on 2nd and 3rd June, in which, as no doubt the Honourable Members heard, it was stated that, because of the serious implications of the matter, it had been reported to the Secretary of State.

It is understood that H M Charge d'Affaires in Buenos Aires has, on instructions, formally expressed the serious view HMG take of the matter.

Question No. 5/78 by Hon. T. J. D. Miller

"Will the proposed oil jetty be capable of handling cargo ships? If not, will it be possible to add such facilities to the jetty at a later date?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

Although the proposed oil jetty could be used for the handling of cargo ships, its basic purpose as a fuel jetty could impose some constraint upon its being used for other purposes because of fire hazards. This, however, is a matter which will be kept under review to ensure the maximum advantage can be derived from the project.

Question No. 6/78 by the Hon. T. J. D. Miller

"Has Government been reimbursed on the increase in air fares from Comodoro Rivadavia to Buenos Aires in 1977, and if not, how much money is involved?"

Question No. 7/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"Have LADE refunded the money collected in error from persons leaving the Colony immediately following the increase effected on 16th May 1977?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

On 9th June 1978 LADE placed on deposit at the Treasury the sum of £1,355.76 in respect of 46 named passengers who had been overcharged.

Arrangements are in hand to reimburse the persons concerned.

Question No. 8/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"Have the results of the seismic surveys undertaken by Geophysical Services Inc. and Western Geophysics been received?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

Government has not yet received the results of either of these two surveys.

It is understood that it will take some time for the complex technical data obtained from the surveys to be analysed and evaluated.

Question No. 9/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"What extra expenses are incurred by the Colony due to the Saturday LADE flights?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

The cost of opening Stanley Airport every Saturday is made up of the following payments to the employees concerned:-

Two Handymen	£24.98
Six Firemen	£82.69
One driver	£11.10
	£118.77

Government had explored with LADE the possibility of the additional flight being made on a week-day. As it did not prove possible, Government is keeping the matter under review.

Question No. 10/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"What is the situation regarding the swimming pool project?"

Reply by the Financial Secretary

It had been the intention to convert the old Power Station building into a Swimming Pool but local funds were insufficient. It was therefore necessary to seek overseas aid. Requests for aid to all known overseas sources were unsuccessful.

Honourable Members are already aware that the old Power Station has been now put to good use for the plant workshop essential for the Colony's Development programme; in particular the internal roads network and the construction of the School Hostel.

Recently documents have been received from Mr. John Dowling of the Falkland Islands Company Limited giving details of a small swimming pool which he suggested may be worth considering for constructing at the site of the Stanley School Hostel. If Mr. Dowling's suggestion is feasible the cost of such a pool may be within the amount already available in the Swimming Pool Fund.

The documents on the suggested pool will be forwarded to the new Director of Public Works for the purpose of seeking his advice shortly after he takes up office.

Councils will be kept informed on this project.

Question No. 11/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"Who will be consultant engineers for the Stanley fuel jetty?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

The Consultant Engineers who were retained by the British Government for the design of this project are Rendel Palmer and Tritton.

Question No. 12/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"On what terms has the additional plot of land been rented to Gas del Estado?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

An application has been received from Gas del Estado for a plot of land close to the site of the proposed oil jetty to build a bulk storage tank from which portable containers could be replenished locally.

This request is still under consideration and the terms on which any lease might be granted would, of course, be for the Governor in Council to determine.

Any such lease would not be an "additional" plot, since Gas del Estado does not have any leased land at present. A temporary site was informally allocated to Gas del Estado in the area of the "German Camp" to enable them to store cylinders, and the present application is to establish a more satisfactory and formal arrangement.

Question No. 13/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"What plans are there for effecting permanent repairs to the Stanley roads?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

It has not yet been possible to formulate any long-term plans for the repair of the roads in Stanley. But, with the arrival of the new Director of Public Works - a professional engineer of great experience - and the return of the Superintendent of Works (Roads) from specialist training in Britain, it is expected that proper attention can be given to this long outstanding problem.

The recent successful resurfacing of Hebe Street has demonstrated that PWD has the capability to tackle the task and suggests also that what is now required is systematic management planning.

Question No. 14/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"When and how is it planned to effect a "Pay As You Earn" method of collecting income tax?"

Reply by the Hon. Financial Secretary

Professional advice has been sought on the introduction of Income Tax PAYE system in the Falkland Islands.

The expert advice which Government has received indicates that a PAYE system identical to the scheme in the United Kingdom and other territories would not be justified in such a small community as in the Falkland Islands.

It is mentioned in the report made by Mr. Pepper that there is a general consensus of opinion in certain sectors of the community that some voluntary scheme might be tried.

The introduction of a voluntary scheme for Government Employees has been contemplated and in this connection it is intended to introduce a voluntary PAYE system for employees in the Public Works Department with effect from July 1978.

This scheme will be tried and carefully monitored for the purpose of judging whether it would be advantageous to extend the scheme in the Colony.

Question No. 15/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"What has been done to ensure that in future the issue of white cards properly reflect the provisions of the 1972 communications agreement?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

The 1971 Joint statement specifies that travel documents (white cards) are to be issued to residents of the Falkland Islands and Argentina, who wish to travel between these two countries.

The British Government have been discussing with the Argentine Government, for some time, the question of the issue of white cards. The Argentine Government have not yet produced an acceptable solution and the British Government are continuing to press the matter.

Question No. 16/78 by the Hon. S. B. Wallace

"Why is LADE permitted to operate its own private radio station?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

LADE operates its own radio station in Stanley as specifically authorised by paragraph (4) (d) of the Exchange of Notes between the British and Argentine Governments on 2nd October 1972 for the provision of a regular air service.

Questions Nos. 17/78 and 18/78 by the Hon. A. B. Monk, J.P.

"How many persons and who, are presently taking advanced level academic or technical courses overseas at our expense?"

"Who decides who goes and who appoints the body that does decide?"

Reply by the Hon. Chief Secretary

Nobody is being trained overseas at Government expense.

The following six people are undergoing training at present:-

Mr. V. Steen	Aircraft engineering
Mr. E. Anderson	Pilot training
Mr. P. King	Office management
Mr. B. Morrison	Road construction
Mr. R. Clarke	Heavy vehicle maintenance
Miss C. Carey	BA Course in English: University of Essex.

(An application on behalf of Mr. Jaime Robertson to study Agriculture is under consideration).

However, their training expenses are being met by the Ministry of Overseas Development. The only expense to the Colony, in the case of serving officers, is the cost of their salary, which would be paid in any case.

The selection of candidates in open competition for training (e.g. pilots) is by recommendation of an appointments board, the composition of which is set out in the Colony's General Orders. The Board normally works in close co-operation with whichever training establishment is to receive the trainees, and may rely heavily upon their advice for the final determination of which candidate is to be selected.

Candidates for normal in-service career training are nominated - often at the suggestion of visiting specialists - by the Head of Department, who may require members of his staff to be trained for the implementation of specific development projects.

The final decision of the acceptance or rejection of candidates for academic and institutional courses, to be funded by the Ministry of Overseas Development, lies with the Ministry's agents, the British Council, who make the final assessment whether a candidate meets the academic and medical requirements stipulated by the training institution.

Each year the Colony is offered a scholarship by the Commonwealth Education Fellowship Fund, and at present Mr. Nicholas Keenleyside holds such an award, which again is costing the Colony nothing. Mr. John Barton has been nominated for the next award.

Air Fares and Conditions of Carriage

The following charges and conditions of carriage shall come into operation on the 1st July 1978.

I. SCHEDULED PASSENGER FLIGHTS

(1) Passenger fares for scheduled flights are calculated on the straight line distance between points of departure and destination. The fare consists of two elements forming a single whole —

- (a) a charge of 25 pence per mile plus;
- (b) a flat rate (popularly known as the boarding charge) for passengers of —
 - (i) £8 for adults;
 - (ii) £3 for children between the age of seven and school leaving age (but see Part III below);
 - (iii) £1.50 for children from one to seven years (but see Part III below);
 - (iv) nil for children under one year.
- (2) Children over seven years of age are charged at the full mileage rate (but see Part III below).
- (3) Children between one and seven years of age are charged half the mileage rate (but see Part III below).
- (4) Children under one year of age when accompanied by an adult travel free of charge.
- (5) Ministers of Religion are carried free of charge provided —
 - (a) the aircraft is going to the destination required by the Minister for reasons other than the Minister's journey;
 - (b) there is a vacant seat in the aircraft.
- (6) Every passenger may take with him free of charge personal baggage to a maximum weight of 30 lbs. Baggage in excess of this weight will be carried only at the aircraft commander's discretion and shall be charged at 10 pence per lb for the first 10 lbs and at the rate of 15 pence per lb thereafter.
- (7) A rebate of 20 pence per mile will be given to persons normally resident in the Colony (in the case of children between one and seven years of age 10 pence per mile).
- (8) 'Normally resident' means a person (together with his family) who normally resides in the Colony, or is in the Colony under a contract of service to an employer who has a place of business in the Colony, or has resided in the Colony for a continuous period of not less than one year since arriving in, or returning to the Colony or any person paying Falkland Islands income tax.

II. MEDICAL FLIGHTS

(1) Medical flights are made at the request of the Senior Medical Officer. Applications for medical flights should be sent to the Senior Medical Officer and not to the Air Service. All bookings received by the Air Service from farm managers or private individuals will be treated as private bookings and charged as such.

(2) There is no charge against a patient proceeding to Stanley Hospital for the treatment or control of tuberculosis, the full cost both ways being met from the Medical Department votes.

(3) There is no charge against a patient for emergency cases to Stanley for Hospital treatment but 25% of the air fare is charged to the patient for the return flight, the inward flight and the balance of the return flight are charged to Medical Department votes.

(4) Non-urgent medical cases travel both ways at assisted passage rates, i.e. 25% of the air fare payable by the patient and 75% by the Medical Department.

III. SCHOOL FLIGHTS

(1) In all cases School Flights must be booked through the Superintendent of Education. All bookings received by the Air Service from farm managers or private individuals will be treated as private bookings and charged as such.

(2) Children travelling by air to or from school at the beginning or end of the recognized school terms are charged half fare appropriate to their age group, the balance being met from the Education vote.

(3) Should a child attending school away from home proceed on holiday to a settlement other than his or her home, the Education Department will meet 50% of the charge provided it does not exceed the normal half fare for the journey between the school and the child's home. Excess distance travelled will be charged to the parent at the full fare rate in addition to the half fare between school and home.

IV CHARTER FLIGHTS

I. CONDITIONS

(1) Charter bookings can normally only be accepted when both aircraft are in service. It may, however, be possible to undertake a charter with only one aircraft available when bookings are light.

(2) Although charters will not normally be given priority over private bookings, application for priority can be made to the Chief Secretary as in the case of private bookings.

(3) Aircraft on charter are still at the disposal of the Senior Medical Officer and may be diverted at any time during charter at his request if required for an urgent medical case.

(4) Government reserves the right to utilise an aircraft under charter during any waiting time or at any time during charter when the aircraft is travelling empty.

(5) Persons requiring this service should if possible advise the Air Service Office at least seven clear days before the required date. Full particulars of route, passengers and/or freights must be advised at the time of booking.

2. RATES

(1) £108 per hour (commencing from the time of 'engine on' at Stanley to the time of 'engine off' at Stanley rounded to the nearest 15 minutes).

(2) 2 hours free waiting, thereafter a demurrage charge of £10 per hour or part thereof will be levied.

(3) Charges will be reduced by the amount earned by carrying other passengers (with the consent of the charterer).

3. PASSENGER AND FREIGHT LIMITATIONS

Aircraft leaving a pick up point with full fuel load can only carry four adult passengers plus luggage or 1,000 lbs of freight; when full fuel load is not required one extra passenger or 250 lbs of freight can be carried.

4. DELAYS

(1) Delays caused solely by the weather will not normally be charged to the charterer. If an aircraft is compelled or required to spend the night away from Stanley on account of the charterer the basic waiting fee of £10 per hour (after the initial two hours free waiting period) will be charged up to 6.0 p.m (Stanley time). Thereafter a consolidated overnight fee of £50 will be charged and will apply until 10.0 a.m. (Stanley time) the following morning when, if the aircraft is still retained by the charterer, the basic waiting fee of £10 an hour will be charged.

(2) Overnight charters will not, however, be accepted in normal circumstances and the overnight charges outlined above are only intended to apply in the case of unforeseen delays caused by the charterer. In such cases the Air Service reserves the right to return to Stanley if the aircraft commander considers this to be desirable and another charter at the usual rates will be necessary if further flying is required to complete the charter.

V. PRIORITY FLIGHTS

(1) Government reserves the right at all times to refuse passage to any person, or to carry freight or livestock.

(2) Flight priorities are—

1st priority	...	Medical flights;
2nd priority	...	Delivery and collection of overseas mail (letters only);
3rd priority	...	Members of Executive and Legislative Councils and Government officials travelling on duty;
4th priority	...	Ordinary passenger flights (any person in this category may apply to the Chief Secretary for a higher priority on compassionate or urgent business or other relevant grounds);
5th priority	...	Freight and livestock.

VI AIR FREIGHT

1. CONDITIONS OF CARRIAGE

(1) No guarantee of delivery by air can be given.

(2) Air freight cannot be registered or insured and all freight is carried at owner's risk.

(3) Explosive or inflammable articles must not be sent as air freight.

(4) All packages consigned as freight must be clearly addressed with the weight marked on the package.

(5) Rates for the carriage of air freight will be—

Weight		Rate
On the first 50 lbs	10 pence per lb.
Above 50 lbs	15 pence per lb.
Minimum charge	50 pence.

(6) Half the normal rate will be charged for the freighting into Stanley of fresh produce when the space would otherwise be unused.

2. DOGS

(1) All dogs carried must be accompanied by the owner or a person known to the dog appointed by the owner.

(2) Owners will provide muzzle, collar and chain to be used as instructed by the aircraft's commander.

(3) Dogs will be securely chained to the holding down bolts in the rear of the aircraft.

(4) Owners or their representatives will be required to load and unload their own dogs as advised by the air service staff.

(5) Government will provide polythene sheeting to protect passengers' luggage.

(6) Only one dog will be accepted on an aircraft at any one time.

(7) A dog will not be granted a passage if any passenger already on board raises objection.

(8) Last minute bookings for dogs cannot be accepted.

(9) All owners must produce a certificate signed by an appointed inspector, certifying that —

(a) the dog has been dosed with Droncit within six weeks of the flight;

(b) the dog has been bathed using carbolic lifebuoy soap within twelve hours of the flight time.

(10) Rates for carriage of dogs shall be —

(a) a flat rate of £1 plus

(b) a charge of 2½ pence per mile.

3. CATS

All cats must be enclosed in a cat basket or a well ventilated cat-proof box.

4. SHEEP

(1) Sheep will not be accepted on aircraft carrying passengers.

(2) Sheep when accepted must be accompanied by a stockman and will be carried at charter rates only.

(3) Loading and unloading will be carried out under the supervision of the aircraft commander.

Nothing mentioned above over-rides Government's right to refuse passage or the aircraft commander's authority to refuse passage.

VII. DELIVERY OF PAPER MAIL TO CAMP SETTLEMENTS BY AIR

(1) Paper mail will be delivered by air to all farms as and when opportunity occurs and provided that such distribution does not interfere with the carriage of passengers, ordinary mail and freight.

(2) The following flat charges will be made irrespective of the distance carried —

Not exceeding 30 lbs, 20 pence; not exceeding 70 lbs, 50 pence; not exceeding 100 lbs, 75 pence.

(3) Charges will be borne by the farms.

VIII CANCELLATION

Government Notice No. 33, Air Fares and Conditions of Carriage of the 23rd July 1973 is hereby cancelled with effect from 1st July 1978.

JOHN MASSINGHAM,
Chief Secretary.

AIR/2/1.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government and the General Employees' Union. The agreement shall be effective for a period of one year from 1st January 1978 and shall apply to the hourly paid employees of Government in Stanley. (In recognition of the widely differing conditions of service offered by Government on the one hand and by the Falkland Islands Company on the other it has been agreed by all the parties concerned that, on this occasion and henceforward, a separate agreement should be made between the General Employees' Union and each of the respective Employers).

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used. If however in any quarter the Index should exceed the average figure for the last four quarters by six points then the excess points will be taken into immediate account for the cost of living award. The payment in respect of the excess points will be adjusted as necessary, in future quarterly reviews of the cost of living.

N.B. When calculating the advance payment in excess of the first six points, ½p advance will be made in any case where the excess not already taken into account reaches one point.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	£1.09
2. *Apprentices	1st year 0.75½p
	2nd year 0.77p
	3rd year 0.80½p
	4th year 0.84p
	5th year 0.92½p
* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.
3. Handymen (according to ability)	0.89½p to 0.99p
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	0.88½p
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	0.89½p
6. Tractor Drivers	0.92½p
7. Labourers	Hourly Rate.
	Age
	14-15 0.66½p
	15-16 0.70½p
	16-17 0.76p
	17-18 0.81p
	18 and over 0.87½p

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

N.B. It should be noted that the above mentioned rates exclude the ½p per hour, in respect of increase in cost of living, awarded to hourly paid employees with effect from 1st January 1978.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees except that the following jobs shall automatically qualify for 14p per hour: Crushing stone, handling cement in bags, handling filtration plant chemicals, handling gas oil and cleaning blocked sewers.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 8p to 15p per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 25p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 3p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed. This will also apply to tallymen.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 5p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 40 hours per week made up as follows -

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 40 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows -

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 - (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 - (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 - (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 - (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 40-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Public Holidays.

In addition to receiving double time for working on a public holiday employees shall be entitled to 8 hours holiday.

7. Holidays.

(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to accumulate holidays at the rates and to the maximum hereinafter set out, namely —

Earning rate per month of continuous service	Maximum accumulation
1½ days	320 hours

In the event of an employee terminating his service prior to the completion of the first six months of service he shall forfeit any holiday entitlement not taken.

The maximum of 320 hours referred to above shall not apply to any excess over that amount accumulated as at 31st December 1976.

Paid holidays may be taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following eight days shall be paid holidays for all employees :—

New Year's Day, Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday and Commonwealth Day, October Bank Holiday, Anniversary of Battle of Falkland Islands, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Annual Stanley Sports Meeting.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Saturday or a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

8. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed three months' service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.
- (b) If sickness lasts for more than two working days an employee shall be entitled to the following sick pay commencing on the first day of sickness on the production of a medical certificate—
 - (i) Employees who have completed three months' service with their employer—
 - Full pay for the first two weeks.
 - Half pay for the third and fourth weeks.
 - (ii) Employees who have completed three years' service with their employer—
 - Full pay for the first four weeks.
 - Half pay for the following nine weeks.
- (c) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (d) An employer may demand a medical certificate before making any payment in respect of sick pay.
- (e) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work. The Foreman and the Union Delegate must confirm in writing any accident at work.

9. Termination of Employment.

Except in the case of misleemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed, the following notice of termination of employment shall be given—

- (i) Employees who have completed ten years' service with their employer—
 - One months notice.
- (ii) Employees who have completed five years' service with their employer—
 - Two weeks' notice.
- (iii) All other employees—
 - One week's notice.

If desired employers may pay wages in (i), (ii) or (iii), as appropriate, in lieu of giving notice.

10. General.

- (a) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.
- (b) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.

- (c) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.
- (d) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.
- (e) All employers shall ensure that tractors are fitted with safety cabs.

Separate agreements have been negotiated on this occasion, and will be negotiated in future, for employees of Government and of the Falkland Island Company, respectively, all the parties concerned consider there is some value in their continuing to negotiate such agreements jointly rather than separately so far as this proves possible.

WHEREAS by Article 7 (1) of the Falkland Islands Letters Patent 1948 to 1962, under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, it is provided that whenever the Office of Governor is vacant, or the Governor is absent from the Colony or is from any cause prevented from or incapable of, acting in the duties of his Office, then such other person as We may appoint under our Sign Manual and Signet, or if there is no such person in the Colony so appointed and capable of discharging the duties of the administration, the Senior Member of the Executive Council then in the Colony and so capable, shall during Our pleasure, administer the Government of the Colony:

AND WHEREAS His Excellency JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, has this day left the Colony on leave of absence:

AND WHEREAS no person has been appointed under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet to administer the Government of the Colony in the absence of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JOHN DUDLEY MASSINGHAM, Chief Secretary of the Colony, the Senior Member of the Executive Council aforesaid, do hereby proclaim and make known that, in pursuance of the said Article 7 (1) of the said Letters Patent and having taken the oaths prescribed by law, I have this day assumed the administration of the Government of the Colony.

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 17th day of August in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-eight.

LS

JOHN MASSINGHAM.
Acting Governor.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Instrument under the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands appointing Douglas Roy Morrison, Esquire, O.B.E., to be a Temporary Member of the Executive Council.

BY HIS HONOUR JOHN DUDLEY MASSINGHAM, ESQUIRE, Acting Governor of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

WHEREAS by the Falkland Islands Letters Patent 1948 to 1962, under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, constituting the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, it is amongst other things declared that there shall be an Executive Council in and for the said Colony and for the Dependencies which shall consist of such persons as may be directed by Instructions under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet.

AND WHEREAS by Instructions under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet, bearing date the 13th day of December 1948, as amended by Additional Instructions dated the 27th day of November 1951, 15th day of November 1955, 10th day of December 1964, 10th day of April 1973, and 31st day of March 1977, it is declared that the Governor may, by Instrument under the Public Seal, appoint to be temporarily a member of the Executive Council, in the case of the incapacity of an Ex-officio Member a person who holds an office of emolument under the Crown in the Colony:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JOHN DUDLEY MASSINGHAM, do hereby appoint:

DOUGLAS ROY MORRISON, ESQUIRE, O.B.E., Acting Chief Secretary to be a temporary Ex-officio Member of my Executive Council.

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony at Government House, Stanley, this 17th day of August in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-eight.

JOHN MASSINGHAM,
Acting Governor.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Assented to in Her Majesty's name this 14th day of August 1978.

No. 17

1978

Colony of the Falkland Islands

IN THE TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF
Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, C.M.G., O.B.E.
Governor.

An Ordinance

To provide for the establishment of a Plant and Transport Authority, to define its powers and functions and to provide for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

Title.

(1st July 1978)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows—

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Plant and Transport Authority Ordinance 1978 and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1978.

Short title and commencement.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires —

Interpretation.

“financial year” means the period commencing on the 1st day of July each year and ending on the 30th day of June in the year following except that the period from the establishment of the Authority to the 30th day of June next thereafter shall be deemed to be a financial year.

3. There is hereby established an Authority to be called the Plant and Transport Authority which shall, in that name, be a body corporate with perpetual succession and shall be capable of suing and being sued, and subject to this Ordinance of doing and suffering all such other acts and things as bodies corporate may lawfully do or suffer.

Establishment and incorporation of Plant and Transport Authority.

4. The functions of the Authority shall be to control a fund created to provide monies for the purchase, repair, maintenance and replacement of such engine-driven, engineering construction plant and engine-driven vehicles as from time to time the Authority may acquire by purchase or otherwise and for such other purposes as the Governor in Council may from time to time approve.

General powers of Authority.

5. Subject to section 6, the Authority may do all such things as are calculated to facilitate, or are incidental or conducive to, the better carrying out of its functions and to such end may include —

- (a) the acquisition, taking or leasing, purchasing, holding and enjoying any property and selling, letting or otherwise disposing of the same;
- (b) the establishment and maintenance of workshops and offices;
- (c) entering into any contract;
- (d) charging for the use of any facilities or services provided by the Authority.

Restrictions as to future financial commitments.

6. Without the prior approval of the Governor in Council, no contract shall be made in the exercise of any of the powers conferred upon the Authority by this Ordinance that itself is likely, or together with all other contracts previously entered into are likely, to involve expenditure by the Authority in any subsequent financial year under any of the major heads of expenditure of an amount or aggregate amount exceeding the sum in the estimate of expenditure approved by the Governor in Council for the same major head of expenditure in respect of the year in which such contract is entered into (and not transferred to any other major head by the Authority) together with any sum transferred to that head by the Authority during that year (other than a sum transferred thereto from any unallocated balance or surplus shown in the estimates for that year).

Seal of the Authority.

7. (1) The Authority shall have a common seal, and the fixing of the seal shall be authenticated by the signature of any two members of the Authority, authorized by resolution of the Authority either generally or specifically to act for that purpose.

(2) Any document purporting to be a document duly executed with the seal of the Authority shall be received in evidence and shall, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to be a document so executed.

Cases where contracts need not be under seal.

8. Any contract which if made between private persons would be by law required to be in writing, signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the Authority in writing signed by any person generally or specifically authorized by the Authority for that purpose.

Membership of Authority.

9. The Authority shall consist of the following members —

- (a) The Financial Secretary (Chairman);
- (b) The Director of Public Works (Vice-Chairman);
- (c) The Mechanical Superintendent of the Public Works Department;
- (d) such other members as the Governor may from time to time appoint.

Meetings of Authority.

10. (1) Meetings of the Authority shall be held at intervals not exceeding three months.

(2) Whenever the Authority is considering the acquisition, replacement or disposal of any item the Head of the Department operating the item, or his representative, shall be invited to attend the meeting of the Authority.

Grants.

11. Each financial year there may be paid to the Authority out of the monies provided by the Legislative Council such sum as the Governor in Council may approve for the purpose of assisting the Authority to exercise its functions.

12. The revenue of the Authority shall be applied in defraying the charges of the Authority. Application of revenue.

13. Each year, before a date to be appointed by the Governor, the Authority shall forward to the Financial Secretary, for the approval of the Governor, estimates of its income and expenditure for the same year: Estimates.

Provided that the estimates for the first financial year of the Authority shall be forwarded as soon as practicable after the commencement of this Ordinance.

14. (1) The Authority shall keep proper accounts of all income and expenditure and shall maintain proper and adequate records thereof. Accounts.

(2) As soon as may be convenient after the end of each financial year the Authority shall cause to be drawn up a statement of income and expenditure during such financial year and a statement of the assets and liabilities of the Authority on the last day thereof.

15. (1) The accounts of the Authority shall be audited by the Government Auditor. Audit.

(2) The auditors shall audit the statements drawn up under subsection (2) of section 14 as soon as possible and shall make a report thereon to the Authority.

16. (1) The Authority shall as soon as possible after the end of each financial year, but not later than six months after the end of each financial year or such longer period as the Governor may as to any particular year allow, make to the Governor in Council therewith a copy of the statements drawn up under subsection (2) of section 14 and the report made under subsection (2) of section 15 and shall publish such reports and statements. Report etc., to be laid on the table of the Legislative Council and published.

(2) The Governor shall cause to be laid on the table of the Legislative Council the reports and statements received by him under subsection (1).

17. All funds of the Authority that are not immediately required shall be deposited with any bank or savings bank nominated by the Financial Secretary, or, shall be invested on behalf of the Authority, under the direction of the Financial Secretary, in such securities, as shall be approved from time to time by the Governor in Council, and the interest arising from such deposit or investment shall be from time to time paid to the credit of the Authority. Investment of surplus funds.

18. The Governor in Council may make all such regulations as may be necessary for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of this Ordinance. Regulations.

This printed impression has been carefully compared by me with the Bill which has passed the Legislative Council, and is found by me to be a true and correctly printed copy of the said Bill.

W. A. ETHERIDGE,
Clerk of Councils.

STANLEY AIRPORT (REGULATIONS) ORDINANCE 1977

Stanley Airport Regulations 1978

No. 1 of 1978.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor.

IN EXERCISE of the powers conferred by section 4 of the Stanley Airport (Regulations) Ordinance 1977, the Governor in Council has made the following regulations —

PART I.

PRELIMINARY

1. These regulations may be called the Stanley Airport Regulations 1978.
2. In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires —
 - (a) "aircraft" means any machine that can derive support in the atmosphere from the reaction of the air other than the reactions of the air against the earth's surface.
 - (b) "apron" means the hardstanding adjacent to the terminal building intended to accommodate aircraft for the purpose of loading or unloading passengers, mail or cargo, refuelling, parking or maintenance.
 - (c) "airport police" means the civil aviation security personnel and such other personnel duly authorized in writing by the Superintendent to carry out police duties at the airport.
 - (d) "manoeuvring area" means that part of the airport to be used for the take-off and landing of aircraft and for the surface movement of aircraft associated with take-off and landing, excluding apron.
 - (e) "movement area" means that part of the airport to be used for take-off and landing of aircraft and for the surface movement of aircraft.
 - (f) "park" means the standing of a vehicle, including an aircraft, whether occupied or not, otherwise than temporarily for the purpose of and while actually engaged in loading.
 - (g) "restricted airport area" means that part of the terminal building used for the processing of passengers, crew and cargo through entry or exit formalities, and those areas reserved for passengers and crews in transit.
 - (h) "the airport authority" means the Superintendent or any other officer duly authorized to act in that capacity by the Governor.
 - (i) "terminal building" means the building at which embarking or disembarking passengers and baggage or cargo are processed.
 - (j) "taxiway" means the defined paths on the airport prepared for the use of taxiing aircraft.
 - (k) "taxi-holding position" means the designated position short of which taxiing aircraft may be required to stop.

PART II.

GENERAL REGULATIONS

3. Any person at the airport shall abide by these regulations and all other instructions and directions issued by the Superintendent.
4. The airport shall be operational during the specified hours except in cases of unserviceability when the Superintendent may temporarily close down the movement area wholly or in part for use by aircraft.
5. The Superintendent may delay or forbid the departure of an aircraft from the airport for securing the safety of aircraft and of persons and property.
6. No person shall land at or take off from the airport any aircraft which is not equipped with two-way radio communications with the air traffic control unit unless he has been especially authorized so to do by the Superintendent or by the air traffic controller.
7. No person shall park, house, run up aircraft or carry out repairs to aircraft, vehicles or other equipment in any place in the airport not allocated for the purpose by the airport authority or without his consent.

8. When an aircraft is parked or housed in the airport the person for the time being in charge of the aircraft shall remove it if the Superintendent or the air traffic controller so order for reasons of safety or management.

9. No person shall store goods, barrels, packing and building materials or any other objects in the airport, in any place not allocated for the purpose by the Superintendent. Special instructions may be issued by the Superintendent in regard to storage or transport of dangerous goods.

10. (a) Without prejudice to the provision of Article 79 of The Air Navigation (Overseas Territories) Order 1977 it shall be the duty of any person witnessing any accident or fire within the airport area to report the accident or fire immediately to the airport authority.

(b) The occupier of any airport premises where a fire has occurred shall submit to the Superintendent a report in writing giving all particulars within 24 hours of the occurrence of the fire.

11. The Superintendent may remove or have removed from the airport area any stray cattle or any other animal or bird constituting a danger to aerial navigation or the safety of aircraft using the airport.

12. Any person finding a lost article shall deposit such article with the Superintendent. If the article is not claimed within thirty (30) days or in the case of perishables within twelve (12) hours, the article shall be disposed of in such manner as may be directed by the Government.

13. No person other than a person authorized so to do, shall carry any firearms, explosives or other inflammable materials in the airport without the written permission of the Superintendent and in accordance with the conditions contained in the permission.

14. Any lessee, tenant or occupier of premises in the airport shall —

- (a) provide in an accessible place first aid kits of a type approved by the Superintendent;
- (b) provide in an accessible place well maintained fire fighting appliances and equipment to a standard approved by the Superintendent of the Fire Brigade;
- (c) have available on the premises, where appropriate, sufficient trained personnel for the operation of the equipment referred to in paragraph (b) when needed.

15. (a) No person shall in the airport instal or cause to be installed for use in any building any engine or electrical apparatus of any kind, or make, or cause to be made any alteration or addition to any existing electrical installation or any building without the consent of the airport authority.

(b) No person shall instal facilities for the charging of batteries in any place in the airport unless such place has been inspected and approved by the airport authority.

16. No person in the airport shall except with the approval of the Superintendent in writing and under such terms and conditions as may be prescribed —

- (a) carry on a trade or any other operation of a commercial nature;
- (b) display advertising boards or posters or distribute pamphlets, printed matter or circulars or deliver speeches in public or carry out any other act of propaganda;
- (c) make a public collection;
- (d) make music or sing in public;
- (e) kindle open fires; or
- (f) keep any domestic or other animal.

17. No person shall at the airport —

- (a) deposit rubbish, paper or other refuse in places or receptacles other than those intended for the purpose;
- (b) feed stray birds or animals or leave scraps of food in the open;
- (c) walk or drive in any place other than the roads or paths set apart for the purpose;
- (d) play games in the open in places other than those allocated for the purpose;
- (e) clean or repair vehicles in places other than those allocated for the purpose;
- (f) remain in any place after having been ordered to leave by a duly authorized officer;
- (g) make drawings or write or scratch on walls, pavements or furniture or destroy or otherwise deface any building, sign or other equipment;

- (h) make unnecessary noise or commit any act which may disturb order and safety at the airport or cause bodily harm to persons or damage to property;
- (i) use a sanitary convenience in a disorderly manner;
- (j) trespass on lawns and planted areas in the airport;
- (k) abandon any property or other things in the airport.

18. No person shall smoke —

- (a) on the apron;
- (b) within a distance of 100 feet from stationary aircraft and fuel trucks; or
- (c) in any other place where any notice prohibiting smoking is displayed by boards or other signs.

19. (a) No person shall drive any vehicle on airport roads except in conformity with rules, directions and signs prescribed by the airport authority or the police authority.

(b) Pedestrians shall have the right of way over vehicular traffic within any areas marked off as being for the use of pedestrians.

20. No person other than the following shall enter or remain on the apron —

- (a) a person lawfully assigned to duty therein;
- (b) a passenger and a member of the crew of aircraft proceeding to or coming from an aircraft; or
- (c) a person holding a permit issued by the Superintendent giving access to the apron, provided he has duties to perform therein.

21. No person or vehicle other than the following shall enter or remain on the manoeuvring area —

- (a) safety vehicles;
- (b) airport operations and management;
- (c) police;
- (d) airport construction and maintenance units of the Public Works Department including aeronautical telecommunications;
- (e) aircraft servicing units; or
- (f) any other person authorized by the Superintendent for special duties.

22. No person shall drive a vehicle on the manoeuvring area except in accordance with the provisions specified in Schedule A.

23. No person shall move or stand or drive or park any vehicle or cause any obstruction on any part of the airport except in accordance with permission or directions given by the Superintendent or any other duly authorized police officer.

24. No person other than the following shall enter or remain in restricted areas including passenger lounges —

- (a) a person lawfully assigned to duty therein;
- (b) a passenger;
- (c) a member of the crew of aircraft;
- (d) a person holding a permit issued by the Superintendent giving access to the restricted areas, provided he has duties to perform therein.

25. Personnel responsible for the handling of passengers shall ensure that the passengers proceed on the apron only in compact groups and under escort of an airline official.

26. Airline personnel responsible for the handling of an aircraft shall remove all vehicles and other materials used in the handling of an aircraft immediately after departure of the aircraft concerned, or place them in the section of the apron designated for that purpose.

27. Personnel responsible for fuelling of an aircraft shall ensure that fuel or oil spillage on the apron is immediately covered with sawdust and removed and shall in addition report to the airport authority or the airport Fire Brigade every case of such spillage.

28. The person in charge of an aircraft shall ensure that when the aircraft is on the apron the radar equipment thereof is inoperative.

29. No person shall bring any animal into the airport without prior permission from the Superintendent, and it must be either on a lead or in an approved container.
30. The fees payable in respect of landings, housing and parking of aircraft shall be in accordance with the charges specified in Schedule B.
31. Unless otherwise agreed upon in writing with the owner or operator of an aircraft the fees due for landing and other matters are payable prior to departure of the aircraft.
32. The person in command of an aircraft shall ensure —
- (1) That an aircraft moving on the airport under its own power is at all times steered by and under the control of a competent person.
 - (2) That the towing of an aircraft on the airport is carried out only with a competent person in the cockpit for operation of the brakes.
 - (3) That towing on the apron is done with the concurrence of the appropriate air traffic control unit whose directions will be strictly observed.
33. The person in command of an aircraft shall ensure that prior to the starting of an aircraft's engine or engines suitable chocks are placed against the front of the wheels of the main landing gear and or the nose wheel.
34. The person in command of an aircraft shall ensure that prior to starting the aircraft engines, all persons unconnected with the operation, fuel trucks and other implements are removed as far as possible away from the immediate vicinity of the aircraft.
35. The person in command of an aircraft shall ensure that the aircraft is not started while spilled fuel remains under it.
36. When an aircraft is on the apron with its engine running the person in command shall ensure —
- (a) that a competent person is in the cockpit to operate the controls;
 - (b) that a competent person is placed outside the aircraft so as to be able to give directions to the person in the cockpit;
 - (c) that in the immediate vicinity there is a fire extinguisher of adequate type and capacity;
 - (d) that adequate precautions are taken to ensure that the slipstream or jet efflux will not cause damage to buildings or other objects and hazard to persons or vehicles;
 - (e) that a listening watch is maintained on the appropriate frequency.
37. No person shall run up aircraft engines except in places assigned for the purpose or without the approval of the air traffic controller.
38. No person shall start or run up engines of aircraft inside hangars.
39. Any person operating starter units and other mobile equipment shall ensure that they are so positioned near an aircraft in such a way that they can be moved away freely from the aircraft.
40. No person shall refuel any equipment provided with a combustion motor while such equipment is in operation.
41. No person shall operate on the apron equipment incorporating combustion motors unless they are provided with spark-proof exhaust pipes.
42. No person shall operate mobile equipment on the aircraft parking apron unless such equipment is provided with parking brakes or other adequate blocking devices.
43. No person shall operate vehicles used for the transportation of fuel unless such vehicles carry at least one fire extinguisher, ready for immediate action, which in the opinion of the airport authority is of adequate capacity and suitable for fighting burning liquids.
44. No person shall operate a fuel truck unless it is under constant supervision of a competent person or is parked in a parking place intended for fuel trucks.
45. No person shall fuel aircraft or transfer aircraft fuel except in the open and at a distance of at least 50 feet from hangars and other buildings. Fuelling is not permitted within a distance of 300 feet from a radar installation in operation.
46. No person shall fuel or defuel an aircraft within a distance of 50 feet from objects liable to produce sparks.

47. No person engaged in fuelling or transferring fuel shall wear hobnailed or steel bound footwear.

48. No person engaged in fuelling or defuelling operations shall perform such operations unless there is within immediate reach at least one additional fire extinguisher of adequate type and capacity, in addition to the fire extinguishing agents on the fuel truck itself.

49. No person performing fuelling operations shall use any lamp other than gaslight lamps at the site.

50. No person shall during fuelling or defuelling operations —

- (a) carry out any work on the aircraft near the filling or air release orifices of the tanks;
- (b) make or break an electrical contact inside the aircraft or between the aircraft and any object outside;
- (c) set switches including those of radio installations in any position other than the position of rest, except switches pertaining to equipment necessary for fuelling and to lighting necessary for safety purposes.

51. The person in charge of the fuelling of an aircraft shall ensure that the aircraft, fuel truck, hoses, filters and all other fuelling apparatus are adequately bonded and the following manipulations are performed consecutively —

- (a) The aircraft and the fuel truck shall be earthed;
- (b) The aircraft and the fuel truck shall be connected;
- (c) The clip of the hose nozzle shall be connected to the aircraft before the charging hole of the aircraft fuel tank is opened.

52. No person shall fuel aircraft with passengers on board unless he has obtained the consent of the airport authority, and the following additional precautions are taken —

- (a) passengers shall be told that fuelling is about to take place and that smoking and making or breaking electrical contacts is prohibited.
- (b) passengers shall be instructed to remain in their seats.
- (c) all doors of the aircraft shall be open and provided with safe stairs, exits and stairs shall be unobstructed by baggage or other material.
- (d) there shall be a member of the crew or a competent employee of the operator inside the aircraft, in order to exercise supervision of the above requirements.
- (e) fuelling shall be stopped immediately if, and as long as fuel vapour is observed inside the aircraft or when such other fact likely to be hazardous is detected.

53. The airport authority may prohibit the fuelling of an aircraft during a thunderstorm over or in the immediate vicinity of the airport, or in any other special circumstances.

54. The airport authority may grant exemption from one or more of the above restrictions when aircraft fuel having a flash point higher than 100° F is used.

PART III

PENALTIES

55. Any person who contravenes any of the provisions of these regulations or any rule prescribed or any lawful order or instruction issued by the Superintendent or person authorized by him for the purpose of enforcement of these regulations may be removed or ejected from the airport by a police officer and may in addition be liable on conviction to a fine of two hundred pounds.

SCHEDULE A.

Regulations for the Promotion of Safety and Order at Stanley Airport.

AIRPORT VEHICLE CONTROL:

1. No person shall operate a vehicle on the airport unless —

- (a) he holds a licence or permit to operate that particular type and class of vehicle;
- (b) the vehicle is equipped to the satisfaction of the traffic police.

2. The operator of a vehicle on the airport shall comply with any traffic directions given to him by a duly authorized officer.

3. Every person on the airport shall produce to a duly authorized officer on demand —
 - (a) any permit issued to him under these regulations;
 - (b) any licence or permit authorizing him to drive a vehicle.
4. The Superintendent may exempt any person or class of persons from the provisions of these regulations insofar as may be necessary for the efficient performance of duties in the service of the Crown or in execution of duly authorized work on the airport.
5. Except as authorized by the Superintendent, only those vehicular operations which may be categorized as a service function under the following will be permitted to operate on manoeuvring and movement areas —
 - (a) safety vehicles — crash, medical, fire;
 - (b) airport operations and management;
 - (c) airport police and security;
 - (d) airport construction and maintenance units of the Public Works Department including aeronautical telecommunications.
6. Every person who drives a vehicle in the performance of a service function, is responsible for being familiar with authorities, regulations and procedures. He shall use discreet judgment in application of the procedures detailed herein.
7. A vehicle operator must determine that the equipment under his charge is operating satisfactorily and must be familiar with the airport layout, visual signals and rules. He will also notify through his immediate supervisor any equipment malfunction, runway and taxiway obstruction or other potential hazardous condition which he may observe in the course of his duty.
8. Vehicles shall remain clear and give right of way to aircraft on manoeuvring and movement areas.
9. No equipment, mobile or otherwise, may be left unattended at any time on the manoeuvring area.
10. No vehicle shall be driven within an area where it will come under the influence of the jet or slipstream of manoeuvring aircraft.
11. The blinking on and off of runway lights shall be a warning signal for all vehicles to leave the runway immediately.
12. Prior to proceeding onto the manoeuvring area, the vehicle operator shall visually ensure that aircraft are not approaching or departing.
13. All vehicles and equipment operating on the manoeuvring area shall be equipped either with functioning two-way radio on the appropriate ground control frequency operated by an approved person or be under the escort of a vehicle so equipped and manned.
14. Before proceeding onto the manoeuvring area the vehicle operator shall listen out to avoid interfering with other communications on the ground control frequency before transmitting his request for clearance.
15. All instructions from ground control shall either be acknowledged as understood, or the vehicle operator shall repeat his request or enquiry.
16. Requests for clearance of vehicles to specific locations shall include the intended route to be followed.
17. The ground control clearance to a specific location by a specified route authorizes the vehicle to proceed to that location without further clearance; however should it be necessary to restrict the vehicle on its intended route the ground controller shall either clear the vehicle to a location short of the conflicting area or shall require the vehicle to obtain a further clearance before entering the conflicting area.
18. When a vehicle operator is instructed to hold clear of the runway or is awaiting clearance to cross or proceed onto a runway he shall hold his vehicle at the taxipost or at least 100 feet from the edge of the runway.
19. When a vehicle operator is instructed to clear a runway he shall immediately proceed out of it and advise ground control when clear.
20. In the event of a vehicle becoming unserviceable while on the manoeuvring area the vehicle operator shall immediately advise ground control of his location and difficulty and request advice or assistance.

21. Whenever mobile equipment is operating on a ground or fleet basis it shall remain under the control of a competent supervisor who shall be responsible for requesting and acknowledging all ground control instructions.

22. All radio communications with ground control shall be in English or a language approved by the airport authority, and standard phraseology shall be used.

23. The ICAO phonetic alphabet shall be used at all times when phonetics are required.

24. All vehicles shall be assigned an identification according to the classification of their service use. The identification shall include a specific number (one-two-three etc.) for each vehicle.

HANGAR OR HOUSING CHARGES

The housing charge shall be levied in respect of every complete period of 24 hours or part thereof when hangarage is available or provided at the airport. The housing charge will be 50% of the landing charge for each complete period of 24 hours or part thereof.

2. The airport authority may detain or impound an aircraft pending settlement of fees payable by that aircraft.
3. The payment of landing charges shall entitle an aircraft to —
 - (a) The use of the airport for landing and take-off.
 - (b) The use of the aeronautical fixed telecommunications service for signals associated with its operation.
 - (c) The use of the aeronautical mobile telecommunications service for communications associated with its operation.
 - (d) The use of radio navigational, visual navigational and other landing aids and lighting.
 - (e) En route and terminal weather services and forecasts.
4. No reduction in landing charges is permissible by reason of non-availability of any of the published airfield services or facilities.
5. When the airport is used for 3 or more consecutive landings by an aircraft owned by an air transport undertaking for the purpose of training its own personnel, or by an aircraft used by a private pilot for the purpose of extending his licence, only 50 per cent of the normal fees for landing shall be payable.
6. Any flight undertaken solely for the purpose of mercy missions and search and rescue operations shall be exempt from the levy of a landing charge.
7. Foreign military or civil aircraft owned and operated by a foreign Government carrying officials of that Government on state visits shall not be liable to the payment of landing, housing, parking or terminal charges.
8. Parking charges shall be levied, in the first instance, in respect of any period exceeding two hours, and thereafter in respect of every succeeding complete period of two hours when an aircraft is parked on the loading apron.
9. When facilities in the terminal building are used for the processing of passengers a terminal area charge is payable.
10. No housing or parking charge shall be levied in respect of a period when an aircraft is detained for the purpose of inspection by a Government aircraft inspector, or due to congestion of the parking area or due to such other cause which in the opinion of the airport authority is not attributable to the owner or operator.

A Bill for
An Ordinance
To make provision for the reciprocal enforcement of maintenance orders.

Title.

(19)

Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Maintenance Orders (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance 1978.

Short title.

2. (1) In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires —

Interpretation.

“affiliation order” means an order (however described) adjudging, finding or declaring a person to be the father of a child, whether or not it also provides for the maintenance of the child;

“certificate of arrears”, in relation to a maintenance order, means a certificate certifying that the sum specified in the certificate is to the best of the information or belief of the officer giving the certificate the amount of the arrears due under the order at the date of the certificate, or, as the case may be, that to the best of his information or belief there are no arrears due thereunder at the date;

“certified copy”, in relation to an order of a court, means a copy of the order certified by the proper officer of the court to be a true copy;

“court” includes any tribunal or person having power to make, confirm, enforce, vary or revoke a maintenance order;

“maintenance order” means an order (however described) of any of the following descriptions, that is to say —

- (a) an order (including an affiliation order) which provides for the periodical payment of sums of money towards the maintenance of any person, being a person whom the person liable to make payments under the order is, according to the law applied in the place where the order was made, liable to maintain; and
- (b) an affiliation order which provides for the payment by a person adjudged, found or declared to be a child’s father of expenses incidental to the child’s birth or, where the child has died, of his funeral expenses, and, in the case of a maintenance order which has been varied, means that order as varied;

“payee”, in relation to a maintenance order, means the person entitled to the payments for which the order provides;

“payer”, in relation to a maintenance order, means the person liable to make payments under the order;

“provisional order” means (according to the context) —

- (a) an order made by a court in the Colony which is provisional only and which has no effect unless and until confirmed, with or without alteration, by a competent court in a reciprocating country; or
- (b) an order made by a competent court in a reciprocating country which is provisional only and which has no effect unless and until confirmed, with or without alteration, by a court in the Colony having power under this Ordinance to confirm it;

“reciprocating country” means a country or territory designated in an order made by the Governor under section 3 of the Ordinance to the extent which it is so designated;

“registered order” means a maintenance order which is for the time being registered in a court in the Colony under this Ordinance;

“registering court”, in relation to a registered order, means the court in which that order is for the time being registered under this Ordinance;

“the responsible authority”, in relation to a reciprocating country, means any person who in that country has functions similar to those of the Governor under this Ordinance.

(2) For the purposes of this Ordinance an order shall be taken to be a maintenance order so far (but only so far) as it relates to the periodical payment of sums of money as mentioned in paragraph (a) of the definition of “maintenance order” in subsection (1) above or to the payment by a person adjudged, found or declared to be a child’s father of any such expenses as are mentioned in paragraph (b) of that definition.

(3) Any reference in this Ordinance to the payment of money for the maintenance of a child shall be construed as including a reference to the payment of money for the child’s education.

Orders designating reciprocating countries.

3. (1) If the Governor is satisfied that, in the event of the benefits conferred by this Ordinance being applied to, or to particular classes of, maintenance orders made by the courts of any country or territory other than the Colony, similar benefits will in that country or territory be applied to, or to those classes of, maintenance orders made by the courts of the Colony, he may by Order-in-Council, designate that country or territory as a reciprocating country for the purposes of this Ordinance.

(2) A country or territory may be designated under subsection (1) above as a reciprocating country either as regards maintenance orders generally, or as regards maintenance orders other than those of any specified class, or as regards maintenance orders of one or more specified classes only; and a country or territory which is for the time being so designated otherwise than as regards maintenance orders generally shall for the purposes of this Ordinance be taken to be a reciprocating country only as regards maintenance orders of the class to which the designation extends.

4. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, where the payer under a maintenance order made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, by a court in the Colony is residing in a reciprocating country, the payee under the order may apply for the order to be sent to that country for enforcement.

Transmission of maintenance order made in the Colony for enforcement in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 2.

(2) Subsection (1) above shall not have effect in relation to a provisional order.

(3) Every application under this section shall be made in the prescribed manner to the prescribed officer of the court which made the maintenance order to which the application relates.

(4) If, on an application duly made under this section to the prescribed officer of a court in the Colony, that officer is satisfied that the payer under the maintenance order to which the application relates is residing in a reciprocating country, the following documents, that is to say —

- (a) a certified copy of the maintenance order;
- (b) a certificate signed by that officer certifying that the order is enforceable in the Colony;
- (c) a certificate of arrears;
- (d) a statement giving such information as the officer possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer;
- (e) a statement giving such information as the officer possesses for facilitating the identification of the payer; and
- (f) where available, a photograph of the payer, shall be sent by that officer to the Governor with a view to their being transmitted by the Governor to the responsible authority in the reciprocating country if he is satisfied that the statement relating to the whereabouts of the payer gives sufficient information to justify that being done.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be taken as affecting any jurisdiction of a court in the Colony with respect to a maintenance order to which this section applies, and any such order may be enforced, varied or revoked accordingly.

5. (1) Where a complaint is made to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court against a person residing in a reciprocating country and the complaint is one of which such court would have jurisdiction by virtue of any enactment to make a maintenance order if —

Power of Magistrate's Court or Summary Court to make provisional maintenance order against person residing in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 3.

- (a) that person were residing in the Colony;
- (b) a summons to appear before the court to answer to the complaint had been served on him, such court shall have jurisdiction to hear the complaint and may, subject to subsection (2) below, make a maintenance order on the complaint.

(2) A maintenance order made by virtue of this section shall be a provisional order.

(3) If the court hearing a complaint to which subsection (1) above applies is satisfied —

- (a) that there are grounds on which a maintenance order containing a provision requiring the making of payments for the maintenance of a child may be made on that complaint; but
- (b) that it has no jurisdiction to make that order unless it also makes an order providing for the legal custody of that child, then, for the purpose of enabling such court to make the maintenance order, the complainant shall be deemed to be the person to whom the legal custody of that child has been committed by an order of such court which is for the time being in force.

(4) No enactment empowering the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court to refuse to make an order on a complaint on the ground that the matter in question is one which would be more conveniently dealt with by the Supreme Court shall apply in relation to a complaint to which subsection (1) above applies.

(5) Where a court makes a maintenance order which is by virtue of this section a provisional order, the following documents, that is to say —

- (a) a certified copy of the maintenance order;
- (b) a document, authenticated in the prescribed manner, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings;
- (c) a certificate signed by the prescribed officer of the court certifying that the grounds stated in the certificate are the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed by the payer under the order;
- (d) a statement giving such information as was available to the court as to the whereabouts of the payer;
- (e) a statement giving such information as the officer possesses for facilitating the identification of the payer; and
- (f) where available, a photograph of the payer,

shall be sent by that officer to the Governor with a view to their being transmitted by the Governor to the responsible authority in the reciprocating country in which the payer is residing if he is satisfied that the statement relating to the whereabouts of the payer gives sufficient information to justify that being done.

(6) A maintenance order made by virtue of this section which has been confirmed by a competent court in a reciprocating country shall be treated for all purposes as if the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court which made the order had made it in the form in which it was confirmed and as if the order had never been a provisional order, and, subject to section 6 of this Ordinance, any such order may be enforced, varied or revoked accordingly.

Variation and revocation
of maintenance order
made in the Colony.
1972 c. 18 s. 5.

6. (1) This section applies to a maintenance order a certified copy of which has been sent to a reciprocating country in pursuance of section 4 of this Ordinance and to a maintenance order made by virtue of section 5 thereof which has been confirmed by a competent court in such country.

(2) A court in the Colony having power to vary a maintenance order to which this section applies shall have power to vary that order by a provisional order.

(3) Where the court hearing an application for the variation of a maintenance order to which this section applies proposes to vary it by increasing the rate of the payments under the order then, unless either —

- (a) both the payer and the payee under the order appear in the proceedings; or

- (b) the applicant appears and the appropriate process has been duly served on the other party, the order varying the order shall be a provisional order.

(4) Where a court in the Colony makes a provisional order varying a maintenance order to which this section applies, the prescribed officer of the court shall send in the prescribed manner to the court in a reciprocating country having power to confirm the provisional order a certified copy of the provisional order together with a document, authenticated in the prescribed manner, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings.

(5) Where a certified copy of a provisional order made by a court in a reciprocating country, being an order varying or revoking a maintenance order to which this section applies, together with a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings in which the provisional order was made, is received by the court in the Colony which made the maintenance order, that court may confirm or refuse to confirm the provisional order and, if that order is an order varying the maintenance order, confirm it either without alteration or with such alterations as it thinks reasonable.

(6) For the purpose of determining whether a provisional order should be confirmed under subsection (5) above, the court shall proceed as if an application for the variation or revocation, as the case may be, of the maintenance orders in question, had been made to it.

(7) Where a maintenance order to which this section applies has been varied by an order (including a provisional order which has been confirmed) made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, the maintenance order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, have effect as varied by that order and, where that order is a provisional order, as if that order had been made in the form it was confirmed, and as if it had never been a provisional order.

(8) Where a maintenance order to which this section applies has been revoked by an order made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, including a provisional order made by the last-mentioned court which has been confirmed by a court in the Colony, the maintenance order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, be deemed to have ceased to have effect except as respects any arrears due under the maintenance order at that date.

(9) Where before a maintenance order made by virtue of section 5 of this Ordinance is confirmed a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising evidence taken in a reciprocating country for the purpose of proceedings relating to the confirmation of the order is received by the court in the Colony which made the order, or that court, in compliance with a request made to it by a court in such a country, takes the evidence of a person residing in the Colony for the purpose of such proceedings, the court in the Colony which made the order shall consider that evidence and if, having done so, it appears to it that the order ought not to have been made—

- (a) it shall, in such manner as may be prescribed, give the person on whose application the maintenance order was made an opportunity to consider that evidence, to make representations with respect to it and to adduce further evidence; and
- (b) after considering all evidence and any representations made by that person, it may revoke the maintenance order.

7. (1) This section applies to a maintenance order made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, by a court in a reciprocating country, including such an order made by

Registration in Colony
court of maintenance
order made in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 6.

such a court which has been confirmed by a court in another reciprocating country but excluding a provisional order which has not been confirmed.

(2) Where a certified copy of an order to which this section applies is received by the Governor from the responsible authority in a reciprocating country, and it appears to the Governor that the payer under the order is residing in the Colony, he shall send the copy of the order to the prescribed officer of the appropriate court.

(3) Where the prescribed officer of the appropriate court receives from the Governor a certified copy of an order to which this section applies, he shall, subject to subsection (4) below, register the order in the prescribed manner in that court.

(4) Before registering an order under this section an officer of a court shall take such steps as he thinks fit for the purpose of ascertaining whether the payer under the order is residing within the Colony, and if after taking those steps he is satisfied that the payer is not so residing he shall return the certified copy of the order to the Governor with a statement giving such information as he possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer.

Confirmation by Colony court of provisional maintenance order made in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 7.

8. (1) This section applies to a maintenance order made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, by a court in a reciprocating country being a provisional order.

(2) Where a certified copy of an order to which this section applies together with —

- (a) a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings in which the order was made; and
- (b) a statement of the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed by the payer under the order, is received by the Governor from the responsible authority in a reciprocating country, and it appears to the Governor that the payer under the order is residing in the Colony, he shall send the copy of the order and documents which accompanied it to the prescribed officer of the appropriate court, and that court shall —

- (i) if the payer under the order establishes any such defence as he might have raised in the proceedings in which the order was made, refuse to confirm the order; and
- (ii) in any other case, confirm the order either without alteration or with such alterations as it thinks reasonable.

(3) In any proceedings for the confirmation under this section of a provisional order, the statement received from the court which made the order of the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed by the payer under the order shall be conclusive evidence that the payer might have raised a defence on any of those grounds in the proceedings in which the order was made.

(4) For the purpose of determining whether a provisional order should be confirmed under this section the court shall proceed as if an application for a maintenance order against the payer under the provisional order had been made to it.

(5) The prescribed officer of a court having power under this section to confirm a provisional order shall, if the court confirms the order, register the order in the prescribed manner in that court, and shall, if the court refuses to confirm the order, return the certified copy of the order and the documents which accompanied it to the Governor.

(6) If a summons to appear in the proceedings for the confirmation of the provisional order cannot be duly served on the payer under that order the officer by whom the certified copy of the order was received shall return that copy and the documents which accompanied it to the Governor with a statement giving such information as he possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer.

9. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, a registered order may be enforced in the Colony as if it had been made by the registering court and as if that court had had jurisdiction to make it; and proceedings for or with respect to the enforcement of any such order may be taken accordingly.

Enforcement of maintenance order registered in the Colony court.

1972 c. 18 s. 8.

(2) Any person for the time being under an obligation to make payments in pursuance of a registered order shall give notice of any change of address to the prescribed officer of the court, and any person failing without reasonable excuse to give such notice shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £10.

(3) An order which by virtue of this section is enforceable by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court shall be enforceable as if it were an affiliation order made by such court; and the provisions of any enactment with respect to the enforcement of affiliation orders (including enactments relating to the accrual of arrears and the remission of sums due) shall apply accordingly.

(4) The Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court shall take all such steps for enforcing the order as may be prescribed.

(5) In any proceedings for or with respect to the enforcement of an order which is for the time being registered in any court a certificate of arrears sent to the prescribed officer of the court shall be evidence of the facts stated therein.

(6) Subject to subsection (7) below, sums of money payable under a registered order shall be payable in accordance with the order as from the date on which the order was made.

(7) The court having power under section 8 of this Ordinance to confirm a provisional order may, if it decides to confirm the order, direct that the sums of money payable under it shall be deemed to have been payable in accordance with the order as from such date, being a date later than the date on which the order was made, as it may specify; and subject to any such direction, a maintenance order registered under the said section 8 shall be treated as if it had been made in the form in which it was confirmed and as if it had never been a provisional order.

10. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, the registering court —

Variation and revocation of maintenance order registered in the Colony.

1972 c. 18 s. 9.

- (a) shall have the like power, on an application made by the payer or payee under a registered order, to vary or revoke the order as if it had been made by the registering court and as if that court had had jurisdiction to make it; and
- (b) shall have power to vary or revoke a registered order by a provisional order.

(2) The registering court shall not vary a registered order otherwise than by a provisional order unless —

- (a) both the payer and the payee under the registered order are for the time being residing in the Colony; or
- (b) the application is made by the payee under the registered order; or
- (c) the variation consists of a reduction in the rate of the payments under the registered order and is made solely on the ground that there has been a change in the financial circumstances of the payer since the registered order was made or, in the case of an order registered under section 8 of this Ordinance, since the registered order was confirmed, and the courts in the reciprocating country in which the maintenance order in question was made do not have power, according to the law in force in that country, to confirm provisional orders varying maintenance orders.

(3) The registering court shall not revoke a registered order otherwise than by a provisional order unless both the payer and the payee under the registered order are for the time being residing in the Colony.

(4) On an application for the revocation of a registered order the registering court shall, unless the payer and the payee under the registered order are for the time being residing in the Colony, apply the law applied by the reciprocating country in which the registered order was made; but where by virtue of this subsection the registering court is required to apply that law, that court may make a provisional order if it has reason to believe that the ground on which the application is made is a ground on which the order could be revoked according to the law applied by the reciprocating country, notwithstanding that it has not been established that it is such a ground.

(5) Where the registering court makes a provisional order varying or revoking a registered order the prescribed officer of the court shall send in the prescribed manner to the court in the reciprocating country which made the registered order a certified copy of the provisional order together with a document, authenticated in the prescribed manner, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings.

(6) Where a certified copy of a provisional order made by a court in a reciprocating country, being an order varying a registered order, together with a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings in which the provisional order was made, is received by the registering court, that court may confirm the order either without alteration or with such alteration as it thinks reasonable or refuse to confirm the order.

(7) For the purpose of determining whether a provisional order should be confirmed under subsection (6) above the court shall proceed as if an application for the variation of the registered order had been made to it.

(8) Where a registered order has been varied by an order (including a provisional order which has been confirmed) made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, the registered order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, have effect as varied by that order and, where that order was a provisional order, as if that order had been made in the form in which it was confirmed and as if it had never been a provisional order.

(9) Where a registered order has been revoked by an order made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, including a provisional order made by the court in the Colony which has been confirmed by a competent court in a reciprocating country, the registered order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, be deemed to have ceased to have effect except as respects any arrears due under the registered order at that date.

(10) The prescribed officer of the registering court shall register in the prescribed manner any order varying a registered order other than a provisional order which is not confirmed.

11. (1) Where —

- (a) a registered order is revoked by an order made by the registering court; or

- (b) a registered order is revoked by a provisional order made by that court which has been confirmed by a court in a reciprocating country and notice of the confirmation is received by the registering court; or
- (c) a registered order is revoked by an order made by a court in such a country and notice of the revocation is received by the registering court,

the prescribed officer of the registering court shall cancel the registration; but any arrears due under the registered order at the date when its registration is cancelled by virtue of this subsection shall continue to be recoverable as if the registration had not been cancelled.

(2) Where the prescribed officer of the registering court is of opinion that the payer under a registered order has ceased to reside within the jurisdiction of that court, he shall cancel the registration of the order and shall send the certified copy of the order to the Governor.

12. (1) If it appears to the Governor that the payer under a maintenance order, a certified copy of which has been received by him from a reciprocating country, is not residing in the Colony, or, in the case of an order which subsequently became a registered order, has ceased to reside therein, he shall send to the responsible authority in that country or, if having regard to all the circumstances he thinks it proper to do so, to the responsible authority in another reciprocating country —

Steps to be taken by the Governor where payer under certain orders is not residing in the Colony.

1972 c. 18 s. 11.

- (a) the certified copy of the order in question and a certified copy of any order varying that order;
- (b) if the order has at any time been a registered order, a certificate of arrears signed by the prescribed officer;
- (c) a statement giving such information as the Governor possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer; and
- (d) any other relevant documents in his possession relating to the case.

(2) Where the documents mentioned in subsection (1) above are sent to the responsible authority in a reciprocating country other than that in which the order in question was made, the Governor shall inform the responsible authority in the reciprocating country in which that order was made of what he has done.

13. (1) No appeal shall lie from a provisional order made in pursuance of any provision of this Ordinance by a court in the Colony.

Appeals.

(2) Where in pursuance of any such provision any such court confirms or refuses to confirm a provisional order made by a court in a reciprocating country, whether a maintenance order or an order varying or revoking a maintenance order, the payer or payee under the maintenance order shall have the like right of appeal (if any) from the confirmation of, or refusal to confirm, the provisional order as he would have if that order were not a provisional order and the court which confirmed or refused to confirm it had made or, as the case may be, refused to make it.

(3) Where in pursuance of any such provision any such court makes, or refuses to make, an order varying or revoking a maintenance order made by a court in a reciprocating country then subject to subsection (1) above, the payer or payee under the maintenance order shall have the like right of appeal (if any) from that order or from the refusal to make it as he would have if the maintenance order had been made by the first-mentioned court.

(4) Nothing in this section (except subsection (1) above) shall be construed as affecting any right of appeal conferred by any other enactment.

Admissibility of evidence given in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 13.

14. (1) A statement contained in —
- (a) a document, duly authenticated, which purports to set out or summarise evidence given in proceedings in a court in a reciprocating country; or
 - (b) a document, duly authenticated, which purports to set out or summarise evidence taken in such a country for the purpose of proceedings in a court in the Colony under this Ordinance, whether in response to a request made by such a court or otherwise; or
 - (c) a document, duly authenticated, which purports to have been received in evidence in proceedings in a court in such a country or to be a copy of a document so received,

shall in any proceedings in a court in the Colony relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies be admissible as evidence of any fact stated therein to the same extent as oral evidence of that fact is admissible in those proceedings.

(2) A document purporting to set out or summarise evidence given as mentioned in subsection (1) (a) above, or taken as mentioned in subsection (1) (b) above, shall be deemed to be duly authenticated for the purposes of that subsection if the document purports to be certified by the judge, magistrate or other person before whom the evidence was given, or, as the case may be, by whom it was taken, to be the original document containing or recording, or, as the case may be, summarising, that evidence or a true copy of that document.

(3) A document purporting to have been received in evidence as mentioned in subsection (1) (c) above, or to be a copy of a document so received, shall be deemed to be duly authenticated for the purposes of that subsection if the document purports to be certified by a judge, magistrate or officer of the court in question to have been, or to be a true copy of a document which has been, so received.

(4) It shall not be necessary in any such proceedings to prove the signature or official position of the person appearing to have given such a certificate.

(5) Nothing in this section shall prejudice the admission in evidence of any document which is admissible in evidence apart from this section.

Obtaining of evidence needed for purpose of certain proceedings.

1972 c. 18 s. 14.

15. (1) Where for the purpose of any proceedings in a court in a reciprocating country relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies a request is made by or on behalf of that court for the taking in the Colony of the evidence of a person residing therein relating to matters specified in the request, such court in the Colony as may be prescribed shall have power to take that evidence and, after giving notice of the time and place at which the evidence is to be taken to such persons and in such manner as it thinks fit, shall take the evidence in such manner as may be prescribed.

Evidence taken in compliance with such a request shall be sent in the prescribed manner by the prescribed officer of the court to the court in the reciprocating country by or on behalf of which the request was made.

(2) Where any person, not being the payer or the payee under the maintenance order to which the proceedings in question relate, is required by virtue of this section to give evidence before a court in the Colony, the court may order that there shall be paid such sums as appear to the court reasonably sufficient to compensate that person for the expense, trouble or loss of time properly incurred in or incidental to his attendance.

(3) Section 77 (1), (3) and (4) of the Magistrate's Court Act 1952 (which provides for compelling the attendance of witnesses, etc)

shall apply in relation to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court having power under subsection (1) above to take the evidence of any person as if the proceedings in the court in a reciprocating country for the purpose of which a request for the taking of the evidence has been made were proceedings in the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court and had been begun by complaint.

(4) A court in the Colony may for the purpose of any proceedings in that court under this Ordinance relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies request a court in a reciprocating country to take or provide evidence relating to such matters as may be specified in the request and may remit the case to that court for that purpose.

16. For the purposes of this Ordinance, unless the contrary is shown —

- (a) any order made by a court in a reciprocating country purporting to bear the seal of that court or to be signed by any person in his capacity as a judge, magistrate or officer of the court, shall be deemed without further proof to have been duly sealed or, as the case may be, to have been signed by that person;
- (b) the person by whom the order was signed shall be deemed without further proof to have been a judge, magistrate or officer, as the case may be, of that court when he signed it and, in the case of an officer, to have been authorized to sign it; and
- (c) a document purporting to be a certified copy of an order made by a court in a reciprocating country shall be deemed without further proof to be such a copy.

Order, etc., made abroad need not be proved.

1972 c. 18 s. 15.

17. (1) Payment of sums due under a registered order shall, while the order is registered in a court in the Colony, be made in such manner and to such person as may be prescribed.

Payment of sums under orders made abroad; conversion of currency.

1972 c. 18 s. 16.

(2) Where the sums required to be paid under a registered order are expressed in a currency other than the currency of the Colony, then, as from the relevant date, the order shall be treated as if it were an order requiring the payment of such sums in the currency of the Colony, as, on the basis of the rate of exchange prevailing at that date, are equivalent to the sums so required to be paid.

(3) Where the sum specified in the statement, being a statement of the amount of any arrears due under a maintenance order made by a court in a reciprocating country, is expressed in a currency other than the currency of the Colony, that sum shall be deemed to be such sum in the currency of the Colony, as, on the basis of the rate of exchange prevailing at the relevant date, is equivalent to the sum so specified.

(4) For the purpose of this section a written certificate purporting to be signed by the Financial Secretary certifying that a specified rate of exchange prevailed between currencies at a specified date and that at such rate a specified sum in the currency of the Colony is equivalent to a specified sum in another specified currency shall be evidence of the rate of exchange so prevailing on that date and of the equivalent sums in terms of the respective currencies.

(5) In this section "the relevant date" means —

- (a) in relation to a registered order or to a statement of arrears due under a maintenance order made by a court in a reciprocating country, the date on which the order first becomes a registered order or (if earlier) the date on which it is confirmed by a court in the Colony;
- (b) in relation to a registered order which has been varied, the date on which the last order varying that order is registered in a court in the Colony or (if earlier) the date on which the last order varying that order is confirmed by such a court.

Application to certain orders and proceedings under the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance. (Cap. 42)

1972 c. 18 s. 24.

18. Where the Governor makes an order under section 3 of this Ordinance designating as a reciprocating country a country or territory to which, at the commencement of this Ordinance, the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance as repealed by this Ordinance extended, that order may contain such provisions as the Governor considers expedient for the purposes of securing —

- (a) that the provisions of this Ordinance apply, subject to such modifications as may be specified in the order, to maintenance orders, or maintenance orders of a specified class —
 - (i) made by a court in the Colony against a person residing in that country or territory; or
 - (ii) made by a court in that country or territory against a person residing in the Colony, being orders to which immediately before the date of the coming into operation of the order of the said Ordinance applied, except any order which immediately before that date is registered in the Supreme Court;

- (b) that any maintenance order, or maintenance order of a specified class, made by a court in that country or territory which has been confirmed by a court in the Colony under section 6 of the said Ordinance and is in force immediately before that date is registered under section 8 of this Ordinance;
- (c) that any proceedings brought under or by virtue of a provision of the said Ordinance in a court in the Colony which are pending at the date, being proceedings affecting a person resident in that country or territory, are continued as if they had been brought under or by virtue of the corresponding provision of this Ordinance.

Maintenance orders registered in Supreme Court under the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance.

19. (1) Where a country or territory, being a country or territory to which at the commencement of this Ordinance the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance extended, becomes a reciprocating country, then, if immediately before the said Ordinance was repealed any maintenance order made by a court in that country or territory was registered in the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court may, on application by the payer or the payee under the order or of its own motion, transfer the order to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court for all the circumstances it thinks appropriate, with a view to the order being registered in the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this Ordinance.

(2) Where the Supreme Court transfers an order to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this section it shall —

- (a) cause a certified copy of the order to be sent to the prescribed officer of that court; and
- (b) cancel the registration of the order in the Supreme Court.

(3) The prescribed officer of the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court on receiving a certified copy of an order sent to him under this section shall register the order in the prescribed manner in that court.

Proceedings in Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court.

1972 c. 18 s. 17.

20. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, the proceedings which are domestic proceedings within the meaning of the Magistrate's Court Act 1952 shall include all proceedings in a Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this Ordinance other than proceedings for the variation or enforcement of a maintenance order.

(2) The Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court on hearing any proceedings for the variation of a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies may, if it thinks fit, order that those proceedings and any other proceedings being heard therewith shall be treated for the purposes of the said Act of 1952 as domestic proceedings.

(3) The said Act of 1952 shall have effect in accordance with subsections (1) and (2) above notwithstanding anything in subsection (1) of section 56 thereof.

(4) Any application which by virtue of a provision of this Ordinance is made to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court shall be made by complaint.

(5) Where the defendant to a complaint for the variation or revocation —

(a) of a maintenance order made by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court being an order to which section 6 of this Ordinance applies; or

(b) of a registered order,

does not appear at the time and place appointed for the hearing of the complaint, but the court is satisfied that the defendant is residing in a reciprocating country, the court may proceed to hear and determine the complaint at the time and place appointed for the hearing or for any adjourned hearing in like manner as if the defendant had appeared at that time and place.

21. The Governor in Council may make rules generally for the carrying out of the purposes or provisions of this Ordinance or any matters incidental or consequential thereto as may appear to him to be necessary and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing rules may be made for any of the following purposes —

Rules.

1972 c. 18 s. 18.

(a) the orders made, or other things done, by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court, or an officer of such court, under this Ordinance, or by a court in a reciprocating country, notice of which is to be given to such persons as the rules may provide and the manner in which such notice shall be given;

(b) the cases and manner in which courts in reciprocating countries are to be informed of orders made, or other things done; by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this Ordinance;

(c) the cases and manner in which a prescribed officer may take evidence needed for the purpose of proceedings in a court in a reciprocating country relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies;

(d) the circumstances and manner in which cases may be remitted by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court to courts in reciprocating countries;

(e) the circumstances and manner in which the Magistrates Court or a Summary Court may for the purpose of this Ordinance communicate with courts in reciprocating countries.

22. The Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance is repealed.

Repeal.

(Cap. 42)

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill makes fresh provisions for the reciprocal enforcement of maintenance orders between the Colony and any country or territory in lieu of the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance (Chapter 42), which is restricted to Commonwealth countries and which will be repealed.

FALKLAND ISLANDS

OIL EXPLORATION LICENCE

THIS DEED made the tenth day of March 1978 between D. H. A. HANNAY on behalf of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies (hereinafter referred to as the "Governor" which expression includes the officer for the time being administering the Government of the said Colony) of the one part and TEXAS INSTRUMENTS (UK) LTD (hereinafter referred to as "the Licensee") of the other part.

WHEREAS the Licensee in accordance with the conditions laid down in the Regulations for the time being in force for the granting of oil exploration licences has applied to the Governor for a non-exclusive Licence to conduct exploration by means of a scientific seismic study in respect of the lands specified in the Schedule marked "A" hereunder written (hereinafter referred to as "the licensed area").

WHEREAS the survey will be offshore with no probability of damages to other parties:

NOW THIS DEED WITNESSETH AS FOLLOWS —

1. In consideration of the sum of £100 which has before the execution hereof been paid by the Licensee to the Colonial Treasurer on behalf of the Governor the right and licence is hereby granted by the Governor to the Licensee for a term i.e., November 1977 to June 1978 subject to the rights of private owners of the surface and subject to the restrictions, conditions and provisions hereinafter contained to explore and search the surface of the lands described in the Schedule marked "A" hereunder written for petroleum and for that purpose the right and licence to make geological geophysical and topographic examinations. Reserving nevertheless to the Governor full power and liberty at all times to enter into and upon and to grant or demise to any persons whomsoever liberty to enter into and upon such Crown lands as may be included in the said lands for all and every purpose other than that for which this licence is granted but subject to the rights of the Licensee under this licence.
2. Subject to the rights of private owners of the surface the Licensee may erect and bring upon the licensed area such temporary buildings and structures engines machinery equipment chattels and effects as shall be proper and necessary for effectually carrying on the operations hereby licensed and subject as aforesaid the Licensee shall be entitled at any time to dismantle and remove the same.
3. The Licensee shall before commencing any operations in the said lands furnish to the Secretary of State and Chief Secretary the name and address of the Manager resident in the United Kingdom under whose supervision such operations are to be carried on. Any notice which the Governor or any person authorised by him is in accordance with the terms of this licence required or entitled to serve upon the Licensee shall be sufficiently served if the same shall be delivered or sent by post to such Manager at such address.
4. The Licensee shall with all reasonable despatch commence to examine geologically and by geophysical methods the licensed area and shall during the subsistence of this licence continue with due diligence to carry out such geological and geophysical work as may be necessary to determine the structure of the licensed area.
5. Within 60 days of Licensee completing the processing of the record cross section, the Licensee shall furnish in triplicate to the Secretary of State and Chief Secretary a copy of the resulting seismic cross section. The Secretary of State and Chief Secretary will hold the data for the exclusive use of the Government of the United Kingdom and the Government of the Falkland Islands for 5 years after receipt and, during the 5 year period, will not disclose the data to any oil company or to any commercial or other organisation which might in the normal course of business be a potential customer for the survey results.
6. (1) Save as provided for in paragraph (2) of this Clause, the Licensee shall not grant or assign any right or interest under this licence, or part with the possession of any rights hereby granted to any person or persons whomsoever without the previous consent in writing of the Governor, which shall not be unreasonably withheld.
(2) The Licensee may, to the extent strictly necessary, grant, assign or part with the possession of such rights or interests to its subsidiary companies for the sole purpose of enabling the licensee through such subsidiaries to arrange the sale to third parties of the results of the seismic study conducted pursuant to this licence.
7. If the licensee being a company shall be or become controlled directly or indirectly by an alien or a company incorporated outside Her Majesty's dominions or if the Licensee shall with the consent in writing of the Governor pursuant to Clause 6 (1) of this licence assign the rights granted by this licence in respect of the licensed area or any part thereof to a company controlled directly or indirectly by an alien or by a company incorporated outside Her Majesty's dominions then and in any such case —
 - (a) One of the Directors and the Chief Local Representative shall be British subjects;
 - (b) at all times during the term hereby granted or any renewal thereof a reasonable number of the persons employed by the Licensee in or about the licensed area in connection with the exercise of the rights granted by this licence shall be British subjects.

8. This licence shall be determined if the Licensee shall be or become controlled directly or indirectly by a national of or by a company incorporated in any country the laws and customs of which do not permit British subjects or companies incorporated in Her Majesty's dominions or companies incorporated in that country controlled directly or indirectly by British subjects or companies incorporated in Her Majesty's dominions to acquire hold and operate petroleum concessions on conditions which in the opinion of the Secretary of State are reasonably comparable with the conditions upon which such rights are granted to nationals of that country with the addition of conditions corresponding to those imposed by this clause and the immediately preceding clause hereof.

9. In the event of the inclusion by inadvertence in the said Schedule marked "A" of lands or areas over which it may subsequently be proved that the Government are not entitled to the oil rights or of lands or areas in respect of which the oil rights have already been granted to other individuals or companies, the Licensee shall immediately release to the Governor any such lands or areas when required to do so by the Secretary of State.

10. If the Licensee shall at any time refuse or neglect to observe or perform any of the terms and conditions of this licence the Governor may by notice in writing signed by him and served upon the Licensee summarily declare that the licence hereby granted shall henceforth determine and the licence and all rights and liberties conferred hereby or enjoyed hereby or hereunder shall forthwith determine without prejudice to the rights and remedies of the Governor in respect of any prior breach or non-performance of any or all of the terms and conditions hereof on the part of the Licensee:

Provided always that the aforesaid power shall not be exercisable unless and until notice has been given to the Licensee specifying the particular breach complained of and if the breach is capable of remedy, requiring the Licensee to remedy the breach, and, in any case, requiring the Licensee to make compensation in money for the breach, and the Licensee fails within a reasonable time thereafter to remedy the breach if it is capable of remedy and to make reasonable compensation in money to the satisfaction of the Governor for the breach.

11. The Governor may if he is satisfied that the Licensee has performed the conditions imposed on him by this licence at his discretion on an application made in that behalf by the Licensee on three months' notice in writing grant a renewal of this licence in respect of the whole of the licensed area or any part thereof for a further term of twelve months and thereafter for two further terms of twelve months respectively.

12. Without prejudice to any obligation or liability imposed by or incurred under the terms and conditions hereof the Licensee may at any time during the term hereby granted or any renewal thereof determine this licence by giving to the Governor not less than six months' previous notice in writing to that effect.

13. Without prejudice to any obligation or liability imposed by or incurred under the terms and conditions hereof the Licensee shall be entitled at any time during the term hereby granted or any renewal thereof by giving three months' notice in writing to the Governor to surrender the rights granted by this licence in respect of any part or parts of the licensed area:

Provided that the part of the licensed area in respect of which the said rights are retained shall comply with the Regulations for the time being in force as to the shape and size of areas in respect of which an Oil Exploration Licence may be granted.

14. (1) Failure on the part of the Licensee to fulfil any of the terms and conditions of this licence shall not give the Governor any claim against the Licensee or be deemed a breach of this licence in so far as such failure arises from force majeure and if through force majeure the fulfilment by the Licensee of any of the terms and conditions of this licence be delayed the period of such delay shall be added to the periods fixed by this licence.

(2) In this Clause the expression "force majeure" includes the act of God, war, insurrection, riot, civil commotion, tide, storm, tidal wave, flood, lightning, explosion, fire, earthquake and any other happening which the Licensee could not reasonably prevent or control.

15. If at any time during the continuance of this licence or after the determination thereof any question or dispute shall arise regarding this licence or any matter or thing connected herewith or the powers duties or liabilities of the Licensee hereunder then and in all such cases the matter in difference shall be referred to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of the Arbitration Act 1950 or any Ordinance or law amending or replacing the same for the time being in force:

Provided that any reference to arbitration arising out of an agreement between the parties, shall be to two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the agreement.

16. For the purposes of this licence —

- (1) "LICENSEE" means a person to whom an oil exploration licence is granted his successors in title and other persons deriving title under him.
- (2) "PETROLEUM" includes any mineral oil or relative hydrocarbon and natural gas existing in its natural conditions in strata but does not include coal or bituminous shales or other stratified deposits from which oil can be extracted by destructive distillation.
- (3) "HER MAJESTY'S DOMINIONS" shall be construed as including a reference to all territories under Her Majesty's protection or in which Her Majesty has for the time being jurisdiction.
- (4) "BRITISH SUBJECT" shall be deemed to include a person under Her Majesty's protection.
- (5) "COLONY" means the Colony of the Falkland Islands.
- (6) "SECRETARY OF STATE" means Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs.

In witness whereof D. H. A. HANNAY and J. W. W. PEYTON on behalf of the Governor and the Licensee have hereunto set their hands and seals the day and year first herein above written.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN pursuant to section 6B of the Companies and Private Partnership Ordinance that the following Companies shall be treated as unregistered —

COMMERCIAL BANK AND TRUST COMPANY LIMITED
CENTRAL BANK LIMITED
FEDERAL BANK LIMITED
MARITIME BANK LIMITED
THE PIONEER BANK LIMITED.

Dated this 30th day of October 1978.

H. BENNETT,
Registrar of Companies.

Appointment of Governor's Deputy and specification of powers and functions vested in the Governor which he may exercise and perform.

WHEREAS paragraph (1) of Article 8 of the Falkland Islands Letters Patent, 1948 to 1962, provides that whenever the Governor has occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which he has reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which he has reason to believe will be of short duration he considers it desirable so to do, he may, by Instrument under the Public Seal, appoint any person in the Colony to be his Deputy during such absence or illness, and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor during such absence or illness all such powers and functions vested in the Governor as shall be specified in such Instrument:

AND WHEREAS Article 3 of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Letters Patent, 1908, provides that the Officer for the time being Administering the Government of the Colony of the Falkland Islands shall be Governor for the time being of the Falkland Islands Dependencies:

AND WHEREAS I shall have occasion to leave Stanley on the 5th day of January 1979.

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers aforesaid I, JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, do hereby appoint JOHN DUDLEY MASSINGHAM, ESQUIRE, to be Governor's Deputy in and for the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor (except while and in so far as provision to the contrary made by the Governor under Article 8 of the said Letters Patent is operative) and subject always to the provisions of the said Letters Patent, all such powers and functions as are vested in the Governor other than those vested by sections 6, 18 and 21A, sub-section (1) of section 24 and sub-section (1) of section 26 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders, 1948 to 1977, by paragraph (1) of Article 10 and Articles 13, 15 and 16 of the said Letters Patent and by paragraph (b) of clause 3, sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (1) of clause 5 and clause 22 of the Royal Instructions to the Governor dated the 13th day of December 1948.

This Instrument shall come into operation on the 5th day of January 1979 and shall remain in force until my return to Stanley.

LS

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 4th day of January in the year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-nine.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

PART II

DIVORCE, NULLITY AND OTHER MATRIMONIAL SUITS

JURISDICTION OF COURT

Jurisdiction of court.
 1973 c. 45 s. 5

3. (1) The court shall have jurisdiction in —

- (a) proceedings for divorce, judicial separation or nullity of marriage; and
- (b) proceedings for death to be presumed and a marriage to be dissolved in pursuance of section 22 below.

(2) The court shall have jurisdiction to entertain proceedings for divorce or judicial separation if (and only if) either of the parties to the marriage —

- (a) is domiciled in the Colony on the date when the proceedings are begun; or
- (b) was habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with that date.

(3) The court shall have jurisdiction to entertain proceedings for nullity of marriage if (and only if) either of the parties to the marriage —

- (a) is domiciled in the Colony on the date when the proceedings are begun; or
- (b) was habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with that date; or
- (c) died before that date and either —
 - (i) was at death domiciled in the Colony; or
 - (ii) had been habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with the date of death.

(4) The court shall have jurisdiction to entertain proceedings for death to be presumed and a marriage to be dissolved if (and only if) the petitioner —

- (a) is domiciled in the Colony on the date when the proceedings are begun; or
- (b) was habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with that date.

DIVORCE

Divorce on breakdown of marriage.

1973 c. 18 s. 1

4. (1) Subject to section 6 below, a petition for divorce may be presented to the court by either party to a marriage on the ground that the marriage has broken down irretrievably.

(2) The court hearing a petition for divorce shall not hold the marriage to have broken down irretrievably unless the petitioner satisfies the court of one or more of the following facts, that is to say —

- (a) that the respondent has committed adultery and the petitioner finds it intolerable to live with the respondent;
- (b) that the respondent has behaved in such a way that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent;
- (c) that the respondent has deserted the petitioner for a continuous period of at least two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition;
- (d) that the parties to the marriage have lived apart for a continuous period of at least two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition (hereafter in this Ordinance referred to as "two years' separation") and the respondent consents to a decree being granted;
- (e) that the parties to the marriage have lived apart for a continuous period of at least five years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition (hereafter in this Ordinance referred to as "five years' separation").

(3) On a petition for divorce it shall be the duty of the court to inquire, so far as it reasonably can, into the facts alleged by the petitioner and into any facts alleged by the respondent.

(4) If the court is satisfied on the evidence of any such fact as is mentioned in subsection (2) above, then, unless it is satisfied on all the evidence that the marriage has not broken down irretrievably, it shall, subject to sections 6 (3) and 8 below, grant a decree of divorce.

(5) Every decree of divorce shall in the first instance be a decree nisi and shall not be made absolute before the expiration of six months from its grant unless the court by general orders from time to time fixes a shorter period, or unless in any particular case the court from time to time by special order fixes a shorter period than the period otherwise applicable for the time being by virtue of this subsection.

5. (1) One party to a marriage shall not be entitled to rely for the purposes of section 4 (2) (a) above on adultery committed by the other if, after it became known to him that the other had committed that adultery, the parties have lived with each other for a period exceeding, or periods together exceeding six months.

Supplemental provisions
as to facts raising presumption of breakdown.

(2) Where the parties to a marriage have lived with each other after it became known to one party that the other had committed adultery, but subsection (1) above does not apply, in any proceedings for divorce in which the petitioner relies on that adultery the fact that the parties have lived with each other after that time shall be disregarded in determining for the purposes of section 4 (2) (a) above whether the petitioner finds it intolerable to live with the respondent.

(3) Where in any proceedings for divorce the petitioner alleges that the respondent has behaved in such a way that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with him, but the parties to the marriage have lived with each other for a period or periods after the date of the occurrence of the final incident relied on by the petitioner and held by the court to support his allegation, that fact shall be disregarded in determining for the purposes of section 4 (2) (b) above whether the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent if the length of that period or of those periods together was six months or less.

(4) For the purposes of section 4 (2) (c) above the court may treat a period of desertion as having continued at a time when the deserting party was incapable of continuing the necessary intention if the evidence before the court is such that, had that party not been so incapable, the court would have inferred that his desertion continued at that time.

(5) In considering for the purposes of section 4 (2) above whether the period for which the respondent has deserted the petitioner or the period for which the parties to a marriage have lived apart has been continuous, no account shall be taken of any one period (not exceeding six months) or of any two or more periods (not exceeding six months in all) during which the parties resumed living with each other, but no period during which the parties lived with each other shall count as part of the period of desertion or of the period for which the parties to the marriage lived apart, as the case may be.

(6) For the purposes of section 4 (2) (d) and (e) above and this section a husband and wife shall be treated as living apart unless they are living with each other in the same household, and references in this section to the parties to a marriage living with each other shall be construed as references to their living with each other in the same household.

(7) Provision shall be made by rules of court for the purpose of ensuring that where in pursuance of section 4 (2) (d) above the petitioner alleges that the respondent consents to a decree being granted the respondent has been given such information as will enable him to understand the consequences to him of his consenting to a decree being granted and the steps which he must take to indicate that he consents to the grant of a decree.

Restriction on petitions
for divorce within three years of marriage.
1973 c. 18 s. 3

6. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, no petition for divorce shall be presented to the court before the expiration of the period of three years from the date of marriage (hereafter in this section referred to as "the specified period").

(2) The judge may, on an application made to him allow the presentation of a petition for divorce within the specified period on the ground that the case is one of exceptional hardship suffered by the petitioner or of exceptional depravity on the part of the respondent; but in determining the application the judge shall have regard to the interests of any child of the family and to the question whether there is reasonable probability of a reconciliation between the parties during the specified period.

(3) If it appears to the court, at the hearing of a petition for divorce presented in pursuance of leave granted under subsection (2) above, that the leave was obtained by the petitioner by any misrepresentation or concealment of the nature of the case, the court may —

- (a) dismiss the petition, without prejudice to any petition which may be brought after the expiration of the specified period upon the same facts, or substantially the same facts, as those proved in support of the dismissed petition; or
- (b) if it grants a decree, direct that no application to make the decree absolute shall be made during the specified period.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit the presentation of a petition based upon matters which occurred before the expiration of the specified period.

Divorce not precluded
by previous judicial separation.
1973 c. 18 s. 4

7. (1) A person shall not be prevented from presenting a petition for divorce, or the court from granting a decree of divorce, by reason only that the petitioner or respondent has at any time, on the same facts or substantially the same facts as those proved in support of the petition, been granted a decree of judicial separation or an order under, or having effect as if made under, the Matrimonial Proceedings (Court of Summary Jurisdiction) Ordinance 1967.

(2) On a petition for divorce in such a case as is mentioned in subsection (1) above, the court may treat the decree or order as sufficient proof of any adultery, desertion or other fact by reference to which it was granted, but shall not grant a decree of divorce without receiving evidence from the petitioner.

(3) Where a petition for divorce in such a case follows a decree of judicial separation or an order containing a provision exempting one party to the marriage from the obligation to cohabit with the other, for the purposes of that petition a period of desertion immediately preceding the institution of the proceedings for the decree or order shall, if the parties have not resumed cohabitation and the decree or order has been continuously in force since it was granted, be deemed immediately to precede the presentation of the petition.

8. (1) The respondent to a petition for divorce in which the petitioner alleges five years' separation may oppose the grant of a decree on the ground that the dissolution of the marriage will result in grave financial or other hardship to him and that it would in all the circumstances be wrong to dissolve the marriage.

Refusal of decree in five year separation cases on grounds of grave hardship to respondent.

1973 c. 18 s. 5

(2) Where the grant of a decree is opposed by virtue of this section, then —

- (a) if the court finds that the petitioner is entitled to rely in support of his petition on the fact of five years' separation and makes no such finding as to any other fact mentioned in section 4 (2) above, and
- (b) if apart from this section the court would grant a decree on the petition, the court shall consider all the circumstances, including the conduct of the parties to the marriage and the interests of those parties and of any children or other persons concerned, and if of opinion that the dissolution of the marriage will result in grave financial or other hardship to the respondent and that it would in all the circumstances be wrong to dissolve the marriage it shall dismiss the petition.

(3) For the purposes of this section hardship shall include the loss of the chance of acquiring any benefit which the respondent might acquire if the marriage was not dissolved.

9. If at any stage of proceedings for divorce it appears to the court that there is a reasonable possibility of a reconciliation between the parties to the marriage, the court may adjourn the proceedings for such period as it thinks fit to enable attempts to be made to effect such a reconciliation.

Provision to encourage reconciliation.

The power conferred by the foregoing provision is additional to any other power of the court to adjourn proceedings.

10. Provision may be made by rules of court for enabling the parties to a marriage, or either of them, on application made either before or after the presentation of a petition for divorce, to refer to the court any agreement or arrangement made or proposed to be made between them, being an agreement or arrangement which relates to, arises out of, or is connected with, the proceedings for divorce which are contemplated, or, as the case may be, have begun, and for enabling the court to express an opinion, should it think it desirable to do so, as to the reasonableness of the agreement or arrangement and to give such directions, if any, in the matter as it thinks fit.

Consideration by the court of certain agreements or arrangements.

1973 c. 18 s. 7

11. (1) In the case of a petition for divorce —

- (a) the court may, if it thinks fit, direct all necessary papers in the matter to be sent to the Proctor, who shall argue before the court any question in relation to the matter which the court considers it necessary or expedient to have fully argued;

Intervention of Proctor.

- (b) any person may at any time during the progress of the proceedings or before the decree nisi is made absolute give information to the Proctor on any matter material to the due decision of the case, and the Proctor may thereupon take such steps as he considers necessary or expedient.

(2) Where the Proctor intervenes or shows cause against a decree nisi in any proceedings for divorce, the court may make such order as may be just as to the payment by other parties to the proceedings of the costs incurred by him in so doing or as to the payment by him of any costs incurred by any of those parties by reason of his so doing.

Proceedings after decree nisi: general powers of court.

1973 c. 18 s. 9

12. (1) Where a decree of divorce has been granted but not made absolute, then, without prejudice to section 11 above, any person (excluding a party to the proceedings other than the Proctor) may show cause why the decree should not be made absolute by reason of material facts not having been brought before the court; and in such a case the court may —

- (a) notwithstanding anything in section 4 (5) above (but subject to sections 13 (2) to (4) and 44 below) make the decree absolute; or
- (b) rescind the decree; or
- (c) require further inquiry; or
- (d) otherwise deal with the case as it thinks fit.

(2) Where a decree of divorce has been granted and no application for it to be made absolute has been made by the party to whom it was granted, then, at any time after the expiration of three months from the earliest date on which that party could have made such an application, the party against whom it was granted may make an application to the court, and on that application the court may exercise any of the powers mentioned in paragraphs (a) to (d) of subsection (1) above.

Proceedings after decree nisi: special protection for respondent in separation cases.

13. (1) Where in any case the court has granted a decree of divorce on the basis of a finding that the petitioner was entitled to rely in support of his petition on the fact of two years' separation coupled with the respondent's consent to a decree being granted and has made no such finding as to any other fact mentioned in section 4 (2) above, the court may, on an application made by the respondent at any time before the decree is made absolute, rescind the decree if it is satisfied that the petitioner misled the respondent (whether intentionally or unintentionally) about any matter which the respondent took into account in deciding to give his consent.

(2) The following provisions of this section apply where —

- (a) the respondent to a petition for divorce in which the petitioner alleged two years' separation or five years' separation coupled, in the former case, with the respondent's consent to a decree being granted, has applied to the court for consideration under subsection (3) below of his financial position after the divorce; and
- (b) the court has granted a decree on the petition on the basis of a finding that the petitioner was entitled to rely in support of his petition on the fact of two years' or five years' separation (as the case may be) and has made no such findings as to any other fact mentioned in section 4 (2) above.

(3) The court hearing an application by the respondent under subsection (2) above shall consider all the circumstances, including the age, health, conduct, earning capacity, financial resources and financial obligations of each of the parties, and the financial position of the respondent having regard to the divorce, it is likely to be after the death of the petitioner should the petitioner die first; and, subject to subsection (4) below, the court shall not make the decree absolute unless it is satisfied —

- (a) that the petitioner should not be required to make any financial provision for the respondent, or
- (b) that the financial provision made by the petitioner for the respondent is reasonable and fair or the best that can be made in the circumstances.

(4) The court may if it thinks fit make the decree absolute notwithstanding the requirements of subsection (3) above if—

- (a) it appears that there are circumstances making it desirable that the decree should be made absolute without delay, and
- (b) the court has obtained a satisfactory undertaking from the petitioner that he will make such financial provision for the respondent as the court may approve.

NULLITY

14. A marriage celebrated after the commencement of this Ordinance shall be void on the following grounds only, that is to say —

- (a) that it is not a valid marriage under the provisions of the Marriage Ordinance (that is to say where —
 - (i) the parties are within the prohibited degrees of relationship;
 - (ii) either party is under the age of sixteen; or
 - (iii) the parties have intermarried in disregard of certain requirements as to the formation of marriage);
- (b) that at the time of the marriage either party was already lawfully married;
- (c) that the parties are not respectively male and female.

Grounds on which a marriage is void.
1973 c. 18 s. 11

Cap. 43

15. A marriage celebrated after the commencement of this Ordinance shall be voidable on the following grounds only that is to say —

- (a) that the marriage has not been consummated owing to the incapacity of either party to consummate it;
- (b) that the marriage has not been consummated owing to the wilful refusal of the respondent to consummate it;
- (c) that either party to the marriage did not validly consent to it, whether in consequence of duress, mistake, unsoundness of mind or otherwise;
- (d) that at the time of the marriage either party, though capable of giving a valid consent, was suffering (whether continuously or intermittently) from mental derangement within the meaning of the Mental Health Ordinance of such a kind or to such an extent as to be unfitted for marriage;
- (e) that at the time of the marriage the respondent was suffering from venereal disease in a communicable form;
- (f) that at the time of the marriage the respondent was pregnant by some person other than the petitioner.

Grounds on which a marriage is voidable.
1973 c. 18 s. 12

Cap. 46

16. (1) The court shall not, in proceedings instituted after the commencement of this Ordinance, grant a decree of nullity on the ground that a marriage is voidable if the respondent satisfies the court —

- (a) that the petitioner, with knowledge that it was open to him to have the marriage avoided, so conducted himself in relation to the respondent as to lead the respondent reasonably to believe that he would not seek to do so; and
- (b) that it would be unjust to the respondent to grant the decree;

Bars to relief where marriage is voidable.
1973 c. 18 s. 13

(2) Without prejudice to subsection (1) above, the court shall not grant a decree of nullity by virtue of section 15 above on the grounds mentioned in paragraph (c), (d), (e) or (f) of that section unless it is satisfied that proceedings were instituted within three years from the date of the marriage.

(3) Without prejudice to subsections (1) and (2) above, the court shall not grant a decree of nullity by virtue of section 15 above on the grounds mentioned in paragraph (e) or (f) of that section unless it is satisfied that the petitioner was at the time of the marriage ignorant of the facts alleged.

Foreign marriages.
1973 c. 18 s. 14

17. (1) Where, apart from this Ordinance, any matter affecting the validity of a marriage would fall to be determined (in accordance with the rules of private international law) by reference to the law of a country outside the Colony, nothing in section 14, 15 or 16 (1) above shall —

- (a) preclude the determination of that matter as aforesaid; or
- (b) require the application to the marriage of the grounds or bar there mentioned except so far as applicable in accordance with those rules —

(2) In the case of a marriage which purports to have been celebrated under the Foreign Marriage Acts 1892 to 1947 or has taken place outside the Colony and purports to be a marriage under common law, section 14 above is without prejudice to any ground on which the marriage may be void under those Acts or, as the case may be, by virtue of the rules governing the celebration of marriages outside the Colony under common law.

Application of ss. 4 (5), 11
and 12 to nullity proceedings.
1973 c. 18 s. 15

18. Sections 4 (5), 11 and 12 above shall apply in relation to proceedings for nullity of marriage as if for any reference in those provisions to divorce there were substituted a reference to nullity of marriage.

Effect of decree of nullity
in case of voidable marriage.
1973 c. 18 s. 16

19. A decree of nullity granted after the commencement of this Ordinance in respect of a voidable marriage shall operate to annul the marriage only as respects any time after the decree has been made absolute, and the marriage shall, notwithstanding the decree, be treated as if it had existed up to that time.

OTHER MATRIMONIAL SUITS

Judicial separation.

20. (1) A petition for judicial separation may be presented to the court by either party to a marriage on the ground that any such fact as is mentioned in section 4 (2) above exists, and the provisions of section 5 above shall apply accordingly for the purposes of a petition for judicial separation alleging any such fact, as they apply in relation to a petition for divorce alleging that fact.

(2) On a petition for judicial separation it shall be the duty of the court to inquire, so far as it reasonably can, into the facts alleged by the petitioner and into any facts alleged by the respondent, but the court shall not be concerned to consider whether the marriage has broken down irretrievably, and if it is satisfied on the evidence of any such fact as is mentioned in section 4 (2) above it shall, subject to section 44 below, grant a decree of judicial separation.

(3) Sections 9 and 10 above shall apply for the purpose of encouraging the reconciliation of parties to proceedings for judicial separation and of enabling the parties to a marriage to refer to the court for its opinion an agreement or arrangement relevant to actual or contemplated proceedings for judicial separation, as they apply in relation to proceedings for divorce.

Effects of judicial separation.

21. (1) Where the court grants a decree of judicial separation it shall no longer be obligatory for the petitioner to cohabit with the respondent.

(2) If while a decree of judicial separation is in force and the separation is continuing either of the parties to the marriage dies intestate as respects all or any of his or her real or personal property, the property as respects which he or she died intestate shall devolve as if the other party to the marriage had then been dead.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in section 4 (1) (a) of the Matrimonial Proceedings (Court of Summary Jurisdiction) Ordinance 1967, a provision in force under an order made, or having effect as if made, under that section exempting one party to a marriage from the obligation to cohabit with the other shall not have effect as a decree of judicial separation for the purposes of subsection (2) above.

10 of 1967.

22. (1) Any married person who alleges that reasonable grounds exist for supposing that the other party to the marriage is dead may present a petition to the court to have it presumed that the other party is dead and to have the marriage dissolved, and the court may, if satisfied that such reasonable grounds exist, grant a decree of presumption of death and dissolution of the marriage.

Presumption of death and dissolution of marriage.
1973 c. 18 s. 19

(2) In any proceedings under this section the fact that for a period of seven years or more the other party to the marriage has been continually absent from the petitioner and the petitioner has no reason to believe that the other party has been living within that time shall be evidence that the other party is dead until the contrary is proved.

(3) Sections 4 (5), 11 and 12 above shall apply to a petition and a decree under this section as they apply to a petition for divorce and a decree of divorce respectively.

(4) It is hereby declared that neither collusion nor any other conduct on the part of the petitioner which has at any time been a bar to relief in matrimonial proceedings constitutes a bar to the grant of a decree under this section.

GENERAL

23. If in any proceedings for divorce the respondent alleges and proves any such fact as is mentioned in subsection (2) of section 4 above (treating the respondent as the petitioner and the petitioner as the respondent for the purpose of that subsection) the court may give to the respondent the relief to which he would have been entitled if he had presented a petition seeking that relief.

Relief for respondent in divorce proceedings.
1973 c. 18 s. 20

PART III

FINANCIAL RELIEF FOR PARTIES TO MARRIAGE AND CHILDREN OF FAMILY

FINANCIAL PROVISION AND PROPERTY ADJUSTMENT ORDERS

24. (1) The financial provision orders for the purposes of this Ordinance are the orders for periodical or lump sum provision available (subject to the provisions of this Ordinance) under section 26 below for the purpose of adjusting the financial position of the parties to a marriage and any children of the family in connection with proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation and under section 30 (6) below on proof of neglect by one party to a marriage to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance for the other or a child of the family, that is to say —

Financial provision and property adjustment orders.
1973 c. 18 s. 21

- (a) any order for periodical payments in favour of a party to a marriage under section 26 (1) (a) or 30 (6) (a) or in favour of a child of the family under section 26 (1) (d), (2) or (4) or 30 (6) (d);
- (b) any order for secured periodical payments in favour of a party to a marriage under section 26 (1) (b) or 30 (6) (b) or in favour of a child of the family under section 26 (1) (e), (2) or (4) or 30 (6) (e); and

- (c) any order for lump sum provision in favour of a party to a marriage under section 26 (1) (c) or 30 (6) (c) or in favour of a child of the family under section 26 (1) (f), (2) or (4) or 30 (6) (f), and references in this Ordinance to periodical payments orders, secured periodical payments orders, and orders for the payment of a lump sum are references to all or some of the financial provisions orders requiring the sort of financial provision in question according as the context of each reference may require.

(2) The property adjustment orders for the purposes of this Ordinance are the orders dealing with the property rights available (subject to the provisions of this Ordinance) under section 27 below for the purpose of adjusting the financial position of the parties to a marriage and any children of the family on or after the grant of a decree of divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, that is to say —

- (a) any order under subsection (1) (a) of that section for a transfer of property;
- (b) any order under subsection (1) (b) of that section for a settlement of property; and
- (c) any order under subsection (1) (c) or (d) of that section for a variation of settlement.

ANCILLARY RELIEF IN CONNECTION WITH DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS, ETC

Maintenance pending suit.
1973 c. 18 s. 22

25. On a petition for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, the court may make an order for maintenance pending suit, that is to say, and order requiring either party to the marriage to make to the other such periodical payments for his or her maintenance and for such term, being a term beginning not earlier than the date of the presentation of the petition and ending with the date of the determination of the suit, as the court thinks reasonable.

Financial provision orders in connection with divorce proceedings, etc.
1973 c. 18 s. 23

26. (1) On granting a decree of divorce, a decree of nullity of marriage or a decree of judicial separation or at any time thereafter (whether, in the case of a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, before or after the decree is made absolute), the court may make any one or more of the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) an order that either party to the marriage shall make to the other such periodical payments, for such term, as may be specified in the order;
- (b) an order that either party to the marriage shall secure to the other to the satisfaction of the court such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (c) an order that either party to the marriage shall pay to the other such lump sum or sums as may be so specified;
- (d) an order that a party to the marriage shall make to such person as may be specified in the order for the benefit of a child of the family, or to such a child, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (e) an order that a party to the marriage shall secure to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of such a child, or to such a child, to the satisfaction of the court, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (f) an order that a party to the marriage shall pay to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of such a child, or to such a child, such lump sum as may be so specified;

subject, however, in the case of an order under paragraph (d), (e) or (f) above, to the restrictions imposed by section 32 (1) and (3) below on the making of financial provision orders in favour of children who have attained the age of twenty-one.

(2) The court may also, subject to those restrictions, make any one or more of the orders mentioned in subsection (1) (d), (e) and (f) above —

- (a) in any proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, before granting a decree; and
- (b) where any such proceedings are dismissed after the beginning of the trial, either forthwith or within a reasonable period after the dismissal.

(3) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1) (c) or (f) above —

- (a) an order under this section that a party to a marriage shall pay a lump sum to the other party may be made for the purpose of enabling that other party to meet any liabilities or expenses reasonably incurred by him or her in maintaining himself or herself or any child of the family before making an application for an order under this section in his or her favour;
- (b) an order under this section for the payment of a lump sum to or for the benefit of a child of the family may be made for the purpose of enabling any liabilities or expenses reasonably incurred by or for the benefit of that child before the making of an application for an order under this section in his favour to be met; and
- (c) an order under this section for the payment of a lump sum may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order and may require the payment of the instalments to be secured to the satisfaction of the court.

(4) The power of the court under subsection (1) or (2) (a) above to make an order in favour of a child of the family shall be exercisable from time to time; and where the court makes an order in favour of a child under subsection (2) (b) above, it may from time to time, subject to the restrictions mentioned in subsection (1) above, make a further order in his favour of any of the kinds mentioned in subsection (1) (d), (e) or (f) above.

(5) Without prejudice to the power to give a direction under section 33 below for the settlement of an instrument by the Registrar of the Supreme Court where an order is made under subsection (1) (a), (b) or (c) above on or after granting a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, neither the order nor any settlement made in pursuance of the order shall take effect unless the decree has been made absolute.

27. (1) On granting a decree of divorce, a decree of nullity of marriage or a decree of judicial separation or at any time thereafter (whether, in the case of a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, before or after the decree is made absolute), the court may make any one or more of the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) an order that a party to the marriage shall transfer to the other party, to any child of the family or to such person as may be specified in the order for the benefit of such a child such property as may be so specified, being property to which the first mentioned party is entitled, either in possession or reversion;
- (b) an order that a settlement of such property as may be so specified, being property to which a party to the marriage is so entitled, be made to the satisfaction of the court for the benefit of the other party to the marriage and of the children of the family or either or any of them;
- (c) an order varying for the benefit of the parties to the marriage and of the children of the family or either or any of them any ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlement (including such a settlement made by will or codicil) made on the parties to the marriage;

Property adjustment orders in connection with divorce proceedings, etc.
1973 c. 18 s. 24

- (d) an order extinguishing or reducing the interest of either of the parties to the marriage under any such settlement, subject, however, in the case of an order under paragraph (a) above, to the restrictions imposed by section 32 (1) and (3) below on the making of orders for a transfer of property in favour of children who have attained the age of twenty-one.

(2) The court may make an order under subsection (1) (c) above notwithstanding that there are no children of the family.

(3) Without prejudice to the power to give a direction under section 33 below for the settlement of an instrument by the Registrar of the Supreme Court, where an order is made under this section on or after granting a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, neither the order nor any settlement made in pursuance of the order shall take effect unless the decree has been made absolute.

Matters to which court is to have regard in deciding how to exercise its powers under ss. 26 and 27.

1973 c. 18 s. 25

28. (1) It shall be the duty of the court in deciding whether to exercise its powers under section 26 (1) (a), (b) or (c) or 27 above in relation to a party to the marriage and, if so, in what manner, to have regard to all the circumstances of the case including the following matters, that is to say —

- (a) the income, earning capacity, property and other financial resources which each of the parties to the marriage has or is likely to have in the foreseeable future;
- (b) the financial needs, obligations and responsibilities which each of the parties to the marriage has or is likely to have in the foreseeable future;
- (c) the standard of living enjoyed by the family before the breakdown of the marriage;
- (d) the age of each party to the marriage and the duration of the marriage;
- (e) any physical or mental disability of either of the parties to the marriage;
- (f) the contributions made by each of the parties to the welfare of the family, including any contribution made by looking after the home or caring for the family;
- (g) in the case of proceedings for divorce or nullity of marriage, the value to either of the parties to the marriage of any benefit (for example, a pension) which, by reason of the dissolution or annulment of the marriage, that party will lose the chance of acquiring;

and so to exercise those powers as to place the parties, so far as it is practicable and, having regard to their conduct, just to do so, in the financial position in which they would have been if the marriage had not broken down and each had properly discharged his or her financial obligations and responsibilities towards the other.

(2) Without prejudice to subsection (3) below, it shall be the duty of the court in deciding whether to exercise its powers under section 26 (1) (d), (e) or (f), (2) or (4) or 27 above in relation to a child of the family and, if so, in what manner, to have regard to all the circumstances of the case including the following matters, that is to say —

- (a) the financial needs of the child;
- (b) the income, earning capacity (if any), property and other financial resources of the child;
- (c) any physical or mental disability of the child;
- (d) the standard of living enjoyed by the family before the breakdown of the marriage;
- (e) the manner in which he was being and in which the parties to the marriage expected him to be educated or trained;

and so to exercise those powers as to place the child, so far as it is practicable and having regard to the considerations mentioned in relation to the parties to the marriage in paragraph (a) and (b) of subsection (1) above, just to do so, in the financial position in which the child would have been if the marriage had not broken down and each of those parties had properly discharged his or her financial obligations and responsibilities towards him.

(3) It shall be the duty of the court in deciding whether to exercise its powers under section 26 (1) (d), (e) or (f), (2) or (4) or 27 above against a party to a marriage in favour of a child of the family who is not the child of that party and, if so, in what manner, to have regard (among the circumstances of the case) —

- (a) to whether that party had assumed any responsibility for the child's maintenance and, if so, to the extent to which, and the basis upon which, that party assumed such responsibility;
- (b) to whether in assuming and discharging such responsibility that party did so knowing that the child was not his or her own;
- (c) to the liability of any other person to maintain the child.

29. (1) Where a petition for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation has been presented, then, subject to subsection (2) below, proceedings for maintenance pending suit under section 25 above, for a financial provision order under section 26 above, or for a property adjustment order may be begun, subject to and in accordance with rules of court, at any time after the presentation of the petition.

Commencement of proceedings for ancillary relief.

1973 c. 18 s. 26

(2) Rules of court may provide, in such cases as may be prescribed by the rules —

- (a) that application of any such relief as is mentioned in subsection (1) above shall be made in the petition or answer; and
- (b) that applications for any such relief which are not so made, or are not made until after the expiration of such period following the presentation of the petition or filing of the answer as may be so prescribed, shall be made only with the leave of the court.

FINANCIAL PROVISION IN CASE OF NEGLECT TO MAINTAIN

30. (1) Either party to a marriage may apply to the court for an order under this section on the ground that the other party to the marriage (in this section referred to as the respondent) —

Financial provision orders, etc., in case of neglect by party to marriage to maintain other party or child of the family.

1973 c. 18 s. 27

- (a) being the husband, has wilfully neglected —
 - (i) to provide reasonable maintenance for the applicant, or
 - (ii) to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance for any child of the family to whom this section applies;
- (b) being the wife, has wilfully neglected to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance —
 - (i) for the applicant in a case where, by reason of the impairment of the applicant's earning capacity through age, illness or disability of mind or body, and having regard to any resources of the applicant and the respondent respectively which are, or should properly be made, available for the purpose, it is reasonable in all the circumstances to expect the respondent so to provide or contribute, or
 - (ii) for any child of the family to whom this section applies.

(2) The court shall not entertain an application under this section unless—

- (a) the applicant or the respondent is domiciled in the Colony on the date of the application; or

- (b) the applicant has been habitually resident there throughout the period of one year ending with that date; or
- (c) the respondent is resident there on that date.

(3) This section applies to any child of the family for whose maintenance it is reasonable in all the circumstances to expect the respondent to provide or towards whose maintenance it is reasonable in all the circumstances to expect the respondent to make a proper contribution.

(4) Where the child of the family to whom the application under this section relates is not the child of the respondent, then, in deciding —

- (a) whether the respondent has been guilty of wilful neglect to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance for the child, and
- (b) what order, if any, to make under this section in favour of the child,

the court shall have regard to the matters mentioned in section 28 (3) above.

(5) Where on application under this section it appears to the court that the applicant or any child of the family to whom the application relates is in immediate need of financial assistance, but it is not yet possible to determine what order, if any, should be made on the application, the court may make an interim order for maintenance, that is to say, an order requiring the respondent to make to the applicant until the determination of the application such periodical payments as the court thinks reasonable.

(6) Where on an application under this section the applicant satisfies the court of any ground mentioned in subsection (1) above, the court may make such one or more of the following orders as it thinks just, that is to say —

- (a) an order that the respondent shall make to the applicant such periodical payments, for such term, as may be specified in the order;
- (b) an order that the respondent shall secure to the applicant to the satisfaction of the court, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (c) an order that the respondent shall pay to the applicant such lump sum as may be so specified;
- (d) an order that the respondent shall make to such person as may be specified in the order for the benefit of the child, to whom the application relates, or to that child, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (e) an order that the respondent shall secure to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of that child, or to that child, to the satisfaction of the court, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (f) an order that the respondent shall pay to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of that child, or to that child, such lump sum as may be so specified;

subject, however, in the case of an order under paragraph (d), (e) or (f) above, to the restriction imposed by section 32 (1) and (3) below on the making of financial provision orders in favour of children who have attained the age of eighteen.

(7) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (6) (c) or (f) above, an order under this section for the payment of a lump sum —

- (a) may be made for the purpose of enabling any liabilities or expenses reasonably incurred in maintaining the applicant or any child of the family to whom the application relates before the making of the application to be met;

- (b) may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order and may require the payment of the instalments to be secured to the satisfaction of the court.

(8) For the purpose of proceedings on an application under this section adultery which has been condoned shall not be capable of being revived, and any presumption of condonation which arises from the continuance or resumption of marital intercourse may be rebutted by evidence sufficient to negative the necessary intent.

ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS WITH RESPECT TO FINANCIAL PROVISION AND PROPERTY ADJUSTMENT ORDERS

31. (1) The term to be specified in a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage shall be such term as the court thinks fit, subject to the following limits, that is to say —

Duration of continuing financial provision orders in favour of party to marriage, and effect of remarriage.

1973 c. 18 s. 28

- (a) in the case of a periodical payments order, the term shall begin not earlier than the date of the making of an application for the order and shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death of either of the parties to the marriage, or, where the order is made on or after the grant of a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, the remarriage of the party in whose favour the order is made; and
- (b) in the case of a secured periodical payments order, the term shall begin not earlier than the date of the making of an application for the order, and shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death or, where the order is made on or after the grant of a decree, the remarriage of the party in whose favour the order is made.

(2) Where a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage is made otherwise than on or after the grant of a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, and the marriage in question is subsequently dissolved or annulled but the order continues in force, the order shall, notwithstanding anything in it, cease to have effect on the remarriage of that party, except in relation to any arrears due under it on the date of the remarriage.

(3) If after the grant of a decree dissolving or annulling a marriage either party to that marriage remarries, that party shall not be entitled to apply, by reference to the grant of that decree, for a financial provision order in his or her favour, or for a property adjustment order, against the other party to the marriage.

32. (1) Subject of subsection (3) below, no financial provision order and no order for a transfer of property under section 27 (1) (a) above shall be made in favour of a child who has attained the age of eighteen.

Duration of continuing financial provision orders in favour of children, and age limit on making certain orders in their favour.

1973 c. 18 s. 29

(2) The term to be specified in a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a child may begin with the date of the making of an application for the order in question or any later date but —

- (a) shall not in the first instance extend beyond the date of the birthday of the child next following his attaining the upper limit of the compulsory school age (that is to say, the age that is for the time being that limit by virtue of section 2 of the Education Ordinance 1967) unless the court thinks it right in the circumstances of the case to specify a later date; and
- (b) shall not in any event, subject to subsection (3) below, extend beyond the date of the child's eighteenth birthday.

14 of 1967

(3) Subsection (1) above, and paragraph (b) of subsection (2), shall not apply in the case of a child, if it appears to the court that —

- (a) the child is, or will be, or if an order were made without complying with either or both of those provisions would be, receiving instruction at an educational establishment or undergoing training for a trade, profession or vocation, whether or not he is also, or will also be, in gainful employment; or
- (b) there are special circumstances which justify the making of an order without complying with either or both of these provisions.

(4) Any periodical payments order in favour of a child shall, notwithstanding anything in the order, cease to have effect on the death of the person liable to make payments under the order, except in relation to any arrears due under the order on the date of the death.

Direction for settlement of instrument for securing payments or effecting property adjustment.

1973 c. 18 s. 30

33. Where the court decides to make a financial provision order requiring any payments to be secured or a property adjustment order —

- (a) it may direct that the matter be referred to the Registrar of the Supreme Court for him to settle a proper instrument to be executed by all necessary parties; and
- (b) where the order is to be made in proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation it may, if it thinks fit, defer the grant of the decree in question until the instrument has been duly executed.

VARIATION, DISCHARGE AND ENFORCEMENT OF CERTAIN ORDERS, ETC

Variation, discharge, etc., of certain orders for financial relief.

1973 c. 18 s. 31

34. (1) Where the court has made an order to which this section applies, then, subject to the provisions of this section, the court shall have power to vary or discharge the order or to suspend any provision thereof temporarily and to revive the operation of any provision so suspended.

(2) This section applies to the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) any order for maintenance pending suit and any interim order for maintenance;
- (b) any periodical payments order;
- (c) any secured periodical payments order;
- (d) any order made by virtue of section 26 (3) (c) or 30 (7) (b) above (provision for payment of a lump sum by instalments);
- (e) any order for a settlement of property under section 27 (1) (b) or for a variation of settlement under section 27 (1) (c) or (d) above, being an order made on or after the grant of a decree of judicial separation.

(3) The powers exercisable by the court under this section in relation to an order shall be exercisable also in relation to any instrument executed in pursuance of the order.

(4) The court shall not exercise the powers conferred by this section in relation to an order for a settlement under section 27 (1) (b) or for a variation of settlement under section 27 (1) (c) or (d) above except on an application made in proceedings —

- (a) for the rescission of the decree of judicial separation by reference to which the order was made, or
- (b) for the dissolution of the marriage in question.

(5) No property adjustment order shall be made on an application for the variation of a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order made (whether in favour of a party to a marriage or in favour of a child of the family) under section 26 above, and no order for the payment of a lump sum shall be made on an application for the variation of a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage (whether made under section 26 or under section 30 above).

(6) Where the person liable to make payments under a secured periodical payments order has died, an application under this section relating to that order may be made by the person entitled to payments under the order or by the personal representatives of the deceased person, but no such application shall, except with the permission of the court, be made after the end of the period of six months from the date on which representation in regard to the estate of that person is first taken out.

(7) In exercising the powers conferred by this section the court shall have regard to all the circumstances of the case, including any change in any of the matters to which the court was required to have regard when making the order to which the application relates and, where the party against whom that order was made has died, the changed circumstances resulting from his or her death.

(8) The personal representative of a deceased person against whom a secured periodical payments order was made shall not be liable for having distributed any part of the estate of the deceased after the expiration of the period of six months referred to in subsection (6) above on the ground that they ought to have taken into account the possibility that the court might permit an application under this section to be made after that period by the person entitled to payments under the order; but this subsection shall not prejudice any power to recover any part of the estate so distributed arising by virtue of the making of an order in pursuance of this section.

(9) In considering for the purposes of subsection (6) above the question when representation was first taken out, a grant limited to settled land or to trust property shall be left out of account and a grant limited to real estate or to personal estate shall be left out of account unless a grant limited to the remainder of the estate has previously been made or is made at the same time.

35. (1) A person shall not be entitled to enforce through the court the payment of any arrears due under an order for maintenance pending suit, an interim order for maintenance or any financial provision order without the leave of that court if those arrears become due more than twelve months before proceedings to enforce the payment of them are begun.

Payment of certain arrears unenforceable without the leave of the court.

1973 c. 18 s. 32

(2) The court hearing an application for the grant of leave under this section may refuse leave, or may grant leave subject to such restrictions and conditions (including conditions as to the allowing of time for payment or the making of payment by instalments) as the court thinks proper, or may remit the payment of the arrears or of any part thereof.

(3) An application for the grant of leave under this section shall be made in such manner as may be prescribed by rules of court.

36. (1) Where on an application made under this section in relation to an order to which this section applies it appears to the court that by reason of —

Orders for repayment in certain cases of sums paid under certain orders.

1973 c. 18 s. 33

- (a) a change in the circumstances of the person entitled to, or liable to make, payments under the order since the order was made, or
- (b) the changed circumstances resulting from the death of the person so liable,

the amount received by the person entitled to payments under the order in respect of a period after those circumstances changed or after the death of the person liable to make payments under the order, as the case may be, exceeds the amount which the person so liable or his or her personal representatives should have been required to pay, the court may order the respondent to the application to pay to the applicant such sum, not exceeding the amount of the excess, as the court thinks just.

(2) This section applies to the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) any order for maintenance pending suit and any interim order for maintenance;
- (b) any periodical payments order; and
- (c) any secured periodical payments order.

(3) An application under this section may be made by the person liable to make payments under an order to which this section applies or his or her personal representatives and may be made against the person entitled to payments under the order or her or his personal representatives.

(4) An application under this section may be made in proceedings in the court for —

- (a) the variation or discharge of the order to which this section applies, or
- (b) leave to enforce, or the enforcement of, the payment of arrears under that order.

(5) An order under this section for the payment of any sum may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order.

MAINTENANCE AGREEMENTS

Validity of maintenance agreements.

1973 c. 18 s. 34

37. (1) If a maintenance agreement includes a provision purporting to restrict any right to apply to the court for an order containing financial arrangements, then —

- (a) that provision shall be void; but
- (b) any other financial arrangements contained in the agreement shall not thereby be rendered void or unenforceable and shall, unless they are void or unenforceable for any other reason (and subject to sections 38 and 39 below), be binding on the parties to the agreement.

(2) In this section and in section 38 below —

“Maintenance agreement” means any agreement in writing made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, between the parties to a marriage, being —

- (a) an agreement containing financial arrangements, whether made during the continuance or after the dissolution or annulment of the marriage; or
- (b) a separation agreement which contains no financial arrangements in a case where no other agreement in writing between the same parties contains such arrangements;

“financial arrangements” means provisions governing the rights and liabilities towards one another when living separately of the parties to a marriage (including a marriage which has been dissolved or annulled) in respect of the making or securing of payments or the disposition or use of any property, including such rights and liabilities with respect to the maintenance or education of any child, whether or not a child of the family.

Alteration of agreements by court during lives of parties.

1973 c. 18 s. 35

38. (1) Where a maintenance agreement is for the time being subsisting and each of the parties to the agreement is for the time being either domiciled or resident in the Colony, then, subject to subsection (3) below, either party may apply to the court for an order under this section.

(2) If the court is satisfied either —

- (a) that by reason of a change in the circumstances in the light of which any financial arrangements contained in the agreement were made or, as the case may be, financial arrangements were omitted from it (including a change foreseen by the parties when making the agreement), the agreement should be altered so as to make different, or, as the case may be, so as to contain, financial arrangements, or
- (b) that the agreement does not contain proper financial arrangements with respect to any child of the family,

then subject to subsections (3), (4) and (5) below, the court may by order make such alterations in the agreement —

- (i) by varying or revoking any financial arrangements contained in it, or
- (ii) by inserting in it financial arrangements for the benefit of one of the parties to the agreement or of a child of the family, as may appear to the court to be just having regard to all the circumstances, including, if relevant, the matters mentioned in section 28 (3) above; and the agreement shall have effect thereafter as if any alteration made by the order had been made by agreement between the parties and for valuable consideration.

(3) Where the court decides to alter, by order under this section, an agreement by inserting provision for the making or securing by one of the parties to the agreement of periodical payments for the maintenance of the other party or by increasing the rate of the periodical payments which the agreement provides shall be made by one of the parties for the maintenance of the other, the term for which the payments or, as the case may be, the additional payments attributable to the increase are to be made under the agreement as altered by the order shall be such term as the court may specify, subject to the following limits, that is to say —

- (a) where the payments will not be secured, the term shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death of either of the parties to the agreement or the remarriage of the party to whom the payments are to be made;
- (b) where the payments will be secured, the term shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death or remarriage of that party.

(4) Where the court decides to alter, by order under this section, an agreement by inserting provision for the making or securing by one of the parties to the agreement of periodical payments for the maintenance of a child of the family or by increasing the rate of the periodical payments which the agreement provides shall be made or secured by one of the parties for the maintenance of such a child, then, in deciding the term for which under the agreement as altered by the order the payments, or as the case may be, the additional payments attributable to the increase are to be made or secured for the benefit of the child, the court shall apply the provisions of section 32 (2) and (3) above as to age limits as if the order in question were a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of the child.

(5) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that nothing in this section or in section 37 above affects any power of the court before which any proceedings between the parties to a maintenance agreement are brought under any other enactment (including a provision of this Ordinance) to make an order containing financial arrangements or any right of either party to apply for such an order in such proceedings.

Alteration of agreements by court after death of one party.

39. (1) Where a maintenance agreement within the meaning of section 37 above provides for the continuation of payments under the agreement after the death of one of the parties and that party dies domiciled in the Colony, the surviving party or the personal representatives of the deceased party may, subject to subsections (2) and (3) below, apply to the court for an order under section 38 above.

(2) An application under this section shall not, except with the permission of the court, be made after the end of the period of six months from the date on which representation in regard to the estate of the deceased is first taken out.

(3) If a maintenance agreement is altered by the court on an application made in pursuance of subsection (1) above, the like consequences shall ensue as if the alteration has been made immediately before the death by agreement between the parties and for valuable consideration.

(4) The provisions of this section shall not render the personal representatives of the deceased liable for having distributed any part of the estate of the deceased after the expiration of the period of six months referred to in subsection (2) above on the ground that they ought to have taken into account the possibility that the court might permit an application by virtue of this section to be made by the surviving party after that period; but this subsection shall not prejudice any power to recover any part of the estate so distributed arising by virtue of the making of an order in pursuance of this section.

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTAL

Avoidance of transactions intended to prevent or reduce financial relief.

1973 c. 18 s. 37

40. (1) For the purposes of this section "financial relief" means relief under any of the provisions of sections 25, 26, 27, 30, 34 (except subsection (5)) and 38 above, and any reference in this section to defeating a person's claim for financial relief is a reference to preventing financial relief from being granted to that person, or to that person for the benefit of a child of the family, or reducing the amount of any financial relief which might be so granted, or frustrating or impeding the enforcement of any order which might be or has been made at his instance under any of those provisions.

(2) Where proceedings for financial relief are brought by one person against another, the court may, on the application of the first-mentioned person —

- (a) if it is satisfied that the other party to the proceedings is, with the intention of defeating the claim for financial relief, about to make any disposition or to transfer out of the jurisdiction or otherwise deal with any property, make such order as it thinks fit for restraining the other party from so doing or otherwise for protecting the claim;
- (b) if it is satisfied that the other party has, with that intention, made a reviewable disposition and that if the disposition were set aside financial relief or different financial relief would be granted to the applicant, make an order setting aside the disposition;
- (c) if it is satisfied, in a case where an order has been obtained under any of the provisions mentioned in subsection (1) above by the applicant against the other party, that the other party has, with that intention, made a reviewable disposition, make an order setting aside the disposition;

and an application for the purposes of paragraph (b) above shall be made in the proceedings for the financial relief in question.

(3) Where the court makes an order under subsection (2) (b) or (c) above setting aside a disposition it shall give such consequential directions as it thinks fit for giving effect to the order (including directions requiring the making of any payments or the disposal of any property).

(4) Any disposition made by the other party to the proceedings for financial relief in question (whether before or after the commencement of those proceedings) is a reviewable disposition for the purposes of subsections (2) (b) and (c) above unless it was made for valuable consideration (other than marriage) to a person who, at the time of the disposition, acted in relation to it in good faith and without notice of any intention on the part of the other party to defeat the applicant's claim for financial relief.

(5) Where an application is made under this section with respect to a disposition which took place less than three years before the date of the application or with respect to a disposition or other dealing with property which is about to take place and the court is satisfied —

(a) in a case falling within subsection (2) (a) or (b) above, that the disposition or other dealing would (apart from this section) have the consequence, or

(b) in a case falling within subsection (2) (c) above, that the disposition has had the consequence, of defeating the applicant's claim for financial relief, it shall be presumed, unless the contrary is shown, that the person who disposed of or is about to dispose of or deal with the property did so or, as the case may be, is about to do so, with the intention of defeating the applicant's claim for financial relief.

(6) In this section "disposition" does not include any provision contained in a will or codicil but, with that exception, includes any conveyance, assurance or gift of property of any description, whether made by an instrument or otherwise.

(7) The provisions of this section shall not apply to a disposition made more than three years before the commencement of this Ordinance.

41. (1) Where —

(a) a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage (hereafter in this section referred to as "a payments order") has ceased to have effect by reason of the remarriage of that party, and

(b) the person liable to make payments under the order or his or her personal representatives made payments in accordance with it in respect of a period after the date of the remarriage in the mistaken belief that the order was still subsisting,

the person so liable or his or her personal representatives shall not be entitled to bring proceedings in respect of a cause of action arising out of the circumstances mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b) above against the person entitled to payments under the order or her or his personal representatives, but may instead make an application against that person or her or his personal representatives under this section.

(2) On an application under this section the court may order the respondent to pay to the applicant a sum equal to the amount of the payments made in respect of the period mentioned in subsection (1) (b) above or, if it appears to the court that it would be unjust to make that order, it may either order the respondent to pay to the applicant such lesser sum as it thinks fit or dismiss the application.

(3) An application under this section may be made in proceedings in the court for leave to enforce, or the enforcement of, payment of arrears under the order in question.

(4) An order under this section for the payment of any sum may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order.

Orders for repayment in certain cases of sums paid after cessation of order by reason of remarriage.

1973 c. 18 s. 38

(5) No officer of the court to whom payments under an order to which this section applies are required to be made shall be liable for any act done by him in pursuance of the order after the date on which that order ceased to have effect by reason of the remarriage of the person entitled to payments under it, if, but only if, the act was one which he would have been under a duty to do had the order not ceased to have effect as aforesaid and the act was done before notice in writing of the fact that the person so entitled had remarried was given to him by or on behalf of that person, the person liable to make payments under the order or the personal representatives of either of those persons.

Settlement, etc., made in compliance with a property adjustment order may be avoided on bankruptcy of settler.

1973 c. 18 s. 39

Payments, etc., under order made in favour of persons suffering from mental derangement.

1973 c. 18 s. 40

(Cap. 46)

42. The fact that a settlement or transfer of property had to be made in order to comply with a property adjustment order shall not prevent that settlement or transfer from being a settlement of property to which section 42 (1) of the Bankruptcy Act 1914 (avoidance of certain settlements) applies.

43. Where the court makes an order under this part of this Ordinance requiring payments (including a lump sum payment) to be made, or property to be transferred to a party to a marriage and the court is satisfied that the person in whose favour an order is made is incapable, by reason of mental derangement within the meaning of the Mental Treatment Ordinance, of managing and administering his or her property and affairs then, the court may order the payments to be made, or as the case may be, the property to be transferred, to such persons having charge of that person as the court may direct.

PART IV

PROTECTION, CUSTODY, ETC., OF CHILDREN

Restrictions on decrees for dissolution, annulment or separation affecting children.

1973 c. 18 s. 41

44. (1) The court shall not make absolute a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, or grant a decree of judicial separation, unless the court, by order, has declared that it is satisfied —

- (a) that for the purposes of this section there are no children of the family to whom this section applies; or
- (b) that the only children who are or may be children of the family to whom this section applies are the children named in the order and that —
 - (i) arrangements for the welfare of every child so named have been made and are satisfactory or are the best that can be devised in the circumstances; or
 - (ii) it is impracticable for the party or parties appearing before the court to make any such arrangements; or
- (c) that there are circumstances making it desirable that the decree should be made absolute or should be granted, as the case may be, without delay notwithstanding that there are or may be children of the family to whom this section applies and that the court is unable to make a declaration in accordance with paragraph (b) above.

(2) The court shall not make an order declaring that it is satisfied as mentioned in subsection (1) (c) above unless it has obtained a satisfactory undertaking from either or both of the parties to bring the question of the arrangements for the children named in the order before the court within a specified time.

(3) If the court makes absolute a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, or grants a decree of judicial separation, without having made an order under subsection (1) above the decree shall be void but, if such an order was made, no person shall be entitled to challenge the validity of the decree on the ground that the conditions prescribed by subsections (1) and (2) above were not fulfilled.

(4) If the court refuses to make an order under subsection (1) above in any proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, it shall, on an application by either party to the proceedings, make an order declaring that it is not satisfied as mentioned in that subsection.

(5) This section applies to the following children of the family, that is to say —

- (a) any minor child of the family who at the date of the order under subsection (1) above is —
 - (i) under the age of fifteen, or
 - (ii) receiving instruction at an educational establishment or undergoing training for a trade, profession or vocation, whether or not he is also in gainful employment; and
- (b) any other child of the family to whom the court by an order under that subsection directs that this section shall apply; and the court may give such a direction if it is of opinion that there are special circumstances which make it desirable in the interest of the child that this section should apply to him.

(6) In this section “welfare”, in relation to a child, includes the custody and education of the child and financial provision for him.

45. (1) The court may make such order as it thinks fit for the custody and education of any child of the family who is under the age of eighteen —

- (a) in any proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, before or on granting a decree or at any time thereafter (whether, in the case of a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, before or after the decree is made absolute);
- (b) where any such proceedings are dismissed after the beginning of the trial, either forthwith or within a reasonable period after the dismissal;

and in any case in which the court has power by virtue of this subsection to make an order in respect of a child it may instead, if it thinks fit, direct that proper proceedings be taken for making the child a ward of court.

(2) Where the court makes an order under section 30 above, the court shall also have power to make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the custody of any child of the family who is for the time being under the age of eighteen; but the power conferred by this subsection and any order made in exercise of that power shall have effect only as respects any period when an order is in force under that section and the child is under that age.

(3) Where the court grants or makes absolute a decree of divorce or grants a decree of judicial separation, it may include in the decree a declaration that either party to the marriage in question is unfit to have the custody of the children of the family.

(4) Where a decree of divorce or of judicial separation contains such a declaration as is mentioned in subsection (3) above, then, if the party to whom the declaration relates is a parent of any child of the family, that party shall not, on the death of the other parent, be entitled as of right to the custody or the guardianship of that child.

(5) Where an order in respect of a child is made under this section, the order shall not affect the rights over or with respect to the child of any person, other than a party to the marriage in question, unless the child is the child of one or both of the parties to that marriage and that person was a party to the proceedings on the application for an order under this section.

Orders for custody and education of children in cases of divorce, etc., and for custody in cases of neglect.

1973 c. 18 s. 42

(6) The power of the court under subsection (1)(a) or (2) above to make an order with respect to a child shall be exercisable from time to time; and where the court makes an order under subsection (1)(b) above with respect to a child it may from time to time until that child attains the age of eighteen make a further order with respect to his custody and education.

(7) The court shall have power to vary or discharge an order made under this section or to suspend any provision thereof temporarily and to revive the operation of any provision so suspended.

Power to commit children
to care of other person.
1973 c. 18 s. 43

46. (1) Where the court has jurisdiction by virtue of this Part of this Ordinance to make an order for the custody of a child and it appears to the court that there are exceptional circumstances making it impracticable or undesirable for the child to be entrusted to either of the parties of the marriage, the court may if it thinks fit make an order committing the care of the child to any other person.

(2) While an order made by virtue of this section is in force with respect to a child, the child shall continue in the care of the other person notwithstanding any claim by a parent or other person.

(3) An order made by virtue of this section shall cease to have effect as respects any child when he becomes eighteen, and the court shall not make an order committing a child to the care of any other person under this section after he has become seventeen.

Power to provide for supervision of children.
1973 c. 18 s. 44

47. (1) Where the court has jurisdiction by virtue of this Part of this Ordinance to make an order for the custody of a child and it appears to the court that there are exceptional circumstances making it desirable that the child should be under the supervision of an independent person, the court may, as respects any period during which the child is, in exercise of that jurisdiction, committed to the custody of any person, order that the child be under the supervision of an independent person.

(2) Where a child is under the supervision of an independent person in pursuance of this section the jurisdiction possessed by the court to vary any financial provision order in the child's favour or any order made with respect to his custody or education under this Part of this Ordinance shall, subject to any rules of court, be exercisable at the instance of the court.

(3) The court shall have power from time to time by an order under this section to vary or discharge any provision made in pursuance of this section.

PART V

RECOGNITION OF OVERSEAS DIVORCES AND LEGAL SEPARATIONS

Recognition in the Colony
of overseas divorces and legal separations.
1971 c. 53 s. 2

48. Sections 49 to 51 shall have effect, subject to section 54 below, as respects the recognition in the Colony of the validity of overseas divorces and legal separations, that is to say, divorces and legal separations which —

- (a) have been obtained by means of judicial or other proceedings in any country outside the Colony; and
- (b) are effective under the law of that country.

Grounds for recognition.
1971 c. 53 s. 3

49. (1) The validity of an overseas divorce or legal separation shall be recognised if, at the date of the institution of the proceedings in the country in which it was obtained —

- (a) either spouse was habitually resident in that country; or
- (b) either spouse was a national of that country.

(2) In relation to a country the law of which uses the concept of domicile as a ground of jurisdiction in matters of divorce or legal separation, subsection (1)(a) of this section shall have effect as if the reference to habitual residence included a reference to domicile within the meaning of that law.

(3) In relation to a country comprising territories in which different systems of law are in force in matters of divorce or legal separation, the foregoing provisions of this section (except those relating to nationality) shall have effect as if each territory were a separate country.

50. (1) Where there have been cross-proceedings, the validity of an overseas divorce or legal separation obtained either in the original proceedings or in the cross-proceedings shall be recognised if the requirements of paragraph (a) or (b) of section 49 (1) above, are satisfied in relation to the date of the institution either of the original proceedings or of the cross-proceedings.

Cross-proceedings and divorce following legal separation.

1971 c. 53 s. 4

(2) Where a legal separation the validity of which is entitled to recognition by virtue of the provisions of section 49 above or of subsection (1) of this section is converted, in the country in which it was obtained, into a divorce, the validity of the divorce shall be recognised whether or not it would itself be entitled to recognition by virtue of those provisions.

51. (1) For the purpose of deciding whether an overseas divorce or legal separation is entitled to recognition by virtue of this Part, any finding of fact made (whether expressly or by implication) in the proceedings by means of which the divorce or legal separation was obtained and on the basis of which jurisdiction was assumed in those proceedings shall —

Proof of facts relevant to recognition.

1971 c. 53 s. 5

- (a) if both spouses took part in the proceedings, be conclusive evidence of the fact found; and
- (b) in any other case, be sufficient proof of that fact unless the contrary is shown.

(2) In this section “finding of fact” includes a finding that either spouse was habitually resident or domiciled in, or a national of, the country in which the divorce or legal separation was obtained; and for the purpose of subsection (1) (a) of this section, a spouse who has appeared in judicial proceedings shall be treated as having taken part in them.

52. (1) In this section “the common law rules” means the rules of law relating to the recognition of divorces or legal separations obtained in the country of the spouses’ domicile or obtained elsewhere and recognised as valid in that country.

Existing common law and statutory rules

1971 c. 53 s. 6

(2) In any circumstances in which the validity of a divorce or legal separation obtained in a country outside the Colony would be recognised by virtue only of the common law rules if either —

- (a) the spouses had at the material time both been domiciled in that country; or
- (b) the divorce or separation were recognised as valid under the law of the spouses’ domicile, its validity shall also be recognised if subsection (3) below is satisfied in relation to it.

(3) This subsection is satisfied in relation to a divorce or legal separation obtained in a country outside the Colony if either —

- (a) one of the spouses was at the material time domiciled in that country and the divorce or separation was recognised as valid under the law of the domicile of the other spouse; or
- (b) neither of the spouses having been domiciled in that country at the material time, the divorce or separation was recognised as valid under the law of the domicile of each of the spouses respectively.

(4) For any purpose of subsection (2) or (3) above “the material time”, in relation to a divorce or legal separation, means the time of the institution of proceedings in the country in which it was obtained.

(5) Sections 48 to 51 above are without prejudice to the recognition of the validity of divorces and legal separations obtained outside the Colony by virtue of the common law rules (as extended by this section), or of any enactment other than this Ordinance; but, subject to this section, no divorce or legal separation so obtained shall be recognised as valid in the Colony except as provided by those sections.

Non-recognition of divorce by third country no bar to remarriage.

1971 c. 53 s. 7

53. Where the validity of a divorce obtained in any country is entitled to recognition by virtue of sections 48 to 51 or section 52 (2) above, or by virtue of any rule or enactment preserved by section 52 (5) above, neither spouse shall be precluded from re-marrying in the Colony on the ground that the validity of the divorce would not be recognised in any other country.

Exceptions from recognition.

1971 c. 53 s. 8

54. (1) The validity of a divorce or legal separation obtained outside the Colony shall not be recognised in the Colony if it was granted or obtained at a time when, according to the law of the Colony (including its rule of private international law and the provisions of this Part), there was no subsisting marriage between the parties.

(2) Subject to subsection (1) of this section, recognition by virtue of sections 48 to 51 or section 52 (2) above, or of any rule preserved by section 52 (5) thereof of the validity of a divorce or legal separation obtained outside the Colony may be refused if, and only if —

- (a) it was obtained by one spouse —
 - (i) without such steps having been taken for giving notice of the proceedings to the other spouse as, having regard to the nature of the proceedings and all the circumstances, should reasonably have been taken; or
 - (ii) without the other spouse having been given (for any reason other than lack of notice) such opportunity to take part in the proceedings as, having regard to the matters aforesaid, he should reasonably have been given; or
- (b) its recognition would manifestly be contrary to public policy.

(3) Nothing in this Part shall be construed as requiring the recognition of any findings of fault made in any proceedings for divorce or separation or of any maintenance, custody or other ancillary order made in any such proceedings.

Interpretation and transitional provisions.

55. (1) In this Part, "country" includes a colony or other dependent territory of the United Kingdom but for the purposes of this Part a person shall be treated as a national of such a colony or dependent territory only if it has a law of citizenship or nationality separate from that of the United Kingdom and he is a citizen or national of that colony or dependent territory under that law.

(2) The provisions of this Part relating to overseas divorces and legal separations and other divorces and legal separations obtained outside the Colony apply to a divorce or legal separation obtained before the commencement of this Ordinance as well as to one obtained on or after that date and, in the case of a divorce or legal separation obtained before that date —

- (a) require, or, as the case may be, preclude, the recognition of its validity in relation to any time before that date as well as in relation to any subsequent time; but
- (b) do not affect any property rights to which any person became entitled before that date or apply where the question of the validity of the divorce or legal separation has been decided by the court before that date.

PART VI

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTAL

56. (1) Any person who is a British subject, or whose right to be deemed a British subject depends wholly or in part on his legitimacy or on the validity of any marriage, may, if he is domiciled in the Colony or claims any real or personal estate situate in the Colony, apply by petition to the court for a decree declaring that he is the legitimate child of his parents, or that the marriage of his father and mother or of his grandfather and grandmother was a valid marriage or that his own marriage was a valid marriage.

Declaration of legitimacy, etc.

1973 c. 18 s. 45

(2) Any person claiming that he or his parent or any remoter ancestor became or has become a legitimated person may apply by petition to the court in the manner prescribed by rules of court, for a decree declaring that he or his parent or remoter ancestor, as the case may be, became or has become a legitimated person.

In this subsection "legitimated person" means a person legitimated by the Legitimacy Act 1926, and includes a person recognised under section 8 of that Act as legitimated.

(3) Any person who is domiciled in the Colony or claims any real or personal estate situate in the Colony may apply to the court for a decree declaring his right to be deemed a British subject.

(4) Applications to the court under the preceding provisions of this section may be included in the same petition, and on any application under the preceding provisions of this section the court shall make such decree as it thinks just, and the decree shall be binding on Her Majesty and all other persons whatsoever, so however that the decree shall not prejudice any person —

- (a) if it is subsequently proved to have been obtained by fraud or collusion; or
- (b) unless that person has been given notice of the application in the manner prescribed by rules of court or made a party to the proceedings or claims through a person so given notice or made a party.

(5) A copy of every application under this section and of any affidavit accompanying it shall be delivered to the Chief Secretary at least one month before the application is made, and the Chief Secretary shall be a respondent on the hearing of the application and on any subsequent proceedings relating thereto.

(6) Where any application is made under this section, such persons as the court hearing the application thinks fit, shall, subject to rules of court, be given notice of the application in the manner prescribed by rules of court, and any such persons may be permitted to become parties to the proceedings and to oppose the application.

(7) No proceedings under this section shall affect any final judgment or decree already pronounced or made by the court.

(8) The court may direct that the whole or any part of the proceedings shall be heard in camera, and an application for a direction under this subsection shall be heard in camera unless the court otherwise directs.

57. (1) The evidence of a husband or wife shall be admissible in any proceedings to prove that marital intercourse did or did not take place between them during any period.

Evidence.

1973 c. 18 s. 48

(2) In any proceedings for nullity of marriage, evidence on the question of sexual capacity shall be heard in camera unless in any case the judge is satisfied that in the interests of justice any such evidence ought to be heard in open court.

Parties to proceedings under this Ordinance.
1973 c. 18 s. 49

58. (1) Where in a petition for divorce or judicial separation, or in any other pleading praying for either form of relief, one party to a marriage alleges that the other has committed adultery, he or she shall make the person alleged to have committed adultery with the other party to the marriage a party to the proceedings unless excused by the court on special grounds from doing so.

(2) Rules of court may, either generally or in such cases as may be prescribed by the rules, exclude the application of subsection (1) above where the person alleged to have committed adultery with the other party to the marriage is not named in the petition or other pleading.

(3) Where in pursuance of subsection (1) above a person is made a party to proceedings for divorce or judicial separation, the court may, if after the close of the evidence on the part of the person making the allegation of adultery it is of opinion that there is not sufficient evidence against the person so made a party, dismiss him or her from the suit.

(4) Rules of court may make provision, in cases not falling within subsection (1) above, with respect to the joinder as parties to proceedings under this Ordinance of persons involved in allegations of adultery or other improper conduct made in those proceedings, and with respect to the dismissal from such proceedings of any parties so joined; and rules of court made by virtue of this subsection may make different provision for different cases.

(5) In every case in which adultery with any party to a suit is alleged against any person not made a party to the suit or in which the court considers, in the interest of any person not already a party to the suit, that that person should be made a party to the suit, the court may if it thinks fit allow that person to intervene upon such terms, if any, as the court thinks just.

Matrimonial causes rules.

59. The Governor in Council may make rules for the better carrying out of the purposes and provisions of this Ordinance and in particular, but without prejudice, may make rules —

- (a) as to all matters of procedure under this Ordinance;
- (b) prescribing the forms to be used under this Ordinance;
- (c) with regard to any matter as to which rules may be made under this Ordinance;
- (d) prescribing the fees and costs to be paid, charged or allowed under this Ordinance.

Repeal.

Cap. 44.

Transitional provisions and savings.

60. The Matrimonial Causes Ordinance is repealed.

61. Without prejudice to the provisions of section 38 of the Interpretation Act 1889 (which relates to the effect of repeals) nothing in the repeal made by this Ordinance shall affect any application made, proceeding begun, or made or deemed to have been made, or direction given or deemed to have been given, under any provisions of the Matrimonial Causes Ordinance repealed by this Ordinance, and subject to the provisions of this Ordinance —

- (a) every such application or proceeding which is pending at the commencement of this Ordinance shall have effect as if made or begun under the corresponding provision of this Ordinance; and
- (b) every such order or direction shall, if in force at the commencement of this Ordinance, continue in force.

Cap. 44.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill is a reproduction of the United Kingdom Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 and the Recognition of Divorces and Legal Separations Act 1971 subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as the circumstances of the Colony require.

It provides for matters relating to matrimonial proceedings, maintenance agreements, declarations of legitimacy, validity of marriage, British nationality and the recognition in the Colony of overseas divorces and legal separations and generally brings the divorce law of the Colony into line with the divorce law of the United Kingdom.

PROCLAMATION

No. 1 of 1979

IN THE NAME OF Her Majesty ELIZABETH II, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Her other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

6 of 1965.

"PART II

WIDOWS' AND CHILDREN'S PENSIONS

Pensions payable to widow and children of a male pensioner or pensionable officer.

18A. (1) On the death of a male pensioner, or of a male pensionable officer who has completed ten years' pensionable service, there shall be paid to his dependants (if any), a pension as set out in the following provisions of this section based on the amount of the pension he was drawing at the date of his death, or, as the case may be, that he would have been entitled to at the date of his death had he been retired in circumstances in which he would have been entitled to retire with a pension.

(2) If the male pensioner or pensionable officer leaves a widow but no children, the widow shall be entitled to one-half of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled, until her re-marriage or death.

(3) If the male pensioner or pensionable officer leaves a widow and children by such widow or by a previous wife, the widow shall be entitled until her re-marriage or death to one-half of the amount of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled, and the children shall be entitled to pensions in the following proportions, that is to say —

- (a) if three in number, or less, then each shall receive one-sixth of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled; or
- (b) if more than three, then one-half of such pension shall be divided equally among the children:

Provided that where a male pensioner or pensionable officer dies leaving a widow and children by the widow or by a previous wife, it shall be lawful for the Governor either in the first instance or at any time while pensions are payable to the children, to direct the payment to the widow of part only of such pensions and to direct the payment of the balance of such pensions for or towards the maintenance of the children in such manner as the Governor thinks fit.

(4) If the male pensioner or pensionable officer leaves children and no widow such children shall be entitled to pensions in the following proportions, that is to say —

- (a) if three in number, or less, then each shall receive one-third of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled; or
- (b) if more than three, then such pension shall be divided equally among the children.

Pensions payable to children of a female pensioner or pensionable officer.

18B. (1) On the death of a female pensioner, or of a female pensionable officer who has completed ten years' pensionable service, there shall be paid to her children (if any), who were wholly or mainly dependent on her for support, a pension as set out in the following provisions of this section based on the amount of the pension she was drawing at the date of her death, or, as the case may be, that she would have been entitled to at the date of her death had she been retired in circumstances in which she would have been entitled to retire with a pension.

(2) If the female pensioner or pensionable officer leaves children such children shall be entitled to pensions in the following proportions, that is to say —

- (a) if three in number, or less, then each shall receive one-third of her pension, or as the case may be, the pension to which she would have been entitled; or
- (b) if more than three, then such pension shall be divided equally among the children.

Payment and administration of children's pensions.

18C. In all cases of children's pension under this Ordinance, the whole or any part of such pension may be paid either to the parent, or to the legal guardian of such children, or to the children, or to such person or persons as the Governor may in his discretion consider to be fit and proper persons, to apply the same for the benefit of such children, and after such payment the Government of the Colony shall be free of all responsibility in respect of such payment.

Cessation of payment of children's pensions.

18D. Any pension to children shall cease on their attaining the age of seventeen years.

Non-entitlement of widow married to officer over sixty years of age, etc., to pension.

18E. No widow of an officer whose marriage is contracted with him after he has attained the age of sixty years or after he has left the public service, whichever of those events first happens, and no issue of such marriage, shall be entitled to a pension under this Part.

Commencement and application of Part II.

18F. This Part of this Ordinance shall be deemed to have effect from the 1st July 1977 and the provisions thereof shall apply to all officers in the public service under the Government of the Colony on or after the said date."

4. The principal Ordinance is amended by inserting after section 18F the following new heading —

Insertion of new heading "PART III".

"PART III
GENERAL".

5. The principal Ordinance is amended by adding, after section 19, the following new section —

Addition of new section 19A.

"Prohibition against double pensions.

19A. Not more than one pension under this Ordinance shall be payable to or in respect of any one person."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

Most Colonies and Territories under Her Majesty's jurisdiction have made provisions in their legislation for pensions to widows and children of pensioners on death. This amendment is necessary to bring our legislation into line with other Colonies and Territories.

 - (b) all transfers, transmissions and other dealings in such stock shall be registered.
- (2) The register shall be prima facie evidence of title of any person to any stock of which he is entered as stockholder.
- (3) the register shall be kept by the Treasury, the Crown Agents or any other appointed agent.
- Stock certificates. 9. Stock certificates shall be sent to the stockholder showing that stock to the value shown therein has been registered in the name of the stockholder. A stock certificate is prima facie evidence of title to the stock specified therein.
- Transfer of stock. 10. Stock may be transferred by an instrument of transfer approved by the Financial Secretary and shall be supported by the production to the registering authority of the original or a certified true copy of the stock certificate. If the registering authority is satisfied that the transfer is in order the name of the new stockholder shall be entered in the register.
- Payment of interest. 11. Interest shall be payable annually or half yearly as specified when the stock is issued at the rate fixed at the time of issue.
- Redemption of stock. 12. (1) Stock shall be redeemable at par on the date named when the stock is issued and no interest shall be payable after that date.
- (2) Stock may be redeemed before maturity provided that provision for this is made when the stock is issued.
- Interest to be charge upon general revenues. 13. So long as any portion of any loan remains outstanding the general revenues of the Colony shall be liable to pay current annual or half year's interest.
- Creation of Sinking Fund. 14. (1) Such amount of money as is required shall be taken from the general revenues of the Colony to create in each year a Sinking Fund to the amount specified in the prospectus.
- (2) The money in question shall be invested in the Colony, by the Crown Agents or other appointed agents in such manner as is approved by the Financial Secretary, and the dividends, interest or produce of such investment shall also be invested in like manner.
- (3) Investments on behalf of the Sinking Fund may be changed with the approval of the Financial Secretary. Investments in the Colony may not exceed 30 per centum of the total amount of the Sinking Fund at any one time.

(4) The Sinking Fund may be used for the redemption of stock by purchase. Any balance remaining after such redemption shall be credited to the Sinking Fund.

(5) If the Sinking Fund is insufficient, at the time of maturity of the loan, to redeem the loan in full, any balance shall be made good out of the general revenues of the Colony.

15. No stamp duty shall be payable on the issue or transfer of stock. Exemption from stamp duty.

16. Falkland Islands stock shall be an authorized investment for trust funds. Stock authorized investment for trust funds.

17. The Governor in Council may make such regulations as may be necessary for the carrying out of the provisions of this Ordinance. Regulations.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

It is considered desirable that the Colony should have general legislation for raising loans and this Bill is designed to enable Government borrowing externally or internally.

A Bill for
An Ordinance

Title.

Date of commencement.

(1st January 1979)

Enacting clause.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amendment) Ordinance 1979, and shall apply to assessments for the year of assessment commencing on the 1st day of January 1979 and to subsequent years of assessment.

Amendment of section 11.
Cap. 32.

2. Section 11 of the principal Ordinance is amended by inserting after "Sixth Schedule" the following — "or the Seventh Schedule".

Amendment of section 21.

3. Section 21 of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting subsection (2) and substituting the following new subsection —

“(2) The tax upon the chargeable income of a company shall be at the following rates —

Up to £30,000	—	42%
” ” 32,000	—	42·9%
” ” 34,000	—	43·8%
” ” 36,000	—	44·7%
” ” 38,000	—	45·6%
” ” 40,000	—	46·5%
” ” 42,000	—	47·4%
” ” 44,000	—	48·3%
” ” 46,000	—	49·2%
” ” 48,000	—	50·1%
” ” 50,000	—	51%
Over 50,000	—	52% ”.

4. The principal Ordinance is amended by adding after the Sixth Schedule the following Schedule—

Addition of Seventh Schedule.

“SEVENTH SCHEDULE Section 11.

DEPRECIATION

1. In this Schedule — Interpretation.
- “expenditure”, in relation to the cost of a capital asset, means the amount spent upon the provision of that asset by the person claiming the depreciation deduction, reduced by the amount of any grant, subsidy or contribution towards that cost made by any other person or authority;
- “written-down value”, in relation to a capital asset, means the amount of the expenditure upon that asset less the sum of any wear and tear and depreciation deductions made in respect of that asset for all earlier years or which could have been made if the asset had been employed continuously since the expenditure was incurred in the production of income.
2. Where a person referred to in section 11 employs during the year immediately preceding the year of assessment in the course of his trade, business, profession or vocation any of the capital assets specified in paragraph 3 of this Schedule, there shall be allowed, upon his making a claim thereto, a deduction on account of the depreciation of such assets (in this Schedule referred to as a “depreciation deduction”). Deduction.
3. The following depreciation allowances shall be given for capital expenditure incurred on projects commenced after the 1st January 1978 — Depreciation allowance.
- (a) on machinery or plant (other than a ship, aircraft, or a motor vehicle) - an initial allowance in the year in which the expenditure is incurred of up to 100%; where the full 100% is not claimed, in subsequent years a writing down allowance of 25% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
 - (b) on ships - an initial allowance of up to 50% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 10% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
 - (c) on aircraft - a writing down allowance of 15% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
 - (d) on motor vehicles - a writing down allowance of 25% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
 - (e) on industrial buildings used for the purpose of productive manufacturing or processing, mining or fishing - an initial allowance of up to 50% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 4% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
 - (f) on hotel buildings - an initial allowance of up to 20% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 4% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
 - (g) on agricultural buildings - an initial allowance of up to 30% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 4% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
 - (h) on other buildings - a writing down allowance of 10% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given.
4. Where during the year immediately preceding the year of assessment a capital asset in respect of which a wear and tear or a depreciation deduction has been made is sold, scrapped or destroyed and the amount of the sale proceeds or insurance recoveries is less than the written-down value, there shall be made a deduction equal to the amount of the deficiency. Balancing deduction.

Balancing charge.

5. Where during the year immediately preceding the year of assessment a capital asset in respect of which a wear and tear or a depreciation deduction has been made is sold or destroyed and the amount of the sale proceeds or insurance recoveries is more than the written-down value, the amount of the excess (or the total amount of all wear and tear and depreciation deductions made, if less) shall be additional income chargeable to tax for that year of assessment.

Buildings.

6. Where a building is bought or sold together with land the Commissioner shall make such apportionment of the total sum as is just for the purpose of arriving at the separate value of the building.

Agricultural buildings.

7. For the purposes of this Schedule agricultural buildings do not include housing, offices, shops on farm settlements, store-houses (except where they are used solely to store agricultural produce). The cost of a building shall not include the cost or value of the land on which it is built.

New ventures.

8. Where a company undertakes a new industrial, commercial or other venture, it shall, before qualifying for the allowance referred to in paragraph 3 of this Schedule, be required to form a separate company which shall be taxed separately from any existing company."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This tax reform Bill introduces a scale for taxing Companies.

The new system is designed to obtain for the Colony a greater proportion of the tax payable by the larger overseas Companies. The Companies with relatively small profits will pay slightly less tax under the proposed system.

The Bill also provides a measure of encouragement for development of industries in the Colony by improving the depreciation allowances permitted under the Income Tax Ordinance, which apply to Companies, partnerships and other businesses.

7. There shall be exempt from employment tax —

(a) the official emoluments paid to the Governor;

(b) the official emoluments paid to Consuls, Vice-Consuls and members of the permanent Consular Services of foreign countries in respect of their offices or in respect of services rendered by them in their official capacity;

(c) the emoluments paid from United Kingdom funds to members of Her Majesty's Forces and to persons in the permanent service of the United Kingdom Government in respect of their offices under the United Kingdom Government;

(d) all pensions paid to retired persons for past services;

(e) the emoluments paid to a person under fifteen years of age who is in full time attendance at school;

(f) any sum received by way of commutation of pension under an approved retirement scheme or the Pensions Ordinance;

(g) the emoluments paid by the United Kingdom Government to Technical Co-operation officers employed in the Colony by the Ministry of Overseas Development except any such emoluments reimbursed to the United Kingdom Government from Colony funds;

(h) the salary and other emoluments received for services related to communications referred to in Notes exchanged between the United Kingdom and the Argentine Republic on the 5th August 1971 and in the Joint Statement referred to in those Notes by residents of the Argentine mainland from their Argentine employers; Exemptions.

- (i) pensions granted to dependents of deceased members of Her Majesty's Forces;
- (j) wound and disability pensions granted to members of Her Majesty's Forces;
- (k) gratuities granted to members of Her Majesty's Forces in respect of war services;
- (l) any allowance, grant or gratuity payable from United Kingdom funds to any officer in the service of the Colony who is a designated officer within the terms of the Overseas Service (Falkland Islands) (Continuance) Agreement 1971/77;
- (m) any allowance paid to any unofficial member of the Executive or Legislative Councils under the provisions of the Executive Council (Allowances) Ordinance 1977 or the Legislative Council (Allowances) Ordinance 1977 in respect of services as a member of council.

Payment of employment tax to Financial Secretary.

8. (1) All amounts of employment tax which an employer and employees employed by him are liable under the provisions of this Ordinance to pay in respect of any payment of emoluments shall be paid by that employer to the Financial Secretary without any demand within fifteen days of the end of the month in which the payment of emoluments in question was made.

(2) The employer shall make a monthly statement and transmit the same to the Financial Secretary on such form as may be provided by the Financial Secretary which statement shall specify —

- (a) the gross amount of the total emoluments paid during the month and on which employment tax is payable; and
- (b) the amount of tax payable by the employer and each employee.

(3) All amounts of employment tax payable by a self-employed person or a person liable to pay tax in respect of dividend income shall be paid to the Financial Secretary without any demand not later than the 31st day of July in each year.

(4) Every self-employed person and every person liable to pay tax in respect of dividend income shall make an annual statement and transmit the same to the Financial Secretary on such form as may be provided by the Financial Secretary. The statement shall specify —

- (a) in the case of a self-employed person his net profit before tax for the preceding year;
- (b) in the case of a person liable to pay tax on dividend income, the gross amount of dividend income for the preceding year; and
- (c) the amount of tax payable.

(5) If —

- (a) within fifteen days of the end of any month the employer fails without reasonable cause, to transmit to the Financial Secretary the monthly statement and payment referred to, he shall be guilty of an offence;
- (b) within thirty-one days of the end of any year a self-employed person or a person liable to pay tax in respect of dividend income fails without reasonable cause to transmit to the Financial Secretary the annual statement and payment referred to, he shall be guilty of an offence; and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £300 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both such fine and imprisonment.

(6) Where a company is guilty of a contravention of the provisions of this section, every director, manager, agent and officer of the company or corporate body in the Colony who is knowingly a party of the contravention shall be liable to the penalties specified in subsection (5).

9. (1) Every employer who pays emoluments to any employee may, on the occasion of any such payment of emoluments, and at no other time, deduct therefrom a sum of money not greater than the amount of employment tax which the employee is liable to pay under section 6, and the employee from whom such sum is deducted shall have no right of action for the repayment of such sum to him by the employer.

Right of employer to deduct tax from emoluments.

(2) Any employer failing to make deductions pursuant to subsection (1) shall, notwithstanding such failure, pay to the Financial Secretary the amount due under this Ordinance for employment tax in respect of his employees.

10. (1) If —

- (a) within fifteen days of the end of any month any employer has paid no amount of tax; or
- (b) within thirty-one days of the end of any year any self-employed person or any person liable to pay tax in respect of dividend income has paid no amount of tax;

Employer, self-employed person, etc., failing to pay employment tax.

to the Financial Secretary, the Financial Secretary may assess the amount of employment tax that he considers is payable by such employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax in respect of dividend income.

(2) The Financial Secretary shall certify his assessment of the amount of tax which —

- (a) the employer is liable to pay to him in respect of the month in question; or
- (b) the self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income in respect of the year in question; and send notice thereof to the employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income concerned.

(3) The certificate of assessment of the Financial Secretary under subsection (2) shall be sufficient evidence that the amount shown in the said certificate is the amount of tax which —

- (a) the employer is liable to pay to the Financial Secretary in respect of the month in question; or
- (b) the self-employed person or the person liable to pay tax on dividend income in respect of the year in question; and any document purporting to be such a certificate as aforesaid shall be deemed to be such a certificate until the contrary is proved.

(4) A notice given by the Financial Secretary under subsection (2) may be in respect of two or more consecutive months or years, as the case may be, and the provisions of this Ordinance shall have effect as if the said consecutive months or years were one month or one year.

(5) An assessment by the Financial Secretary under subsection (1) may be made notwithstanding that an amount of employment tax has been paid to him by the employer under this Ordinance for any particular month, if the Financial Secretary is not satisfied that the amount so paid is the full amount which the employer is liable to pay to him for that month, and the provisions of this section shall have effect accordingly.

(6) An assessment by the Financial Secretary under subsection (1) may be made notwithstanding that an amount of employment tax has been paid to him by a self-employed person or a person liable to pay dividend tax under this Ordinance for any particular year, if the Financial Secretary is not satisfied that the amount so paid is the full amount which the self-employed person or person liable to pay dividend tax is liable to pay to him for that year, and the provisions of this section shall have effect accordingly.

Particulars to be provided by employer at end of year.

11. (1) Not later than fifteen days after the end of the year the employer shall render to the Financial Secretary in such form as the Financial Secretary may approve a return showing the total amount of the emoluments paid by him during the year, and the total amount of employment tax paid by the employer in respect of such emoluments.

(2) After the end of the year or on the termination of any employment the employer shall give to the employee a certificate showing the total amount of the emoluments paid by the employer to the employee during the year, and the total tax deducted from the emoluments.

(3) If an employer without reasonable excuse fails to comply with the provisions of this section he shall be guilty of an offence.

Objections and appeals.

12. (1) If any person is aggrieved by an assessment referred to in a certificate of assessment he may give notice thereof to the Financial Secretary, stating the ground of his objection, within thirty days of the date of the certificate of assessment.

(2) On receipt of any such notice of objection the Financial Secretary on proof to his satisfaction, may agree with the employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income as to the correct amount to be assessed and may thereupon amend the certificate of assessment. Notice of the amended certificate of assessment shall then be served on the employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income by the Financial Secretary.

(3) In default of agreement as aforesaid the employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income, on giving notice to the Financial Secretary, may appeal to the Judge in Chambers, and the provisions of the Income Tax Ordinance relating to the determination of appeals against assessment shall apply accordingly.

Cap. 32

(4) No notice of objection shall be valid unless the employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income states what portion of the employment tax charged is in excess of his true liability and remits therewith an amount equal to the tax he does not dispute.

Repayments.

13. Where the employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income shows to the satisfaction of the Financial Secretary that employment tax has been overpaid by him the Financial Secretary shall arrange for the tax overpaid to be refunded:

Provided that no application for repayment of tax overpaid shall be valid unless such application is made within twelve months of the end of the year to which the over-payment related.

Tax payable to be a debt due to Government.

14. Any employment tax due from and payable by an employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income under this Ordinance or under regulations made under this Ordinance shall be recovered by the Financial Secretary or any person duly authorized by the Financial Secretary to act on his behalf, as a debt due to the Government of the Colony.

Power to remit employment tax.

15. If the Governor in Council upon written application being made to him is satisfied that it would be just and equitable to do so he may remit the whole or any part of the employment tax payable by the person.

16. (1) Any person who, for the purpose of evading the payment of employment tax, knowingly makes any false statement or false representation shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £1,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to both such fine and imprisonment.

Offences.

(2) Any person guilty of an offence against this Ordinance for which no specific penalty is otherwise provided shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £100 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to both such fine and imprisonment.

17. This Ordinance shall bind the Crown.

Crown bound.

18. The Governor in Council may make regulations in regard to any matter or thing in respect of which it may be expedient to make rules to give effect to the provisions of this Ordinance.

Regulations.

19. Upon application in such manner as may be prescribed the Governor in Council may, for the purposes of this Ordinance, approve, either as a whole or in part, any retirement scheme or provident fund which, in his opinion, complies substantially with such requirements as may be prescribed, and may withdraw any approval so given.

Approval of retirement schemes.

20. The Financial Secretary may, for good cause shown by any employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income, vary any of the times prescribed by this Ordinance.

Financial Secretary may vary times.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Bill seeks to introduce an employment tax of 4% on the wages and salaries of all employed persons; 3% payable by the employer and 1% by the employee. The tax would apply to self-employed persons and persons not in employment but in receipt of dividend income. The maximum amount payable in respect of any one person would be limited to £250 per annum.

The introduction of this tax, on 1st July 1979, will enable Government to abolish medical fees for residents.

Ref. AIR/2/1.

Appointment of Governor's Deputy and specification of powers and functions vested in the Governor which he may exercise and perform.

WHEREAS paragraph (1) of Article 8 of the Falkland Islands Letters Patent, 1948 to 1962, provides that whenever the Governor has occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which he has reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which he has reason to believe will be of short duration he considers it desirable so to do, he may, by Instrument under the Public Seal, appoint any person in the Colony to be his Deputy during such absence or illness, and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor during such absence or illness all such powers and functions vested in the Governor as shall be specified in such Instrument:

AND WHEREAS Article 3 of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Letters Patent, 1908, provides that the Officer for the time being Administering the Government of the Colony of the Falkland Islands shall be Governor for the time being of the Falkland Islands Dependencies:

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers aforesaid I, JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, do hereby appoint JOHN DUDLEY MASSINGHAM, ESQUIRE, to be Governor's Deputy in and for the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor (except while and in so far as provision to the contrary made by the Governor under Article 8 of the said Letters Patent is operative) and subject always to the provisions of the said Letters Patent, all such powers and functions as are vested in the Governor other than those vested by sections 18 and 21A, sub-section (1) of section 24 and sub-section (1) of section 26 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders, 1948 to 1977, by paragraph (1) of Article 10 and Articles 13, 15 and 16 of the said Letters Patent and by sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph (1) of clause 3, sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (1) of clause 5 and clause 22 of the Royal Instructions to the Governor dated the 13th day of December 1948.

This Instrument shall come into operation whenever I have occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which I have reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which I have reason to believe will be of short duration I am unable to perform my duties as Governor.

LS

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 17th day of February in the year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-nine.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government and the General Employees' Union. The agreement shall be effective for a period of one year from 1st January 1979 and shall apply to the hourly paid employees of Government in Stanley. (In recognition of the widely differing conditions of service offered by Government on the one hand and by the Falkland Islands Company on the other it has been agreed by all the parties concerned that, on this occasion and henceforward, a separate agreement should be made between the General Employees' Union and each of the respective Employers).

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used. If however in any quarter the Index should exceed the average figure for the last four quarters by six points then the excess points will be taken into immediate account for the cost of living award. The payment in respect of the excess points will be adjusted as necessary, in future quarterly reviews of the cost of living.

N.B. When calculating the advance payment in excess of the first six points, $\frac{1}{2}$ p advance will be made in any case where the excess not already taken into account reaches one point.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	£1.15
2. *Apprentices	0.81 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
1st year	0.83p
2nd year	0.86 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
3rd year	0.90p
4th year	0.98 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
5th year
* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.
3. Handymen (according to ability)	0.95 $\frac{1}{2}$ p to 1.05p
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	0.94 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	0.95 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
6. Tractor Drivers	0.98 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
7. Labourers	Hourly Rate.
Age
14-15	0.72 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
15-16	0.76 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
16-17	0.82p
17-18	0.87p
18 and over	0.93 $\frac{1}{2}$ p
8. Plant Operator or Fitter Grade I (P.A.T.A.)	1.15
9. Plant Operator or Fitter Grade II (P.A.T.A.)	97p to 1.06 $\frac{1}{2}$ p

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees except that the following jobs shall automatically qualify for 15p per hour: Handling - cement in bags, filtration plant chemicals, gas oil, tar or bitumen, fertilisers; and crushing stone, or cleaning blocked sewers.

"Dirt" money shall be adjusted annually to take into account cost of living awards made during the course of the last four quarters.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 8p to 15p per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 25p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 3p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed. This will also apply to tallymen.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 5p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 40 hours per week made up as follows -

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 40 per week.

5. Overtime.

(a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows -

TIME AND A HALF.

(i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.

(ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

(i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.

(ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.

(iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.

(iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.

(v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.

(b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.

(c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 40-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Public Holidays.

In addition to receiving double time for working on a public holiday employees shall be entitled to 8 hours holiday.

7. Holidays.

(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to accumulate holidays at the rates and to the maximum hereinafter set out, namely —

Earning rate per month of continuous service	Maximum accumulation
1½ days	320 hours

In the event of an employee terminating his service prior to the completion of the first six months of service he shall forfeit any holiday entitlement not taken.

The maximum of 320 hours referred to above shall not apply to any excess over that amount accumulated as at 31st December 1976.

Paid holidays may be taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following eight days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

New Year's Day, Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday and Commonwealth Day, October Bank Holiday, Anniversary of Battle of Falkland Islands, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Annual Stanley Sports Meeting.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Saturday or a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

8. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed three months' service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.
- (b) If sickness lasts for more than two working days an employee shall be entitled to the following sick pay commencing on the first day of sickness on the production of a medical certificate -
 - (i) Employees who have completed three months' service with their employer -
 - Full pay for the first two weeks.
 - Half pay for the third and fourth weeks.
 - (ii) Employees who have completed three years' service with their employer -
 - Full pay for the first four weeks.
 - Half pay for the following nine weeks.
- (c) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (d) An employer may demand a medical certificate before making any payment in respect of sick pay.
- (e) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work. The Foreman and the Union Delegate must confirm in writing any accident at work.

9. Termination of Employment.

Except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed, the following notice of termination of employment shall be given -

- (i) Employees who have completed ten years' service with their employer -
 - One months notice.
- (ii) Employees who have completed five years' service with their employer -
 - Two weeks' notice.
- (iii) All other employees -
 - One week's notice.

If desired employers may pay wages in (i), (ii) or (iii), as appropriate, in lieu of giving notice.

10. General.

- (a) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.
- (b) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.

- (c) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.
- (d) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.
- (e) All employers shall ensure that tractors are fitted with safety cabs.

Separate agreements have been negotiated on this occasion, and will be negotiated in future, for employees of Government and of the Falkland Island Company, respectively, all the parties concerned consider there is some value in their continuing to negotiate such agreements jointly rather than separately so far as this proves possible.

Prayers were said by Mr S Bennett, lay-reader at Christ Church Cathedral.

The President then adjourned the meeting and directed that the Council should resume at 10.00 a.m. on Tuesday 13th February 1979 so that the Members from the Camp could be present.

The Council duly re-assembled at the prescribed time with all Members present with the exception of the Honourable D S Evans (Elected Member for West Falkland) who could not be present due to pressure of work.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting held from 20th June to 27th June 1978, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

I welcome Honourable Members to this meeting of the Legislative Council. I formally and briefly opened the meeting yesterday, with the minimum of business, and then adjourned until this morning so as to give a little extra time for our farming colleagues to come in from Camp. I well understand that this is an exceedingly busy time for them, and that Legislative Council meetings at this season of the year do present them with difficulties. Unfortunately this meeting could not be postponed any later than this, partly because of the fact that much of our business concerns fiscal measures, and it seemed a useful idea to take advantage of the presence of Mr Harry Ritchie, our Fiscal Adviser, who will be returning to the United Kingdom at the end of this week. But, more importantly, we had to watch the timing for the passage of some of the revenue measures, if we were to get them appropriately into effect from the beginning of the current assessment year.

This has sadly meant that we do not have with us this morning the Honourable Member for West Falkland. When we were considering fixing the date of the meeting, he did warn me that, at this time, he might be heavily engaged in shearing at Packe Brothers, Port Howard. I considered whether we could make any adjustment in the date to accommodate this but found, for the reasons I have stated, that it would not be practicable. He has asked for the indulgence of the House in not being able to attend, as he would very much have wished, and I must take the blame entirely upon myself.

In fact, much of our business during this meeting will, in a sense, be formal and preparatory. As the Honourable the Financial Secretary will explain later, we need to make a start on those fiscal measures which are designed to improve our long term revenue position, and on which we have had the valuable and detailed advice of our Fiscal Adviser. They stem, in part, from the recommendations of the Shackleton Report which were that we should endeavour to retain in the Islands the maximum amount we could of taxation from income and profits rather than have it go into the United Kingdom coffers - something which, I must acknowledge, Mr Mitchell of the Falkland Islands Company has been advocating for some time.

We shall also be making provision for the Government to raise loans for development and other purposes, a new departure in this Colony. This will allow the Government to meet the purchase price, £170,000, which we have now agreed with the Falkland Islands Company for the purchase of Green Patch. We shall be completing this transaction within a week or so and can then embark on the long awaited scheme for the sub-division of this farm, into suitable units, for purchase by individual farmers working on their own account. Had we been able to complete the transaction with the Company earlier, it might have been possible to contemplate finalising the sub-division at the end of the current production season. However, the best advice that we have had is that there is not now time enough to do this without rushing at it in what could be a disastrous fashion. There is a good deal of work still to be done in the delimitation of the five units out of six which will initially be for sale, at fair valuations within the reach of applicants, in the allocation of stock, and in the selection of successful applicants. If we are to do all this properly we are advised we should wait until the next season. This will give the new farmers a chance to work out their own plans for the future, and to get to know the land they will take over. In the meantime, suitable arrangements are being made with the Company for the proper maintenance of the farm and its various Camp sections.

The Steering Committee, which has been set up under the Chairmanship of the Honourable Member for East Falklands, to supervise the sub-division, will shortly be issuing a prospectus of invitation to applicants, and I hope all those who wish to participate in the scheme will respond to this invitation in full realisation of what they will be taking on, and what it will mean to the benefit of themselves and their families in the future. One thing I perhaps might make clear, at this point, is that the scheme is designed to enable individual farmers and their families to live and work on their own land and to develop it to the best of their ability. It would not be within the spirit of the scheme if the owners became absentee landlords, or if the units were merely joined with other existing farms, or utilised in a way that would not lead to their long-term betterment. The scheme is, as I say, to enable working farmers to have the chance to live and work on their own land. Long-term mortgages or loans at a fixed and subsidised rate of interest will be available for the successful applicants to purchase their units. All this will be explained in the prospectus.

If this scheme is a success, as I sincerely hope - I think we all do - it will be, then other landowners may possibly consider instituting similar schemes of their own. While the system of large-scale ranching has stood the Colony well in the past, it may be that the future will require some adaptation of the system to new methods if we are to keep up with the demands presently being placed on our not over large force of work people, and possibly attract new immigrants into our farming community. But, again, I should stress the Green Patch scheme is for the benefit of Islanders who wish to branch out on their own and try to make a go of it. Government will give them all the help they can.

Turning to another aspect of our affairs, I should say a few words about the recent trip your colleagues and I made to Rio de Janeiro to meet the Minister of State, following the recent round of Anglo-Argentine talks at Geneva in December. This again being a busy farming season, only a few of us were able to go. To those who did not, I can assure you it was by no means a jolly. Six 'plane journeys in as many days, with a whole day of talks with the Minister, was not, by any stretch of the imagination, a relaxing experience. But I think we found the meeting useful. We had a frank and full discussion with the Minister about what he had been trying to achieve at Geneva, and we had the opportunity to air our many problems and irritations to which he gave a sympathetic ear.

In brief, as we said when we reported back, the Minister has been endeavouring to reach an understanding with the Argentines on measures of co-operation to regulate the excessive exploitation of marine resources, particularly fish and krill, by third countries around the Dependencies, the main area of concentration of these resources. In the course of the Geneva talks an attempt was also made to draw up a scheme for scientific co-operation in the Dependencies. Frankly, as we heard at Rio, none of this has got very far and we were told there will be a further round of talks, at official level, in a few months' time. We can only wait to see what, if anything, emerges then.

While on the subject of maritime zones and fisheries development, one of the most useful visits we have had recently, amongst many others, was that of Drs Hall, Cole and Thorpe to investigate the potential for the establishment of an in-shore fishing industry - again, another of the Shackleton recommendations. Dr Hall and his colleagues arrived here in what seemed to me to be a sceptical mood, but left with the intention, as we understood it, of presenting a recommendation that a substantial pilot scheme should be instituted. We are now awaiting their report and hopefully this will lead to something that we desire above all else - a diversification of our economy away from its concentration on sheep farming which, nevertheless, must be, for as long as we can see, the mainstay of that economy. I have great hopes of this scheme, but we will need to press our interest in it to ensure it comes off.

Another useful visit was that of Mr Peirse, the Managing Director of the New Zealand Wool Board, who came to look at our marketing arrangements. We should be very grateful to such a distinguished adviser as Mr Peirse for giving up so much of his valuable time to look at our affairs. I found conversation with him very stimulating indeed, and while he did not hold out hopes that radical changes in our methods would be of possible advantage, we can, I am sure, look forward to the recommendations he will make in his report. At least it will help clear the air and remove what may be possible misconceptions about our marketing affairs.

Finally, in these few words, I notice on the Order Paper a number of Questions and Motions which seem to me to reflect a particular worry prevalent in the Islands. This is the protection of our territorial waters and our outlying islands, particularly those which are uninhabited. This is all very understandable and derives, of course, from the decrease in confidence felt after the illegal incursion into Southern Thule. But Southern Thule is some 1,200 miles away. It is easier to keep an eye on what is happening, or is likely to happen, nearer at home. Naturally, one of my responsibilities is to assess, in the light of all the evidence and advice available to me, whether we are in any danger of illegal incursions on our own shores. I am reasonably certain there is little chance of anything happening which we would not quickly get to know about.

On general shipping movements in our waters we do seek the help of the Masters of our visiting friendly ships. So far they have reported very little activity within anything like near proximity to the Falklands, although, as I am told, sightings are from time to time made off our coast. We must, of course, be vigilant, and we do need to know how much fishing activity is taking place, whether within or outside our territorial waters. The co-operation of the public is greatly needed in this. We ought to be aware of anything that passes closely to our shores, whether engaged in fishing or on other passage. But it would be helpful if clear and accurate information only is passed to the Harbour Master giving, as far as possible, the point of observation, the distance involved, the type of vessel and similar details. It would be best if this information is based on positive sighting and not hearsay. The Harbour Master will, as he does already, collate such information as comes to hand, to pass to me. At the moment, however, we can be fairly certain that the maritime traffic in our waters is not very great. I wish it were otherwise and that our seas were busy with licensed trawlers bringing fish to our ports for profitable export. It will come.

If I may end on a personal note: if I wanted further proof that we needed a good road across the busy Camp track to Darwin, I got it the hard way on my two-day trip by Rover a couple of weeks or so back. It was an enormous relief to get to the excellent job Mr Basil Morrison and his team of enthusiasts are making of the road. So far it has been difficult going, but they are getting well into the swing of it, and I understand new techniques involving plastic matting to go over the peat, with prefabricated culverting for the streams, will soon be brought into use, together with a new source of building material from along the track which will put an end to the bashing the heavy trucks are giving our town roads. Some of the team are having to be withdrawn to the airport to begin on the foundations for the new land-plane hangar, but the rest will carry on and I wish them good progress. My aching back told me that we need that road through as soon as it can be done.

Now, turning to the business of the day, after replies to this Address, Questions down for reply and Motions to be moved, we have a number of Bills, some of which I have already referred to, the main ones of which will, as I have said, concern our fiscal affairs.

MOTION OF THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT ON HIS ADDRESS TO COUNCIL

The Hon S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

In rising to support this Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency's Address I would like to say how encouraged I have been to see a movement in several of our major projects recently - in fact since we last met. Inevitably this progress places additional strain on our community, both economically and, to some degree, socially. I am also encouraged by the commitment to our future which is increasingly evident in all sections of our community. There are still those who appear to enjoy criticism for its own sake, offering few alternatives or constructive ideas, although happily such people are very much in the minority and are generally recognised for what they are. Obviously we do not get it right all the time and need good constructive criticism. Ideas on how we can improve things are an essential ingredient of our achieving an improved quality of life for everyone here.

I feel that the all-weather track, despite the constraints of far from ideal equipment and a critical shortage of manpower, is making good progress and the members of PATA are doing well with the resources we have. This is the approach we must all have to the obstacles we face: it is totally non-productive to lament on the past and those who do so are not helping us to lay foundations for the future. Of course there will be mistakes made, but with the advice of our friends and the support of the people here these will surely be outweighed by our achievements.

I was relieved to hear recently that better progress was being made on the construction of the school hostel; frankly I was becoming increasingly worried about this project. The hostel is central to our plans for the further improvement of education in the Islands and any undue delay is most unwelcome.

Emigration remains one of our most urgent problems and if we do not address ourselves urgently to the appalling housing shortage in Stanley we shall see more of our people, young and old, leave the Islands simply because we can offer them nowhere to live. This situation becomes all the more unacceptable when one considers the number of houses in Stanley which are empty or lived in for one week a year. We must encourage owners of such houses to rent them to those without homes. As with many things however the responsibility for improving this situation does not rest solely with Government; we must also look to the private sector to do better in this regard.

Another factor in our emigration problem are the Royal Marines. It is a fact that with the departure of each detachment of Marines we lose people we can ill afford to see go. I feel we should investigate the possibility of future detachments being married accompanied postings. It may be possible; we should at least ask.

/Whenever the

Whenever the possibility of diversifying our economy is discussed, tourism potential is always high on the list; it is true to say, though, that generally there is no wild enthusiasm for the idea. However in my view we must direct our thoughts more to this potential; it is one of all too few initiatives we can take which stands a real chance of significantly benefiting our revenues. We must obviously approach this with caution and to this end it would be helpful perhaps if we had the advice of someone well experienced in the tourism industry.

I would like to turn now to some matters which primarily concern those of us who live in Stanley.

At a previous session I expressed my concern over the dilapidated state of our public greens, the playing field and the Town Hall. I am glad to see that at least some work has been done in the Hall and I see some work is also being done around the playing field. However the field is still a mess and is more used as a grazing ground for the cattle which roam around town and about which the Departments involved seem to be able to do little. I accept that it is impossible to do everything at once, but this problem should take some priority; there could well be a tragic accident.

It seems that we have the effects of years of neglect to contend with and the PWD must take the bulk of the load; for this reason I feel we should urgently consider the formation of a committee to look after some of the smaller affairs here in Stanley and thus free the Public Works Department for more major work. Such a committee obviously would not work miracles but it would have the added advantage of involving more people in our day to day concerns.

Many people here in Stanley now use paraffin in their homes. It therefore caused considerable inconvenience when YPF again managed to run out of fuel. This did not say much for the detailed record the Administration was going to keep or for YPF's efficiency; in fact I thought that the Administration had given an assurance that YPF would be required to maintain minimum fuel stocks of an adequate amount. I have found however that they are not in fact; they in fact gave no such assurance, which does not say much for me. I do feel though that YPF should be required to maintain adequate stocks of fuel. These shortages cause much inconvenience and could cause hardship.

It would be wrong to comment on one shortage without mentioning another which also caused people in town inconvenience. That YPF should run out of paraffin was bad but that the FIC should be unable to supply us with mutton was incredible. The one thing we are not short of is sheep, yet for almost a week, if one was not fortunate enough to have a well-stocked deep-freeze, there was no fresh meat available.

/As I have said,

As I have said, we have the result of years of neglect to repair and at the same time we must push ourselves forward. I feel that despite everything, we are tackling the problems well, aided as we are by the advice and financial help we receive from Her Majesty's Government. Ultimately however success or failure rests on the degree of commitment of the people here. Money on its own is not enough.

I would like to say a little now about our external affairs. Our efforts to improve the lives of everyone here will not succeed unless they are matched by a positive attitude to the threat presented to our community by Argentina. Obviously if we are to remove this threat, we must talk to the other side. I feel and I have said so before that until we have resolved the problem we must carefully consider any extension to the communication and commercial links we presently have with that country. We should not think for a second that it is possible for us to have a purely commercial relationship with Argentina. Like it or not we have a problem which must be faced; it will not just disappear if we ignore it. It was in my view never inevitable that the negotiations would carry on as they have. They could well have broken down as a result of Argentine actions or for other reasons, which in my view would have been a disaster. They did not however and we have now arrived at the stage where we, the elected representatives of the people here, have outline schemes to consider. Whatever the circumstances there is in fact only one question to answer: whether or not the acceptance or rejection of any proposal will further the wish of everyone here that the Falkland Islands and the Falkland Islanders remain British.

As Councillors, we knew when we accepted our seats that we would not be in for a quiet time. We should not bleat now that it is also difficult; to do so is to admit that one is not up to the job. The people we represent rightly expect us to discharge our responsibilities properly, not just to sit and moan about how things ought to be and pass the buck. We must actively explore any possibility of removing this threat to our homes, and indignation and political paranoia are not in my view the answers to our situation.

Thank you.

The Hon A B Monk JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

I listened with great interest to Your Excellency's Address and also to the address of the Member from the West of Stanley and I think most things have already been said. I was very interested in Your Excellency's reference to our attempts to improve our long-term revenue position and the various Bills and schemes which are before us now and of which we will hear more later on. I think some of these schemes are long overdue and the reform to our tax system should have taken place long ago.

/With regard to

With regard to Stanley housing, which is obviously a very critical area, it does seem to me that if there are a lot of houses in Stanley which are only occupied, as the Hon Member said, for very short periods of time, why can't we by compulsory purchase take them over for people that deserve them. After all, it would be very much in the public interest to do that, surely.

Your Excellency referred to the Green Patch scheme at some length and obviously as the Chairman of the Committee that is supposed to untangle it all I am very interested as presumably if it fails or we have any problems it will be known for the rest of history as Monk's folly or something like that.

One mention I would like to make concerning Your Excellency's speech in which you referred to the sections for sale. I think possibly that might mislead members of the public slightly in that we are not intending to sell the freehold of the sections but to sell the long-term lease of the sections: 99 years being our idea, which virtually gives complete ownership to anyone purchasing the lease. Our idea is that we do not, as Your Excellency said, wish the sections to be re-sold to neighbouring large farms and merely joined on in that way. That is not our idea at all.

As Your Excellency said, this scheme is for the benefit of Islanders wishing to start farming, and we hope it will lead to other schemes. Your Excellency did refer to other farms perhaps considering similar schemes, and I think it is very unlikely that the owner or owners of a farm would happily sell it off to Government with the idea of it being divided up into smaller farms along the Green Patch lines.

In connection with that again, I think we owe a great debt to The Falkland Islands Company for allowing us to take the Green Patch area over and try this scheme, but I think it is unlikely that other farms would very readily fall in for that way of thinking. I do think they might fall in for a scheme of taking some tenants in certain areas of a farm. Now, knowing the Falkland Islander's mind, the words 'tenant' and 'tenancy' are rather dirty terms but if I may say so, the Falkland Islanders have not had experience of what a good tenancy agreement means - nor have the owners. In fact a good tenancy agreement, as those of us who know about it can say, is of great benefit to the tenants and of great benefit to the owner, and is also of benefit to the country itself as it leads to improvement.

Now I would like at this stage to say that most of the ideas about tenancy have been put into my head by a gentleman named Mr J Clement, who has recently returned to our midst. Mr Clement, too, is a great expert on Green Patch, having managed the area in conjunction with Fitzroy for many years and having arranged for it to become a separate section. Therefore, the Committee of which I am Chairman has proposed to Mr Clement that he should become an ex-officio or advisory member so that we can get his expertise and perhaps proceed better. I am happy to say that he has accepted this, and I think as a Committee we are greatly strengthened by having his experience at our disposal.

Your Excellency mentioned the attempts of getting co-operation agreements with Argentina on the resources, especially in the Dependencies area, and scientific co-operation. I think any co-operation that we can get with Argentina must be of benefit to us, provided they don't mean any infringement whatsoever in our sovereignty position, and I think that Councillors who went to Rio and Councillors who went to other places and met Minister Ted Rowlands and other Ministers have made quite clear that that is our firm position here.

Your Excellency mentioned briefly wool marketing and I thought the visit of Mr Peirse was very important as there has been some disquiet that we were being taken for a ride with regard to wool marketing and so forth, and Mr Peirse was a very experienced man, we were very lucky to get him, and a very practical man indeed. It was quite evident from talks with him that in fact we are getting our marketing quite cheaply here, cheaper than New Zealand does, but we do possibly lack the information on market trends and I gather Mr Peirse is going to see whether that can't be rectified and so that we can get up-to-date information on market trends, which will of course hopefully enable us to sell at the right time at better prices.

I was very heartened to hear Your Excellency's reference to a Camp road, which I think is of paramount importance to any future development in the Colony and I must say I think enormous praise must go to Mr Basil Morrison for his efforts in that direction. I think that they've really done very well indeed considering the problems they've had and, as the Hon Member for West Stanley said, it was deplorable that Stanley should run out of mutton recently but probably if we'd had a Camp road system, a lorry-load of mutton could have been brought in quite easily at that time. Certainly we have plenty of mutton standing about at San Carlos which we would have been absolutely delighted to have got in had we been able to have done so.

I would like to thank Your Excellency for your Address.

The Hon W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

I would like to thank you for your Address to Council this morning, Sir, and for the various points you brought forward and the confidence you have in the future planning of the Colony as a whole.

/The pilot scheme

The pilot scheme for inshore fishing I think should go ahead as soon as possible. I think there is very good potential here and this is a project I would certainly like to see go ahead.

Your confidence in the Darwin road and in the people working on it is also very heartening and I too would like to join with my colleagues in wishing this project well. It's got a long way to go and I think with the teething troubles they've had, as they go on things will hopefully get better. And now that we know that when the road is finished we can get some mutton from San Carlos if we run out in Stanley, I think that, too, is a very reassuring factor!

The landplane hangar I think is also of paramount importance, because without the hangar we won't get the 'plane, and the diversion of labour to erect and lay the foundations for the hangar is naturally going to hold things back for a while, but I think we have to accept this. With all the problems we've had with the seaplanes recently, we'll need another 'plane to carry more passengers faster to the settlements which have already got strips on which the landplane can land. I am a little apprehensive as to whether a landplane is going to be better than a seaplane, but I'm afraid I have to take the advice from the CAA chaps who came down here and made an excellent report and it seems in theory that it's going to work and it's going to save an awful lot of problems in the future.

I also look forward to the outcome of the forthcoming meeting between the two parties involved in scientific co-operation and exploitation of natural resources in the South Atlantic and no doubt we'll be informed about this in due course.

I too would like to lend my blessing to the success of Green Patch and I hope all goes well there.

I would like to support the Motion.

The Hon T J D Miller

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

I would like to make the main theme of my reply to your Address that of development, in particular I am referring to constructive industrial development, rather than development of infrastructure. We have the road project going ahead, which we are all agreed we very badly need, and the road system is essential to the long-term future of these Islands. The same with the forthcoming changeover - or not actually changeover, but mixture - of land and seaplanes for the Air Service: this also is something which we very much need and will make life a lot easier in the future.

/Similarly

Similarly the hostel project, which we need for long-term improvements to the educational system in these Islands. But the fact remains that neither of these things will produce revenue in the near future: a road system we hope and we expect in the long term would produce revenue indirectly. But all these projects are going to incur us in more expenditure in their recurrent costs of maintenance etc and while we only have one industry there is a limit to the amount of revenue through taxation and other means which we can get from that source. We are doing very well with our postage stamps, which is now our second industry, so to speak, but even that, if we wish to maintain the high standards that we do, has its limits. Therefore it is of primary importance that we seek new sources of revenue in these Islands, and the two which seem most promising are those of tourism and fishing.

At this stage tourism is the only one on which we have a definite proposal, that of the Fitter venture. I was pleased therefore when last October we felt ourselves able to give this project the go-ahead and see if the people concerned, the commercial organisations concerned, can get it off the ground. I certainly very much hope that they can.

I was very much interested in what you said, Your Excellency, regarding an inshore fishing industry. I am quite sure this is going to come and we need it as soon as possible, because otherwise in a few years' time, the way our expenditure is increasing on our social services - which we need in order not only to keep the people that are here but also to encourage further immigration from the United Kingdom and elsewhere - but these social services are getting more and more expensive to run each year and our present situation regarding revenue has its limitations. Therefore I think it's essential that we look for development - revenue producing development - wherever we can. In this connection I am pleased that we have some taxation proposals coming up now, and more I believe are in the pipeline, to improve the situation regarding the money that is produced in these Islands.

There are too few people in these Islands, and I don't think we are ever going to manage to develop until we can stop the emigration and encourage immigration. We very badly need a constructive immigration policy. I understand that there are labour problems in the British Islands of St Helena in the South Atlantic; it would be very interesting to see what these problems are and if in fact there are people there who can be of some use in these Islands, who have skills that are needed here and who might be prepared to come.

We can't afford to be pessimistic about our future; pessimism is the road to defeat. The indications are in fact that things are beginning to look optimistic. We have these infrastructure projects starting, there are, as I've said, the possibilities of tourism and fishing: things are starting to look optimistic. Development is starting to happen here, albeit slowly. I know some members of our community are very critical of the road project and even of the Islander aircraft project; but these people don't seem to have much to offer in their place. In fact one even hears stories of "Ah, but the road is a trick on behalf of the British Government to depopulate the Islands"...No doubt other people have experienced the same as I have, over the past few months I've received letters from people in England, people that used to work here, people who visited here, and quite a number of them say "I hear that things are starting to happen in the Falklands", and that's quite right: things are starting to happen. It will take a long while, but we have made a start. No doubt there will be mistakes made, obviously we can't do everything right. We are trying to make a start.

Your Excellency, regarding our external affairs and our relations vis-a-vis Argentina, I am far less preoccupied with this now than I was last year. The talks are slowly proceeding; it will be some time before any major result, if any, comes out or before there is any major agreement possible. If and when that happens I assume that if there is a major agreement that we consider worthwhile it will be put in the form of a referendum or an election to the Islanders to have their say in it. I have been very reassured by the frequent assurances that we have received from the British Government and from the Minister of State about our future. I believe that the British Government has no intention of transferring sovereignty or agreeing to a diminution of British sovereignty over the Falkland Islands at any time in the future should it be against our wishes.

I am also very grateful for the openness with the Minister of State; we are continually being kept fully in the picture with the state of play of the negotiations. Nobody can say that something is being done behind our backs. I know a lot of people are wondering what went on in Geneva, why nothing has been said, but as you yourself said, Sir, it is because things are in a preparatory stage. There is nothing definite yet, there is nothing for anybody to get excited about, and discussions between us on this Council and the Foreign Office on these various aspects of the Geneva talks are continuing. We don't want to rush into any hasty decisions. I certainly don't think that there is any chance whatsoever of this Council agreeing to any proposal that in any way represented a diminution of British sovereignty over the Falkland Islands or the Dependencies. I think people can rest assured that there is nothing to get worried about.

I am particularly interested in the fishing that is going on around the Dependencies. So far as we know at present, somewhere between 500,000 and three quarters of a million tons of fish a year from the waters around the Dependencies, and this figure is likely to increase greatly in the not too distant future. It is essential that we get some sort of co-operation agreement with Argentina to restrict and control this fishing by third party countries, even if we can't actually agree between us and Argentina who those waters belong to. Surely, I would hope, that we could agree who they don't belong to, and both sides would be able to benefit from an agreement.

Turning to some of our internal problems, particularly the Air Service; everybody in Camp and I think in Stanley, is very well aware of the Air Service and the problems that they've experienced with their aircraft recently and are still experiencing, and bad weather doesn't help very much either when they have only one 'plane and are trying to get as many flying hours in as possible, and we are all very grateful for the work that not only the pilots but particularly the ground staff in the Air Service are doing, and the long hours that I know are worked in that hangar to keep one or the other of those aircraft in the air. The sooner we can get the landplane (the Islander) the better. There is one thing, though, concerning the Islander; a number of the smaller farms I know have airstrip sites that have been picked out, but for obvious reasons those farms, many of them small family farms, have neither the manpower nor the machinery to prepare the strips, and I would hope that Government can find one way or another to co-operate with those farms where possible to enable them to borrow machinery and manpower from wherever they can -possibly if they can borrow machinery from a neighbouring farm, Government could help with the transportation of tractors and rotavators and such like with m.v. "Forrest" where it can fit in with the Marines' programme; possibly we might ask future Marine detachments if they might be able to assist from time to time to actually work on these airstrips on some of the smaller farms which, through no fault of their own, cannot prepare them themselves.

I was pleased to hear constructive news about the Green Patch project and I think we are certainly doing the right thing in not rushing into it this year and then finding out too late that serious mistakes have been made, because we cannot let this project fail. I don't think it will fail, I am quite sure it is going to succeed, and if it succeeds it will be very hard for some of the major landowners in the future to resist the demand for sub-division of the land and for small farming, be it on a sale basis or on a tenancy basis.

Your Excellency, I would like to support the Motion.

The Hon W H Goss MBE JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

Just a few words, I don't intend to say a lot. Regarding Green Patch, you are probably right in restricting this to Islanders only initially, but should this prove a success and if there are further sub-divisions, I don't think it should be restricted solely to Islanders. Here again, we'll have to define who or what an Islander is: is it someone just born here, is it somebody who's lived here for a period of time. With the Green Patch project, if the people who take the farm over - or the units - have ideas of ranching as it has always been done in the Colony, this will be of no benefit; it will not be development. It will have to be people who intend farming - it's got to be a break-away from the old ranching system. When it comes to farming, then, there has got to be some way of the produce being able to get out if they diversify.

/have to define

Inshore fishing I think is a long way off, I may be wrong. We can't get labour into the Colony to support the farming industry, or to build the road, or to build the school hostel, or the various other projects. So where are you getting the labour for the inshore fishing, and the factory that is going to have to process the fish that are caught?

As has been mentioned in the past by one of your predecessors, there ought to be plenty to keep us on our toes; we should not stagnate. I think stagnation is one of the downfalls of the Colony; the Colony's been stagnating for a long time, you've only got to look at the farming industry for that. And we are still in a state of stagnation.

You didn't mention education, Sir. I think education is one of the most important things in this Colony regarding keeping people here, and I am very encouraged and very pleased that education, I think, is now on the right track; I think it is doing well, and let us hope that it continues. If it does you will I think keep more people in the Colony, provided they are not chased out afterwards if they learn too much. It has happened.

Regarding the school and Darwin road, I am afraid I totally disagree with other Members on the state of their progress. I think that admittedly it is due largely to shortage of labour and expertise perhaps, or leadership. But I'm not at all satisfied with the progress of either, particularly the Darwin road. I went along there on Sunday to have a look and I have grave reservations about what has been done so far. I hope there will be a switch to a different method to all that clay that is piled up on to the road with a ditch right alongside of it; in my opinion a few heavy rains like the one we've just had, and frost this winter, you'll find the road - or a great part of it - going on to the football pitch.

The airfields in the Camp have been mentioned, and the transport of equipment that could be lent for hire to other farms. One thing we've got to realise is that we haven't got anything in the Colony that could transport equipment, beyond two tons, unless it can be run off the ship and run on and the stability of both "Forrest" and "Monsumen" leaves a margin on just how much you could carry on the hatch-tops of the ships. Besides, you need a good solid jetty where they come on to the ship and a good solid jetty where they come off again. When it comes to islands improving airstrips, there's just not the means of transport here to get any machinery to or from the islands.

I beg to support the Motion.

The Hon the Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I would like to confine my remarks to the finances of the Colony and I take the point made by the Hon Elected Member for East Falkland when he said that much of the tax reform legislation was overdue. He is quite right. At last we are getting somewhere in this direction; much work has been done by the Fiscal Adviser already and he is still continuing to keep my desk fully covered, and although in many ways I'll be sorry to see him leave on Friday, he's such a wonderful colleague and has great experience, at last I'll be able to see my desk!

What we have for this meeting mainly relates to Company Tax and Employment Tax, which are the two large items affecting revenue and now we have got them on the Table I trust Hon Members will not wish to defer them to the next meeting. However, we'll not push them too hard and ensure that every clause is considered very carefully and if need be we will go into Select Committee and Mr Ritchie is standing by to offer his services to Members of Council.

The Bills are very important because they affect, I think, just about everybody in the Islands and I think the intentions of them are exceptionally good. Obviously I must leave the explanations for later in the day.

We do have a challenge in our economic problems and we will certainly do our best to overcome them. We have already circulated this morning to Hon Members the papers on budget preparations, budget projections for the next three years, various methods for raising revenue, and although these at this stage are confidential, we trust to have all these matters before Council at the Budget meeting next May or June.

I beg to support the Motion.

The Hon the Chief Secretary

Sir, in rising to associate myself with the Motion of Thanks for your Address this morning, I have always had from my Honourable Colleagues around the Table a rich quarry of ideas on which the Administration can draw when contemplating and planning for the future, everything from possible compulsory purchasing of houses, a tourism adviser, a committee to look after town affairs, and a variety of other things; this is all immensely useful to us.

I think there are one or two points that I would like to enlarge on, and I think my Hon Colleague the Financial Secretary touched on it when he said that this morning a number of papers had been distributed to Members which are, in the jargon of Government, "think-pieces". I think that this is the important stage we are beginning to reach in Government now: we are getting sufficient support and advice of very high quality to enable us to sit back and think about what we are doing and where we are going rather than responding simply to the day-to-day crises which inevitably happen, and I think this is an important element which from where the Financial Secretary and I sit is very reassuring.

/In particular

In particular you and my Colleague for East Falkland have touched on the visit of Mr Peirse. He was a man of very high calibre and great pragmatism and I think that he represented something more: he was the second person who came to us under the auspices of the Commonwealth Technical Co-operation Fund, and I think it is important that we remark this because here is yet another source of expertise. We do well from the British Ministry of Overseas Development but we have been well served by the Commonwealth Fund both in Mr Peirse and with Mr Kanagasabai, who leaves us at the beginning of March after a very successful assignment. If we could get people of this calibre from the Commonwealth I think this will enrich us not just technically but in our social and political links with our sister countries of the Commonwealth.

A number of points were made by the Honourable Member for Camp opposite me about the importance of industrial development and I sympathise with all the points he made. This is clearly the next stage we have to grapple with but it is very important for people at large to remember that we are not going to succeed in encouraging any industrial development here till we get our infrastructure right, and in particular a question which a number of Members have touched on, about housing. All our problems are inter-related. We can't encourage industrial development until there is the infrastructure which will encourage commercial companies to look at us. We can't have a viable immigration policy until we have got housing - sufficient housing, particularly in Stanley. We can't have sufficient housing until we've got the labour to construct it. These are not insoluble problems. That is what Government is about, not to create problems but to solve them, and the great merit of some of the development projects - notably the road - is that it is teaching us the skills we need in tackling the problems. I do not share the despondency of my Colleague from Stanley East about the road construction; there is an immense enthusiasm in the gang for this but more important they are learning techniques and skills which we can put to use when we tackle the other projects which are inevitably going to attain, because development is a growth and an inevitable growth; we build upon foundations we are laying, and I think this is the spirit, which is the important thing. It is the confidence and a mood and a will to succeed, and if we can build on this we will achieve it.

I think there is only one other point that I need to mention here, Sir, and this is the question of the pilot study for the inshore fishing. This is as you rightly stressed a key, the next key, together with the Grasslands Trials Unit, in developing the natural resources that we have here. But I think we must realise that before we move into exploitation of resources we have to identify exactly what they are, and this is what the first stage of this scheme will be - a rather long process, a thorough process, of identifying precisely what fish lie close inshore here, for this is something which none of us know and then, having identified it, to ensure that we can exploit it. Because we are looking for particular types of fish - fish of low bulk and high value - and we have reason to believe that we have these, but just where they are and in what quantities, we have to determine, and so all of us share your hope and expectation that we shall hear very soon from Dr Hall and his colleagues and have some proposals with which to grapple.

Having said that, Sir, I think I can say no more. Thank you.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

No 1 of 1979 by the Hon S B Wallace

What response has Her Majesty's Government made to the Motion carried at the June 1978 meeting of this House requesting that Falkland Islanders be granted the right of abode in the United Kingdom?

Chief Secretary

Sir, as a result of the Motion last June, appropriate representations were made without delay to the British Government through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, who have confirmed to us that they have submitted the matter to the Home Office for formal consideration in the course of the review of the British Nationality Act, but a formal response is still awaited and it is my understanding this may yet take some considerable time. Meanwhile Government have been encouraged to receive advice from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office about how best they might pursue this matter with the Home Office and, in the light of this advice, a further submission is being prepared as a matter of urgency.

No 2 of 1979 by the Hon S B Wallace

What plans are there for improving the housing situation in Stanley?

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Administration are exploring a number of possible ways of tackling this problem, which may fairly be said to be one which is crucial for the well-being and development of the Colony. As Honourable Members no doubt realise, the main constraint upon our building of houses is the acute shortage of labour. Consequently we are trying to identify a type of easily constructed house that both suits local conditions and is also within a reasonable price range. The design which we asked the British Building Research Establishment to prepare especially for us unfortunately did not meet our criteria. However we believe we may now have identified a possible housing unit. The basic cost of this is £16,100 Freight on Board in Britain, and with shipping and erection costs the total cost will be something over £20,000 for a basic three-roomed terraced house. This is rather more than we had hoped to pay so we are still searching for something rather cheaper. At the same time we have been having discussions with the Ministry of Overseas Development about the problem of financing the building of houses. There are two distinct and separate aspects of these discussions: firstly we are examining the possibility of the Ministry providing funds to build houses exclusively for the use of Technical Co-operation officers; the erection of such houses would then free some existing ones for the use of local people, and eventually add of course to our basic housing stock. Additionally we are exploring the possibility of floating a special loan with which to fund the purchase and erection of houses for purely local purposes.

/the main constraint

There is one other point I ought to mention - as Honourable Members are aware, we are converting No.1 Moody Street into four self-contained housing units. The Public Works Department are already looking into the possibility of converting other similar Government properties into similar units to augment our existing housing stock.

Finally, having described what Government is trying to do, I might perhaps place on formal record the hope and the expectation of Government that the private sector and the sheep industry would also consider how best they can help us tackle this fundamental problem.

S B Wallace

I thank the Hon the Chief Secretary for his most excellent reply. Could he tell me whether or not Alginat Industries have been approached regarding the purchase or selling of their hostel on Racecourse Road ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, we haven't yet approached Alginat Industries about this but we have it very much in mind and indeed we received yesterday from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office a message confirming that Alginat Industries have been taken over by a foreign company and they are promising further information about this, because this lends a new aspect to this particular problem. But the point which the Hon Member I think is making is something which we do have very much in mind.

A B Monk

Your Excellency, we hear that there are a lot of houses empty in Stanley, or very infrequently occupied. If all these houses were available to the public, would that in fact take care of our housing position, would we then not have to look around for ways of building expensive new houses ?

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

It would certainly ease the situation, Sir, if these houses could be made available, but I doubt if it would solve the problem because the houses which are empty are very often used by people or they have plans for their use, but I think it would go some way to solving the short-term problem if more housing could be made available; I doubt that it would solve the problem, and certainly not if we initiate a policy of immigration.

Ho 3 of 1979 by the Hon S B Wallace

Which airlines were approached regarding the possibility of their operating to the Falkland Islands and what responses were received?

Chief Secretary

I regret, Sir, that I am unable to provide the details of the actual airlines that were approached; those are not on the record. But with your permission I shall read the written reply given by my Honourable predecessor in response to a similar question which was asked in this House in June 1976. That answer should serve to clarify why my own has had to be negative. I quote:

"Through Her Majesty's Government and Her Majesty's Embassies, the Falkland Islands Government has approached several countries on the Latin American mainland to enquire if their respective airlines would have any interest in operating between the mainland and the Falklands, it being understood the normal criterion of economic feasibility would apply. I regret that I am not able to be specific as to the exact number of airlines, as the approach was made on a government to government basis. The Governments in Latin America sometimes operate or participate in the operation of more than one airline. You should know that none of these approaches has resulted in any positive response and British Caledonian has intimated to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office that they do not contemplate a direct link to the Colony."

T J D Miller

Sir, would it be possible for this Government to ask non-South American airlines if they would be interested in coming here at all - European or African airlines as well?

Chief Secretary

It would certainly be possible for this Government to make exploratory approaches but to the best of my knowledge the commercial constraints which inhibited airlines in 1976 still apply and my understanding, having indeed had some exploratory discussions with members of the British Civil Aviation Department who were here, is that any commercial airline which makes Stanley the terminal point on its route, would have to face the capital and recurrent costs of providing a service hangar, a ground maintenance crew and certainly a permanent station manager, but the possibilities of our making an approach certainly exist.

/route

T J D Miller

Your Excellency, have the approaches been made to airlines asking them if they would be interested to operate a commercial service to the Falklands or would they be interested as an alternative to operate a charter service to the Falklands ?

Chief Secretary

I am not certain that I understand the distinction between a charter and a commercial service, because a charter service unless it is commercially viable would not succeed, but I think the same constraints apply; if you are going to operate here as a terminal point you've got to have the terminal facilities.

No 4 of 1979 by the Hon A B Monk

Will the Chief Secretary please tell me briefly what are the present regulations with regard to the importation of single and married Chilean labour ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, Chilean workers whether married or single are subject to exactly the same regulations as all other persons entering the Colony to work, that is to say the Immigration Officer may issue an employment permit to any immigrant who has entered into a contract of service, provided that person is not a prohibited immigrant. Applications for such permits are normally sought before the person arrives in the Colony. However the Immigration regulations also make provision for the issue of a Special Permit to allow someone seeking work to enter the Colony provisionally. All applications for permits, Sir, of whatever category, are judged on their merits.

A B Monk

Thank you. Has the Honourable Member any knowledge of a private agreement being made between the General Employees' Union and the Falkland Islands Company about the importation of Chilean labour which would allow quite large numbers to come into the Camp, but not into Stanley ?

Chief Secretary

Yes, Sir, I can confirm that Government has knowledge of this. In fact Government itself received a joint representation from the Falkland Islands Sheepsowers' Association and from the General Employees' Union, indicating that the present acute shortage of labour in Camp might be alleviated by the importation of Chilean labour. The Government regards this as a palliative measure rather than a solution to the Colony's basic labour problem. Nonetheless

/it did not feel it did not feel able, or did not want, to stand in the way of employers who wish to bring in Chileans as contract labour, a practice which I believe has been continued for many many years.

A B Monk

Thank you. Is it not a fact that this private agreement in fact specified that the Chilean labour would not be brought into Stanley ?

Chief Secretary

The letter I recall, Sir, was not specific. It just said it was "up to 70 workers for Camp", it didn't specify Stanley at all.

A B Monk

Thank you. Does not the Administration think that this policy is wrong and that any employer anywhere who can give good reason for wanting to employ foreign nationals should be allowed to do so subject to the persons being of suitable character ?

Chief Secretary

I'm not certain that I have understood that supplementary question, Sir. The Administration does not take a view of the merits on things, it offers advice to Government on how any policy should be perhaps regarded. I think if the Hon Member is saying that would it not be possible to get labour from other sources, I think everybody would welcome this, but the Administration's view, if it has one, is that it is not able to stand in the way of farms recruiting people from Chile if they need them.

A B Monk

Thank you. I think the Honourable Member misunderstood my question. What I am trying to say is that apparently the private agreement differentiated between Camp and Stanley. Does not the Administration think that this policy is wrong and that any employer, whether in Stanley or the Camp, should be allowed to import foreign nationals if he can make a good case for their employment and if the persons he wants to bring in are suitable.

Chief Secretary

I am grateful to the Honourable Member for clarifying the point. I certainly had misunderstood. I think he is right, yes, if there is a labour shortage in Camp which can be alleviated by bringing in foreign nationals, I think the same is true for Stanley. I ought perhaps to clarify that this is not an agreement; it was simply an approach by the Sheepowners and the Union to sound out Government for a view on the proposal, but I think his basic point is correct: if it's good for Camp, it's probably no less good for Stanley.

/ A B Monk

A B Monk

Does not the Honourable gentleman think that the importation of large numbers of Chileans to one section of the Colony will have the effect of lowering standards in that area and further emphasise the regrettable division between Camp and Stanley ?

Chief Secretary

I find it hard to judge what the effect would be, Sir, in lowering standards, because I am not a farmer and I have virtually no experience of Camp, but I think I understand the point that the Hon Member is trying to make.

A B Monk

Thank you. Does not the Hon Member think that by importing large numbers of Chilean labour to the Camp or to Stanley or to anywhere into the Colony, in fact we are in effect diluting one of the main planks of our sovereignty position, in that this is an old British Colony ?

Chief Secretary

I think that if there were dilution of the Colony population in this way, Sir, the point the Hon Member is making is a valid one. My understanding of this is that this would be a short-term way of solving a current problem, not a long term one.

No 5 of 1979 by the Hon A B Monk

There have been complaints by local tourist operators that the fare rate for visitors flying by FIGAS is far too high and that it is inhibiting the growth of tourism. Can the Administration tell the House whether these fare rates cover the costs of flying tourists to the far West; if not does the extra revenue that Government presumably gets from profits on tourism, fill the gap ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, it is impossible for FIGAS to calculate whether or not its fare rates cover the full cost of flying tourists, since so much depends upon the load factor on any particular flight. FIGAS calculate the actual operating costs at a little over £100 per flying hour. If I may take an example, the average return flight time to New Island is 2½ hours and the actual operating cost therefore £252. With a Beaver fully loaded, receipts from flying four adult passengers to New Island at non-resident rates would be £153. With no inbound traffic at all an operating loss of £90 would be incurred, but with a full return load at non-resident rates an operating profit of £73 would be made. By comparison, receipts for the same flight both ways at resident rates and fully loaded, would be £116.40, an operating loss of £135.88. Operating costs do not at present take into account the depreciation of the aircraft, cost of pensions, gratuities, administration and other related costs. The Fiscal Adviser estimated last year that taking these elements into account also FIGAS operations were subsidised to the extent of about 64% from general revenue.

/present take into account

In answer to the second part of the Hon Member's question, it is again not possible for Government to calculate what profits it may derive from tourism, since this accrues almost exclusively from the direct taxation of profits of companies and to individuals and tax returns naturally do not show any split between residents and non-residents. I cannot of course comment on whether the rate for non-residents is too high or not because it was set at the last Budget Meeting of this Council by the Select Committee on Expenditure on which both the Hon Member and I served. I might perhaps add that the whole fare structure of FIGAS will be scrutinised by the Management Consultant who will be provided by the Ministry of Overseas Development to help us introduce the Islander service. Nevertheless, Mr Davis, the Economic Adviser to the Directorate of Overseas Operational Services, of the Civil Aviation Authority, who visited the Islands last August, commented in his official report that the fares policy, with its differential between residents and non-residents, was in his view structurally correct.

No 6 of 1979 by the Hon A B Monk

The value of the land through which the Camp road will run will be greatly enhanced as a result. Some share of the additional wealth created should accrue to the general taxpayer. What steps have been taken to ensure this happens?

Chief Secretary

Sir, whilst informal discussions have already begun with the appropriate landowners about the question of what is generally termed "the betterment value" which might accrue to the public interest, just how to achieve this equitably is a problem which has confounded governments with considerably more expert advisers than we possess. Accordingly we are seeking advice from Britain about how we might best proceed with this significant matter.

A B Monk

Why is it that our Legal Adviser can draft multi-paged Bills such as the Interpretation and General Clauses Bill, and Matrimonial Causes Bill, and yet we cannot get on with a piece of legislation which is of vital importance to the Colony?

Chief Secretary

I did not wish to imply in my answer any criticism of the abilities of our Legal Adviser to draft legislation. I think what we need advice on is how the legislation should be framed, and this is a matter, as I pointed out in my original answer, of considerable difficulty of the way forward. I think if we provide our Legal Adviser with the appropriate instructions he can no doubt frame the appropriate legislation.

/original answer,

What would be the increased running costs of Stanley Airport if the runway were extended by 1,000 metres, strengthened if necessary and the airport building enlarged, to handle a charter 707 with a 50% passenger payload ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, with the best will in the world, there are too many imponderable factors in the Honourable Member's question for me to give him any precise answer. For example, the recurrent costs of heating, lighting and staffing any enlarged terminal building, would be entirely dependent upon just how that extension were designed and constructed. Moreover, if any such extension were built, it would need to accommodate not just half the payload of a Boeing 707 but the full complement of 180 passengers and indeed even the potentially larger number of passengers that more modern short take-off aircraft are capable of carrying. It has therefore not been possible to calculate just what these extra costs might be without having exact designs.

Similarly, the cost of handling increased passengers would largely depend upon the frequency with which larger aircraft were landing at the airport. Additionally, an extended runway would need to be maintained and protected as well as fitted with more and certainly more sophisticated landing aids to accommodate commercial aircraft.

Until some specialist designs were available to Government the calculation of any costs would simply have to be guesswork. Nevertheless the Airport Superintendent has reckoned that it could be as much as £75,000 a year. I regret, Sir, that I have not been able to give the Hon Member a more precise reply.

T J D Miller

The Civil Aviation Authority in London, I understand, accept that the present facilities in Stanley Airport are capable of handling larger aircraft. Could the Hon Member confirm that this is so or if he cannot confirm it could he enquire what the situation is ?

Chief Secretary

I can't confirm the view of the Civil Aviation Authority because I have not discussed it with them or seen any comment that they have made. The constraint of our present airport is that it is barely large enough to take the full passenger complement, even then operating under limits, of an F28. No doubt if we did get 90 people off a Boeing 707 we would manage to get them through the airport in its present building, but it would cause a great deal of difficulty, I think.

No 8 of 1979 by the Hon T J D Miller

How much revenue would Stanley Airport have received from LADE for landing and parking fees in 1978 if LADE were not exempt from such fees ?

Chief Secretary

During the period 1st January to 31st December 1978 there were a total of 109 landings by LADE aircraft at Stanley Airport, 60 by the F27, 41 by the F28 and 8 by the Guarani. The total fees payable for such landings would have been £5,485, with parking charges of a further £345. The total figure that could have been recovered from LADE would therefore have been £5,830.

No 9 of 1979 by the Hon T J D Miller

When did m.v. "Forrest" last carry out a routine inspection of Beauchene Island and the Jason Islands ? Will inspections of these isolated islands be carried out at intervals ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, because of the many other tasks which the "Forrest" undertakes, it is unable to make regular inspections of either Beauchene Island or the Jason Islands. They can only be considered as the opportunities occur. However as you yourself have indicated in your Address to us, Sir, the most reasonable assessment is that nothing untoward is on present evidence likely to happen on those islands. However the Hon Member may be reassured to know that the Masters of all ships regularly using our waters have been asked to keep a watch-out and to report any unusual activity that they may observe on any of the uninhabited islands. The Lindblad Explorer on a recent voyage has been close to Beauchene and to the Jasons and saw nothing except prolific wildlife. The "Forrest" did in fact visit Elephant and South Jason on the 30th of September last year, and will I understand be leaving tomorrow for Steeple and Grand Jason.

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

Appendix I.

MOTIONS

Motion by the Honourable the Financial Secretary:

That it be resolved that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period 24 June 1978 to 13 December 1978 be adopted.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, the Standing Finance Committee of this House met on four occasions between June and December of 1978 and approved the following additional provision: for the financial year 1977/78 £1,715,202 and for 1978/79 £331,708.

I should explain that these very large sums relate mainly to the development of the Colony. Of the very large sum in 1977/78 of £1.7 million, £1.6 million related to the construction of the permanent airfield. This was the year in which we had to settle the claim with the construction firm, and this was reimbursed in full by Her Majesty's Government.

With regard to the £331,000 approved for 1978/79, this again relates largely to development expenditure, mainly that proportion of expenditure required to be met from Colony funds for development projects financed by Her Majesty's Government - for instance the local costs of the hangar, £41,000, and a mobile stone crusher, £20,000.

We also had heavy expenditure in refunding tax which we overcharged due to late presentation of accounts - we had to refund some £50,000. It also covers £77,000 from a grant from HMG for the rehabilitation and storage of the PWD equipment acquired under the Airport Contract.

As the Report does not contain any items of expenditure not approved, I beg to move that the Report be adopted without debate.

The Motion was seconded by the Honourable the Chief Secretary and carried.

Motion by the Hon S B Wallace:

That this House would welcome a declaration by Her Majesty's Government of a 200-mile maritime zone around the Falkland Islands and Dependencies.

S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Hon Members, I would like to make it clear at the outset that this is in no way a demand for immediate action; I think that would be ridiculous. The aim of this Motion is to underline a concern which I have and I hope other Members share, for the continued harvesting by vessels of other nations of what should be our resources. As things stand we don't even have the power to protest about it. It is said that we could not police such a zone and that of course is true; but there is also a very real possibility that we could gain some revenue from issuing licenses. At present we are forced to stand by helplessly while we see our resources plundered without receiving a penny. Any degree of control would be better than this.

/I do not intend to go

I do not intend to go into the political dimensions of this matter but it must be obvious that Her Majesty's Government would have to take this into account in considering such a declaration.

To summarise, it is my view that due regard should be taken of a special situation; Her Majesty's Government should waste no time ensuring that the resources around the Falkland Islands and Dependencies benefit our revenues, not solely those of other countries, as is happening now.

I propose the Motion.

W H Goss

I beg to support the Motion. In rising to do so I don't think the problem of policing really comes into it to any great extent; we control the waters, control the 200-mile zone. That would automatically be policed to a great extent by the other countries or ships that are licensed to fish in the waters. They would report any other ships that they saw in the waters. I don't think anybody can one hundred percent police a maritime zone, no matter how big the country is.

T J D Miller

Your Excellency, I wish to support this Motion very strongly. The present situation in fact is that Argentina claims and has declared a number of years ago a 200-mile maritime zone around the Falkland Islands and the Dependencies, and it is becoming increasingly serious that we, or rather Britain on our behalf, has not done so around the Falklands.

I quite agree with what the previous speaker has said about policing it. No country polices their own zone effectively; no country can. But what practical experience has shown is that once you have a zone that has been declared and agreed to, it is more or less self-policing, in particular the countries which fish around here, the Eastern European countries, have one of the best records of paying up when they are fishing in other people's waters.

I would like to support the Motion.

A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support the Motion strongly. I do think that there must be some confusion between ourselves and the British Government about our present position; I think when we get enquiries - I believe there was an enquiry recently - from some fishing organisations, we tell them that we only have a three-mile limit here. I find it rather extraordinary that we've got that attitude, while in the House of Lords, on 5 February, in reply to a question from Lord Harmer

/Nichols -

Nichols - the question being did the Government regard the sovereignty over the continental shelf around the Falklands as being British, without any sort of qualification, so that we know where we stand, Lord Goronwy Roberts said quite clearly, "Yes, my Lord." And I know the continental shelf is not a 200-mile limit, but it's a heck of a size bigger than a three-mile limit. I think we should get our wires uncrossed and find out from the British Government exactly how far our sovereignty does in fact extend.

The President

I don't like to intervene in the debates, but perhaps I could clarify the point. My guess is that Lord Goronwy Roberts was referring to the continental shelf as it is defined in the 1958 Continental Shelf International Convention. There is a distinction in international law, in international practice, between the continental shelf and maritime zones or fishing zones. In point of fact our continental shelf in the Falkland Islands extends up to the 100-fathom line.

W B Bowles

I too would like to support the Motion made by my colleague and I can also see some problem with the median line between our coast and that of Patagonia, but I am sure this can be overcome and I think we should put this Motion forward without any delay.

S B Wallace

Your Excellency, I think our debate has fulfilled its purpose.

The President

The Motion has the approval of the House.

Motion by the Hon T J D Miller:

That this House requests Her Majesty's Government to carry out a feasibility study of enlarging Stanley Airport by 1,000 metres to allow charter aircraft such as the Boeing 707 and Britannia to operate on a daylight visual landing basis.

T J D Miller

Your Excellency, my reason for putting forward this Motion is the hope that if the Motion is passed and if the feasibility study comes about, it would at least end the arguments that are still going on in the Falklands and in Britain as to whether we need this extension, whether we can afford to run an extended airport and if there is anyone around who would use an extended airport. Officially we understand that nobody is interested, yet I understand from correspondence that I have with the Falkland Islands Committee in London that they have two airlines definitely interested in operating flights here on a charter basis; one airline, Redcar Air Services, uses Britannia aircraft I understand, on charter services to West Africa and are very interested in extending their services to the Falklands, probably a fortnightly service - a flight every two weeks - and they have quoted, assuming a 50% passenger payload, a return air fare to London from Port Stanley of £600, which is half the present fare. Whether that of course may come about remains to be seen and would possibly come out in this feasibility study.

/we understand

Also I understand that British Caledonian have expressed recently an interest in operating a charter service to the Islands with a 707. A charter service which would not be part of their existing South American service.

I think the whole business of extending the airport or not needs clarifying and needs looking into to see whether it is or is not possible. If it is possible of course one of the main benefits of it would be that we would no longer be tied to travelling through Argentina and we would no longer be tied to restrictions of white cards, travel visas and so on. I am not suggesting that we should ban any communications with Argentina supposing this extension came about, no doubt LADE might well wish to continue a service to the Islands from Comodoro but less frequent than now, say twice a month, so that you would have two ways of coming in and out of these Islands.

There is also the possibility that with a direct link with the United Kingdom there would be a lot more air freight developed with a quicker and more reliable service than at present. Alternative foodstuffs could be flown in, particularly in the fruit line, from Africa.

I would like to propose the Motion.

W H Goss

Your Excellency, I have opposed this sort of thing in the past but on this occasion I rise to support this Motion. I think it's time that we did look into another way out. I have said that I'm quite sure that if the potential was there, the British Government would do just that: they would lengthen that runway. There again, perhaps nobody's come forward with proof that they'll make use of the airport if it is lengthened. I think this should be given further investigation.

I beg to support the Motion.

W E Bowles

Your Excellency, I too would support the Motion, if only to carry out a feasibility study, and I think without a feasibility study we won't know whether or not people will

/or will not fly or will not fly here, until this is done this point will not be cleared up.

I willingly support the Motion.

S B Wallace

Somewhat to my own surprise, Sir, I find myself supporting the Motion. I agree that there is a need for such a study. It would certainly put an end to much arguing.

I don't quite see the need for us to get involved at this stage with aircraft types and landing procedures, that's what we want a feasibility study for. Really I don't feel qualified to go into all that might happen if the feasibility study suggests that an extension is a good thing. I simply support the Motion.

Chief Secretary

There's really nothing for me to say, Sir. I would have been much happier if the Motion had stopped after the words "Stanley Airport", because I think we should leave it to those people who do the feasibility study to work out the options and I am not certain I understand fully what a day-light visual landing basis is because I think if we did it on that basis in fact it would defeat the very purpose for which the Honourable proposer suggested, because an aircraft coming in has to have an alternative base, which would have to be in Argentina; this is a regulation, I understand. But I think the spirit of the House has been well understood and look forward to conveying it to the British authorities.

The President

The Motion then is adopted.

Motion by the Hon T J D Miller:

That this House is grateful for the continuing support for our case by the United Kingdom Falkland Islands Committee.

T J D Miller

Your Excellency, the reason for putting forward this Motion again - it has come before this House a number of times and has been supported - is basically because I have been concerned recently on hearing that there is a very strong possibility that the Falkland Islands Committee may be closing down because of lack of support from within these Islands. There have been and there still are differences from time to time between Government and the Falkland Islands Committee regarding what we need and what we don't need and how we should go about it, but I think basically our objects are the same for the future of the Falklands, and we are very grateful for the support that the Falkland Islands Committee have obtained for us in the United Kingdom, and we hope that this support will continue and that the Committee will continue.

/we are very grateful

S B Wallace

I beg to second the Motion.

W E Bowles

I would like to support this Motion, we are most grateful for the continuing support for our case by the United Kingdom Falkland Islands Committee; I think they've done quite a lot of good for us.

A B Monk

Your Excellency, I support the Motion as it's written, it's pretty innocuous, it doesn't say we must pay out money or anything like that; they've done some pretty good work and I support the Motion.

W H Goss

I beg to support the Motion.

The President

Clearly the House is grateful for the good work of the Committee and we shall arrange for this to be conveyed to the Committee.

The House was then adjourned until 14:30 hours.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

Maintenance Orders (Reciprocal Enforcement) Bill 1978

Chief Secretary

Although the Bill before the House is formidable in size and perhaps even daunting in its contents for those of us who are unfamiliar with the handling and enforcing of maintenance orders, its intention is quite simple: to improve the handling of orders of this sort.

In 1972 the British Government replaced its own 50-year-old Act on which our own present Ordinance is based. This Bill then seeks to repeal and replace the present Ordinance by extending reciprocity to any country or territory. Our existing legislation applies only to Commonwealth countries and actually excludes Scotland. Moreover, the Bill will provide and improve the machinery for the transmission and enforcement of maintenance orders and within an extended definition of that term will also now include affiliation orders.

This is an essentially technical piece of legislation but one which I commend to this Council as a significant improvement.

Honourable Members will already have familiarised themselves with the contents of the Bill and I therefore need do no more, Sir, than to move that the Bill be read a first time.

At the Committee stage the alteration of the date from 1978 to 1979 in clause 1 was agreed and the Bill proceeded through its remaining stages without debate or further amendment and was passed.

Stanley Rates (Amendment) Bill 1978

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, representations have been made to the Administration for the amendment of the Stanley Rates Ordinance to exclude the properties known as the Parish Hall, belonging to Christ Church Cathedral, and St Mary's Annex, from the Rates Assessment List.

The reasons for this request arise from the fact that these are two buildings which are used by the public. They are used for many purposes, particularly for the younger generation and the older citizens of the Falklands, and it is felt that consideration should be given for both buildings to be exempt from rates.

The second point regarding the Stanley Rates (Amendment) Bill which we have before us is a point which was brought to our attention by the Hon W E Bowles at the last meeting of the Legislative Council, when he pointed out, with the support of all Councillors, that the limit for paying rates was too restrictive and that penalties were being imposed very harshly; on occasions people were out of the Colony for a very short time and when they came back having forgotten to pay their rates before they left, they were subject to the 5% penalty. It is now proposed that the penalty should not be imposed before the 1st of October, rather than 1st of July. This I welcome, not only for the fact that it is a reasonable and just request from Hon Members, but it will also make life in the Treasury much easier because we find it very difficult within one month trying to advise people of their rates and by the time the post gets to some people in the Camp, especially with our internal communications problem, we find out that we have on occasions to bring before yourself a request for remission of the penalty. I therefore commend this Bill to Council and propose that the Bill be read a first time.

At the Committee stage the alteration of the date from 1978 to 1979 in clause 1 was agreed and the Bill proceeded through its remaining stages without debate or further amendment and was passed.

Christ Church Trust (Amendment) Bill 1979

Chief Secretary

In rising to introduce this Bill, Sir, I shall aim to make my remarks as brief as the text of the Bill itself. In October of last year some minor amendments to the Constitution of Christ Church Cathedral were brought into effect to take account of the changes that had been made in 1977 in its ecclesiastical jurisdiction. Appropriate reference now needs to be made to this revised constitution within the text of the main Ordinance, and the Bill before us seeks to do that by two small textual amendments. Sir, it is as simple as that and I therefore beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this morning we mentioned that we had the good fortune of having our Fiscal Adviser, Mr Harry Ritchie, with us. He has put forward recommendations to Government for retaining more of the wealth of the Colony in the territory.

Councillors have previously brought this matter to Government's attention and a considerable amount of work has gone into this Bill to try and achieve a greater proportion of the tax for the Colony rather than going to the British Exchequer. The proposal is simply that we should change the present rate of Company Tax from 45% up to a rate of 52% for the larger company, the company with profits of over £50,000; the tax rate for companies with smaller profits than £50,000 would be reduced .9% steps of £2,000 until reaching a profit of £30,000, which would attract 42% tax. This would mean that some of the smaller companies would be paying a little less tax than at present and larger companies would be paying a greater amount of tax. This would not affect the UK companies to any great extent because of the double taxation arrangement which we have with Great Britain.

The Bill is also designed to encourage more investment in the Colony and the provisions which we propose are much the same as the current depreciation rates in Britain. For instance on machinery or plant we are now willing to give an initial allowance of 100% if this Bill is passed; on ships an initial allowance of up to 50% and thereafter there would be a writing down allowance of 10%. On aircraft there would be a straight writing down allowance of 15%; on industrial buildings we propose an initial allowance of 50% with a writing down allowance of 4% per annum. On hotel buildings an initial allowance of 20% with a writing down allowance of 4% per annum and on agricultural buildings an initial allowance of 30% with a writing down allowance of 10% per annum.

One of the provisions of the Bill requires companies which undertake new industrial, commercial or other ventures in the Colony, to form a separate company. They would be taxed as completely separate entities. The description of agricultural buildings is set out in clause 7, which states that they do not include houses, offices, shops on farm settlements, store-houses, except when they are used solely for agricultural projects, and the cost of a building does not include the value of land.

These are the main points of the Bill, but this Bill is rather involved and it will have quite an effect on the revenues of the Colony. I therefore would propose perhaps if Hon Members wish to have further details of it that we may go into Select Committee. However I will leave it and hear the comments of Councillors first. I propose the first reading of the Bill.

Hon Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

A B Monk

Your Excellency, Hon Members, I haven't had very long to study the Bill and I welcome the suggestion from the Chief Financial Secretary that we might refer it to Select Committee so that it can be properly examined. But there are several other things about the Bill which occur to me, and with reference to the actual tax scale, it does seem to me that it might encourage larger units to divide up, form separate companies say for each farm and thus only pay tax on each smaller company and the profits would not be up to as much as £30,000. I dislike at first sight the method of grading tax payments; I'd much prefer a slice system or perhaps some other system even better. I realise that the rates would have to be altered if this particular system was not adopted because otherwise we'd get less tax. But it seems to be grossly unfair that a company earning £30,001 should pay £270 more tax than one earning £30,000, and a company earning £32,001 pays £288 more tax than a company earning £32,000 and so on up the scale. I think that's nonsense and should not be adopted.

I am not altogether happy with clause 7 and this refers really to agricultural buildings, clauses 3(g) and 3(h); I don't see why, as far as the farming community is concerned, housing should not have the same depreciation rates as buildings used solely for agricultural purposes. We are not in the same position as farming is in the United Kingdom or other developed countries, where the workers on the farms rent the buildings, or where they have alternative accommodation they can go to. If I want an outside shepherd in a certain area of the farm, I've got to provide the building for him and therefore it is a very necessary part of the farming operation's expense. Therefore I think that farm buildings should attract the same depreciation allowances.

/other developed countries

I have various other doubts but I would certainly welcome the chance to be able to discuss this fully with Mr Ritchie and my colleagues and the Financial Secretary in Committee. Subject to that, I welcome the Bill.

S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Hon Members, my Honourable Friend the Member for East Falkland has almost listed the reservations I have on this Bill. However we should not forget that the aim of this Bill is to ensure that we get the benefit from taxation of profits which are made by concerns here. In particular I had reservations about the aspects of the Bill which indicate that there is a possibility of companies fragmenting themselves to avoid tax and I look forward to discussing this in Select Committee. Subject to that, Sir, I support the Motion.

T J D Miller

I too support the feeling that this Bill should be referred to Select Committee for further discussion with the Fiscal Adviser.

The parts that I am particularly concerned with are ones which have already been once referred to, the seventh schedule, the depreciation allowances. It seems to me unfair to a certain extent that industrial buildings should attract an initial allowance of up to 50% and agricultural buildings used for agricultural purposes, an initial allowance of 30%. This is done in the United Kingdom of course where there are many varying industries, of which agriculture is one of the smaller industries, but here at the moment and for the foreseeable future, agriculture, be it sheep farming, dairy farming, market garden or whatever, is our only industry and we should be doing all we can to encourage as much investment as possible within that industry.

One other point that I am not too sure of - I don't quite see where fencing on farms comes into depreciation allowances. I am particularly thinking of sub-divisional fences, not renewing existing fences but putting up new fences to sub-divide sections of land to allow more intensive grazing and more intensive stocking. With those reservations, Sir, I support the Bill.

/N E Bowles

W E Bowles

I look forward to Select Committee on this Bill. I think in principle the Bill is good and after we have deliberated in Select Committee I shall make my decision on whether I support it or not, but from the outset I think it's a good Bill and a step forward.

The Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the whole House under the Chairmanship of the Hon the Chief Secretary.

Loans Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Colony doesn't have any general legislation or the authority to raise loans internally or externally. The Bill now before us proposes that the Financial Secretary, with a Resolution passed in Council, should be able to raise loans externally or internally for the purposes of Government.

There are a number of ways in which we can raise loans: we can raise loans from Her Majesty's Government, or we can raise loans internally by the issue of stock. We have now to consider raising a loan of £170,000 for the purchase of Green Patch. This is what has necessitated the urgency of bringing this Bill before Council. We propose that the purchase price of Green Patch should be paid by a loan which Government should borrow from the Government Savings Bank.

Once this legislation is through we will be able to pass a Resolution to pay it but generally we are going to have to look further ahead. Our financial position, although not desperate, has to be carefully considered. We have projections forward and while they are not alarming they are of some concern, and we must consider how we are going to meet the Colony's element of development from local finances. One way in which we can probably do this is to obtain loans internally. We propose that probably later in this forthcoming financial year we could test the market and see whether there's any possibility of raising money locally - we do have the Savings Bank, which can always contribute so much towards financing development, rather than investing it in stocks overseas.

The main sections of the Bill relate to the issue of certificates and are generally of a technical nature. I don't think those require much explaining, but one thing I should mention is that the Bill does provide for the creation of sinking funds; whenever we raise a loan we have to provide a sinking fund, so that we know we have the money available at the date of maturity of the stock.

I feel that the main points have now been explained and I move that the Bill be read a first time.

/Hon Members then spoke

Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Hon Members, I welcome this Bill. I have to admit that when I first heard of the idea of Government raising loans I had some doubts, but on thinking about it, if this Bill is passed it will give an opportunity should they wish for many people here to put their money where their mouths are. Thank you. I support the Bill.

A B Monk

I certainly hope this Bill gets referred to a Select Committee because I think there's a lot to consider about it. I think in principle it's a most excellent idea. I must admit at first I thought the haste in putting the Bill through was because we wanted to float stock to buy Green Patch, but I see the Preamble says that Government is going to buy that from the Savings Bank, so in fact this insofar as the public is concerned, it doesn't seem that they are involved in borrowing the money for Green Patch except insofar as they may have an account in the Savings Bank and it's their money. I am a little hazy about the need for the great haste.

There is some mention in the Preamble about rates of interest - it talks about a 9% rate of interest for ten years or something like that. I'm no financial expert but at the present moment you can get 10½% on a deposit account in the United Kingdom and I just wonder how many people or firms with some thousands of pounds available would lend it to Government for 9% when they can get more somewhere else. Maybe there is some aspect of it which has escaped me completely, maybe this would come to light in Committee. I think it's a worthwhile Bill.

W E Goss

I support the Bill, Your Excellency. If we are ever going to get any form of internal development in the Colony we just have to have the means of raising money to finance it and I beg to support the Bill.

Financial Secretary

The Bill certainly is required for Government to raise any loans; Government will be raising £170,000 from the Savings Bank and then on-lending it to the successful applicants for Green Patch farm. I don't think that we need concern ourselves over this legislation too much; it gives the Council power to raise loans. As far as the interest rate of 9% mentioned, this was a guide at the time when we were thinking of what rate should be applied to the Green Patch loan, but we would raise loans for whatever rate we could get; if we could get them for 9%

/well and well and good, but we probably would have to go higher than that, especially hearing of the recent minimum lending rate in Britain.

I would therefore ask that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House as we don't wish to give the appearance that we are rushing it through without understanding all the clauses, and therefore I propose it be referred to a Select Committee under the Chairmanship of the Hon the Chief Secretary.

The Bill was referred to a Select Committee.

Pensions (Amendment) Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, the recent report which we received from the Salaries Commissioner made a recommendation that pensions should be granted to widows and children of officers.

The proposal is that the widow of a male pensioner or pensionable officer should draw 50% of the officer's pension and, in the case of children, there would be various additions to the pension.

There are some points which we would like to discuss with the Financial Adviser and I don't wish to add to the workload of the Select Committee too much, we are going to be quite busy, but I am afraid it's one we should refer there to clear up some details.

The Bill itself has been welcomed by the Civil Servants' Association, who did make very strong representations to the Salaries Commissioner when he visited here for his review. I therefore would wish to ask that the Bill be considered in detail, especially with regard to the pensions payable in respect of children, before we go into any detailed discussions. I think there are points which we can sort out better, they are points of detail. I propose at this stage that the Bill be read a first time.

After the second reading the Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the whole House under the Chairmanship of the Hon the Chief Secretary.

Employment Tax Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, the Senior Medical Officer, that is Dr Dunnett at present, and before him his predecessor, Dr Cox, have made very strong recommendations that we should have a system of charges for medicines and in-patient fees similar to other territories, in other words just about a national health insurance scheme.

/should have

We have considered this in the light that the present charges are unfortunate in that those who pay most are those who often can least afford it.

It is felt that we should have another form of financing or contributing towards the financing of the medical costs of this Colony and after recommendations put forward by the Shackleton team, also later by Mr Pepper, and now more recently in more detail by our present Fiscal Adviser, Mr Ritchie, we have prepared a Bill based on legislation in other territories for an employment tax and it is proposed that we should now consider a percentage of emoluments of each employed person and a percentage paid by the employer; it is proposed that we should charge 4% of the person's emoluments: 3% would be payable by the employer and 1% by the employee. In the case of self-employed persons, they would be required to pay the full 4% but in no case would tax paid exceed £250 in any one year.

At first sight we feel that there are other ways in which we could have raised this money; it has been mentioned to me that we could just add another percentage on to income tax, or we should add it on to the Old Age Pensions contributions. These have all been considered in depth and for one reason or another it was felt that the fairest system would be to introduce a completely separate employment tax.

It will create more work in certain cases, particularly a little more for employers and also it will create a little more work in the Treasury. However it is something that if we are going to develop we must face up to the fact and progress.

The Member for East Falklands has often mentioned that we raise all the time many little niggling charges which annoy people, and that we should do it in a more refined manner and one that is more modern a manner of raising fees. I think we are probably one of the few territories now without some system of national health insurance.

There are certain exemptions to the tax which is proposed in the Bill and they are the normal ones common to such legislation as the Income Tax Ordinance, such as Consuls, Members of Her Majesty's Forces, whose salaries are paid from United Kingdom Government funds; it is proposed that all pensions paid to retired persons for past services should be exempt. In the Committee stage I will be making a proposal also which will exempt Old Age Pensions, which I am afraid was an oversight at the time of preparation: it is intended that Old Age Pensions should not be subject to employment tax.

/The remainder

The remainder of the sections, or the clauses of the Bill, refer largely to the collection of the tax, the time of submitting payments, and the statements that are required. There are so many different kinds of employment in the Colony and with the difficulties in getting the mail from one station to the other and particularly to outlying islands, we will need to vary the time limits in some cases quite considerably. Our Legal Adviser Mr Bennett suggests that we put in a clause which Members will see as clause 20, and I will read it for the information of Members:

"The Financial Secretary may for good cause shown by any employer, self-employed person or person liable to pay tax on dividend income, vary any of the times prescribed by this Ordinance."

Therefore it gives some latitude, especially in the early days, as it will obviously have teething troubles, it's an Ordinance that will be amended, there is no doubt about that, in the light of experience. But we cannot forecast all the difficulties that will arise from this new legislation at the moment.

If this Bill is passed, it is intended to abolish all medical fees, possibly with the exception that some charge may have to be levied for spectacles, which can be considered as a supplementary supply. But all other charges for residents we will be abolishing. In the case of non-residents they will be required to pay the fees which are currently in force under the Medical Fees Regulations. I would like to repeat that the maximum that anyone will be required to pay is $250 in any one year in respect of any one person.

There is also another point for employers and self-employed persons to note; that is the fact that it is intended that the tax should be tax-deductible - they should be able to show it against their income tax. For example the farms will show it against their profits; they will be able to deduct the 3%. In the case of self-employed persons, they will be able to deduct 3% - they will not be able to offset the 1% which every employee will be required to pay.

Another point which we must face, if this legislation does not go through - and I don't intend this as a threat in any case - but it is a fact that we must realise that we have to increase our medical fees and the only reason why I didn't last year bring them forward was the fact of the comments made by the Elected Member who said that people were getting rather annoyed with these niggling little charges that we were putting out. I therefore delayed it for that reason, but I'm afraid I would not be able to delay it any further because they are becoming very low and the amount of paper work in sending out and collecting these small charges is absolutely unbelievable.

/We therefore must

We therefore must have some way of arranging to have a new method for the medical service and the fairest system of all the ones that I have seen illustrated seems to be this new Employment Tax.

I propose that the Bill be read for the first time.

Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Hon Members, at first I thought this was a rather complicated way to do away with medical bills, but it has I feel the major advantage of making those who can best afford it contribute most. Some sort of stamp system would not do this.

In addition I am told this system requires less time to administer and since we are continually shouting about the number of staff in the Administration, that is an important consideration.

I have one reservation about this Bill: as it stands people who invest in shares or whatever during their working life do not pay tax on any dividends whilst employed but as I understand it when they retire on a pension they must then commence paying employment tax on their dividends, just when they need the money most. This seems wrong to me. Subject to that reservation I support the Bill, which I think distributes the load on those best able to pay.

V D Bowles

Your Excellency, Hon Members, when I read this Bill through I was unsure whether to support it or not. After Select Committee I should know.

The one piece of wording I don't like is the word "tax"; I think when you see the word "income" in front of it it's enough to shake you for a start; but the word "employment" in front of it doesn't help. I think it should be "contribution" and not "tax". It's only a small point, but it would make it sound a little more reasonable to the people involved. If you can make an employment contribution towards the medical services, which will enable people here who are seriously ill to become well again, I think it's so much more satisfying a result. I think if the word "tax" can be ruled out of the Ordinance altogether, this would be more palatable.

I think this is a good way of distributing the cost of medical services for residents and I think in general, after we've gone through Select Committee, all measures could be welcomed. But I too have a lot of questions to ask Mr Ritchie. Thank you.

W H Goss

I'm afraid I have very little to say on the Bill, Sir, at this stage; there may be plenty to say when we get into Select Committee. As the Bill stands I beg to support it.

A B Monk

Your Excellency, Hon Members, I've been squarely put in my place by the Chief Financial Secretary for my remarks from some other meeting...In principle I think the Bill is right. I can't see personally why it is unwise to introduce a comprehensive national health scheme because we pay for the health service here anyway, whether it is through tax or whatever way - we are all paying in the end through taxation. Therefore it's beyond me why it's unwise; it's not going to cost us any more money and it seems to me that if we do it by sticking on stamps instead of by this method it would in fact result in far less book-keeping.

This present proposal in fact will place a lot of extra book-keeping on to employers; employers by and large do the Government's tax for them anyway. I actually do all the tax computations for the employees on the farm and I know other people do it too. I shall have to do some others now. It's really just transferring the work from Government clerks to privately employed people.

I have other reservations but I think we can discuss them in Select Committee because there are all sorts of things which are going to occur to me. One serious reservation I have about the Bill is that although it is in principle to raise money to partly defray the expenses of the Medical Department, nowhere does it actually commit Government to using that money for the support of the Medical Department; in fact the money simply goes into General Revenue and could be used for any other purpose and there is nothing in fact to stop Government from raising another form of tax or endeavouring to next year to pay for medical services. I think we could find ourselves in somewhat the same situation as the British taxpayer paying road tax and very little of his road tax in fact goes to improving the quality of the roads. Maybe we can alter the title of the Bill so that it is made clear that this Employment Tax is to defray part of the cost of the Medical Service - maybe we can insert a clause which says that is the reason and object of the Bill - but I would like it in some way or another to be tied to the Medical Services far more definitely than it is now. Subject to those reservations I support the Bill in principle.

The Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the whole House under the Chairmanship of the Hon the Chief Secretary.

Council adjourned at 15.40 hours and resumed at 14.00 hours on Wednesday 14th February 1979.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT)
BILL 1979

Chief Secretary

Sir, I rise to report the proceedings of the Select Committee, of which I was Chairman, which met yesterday afternoon to consider the Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 1979. The Committee first heard from the Hon the Financial Secretary that he will be introducing a drafting amendment to make more precise the wording of section 2 of the Bill which at present may be slightly ambiguous.

The Committee then moved on to consider section 3, about which Members, notably the Hon Member for East Falkland, had expressed some misgivings. After considerable discussion the Fiscal Adviser was asked to prepare some new figures for consideration since the Committee felt that there were certain inequitable features in the present table of rates that could be open for adjustment. Hon Members had, on the floor of this House, expressed some doubts whether a system of variable rates, as proposed in section 3 of the Bill, might not induce, perhaps, some of the larger companies to fragment in order to avoid a higher taxation figure. Whilst this danger was acknowledged, the Committee accepted that it was inescapable with any system of differing tax rates. The Committee felt, too, that the danger was more apparent than real and that if there were to be any signs of companies seeking to avoid tax by forming a series of smaller companies then there were alternative new measures which could be introduced to control such a form of tax avoidance. The Committee then addressed itself to the consideration of the Depreciation Allowances in the proposed new Seventh Schedule. In particular, the question of the relative allowances for agricultural buildings was considered in detail. It was finally agreed that the following rates should apply:

Section 3(e) of the Schedule: Allowance for industrial buildings should be reduced from 50% to 30% but the writing down allowance thereafter should be 10% per annum;

Section (f) : The initial allowance for hotel buildings should remain at 20% but the writing down allowance thereafter should be increased from 4% to 10% p.a.; and in Section (g) : The initial allowance for agricultural buildings should remain at 30% but the writing down allowance thereafter should be increased from 4% to 10% per annum.

The Hon Member for the Camp had raised, during the second reading of the Bill, the question of fencing and whether it would also attract a depreciation allowance.

/My Hon colleague,

My Hon colleague, the Financial Secretary, was able to give an assurance that fencing is deemed to be "Machinery or Plant" as specified in section 3(a) of the proposed Seventh Schedule.

Finally, the Select Committee discussed the point raised by the Hon Member for East Falkland during the second reading about the exclusion of housing from the definition of agricultural buildings in section 7 of the Bill.

You will recall, Sir, that he had argued that the provision of housing on a farm was an essential and inescapable part of the business of farming, and that the houses should therefore be deemed to attract a depreciation allowance along with other agricultural buildings.

The Select Committee accepted the Hon Member's point and, therefore, the wording of section 7 will be revised by the deletion of the word "housing", and section 3(g) will be re-written to specify the inclusion of housing, subject to an upper limitation of the initial allowance. The Committee took the view that the depreciation allowance should be claimed only up to a certain limit, since Hon Members did not feel that there should be active encouragement for companies to construct extravagant properties.

Because of the need to re-consider the tables of rates in section 3 of the Bill, the Select Committee stands adjourned and will finally report at the next meeting of Council.

I therefore propose, Sir, that the Committee stage of this Bill be taken at the next meeting.

Council concurred.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE LOANS BILL 1979

Chief Secretary

The Select Committee on the Loans Bill met under my Chairmanship yesterday afternoon. This meeting of the Select Committee provided the opportunity to emphasise something which perhaps had not been sufficiently stressed in the public debate on this Bill, and that is that we cannot proceed with the acquisition of Green Patch until there is some statutory provision for the Government to raise the necessary loan. I think that Hon Members now better appreciate the purpose of this Bill and discussion on it was relatively brief. At the Committee stage my Hon colleague, the Financial Secretary, will be proposing two small amendments to the Bill. The first will be in the section "Short Title and Commencement" and will be that the Ordinance should come into operation as of today;

/and the second and the second amendment, a small textual correction, will be the inclusion of the definite article in the final phrase of clause 13.

At the Committee stage the following amendments were agreed:

Clause 1 Insert the date "14th February"

Clause 13 Insert after the word "pay" the following -
"the"

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT)
BILL 1979

Chief Secretary

As Chairman of the Select Committee on the Pensions (Amendment) Bill 1979 I rise to report the proceedings of the Committee which met early yesterday evening.

You may recall, Sir, that it was my Hon colleague, the Financial Secretary, who, as proposer of this Bill, suggested that we might examine it in Select Committee because he had himself certain doubts about some of the proposals within it. I ought to amplify that remark, Sir, by saying that the Hon the Financial Secretary's doubts did not include the principle of the Bill but rather that he felt that he should seek confirmation that the proposals being made in respect of the pensions had been suitably assessed, notably in sections 18(a) 3 and 4 of the proposed Bill. Hon Members, having given due consideration to the points raised by the Hon the Financial Secretary, declared themselves satisfied that the proposals were equitable and just and there is now, therefore, no impediment to our proceeding to take the Bill to its Committee stage.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE EMPLOYMENT TAX BILL

Chief Secretary

Sir, in reporting the proceedings of the Select Committee on the Employment Tax Bill I ought to begin by emphasising that Hon Members are entirely satisfied of the principle behind the Bill and that it is right, a point that a number of them made themselves during the second reading of the Bill. So it was with points of detail that

/Hon Members

Hon Members dealt yesterday. Generally it was felt that the title might be misleading and ought perhaps to be expanded to give some indication of the actual purpose for which the money is being levied. This would also go some way to meeting the point that the Hon Member for East Falkland had made on the floor of this House - to ensure that the funds were actually used for the purposes for which they are raised. Accordingly the Select Committee will be proposing an amplification of the title, the exact terms of which have yet to be finally determined.

There were two other major points to which the Select Committee addressed themselves. The first was the point made at the second reading by the Hon Member for West Stanley about the inclusion amongst those obliged to pay the tax of persons not in employment but in receipt of dividend income. The Select Committee accepted that a good case had been made for the exemption of such persons and the Bill will be appropriately amended.

Another point of substance, and one upon which Members had touched during the second reading, was that an insufficient period of time had been allowed for employers and self-employed persons to make their returns and payments. Despite the discretionary powers given to the Hon the Financial Secretary in clause 20, it was judged essential to vary the grace period from 15 to 30 days for employers and to adjust that for self-employed persons accordingly.

And now these amendments will require substantial textual emendations and deletions in the present text of the Bill and a revised text will be prepared.

There were several other points that were also dealt with. In section 7(d) the words "and annuities" will be added to "pensions", that is, amongst the list of tax exemptions, and a further exemption will be added as section 9(m) to include Old Age Pensions which are not sufficiently dealt with in the section I have already quoted. Furthermore, the requirement in section 11(2) for an employer to provide an annual statement to an employee will be dropped, though possibly the obligation to provide such a statement on termination of employment may remain.

Finally, consideration was given to the point that had been made during the second reading by the Hon Member for Stanley - that this measure would be more palatable if it were called something other than a tax. While the Select Committee did not challenge the point made by the Hon Member, it did not feel it necessary to select an alternative word such as "levy". It has been Government's intention to introduce this new tax on the 1st July, so the Select Committee now stands adjourned, and it is proposed, Sir, that the new tax should be submitted to Council for consideration at the Committee stage at its next meeting; that is, of course, the Budget Session.

/That should also provide

That should also provide sufficient time for the necessary amendments to be made both in the Medical Fees Regulations and for an appropriate amendment to the Income Tax Ordinance to be prepared and introduced.

I propose, Sir, that the Select Committee should stand adjourned till the next meeting of this Council.

Council concurred.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, following the approval of the Loans Bill we now have authority to raise loans both internally and externally. For the purpose of purchasing Green Patch farm we propose raising a loan of £170,000 from the Government Savings Bank, and it is necessary for this Council to pass a Resolution to that effect. Repayment terms and rate of interest will have to be confirmed after consultation with the Crown Agents. Therefore I propose that the following Resolution be passed:

BE IT RESOLVED, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 3 of the Loans Ordinance 1979, that the Financial Secretary be authorised to raise an internal loan, not exceeding in total £170,000, for the purpose of purchasing Green Patch farm.

Chief Secretary

I beg to second the Motion.

The President

May I say, before I put the Motion to Council, that I shall give my assent to this Bill also today. Therefore the Resolution can be passed. Does any Honourable Member wish to speak to the Motion?

A B Konk

Your Excellency, I should like to say just a few words on the subject. It gives me enormous pleasure to speak to this Resolution because it does seem a long time since we conceived the Green Patch project and sometimes people have expressed doubts that we'd ever get it off the ground at all. The passing of this Resolution is going to make it possible and I think it has opened the door of opportunity to some of our younger and more forward-looking citizens. I beg to support the Motion.

The President

I take it there is no objection. The Resolution is adopted.

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

A. B. Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I won't say I was literally caught with my pants down, but I haven't completed my thoughts on the subject. But I would like to say just a few words, and this meeting, in my view, has been very much concerned with practical matters, and I often think this sort of thing is rather dull perhaps to listen to and won't make very good reading in print. But nevertheless it is a very necessary part of our housekeeping, as it were; getting one's finances and so forth in order is a very essential part of Government's business, and in spite of frequent criticism by many, I think this Colony has been more successful than most other countries in this matter, with no external debt and a high standard of living by world standards, no unemployment and a healthy community. I think a lot of countries would give a lot for these conditions. I suppose our main problem is to attract more people, even to retain those we have.

I hope the Green Patch scheme will, by offering some opportunity to a few, be a start to arresting this population decline. I hope our road scheme which, in spite of criticism, I think has got off to a very good start, considering the lack of labour and suitable plant, I hope this will improve our communications and lay the foundation for development which I think must eventually come. And I hope and believe that the new school hostel will enable more children to take advantage of improved education standards which have become so evident since our able Superintendent of Education, Tom Lamin, took charge.

There are many doubts, doubting people and critical people amongst us who delight in deriding any project their grandfathers did not conceive. In a small community such as this I think it is a great pity that a lot of our very able people spend so much of their time and energy in criticism but very little in telling us and offering us ideas of improving the community. I would hope that persons who are critical of Council's work at this meeting will speak or write to their Councillors with their doubts and objections. Legislation can always be amended if it is shown to be wrong or that it can be made better by some adjustment. But we can only learn by people communicating with us - where we have, perhaps, made a mistake.

Finally, I would like to say a word about the Hon the Chief Secretary, Mr John Massingham. This is, I understand, his last Council here. I would like to say that I consider the Honourable Gentleman has been an able Councillor and a very able Chief Secretary, and I for one have enjoyed working with him. I would like to wish him every success and happiness in the future.

I beg to support the Motion for the adjournment.

S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Hon Member for East Falkland has as usual managed to devastate my list of topics. I too feel that in this meeting we have begun to deal with matters which are of immediate concern to all of us here. We cannot, in the course of our development, bear still heavier burdens and at the same time allow absentee landlords and anonymous shareholders to live off the fat of our land. In this we have been extremely grateful for the advice of the Fiscal Adviser: that advice was certainly very helpful in the last few days and I am sure will continue to be so. There are many things which require attention. While we should direct notice to them, we should not be distracted by them from our aim to build a prosperous and vibrant community.

I will close my few words by saying thank you to the Chief Secretary for the phenomenal amount of work he has done in the relatively short time he has been here. I am certainly sorry to see him go. There has been a new sense of purpose evident in the Administration for some time which is, in my view, due entirely to his efforts. I wish him well in the future and I am sure that wherever he goes the good wishes of many people here go with him.

I beg to support the Motion.

T J D Miller

Your Excellency, most of the points that I wished to cover have already been very well stated.

However, I would like to refer briefly to the Philatelic Bureau. Stamps are very important to these Islands; I believe that the present policy is on the right lines but there is still, I think, room for some improvement. It is a pity that our Philatelic Bureau does not appear in any of the philatelic magazines, advertising its existence to further the sale of Falkland Islands stamps. I would hope that we should be able to rectify this in the future. Also, we now have stamp booklets on sale. The present one, I believe, will soon be going off sale as stocks are virtually sold out. I hope that plans are well advanced for printing another booklet with, say, a slightly different cover to encourage further sales. All this is honest philately and is perfectly legal so long as it is not overdone. Our stamps, as we all know, are virtually the second industry in these Islands and I think we should do all we can to increase their potential.

I also would like to add my support to the feelings expressed by my colleague the Member for East Falkland, to the Member opposite me, the Hon the Chief Secretary. We will all be sad to see him go and I know that since he has been here he has done a lot for these Islands and has done a lot of good work on our behalf with his contacts, in the Ministry for Overseas Development particularly.

Your Excellency, I support the Motion.

/N E Bowles

W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like briefly to concur with my colleagues to wish Mr Massingham every good wish and prosperity in the future. We are very grateful for what he has done, what he has triggered off, and I hope, too, that he will be able to hear of the aims and more of the work getting completed. I wish him well and every happiness in the future.

W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think in the coming year we should seriously concentrate on development and diversification. In my mind if we meet with a major disaster with our farms - with our stock - with disease, anything like that, we would really be in a serious position. As we stand at the moment we've got all our eggs in one basket and if such happened the Colony would not be viable without a terrific amount of money being ploughed back in. And we must seriously think about another basket to put eggs in.

I would also like to add my appreciation to the Chief Secretary for the good work he has done here and I wish him all the best in the future.

I beg to support the Motion.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I would like to pay tribute to the Legislative Council Members for participating this morning in a very useful seminar on our finances along with the Fiscal Adviser. We found this extremely useful and it has certainly been a great deal of help to us. Much will arise at the next meeting from this brief discussion we had this morning.

I would like to associate myself with the feelings expressed for the Chief Secretary. I have found him a wonderful colleague and I will miss him very much.

I support the Motion.

Chief Secretary

Sir, I shall endeavour to be as brief as my colleagues in speaking to my own Motion. I think I mentioned in the reply to the Address what a valuable opportunity it provides the Administration to quarry on all the ideas that Councillors lay before us, particularly in answering your Address, Sir. But in particular it is valuable because it provides one of the sustained opportunities for the senior members of the Administration to talk with Councillors, and we have all too few opportunities for that. I think I ought to add how very pleased I was that my colleague opposite, the Hon Member for the Camp, made reference to philately, because it is something in which we are taking a keener interest and he is right to draw attention to the fact that the Philatelic Bureau is not yet functioning as well as we could wish it to. But we are, of course, still awaiting the arrival of a specialist adviser to guide our footsteps in this new enterprise, and we have been promised help - it will be funded by the Ministry of Overseas Development, and the likely person to help us will either come from a retired person from a senior firm or from the Crown Agents. The stamp booklet has been a most encouraging development and, in fact, we got an order for no less than £2,300 worth the other day. And plans are in hand to issue a second one and I hope too for them to be issued continuously as a regular feature because, as the Hon Member himself stressed, this is a viable postal issue and it is not just a philatelic issue; it is a postage instrument - I think I've got my phrases right - and indeed I have suggested to the Postmaster that we should now think in terms of issuing a booklet containing 3p stamps for internal use in the Islands, because this is a gap in the present one.

/that the Philatelic

Many generous things have been said, Sir, about me. I think that without disrespect, the Hon the Financial Secretary and myself are a part of a dying and extinct race and in spite of the preservation and conservation efforts that we make in the Falklands, I suppose that this Council will go the way of all others and official members will disappear. You asked not so very long ago, Sir, for indulgence on my behalf at my first meeting here, and that I received continuously from you and all the other Members in full measure. I shall look back with pride upon my membership of this Council, and if I am part of the dying race it would be nice to be classed with something as famous as dinosaurs and other famous monsters. I am most grateful to you, Sir, and to all my colleagues.

The President

Well, Honourable Members, we have now got through our Agenda in very good time without rushing through any of the work we had to do. I think it has been a very useful and valuable meeting. A good many ideas and comments have been put forward by Hon Members which will be useful guidelines for the Administration in the future. And if I might say so, on your behalf, I think that this Council gives a sound and wise lead to the Colony in all its affairs.

Now, perhaps, I might say something about the necessity for the Council occasionally to adjourn to go into Select Committee. It seems that we reach a point in our deliberations in this Chamber in full and open Government and then we suddenly disappear. I disappear more completely than anybody else because you reject my chairmanship on those occasions. Now the reason for this is that when we are dealing with Bills of some complexity, the formal procedure for this House, as laid down in our Standing Rules and Orders, would not easily allow the sort of detailed point-by-point examination and explanation that some clause of the legislation require. If Members are to be completely satisfied they are giving their concurrence to these matters of major importance. If we were to take the matters in open committee of the whole House, which the Standing Rules and Orders would normally require us to do, we would either be at it for days, or would miss something of vital moment. In other words what we are doing in Select Committee is only what happens behind the Speaker's Chair, as it were, in the United Kingdom Parliament, when points of detail over Bills are thrashed out in the corridors and lobbies, the formal debate on them then taking place in the House committees.

Now this brings me to the point I seem always to be making at the end of the adjournment debates, and that is to ask if our procedures as laid down in the Rules are not too elaborate for so small a Parliament, meeting as infrequently as ours does. All these procedures were designed for a very much larger Parliament with many conflicting interests to reconcile, and meeting almost daily throughout the year. The Clerk and I and the Official Members do seem to go through quite a little pantomime every so often, even over Bills which are totally uncontroversial and procedural. Now without detracting in any way from the dignity of the House and its responsibilities, I am wondering whether we cannot devise a rather shorter and less archaic procedure for getting Bills passed through their first, second, committee, and third readings, and perhaps, if you will allow it, the Clerk will have discussions with our legal authorities and any Members who might wish to discuss this with him to see whether, in the light of other precedents, we can streamline things a bit.

When we adjourn today I should like to suggest to Members that they might like to accompany me on a tour of some of our construction projects to see what progress is being made and to assure ourselves that when we get to the road project we shall not all slip down into the football field, which I must say would be a most awkward thing, not only for our internal communications but also for the safety of the teams engaged in this season's Football League programme, all unaware of the terrible dangers hanging over their heads. Now I have done something which I said once I would not do sitting in this chair, and that's make a joke.

I should like to add to the tributes Hon Members have made to John Massingham, our Hon Chief Secretary, who will not be with us at our mid-winter Budget Session. Since the first Legislative Council meeting, when he was suddenly plunged into the business, he has done a first-class job in leading Government affairs during his tour of duty here. He arrived at, I think, a most difficult time for anyone to take over. We were just beginning to embark on our development programme with an enormous amount of work to do in that connection. The Government had to be re-gearred to that effort and some parts of it were, at the time, in a very creaky state indeed. Much of what has been achieved since then, as I have seen, sitting where I do in Government House, has been due to the energy, tact and cheerfulness with which John Haddingham threw himself into his tasks. We owe a great debt to him and, as Hon Members have said, we are all sorry that his time here will shortly come to an end. And if I might echo the good wishes of fellow Councillors, we wish him well in the future.

I look forward to the resumption of Council at our next meeting, and meanwhile - in fact next week - I shall be embarking on "Endurance" for my annual tour of the rest of my parish, going first to South Georgia and then to our Antarctic bases at Faraday and Rothera in the Peninsula. We will just about, apparently, be able to get this programme in within the three weeks I shall be away, but it will unfortunately mean that I shall miss the West and East Falkland Sports this year and the pleasure of presenting my cups to the worthy winners of the Governor's events. I am hoping that I may be able to persuade the Hon the Chief Secretary as one of his last functions here, to present them on my behalf.

Thank you, Honourable Members, for the good work put in at this meeting, and I adjourn the Council sine die.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

12th February, 1979.

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

Question No. 1/79 by Hon. S. B. Wallace

"What measures are being taken to prevent animals straying into Stanley?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

The Agricultural Department try to ensure that, so far as is possible, fences on the Common are regularly checked and kept in repair. The Police Department and the Public Works Department have also been doing as much as they can to prevent cattle and horses straying in the town.

Unfortunately a number of animals may be entering Stanley mainly by the gateway leading to Sapper Hill where it would be impracticable to keep the gate closed during the day while work on the Darwin road is in progress. PWD are, however, trying to ensure, so far as it is possible, that this gateway is closed at all other times, and are examining the possibility of constructing a strong enough cattle grid at this point.

Straying cattle are a perennial problem. While Government will continue to do what it can to insulate the town from the Common, I must repeat a point made by my Hon. Predecessor in answer to a similar question eighteen months ago (7/77) that the responsibility in common law for the control of these animals rests with the cattle owners. It is their responsibility to ensure that their beasts do not stray and cause damage to another's property. Any person who suffers damage from a straying animal may sue its owner for the damage.

Question No. 2/79 by Hon. S. B. Wallace

"What advice was received following the Motion carried at the last meeting of Council regarding the quarantine period for dogs?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

While the Veterinary Officer was on leave he had discussions in Britain with the Ministry of Agriculture about all aspects of our Quarantine Regulations but notably about the period for which imported dogs ought to be held. Subsequently we received a visit at the end of October by Mr. Boyle, a Veterinary Officer of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, and his Report is still awaited. When this is received the Veterinary Officer expects to be able to make recommendations to Government for the amendment of the existing Regulations to determine clearly the period of quarantine of all dogs according to their origin and source of importation.

Question No. 3/79 by Hon. C. B. Wallace

"What is the situation regarding the proposed improvements to the internal radio network?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

During the past year a total of 16 new single side-band transceivers have been installed on the remote and isolated islands, mainly in the far west at a cost of around £17,000. As well as markedly improving communications with those particular areas this has released a number of the old r/t sets which can be refurbished and used as replacements for the worst of the mainland installations. Equipment has been installed in conjunction with the r/t sets at Stanley and Fox Bay to enable connections to be made between the radio circuits and the respective telephone systems.

In response to public demand Government has introduced the necessary subsidiary legislation to permit the 2-metre amateur band to be used for limited social and business purposes as well as normal amateur activities. The object of this is to take full advantage of the relatively inexpensive equipment which is coming into wide use in the Colony. Government is in the process of acquiring similar equipment to enable tests to be carried out to establish the best site for the Stanley station and, eventually, to enable other licence holders to work into the Government r/t station if they are able and wish to do so. This will give those within VHF range direct access to the r/t station and through it to the Stanley telephone exchange. It will also enable Government to obtain practical experience of VHF before embarking upon extensive investment in, perhaps, a fully commercial system later on.

Government is taking into account that the FIC are planning a VHF network to link their farms with each other and with their Stanley Office.

Future improvements to internal telecommunications will inevitably involve considerable expenditure and it would be imprudent to embark on this before Government has had a chance to make a practical assessment of VHF capabilities on a Colony-wide basis. Meanwhile the broadly based R/T Committee which has had its terms of reference widened to enable it to make recommendations concerning lease rates for equipment provided by Government, licence fees and the level of subsidy, continues to advise Government on all aspects of possible improvements in the present system.

Question No. 4/79 by Hon. S. B. Wallace

"What explanation is offered by YPF for increasing the price of paraffin when the value of the Argentine peso continues to fall?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

The price of paraffin (Kerosene) and all other products supplied by YPF is governed by Section 12 of the Exchange of Notes of September 1974 on the Supply and Marketing in the Falkland Islands of Argentine Petroleum-based Products (YPF Agreement) which stipulates that:-

"The price of these products in Port Stanley shall be those in force on the Argentine Mainland".

Question No. 5/79 by Hon. S. B. Wallace

"When will Stanley Airport be opened officially, and what is causing the delay?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

The delay in the formal opening of Stanley Airport has been the result of difficulties in identifying either a suitable occasion or an appropriate person to perform the ceremony.

It is now hoped that the Airport can be opened at the end of April or in early May, during the expected visit of HMS "Ashanti". An appropriate announcement will be made in due course.

Question No. 6/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"What arrangements are made to keep a periodical check on the outer uninhabited islands to make sure we haven't any unwelcome visitors? Is it true Forrest and FIGAS have instructions not to go there?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

I refer the Hon. Member to my reply to a similar Oral Question, No. 2/70, put to me by the Hon. Member for the Camp. The basis for the Hon. Member's second question is not understood, but if he is able to give the source for what appears to be misleading information, this will be looked in to.

Question No. 7/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"Could Government please give a list of all Government reserves and land in Camp with approximate acreages?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

The following are Crown Reserves so declared by the Land Ordinance or by the Governor in exercise of the power conferred on him by Section 21 of that Ordinance:

Iafonia, Bull Point	1,280 acres
West Cove Section 22A (map reference)	1,540 "
Pebble Island	160 "
Keppel Island, Bold Point	160 "
Pear Island, Tigre Harbour	160 "
Stanley Harbour, Navy Point	145 "
South Jason and adjacent islets
Flat Jason and adjacent islets
Elephant Jason and adjacent islets
North Fur and adjacent islets
South Fur and adjacent islets

Acreages of the last five named are not available.

The following are areas of Crown Land outside Stanley:

Arch Islands	600 acres
Albionrie	100 "
Hair Creek/Sparrow Cove	2,897 "
Mary Valley Farm	3,570 "
Gullet Creek Farm	4,521 "
Bird Island
Kidney Island
Cochon Island
Dauchione Island

Acreages of the last four named are not available.

Question No. 8/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"What steps have Government taken to implement recommendations made in the Horticultural report?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

Government have been unable to take any further steps towards implementing the recommendations made in the Horticultural Possibility Study prepared by Mrs. Margaret Davidson, for which we were grateful to her.

There are a number of contributory and inter-related reasons for this. Government submitted the Report for consideration by the specialist advisers at the Ministry of Overseas Development. Whilst they acknowledged that there is such useful information in the Study their overall view is probably best summed up in the phrase "We would need to be such more convinced about long-term commercial viability of a market garden enterprise near Stanley". At about the same time that this cautious advice was received, the most promising potential site in Stanley was allocated for another project: the Stanley Dairy. Moreover, the report itself engendered little or no interest at the time of its distribution and Mr. and Mrs. Davidson themselves, who has originally shown interest in developing such a project near Stanley, had made arrangements to continue their enterprise at West Point Island. In all the circumstances, and with the continuing lack of professional staff in the Agricultural Department and the priority that has had to be given to other and more essential development projects, Government felt it was not possible to pursue this particular project for the time being.

Question No. 9/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"What steps are Government taking to try to ease the housing situation in Stanley?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

I refer the Hon. Member to my oral reply (No. 1/79) to the Hon. Member for Stanley West.

Question No. 10/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"As no satisfactory reply was given at the last Legco session I would like to ask again what is Government doing to introduce a more positive immigration policy?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

Government are discussing both with the Falkland Islands Sheep-owners' Association and with the Falkland Islands General Employees' Union the problems connected with the need for more work-people in stimulating the impetus of the economy, and ways in which these can be overcome. But one of the most severe constraints upon encouraging newcomers - at least in Stanley - continues to be the lack of housing. Until immigrants can be satisfactorily housed, it might be self-defeating to launch upon any concerted campaign to attract newcomers. Nevertheless, this is just one of the many reasons why Government is attaching so much importance to tackling the housing situation as a matter of urgency.

Question No. 11/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"Were there any airstrips left that are still considered suitable for the Islander aircraft?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

In his Report of September 1978 on Land Aerodromes in the Falkland Islands, Mr. R. J. Wainwright, a senior Operations Officer of the Directorate of Operational Services Overseas at the Civil Aviation Authority, reported that there were seven aerodromes that can be used immediately: these are Port Stanley, Darwin, Chartres, Pebble Island, Fox Bay East, North Arm, and Salvador. He also considered that regular use aerodromes can eventually be developed at, at least, a total of thirteen sites. The situation has in no way changed since Mr. Westwright made his Report and certain aerodromes are therefore available for limited use now.

Question No. 12/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"What steps have Government taken to implement the request by Legislative Councillors that steps should be taken immediately to make sure that Government has the necessary legal power to acquire land for development along the first stage of the Islands road system?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

The Government is not yet ready to put forward proposals for the compulsory acquisition of land for development purposes. But it already has, under Section 31 of the Land Ordinance, sufficient powers to acquire any land that may be needed for what may be deemed a "public purpose".

Question No. 13/79 by Hon. D. S. Evans

"Are Government doing everything they can to make sure that the Green Patch scheme is implemented as soon as possible as this is extremely important?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

Government is well aware of the significance of this scheme for the future of the Colony. Negotiations are well advanced with the Falkland Islands Company for the purchase of Green Patch and, with the agreement of the Falkland Islands Sheeppowners' Association - whose help in this Government gratefully acknowledges - the Steering Committee for the implementation of the Scheme has been strengthened by the appointment of Mr. J. T. Clement as Executive Co-ordinating Member.

Question No. 14/79 by Hon. T. J. D. Miller

"When foreign fishing vessels are sighted close to the Falklands does m.v. Forrest visit and inspect the area to ensure that such vessels do not infringe our territorial limits? If not why does she not do so?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

m.v. Forrest is neither designed, equipped, manned, nor has the speed to assume the specialist task of a Fisheries Patrol Vessel. On the few occasions when Government has received reliable reports that foreign fishing vessels have been sighted reasonably close to the Falkland Islands it has therefore been judged unavailing to deploy the Forrest specifically in such a role. On her routine voyages about the Islands the vessel can, as I hope would others of our ships, keep an eye open for infringements of our territorial sea, at least so they can be

Question No. 15/79 by Hon. T. J. D. Miller

"Construction of the Darwin-Stanley section of the Colony road system is now to take longer than anticipated and will be more costly. Is it correct that the Falkland Islands Government's contribution to the project has been fixed at a maximum of £120,000?"

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

I can confirm that the Falkland Islands Government's contribution to the capital costs of this project has been fixed at £120,000.

Question No. 16/79 by Hon. T. J. D. Miller

"Will the Administration consider, in consultation with the Royal Marines, experimenting with the use of m.v. Forrest as a vehicle ferry across the Falkland Sound from time to time, for example during the February camp holiday and also before and after Christmas? It would be natural to charge a small fee per vehicle for such a service."

Reply by Hon. Chief Secretary

A preliminary assessment of this interesting suggestion indicates that it is more attractive than practicable. m.v. Forrest can only take one vehicle at a time on deck and to load vehicles in the hold would mean dismantling all the present hold fittings on each and every occasion that the vessel were used as a ferry. Such work, together with the inescapable costs of fuel oil, crew's wages, insurance, etc., would also mean that it would be necessary to charge a fee very much in excess of the "small" one that the Hon. Member had envisaged. Unloading the vehicles on East Falkland, at Brenton Loch or elsewhere, would also present difficulties. In the circumstances the matter is not being pursued further.

Colony of the Falkland Islands

IN THE TWENTY-EIGHTH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF
Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, C.M.G., O.B.E.
Governor.

An Ordinance

To make provision for the reciprocal enforcement of maintenance orders. Title.

(21st March 1979)

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Maintenance Orders (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance 1979. Short title.

2. (1) In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires — Interpretation.

“affiliation order” means an order (however described) adjudging, finding or declaring a person to be the father of a child, whether or not it also provides for the maintenance of the child;

“certificate of arrears”, in relation to a maintenance order, means a certificate certifying that the sum specified in the certificate is to the best of the information or belief of the officer giving the certificate the amount of the arrears due under the order at the date of the certificate, or, as the case may be, that to the best of his information or belief there are no arrears due thereunder at the date;

“certified copy”, in relation to an order of a court, means a copy of the order certified by the proper officer of the court to be a true copy;

“court” includes any tribunal or person having power to make, confirm, enforce, vary or revoke a maintenance order;

“maintenance order” means an order (however described) of any of the following descriptions, that is to say —

- (a) an order (including an affiliation order) which provides for the periodical payment of sums of money towards the maintenance of any person, being a person whom the person liable to make payments under the order is, according to the law applied in the place where the order was made, liable to maintain; and
- (b) an affiliation order which provides for the payment by a person adjudged, found or declared to be a child’s father of expenses incidental to the child’s birth or, where the child has died, of his funeral expenses, and, in the case of a maintenance order which has been varied, means that order as varied;

“payee”, in relation to a maintenance order, means the person entitled to the payments for which the order provides;

“payer”, in relation to a maintenance order, means the person liable to make payments under the order;

“provisional order” means (according to the context) —

- (a) an order made by a court in the Colony which is provisional only and which has no effect unless and until confirmed, with or without alteration, by a competent court in a reciprocating country; or
- (b) an order made by a competent court in a reciprocating country which is provisional only and which has no effect unless and until confirmed, with or without alteration, by a court in the Colony having power under this Ordinance to confirm it;

“reciprocating country” means a country or territory designated in an order made by the Governor under section 3 of the Ordinance to the extent which it is so designated;

“registered order” means a maintenance order which is for the time being registered in a court in the Colony under this Ordinance;

“registering court”, in relation to a registered order, means the court in which that order is for the time being registered under this Ordinance;

“the responsible authority”, in relation to a reciprocating country, means any person who in that country has functions similar to those of the Governor under this Ordinance.

(2) For the purposes of this Ordinance an order shall be taken to be a maintenance order so far (but only so far) as it relates to the periodical payment of sums of money as mentioned in paragraph (a) of the definition of “maintenance order” in subsection (1) above or to the payment by a person adjudged, found or declared to be a child’s father of any such expenses as are mentioned in paragraph (b) of that definition.

(3) Any reference in this Ordinance to the payment of money for the maintenance of a child shall be construed as including a reference to the payment of money for the child’s education.

Orders designating
reciprocating countries.
1972 c. 18 s. 1.

3. (1) If the Governor is satisfied that, in the event of the benefits conferred by this Ordinance being applied to, or to particular classes of, maintenance orders made by the courts of any country or territory other than the Colony, similar benefits will in that country or territory be applied to, or to those classes of, maintenance orders made by the courts of the Colony, he may by Order-in-Council, designate that country or territory as a reciprocating country for the purposes of this Ordinance.

(2) A country or territory may be designated under subsection (1) above as a reciprocating country either as regards maintenance orders generally, or as regards maintenance orders other than those of any specified class, or as regards maintenance orders of one or more specified classes only; and a country or territory which is for the time being so designated otherwise than as regards maintenance orders generally shall for the purposes of this Ordinance be taken to be a reciprocating country only as regards maintenance orders of the class to which the designation extends.

4. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, where the payer under a maintenance order made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, by a court in the Colony is residing in a reciprocating country, the payee under the order may apply for the order to be sent to that country for enforcement.

Transmission of maintenance order made in the Colony for enforcement in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 2.

(2) Subsection (1) above shall not have effect in relation to a provisional order.

(3) Every application under this section shall be made in the prescribed manner to the prescribed officer of the court which made the maintenance order to which the application relates.

(4) If, on an application duly made under this section to the prescribed officer of a court in the Colony, that officer is satisfied that the payer under the maintenance order to which the application relates is residing in a reciprocating country, the following documents, that is to say —

- (a) a certified copy of the maintenance order;
- (b) a certificate signed by that officer certifying that the order is enforceable in the Colony;
- (c) a certificate of arrears;
- (d) a statement giving such information as the officer possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer;
- (e) a statement giving such information as the officer possesses for facilitating the identification of the payer; and
- (f) where available, a photograph of the payer,

shall be sent by that officer to the Governor with a view to their being transmitted by the Governor to the responsible authority in the reciprocating country if he is satisfied that the statement relating to the whereabouts of the payer gives sufficient information to justify that being done.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be taken as affecting any jurisdiction of a court in the Colony with respect to a maintenance order to which this section applies, and any such order may be enforced, varied or revoked accordingly.

5. (1) Where a complaint is made to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court against a person residing in a reciprocating country and the complaint is one of which such court would have jurisdiction by virtue of any enactment to make a maintenance order if —

- (a) that person were residing in the Colony;
- (b) a summons to appear before the court to answer to the complaint had been served on him, such court shall have jurisdiction to hear the complaint and may, subject to subsection (2) below, make a maintenance order on the complaint.

(2) A maintenance order made by virtue of this section shall be a provisional order.

Power of Magistrate's Court or Summary Court to make provisional maintenance order against person residing in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 3.

(3) If the court hearing a complaint to which subsection (1) above applies is satisfied —

- (a) that there are grounds on which a maintenance order containing a provision requiring the making of payments for the maintenance of a child may be made on that complaint; but
- (b) that it has no jurisdiction to make that order unless it also makes an order providing for the legal custody of that child, then, for the purpose of enabling such court to make the maintenance order, the complainant shall be deemed to be the person to whom the legal custody of that child has been committed by an order of such court which is for the time being in force.

(4) No enactment empowering the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court to refuse to make an order on a complaint on the ground that the matter in question is one which would be more conveniently dealt with by the Supreme Court shall apply in relation to a complaint to which subsection (1) above applies.

(5) Where a court makes a maintenance order which is by virtue of this section a provisional order, the following documents, that is to say —

- (a) a certified copy of the maintenance order;
- (b) a document, authenticated in the prescribed manner, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings;
- (c) a certificate signed by the prescribed officer of the court certifying that the grounds stated in the certificate are the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed by the payer under the order;
- (d) a statement giving such information as was available to the court as to the whereabouts of the payer;
- (e) a statement giving such information as the officer possesses for facilitating the identification of the payer; and
- (f) where available, a photograph of the payer,

shall be sent by that officer to the Governor with a view to their being transmitted by the Governor to the responsible authority in the reciprocating country in which the payer is residing if he is satisfied that the statement relating to the whereabouts of the payer gives sufficient information to justify that being done.

(6) A maintenance order made by virtue of this section which has been confirmed by a competent court in a reciprocating country shall be treated for all purposes as if the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court which made the order had made it in the form in which it was confirmed and as if the order had never been a provisional order, and, subject to section 6 of this Ordinance, any such order may be enforced, varied or revoked accordingly.

Variation and revocation
of maintenance order
made in the Colony.
1972 c. 18 s. 5.

6. (1) This section applies to a maintenance order a certified copy of which has been sent to a reciprocating country in pursuance of section 4 of this Ordinance and to a maintenance order made by virtue of section 5 thereof which has been confirmed by a competent court in such country.

(2) A court in the Colony having power to vary a maintenance order to which this section applies shall have power to vary that order by a provisional order.

(3) Where the court hearing an application for the variation of a maintenance order to which this section applies proposes to vary it by increasing the rate of the payments under the order then, unless either —

- (a) both the payer and the payee under the order appear in the proceedings; or

(b) the applicant appears and the appropriate process has been duly served on the other party,
the order varying the order shall be a provisional order.

(4) Where a court in the Colony makes a provisional order varying a maintenance order to which this section applies, the prescribed officer of the court shall send in the prescribed manner to the court in a reciprocating country having power to confirm the provisional order a certified copy of the provisional order together with a document, authenticated in the prescribed manner, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings.

(5) Where a certified copy of a provisional order made by a court in a reciprocating country, being an order varying or revoking a maintenance order to which this section applies, together with a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings in which the provisional order was made, is received by the court in the Colony which made the maintenance order, that court may confirm or refuse to confirm the provisional order and, if that order is an order varying the maintenance order, confirm it either without alteration or with such alterations as it thinks reasonable.

(6) For the purpose of determining whether a provisional order should be confirmed under subsection (5) above, the court shall proceed as if an application for the variation or revocation, as the case may be, of the maintenance orders in question, had been made to it.

(7) Where a maintenance order to which this section applies has been varied by an order (including a provisional order which has been confirmed) made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, the maintenance order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, have effect as varied by that order and, where that order is a provisional order, as if that order had been made in the form it was confirmed, and as if it had never been a provisional order.

(8) Where a maintenance order to which this section applies has been revoked by an order made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, including a provisional order made by the last-mentioned court which has been confirmed by a court in the Colony, the maintenance order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, be deemed to have ceased to have effect except as respects any arrears due under the maintenance order at that date.

(9) Where before a maintenance order made by virtue of section 5 of this Ordinance is confirmed a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising evidence taken in a reciprocating country for the purpose of proceedings relating to the confirmation of the order is received by the court in the Colony which made the order, or that court, in compliance with a request made to it by a court in such a country, takes the evidence of a person residing in the Colony for the purpose of such proceedings, the court in the Colony which made the order shall consider that evidence and if, having done so, it appears to it that the order ought not to have been made—

- (a) it shall, in such manner as may be prescribed, give the person on whose application the maintenance order was made an opportunity to consider that evidence, to make representations with respect to it and to adduce further evidence; and
- (b) after considering all evidence and any representations made by that person, it may revoke the maintenance order.

7. (1) This section applies to a maintenance order made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, by a court in a reciprocating country, including such an order made by

Registration in Colony
court of maintenance
order made in recipro-
cating country.
1972 c. 18 s. 6.

such a court which has been confirmed by a court in another reciprocating country but excluding a provisional order which has not been confirmed.

(2) Where a certified copy of an order to which this section applies is received by the Governor from the responsible authority in a reciprocating country, and it appears to the Governor that the payer under the order is residing in the Colony, he shall send the copy of the order to the prescribed officer of the appropriate court.

(3) Where the prescribed officer of the appropriate court receives from the Governor a certified copy of an order to which this section applies, he shall, subject to subsection (4) below, register the order in the prescribed manner in that court.

(4) Before registering an order under this section an officer of a court shall take such steps as he thinks fit for the purpose of ascertaining whether the payer under the order is residing within the Colony, and if after taking those steps he is satisfied that the payer is not so residing he shall return the certified copy of the order to the Governor with a statement giving such information as he possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer.

8. (1) This section applies to a maintenance order made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, by a court in a reciprocating country being a provisional order.

(2) Where a certified copy of an order to which this section applies together with —

- (a) a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings in which the order was made; and
- (b) a statement of the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed by the payer under the order, is received by the Governor from the responsible authority in a reciprocating country, and it appears to the Governor that the payer under the order is residing in the Colony, he shall send the copy of the order and documents which accompanied it to the prescribed officer of the appropriate court, and that court shall —

- (i) if the payer under the order establishes any such defence as he might have raised in the proceedings in which the order was made, refuse to confirm the order; and
- (ii) in any other case, confirm the order either without alteration or with such alterations as it thinks reasonable.

(3) In any proceedings for the confirmation under this section of a provisional order, the statement received from the court which made the order of the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed by the payer under the order shall be conclusive evidence that the payer might have raised a defence on any of those grounds in the proceedings in which the order was made.

(4) For the purpose of determining whether a provisional order should be confirmed under this section the court shall proceed as if an application for a maintenance order against the payer under the provisional order had been made to it.

(5) The prescribed officer of a court having power under this section to confirm a provisional order shall, if the court confirms the order, register the order in the prescribed manner in that court, and shall, if the court refuses to confirm the order, return the certified copy of the order and the documents which accompanied it to the Governor.

(6) If a summons to appear in the proceedings for the confirmation of the provisional order cannot be duly served on the payer under that order the officer by whom the certified copy of the order

Confirmation by Colony court of provisional maintenance order made in reciprocating country.

1972 c. 18 s. 7.

was received shall return that copy and the documents which accompanied it to the Governor with a statement giving such information as he possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer.

9. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, a registered order may be enforced in the Colony as if it had been made by the registering court and as if that court had had jurisdiction to make it; and proceedings for or with respect to the enforcement of any such order may be taken accordingly.

Enforcement of maintenance order registered in the Colony court.
1972 c. 18 s. 8.

(2) Any person for the time being under an obligation to make payments in pursuance of a registered order shall give notice of any change of address to the prescribed officer of the court, and any person failing without reasonable excuse to give such notice shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £10.

(3) An order which by virtue of this section is enforceable by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court shall be enforceable as if it were an affiliation order made by such court; and the provisions of any enactment with respect to the enforcement of affiliation orders (including enactments relating to the accrual of arrears and the remission of sums due) shall apply accordingly.

(4) The Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court shall take all such steps for enforcing the order as may be prescribed.

(5) In any proceedings for or with respect to the enforcement of an order which is for the time being registered in any court a certificate of arrears sent to the prescribed officer of the court shall be evidence of the facts stated therein.

(6) Subject to subsection (7) below, sums of money payable under a registered order shall be payable in accordance with the order as from the date on which the order was made.

(7) The court having power under section 8 of this Ordinance to confirm a provisional order may, if it decides to confirm the order, direct that the sums of money payable under it shall be deemed to have been payable in accordance with the order as from such date, being a date later than the date on which the order was made, as it may specify; and subject to any such direction, a maintenance order registered under the said section 8 shall be treated as if it had been made in the form in which it was confirmed and as if it had never been a provisional order.

10. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, the registering court —

Variation and revocation of maintenance order registered in the Colony.
1972 c. 18 s. 9.

- (a) shall have the like power, on an application made by the payer or payee under a registered order, to vary or revoke the order as if it had been made by the registering court and as if that court had had jurisdiction to make it; and
- (b) shall have power to vary or revoke a registered order by a provisional order.

(2) The registering court shall not vary a registered order otherwise than by a provisional order unless —

- (a) both the payer and the payee under the registered order are for the time being residing in the Colony; or
- (b) the application is made by the payee under the registered order; or
- (c) the variation consists of a reduction in the rate of the payments under the registered order and is made solely on the ground that there has been a change in the financial circumstances of the payer since the registered order was made or, in the case of an order registered under section 8 of this Ordinance, since the registered order was confirmed, and the courts in the reciprocating country in which the maintenance order in question was made do not have power, according to the law in force in that country, to confirm provisional orders varying maintenance orders.

(3) The registering court shall not revoke a registered order otherwise than by a provisional order unless both the payer and the payee under the registered order are for the time being residing in the Colony.

(4) On an application for the revocation of a registered order the registering court shall, unless the payer and the payee under the registered order are for the time being residing in the Colony, apply the law applied by the reciprocating country in which the registered order was made; but where by virtue of this subsection the registering court is required to apply that law, that court may make a provisional order if it has reason to believe that the ground on which the application is made is a ground on which the order could be revoked according to the law applied by the reciprocating country, notwithstanding that it has not been established that it is such a ground.

(5) Where the registering court makes a provisional order varying or revoking a registered order the prescribed officer of the court shall send in the prescribed manner to the court in the reciprocating country which made the registered order a certified copy of the provisional order together with a document, authenticated in the prescribed manner, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings.

(6) Where a certified copy of a provisional order made by a court in a reciprocating country, being an order varying a registered order, together with a document, duly authenticated, setting out or summarising the evidence given in the proceedings in which the provisional order was made, is received by the registering court, that court may confirm the order either without alteration or with such alteration as it thinks reasonable or refuse to confirm the order.

(7) For the purpose of determining whether a provisional order should be confirmed under subsection (6) above the court shall proceed as if an application for the variation of the registered order had been made to it.

(8) Where a registered order has been varied by an order (including a provisional order which has been confirmed) made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, the registered order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, have effect as varied by that order and, where that order was a provisional order, as if that order had been made in the form in which it was confirmed and as if it had never been a provisional order.

(9) Where a registered order has been revoked by an order made by a court in the Colony or by a competent court in a reciprocating country, including a provisional order made by the court in the Colony which has been confirmed by a competent court in a reciprocating country, the registered order shall, as from the date on which the order was made, be deemed to have ceased to have effect except as respects any arrears due under the registered order at that date.

(10) The prescribed officer of the registering court shall register in the prescribed manner any order varying a registered order other than a provisional order which is not confirmed.

11. (1) Where —

- (a) a registered order is revoked by an order made by the registering court; or

- (b) a registered order is revoked by a provisional order made by that court which has been confirmed by a court in a reciprocating country and notice of the confirmation is received by the registering court; or
- (c) a registered order is revoked by an order made by a court in such a country and notice of the revocation is received by the registering court,

the prescribed officer of the registering court shall cancel the registration; but any arrears due under the registered order at the date when its registration is cancelled by virtue of this subsection shall continue to be recoverable as if the registration had not been cancelled.

(2) Where the prescribed officer of the registering court is of opinion that the payer under a registered order has ceased to reside within the jurisdiction of that court, he shall cancel the registration of the order and shall send the certified copy of the order to the Governor.

12. (1) If it appears to the Governor that the payer under a maintenance order, a certified copy of which has been received by him from a reciprocating country, is not residing in the Colony, or, in the case of an order which subsequently became a registered order, has ceased to reside therein, he shall send to the responsible authority in that country or, if having regard to all the circumstances he thinks it proper to do so, to the responsible authority in another reciprocating country —

Steps to be taken by the Governor where payer under certain orders is not residing in the Colony.

1972 c. 18 s. 11.

- (a) the certified copy of the order in question and a certified copy of any order varying that order;
- (b) if the order has at any time been a registered order, a certificate of arrears signed by the prescribed officer;
- (c) a statement giving such information as the Governor possesses as to the whereabouts of the payer; and
- (d) any other relevant documents in his possession relating to the case.

(2) Where the documents mentioned in subsection (1) above are sent to the responsible authority in a reciprocating country other than that in which the order in question was made, the Governor shall inform the responsible authority in the reciprocating country in which that order was made of what he has done.

13. (1) No appeal shall lie from a provisional order made in pursuance of any provision of this Ordinance by a court in the Colony.

Appeals.

1972 c. 18 s. 12.

(2) Where in pursuance of any such provision any such court confirms or refuses to confirm a provisional order made by a court in a reciprocating country, whether a maintenance order or an order varying or revoking a maintenance order, the payer or payee under the maintenance order shall have the like right of appeal (if any) from the confirmation of, or refusal to confirm, the provisional order as he would have if that order were not a provisional order and the court which confirmed or refused to confirm it had made or, as the case may be, refused to make it.

(3) Where in pursuance of any such provision any such court makes, or refuses to make, an order varying or revoking a maintenance order made by a court in a reciprocating country then subject to subsection (1) above, the payer or payee under the maintenance order shall have the like right of appeal (if any) from that order or from the refusal to make it as he would have if the maintenance order had been made by the first-mentioned court.

(4) Nothing in this section (except subsection (1) above) shall be construed as affecting any right of appeal conferred by any other enactment.

Admissibility of evidence given in reciprocating
country.

1972 c. 18 s. 13.

14. (1) A statement contained in —

- (a) a document, duly authenticated, which purports to set out or summarise evidence given in proceedings in a court in a reciprocating country; or
- (b) a document, duly authenticated, which purports to set out or summarise evidence taken in such a country for the purpose of proceedings in a court in the Colony under this Ordinance, whether in response to a request made by such a court or otherwise; or
- (c) a document, duly authenticated, which purports to have been received in evidence in proceedings in a court in such a country or to be a copy of a document so received,

shall in any proceedings in a court in the Colony relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies be admissible as evidence of any fact stated therein to the same extent as oral evidence of that fact is admissible in those proceedings.

(2) A document purporting to set out or summarise evidence given as mentioned in subsection (1) (a) above, or taken as mentioned in subsection (1) (b) above, shall be deemed to be duly authenticated for the purposes of that subsection if the document purports to be certified by the judge, magistrate or other person before whom the evidence was given, or, as the case may be, by whom it was taken, to be the original document containing or recording, or, as the case may be, summarising, that evidence or a true copy of that document.

(3) A document purporting to have been received in evidence as mentioned in subsection (1) (c) above, or to be a copy of a document so received, shall be deemed to be duly authenticated for the purposes of that subsection if the document purports to be certified by a judge, magistrate or officer of the court in question to have been, or to be a true copy of a document which has been, so received.

(4) It shall not be necessary in any such proceedings to prove the signature or official position of the person appearing to have given such a certificate.

(5) Nothing in this section shall prejudice the admission in evidence of any document which is admissible in evidence apart from this section.

Obtaining of evidence needed for purpose of certain proceedings.

1972 c. 18 s. 14.

15. (1) Where for the purpose of any proceedings in a court in a reciprocating country relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies a request is made by or on behalf of that court for the taking in the Colony of the evidence of a person residing therein relating to matters specified in the request, such court in the Colony as may be prescribed shall have power to take that evidence and, after giving notice of the time and place at which the evidence is to be taken to such persons and in such manner as it thinks fit, shall take the evidence in such manner as may be prescribed.

Evidence taken in compliance with such a request shall be sent in the prescribed manner by the prescribed officer of the court to the court in the reciprocating country by or on behalf of which the request was made.

(2) Where any person, not being the payer or the payee under the maintenance order to which the proceedings in question relate, is required by virtue of this section to give evidence before a court in the Colony, the court may order that there shall be paid such sums as appear to the court reasonably sufficient to compensate that person for the expense, trouble or loss of time properly incurred in or incidental to his attendance.

(3) Section 77 (1), (3) and (4) of the Magistrate's Court Act 1952 (which provides for compelling the attendance of witnesses, etc)

shall apply in relation to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court having power under subsection (1) above to take the evidence of any person as if the proceedings in the court in a reciprocating country for the purpose of which a request for the taking of the evidence has been made were proceedings in the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court and had been begun by complaint.

(4) A court in the Colony may for the purpose of any proceedings in that court under this Ordinance relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies request a court in a reciprocating country to take or provide evidence relating to such matters as may be specified in the request and may remit the case to that court for that purpose.

16. For the purposes of this Ordinance, unless the contrary is shown —

- (a) any order made by a court in a reciprocating country purporting to bear the seal of that court or to be signed by any person in his capacity as a judge, magistrate or officer of the court, shall be deemed without further proof to have been duly sealed or, as the case may be, to have been signed by that person;
- (b) the person by whom the order was signed shall be deemed without further proof to have been a judge, magistrate or officer, as the case may be, of that court when he signed it and, in the case of an officer, to have been authorized to sign it; and
- (c) a document purporting to be a certified copy of an order made by a court in a reciprocating country shall be deemed without further proof to be such a copy.

Order, etc., made abroad need not be proved.

1972 c. 18 s. 15.

17. (1) Payment of sums due under a registered order shall, while the order is registered in a court in the Colony, be made in such manner and to such person as may be prescribed.

Payment of sums under orders made abroad;
conversion of currency.

1972 c. 18 s. 16.

(2) Where the sums required to be paid under a registered order are expressed in a currency other than the currency of the Colony, then, as from the relevant date, the order shall be treated as if it were an order requiring the payment of such sums in the currency of the Colony, as, on the basis of the rate of exchange prevailing at that date, are equivalent to the sums so required to be paid.

(3) Where the sum specified in the statement, being a statement of the amount of any arrears due under a maintenance order made by a court in a reciprocating country, is expressed in a currency other than the currency of the Colony, that sum shall be deemed to be such sum in the currency of the Colony, as, on the basis of the rate of exchange prevailing at the relevant date, is equivalent to the sum so specified.

(4) For the purpose of this section a written certificate purporting to be signed by the Financial Secretary certifying that a specified rate of exchange prevailed between currencies at a specified date and that at such rate a specified sum in the currency of the Colony is equivalent to a specified sum in another specified currency shall be evidence of the rate of exchange so prevailing on that date and of the equivalent sums in terms of the respective currencies.

(5) In this section "the relevant date" means —

- (a) in relation to a registered order or to a statement of arrears due under a maintenance order made by a court in a reciprocating country, the date on which the order first becomes a registered order or (if earlier) the date on which it is confirmed by a court in the Colony;
- (b) in relation to a registered order which has been varied, the date on which the last order varying that order is registered in a court in the Colony or (if earlier) the date on which the last order varying that order is confirmed by such a court.

Application to certain orders and proceedings under the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance. (Cap. 42)

1972 c. 18 s. 24.

18. Where the Governor makes an order under section 3 of this Ordinance designating as a reciprocating country a country or territory to which, at the commencement of this Ordinance, the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance as repealed by this Ordinance extended, that order may contain such provisions as the Governor considers expedient for the purposes of securing —

- (a) that the provisions of this Ordinance apply, subject to such modifications as may be specified in the order, to maintenance orders, or maintenance orders of a specified class —
 - (i) made by a court in the Colony against a person residing in that country or territory; or
 - (ii) made by a court in that country or territory against a person residing in the Colony,

being orders to which immediately before the date of the coming into operation of the order of the said Ordinance applied, except any order which immediately before that date is registered in the Supreme Court;

- (b) that any maintenance order, or maintenance order of a specified class, made by a court in that country or territory which has been confirmed by a court in the Colony under section 6 of the said Ordinance and is in force immediately before that date is registered under section 8 of this Ordinance;
- (c) that any proceedings brought under or by virtue of a provision of the said Ordinance in a court in the Colony which are pending at the date, being proceedings affecting a person resident in that country or territory, are continued as if they had been brought under or by virtue of the corresponding provision of this Ordinance.

Maintenance orders registered in Supreme Court under the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance.

1972 c. 18 s. 23.

19. (1) Where a country or territory, being a country or territory to which at the commencement of this Ordinance the Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance extended, becomes a reciprocating country, then, if immediately before the said Ordinance was repealed any maintenance order made by a court in that country or territory was registered in the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court may, on application by the payer or the payee under the order or of its own motion, transfer the order to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court for all the circumstances it thinks appropriate, with a view to the order being registered in the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this Ordinance.

(2) Where the Supreme Court transfers an order to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this section it shall —

- (a) cause a certified copy of the order to be sent to the prescribed officer of that court; and
- (b) cancel the registration of the order in the Supreme Court.

(3) The prescribed officer of the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court on receiving a certified copy of an order sent to him under this section shall register the order in the prescribed manner in that court.

Proceedings in Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court.

1972 c. 18 s. 17.

20. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, the proceedings which are domestic proceedings within the meaning of the Magistrate's Court Act 1952 shall include all proceedings in a Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this Ordinance other than proceedings for the variation or enforcement of a maintenance order.

(2) The Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court on hearing any proceedings for the variation of a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies may, if it thinks fit, order that those proceedings and any other proceedings being heard therewith shall be treated for the purposes of the said Act of 1952 as domestic proceedings.

(3) The said Act of 1952 shall have effect in accordance with subsections (1) and (2) above notwithstanding anything in subsection (1) of section 56 thereof.

(4) Any application which by virtue of a provision of this Ordinance is made to the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court shall be made by complaint.

(5) Where the defendant to a complaint for the variation or revocation —

- (a) of a maintenance order made by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court being an order to which section 6 of this Ordinance applies; or
- (b) of a registered order,

does not appear at the time and place appointed for the hearing of the complaint, but the court is satisfied that the defendant is residing in a reciprocating country, the court may proceed to hear and determine the complaint at the time and place appointed for the hearing or for any adjourned hearing in like manner as if the defendant had appeared at that time and place.

21. The Governor in Council may make rules generally for the carrying out of the purposes or provisions of this Ordinance or any matters incidental or consequential thereto as may appear to him to be necessary and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing rules may be made for any of the following purposes —

Rules.
1972 c. 18 s. 18.

- (a) the orders made, or other things done, by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court, or an officer of such court, under this Ordinance, or by a court in a reciprocating country, notice of which is to be given to such persons as the rules may provide and the manner in which such notice shall be given;
- (b) the cases and manner in which courts in reciprocating countries are to be informed of orders made, or other things done; by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court under this Ordinance;
- (c) the cases and manner in which a prescribed officer may take evidence needed for the purpose of proceedings in a court in a reciprocating country relating to a maintenance order to which this Ordinance applies;
- (d) the circumstances and manner in which cases may be remitted by the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court to courts in reciprocating countries;
- (e) the circumstances and manner in which the Magistrates Court or a Summary Court may for the purpose of this Ordinance communicate with courts in reciprocating countries.

22. The Maintenance Orders (Facilities for Enforcement) Ordinance is repealed.

An Ordinance

To make provision for the raising of loans and for matters connected therewith. Title.

(14th February 1979)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Loans Ordinance 1979 and shall come into operation on the 14th day of February 1979.

Short title and commencement.

2. In this Ordinance unless the context otherwise requires—
“loan” means any loan issued under the provisions of this Ordinance;

Interpretation.

“register” means any book kept by the registering authority under the provisions of this Ordinance;

“registering authority” means the Treasury, the Crown Agents or any other agent appointed by the Financial Secretary;

“stock” means any stock issued under the provisions of this Ordinance and any share or interest in such stock;

“stockholder” means any person holding stock and entered as owner thereof in the register.

3. (1) The Financial Secretary may, subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, raise internally or externally loans of such sums of money as the Legislative Council may from time to time authorize by resolution, together with such further sums as are necessary to defray the expense of issue.

Authority to raise loans.

(2) Any moneys borrowed under the provisions of this Ordinance, shall be applied for the purposes specified in the authorizing resolution.

- Mode of raising loans. 4. Loans may be raised —
- (a) by the creation and issue of registered or inscribed stock;
 - (b) from Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom;
 - (c) in such other manner as the Financial Secretary may decide.
- Advance subscriptions to loans. 5. Advance subscriptions may be taken on such terms and conditions as may be specified by the Financial Secretary once the raising of the loan is authorized.
- Loans to be charge upon general revenues. 6. The principal moneys and interest represented by loans issued under the provisions of this Ordinance are hereby charged upon and payable out of the general revenues of the Colony.
- Issue of stocks. 7. Falkland Islands stocks may from time to time be issued in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere upon the best and most favourable terms that can be obtained and to such amounts and on such conditions as the Financial Secretary may direct.
- Register of stocks. 8. (1) A register shall be kept in which —
- (a) all stock issues shall be registered or, in the case of inscribed stock, inscribed;
 - (b) all transfers, transmissions and other dealings in such stock shall be registered.
- (2) The register shall be prima facie evidence of title of any person to any stock of which he is entered as stockholder.
- (3) the register shall be kept by the Treasury, the Crown Agents or any other appointed agent.
- Stock certificates. 9. Stock certificates shall be sent to the stockholder showing that stock to the value shown therein has been registered in the name of the stockholder. A stock certificate is prima facie evidence of title to the stock specified therein.
- Transfer of stock. 10. Stock may be transferred by an instrument of transfer approved by the Financial Secretary and shall be supported by the production to the registering authority of the original or a certified true copy of the stock certificate. If the registering authority is satisfied that the transfer is in order the name of the new stockholder shall be entered in the register.
- Payment of interest. 11. Interest shall be payable annually or half yearly as specified when the stock is issued at the rate fixed at the time of issue.
- Redemption of stock. 12. (1) Stock shall be redeemable at par on the date named when the stock is issued and no interest shall be payable after that date.
- (2) Stock may be redeemed before maturity provided that provision for this is made when the stock is issued.
- Interest to be charge upon general revenues. 13. So long as any portion of any loan remains outstanding the general revenues of the Colony shall be liable to pay the current annual or half year's interest.
- Creation of Sinking Fund. 14. (1) Such amount of money as is required shall be taken from the general revenues of the Colony to create in each year a Sinking Fund to the amount specified in the prospectus.
- (2) The money in question shall be invested in the Colony, by the Crown Agents or other appointed agents in such manner as is approved by the Financial Secretary, and the dividends, interest or produce of such investment shall also be invested in like manner.
- (3) Investments on behalf of the Sinking Fund may be changed with the approval of the Financial Secretary. Investments in the Colony may not exceed 30 per centum of the total amount of the Sinking Fund at any one time.

(4) The Sinking Fund may be used for the redemption of stock by purchase. Any balance remaining after such redemption shall be credited to the Sinking Fund.

(5) If the Sinking Fund is insufficient, at the time of maturity of the loan, to redeem the loan in full, any balance shall be made good out of the general revenues of the Colony.

15. No stamp duty shall be payable on the issue or transfer of stock.

Exemption from stamp duty.

16. Falkland Islands stock shall be an authorized investment for trust funds.

Stock authorized investment for trust funds.

17. The Governor in Council may make such regulations as may be necessary for the carrying out of the provisions of this Ordinance.

Regulations.

(1st July 1977)

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Pensions (Amendment) Ordinance 1979.

Insertion of new heading "Part I".

2. The principal Ordinance is amended by inserting before section 1 the following new heading —

"PART I"

Addition of new "Part II".
6 of 1965.

3. The principal Ordinance is amended by adding after section 18 the following new Part —

"PART II

WIDOWS' AND CHILDREN'S PENSIONS

Pensions payable to widow and children of a male pensioner or pensionable officer.

18A. (1) On the death of a male pensioner, or of a male pensionable officer who has completed ten years' pensionable service, there shall be paid to his dependants (if any), a pension as set out in the following provisions of this section based on the amount of the pension he was drawing at the date of his death, or, as the case may be, that he would have been entitled to at the date of his death had he been retired in circumstances in which he would have been entitled to retire with a pension.

(2) If the male pensioner or pensionable officer leaves a widow but no children, the widow shall be entitled to one-half of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled, until her re-marriage or death.

(3) If the male pensioner or pensionable officer leaves a widow and children by such widow or by a previous wife, the widow shall be entitled until her re-marriage or death to one-half of the amount of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled, and the children shall be entitled to pensions in the following proportions, that is to say—

- (a) if three in number, or less, then each shall receive one-sixth of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled; or
- (b) if more than three, then one-half of such pension shall be divided equally among the children:

Provided that where a male pensioner or pensionable officer dies leaving a widow and children by the widow or by a previous wife, it shall be lawful for the Governor either in the first instance or at any time while pensions are payable to the children, to direct the payment to the widow of part only of such pensions and to direct the payment of the balance of such pensions for or towards the maintenance of the children in such manner as the Governor thinks fit.

(4) If the male pensioner or pensionable officer leaves children and no widow such children shall be entitled to pensions in the following proportions, that is to say—

- (a) if three in number, or less, then each shall receive one-third of his pension or, as the case may be, the pension to which he would have been entitled; or
- (b) if more than three, then such pension shall be divided equally among the children.

Pensions payable to children of a female pensioner or pensionable officer.

18B. (1) On the death of a female pensioner, or of a female pensionable officer who has completed ten years' pensionable service, there shall be paid to her children (if any), who were wholly or mainly dependent on her for support, a pension as set out in the following provisions of this section based on the amount of the pension she was drawing at the date of her death, or, as the case may be, that she would have been entitled to at the date of her death had she been retired in circumstances in which she would have been entitled to retire with a pension.

(2) If the female pensioner or pensionable officer leaves children such children shall be entitled to pensions in the following proportions, that is to say—

- (a) if three in number, or less, then each shall receive one-third of her pension, or as the case may be, the pension to which she would have been entitled; or
- (b) if more than three, then such pension shall be divided equally among the children.

Payment and administration of children's pensions.

18C. In all cases of children's pension under this Ordinance, the whole or any part of such pension may be paid either to the parent, or to the legal guardian of such children, or to the children, or to such person or persons as the Governor may in his discretion consider to be fit and proper persons, to apply the same for the benefit of such children, and after such payment the Government of the Colony shall be free of all responsibility in respect of such payment.

Cessation of payment of children's pensions.

18D. Any pension to children shall cease on their attaining the age of seventeen years.

Non-entitlement of widow married to officer over sixty years of age, etc., to pension.

18E. No widow of an officer whose marriage is contracted with him after he has attained the age of sixty years or after he has left the public service, whichever of those events first happens, and no issue of such marriage, shall be entitled to a pension under this Part.

Commencement and application of Part II.

18F. This Part of this Ordinance shall be deemed to have effect from the 1st July 1977 and the provisions thereof shall apply to all officers in the public service under the Government of the Colony on or after the said date."

Insertion of new heading "PART III".

4. The principal Ordinance is amended by inserting after section 18F the following new heading —

"PART III
GENERAL".

Addition of new section 19A.

5. The principal Ordinance is amended by adding, after section 19, the following new section —

"Prohibition against double pensions.

19A. Not more than one pension under this Ordinance shall be payable to or in respect of any one person."

(Chapter 61)

Savings Bank Rules 1979

No. 1 of 1979.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor.

IN EXERCISE of the powers conferred by section 14 of the Savings Bank Ordinance, the Governor in Council has made the following rules —

1. These rules may be cited as the Savings Bank Rules 1979 and shall come into operation on the 1st day of April 1979. Citation and commencement.

2. In these rules, unless the context otherwise requires — Interpretation.

“charitable society” means any charitable or provident institution or society and includes a charitable donation or bequest for the maintenance, education or benefit of the poor and any fund of such a nature as the Financial Secretary in his absolute discretion shall deem proper to be deposited in the Savings Bank;

“friendly society” means a society legally registered in the manner required by law or Ordinance in force relating to friendly societies.

3. The Savings Bank shall be at the Public Treasury, Stanley, and shall be open daily each week (Saturdays, Sundays, Christmas Day, Good Friday and Public Holidays excepted) for the transaction of business from 8.30 a.m. to noon and from 1.15 p.m. to 3.00 p.m. Situation of office and hours of business.

4. (1) Deposits may be of any amount, provided that — Limit of deposits.
(a) the total amount standing in the name of any one depositor in the books of the Savings Bank shall not exceed £35,000; and
(b) the permission of the Financial Secretary shall be obtained for the Deposit of fractions of one pound.

(2) The Governor in Council may approve of the said limit being exceeded in the case of deposits made by local societies and provident funds.

BY WHOM DEPOSITS MAY BE MADE

5. Deposits may be made by and in the name of — General description of depositor.
(a) a person of full age and not under legal disability;
(b) a married woman; and
(c) a minor of seven years of age and upwards.

6. Deposits may be made on behalf and in the name of an infant under seven years of age by one of the parents of such infant or by any other person. Infants under seven.

7. Deposits may be made in the joint names of two or more persons entitled to make a deposit. Joint accounts.

8. Deposits may be made in the name of one or more persons as trustees for another person or persons whose names shall also be entered in the title of the account. Trust accounts.

9. Deposits may be made by a friendly society through its trustees either in the name of such society or in the names of such trustees, the full name of the society being entered in the title of the account. Friendly societies.

Charitable societies.

10. Deposits may be made, subject to the approval of the Financial Secretary in each case, by the trustees or treasurer of a charitable society.

Corporations.

11. Deposits may be made, subject to the approval of the Financial Secretary in each case, in the name of a body corporate.

Deposits to the credit of more than one account.

12. (1) No depositor in the Savings Bank shall, without the approval of the Financial Secretary, make deposits to the credit of more than one account in the Bank.

(2) This rule shall not apply to deposits made in the name of any person as trustee for another person also named in the title of the account nor to friendly societies.

(3) Any person offending against this rule shall be liable to forfeit any amount illegally deposited either as to the whole thereof, or to such extent as the Governor may think just in the circumstances of the case.

PROCEDURE ON MAKING DEPOSITS

Declaration.

13. (1) Subject to the provisions of these rules, a depositor on making a first deposit and whenever thereafter he is required so to do, shall specify his christian name and surname, occupation and residence and shall make and sign a declaration in duplicate in the proper form.

(2) Where a first deposit is made by a friendly society, charitable society or corporation, the declaration aforesaid shall be made by the trustees or other proper officials, as the case may be, of such society or corporation and shall contain such signatures and any other information that the Financial Secretary may require, including the persons by whom the deposits of the society or corporation are to be withdrawn. The Trustees or other proper officials, as the case may be, may from time to time by such notice as the Financial Secretary deems sufficient strike off the names of any persons by whom the deposits of such society or corporation may be withdrawn and may specify other persons in lieu thereof or in addition thereto and such other persons shall sign the said notice.

(3) Such declaration shall be witnessed by one of the following persons —

- (a) the Savings Bank official receiving the deposit;
- (b) some other Savings Bank official;
- (c) a minister of any religious denomination;
- (d) a justice of the peace;
- (e) a commissioner for oaths; or
- (f) any other person appointed by the Financial Secretary in that behalf.

Declaration in case of infant under seven.

14. (1) When a first deposit is made on behalf and in the name of an infant under seven years of age, such declaration as aforesaid shall be made by the person making the deposit, and such person shall specify at the foot of such declaration the day on which the said infant will attain the age of seven years.

(2) When deposits are made in the name of an infant under seven years of age, as soon as such infant attains the age of seven years he shall, when required by the Financial Secretary, make such declarations as aforesaid.

Declaration in case of trust accounts.

15. When the first deposit is made in the name of one person as trustee for another person whose name is also entered in the title of the account such declaration as aforesaid shall be made by the trustee.

16. (1) When a first deposit is made a numbered book (in these rules referred to as the pass book) shall be handed to the depositor. Depositor's book.

(2) The amount of every deposit shall be entered by the officer receiving the same in the pass book.

(3) No charge shall be made for a pass book except where expressly provided by these rules.

(4) Every pass book shall be deemed to be the property of the Financial Secretary and shall be delivered up as and when required by the Financial Secretary.

WITHDRAWALS

17. (1) Subject to the provisions of these rules, any depositor wishing to withdraw the whole or any part of the sum deposited by him — Procedure.

(a) shall make application at the Savings Bank on the proper form, which in the case of a person who cannot write, shall be attested by some person authorized by these rules to witness a declaration on first deposit, or if the depositor be resident out of the Colony, then by some duly constituted authority of the place in which he resides;

(b) may authorize payment to be made to a third person by cheque in the proper form and in such a case payment shall be made to no person other than the person named therein.

(2) A printed copy of the proper withdrawal form may be obtained from the Savings Bank.

(3) Cheque books may be obtained from the Savings Bank on the payment of a fee approved by the Financial Secretary.

(4) The paying officer shall make a receipt on the withdrawal form or cheque, as the case may be, for the sum therein specified from the depositor or the person named in the cheque to receive the said amount, and such receipt shall be a good discharge to the Financial Secretary for the sum specified in the form or cheque.

(5) Payment of a withdrawal may be delayed for four days except in the case of amounts of £5,000 or under.

(6) The paying officer shall enter the amount repaid in the depositor's pass book.

(7) Where the person wishing to make a withdrawal cannot write, he shall, when he presents the withdrawal form for payment, affix his mark to the receipt at the foot of the form, in the presence of some person who is known to the paying officer, and who can identify the person applying for the money or the person named in the form.

(8) In any case in which the Financial Secretary considers it to be desirable and expedient to do so, he may at his discretion vary the procedure of withdrawal and the method of payment described by these rules and dispense with all or any of the requirements therein contained and may effect payment by means of such document as he may think fit.

18. An application for the withdrawal of money deposited by or in the name of a minor shall be made by such minor if he is fourteen years of age or upwards and his receipt shall be a good discharge to the Financial Secretary for the sum specified in the withdrawal form. Withdrawals from accounts of minors.

19. (1) An application to withdraw money deposited in the joint names of two or more persons shall be made by all such persons or the survivor among such persons. Withdrawals from joint accounts.

(2) The Financial Secretary may require proof of survivorship to his satisfaction.

(3) The withdrawal form issued on such application shall be made in the names of the applicants, and their receipt shall be a good discharge to the Financial Secretary for the sum stated in the warrant.

Withdrawals from trust accounts.

20. (1) An application to withdraw money deposited in the name of one or more persons as trustees shall be made jointly by all the persons named in the title of the account, or by the survivor among such persons.

(2) The Financial Secretary may require proof of survivorship to his satisfaction.

(3) The withdrawal form issued on such application shall be made out in the names of the applicants, and their receipt shall be a good discharge to the Financial Secretary for the sum so paid.

Payments out from account of minors under fourteen.

21. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Financial Secretary that any deposit standing in the name of an infant under the age of fourteen years is urgently needed for the maintenance, education or benefit of such infant, or that from any other circumstances it is expedient that such deposit or any part thereof be withdrawn, the Financial Secretary may pay such deposit or any part thereof to any person who may satisfy the Financial Secretary that he will apply such money for the benefit of such infant, and the receipt of such person shall be a good discharge to the Financial Secretary for sums so paid.

Payments out from accounts of insane and incapacitated depositors.

22. Where a depositor has become insane or otherwise incapacitated, but no order of court as to the application of his property has been made, the Financial Secretary may, when it is proved to his satisfaction that it is just and expedient so to do, pay the deposit standing in the name of the depositor, or any part thereof, to any suitable person whom he shall judge proper to dispose of it for the benefit of the insane or incapacitated person, and the receipt of such person shall be a good discharge to the Financial Secretary for the sum so paid.

MISCELLANEOUS

Transmission of pass books.

23. Every depositor shall once a year, on the 30th day of June, and at any other time when required by the Financial Secretary, forward his pass book to the Financial Secretary, in order that the entries in the books of the Financial Secretary, and that the interests due to the depositor may be inserted in the book.

Lost pass books.

24. If any depositor shall lose his pass book, application shall be made by him to the Financial Secretary who may, if he thinks fit, make a charge for the new pass book.

Forms.

25. The Financial Secretary may draw up and put into use all such forms as may be necessary for the proper carrying out of the business of the Savings Bank.

Revocation.
(Cap. 61 sub. leg.)

26. The Savings Bank Rules are revoked.

Made by the Governor in Council this 24th day of January 1979.

Appointment of Governor's Deputy and specification of powers and functions vested in the Governor which he may exercise and perform.

WHEREAS paragraph (1) of Article 8 of the Falkland Islands Letters Patent, 1948 to 1962, provides that whenever the Governor has occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which he has reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which he has reason to believe will be of short duration he considers it desirable so to do, he may, by Instrument under the Public Seal, appoint any person in the Colony to be his Deputy during such absence or illness, and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor during such absence or illness all such powers and functions vested in the Governor as shall be specified in such Instrument:

AND WHEREAS Article 3 of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Letters Patent, 1908, provides that the Officer for the time being Administering the Government of the Colony of the Falkland Islands shall be Governor for the time being of the Falkland Islands Dependencies:

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers aforesaid I, JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, do hereby appoint FRANCIS EUSTACE BAKER, ESQUIRE, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, to be Governor's Deputy in and for the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies and in that capacity to exercise and perform for and on behalf of the Governor (except while and in so far as provision to the contrary made by the Governor under Article 8 of the said Letters Patent is operative) and subject always to the provisions of the said Letters Patent, all such powers and functions as are vested in the Governor other than those vested by sections 18 and 21A, subsection (1) of section 24 and subsection (1) of section 26, of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders, 1948 to 1977, by paragraph (1) of Article 10 and Articles 13, 15 and 16 of the said Letters Patent and by subparagraph (b) of paragraph (1) of clause 3, sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (1) of clause 5 and clause 22 of the Royal Instructions to the Governor dated the 13th day of December 1948.

This Instrument shall come into operation whenever I have occasion to be absent from the seat of Government but not from the Colony, or to be absent from the Colony for a period which I have reason to believe will be of short duration, or whenever by reason of illness which I have reason to believe will be of short duration I am unable to perform my duties as Governor.

The Instrument given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony on the 17th day of February 1979 is cancelled.

LS

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 23rd day of April in the year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-nine.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

A Bill for An Ordinance

To consolidate and amend the law relating to the guardianship of minors.

Title.

Date of commencement.

(19)

Enacting clause.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows—

PART I PRELIMINARY

Short title.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Guardianship of Minors Ordinance 1979.

Interpretation.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires—
“court” means the Supreme Court or the Magistrate’s Court;
“maintenance” includes education;
“parent” means father or mother.

PART II GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Principles on which questions relating to custody, upbringing, etc., of minors are to be decided.

1971 c.3, s.1.

3. Where in any proceedings before any court (whether or not a court as defined in section 2)—

- (a) the custody or upbringing of a minor; or
- (b) the administration of any property belonging to or held on trust for a minor or the application of the income thereof, is in question, the court, in deciding that question, shall regard the welfare of the minor as the first and paramount consideration, and shall not take into consideration whether from any other point of view the claim of the father, or any right at common law possessed by the father, in respect of such custody, upbringing, administration or application is superior to that of the mother, or the claim of the mother is superior to that of the father.

Equal right of mother to apply to court.

1971 c.3, s.2.

4. The mother of a minor shall have the like powers to apply to the court in respect of any matter affecting the minor as are possessed by the father.

PART III

APPOINTMENT, REMOVAL AND POWERS OF GUARDIANS

5. On the death of a parent of a minor, the surviving parent, if any, shall, subject to this Ordinance, be guardian of the minor either alone or jointly with any guardian appointed by the deceased parent; and —

Rights of surviving parent as to guardianship.
1971 c.3, s.3.

- (a) where no guardian has been appointed by the deceased parent; or
- (b) in the event of the death or refusal to act of the guardian or guardians appointed by the deceased parent, the court may, if it thinks fit, appoint a guardian to act jointly with the surviving parent.

6. (1) A parent of a minor may by deed or will appoint any person to be guardian of the minor after his death.

Power of parent to appoint testamentary guardian.

(2) Any guardian so appointed shall act jointly with the surviving parent, if any, unless the surviving parent objects to his so acting.

1971 c.3, s.4.

(3) If the surviving parent so objects, or if the guardian so appointed considers that the surviving parent is unfit to have the custody of the minor, the guardian may apply to the court, and the court may either —

- (a) refuse to make any order (in which case the surviving parent shall remain sole guardian); or
- (b) make an order that the guardian so appointed —
 - (i) shall act jointly with the surviving parent; or
 - (ii) shall be the sole guardian of the minor.

(4) Where guardians are appointed by both parents, the guardians so appointed shall, after the death of the surviving parent, act jointly.

(5) If under section 5 a guardian has been appointed by the court to act jointly with the surviving parent, he shall continue to act as guardian after the death of the surviving parent; but, if the surviving parent has appointed a guardian, the guardian appointed by the court shall act jointly with the guardian appointed by the surviving parent.

7. Where a minor has no parent, no guardian of the person, and no other person having parental rights with respect to him, the court, on the application of any person, may, if it thinks fit, appoint the applicant to be the guardian of the minor.

Power of court to appoint guardian for minor having no parent, etc.
1971 c.3, s.5 (1).

8. The Supreme Court may, in its discretion, on being satisfied that it is for the welfare of the minor, remove from his office any testamentary guardian or any guardian appointed or acting by virtue of this Ordinance, and may also, if it deems it to be for the welfare of the minor, appoint another guardian in place of the guardian so removed.

Power of Supreme Court to remove or replace guardian.
1971 c.3, s.6.

9. Where two or more persons act as joint guardians of a minor and they are unable to agree on any question affecting the welfare of the minor, any of them may apply to the court for its direction, and the court may make such order regarding the matters in difference as it may think proper.

Disputes between joint guardians.
1971 c.3, s.7.

10. (1) A guardian of the estate of a minor shall, subject to the rights and powers of any personal representative or trustee in whom the minor's estate may be vested, have in addition to such other rights as may be granted to him, the right to —

Guardian's power of management.
1971 c.3, s.8.

- (a) receive the rents and profits of the lands of the minor;

- (b) manage the personal estate of the minor;
- (c) bring legal proceedings to enforce the rights expressed in paragraphs (a) and (b).

(2) The guardian shall account to the minor for any rents, profits or income received by him under subsection (1).

PART IV

ORDERS FOR CUSTODY AND MAINTENANCE

Orders for custody and maintenance on application of parent.

1971 c.3, s.9.

11. (1) The court may, on the application of a parent of a minor (who may apply without next friend), make such order regarding —

- (a) the custody of the minor; and
- (b) the right of access to the minor of either parent,

as the court thinks fit having regard to the welfare of the minor and to the conduct and wishes of the parents.

(2) Where the court makes an order under subsection (1) giving the custody of the minor to any person (whether or not one of the parents), the court may make a further order requiring payment to that person by the parent or either of the parents excluded from having that custody of such weekly or other periodical sum towards the maintenance of the minor as the court thinks reasonable having regard to the means of the parent.

(3) An order may be made under subsection (1) or (2) notwithstanding that the parents of the minor are then residing together, but —

- (a) no such order shall be enforceable, and no liability thereunder shall accrue while they are residing together; and
- (b) any such order shall cease to have effect if for a period of three months after it is made they continue to reside together:

Provided that, unless the court in making the order directs otherwise, paragraphs (a) and (b) above shall not apply to any provision of the order giving the custody of the minor to a person other than one of the parents or made with respect to a minor of whom custody is so given.

(4) An order under subsection (1) or (2) may be varied or discharged by a subsequent order made on the application of either parent or after the death of either parent on the application of any guardian under this Ordinance, or (before or after the death of either parent) on the application of any other person having the custody of the minor by virtue of an order under subsection (1).

Orders for custody and maintenance where person is guardian to exclusion of surviving parent.

1971 c.3, s.10.

12. (1) Where the court makes an order under section 6 (3) (b) (ii) that a person shall be the sole guardian of a minor to the exclusion of his surviving parent, the court may —

- (a) make such order regarding —
 - (i) the custody of the minor; and
 - (ii) the right of access to the minor of his surviving parent, as the court thinks fit, having regard to the welfare of the minor; and
- (b) make a further order requiring the surviving parent to pay to the guardian such weekly or other periodical sum towards the maintenance of the minor as the court thinks reasonable having regard to the means of the surviving parent.

(2) The powers conferred by subsection (1) may be exercised at any time and include power to vary or discharge any orders previously made under those powers.

13. The powers of the court under section 8 shall, where one of the joint guardians is the surviving parent of the minor, include power —

- (a) to make such order regarding —
 - (i) the custody of the minor; and
 - (ii) the right of access to the minor of the surviving parent, as the court thinks fit having regard to the welfare of the minor;
- (b) to make an order requiring the surviving parent to pay such weekly or other periodical sum towards the maintenance of the minor as the court thinks reasonable having regard to the means of the surviving parent;
- (c) to vary or discharge any order previously made under that section.

Orders for custody and maintenance where joint guardians disagree.

1971 c.3, s.11.

14. Where the parent of a minor applies to the court for an order for the production of the minor, and the court is of opinion that the parent has abandoned or deserted the minor or that he has otherwise so conducted himself that the court should refuse to enforce his right to the custody of the minor, the court may, in its discretion, decline to make the order.

Power of court as to production of minor.

1891 c.3, s.1.

15. If at the time of the application for an order for the production of the minor, the minor is being brought up by another person, the court may, in its discretion, if it orders the minor to be given up to the parent, further order that the parent shall pay to such person the whole of the costs properly incurred in bringing up the minor, or such portion thereof as shall seem to the court to be just and reasonable, having regard to the circumstances of the case.

Power of court to order repayment of costs of bringing up minor.

1891 c.3, s.2.

16. Where the parent has —

- (a) abandoned or deserted the minor; or
- (b) allowed the minor to be brought up by another person at that person's expense for such a length of time and under such circumstances as to satisfy the court that the parent was unmindful of his parental duties,

Court in making order to have regard to conduct of parent.

1891 c.3, s.3.

the court shall not make an order for the delivery of the minor to the parent, unless the parent has satisfied the court that, having regard to the welfare of the minor, the parent is a fit person to have the custody of the minor.

17. (1) Upon an application by the parent for the production or custody of a minor, if the court is of the opinion that the parent ought not to have the custody of the minor, and that the minor is being brought up in a different religion to that in which the parent has a legal right to require that the minor should be brought up, the court shall have power to make such order as it may think fit to secure that the minor be brought up in the religion in which the parent has a legal right to require the minor should be brought up.

Power of court as to minor's religious education.

1891 c.3, s.4.

(2) Nothing contained in this section or sections 14 to 16 (inclusive) shall interfere with or effect the power of the court to consult the wishes of the minor in considering what order ought to be made under this section, or diminish the right which any minor now possesses to the exercise of its own free choice.

18. (1) Any person for the time being under an obligation to make payments in pursuance of any order for the payment of money under this Ordinance shall within fourteen days of a change of address give notice of his new address to such person, if any, as may be specified in the order.

Person subject to maintenance order to notify change of address.

1971 c.3, s.13(2).

(2) Any person who fails without reasonable excuse to give a notice, which he is required by subsection (1) to give, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £10.

PART V
ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN

Application to illegitimate children.
1971 c.3, s.14(1), (2), (3).

19. (1) Subject to this section, section 11 (1) shall apply in relation to a minor who is illegitimate as it applies in relation to a minor who is legitimate, and reference in section 11 (1), and in any other provision of this Ordinance so far as it relates to proceedings under section 11 (1), to the father or mother or parent of a minor shall be construed accordingly.

(2) No order shall be made by virtue of subsection (1) of this section under subsection (2) of the said section 11.

(3) For the purposes of sections 5, 6, 7 and 12 a person —

- (a) being the natural father of an illegitimate child; and
- (b) being entitled to the child's custody by virtue of an order in force under section 11 (1) as applied by this section, shall be treated as if he were the lawful father of the minor; but any appointment of a guardian made by virtue of this subsection under section 6 (1) shall be of no effect unless the appointer is entitled to the custody of the minor as under paragraph (b) immediately before his death.

PART VI
APPEALS AND PROCEDURE

Appeals and procedure.
1971 c.3, s.16.

20. (1) Where any application has been made under this Ordinance to the Magistrate's Court, the Supreme Court shall, at the instance of any party to the application, order the application to be removed to the Supreme Court and there proceeded with on such terms as to costs as it thinks proper.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any order made by the Magistrate's Court under this Ordinance.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), where on an application to the Magistrate's Court under this Ordinance the court makes or refuses to make an order an appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court.

(4) Where an application is made to the Magistrate's Court under this Ordinance, and the court considers that the matter is one which would more conveniently be dealt with by the Supreme Court, the Magistrate's Court may refuse to make an order, and in that case no appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court.

PART VII
MISCELLANEOUS

Saving for powers of Supreme Court.
1971 c.3, s.17(1).

21. Nothing in this Ordinance shall restrict or affect the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to appoint or remove guardians or otherwise in respect of minors.

Rules.

22. The Governor in Council may make rules directing the manner in which applications to the court are to be made and dealing generally with all the matters of procedure and incidental matters arising out of this Ordinance, and of carrying this Ordinance into effect.

Repeal.
3 of 1958.

23. The Guardianship and Custody of Children Ordinance 1958 is repealed.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill brings up to date and consolidates certain enactments relating to the guardianship and custody of minors — i.e., principally the Guardianship and Custody of Children Ordinance 1958, the Guardianship and Maintenance of Infants Act 1951 and the Guardianship Act 1973.

ROAD TRAFFIC ORDINANCE
(Chapter 60)

Road Traffic (Removal of Vehicles) Regulations 1979.

No. 2 of 1979.

J. R. W. PARKER,
Governor.

IN EXERCISE of the powers conferred by section 18 of the Road Traffic Ordinance, the Governor in Council has made the following regulations —

Citation and commencement.

1. These regulations may be cited as the Road Traffic (Removal of Vehicles) Regulations 1979, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of June 1979.

Interpretation.

2. (1) In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires —

“vehicle” shall include any load carried thereby.

(2) References to the removal of a vehicle from a road, parking or other public place are references to the removal of that vehicle from that road, parking place or other public place to a place on a road, parking place or other public place where that vehicle may lawfully be parked and does not cause unnecessary obstruction or danger to other persons using that road, parking place or other public place.

(3) References to the removal or making arrangements for the safe custody of a vehicle shall respectively include references to removing or making arrangements for the safe custody of any load carried by the vehicle.

Removal of vehicles from roads, parking places and public places.

3. (1) It shall be the duty of the owner, driver or other person in charge of any vehicle —

(a) when the vehicle has broken down on a road in such circumstances that the defects cannot be remedied within a reasonable time or the presence of the vehicle is likely unnecessarily to obstruct or to cause danger to the other persons using the road; or

(b) when required to do so by a police officer on the ground that the vehicle has been permitted to remain at rest on a road, parking place or other public place in such a position or in such condition or in such circumstances as to be likely to cause danger or obstruction to other persons using the road, parking place or other public place, or has been permitted to remain at rest on a road, parking place or other public place in contravention of any relevant statutory prohibition or restriction, to remove or take all reasonable steps to secure the removal of such vehicles as soon as possible.

(2) For the purpose of sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph (1) of this regulation a vehicle which has broken down or has remained at rest for any period in any position on a road, parking place or other public place shall be treated as if it had been permitted to remain at rest in that position throughout that period.

Duties of police officers.

4. It shall be the duty of a police officer or any person duly authorized by the Chief Police Officer to take all reasonable steps to remove or to employ some other person to remove, and, where necessary, to provide for the safe custody or (with the approval of the Chief Police Officer) for the destruction, sale or disposal of any vehicle, if he has reason to believe —

- (a) that the owner or the driver or other person in control or in charge thereof has failed to take all reasonable steps to remove it or cause it to be removed in accordance with the provisions of regulation 3; or
- (b) that the vehicle has been abandoned:

Provided that a vehicle shall not be destroyed or sold or disposed of as aforesaid until notice of the intended destruction, sale or disposal thereof shall have been given by the Chief Police Officer in the Gazette and unless such vehicle be not removed within two days after the date of publication of such notice.

5. Any person removing a vehicle under these regulations may do so by towing or driving the vehicle or in such other manner as he may think necessary to enable him to remove it as aforesaid.

Method of removal of vehicle.

6. (1) The fixed charge for the removal of a vehicle shall be £5.

Charges for removal and custody of vehicle.

(2) The scale of charges, by reference to which the charge payable in respect of any period during which a vehicle is in the custody of the police shall be ascertained, is the following, that is to say, £2 for each period of twenty-four hours or part of such period reckoned from noon on the day following the day on which the vehicle was removed in pursuance of these regulations:

Provided that where a vehicle is in the custody of the police in a place which is closed on the day following the day on which the vehicle was removed as aforesaid up to noon, then for the purpose of calculating the said scale it shall be reckoned from noon on the first day on which the said place is open at any time before noon for the claiming of any vehicle held in custody at that place.

7. Upon the sale of a vehicle with the approval of the Chief Police Officer, the proceeds of sale shall be applied in or towards the satisfaction of any costs incurred in connection with the disposal thereof and of any charge payable in respect of the vehicle under these regulations.

Application of proceeds of sale.

8. In the event of any such costs incurred in connection with the disposal of the vehicle not being satisfied by virtue of regulation 7, the Chief Police Officer may recoup those costs so far as not satisfied from the person who was the last owner of the vehicle before it was removed in pursuance of these regulations.

Recoupment of unpaid expenses.

9. Any sums received by the Chief Police Officer on a sale of the vehicle, after deducting any sum applied thereout by virtue of regulation 7, shall be payable within a period of one year from the date of the sale of the vehicle to any person to whom, but for such sale, the vehicle would have belonged, and in so far as any such sums are not claimed within the said period they shall be paid into general revenue.

Disposal of unclaimed funds.

10. Any person who contravenes any of the provisions of regulation 3 shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of £50.

Penalty.

Made by the Governor in Council this 27th day of March 1979.

W. A. ETHERIDGE,
Clerk of Councils.

An Ordinance

To consolidate and amend the law relating to the guardianship of minors. Title.

(27th July 1979) Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

PART I PRELIMINARY

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Guardianship of Minors Ordinance 1979. Short title.
2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires — Interpretation.
“court” means the Supreme Court or the Magistrate’s Court;
“maintenance” includes education;
“parent” means father or mother.

PART II GENERAL PRINCIPLES

3. Where in any proceedings before any court (whether or not a court as defined in section 2) — Principles on which questions relating to custody, upbringing, etc., of minors are to be decided.
- (a) the custody or upbringing of a minor; or
- (b) the administration of any property belonging to or held on trust for a minor or the application of the income thereof, 1971 c.3, s.1.
- is in question, the court, in deciding that question, shall regard the welfare of the minor as the first and paramount consideration, and shall not take into consideration whether from any other point of view the claim of the father, or any right at common law possessed by the father, in respect of such custody, upbringing, administration or application is superior to that of the mother, or the claim of the mother is superior to that of the father.

Equal right of mother to apply to court.
1971 c.3, s.2.

4. The mother of a minor shall have the like powers to apply to the court in respect of any matter affecting the minor as are possessed by the father.

PART III

APPOINTMENT, REMOVAL AND POWERS OF GUARDIANS

Rights of surviving parent as to guardianship.
1971 c.3, s.3.

5. On the death of a parent of a minor, the surviving parent, if any, shall, subject to this Ordinance, be guardian of the minor either alone or jointly with any guardian appointed by the deceased parent; and —

- (a) where no guardian has been appointed by the deceased parent; or
- (b) in the event of the death or refusal to act of the guardian or guardians appointed by the deceased parent, the court may, if it thinks fit, appoint a guardian to act jointly with the surviving parent.

Power of parent to appoint testamentary guardian.
1971 c.3, s.4.

6. (1) A parent of a minor may by deed or will appoint any person to be guardian of the minor after his death.

(2) Any guardian so appointed shall act jointly with the surviving parent, if any, unless the surviving parent objects to his so acting.

(3) If the surviving parent so objects, or if the guardian so appointed considers that the surviving parent is unfit to have the custody of the minor, the guardian may apply to the court, and the court may either —

- (a) refuse to make any order (in which case the surviving parent shall remain sole guardian); or
- (b) make an order that the guardian so appointed —
 - (i) shall act jointly with the surviving parent; or
 - (ii) shall be the sole guardian of the minor.

(4) Where guardians are appointed by both parents, the guardians so appointed shall, after the death of the surviving parent, act jointly.

(5) If under section 5 a guardian has been appointed by the court to act jointly with the surviving parent, he shall continue to act as guardian after the death of the surviving parent; but, if the surviving parent has appointed a guardian, the guardian appointed by the court shall act jointly with the guardian appointed by the surviving parent.

Power of court to appoint guardian for minor having no parent, etc.
1971 c.3, s.5(1).

7. Where a minor has no parent, no guardian of the person, and no other person having parental rights with respect to him, the court, on the application of any person, may, if it thinks fit, appoint the applicant to be the guardian of the minor.

Power of Supreme Court to remove or replace guardian.
1971 c.3, s.6.

8. The Supreme Court may, in its discretion, on being satisfied that it is for the welfare of the minor, remove from his office any testamentary guardian or any guardian appointed or acting by virtue of this Ordinance, and may also, if it deems it to be for the welfare of the minor, appoint another guardian in place of the guardian so removed.

Disputes between joint guardians.
1971 c.3, s.7.

9. Where two or more persons act as joint guardians of a minor and they are unable to agree on any question affecting the welfare of the minor, any of them may apply to the court for its direction, and the court may make such order regarding the matters in difference as it may think proper.

10. (1) A guardian of the estate of a minor shall, subject to the rights and powers of any personal representative or trustee in whom the minor's estate may be vested, have in addition to such other rights as may be granted to him, the right to —

- (a) receive the rents and profits of the lands of the minor;
- (b) manage the personal estate of the minor;
- (c) bring legal proceedings to enforce the rights expressed in paragraphs (a) and (b).

(2) The guardian shall account to the minor for any rents, profits or income received by him under subsection (1).

Guardian's power of management.
1971 c.3, s.8.

PART IV

ORDERS FOR CUSTODY AND MAINTENANCE

11. (1) The court may, on the application of a parent of a minor (who may apply without next friend), make such order regarding —

- (a) the custody of the minor; and
- (b) the right of access to the minor of either parent,

as the court thinks fit having regard to the welfare of the minor and to the conduct and wishes of the parents.

(2) Where the court makes an order under subsection (1) giving the custody of the minor to any person (whether or not one of the parents), the court may make a further order requiring payment to that person by the parent or either of the parents excluded from having that custody of such weekly or other periodical sum towards the maintenance of the minor as the court thinks reasonable having regard to the means of the parent.

(3) An order may be made under subsection (1) or (2) notwithstanding that the parents of the minor are then residing together, but —

- (a) no such order shall be enforceable, and no liability thereunder shall accrue while they are residing together; and
- (b) any such order shall cease to have effect if for a period of three months after it is made they continue to reside together;

Provided that, unless the court in making the order directs otherwise, paragraphs (a) and (b) above shall not apply to any provision of the order giving the custody of the minor to a person other than one of the parents or made with respect to a minor of whom custody is so given.

(4) An order under subsection (1) or (2) may be varied or discharged by a subsequent order made on the application of either parent or after the death of either parent on the application of any guardian under this Ordinance, or (before or after the death of either parent) on the application of any other person having the custody of the minor by virtue of an order under subsection (1).

12. (1) Where the court makes an order under section 6 (3) (b) (ii) that a person shall be the sole guardian of a minor to the exclusion of his surviving parent, the court may —

- (a) make such order regarding —
 - (i) the custody of the minor; and
 - (ii) the right of access to the minor of his surviving parent, as the court thinks fit, having regard to the welfare of the minor; and
- (b) make a further order requiring the surviving parent to pay to the guardian such weekly or other periodical sum towards the maintenance of the minor as the court thinks reasonable having regard to the means of the surviving parent.

(2) The powers conferred by subsection (1) may be exercised at any time and include power to vary or discharge any orders previously made under those powers.

Orders for custody and maintenance where joint guardians disagree.

1971 c.3, s.11.

13. The powers of the court under section 8 shall, where one of the joint guardians is the surviving parent of the minor, include power —

- (a) to make such order regarding —
 - (i) the custody of the minor; and
 - (ii) the right of access to the minor of the surviving parent, as the court thinks fit having regard to the welfare of the minor;
- (b) to make an order requiring the surviving parent to pay such weekly or other periodical sum towards the maintenance of the minor as the court thinks reasonable having regard to the means of the surviving parent;
- (c) to vary or discharge any order previously made under that section.

Power of court as to production of minor.

1891 c.3, s.1.

14. Where the parent of a minor applies to the court for an order for the production of the minor, and the court is of opinion that the parent has abandoned or deserted the minor or that he has otherwise so conducted himself that the court should refuse to enforce his right to the custody of the minor, the court may, in its discretion, decline to make the order.

Power of court to order repayment of costs of bringing up minor.

1891 c.3, s.2.

15. If at the time of the application for an order for the production of the minor, the minor is being brought up by another person, the court may, in its discretion, if it orders the minor to be given up to the parent, further order that the parent shall pay to such person the whole of the costs properly incurred in bringing up the minor, or such portion thereof as shall seem to the court to be just and reasonable, having regard to the circumstances of the case.

Court in making order to have regard to conduct of parent.

1891 c.3, s.3.

16. Where the parent has —

- (a) abandoned or deserted the minor; or
- (b) allowed the minor to be brought up by another person at that person's expense for such a length of time and under such circumstances as to satisfy the court that the parent was unmindful of his parental duties,

the court shall not make an order for the delivery of the minor to the parent, unless the parent has satisfied the court that, having regard to the welfare of the minor, the parent is a fit person to have the custody of the minor.

Power of court as to minor's religious education.

1891 c.3, s.4.

17. (1) Upon an application by the parent for the production or custody of a minor, if the court is of the opinion that the parent ought not to have the custody of the minor, and that the minor is being brought up in a different religion to that in which the parent has a legal right to require that the minor should be brought up, the court shall have power to make such order as it may think fit to secure that the minor be brought up in the religion in which the parent has a legal right to require the minor should be brought up.

(2) Nothing contained in this section or sections 14 to 16 (inclusive) shall interfere with or effect the power of the court to consult the wishes of the minor in considering what order ought to be made under this section, or diminish the right which any minor now possesses to the exercise of its own free choice.

18. (1) Any person for the time being under an obligation to make payments in pursuance of any order for the payment of money under this Ordinance shall within fourteen days of a change of address give notice of his new address to such person, if any, as may be specified in the order.

Person subject to maintenance order to notify change of address.

1971 c.3, s.13(2).

(2) Any person who fails without reasonable excuse to give a notice, which he is required by subsection (1) to give, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £10.

PART V

ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN

19. (1) Subject to this section, section 11 (1) shall apply in relation to a minor who is illegitimate as it applies in relation to a minor who is legitimate, and reference in section 11 (1), and in any other provision of this Ordinance so far as it relates to proceedings under section 11 (1), to the father or mother or parent of a minor shall be construed accordingly.

Application to illegitimate children.

1971 c.3, s.14(1), (2), (3).

(2) No order shall be made by virtue of subsection (1) of this section under subsection (2) of the said section 11.

(3) For the purposes of sections 5, 6, 7 and 12 a person —

(a) being the natural father of an illegitimate child; and

(b) being entitled to the child's custody by virtue of an order in force under section 11 (1) as applied by this section, shall be treated as if he were the lawful father of the minor; but any appointment of a guardian made by virtue of this subsection under section 6 (1) shall be of no effect unless the appointer is entitled to the custody of the minor as under paragraph (b) immediately before his death.

PART VI

APPEALS AND PROCEDURE

20. (1) Where any application has been made under this Ordinance to the Magistrate's Court, the Supreme Court shall, at the instance of any party to the application, order the application to be removed to the Supreme Court and there proceeded with on such terms as to costs as it thinks proper.

Appeals and procedure.

1971 c.3, s.16.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any order made by the Magistrate's Court under this Ordinance.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), where on an application to the Magistrate's Court under this Ordinance the court makes or refuses to make an order an appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court.

(4) Where an application is made to the Magistrate's Court under this Ordinance, and the court considers that the matter is one which would more conveniently be dealt with by the Supreme Court, the Magistrate's Court may refuse to make an order, and in that case no appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court.

PART VII

MISCELLANEOUS

21. Nothing in this Ordinance shall restrict or affect the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to appoint or remove guardians or otherwise in respect of minors.

Saving for powers of Supreme Court.

1971 c.3, s.17(1).

22. The Governor in Council may make rules directing the manner in which applications to the court are to be made and

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, C.M.G., O.B.E.

Governor.

An Ordinance

Title.

To provide for the imposition and collection of a tax, called the medical services levy, on emoluments in respect of employment and for matters incidental thereto and connected therewith.

Date of commencement.

(1st July 1979)

Enacting clause.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Medical Services Levy Ordinance 1979 and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1979.

Interpretation.

2. In this Ordinance unless the context otherwise requires —
 “approved retirement scheme” means a retirement scheme or provident fund or part thereof approved for the time being by the Governor in Council under section 18;
 “certificate of assessment” means any certificate of assessment by the Financial Secretary under section 10 certifying the amount of medical services levy due from the employer or self-employed person;
 “emoluments” mean any wages, salary, commission, bonuses, allowances (including a housing allowance or other like allowance) or other emoluments paid in cash by or on behalf of an employer to an employee, and includes leave pay;

“self-employed person” means any person gainfully occupied who is not an employee;

“year” means the period of twelve months ending on the 31st day of December in any year.

3. (1) The administration of this Ordinance is vested in the Financial Secretary. Administration.

(2) The Financial Secretary may authorize any public officer to exercise any powers or to perform any duties conferred or imposed on the Financial Secretary by this Ordinance.

4. (1) Every person having any official duty or being employed in the administration of this Ordinance shall regard and deal with all documents, information or returns relating to emoluments of any person, as secret and confidential and shall make and subscribe a declaration to that effect before a justice of the peace. Duty to regard documents, etc., as secret and to make declaration.

(2) Every person having possession of or control over any documents, information or returns relating to the emoluments of any person, who at any time communicates or attempts to communicate such information or anything contained in such documents or returns, to any person —

(a) other than a person to whom he is authorized by the Governor to communicate it;

(b) otherwise than for the purposes of this Ordinance; shall be guilty of an offence.

5. There shall be paid a tax, to be known as the medical services levy, in respect of emoluments arising or derived from the sources specified in section 6 at the following rates — Imposition of medical services levy.

(a) by every employer at the rate of 1½%;

(b) by every employee at the rate of 1%;

(c) by every self-employed person at the rate of 1½%.

6. Medical services levy shall be payable in respect of —

(a) the gross emoluments of every employee, by the employer;

(b) the gross emoluments of every employee, by the employee;

(c) the net profits before tax of every self-employed person (including individuals in business as partners or sole proprietors). Payment of medical services levy.

7. There shall be exempt from the medical services levy — Exemptions.

(a) the official emoluments of the Governor;

(b) the official emoluments paid to Consuls, Vice-Consuls and members of the permanent Consular Services of foreign countries in respect of their offices or in respect of services rendered by them in their official capacity;

(c) the emoluments paid from United Kingdom funds to members of Her Majesty's Forces and to persons in the permanent service of the United Kingdom Government in respect of their offices under the United Kingdom Government;

(d) all pensions and annuities paid to retired persons for past services;

(e) the emoluments paid to a person under fifteen years of age who is in full time attendance at school;

(f) any sum received by way of commutation of pension under an approved retirement scheme or the Pensions Ordinance;

- (g) the emoluments paid by the United Kingdom Government to Technical Co-operation officers employed in the Colony by the Ministry of Overseas Development except any such emoluments reimbursed to the United Kingdom Government from Colony funds;
- (h) the salary and other emoluments received for services related to communications referred to in Notes exchanged between the United Kingdom and the Argentine Republic on the 5th August 1971 and in the Joint Statement referred to in those Notes by residents of the Argentine mainland from their Argentine employers;
- (i) pensions granted to dependents of deceased members of Her Majesty's Forces;
- (j) wound and disability pensions granted to members of Her Majesty's Forces;
- (k) gratuities granted to members of Her Majesty's Forces in respect of war services;
- (l) any allowance, grant or gratuity payable from United Kingdom funds to any officer in the service of the Colony who is a designated officer within the terms of the Overseas Service (Falkland Islands) (Continuance) Agreement 1971/77;
- (m) any allowance paid to any unofficial member of the Executive or Legislative Councils under the provisions of the Executive Council (Allowances) Ordinance 1977 or the Legislative Council (Allowances) Ordinance 1977 in respect of services as a member of council.
- (n) pensions paid under the provisions of the Old Age Pensions Ordinance 1952 or the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance 1961;
- (o) the salary and other emoluments of residents of the Argentine mainland employed by Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales in the Colony.

Payment of medical services levy to Financial Secretary.

8. (1) All amounts of medical services levy which an employer and employee employed by him are liable under the provisions of this Ordinance to pay in respect of any payment of emoluments shall be paid by that employer to the Financial Secretary without any demand within 90 days of the end of the year in which the payment of the emoluments in question was made.

(2) The employer shall make an annual statement and transmit the same to the Financial Secretary on such form as may be approved by the Financial Secretary, which statement shall specify —

- (a) the gross amount of the total emoluments paid during the year and on which medical services levy is payable; and
- (b) the amount of medical services levy payable by the employer and the employee.

(3) All amounts of medical services levy payable by a self-employed person shall be paid to the Financial Secretary without demand not later than 90 days of the end of the year in which the net profit in question was made.

(4) Every self-employed person shall make an annual statement and transmit the same to the Financial Secretary on such form as may be approved by the Financial Secretary, which statement shall specify —

- (a) his net profit before income tax for the preceding year;
- (b) the amount of medical services levy payable.

(5) If within 90 days of the end of any year the employer or self-employed person fails without reasonable cause, to transmit to the Financial Secretary the annual statement and payment referred to he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £300 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both such fine and imprisonment.

(6) Where a company is guilty of a contravention of the provisions of this section, every director, manager, agent and officer of the company or corporate body in the Colony who is knowingly a party of the contravention shall be liable to the penalties specified in subsection (5).

9. (1) Every employer who pays emoluments to any employee may, on the occasion of any such payment of emoluments, and at no other time, deduct therefrom a sum of money not greater than the amount of medical services levy which the employer is liable to pay under section 8 (1) in respect of the employee, and the employee from whom such sum is deducted shall have no right of action for the repayment of such sum to him by the employer.

Right of employer to deduct tax from emoluments.

(2) Any employer failing to make deductions pursuant to subsection (1) shall, notwithstanding such failure, pay to the Financial Secretary the amount due under this Ordinance for medical services levy in respect of his employee.

10. (1) If within 90 days of the end of any year any employer or self-employed person has paid no amount of medical services levy to the Financial Secretary, the Financial Secretary may assess the amount of medical services levy that he considers payable by such employer or self-employed person.

Employer or self-employed person failing to pay medical services levy.

(2) The Financial Secretary shall certify his assessment of the amount of medical services levy which the employer or self-employed person is liable to pay to him in respect of the year in question and send notice thereof to the employer or self-employed person concerned.

(3) The certificate of assessment of the Financial Secretary under subsection (2) shall be sufficient evidence that the amount shown on the said certificate is the amount of medical services levy which the employer or self-employed person is liable to pay to the Financial Secretary in respect of the year in question and any document purporting to be such a certificate as aforesaid shall be deemed to be such a certificate until the contrary is proved.

(4) A notice given by the Financial Secretary under subsection (2) may be in respect of two or more consecutive years, and the provisions of this Ordinance shall have effect as if the said consecutive years were one year.

(5) An assessment by the Financial Secretary under subsection (1) may be made notwithstanding that an amount of medical services levy has been paid to him by the employer or self-employed person under this Ordinance for any particular year, if the Financial Secretary is not satisfied that the amount so paid is the full amount which the employer or self-employed person is liable to pay to him for that year, and the provisions of this section shall have effect accordingly.

11. (1) If any person is aggrieved by an assessment referred to in a certificate of assessment he may give notice thereof to the Financial Secretary, stating the ground of his objection, within thirty days of the date of the certificate of assessment.

Objections and appeals.

(2) On receipt of such notice of objection the Financial Secretary on proof to his satisfaction, may agree with the employer or self-employed person as to the correct amount to be assessed and may thereupon amend the certificate of assessment. Notice of the amended certificate of assessment shall then be served on the employer or self-employed person.

Cap. 32

(3) In default of agreement as aforesaid the employer or self-employed person, on giving notice to the Financial Secretary, may appeal to the Judge in Chambers, and the provisions of the Income Tax Ordinance relating to the determination of appeals against assessment shall apply accordingly.

(4) No notice of objection shall be valid unless the employer or self-employed person states what portion of the medical services levy charged is in excess of his true liability and remits therewith an amount equal to the medical services levy he does not dispute.

Repayment.

12. Where the employer or self-employed person shows to the satisfaction of the Financial Secretary that medical services levy has been overpaid by him the Financial Secretary shall arrange for the tax overpaid to be refunded:

Provided that no application for repayment of medical services levy overpaid shall be valid unless such application is made within twelve months of the end of the year to which the over-payment related.

Tax payable to be a debt due to Government.

13. Any medical services levy due from and payable by an employer or self-employed person under this Ordinance or under regulations made under this Ordinance shall be recovered by the Financial Secretary or any person duly authorized by the Financial Secretary to act on his behalf, as a debt due to the Government of the Colony.

Power to remit medical services levy.

14. If the Governor in Council upon written application being made to him is satisfied that it would be just and equitable to do so he may remit the whole or any part of the medical services levy payable.

Offences.

15. (1) Any person who, for the purpose of evading the payment of medical services levy, knowingly makes any false statement or false representation shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £1,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to both such fine and imprisonment.

(2) Any person guilty of an offence against this Ordinance for which no specific penalty is otherwise provided shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £100 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to both such fine and imprisonment.

Crown bound.

16. This Ordinance shall bind the Crown.

Regulations.

17. The Governor in Council may make regulations in regard to any matter or thing in respect of which it may be expedient to give effect to the provisions of this Ordinance.

Approval of retirement schemes.

18. Upon application in such manner as may be prescribed the Governor in Council may, for the purposes of this Ordinance, approve, either as a whole or in part, any retirement scheme or provident fund which, in his opinion, complies substantially with such requirements as may be prescribed, and may withdraw any approval so given.

Financial Secretary may vary times or periods.

19. Notwithstanding the provisions of this Ordinance the Financial Secretary may, for good cause shown by any employer or self-employed person, vary any of the times or periods prescribed by this Ordinance.

This printed impression has been carefully compared by me with the Bill which has passed the Legislative Council, and is found by me to be a true and correctly printed copy of the said Bill.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting held from 12th to 14th February 1979, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members I welcome you to this, our major session of the year, when our most important task will be to review our financial situation, and to lay down the framework for our revenue and expenditure in the budget proposals for the ensuing year. As Honourable Members will know, we had to delay our meeting for a week or so because of the sudden indisposition of the Honourable the Financial Secretary, just at a time when the workload in preparing the budget was beginning to press heavily on him. Both while he was laid up in hospital, and since, he has gallantly persevered for long hours in the day, in producing the papers and figures we need, and we owe him a great debt for enabling us to come to this meeting so well prepared as we are. I am sure we are all delighted to see he has made good progress towards a full recovery to his customary energy, but in the circumstances of his somewhat reduced mobility - temporary, I hope - I am sure we will be only too ready to allow him to speak from his seat, whenever he wishes, and not to rise as often as he might normally have to.

We have also to extend a welcome to the Honourable the Chief Secretary, Councillor Dick Baker, whose first Legislative Council session this is, and who has just been sworn in to our proceedings. Since his arrival here in March we have all had the opportunity, on other occasions, of getting to know him well, and to appreciate his very active interest in absorbing himself as quickly and as fully as possible into our affairs - as well as adjusting to a very considerable change of climate, from the tropical South Seas to these much cooler oceans. The warmth of our welcome to Councillor and Mrs Baker will, I am sure, make up more than a little for the change.

It is also customary for me, on this occasion, to review briefly the work of the several departments in the Administration. It can fairly be said, in spite of a few ups-and-downs, that they have had a good year. But more importantly they are now able to proceed on forward looking lines; not by any means just trying to keep things going as they are, but planning on a sound basis for expanded progress. I am impressed by the enthusiasm with which the needs of the future are being tackled, within the constraints of our resources. The mood is certainly not one of resignation to static standards but eagerness for a progressive improvement in them. Complaints there will be, some well, some ill founded, but I am sure they will be met in good part either as a spur to better endeavour, or accepted as the inevitable lot of public servants doing their best in difficult circumstances which are not always quite appreciated. It must be remembered that members of the general public feel they are paying a good deal of money in taxes, and so forth, for the services they are getting, and like everyone else they want value for their money. I firmly believe they do get good value, within the power of officials to give it.

I am very impressed by the dedication and conscientiousness of the whole public service and grateful for the support given me by the Administration. No doubt soon Honourable Members will put a number of questions pointing to shortcomings. But I am sure, beneath it all, there is an acceptance that everyone is acting for the best, even if a better best might be found in somewhat different ways. Your constructive suggestions, Honourable Members, based on your close understanding of your constituents hopes and problems, are an invaluable help in the search for these better ways. If I might use an old constitutional precept, my role as Governor is to act with the advice and consent of my Councillors. This is the essence of our democracy, one of the clearest anywhere in the world, and this is the spirit which will govern our deliberations today and throughout the rest of this session.

I have digressed from my account of departmental activities, but taking the Public Works Department first it is here that the main thrust of our development is at present being borne. I am sure everyone will be aware of the revitalization that is taking place in this Department under its new Director, Mr Alan Mason. The whole establishment has been reorganised, not only to cope with the major development projects and the creation of the Plant and Transport Authority, but also to take care of all on-going maintenance and repair work. With ODM's assistance - and, I should say, the generous help of the Royal Engineers - the cadre of senior technical staff has been increased. There are still, however, shortages in the general work force which it is hoped to overcome to some extent by the engagement of contract labour. Even with this assistance, it will still be difficult to maintain targets, and to overcome the consequences of neglect in the past.

One of the services maintained by the PWD is, of course, Stanley's water supply. The treatment of raw water at the Filtration Plant has now been reorganised, and it is expected that considerable savings in the purchase of chemicals will result. Of concern is the condition of the town's main distribution network; many of the older lines will have to be replaced on a yearly replacement programme. The cost in money and labour will be considerable but the job must be tackled by the 1980/81 financial year to guarantee water supplies throughout Stanley. The tanks and reservoirs are also scheduled for painting and renovation in the forthcoming year. We were fortunate to have Mr Arthur Smith, the Crown Agents water engineer, visit us for three weeks in February this year. Mr Smith's guidance and advice was invaluable in the installation of the new equipment at the Filtration Plant, and upon the water supply in general. Mr Smith did, however, point out that thought must very soon be given to the planning, design and installation of a new plant, to cope with the present and foreseeable demands of development, and which will be required to be in operation some five years from now. If we are to develop, and new industries and enterprises are to come in, water will be one of the first services they will demand.

The Power Station continued to give a good supply of electricity in spite of shortages of skilled staff. The number of units consumed over the year remained, as in the previous two years, at an average of $2\frac{1}{4}$ million, but a careful watch is being maintained nevertheless over demand trends, and we must bear in mind the potential effect that increases in the price of our diesel fuel will have for the future cost of generating electricity. We are therefore still hopeful that the tentative scheme for the utilisation of wind power will be pursued.

We turn now to roads. A small repair and maintenance unit has been built up to start upon the rehabilitation of the Stanley roads, and it is not before its time as everyone will be aware. Damage was caused to Ross Road West by the transport over it of approximately 39,000 tons of fill material from the butchery quarry to the Stanley/Darwin road, and until now the unit has concentrated its efforts on this section. With the onset of mid-winter, the road unit will now have to be diverted to other work until the spring.

Plans are in hand to provide the Stanley Airport road with a complete re-seal in the coming summer months. Patching work has been undertaken to prevent any undue disintegration, but it is essential to re-seal the surfacing before the 1980 winter. Some four kilometres of the Stanley/Darwin road have now been completed to sub-grade level and a large quarry has been established at Pony's Pass to provide material for the next section of the road. A three unit "Armco" culvert has been completed over the Pony's Pass stream and pipe culverts are being laid on the next section of the road to be tackled. The approximate expenditure on the road to date amounts to some £77,000, plus the cost of culverting material bought in for the total length. With experience gained in overcoming the problems on the initial section, the work will speed up considerably during the next summer but the constraints of plant and labour will have to be overcome.

The repair and maintenance of government property, and the extensive refurbishing of the dairy at Ross Road East, have occupied the efforts of the building section of the Department. The next job to be tackled is a survey of possible housing sites in Stanley for the construction of a number of new prefabricated houses suitable for local conditions.

A Plant and Transport Authority - PATA - was established in October last year under the Chairmanship of the Financial Secretary, and it has now taken over responsibility for all ex-Johnston Construction civil engineering plant and transport, the new plant provided out of ODM's grant, and the existing PWD plant and transport. Remaining Government transport will be taken over by the Authority on 1st July next. PATA is a self-financing organisation, deriving its income from the hire of its holdings, and provision for these hire charges has been made in general Departmental estimates.

The Fire Brigade also received attention during the year and new armoured hoses, replacement foam charges, items for the breathing apparatus and small fire extinguishers were ordered and received. The Brigade, a mostly volunteer force, was called out on nine occasions during the year.

The Education Department. During the past year this Department was almost fully staffed. Some contracts are coming to an end, and tenders for replacement teachers have gone forth to London. The Superintendent of Education, Mr Tom Lamin, is at present on mid-tour leave in Britain and it is expected that while there he will be able to attend candidates interviews and so assist in selecting staff who will be suitable for the broader education programme which has been set in motion in the Colony.

For various reasons, most of which will be known to Honourable Members, progress on the school hostel has been extremely disappointing. I am, however, in close touch with Mr Ted Needham, who visited us earlier this year and who, as Managing Director of Coalite Limited, has a concern in the project through his Company's subsidiary, the Falkland Islands Company, which is a partner in the joint venture which undertook the contract for the hostel. And we have had useful discussions with Mr Lawrie Browne, the consultant engineer, and with Mr Eric Riley, ODM's architectural adviser. If work can re-start fairly soon in the late winter or spring, the estimated completion date for the project is now, I am told, early 1980. We very much hope this target can be met as the broader secondary school programme, and the increased extra-curricular activity, is dependent on the completion of the complex.

/Mrs Joan Bird

Mrs Joan Bird and Mr Jim Randell from the Education Department of the Brighton Polytechnic visited the Colony in January this year and ran successful courses on pre-school education for mothers, and environmental studies on locally based topics for all the teachers.

Mr Gerard Robson has returned from his technical training course with the British Council and Brighton Polytechnic and is engaged on preparing taped and duplicated material to support the basic cassette programme.

In June 1978 and January 1979 13 students gained a total of 31 'O' level passes. In June 1979 only 4 'O' levels will be attempted, but by next year the number of subjects should be over 30. The Department is now looking ahead to possibilities for continued study to 'A' level.

Further grants for books and audio visual material for use in the Education Department have been received from the British Council.

In the Medical Department, Dr Peter Summers has now taken over as Senior Medical Officer from Dr Keith Dunnett, who filled-in following the departure last year of Dr Derek Cox, and a further replacement is expected shortly to bring the senior medical staff up to cadre level of three doctors, which, with a full nursing staff, should allow the continuation of good medical care.

The re-equipping of the hospital with modern medical appliances continues. A new Land-Rover ambulance has been acquired, and new x-ray equipment has been ordered and should be installed by the end of this year.

Efforts are being made to improve the standard of comfort in the hospital. All the beds have now been equipped with new mattresses. More carpet tiles - a gift from the Red Cross Society - have been laid in corridor areas and we hope to instal new vinyl tiles in some of the main wards next year.

A very valuable visit was made by Miss Rosemary Weedon, a senior nursing administrator from the Nottingham Hospitals group, to advise us on local nursing training.

The hospital now has a well equipped library, and a new tape/slide projector which was a gift from the Royal Marines and which can be used for teaching purposes.

Camp settlements are currently being issued with new medicine chests which have been enlarged to provide a very comprehensive range of drugs and equipment.

As an indication of the work of the Department, during the year there were 2,526 attendances at hospital general clinics and 297 admissions to hospital; 140 operations were performed. There were 120 medical visits to camp settlements when 768 patients were seen.

So far as the Posts and Telecommunications Department is concerned, the most important aspect in the communications field has been the installation of AEL transceivers on some of the out-lying Islands. These, together with the influx of 2-metre VHF sets into the Colony have much improved communications in the Camp. An adviser from the Ministry of Overseas Development is expected in the Falklands next September or October, and he will further study and make recommendations regarding the future of the VHF network.

/improved communications

Our stamp sales have kept to a high level and form an important source of revenue, and business at the Philatelic Bureau continues to increase. Four special issues of stamps are scheduled for next year.

Because of problems in the acquisition of spares and other difficulties, only one Beaver aircraft was available for use with the Air Service for some six months of the past year. This unfortunately had to reduce, for a time, the carriage of tourist traffic, but 3,425 passengers were carried in the year and 1,041 hours flown.

Both our Beavers are now fully serviceable, but Alpha Victor will have to be withdrawn from service in approximately two months time for a major overhaul. This should be completed before the commencement of the next tourist season when we expect our new Islander to be in operation. Incidentally, Chief Technician Bill Hughes, who has now arrived to replace Chief Technician Alec Clark, had the opportunity during his familiarisation course to see our Islander aircraft being "customarised" at Bembridge in the Isle of Wight.

Turning to the smaller departments, the Meteorological Department has continued to give us good service.

The Police Force is up to better strength and a police cadet was appointed to the establishment in August last year, the first time in the history of the Force that such an appointment has been made.

The arrival of Mr Ray Checkley to take up the post of Registrar has meant that the very heavy legal work load previously shouldered by Mr Harold Bennett, the Senior Magistrate, can now be shared. Mr Checkley has given invaluable help in drawing up the Prospectus for the Green Patch sub-division scheme, applications in connection with which are now coming in.

The Harbour Master has reported a considerable increase in shipping activity. At the end of May some 105 vessels had been entered by his Department since the beginning of this year and of this number 73 were foreign fishing vessels. The Financial Secretary will be commenting later on the revenue in harbour dues from this source.

The Printing Department, which still turns out work of a traditionally high standard, had a visit from Mr Alan Roberts, who is Vice-Principal and Director of Studies at the London College of Printing, to advise on the possible introduction of new processes to help speed up output. We await his report with interest.

The programme of work of the Grasslands Trials Unit has been revised as a result of the visits of Mr Bob Waddell and Mr John Eadie in February last year, and of Mr Tom Davies and Professor George Dunnet in February this year. Phase One of the work has now passed into Phase Two, and greater emphasis is being placed on re-seeding with grasses other than Yorkshire Fog; on the possibility of establishing plants such as clover; on the effect of more intensive grazing of white grasses; and on the production capabilities of Falkland Islands sheep.

/The effect of

The effect of this different re-seeding method is being studied at five farms; Teal Inlet, Chartres, Darwin, Roy Cove and Hill Gove - and also at the two main experiments at Salvador and Brenton Loch.

A great deal more about the Upland Goose and the Brent Goose is now known and it is planned that the Grasslands Trials Unit will shortly issue a booklet for general information. The competitive aspects of the geese on the new re-seed are now being studied. A practical scheme for sheep production improvement has been circulated by the Unit for comment by farmers and stock-men.

Close co-operation has been maintained with the Sheep Owners' Association and the farm managements, without which all this work could not proceed, and the Grasslands Trials Unit, and indeed the Administration, is grateful for all the assistance rendered during the past year.

And now, without wishing to pre-empt the budget speech which the Honourable the Financial Secretary will be making to Council later today, I should like to refer in general terms to the Colony's financial position.

As the Financial Secretary will be explaining, the recurrent expenditure and revenue account, which has been well in balance in the current year, is unlikely to be in quite so happy a state next year. This is not the first time this has happened, and our reserves are fortunately strong enough to meet the strain of any deficit that might occur, certainly in the next and probably in ensuing years, should it be necessary. On the credit side there will be an increasing capital aid inflow, which indirectly will boost revenue considerably, and while we have thoroughly explored most measures to increase our taxation revenue, without at the same time imposing an intolerable burden on tax payers, there is still a little we can do to pull back some of the outflow of funds which has traditionally resulted from the structure of our economy. But we are facing a situation where our revenue, if not entirely static, will be unable to increase sufficiently to meet the rising costs of imported goods and services, in other words, imported inflation, even if we restrain inflationary pressures which are within our own control.

Our main concern is over the impending increase in fuel oil costs. Thanks to the generosity of the Admiralty in London we have this year had a stay of execution, as it were, of the heavily increased cost we might otherwise have had to face now. But eventually we will have to pay a higher fuel bill. As a result of recent events in the main oil producing and consuming countries, we are in no worse a position in this regard than the rest of the world, particularly the small countries; we are in fact better off than some as our supplies of our primary fuel, diesel, are guaranteed and our stock position is good. More, by the generosity I have mentioned, we can take steps to cushion to some extent the impact of the inevitable price increase when it arises. We shall be no worse off, and probably marginally better, than others. But for a small country, mainly dependent on a single crop industry, the price of whose product is determined entirely by world marketing factors which at the moment do not look likely to allow for much of an increase in returns, any increase in import costs, leading to an increase in the cost of production, can only bear heavily on our revenue. We do not have a balance of payments problem; ours is healthy enough for the foreseeable future. It is the narrowing gap between revenue income and essential services expenditure which is worrying. We are in no dramatic difficulty yet, and have been through worse in the past. But we shall need to strive for the greatest economy, without carrying it to a stage which would be detrimental to the maintenance and necessary improvement in our services.

We must look ahead to the position in a year or two hence. We can pay our way, but it will put an increasingly heavy burden on us which no such small community ought to be expected alone to bear for its maintenance. Until larger development can bring us in additional income, which will almost certainly eventually come, we shall need sympathetic assistance. This would require a new concept of aid, more in the form of block grant subvention, and not just project aid, generous though that is now. I touch on this only lightly here, but we shall hope to be able to develop these views in future discussions with the Ministry of Overseas Development.

What, however, we most need for the long-term future is a further source of revenue income. As I have implied, without an upsurge in the world wool price we are near to the limit of what can be got off the sheep's back, if we are to allow our farmers enough profit to plough back into production investment. We are doing extremely well in the sales of our stamps and coins to collectors and, as I think the Financial Secretary will confirm, we are beginning to see a significant degree of income working through our revenues from tourism. It is, however, in the marine resources of the seas around us where lies our best chance for the future. We earnestly hope it will soon be possible to devise a regime for the controlled exploitation of these resources which will give us at least a licence income far and away above the small fees and duties which is all we presently receive from the foreign vessels coming into our harbours for occasional shelter or hospital care.

I might add, on a separate but somewhat connected topic, that we are awaiting with great interest the report of the team of experts who came here under ODM auspices some while ago to examine the possibility of an in-shore fisheries industry. It is apparently held up for the evaluation of certain technical data, but we are promised we will have it soon.

Another problem in the minds of all of us lately concerns the labour shortages we are constantly encountering in every aspect of our development, and which are also affecting the sheep farming industry. Our first concern must be to encourage our young people to stay by every possible improvement in our community services; the grass is not, as many would-be emigrants would soon discover, all that much greener on the other side of the fence.

Next there is the matter of getting additional willing hands. The Administration is managing, with ODM's assistance to recruit most of the technical and professional personnel we need, and immigration in that sphere has not done too badly during the past year.

But immigration generally is another thing. I would have thought we had a reasonably flexible immigration policy - we have more or less an open door, subject only to certain necessary conditions. I notice there is a motion on our Agenda which will allow for a useful debate on this question, and I look forward with close interest to hearing the proposals and suggestions of Honourable Members whereby we might step up and encourage immigration within the limits of our financial and other resources.

Another debate I look forward to will be on the Motion regarding constitutional modification. As I have said on earlier occasions, our standing constitutional arrangements and practices do seem at times rather cumbersome for so small a community, which has so much to do in so little time; the same thought was raised in the Shackleton Report. I will be interested to hear Honourable Members' proposals, and whether, on their basis, a new working party is called for.

Other matters before us are Bills to bring our Matrimonial Causes - our divorce law - and Guardianship of Minors legislation up to date. And there are other Bills deriving from the Budget provisions.

Finally, before I close, I should perhaps at least briefly refer to the fact that we do now, of course, have a new Administration in Britain following the recent General Election. I have little doubt that, in due time, Her Majesty's Ministers in London will wish to acquaint themselves more closely with Islanders' views, problems and wishes. I am sure we shall all welcome that opportunity when the time comes.

MOTION OF THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT ON HIS ADDRESS TO COUNCIL

The Hon W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

It is my privilege today to open up this discussion and in doing so, like yourself, I would like to wish the Financial Secretary well in his recovery from what at the present time might be called 'financial arthritis'. I too, like all Councillors, would like to welcome Mr Dick Baker, our new Chief Secretary, and his family, his wife Connie and his two little girls, Helen and Karen.

Now to get on to more specific matters, I have only got a few points here today, I am not going to go into anything in detail but like yourself I am going to mention a few. It was good news that the Water Filtration Plant will now be renewed in five years' time. It gives us five years in which to do some very thorough research to get the right type of equipment and get something which will give us the long-standing service that the equipment we have now installed has done so well.

The power supply and electricity. You mentioned wind power and wind generation. This study we should follow up very closely and if there is any possibility we should do our best to get and seek financial aid in order to assist our power supply with a natural resource which very seldom seems to run out.

I was very heartened to hear that the Airport Road will be completely re-sealed before the winter of 1980. I think that is excellent news because I well remember the construction team from Johnston Construction warned us at the time that it should be re-sealed within a few years, after some use.

/The Darwin Road,

The Darwin Road, which I have still a lot of faith in, I think will continue, and if we get a summer like we had in the past, should be speeded up and be well along and well away from Stanley by the time the re-scaling of the Airport Road is done. I know too that our present Director of Public Works is as concerned as anyone is about the state of the Stanley roads, and when he has got the team and the labour available I feel certain he is going to carry on and do what he can as and when he can.

It was heartening to hear that a survey of housing sites around and near Stanley is to take place. I think this is of vital importance, not only because of the urgent need for houses but also in connection with our immigration and the need for more labour.

I am not going to say too much about the School Hostel; my own personal opinion is, at the present moment, that it is a pity. But I have confidence because I too, like yourself, had a long chat with Mr Ted Needham of Coalite, who had an assurance to a certain extent and he said the hostel will be built. It must be built, and despite the fact that it is a new type of construction, quite unfamiliar to us, I sincerely hope the end product will be much better than the start being made, and will be indeed supplemented. Many people have said that we should have a timber building but I think that perhaps in the long run that is wrong because with this system of spray concrete, provided it works satisfactorily, which I don't know, will be less of a fire hazard and a smaller loss should such a disaster occur.

The new processes in the printing rather interested me because no matter how new or how old they are I think our present process of printing is going to be very difficult to beat, but be that as it may let's find out.

I was heartened to hear too that we are soon going to have some more concrete results from the Grasslands Trials Unit which will help our sheep-farming industry. I am sorry I cannot say any more on this because it is totally out of my field.

I think the financial interest is very important at the moment, and the outflow of cash, especially in the case of liquid fuels, is something which worries me.

The other important point you mentioned was encouraging the young people to stay here. This is vitally important, but in order to do this we have got to find better opportunities and better entertainment and in this respect I would like to comment on the work that the youth organisations are doing here. I think Government could help in this field because it is so important, and personally I would like to see more apprenticeships offered, not only in the technical field but also in the industrial field.

Immigration is a very important factor but with immigration we have four other factors: housing, people, jobs and facilities, and these four things have got to be solved along with the policy on immigration. There is no point in bringing anyone here without offering them something to come for, somewhere to live, and a job to do, a job they can get here. I think the other three factors are probably more important.

/And I look forward,

And I look forward, in conclusion, to close liaison with our new Conservative Government in the United Kingdom and the goodwill that should prevail as it did with the previous one.

Sir, I beg to support the Motion of Thanks.

The Hon A B Monk JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

In speaking to the Motion of Thanks I would like to discuss in general terms our economy, the fragile nature of our economy, and the desperate need for broadening our industrial base and the reversal of the population drain. That is my main theme.

Before I do that I would like to welcome the Honourable the Chief Secretary, Mr Dick Baker, to our Council, and I am sure we will have a long and happy association. I would also like to endorse Your Excellency's remarks about the Hon the Financial Secretary, and though one cannot say that he is absolutely essential to our survival, one can truly say that he is extremely important and we hope he quickly gets better.

With regard to our economy, well, let's try to illustrate briefly how fragile it is. The increased ordinary annual expenditure averaged over the last four years increases around about 25% per annum. It is about 29% in the case of 1978/79 and will be estimated about 18½% for 1979/80 and the large part of this increase - most of it, in fact I estimate around 75% of it - is entirely without our control: imported inflation and the like. But I estimate that some 25% of it is within our control and some of it is caused by improvements to services; but a lot of it in my view is caused by 'cosmetic' expenditure made by attempting to transplant United Kingdom metropolitan conditions to a small, isolated, rural island community, in the mistaken belief that unless you lush people up they won't come here.

Our estimated revenue will fall short of expenditure by a large amount, probably not quite as large as our Hon Chief Financial Secretary estimates, because he is a very conservative man, but nevertheless quite a large amount. The estimated expenditure in fact will be roughly £1,200 per head for every man, woman and child resident here and since, as I will try and show, we have virtually no control at all over 25% of our revenue, that in itself is a very worrying figure.

Some 25% of our revenue comes from four sources over which we have virtually no control whatsoever. Some of these sources in fact are virtually 'one off' operations. For instance gold coins, expected to yield something like 8% of the revenue. We only get this bonus because of some wildlife society celebrating something or other - I'm afraid I can't remember what it is. It is not reasonable to suppose that we will ever do it again.

We have little control over stamp sales, which are expected to yield somewhere around 8¾% of our revenue. If Major Spafford or some other philatelic naybob decides we have done something wrong and recommends that we should be 'black-balled', our revenue will be virtually stopped from stamp sales.

/Harbour dues

Harbour dues are expected to yield 3% of our revenue and this is mostly from fishing fleets anchoring in Port William. They suddenly found us convenient for this purpose but they could just as equally find us inconvenient and go somewhere else and the revenue departs.

We expect to levy a tax on the Savings Bank contributors of around about £80,000, which is a very naughty business anyway, as I have many times said, but we can only levy that sum on them if Government stock prices and shares remain in a satisfactory condition. If in fact there is a major stock and share market slump, far from fetching in £80,000 from the Government Savings Bank, we might even have difficulty in finding the 5% interest on contributors' deposits.

Over the main items of revenue on which we can be said to have a large measure of control - income tax and company tax, electricity charges and that sort of thing - these items contribute in fact less than 50% of our revenue. These are items which we can be said to have a fair measure of control over, not complete control because if the wool prices go down, which they are doing and the signs are not at all hopeful for the next year or so, our company tax slumps with it. We have expenditure rising at more than 20% annually; revenue tagging along only because of windfall revenue; and a falling population providing an ever smaller base from which to get tax. I think it can be truly said that our financial affairs are balanced on a knife edge.

However, against that gloomy picture I think can be offset the fact that we have a small but very resolute, determined and hard working population; also, we have potentially large maritime resources waiting to be developed or licensed by us. Only Her Majesty's Government can define the limits of our exclusive economic zones in consultation with our neighbour, Argentina, and I think we must continually press them to do so. Although defining the areas is not a direct responsibility of ours as I have said, I believe that we can help or hinder by our attitude. If we recognise our geographical position and the limits that this and our small population places upon us, then I believe we will realise that negotiations and commercial co-operation are the only possible reasonable approaches to take, subject always to the position that there is no dilution of our sovereignty. I believe that if we take this attitude and not tub-thumping, sabre-rattling stance, and obviously our sabre is rather small anyway, I believe we shall get the development of our maritime resources which is so essential to our long-term survival.

Your Excellency referred to many matters, and I would like to join in your remarks about Government Departments, who I think have given us exceedingly good service over the last twelve months, and I would like to make one or two small remarks about Departments - small points which I think are rather worrying to people. Take the Broadcasting service: there seems to be a very casual attitude sometimes in the Broadcasting department as to whether the station is tuned properly or whether it's even transmitting, whether they have even got the piece of paper with the news on it. Considering we do not get many hours of broadcasting I think there could be more determination to see that what we do get is of good quality.

/In the case of the Camp

In the case of the Camp medical service we have, it is true, new medicine chests, but I think most people who have had any dealings with these chests will agree when I say that a lot of 'cosmetic' expense has gone into them, like labels for bottles and nice little pill cases, supposedly child-proof, and all this sort of thing; but there is almost nothing in the way of big dressings and the like if somebody cuts himself badly, and it is very difficult to get more items out of the Medical Department. Things like that annoy people.

The R/T service is a worry to a lot of people in the Camp. We virtually have three systems going now. Owing to interference by the Sheep Owners' Association and acquiescence by the Administration at that time, the provision of AEL sets was halted, and we now have AEL sets in some places and 'black boxes' in others, and everybody is fiddling about with VHF. The 'black boxes' cannot talk very happily to the AEL sets because the AEL sets sound like a sort of gobbly group thing; the operator in here has an AEL set and periodically she goes on to Channel 3 to talk to Joe Bloggs, and as I have a 'black box' I can't even call her until she switches back again. I do think we must try and get one system for everybody - maybe have a VHF system; I'm all in favor of a VHF system as a back-up or as an extra, but let's have one ordinary system on which we can all talk.

With reference to the revision of the Constitution, I suppose it is a bit cumbersome but I do not see that it is working too badly and, frankly, I'm a little at a loss to know why we need to do anything about it. We have got the most important thing, and that is an elected majority in Council.

There is a lot more I would like to say but I can see a lot of other Members are waiting to make some important points so I will sit down, and I would like to support the Motion of Thanks.

The Hon S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

I would first like to extend a welcome to the Hon the Chief Secretary, Mr Baker, and his family, and in supporting the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency's Address I would like first to talk about our various major projects - not so much each one individually, but rather about what we are trying to achieve as a whole. The Estimates, as has been pointed out, show all too clearly the costs in economic terms to the community of these undertakings; what won't be shown, of course, is what would be the consequence of not pushing forward with these things now.

Everyone realises that we have a grave emigration problem. Those who leave give more or less the stock reasons for going: better educational facilities, improved communications and a wider variety of recreational facilities available elsewhere. These are the most often quoted. If we are to halt this exodus we must begin now to improve those things for people here. We are not beckoning them with the moon. Reasonable communications, a decent standard of education and the possibility of Islanders owning their own land, is surely not more than most communities would aspire to, or have long ago attained.

/ In the past eighteen months

In the past eighteen months we have seen a start on the road system, plans to improve the Air Service brought forward, the School hostel commenced and an entire farm become available for Falkland Islanders. Whatever the temporary setbacks, I feel this is not a bad start.

On the emigration problem, the departure of each detachment of Royal Marines is followed by a few more Falkland Islanders - and generally the prettier ones. I believe that we will shortly be unable to afford, because of this, to have single detachments here. If new barracks are to be built I believe that we should urgently investigate the possibility of them being married quarters and that further detachments be married and accompanied by their wives. If this were to happen it would certainly decrease the problem.

I will not dwell on the Bills which will come before us now, I think that is better done at the appropriate stage in our meeting. I am disappointed, though, that as yet there are no signs of measures to halt the flow of money leaving the Colony. I hope that any complications will be sorted out as soon as possible. If we are to continue to have even our present services, we must improve the revenue situation. We are receiving advice from our Fiscal Adviser and have a reasonable picture of our economic prospects for the next few years, but we should consider what best course we might take. There will, I think, have to be some hard decisions made, but we must appreciate that there is no point whatsoever in seeking advice and obtaining lip service about our desire to improve things only to disregard or ignore the advice we receive. No one enjoys paying tax but the fact remains that without it, in one form or another, we would be unable to enjoy any of the services we have now, far less plan for the future. There is a small group of vociferous people who, to protect their own interests, or those of their masters, would be more than content to delay certain fiscal measures. I think all of us are aware of the need to broaden our revenue base and we would all like to see diversification of industry here. Right now, however, all we have is the sheep industry, and it worries me when I am told that we are not in many cases making the best use of the land we have. I don't feel at all qualified to talk about sheep or wool, and probably some of my colleagues will shoot me down for saying this, but I do think that we cannot afford to allow any area to be badly farmed or improperly managed, and if that is in fact happening, then we must consider ways of stopping it.

Your Excellency mentioned the high cost of our Administration and that the public rightly expect a service for their money. I agree that by and large our Civil Servants are a competent and hard-working group of people. In my opinion it is insufficiently appreciated that the function of the Administration is generally to implement decisions of Council and Standing Finance Committee, and in other circumstances decisions are made with the advice of Committees comprised of taxpayers. It does not make for harmony if people believe wrongly that all the popular decisions come from Council and all the unpopular but necessary measures are the work of the Administration.

Your Excellency underlined the dangers of our reliance on oil. I am concerned by the increasing use of imported fuel in the Islands and with our economic situation it does not make sense to encourage people to use an expensive import when we have a local fuel available. I believe we should investigate the possibility of offering an incentive to people who use our natural fuel.

^We are fortunate

We are fortunate to have it even if it is not the cleanest or easiest to exploit.

We must give our housing programme adequate emphasis. We cannot consider seriously asking people to come here and live if we cannot accommodate them, neither can we have much expectation that young people will remain if they cannot ultimately expect a reasonable standard of housing. There are I know plans to construct flats in some of the larger Government properties but these plans should in my view have a high degree of priority and if possible be brought forward and begin immediately.

Your Excellency touched on the change in the Government in the U.K. and I share your hope that we shall be able to build a relationship with Her Majesty's new Government that will be as we had with the past Labour Government. It is important that people who will now be dealing with our affairs fully appreciate and understand our attitudes and feelings to our external affairs.

I wish to support the Motion.

The Hon T J D Miller

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

In rising to support this Motion I would initially also like to welcome the new Chief Secretary and his family to the Falklands and to Council. I fully support in general the views expressed by the Member for the East Falklands emphasising the delicate financial position that faces us here and I would like to talk a bit more about this. I feel that to quite a large extent this is caused by the dispute we have with Argentina and I would like to refer to the state of relations between us and Argentina. As I have said before I am satisfied that no British Government will even consider a change in sovereignty without our full consent and our views are well known to them. Bilateral talks however have been going on at various levels for more than two years and have got us absolutely nowhere at all. I accept that these talks have cooled the atmosphere a bit, but the important, the vital thing is that they have done nothing to increase revenue by allowing the licensing of off-shore fishing and oil exploration and, even more important, they have done nothing to stem the rate of emigration. It appears that the Argentine Government are holding up any joint agreements on trade and economic development in order to force us into a more serious financial position. They are deliberately attempting to hold the Falkland Islanders to ransom. The last two years have shown that negotiations have got us nowhere, and are not likely to in the future, unless there is a major change of attitude by one party. We have no quarrel with the Argentine people, we want to co-operate and get on with them as our neighbours, as trading partners, but we are not prepared to become subservient to the so-called goodwill of a police state. It is reliably estimated that some four thousand people have been imprisoned in Argentina, eight thousand killed and fifteen thousand have simply disappeared in the last few years. That doesn't show much respect for freedom and human rights. Reading in a newspaper recently I find that even Argentine sources have recently admitted to 5,750 disappearances since 1975, each one verified by habeas corpus petitions.

/I would hope

I would hope that in the future the United Nations would pay a little bit more attention to the facts and a little bit less to pointless verbal rethoric when considering our case.

Your Excellency, as we all know we now have a new Government in Britain and I look forward to meeting the new Minister responsible for our affairs in due course when hopefully he manages to come out here and get the facts first hand from the people of the Islands.

There is a lot of talk about money leaving the Colony. I wonder just what the people mean when they say 'money leaving the Colony'. Do they mean United Kingdom-owned farm profits going overseas and not coming back, do they mean Falkland Islands locally-earned farm profits going overseas and not coming back, because this happens also, if not to a larger extent, do they refer to ordinary members of the public who have their money in a bank or building society or such like in U.K. They are equally as guilty as any big farm. We must remember though that we are a democracy, to a certain extent people have a right to do with their money as they please, we are not a communist state.

The crux of our future is that of development and I refer to what may be called industrial development rather than Government infrastructure development, which although initially generously financed by Britain, and temporarily boosting our wealth, seems to leave us with an ever-increasing maintenance bill, to be financed from somewhere. Where? the sheeps' back and we taxpayers, of course.

Your Excellency, we urgently need new industries, new jobs of different forms to encourage people to stay here and to encourage others to come to the Falklands. In this I particularly welcome the Fitter tourism venture. It is not going to produce a fortune overnight but then no new industry does, but if it does come off it will lead to a much better system of communications within the Islands and overseas, new and different jobs, and at the same time will, after a couple of years, start producing some very useful revenue to these Islands in general and to those who take part in this venture. But this industry, as any other, is not going to get going unless all of us here in the Islands are prepared to invest a little bit of money in it. We cannot continually expect this Government or the British, or any other outside interest, to back these sort of projects unless the people here are prepared to do so as well. If we can show our willingness to improve things here, then we will have a very good case to argue for outside investment as well.

Whilst on the subject of new industries I think that the time has come for us to consider bringing in legislation for some kind of tax holiday or other incentive for new enterprises for the first year or so. There is nothing new in this. It is done and gets good results so I understand in many other countries. The big revenue earner that we need of course is a two hundred mile maritime zone to license fishing. This you yourself, Sir, and other Members, have referred to and no doubt we will be hearing more about it later on, as there is a Motion on this matter before the House.

Last summer we had an Overseas Development Administration team here investigating inshore fishing, a possible new revenue-producing industry, yet what have we heard? Nothing. A year or more ago we had the off-shore oil survey; again we have heard nothing. Last year we had the visit of Mr Peirse to examine and advise on our wool marketing system, to see if the system was right, to see if we were getting the best returns and so on, and what have we heard? Nothing. All of these could mean more income for the Islands yet we hear nothing. Nearly every month another expert arrives to look at or advise on the School Hostel, a project which, the last time I saw it, looked like a partially built nuclear bomb shelter that had received a direct hit. There appears to be little hope of completion for another year yet. By comparison, the Darwin Boarding School was, I understand; put up in about three months by five local handymen with little outside help and still appears to be a sound building. Having expressed my misgivings about the construction of the Hostel I sincerely hope that the new TCT team will get on with the job, finish the building and prove me wrong.

We still await the results of the off-shore oil survey, but in the meantime, Your Excellency, I feel that we know all too little about the land and inshore geology of the Falklands. The last land survey was carried out in the 1920s I believe, and I am quite sure that technology has improved a lot since then. After all, fifty years ago who would have thought that there was oil under the North Sea? Any on-shore find here could be readily developed regardless of our neighbour, although we would probably have to up-date our Minerals Ordinances.

New industries and development of course would not get far without new people to live and work here. It is therefore essential that we look at our Immigration Ordinances and see if we can make it easier for people from overseas to settle here, and in particular to make it easier for existing employers to bring in people from overseas. Naturally we would run the risk of admitting some people who would not fit in and get on here but then I feel that we are not in a position to be too choosy and there is after all no reason why anyone who comes to the Islands should be a burden on the social services. We neither want nor need such things as unemployment benefit in the welfare state. Our problem is that of under-employment. You only need to look at the slowness of the Camp road project and the lack of maintenance work on many farms to see that no one in the Falklands need be out of a job.

At the moment the world is faced with the problem of Chinese refugees from Vietnam. I don't know but maybe we would be able to help in a small way. It might be worth finding out to see if we have any suitable employment we could offer.

One final item, Your Excellency; I feel that there is a need for some form of prices commission to investigate our local retail and industry price mark-ups. Many prices generally reflect the cost of the item with a reasonable profit margin. But, alas, not all, particularly some items which are from time to time in short supply. Not all our inflation is imported; a fair amount of it appears to be home-grown.

Your Excellency, I wish to support the Motion.

The Hon W H Goss MBE JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

I am afraid I have very little to say. I would like to join my colleagues in welcoming the Honourable the Chief Secretary and his good lady to the Islands and wishing a speedy recovery to our Financial Secretary.

Your speech this morning, Sir, was a lot more encouraging than I expected it would be. The picture as most of us see it is very, very black but let's hope that what you have told us will bear fruit. It is right to say as you said, that in the past we have run into situations such as we are in now and have got over them, and I think we will this one.

I beg to support the Motion.

The Hon D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

I would like to thank Your Excellency for the Address and I would like to welcome the new Hon Chief Secretary and his wife; I hope they enjoy their stay with us.

I think there has been quite a range of things covered by the speeches so far; nobody seems to have clashed with anybody else - quite remarkable.

I have had a chance to have a look at the development projects for the first time properly. The road I thought was very good, I was quite interested in going down the road. The surface isn't brilliant but then I understand the final dressing has yet to go on, which will make a big difference. I'm quite happy about the road.

The Hostel - obviously, nobody's happy about that, but we are talking about that at a later time. I saw the dairy and the new concrete work and the new fence on the North side, very strongly made; I thought that work had been well done. I had a look at the dairy, too, and I think we all hope Malcolm Ashworth returns a fit man. The quality of the milk is excellent, I was quite surprised at that, and it's one project that seems to be going very well and we just hope that it doesn't come to an end and hope everything is all right. It was nearly dark when I saw the hangar but it seems to be going on quite well. It did look as though the ends of the alloy girders have been slightly deformed over the grass bogs, I could certainly see bends in them and I hope it's not going to affect anything when they start putting it up. But altogether I thought it was quite satisfactory; I know things aren't moving quickly, but they are moving.

Regarding financial affairs, I can't possibly do any better than our Honourable Member for East Falklands, it was an excellent speech. I think that our affairs are in a fairly healthy condition, nobody likes a fairly big deficit but at the moment I'm not over-worried. As long as we are very careful and we realise the situation, and in that respect I welcome very much your remarks on what you call block aid, I'm not really quite sure what that is but I think it would be better than aid on individual projects. I hope that we get somewhere with that.

Green Patch - well, first I would like to congratulate the Steering Committee, I think they made an excellent job of the Prospectus. It's clear, I can understand it, it's not couched in legal language which I was expecting; it's quite understandable and it's quite obvious that Government have bent over backwards to create favourable conditions for anybody applying. I didn't realise that there were six sections up for sale or lease, I thought GTU were getting one and I'm quite sorry they are not in a way, but it does make an extra section for somebody else to have. I would stress how vitally important it is that this scheme succeeds. Green Patch really is a key to the future as far as farming goes. If we are going to change the farming system and possibly break some of it up into small units, then Green Patch has to succeed. If it fails it will put us back ten or even twenty years. So I would ask people here to back the scheme in any way they can. Only six people can get portions of this, we couldn't possibly satisfy everybody, but what I would ask people is that they do support the six people who are given patches of Green Patch (horrible way of saying it). If they fail, we fail, and I think we must remember that it is not just the owners of the new sections of Green Patch - it's important for all of us. We all have a tendency to pick out all the faults in anything to give a hundred reasons why something won't work. But that attitude leads to despondency, despondency leads to failure, and failure in this case we cannot afford so let's give them as big a chance as we possibly can.

I back what the Hon Member for East Falklands said about internal communications; I am very disappointed that Government are not installing more AELs. This is the system that we started on and I think we should complete that system, at least for the West and the remote parts of the East. I don't think we should have stopped and I don't think we should be even bothering to await the results of VHF. If we can help out with VHF then, fine, but that is essentially an amateur link that we have broken into and we are really riding on the backs of the amateurs in this and I am not very happy about it. I think our system is the AEL system; it's proved to be good, it's working well except for the few people who have 'black boxes'. We still cannot get through to Stanley from some farms on 2 megs. at night and that is one of the main reasons for appraising the system, so that people could get through in emergencies. Those people with 'black boxes' on the West certainly can't get through and on some parts of the East they can't either, so we failed to carry out what we said we would do. I think if we cash in on the amateur system, the VHF, then we should at least instal a repeater link to town. I think we owe them that much.

On communications I should like to say something about Fox Bay Wireless Station. I think that is an excellent example of how the Administration has forgotten about Camp. I went there and visited it, a while ago now, and it is in a deplorable state, and yet if we are developing, I assume we also need to develop on the West; I hope so, in which case communications are important and we can't allow Fox Bay to run down. Apart from the communications aspect there is also a philately aspect and Fox Bay has an excellent reputation in philatelic circles. Mainly due to the conscientiousness of the Postmaster there, a lot of people would rather send to Fox Bay than to town, and we do need more than one official stamp. I think from that point alone Fox Bay is important. I would like to bring something personal in here and mention the wife of the operator at Fox Bay, Mrs May Maddocks. She keeps a listening watch all day, every day, and certainly on the West we have all used her help, we have all called her up, and all had her help; the ships that go around the coast all use Fox Bay, they all listen, they all call, she is there all the time without fail, and now she has got an extra job of collecting the weather in the morning at a very, very awkward time. She's paid a pittance, £40 a year I think it is. Forty pounds a year, and if that's not somebody being forgotten I don't know what is. At least six months ago I asked for something to be done about this and as yet nothing has been done about it. I hope that we soon remedy that.

I often appears that the Administration forgets that Camp is the life blood of these Islands. We rely still on sheep. We can't afford to forget Camp or make conditions any harder than necessary, obviously we tighten our belts. There's not a lot we can do but we can't afford to make conditions any harder than we absolutely have to. A lot of people think in town that you do live very well in Camp, but the wages are much lower, so really in the end it breaks even or maybe we might even come out a little bit worse, certainly not much better.

Camp education: this is a thing that is very, very important to everybody in Camp and something has come up recently that is bothering me quite a lot. I have had reported to me from various sources, and this involves a lot of people, that the Education Department say they will not supply a teacher where there is only one child, and especially in the case where that one child is just approaching school age, and in fact they are quoting the Education Committee as having made that ruling. I dispute that. We talked about it and what we did say was if we were short of Camp teachers then we could not guarantee that a one-child house would get a Camp teacher, but we laid emphasis on the fact that the new system was to be tried. If it worked then we would reduce Camp teachers; we didn't say that we would reduce Camp teachers first and then try out the system. This appears to be unfortunately the action which the Education Department are taking; they are refusing to give any consideration to a request for a Camp teacher to an outside house where one child has just started school. At the moment we are not short of Camp teachers and we can afford to help out in these cases, and we must help out in these cases. We are very short of outside shepherds, we can't afford to give them yet another reason for going into town or going into the settlements. If we can help we must do so, until a system is working so well that everybody is quite confident that we can do without Camp teachers. We have a problem with Camp teachers, and we are going to have more and more trouble recruiting them. The next set of Camp teachers we recruit will have to be qualified teachers and that means a lot more money, and already we are spending a quarter of a million pounds on education. We haven't got much more money and we must do what we can. When eventually Darwin School goes, I am very willing that the Administration should attempt to abolish the post of Headmaster, Darwin School, or that grade of post. I feel very strongly that such a level of responsibility must be given to the person in charge of Camp education, especially if we are going to introduce this new system. His position will be a very responsible position and I wouldn't like to down-grade it, I think it would be a bad mistake. Accordingly we must try to do everything in our power to stop the population drain from Camp and in that respect it is vital that education is not relegated to a secondary role.

/Far from

Far from withdrawing from the outer regions, I feel we should be encouraging the use of every piece of land we have. We should be using the considerable amount of land the Government has, more effectively. We should find a way of penalising those who allow land to lie idle and won't let others farm it.

In town I am extremely encouraged by the work done by the schools to involve children in the community. To me it is vital that they learn that we all have responsibilities towards each other, and to learn at an early age that we can't sit back and leave it all to others.

I am pleased that the Sheep Owners' Association is beginning to shake itself and make itself known by becoming more peace apparent, I think that's a very good thing. It's vital that it doesn't just become an opposition to Government and become destructive rather than constructive.

Cheese expert - I have been asking for a cheese expert for eighteen months. We don't seem to be getting anywhere with getting this cheese expert, yet to me that is one way of reducing imports. There are a lot of people in Camp interested in making cheese and it would be worth sending somebody out to show them how to do it properly. That person should be out for more than a few weeks - he or she should be out for quite a while. I hope that we can get a cheese expert.

Oil pollution - now this is something I would like to put before the House just as a warning. Oil pollution on the West side of the Falklands is increasing. I noticed it at New Island when I was there and I have just been told that at Beaver Island there is a whole bay which is absolutely covered in large globules of oil. It is an increasing problem. I don't know what we can do about it, except to note that the problem is there. It has been suggested to me that Sir Peter Scott's Conservation Trust might have somebody that could kick up a bit of a stink to help, but it could become serious over the next few years and it certainly is on the increase.

Marines - I would like to echo what the Honourable Member for Stanley West said. I think we ought to push very hard to have this new accommodation built for families rather than for single people and if possible to see Royal Engineers down here.

I was very interested that the benefits of tourism are beginning to be felt. The Administration has always given me the impression that they thought that tourism was of little benefit to the Islands; I always found that hard to believe so I welcome that piece of news and I hope that now we will begin more actively to encourage tourism, because I am sure there is a lot more we can do to encourage tourism. It could be a small second industry. At the same time, I think we must take steps now to preserve our assets in the form of wildlife.

Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion of Thanks.

The Hon the Financial Secretary

Your Excellency,

I wondered if I was going to be able to rise to support the Motion after the comments which were made about me, some very kind things, but I can assure you that the problem is not too great and I am sure that I will be able to continue through the Meeting with quite a strong opposition.

/I must say that

I must say that the preparation for the Budget this year went along smoothly. The staff that I have are exceptionally good and there were no problems. Also as far as the Hospital was concerned, I found that we have a first class Medical Department!

Secondly, I would like to welcome the Chief Secretary and his family to the Islands and look forward to spending many hours working with him.

Again I find that it is rather surprising that I am in agreement with the Honourable Member for East Falklands on most points. I think he has identified all the problems that I had lined up, and I am able to reduce the Budget speech by at least fifty per cent. I felt as though I was a school master checking his arithmetic, and he has got it 100% correct.

I disagree with him entirely on his remarks about the Savings Bank revenue. The Falkland Islands Government are not doing any more than any other organisation that is running a bank. As far as I know other bank profits go to the shareholders of the bank, but ours come into the Falkland Islands Government; I see nothing wrong with that whatsoever. He is quite right to say that we are living on 'windfall' revenue, or unreliable revenue. We have succeeded in doing this for a long time but I am pleased to note that there are much brighter prospects ahead if we can introduce revenue from industries such as fishing.

I think that the Elected Member for the East of Stanley has brought a very important point to our attention and that is that in the past quite often we have been rather gloomy and the strength and resilience of the economy have been under-estimated. I don't think that we should despair at this stage; we should now work hard and quickly to endeavour to obtain as much revenue for the Colony as possible. We are fortunate to have Mr Harry Ritchie already working on this and I can give an assurance to the Elected Member for the West of Stanley that outflow of funds is being looked at with some urgency.

I feel that I should say no more until the Budget comes around, and I join in supporting the Motion.

The Hon the Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members

In rising to associate myself with this Motion I am very conscious above all things of my status as a newcomer both to the Falkland Islands and to this Council. Perhaps therefore I may first of all on this occasion of my first public utterance here be allowed to take advantage of this to express appreciation for all the very kind things that have been said in welcoming myself and my family to the country and of course to this august assembly. I will certainly do my very best to uphold the traditions and standards of this assembly.

As a newcomer therefore it might appear somewhat presumptuous of me to attempt to make any in-depth comments on the matters which Your Excellency has so ably described this morning, especially perhaps in view of the very cogent remarks made by all other Honourable Members.

/Nevertheless,

Nevertheless, as Your Excellency was kind enough to remark this morning, I have attempted to absorb myself as quickly and as fully as possible in Falkland affairs. Frankly the time since we arrived here has flown past so quickly that I feel all we have really absorbed is a conclusive proof of one factor that everybody agreed on when telling us all about the Falkland Islands before we came here, namely, that the people of this country are most welcoming, most hospitable.

I do indeed, though, count ourselves as most fortunate in having arrived here at what appears to be a very interesting time. A large number of projects are in train, projects which we all hope will have a profound effect on the life of this country. I must confess when I first began serious briefing for this new post in London before coming here, to being very surprised to learn the breadth and the scope of the projects with which we are all involved. Your Excellency has mentioned all of them of course this morning. They won't all progress and proceed as rapidly and as successfully as we would wish - indeed it would be very surprising if they did - and yet I feel certainly that there is an air of dynamism and purposefulness abroad at the moment with which it is very invigorating to be associated. It is very refreshing for me to be grappling with concrete matters rather than somewhat more obstruse matters with which one is sometimes concerned. Indeed, Sir, I think if I am not careful I shall be physically grappling with concrete matters down in the Public Works Department unless we can find some way of overcoming the chronic shortage of labour, which we all agree is one of our most serious problems.

Apart from the Budget itself, the main preoccupation of this Session, not only have Honourable Members covered most points very adequately, but indeed a number of the points mentioned in Your Excellency's Address are in fact the subject of most things to be laid before this House later in the day, to which I look forward with great interest.

Sir, I beg to support the Motion of Thanks on Your Excellency's Address.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The President

I have just one announcement to make - a very pleasurable one - and that is to announce the results of the election which the Elected Members of this Council carried out last night, to elect one of their Members to take the seat on Executive Council which is being vacated in rotation by Hon Councillor Miller. I was informed after the white and black smoke had gone up at the end of Government House, that the Hon Member for West Falklands, Councillor Derek Evans, has been elected by his colleagues to Executive Council, and I would like to welcome him very much to the I won't say the upper or lower Council, shall we say the House next door; it is only semi-detached, we do have a fair amount of communication between one and the other. We shall be glad to see more of him in Exco and of course we shall also see more of him in Joint Council and in Standing Finance Committee as well. My congratulations, and at this point in time I express my thanks to Councillor Miller for all the help and advice he has given me on Exco in his eighteen months' term. Thank you very much.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

No 10 of 1979 by the Hon S B Wallace

What is the extent of the deterioration of the Stanley/Darwin Road which necessitated the recent announcement to motorists who drive on that road ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, in answering this Question I would like to make it quite clear to Honourable Members that the road surface in question is not the final surface. It is intended that a further layer of material, known as a wearing course, will be applied later. The present running surface of the Stanley/Darwin Road is the top of the sub-grade fill, and consists of a sandy clay material excavated from the Butchery quarry. A three-to four-inch course, consisting of a suitable gravel material, will need to be laid on this. The temporary runway is a probable source of such suitable wearing course material and steps are under way to utilise this material on the road in the Spring. In the meanwhile, when weather permits, steps will be put in hand to mix beach sand in the more sticky sections of the road in order to reduce the slipperiness. While the road is still in the construction stage, and I would like to emphasise the construction stage, it is prudent to counsel caution in its use, particularly as regards speed.

No 11 of 1979 by the Hon S B Wallace

Can the Administration advise on the progress made by farms in preparing airstrips for the 'Islander' aircraft operation ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, it is felt that in the circumstances adequate progress has been made with 'Islander' airstrip preparations. Although the Director of Civil Aviation has not received continuous information in the form of formal reports of work carried out, FIGAS pilots are aware of the state of advancement of most of the planned airfields. At a recent meeting of the FIGAS Committee an account was given on the situation concerning a number of sites and it was concluded that, and I quote, "some seven strips could be used at the present time and another four or five should be operational early in the New Year". Inspection visits by Civil Aviation staff will be stepped up, particularly when the Operations Management Adviser arrives, and the Director of Public Works will also be inspecting airfield sites, as and when opportunities occur. Meantime it is hoped that farms will be encouraged to persevere with the work of preparation, and in this connection it is noteworthy that the Royal Marines of Naval Party 8901 are available to assist for example with rock blasting where necessary.

No 12 of 1979 by the Hon W E Bowles

Sir, how much revenue has been raised since the 1st of January 1979 from foreign vessels anchored in Port William ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, the amount collected from foreign fishing vessels during the period 1st January 1979 to 10th June 1979 was £14,570.30. By the end of June when the supply vessel 'Pomoza' is due to leave, it is estimated that the total amount collected will be between £16,000 and £17,000.

Mr W E Bowles

Has this amount, or at the time of estimating, presumed amount, been considered in calculating the Budget ?

Chief Secretary

Yes, Sir.

No 13 of 1979 by the Hon W E Bowles

Sir, with the world increased price of oil, would the Administration give serious consideration to a further study and utilisation of our natural resources.

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Administration shares the Hon Member's concern about the rising level of oil prices throughout the world and agrees that all possible study should be given to the utilisation of our own natural resources. The existence of vast resources of peat in these Islands, although admittedly not always in the most convenient of locations, is a case in point, and recent rises in fuel oil prices, together with the threat of eventual world-wide shortages, have certainly caused a resurgence in consideration as to how this fuel source might be more widely and more efficiently exploited. While it would be perhaps unrealistic in view of the fact that we already have the Shackleton Report to think of any further study on a major scale, it is nevertheless agreed that we should do all we can to encourage further constructive examination and evaluation of our natural resources.

Mr W E Bowles

Will consideration be given to calculated percentage inducement and rebates for utilisation of the natural resources ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, I am afraid I cannot answer that question immediately, but I am sure that it is something that could be taken into consideration in due course with the co-operation of Honourable Councillors.

Mr W E Bowles

Could the Administration perhaps launch a cost study for building houses in local stone as compared to conventional materials, most of which have to be imported.

/The President

The President

I must point out to the Hon Councillor that he is departing rather from his original question, which was related to the price of fuel, was it not ?

Mr W E Bowles

To natural resources, Sir.

The President

I see , well, all right.

Chief Secretary

Sir, I think I could say that the Administration will certainly look into that matter.

Mr W E Bowles

One further question: should not the use of peat be encouraged to assist the economy if liquid fuel assets are not retained ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Administration entirely agrees.

No 14 of 1979 by the Hon W E Bowles

Sir, will the Financial Secretary explain for public information what criteria constitute the receipt of a Non-contributory Old Age Pension ?

Financial Secretary

Sir, there are two main qualifications. First there is an income qualification: the income of a married couple must not exceed a rate of £3,100 per annum, and the income of a single person must not exceed a rate of £800 per annum. Then the age qualifications, which are: a spinster who has attained the age of 65 years on or before 1st July 1970; in the case of a widow on attaining the age of 65 and her husband having died before the 1st of July 1952, or if he was excluded from contributing under the contributory scheme and died before reaching pensionable age, or the widow of a person who had attained the age of 72 before the 1st of July 1974 but did not buy himself into the OAP contributory scheme, she is then entitled to receive a pension at the age of 65. A man is entitled to receive a non-contributory pension if he attained the age of 72 before the 1st of July 1974 and did not buy himself into the contributory scheme. All other persons must have attained the age of 74 on or before the 1st of July 1961, the date of the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance. As this reply is rather technical, I would like to forward a copy of my reply to each Member of Council.

Mr W E Bowles

I would like to thank the Financial Secretary for his very specific reply and I look forward to having this in writing. Thank you very much indeed. I have one further supplementary question, can anyone who considers him or herself to be in need of a pension make application to the Treasury ?

/Financial Secretary

Financial Secretary

Sir, there is no objection to anybody making application to the Treasury. There are some people who do not qualify under either the contributory or the non-contributory scheme, and for your information, Sir, I would like to mention that this matter was raised at a recent meeting of the Executive Council, and the Administration is now looking into it. The matter will be further reviewed in Executive Council shortly.

No 15 of 1979 by the Hon D S Evans

Sir, what steps have been taken to acquire another Development Officer?

Chief Secretary

Sir, since the unfortunate retirement due to ill health of Mr Sloman we have been in consultation about a suitable replacement with the Ministry of Overseas Development, which normally deals with such recruitment. When it became apparent that the identification of a suitably experienced and mature candidate with suitable temperament for this key post was likely to take some considerable time, it was decided that an interim solution might be considered. To this end, the Ministry of Overseas Development offered to seek from amongst its own personnel a more junior officer who would be interested in a short-term secondment probably of about six months. Such an officer, being younger and more junior, would obviously not have all the qualities which would be expected of the substantive holder of this post. However, it was thought that he could fulfill a most useful role in carrying out the more routine aspects of the post, and in maintaining momentum and interest. The Ministry has recently sent us details of a candidate who appears to be very well qualified to carry out these duties on this basis. We have now accepted him and it is hoped that he will arrive shortly. Meantime our long-term requirements for the post of Development Officer will continue to be pursued.

No 16 of 1979 by the Hon D S Evans

Sir, are the Government taking any further action on the possibility of making loans available generally for development purposes ?

Financial Secretary

Yes, Sir. Government set aside £50,000 in the 1978/79 Estimates for loans, principally for housing and services; however, development loans were not excluded from the scheme and Standing Finance Committee considers all applications received. The Committee distributed in the region of 60% of the £50,000 during the year. The 1979/80 Estimates include an allocation of £50,000 for loans. This sum is now for consideration by the Legislative Council, and it is the intention of the Administration that applications for development loans should not be excluded from this allocation. Also in the field of development, Government will be making available finance on loan terms for the successful applicants within the context of the Colony's finances. I might add that we are also providing £25,000 for the Fitter tourism venture. Nobody should be inhibited from applying for a loan for development purposes, but I am sure the Hon Member will appreciate the need for a very thorough examination of any application. Government's finances are not elastic and the scope to raise funds for loans is also limited.

With reference to a Motion I proposed at a recent Council Meeting which was unanimously supported by Members. The Motion was that the Colony should be the sole beneficiary of the betterment value that would accrue to those lands through which the new road will pass. The Administration was requested to enter into urgent negotiations with those land owners concerned, with a view to an agreed resumption to the Crown etc. Have these negotiations started?

Chief Secretary

Yes, Sir. Initial discussions on this subject have been opened with the major company concerned. At the same time we have sought advice from the Ministry of Overseas Development on this rather complex matter; to this end we are in correspondence with the Land Tenure Adviser for Overseas Development, Mr J Laurence, with whom incidentally I have had the opportunity of working before, in other territories. It is hoped that with his assistance and that of our Legal Advisers, we will soon be in a position to proceed to the next stage of negotiations. Meanwhile the road works concerned are still within the area of Crown Land.

No 18 of 1979 by the Hon A B Monk JP

Can the Administration tell Honourable Members what is the cost to the Colony to date of the Goose Study carried out by Messrs Harradine and Summers?

Financial Secretary

Costs of approximately £4,000 have been incurred from local Government sources. All local funds for the Goose Study have been approved by this Legislative Council.

Mr A B Monk

Have any findings been reached which indicate the wild goose population is seriously competing with the ranching industry vis-a-vis grazing or vice-versa?

Financial Secretary

I am advised by the Leader of the Grasslands Trials Unit that to date the ecological survey has been successful and that the Unit will be in a position to make recommendations which would prove of benefit to the Colony in general and the sheep farming industry in particular.

No 19 of 1979 by the Hon A B Monk JP

The Falkland Islands Company are the Admiralty fuel agents and both the private sector and the industry depend on them for gas-oil, which is of paramount importance to both. Is the Administration satisfied that the agents' price mark-up is reasonable?

Chief Secretary

Sir, this mark-up is based on operational and commercial factors. These have been subject to some discussion recently, as a result of the changes in certain oil prices, of which Hon Members will be only too well aware. From these discussions it has emerged that there are a number of complications not readily apparent to the general public, for example that there is a minimum charge for lighterage. Fluctuations in the fuel oil price in recent years have occasionally involved the Company in a risk of incurring heavy losses, this being largely due to the invoicing system used in London. A typical example of this situation occurred earlier this year. However, these arrangements are under review and the Company will be giving further consideration to the calculation of mark-ups in the near future, when it is hoped that the price of oil will be in a more stable situation as a result of these new arrangements.

/well aware

Mr A B Monk

Do I understand that there is no fixed percentage mark-up always made ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, I am not sure of the answer to that question, which I feel is a commercial matter which could be taken up with the Management of the Company.

Mr A B Monk

Does not the Chief Secretary agree that the matter is of great importance to the industry and the population and that we should try and ensure that there is no excess percentage mark-up ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Administration entirely agrees and the negotiations and discussions which are at present in progress are in fact directed to that end.

No 20 of 1979 by the Hon T J D Miller

With reference to the answer given to Question No 7 of 1979, what is the breakdown of the £75,000 estimated extra cost to run an extended Stanley Airport ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, in framing the reply to Question No 7 of 1979 at an earlier Meeting of this Council my predecessor, Mr J Massingham, found difficulty in giving any precise answer, in view, he said, of the many imponderable factors involved in the question. Nevertheless, the reply he did give was based on the best possible advice available to us, namely that of the then Airport Superintendent, whose expert services were provided by the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation. I regret, Sir, that as the circumstances have not changed since then, I am not really in a position to add anything to what has already been said on this subject, except perhaps to say that the Honourable Member's question is one which could only satisfactorily be answered in the context of a proper feasibility study, if such a study were ever to be carried out.

Mr T J D Miller

Will the Administration enquire from the authorities in the United Kingdom whether such a feasibility study would be possible ?

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

Sir, as Honourable Members will be aware, my predecessor did in fact send a very comprehensive letter on 21st February last, referring a Motion of this House to the Ministry of Overseas Development. This was answered on 13th March; it might perhaps not be proper for me to read the answer in this public Session but the answer was, so I am assured - and it is noted on the file - brought to the attention of Joint Councillors on 27th March. If the Hon Member would like to suggest that the matter should be proceeded with further, then the Administration could once again write to London about this if necessary.

No 21 of 1979 by the Hon T J D Miller

It has now been nearly a year since the Immigration Committee has been without a Chairman. Why was the new Chairman not elected months ago and what proposals have Government in mind to make immigration to the Falklands more flexible and realistic ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, it is quite true that since the sad loss of Lt Col Goss, who fulfilled the duties so ably, the Administration has experienced considerable difficulty in finding someone to replace him as Chairman of the Immigration Advisory Committee. Although an obvious successor as Chairman of this body was available in the person of the Senior Magistrate, the Hon H Bennett, OBE, JP, it was felt that it would be unfair to appoint him until such time as a Registrar of the Supreme Court was at post to relieve him of some of his legal duties, and indeed to act as an alternative Magistrate in any Court action which might arise from immigration matters. Now that Mr Ray Checkley has taken up his duties as Registrar and has had some time in which to assume the full responsibilities of this post, it has been possible to consider burdening the Senior Magistrate with additional duties, and I am glad to be able to report to Hon Members that Mr Bennett has recently been appointed Chairman of the Immigration Advisory Committee. In addition to its more routine duties of advising on applications for entry and employment permits, we now look forward to receiving further advice from this Committee on the draft legislation provided by our Legal Adviser, Mr Frederick Cooke, which might become the basis of a revision of the Immigration Ordinance. This draft legislation is of course already under active consideration by the Administration and has been the subject of advice from other persons and bodies concerned.

No 22 of 1979 by the Hon T J D Miller

What plans have Government for the introduction of a Pay-As-You-Earn (PAYE) form of income tax collection to private individuals now that the system has been introduced to the public service ?

Financial Secretary

Sir, a voluntary income tax deduction scheme was introduced last year, after a request had been received from employees in the Public Works Department. It was first restricted to PWD employees; later the scheme was extended for the benefit of all Government employees. Briefly,

/the Departments

the Departments deduct the amounts authorised by the employees; the amounts are then deposited in the Treasury, and at the end of December the amounts are paid over to the Income Tax Office. Should an employee leave the Colony before the end of December, the funds are paid over prior to the employee's departure. The scheme appears to be working reasonably well. There is no objection to other employers following Government's lead, in fact it is understood that some other employers and employees have already come to agreement between themselves for regular, voluntary deductions of income tax. Government has been strongly advised against the introduction of a mandatory PAYE scheme, similar to the one operated in the United Kingdom, by various advisers. It is understood that such a scheme could probably cause a considerable burden on the employers and Government, and may also be costly.

Mr T J D Miller

I would like to thank the Hon the Financial Secretary for his very useful reply and I hope that it is something that employers and employees will be able to follow up. I quite agree with his views on a mandatory PAYE form of income tax collection, but I am pleased that the way is now open for a voluntary system.

Financial Secretary

If there is any way ⁱⁿ which we in the Treasury can assist any employer to arrange, or help or advise, on a PAYE system, we would be delighted to do so.

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

Appendix I.

MOTIONS

Motion by the Hon the Financial Secretary:

"That it be resolved that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period ending 28th March 1979 be adopted."

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, the Standing Finance Committee met on two occasions since the last Legislative Council meeting and approved £72,187 of additional provision. Details of the additional provision are given in the Report and there were no items not approved. I beg to move that the Report be adopted without debate.

The Motion was seconded by the Hon the Chief Secretary and carried.

Motion by the Hon S B Wallace:

"That this House wishes it to be conveyed to Her Majesty's Government that it is the wish of the people of the Falkland Islands to have the Falkland Islands remain British."

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. Simply with the change in Her Majesty's Government I thought it advisable at this time to keep our views known to those who may now be dealing with our affairs.

/There is little more

There is little more to it than that. I do not wish to bang any tubs, rather simply put down a marker at this time so that it will not be forgotten and that we are not prepared to compromise on our basic sovereignty position.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to second this Motion. I think that the fact that we wish to remain British is a crucial thing that is keeping us British. Once we weaken that resolve we will be in a very serious position and I think it is a very good thing to keep reminding the British Government that we do wish to remain British.

Mr T J D Miller

Sir, I wish strongly to support the Motion. There is an awful lot that could be said but it has already been said time and time again previously. Thank you.

The President

I imagine there can be no dissent on this Motion so it can be granted as carried and conveyed to Her Majesty's Government.

Motion by the Hon D S Evans:

"That this House recognises that there is an urgent need to change the immigration policy of this Colony so that it more actively encourages immigration."

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I introduced this Motion because I think we are not doing enough about immigration and at the last two Council meetings we have had questions on this subject and I thought they were answered rather unsatisfactorily. I thought it would be a good idea to have it out in the open and thrash it out. We are all worried about the number of people who are leaving these Islands, and I feel that we haven't got an active immigration policy. The reason that has always been given for this is that we have no housing so we can't really get anybody until we have housing. I am inclined to disagree with that; it is very important and it is a stumbling block but it is a chicken-and-egg situation again. I think we should go ahead and encourage people here and we could catch up with the housing afterwards. I don't think we can afford to sit back and say 'there is a shortage of housing, we can't do anything about it'. There is something I would like to propose - it's just a thought, we can discuss it in this Council and throw it out, but I think we have to discuss this kind of thing - I think we should have an office in Britain of our own, possibly part-time and not necessarily in London, but I think we should have our own Falkland Islands Office, independent of the Crown Agents. I realise this is an expensive undertaking, I realise that we might not have the funds, but this is a serious business. We are going to have to step up on immigration or we are going to find ourselves with insufficient people to keep the Colony running. I could think of someone who could do that job, or somebody who could be approached to do that job - our former Development Officer would be an excellent man for that position.

/And if we can

And if we can set up an office there in the first place I think probably to deal out information, a centre where somebody who is interested in coming to the Falkland Islands can go and find out all he wants about the Falkland Islands quickly, and somewhere where he can get in touch with the Falklands if there is any problem, or any help needed. At this end I think we should all get together and decide who we want here, if we want trades people, or what kind of people we want. Nobody seems to be sure. I would like to see the Sheep Owners' Association and Government get together on this and come to a decision. I don't know if we can afford to help with passages but we should be talking about it. I actually think that there are enough people in Britain and elsewhere who are so fed up with their way of life that they would pay their own passages down, but they don't know where to go, or who to ask. I think this is what we should remedy soon. The one thing that I must stress in all this, is that if we do relax control on who we do have in here to an extent, we must be very careful that we don't dilute the wish to remain British. I think we must remember this at all times; it is a vital thing. If we dilute the wish to remain British I think we are finished, certainly at the moment, it might not be the case in the future, but right now we can't afford to do that. I would just like us all to have a general re-think on immigration policy and see if there is anything we can do actively to encourage the right people to come here before it's too late. I even think there is some merit in the suggestion made by the Hon Member for Camp that we think about one or two refugees from Vietnam. It would be interesting to have a Chinese laundry here!

Mr T J D Miller

Sir, in rising to second this Motion I would like to say how pleased I am to hear that the Hon Harold Bennett has now been appointed Chairman of the Immigration Committee, and that the Administration is now planning to review our immigration policy and regulations. I also feel that it is about time we had our own Falkland Islands Office in London controlled from here, from the Falkland Islands Government, to reflect the views of the Falkland Islands Government and people. There is a Falkland Islands Office in London, as we all know, at the moment, but sometimes they do, sometimes they don't, reflect the views of this end. I support what my colleague the Proposer said about housing here in Stanley. Yes, to a certain extent there is a housing problem to immigration, but not necessarily in Camp; in many parts of the Camp houses are lying vacant because there is nobody to fill them. I think the sooner we can have a re-think about immigration policy, the better. I wish to support the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support this Motion insofar as I agree that we should make more opportunities for people to hear what the Falklands have to offer, if they are interested in coming here to live. It should also be remembered, though, that we already have quite a few applications from tradesmen, skilled people, who wish to come here and live and are prepared to go to Camp, but our commercial concerns seem to feel unable to offer employment, and, as it has already been said, there is certainly no shortage of housing in Camp. I fully agree that we need more people, but I also feel that one of the things which actively encourages immigration is to show a community which is prosperous and which offers at least some of the benefits of modern society. A basic provision must be for houses. It's fine to start discussing the necessity for a new emphasis on immigration but I also think that the formation of any comprehensive immigration policy would not be a simple matter. Do we accept people of every colour, race, and creed? There would be no problem if we placed an advertisement in the Ho Chi Min City Times. We would probably have thousands, but do we want these people? I think possibly the best approach to this would be to form some sort of working party to look into it and make recommendations. However, I do support the Motion.

/society.

Mr. A B Monk

Your Excellency, I rise to support this Motion. I think we do want to look into our whole immigration policy very thoroughly. It does seem to me that sometimes in the past, even though there was an Immigration Advisory Board, the policy seemed to be largely in the hands of one man who decided in a rather arbitrary manner who did and who didn't come in. I think we have got to adopt a more liberal policy if we are going to attract people here. I don't personally think that there is any fear of the desire to remain British being diluted by taking in immigrants. Very often the most newly converted are by far the most fervent supporters, and the immigrants are probably coming from some area where they have discovered what it's like not being British. The Hon Councillor Wallace made some reference to craftsmen trying to get into the Colony and that the Camp won't accept them and all the rest of it, saying that the Camp have spare houses. Well, of course, most of the spare houses in Camp are outside houses and though I as a Manager in the Camp have had a few names put before me of craftsmen wanting to come in I have occasionally, not very often, at San Carlos had a spare house, it has always been an outside house, and I wondered what I could do with a stone mason in an outside house twelve miles from the Settlement. Another one was a mechanical engineer, and I wondered what I would do with him out there as well, and since I had a mechanic I couldn't really do much about it. But that is really very often the situation in the Camp: though there are houses available, outside houses are really only suitable for shepherds. But I seriously think that we want to look into the whole immigration policy very seriously. I do think we want to take a more liberal view of it. I think in some cases our views tend to be far too rigid, and I think we need to move into the modern age a bit if we want people to come here.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to support the Motion and I would also like to extend my congratulations to the new Chairman of the Immigration Advisory Committee. I think that this Council should do everything it can to assist him and the Members of the Board to do what we think is best for the Colony. With regard to having an office in Britain, a chap there to help with recruitment presumably, I think this would be very difficult for people you want to recruit for the Camp, because it is difficult to try and sell a job in the Camp in the Falkland Islands to someone living in a large city in the United Kingdom. I certainly wouldn't like to try it, and the more successful ones I have heard of have been sold by persons who have lived in Camp and who will be living close to the person when he arrives. I think that chap holding that office would have a devil of a job trying to convince the client who wants to come that he is going to be happy, and indeed in convincing his employer that he has the right man. Although the idea may sound all right, I think it is far better if it is done the opposite way around, where if you want people for the Camp, as most Camp Managers are fortunate enough to go on leave every three or four years, there is nothing to stop them doing their own recruitment on the spot and coming back and living with the person they have recruited. It makes the job so much easier. (Not that I wish to condemn them in any way for this, I think it is an excellent arrangement). Apart from looking forward to our new immigration policy and Board of Management that is all I have to say. I wish to support the Motion.

/convince the client

Mr. W H Goss

In rising to support this Motion, Sir, I would not agree that the door should be thrown wide open, as has been suggested in the past. I think that there has got to be a very, very strict control on who comes in to a small community like this. If we had a recruitment officer in Britain it may serve a useful purpose, but I very much doubt it. We hear, mainly from the Secretariat, of people who have applied for work in the Colony; they are prepared virtually to work anywhere by the sound of them, but we never hear of any takers. We don't even hear anything about people making enquiries about them. It might be that there is a labour shortage here but that labour shortage is only on the projects that Government's got on. The number of men that farms would employ I think is very limited, otherwise they would take these men, or these people who are applying for work. They would take them if somebody else will pay their passage here, but they are not prepared to go to the expense of bringing the people in to work here and I think that, as it was said by the Hon Member for Stanley, the most sound way of recruiting people would be by the Managers themselves when they go on leave, and they go quite frequently. We have seen the recruitment that has been done by the Company, the London Office and all those people who are interviewing those men have had a lot of dealings with the Falklands in the past, they have had a lot of experience with people and farms, and it wasn't too successful. I beg to support the Motion.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I wish first of all to express the thanks of the Administration to Honourable Elected Members for bringing up this subject and also for making known their ideas on it. We have of course, as I said in answer to an earlier question, drafted new legislation but I don't myself see us getting much further ahead with it until we can get clear ideas of what the people of this country wish. I have here in fact a rather battered and rather disreputable looking copy of the draft which has been through many hands in the last few months, and it is now sitting on my desk waiting to see which way it is going next. And which way it goes next I think will depend entirely on what the people of the Falklands wish, which is only right and proper; I don't know what we already have with the Immigration Advisory Committee now that it is reconstituted, we have an advisory body, but I wonder if perhaps its constitution may be a little limited. It was born out of a suggestion of Executive Council, some two years ago I think, and its terms of reference have always seemed to me to be a little undefined. It has very open terms of reference and it has always been held that in addition to a Chairman it should consist of the Chairman and Secretary of the Sheep Owners' Association, and the Chairman and Secretary of the General Employees' Union, and it has been customary for the Immigration Officer also to sit on this Committee. I wonder if we are, as you all hope, going to receive some advice from it in the next few weeks or next few months about the formulation of policy, whether we ought not to consider augmenting the Committee with possibly two Councillors or something like that, to give us a wider range of interest represented on it. For myself I can see that almost everything one touches here comes back to that sort of problem, and I for one would be very grateful if we could get such a working group going and if we could then push ahead with this new legislation. Thank you, Sir.

/undefined.

Mr D S Evans

I haven't really got much, it's been discussed and that's what I wanted; I put up an idea but it didn't seem to get a lot of support. I'll leave that idea there because I think it's quite a good one - it will be a bit expensive; I must admit, but I am interested in increasing the population here generally; all the speakers seemed to think it just applied to Camp but I wasn't thinking of Camp in particular. I hope we can come to some clear understanding of exactly what we do want with regard to immigration. We still seem to be a bit woozy even after this discussion, and I think we have to make an effort to clear it up, talk to everybody concerned and make sure what we do want and then aim for it. At the moment we don't seem to be aiming in any particular direction. Thank you, Your Excellency.

The President

I think it has been a very useful debate and everybody seems to have support for the Motion.

Motion by the Hon D S Evans:

"That this House discusses the necessity for further changes in the Constitution."

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have brought up this Motion because during the last two or three Legislative Council meetings you, Sir, have asked us to think about the Constitution to see if there could be any changes which we thought could be useful. I feel rather guilty that we have done nothing about it so I put this Motion in but unfortunately I don't think you are going to like the end of it because I am rather happy with the Constitution as it stands. I think the main idea that has been brought up is that we should have one Council rather than two. I would be against that idea because I feel that there would be a loss in our democracy and it would lead to a more autocratic Government. If there was one Council, even if it was all Elected Members, I don't know how it would be constituted but with all elected members even, that would be the policy decision making body and once that policy has been decided what would be the use of a Legislative Council session, because all the work would have been done. A Legco session would then be a farce, and so would Standing Finance Committee, as all the decisions would have been taken by the same people; I think that these two bodies are useful because mainly it is a different set of people considering the facts, which gives a little bit of extra time to consider facts. We have seen once or twice quite recently that in Executive Council things have been rushed and people have second thoughts after Executive Council. Under the present system, if you had second thoughts, then you have another chance to thrash it out. I don't think that would happen with one Council, or not so easily. The other possibility that has been mentioned is that we have a full-time elected member - at least one full-time elected member - and he takes on more responsibility, say, for education. You would have something like an education minister, and he would spend his time in the Secretariat, working within the Secretariat, working within Government. The idea has got merit but I don't think you could recruit anybody for the job who is going to give up a job and take on four years in Council, and know at the end of that time that he hasn't got a job to go back to. Very few people would even stand for election under those circumstances and the few who did stand would probably be the wrong people. I can't see that I can really improve on our present system; the system has been evolved over a number of years and probably by a large number of Colonies. We have had time to iron out all the faults and this is a democratic system of which I am quite proud and I don't think I would like to see it change. I would very much like to see the procedure change in Council here. I would like to see all this bobbing up and down stopped. I don't know if you can streamline that, if you can, I would be very grateful. Perhaps they could amalgamate the first and second readings or something like that, or it might even be best to put them all together. I would certainly like to see something done about that. Thank you.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I rise to support the Motion because I think it is a healthy sign that any Council discuss the possibility of changing the Constitution so that more democracy prevails. Like the Mover of the Motion, I am not unhappy with the system we have, although like him I would like to see this bobbing up and down stopped. Now and then it gives a sadistic satisfaction to see the CS and the FS leap up and down but generally it rather detracts from the dignity of the proceedings...Another thing which I would investigate is the Elections Ordinance. I think that the division of Stanley into three is unnecessary and I think possibly that could be one change which we could investigate. I don't really feel that I have any more to say on the Constitution. I wish to support the Motion.

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, I too wish to support this Motion, but in general I am very happy with the general Constitution. It was after all the Constitution which had the consent of the majority of the people of the Islands when the Constitutional survey was carried out, about six or seven years ago. The two things I would like to see reviewed are the Elections Ordinance, where we have this rather complicated top heavy system of double elections; I think perhaps we ought to look into ways of having both the regional and area elections in the same go on the same day with simply two sets of ballot papers and candidates stand for one or the other. It would make the whole system a lot easier, and speed up the actual election itself, particularly for the Camp. I am not really too sure as to how we can streamline the procedure of the House without losing the democracy in the way that we handle our legislation. I wish to support the Motion.

/same go on the

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Hon Members, my thoughts were fragmented about this; I didn't really think I had anything to say at all but I find I have now. I agree with the Councillor for the Camp that the present election process is cumbersome in that we have two separate elections in order to get three people. If somehow or another we could get three Members from the Camp and three Members from Stanley without going through this very cumbersome process, I think that would be an improvement. It must cost extra money and I think people tend to lose interest a bit after the first one's over, and you also get the problem where the beggar gets a shilling for the Camp and what's he doing in my bed, stirring up trouble - you know the sort of thing. I think that ought to be looked into, to see if we can streamline that part.

Personally I think we need two separate Councils or two separate bodies. I sometimes wonder whether we couldn't do with one elected Council and then have two committees, a Management Committee and a Finance Committee, say with three members each, and merely hold plenary sessions twice a year to see that the beggars were doing their job properly or hadn't had their hands in the till or something. I have wondered if that might be a more streamlined way of doing it instead of having two separate Councils. But I think there is one very important point which must be looked into, and that is the fact that people who have - I am not quite sure of the exact wording - an office of profit under the Crown, are not eligible to stand as candidates. I think in this small place particularly, we are doing without the advice and knowledge of a large section of the community, a very knowledgeable large section of the community. I do think we should take a serious look at this point to see if we can't get that rule altered and allow at least some of these people, obviously not those in the very top brackets, but a large proportion of these people, to stand for election. I beg to support the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

Sir, the Motion reads that this House discusses the necessity of further changes in the Constitution. None of my constituents have come to me to say there was a necessity for any changes in the Constitution; if they had I would naturally support the Motion. I'm not sure now that I can. There is no harm in discussing any further changes in procedure with Council business, because although it may reflect on the Constitution, the Constitution was discussed very thoroughly with the general public, and this is what they wanted, and what they got. Admittedly it was seven years ago now, and there may be a change of thoughts in many fields, and perhaps there is a need for a discussion on further changes. But as regards a necessity for it, I'm not so sure, and I'm not too sure exactly what the Proposer means in the wording of his Motion. I would like to support it inasmuch as I feel there is no harm in discussing it, which I think is probably what he means, but whether there is a necessity for further changes, I would like to say no to that, because I have never heard of any. Thank you.

/Mr W H Goss

Mr W H Goss

Sir, in rising to speak to this Motion I would like to say there are some parts of the Constitution with which I didn't agree at the start, but I think we should have made our point then. It hasn't been seven years, it has only been two as far as I know since this Constitution was introduced; it may be that we started talking about it seven years ago, but the new Constitution has only been in force two years. We are half way through our term as Councillors and I think we are being a bit hasty in thinking about going to the expense of a change in the Constitution right now. The procedure in Council, the bobbing up and down, is pretty good, it stimulates the circulation, and I can't really see too much from the back. I'm afraid I could not support the Motion at this stage.

Mr D S Evans

Well, it has been discussed, which was the object, even if the word 'necessity' has been discussed more than anything else. I think the two points that have really come out of this are that it would be better to have one election rather than two if we can work it, and - I would agree again with the Councillor for East Falklands - if we could see a way to let officers serving under the Crown become eligible as candidates for election then we ought to; I agree that we are wasting too much talent. We have got very little and we can't afford to waste any.

The President

Well if I might, as I have been said to be the main inspirer with my remarks of the past, of this Motion, I would like to make quite clear that what I have been saying was should we talk about enlisting any changes in our Constitutional arrangements and procedures, and I think it has been a very useful debate. I have heard some Members get up and say they are quite content, that they don't want any change, and then promptly proceed to suggest changes! I think some of these suggestions are probably quite useful. What I think has basically come of it is that we are content with our basic Constitution but there are ways maybe whereby we can simplify the procedure on the question of elections and of our procedure in this House. So it has given us some food for thought and if anybody has any more concrete ideas would they please let us know. I take it that there is no feeling that there should be another working party such as I gather took place about seven years ago, and took up an awful lot of time; I think most are content with the Constitution as it stands, but there are ways in which we might simplify it and in which we can revise it.

Motion by the Hon T J D Miller:

"That the Government of the Falkland Islands requests Her Majesty's Government to declare a two hundred mile economic zone around the Falkland Islands, South Georgia and the Dependencies, at an early date."

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, I am not quite sure if I have used the correct terminology in the Motion, whether we should be referring to an economic or a maritime zone, but I am sure that Her Majesty's Government will know what it is that we mean. The Motion is really just a follow-up to a similar one passed by this House at the session last February. One cannot expect immediate action, but as we have a new Government in Britain I think we should again bring our requests and needs to their attention. We have almost daily evidence in Port William of the number of ships fishing in what should be our waters, and of the tonnages caught. The last freezer freighter in Port William left, I believe, with a cargo of some four and a half thousand tons of squid, valued at 1.8 million pounds. Almost the same as our Budget, and that was just one ship that we know about. Policing the zone is not that big a problem if the zone is accepted, as results in many countries have shown that maritime zones are largely self-controlled. Without the revenue from licensing vessels and catches in our waters we will not be able to survive as a viable economic community for much longer, and people will continue to think of emigration. Many of the vessels fishing around here would, I am sure, be interested in using us as a re-fuelling and stores depot once we get a decent jetty in the right place. We could become a place where the crews could get a bit of shore leave and, who knows, if our runway was lengthened, they could use Stanley as a centre for exchanging crews, instead of the expensive and time-consuming voyage to South America for this. Some of these thoughts may or may not be viable but one thing is certain: none of them will be viable, and neither shall we, unless we can get a maritime zone around these Islands in the near future.

/to a similar one

Mr W H Goss

I beg to support this Motion, Sir. It is not something new, it has been raised in this House and raised in Council on many occasions before, and I think it is paramount that we do something or get HMG to do something about the maritime zone and enable us to gain control of it. It will be a time before anything really materialises, before we get any real benefit. I don't think we'd be sunk if it didn't happen, but we have a lot to gain by gaining control over the seas. Every country in this world that I know of has a recognised area that she controls, and we have that right in my opinion.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too wish to support the Motion as I did in February, and I would like to reiterate what I said then, that I thought there would be a problem with the median line of the east coast of Patagonia and that of our extreme West Falkland. Apart from that, Sir, I would like to support the Motion.

Mr S B Wallace

I would just like to say that I strongly support the Motion, Sir.

Mr A B Monk

I beg to support the Motion.

Mr D S Evans

I beg to support the Motion also.

Financial Secretary

I would welcome the opportunity of supporting the Motion wholeheartedly and I see it as one of the ways in which we may obtain a considerable amount of revenue some time in the future. I would strongly urge that this matter be taken up as soon as possible as opportunity may present itself.

/The President

The President

There is no dissent, I take it, and we all support the Motion. Certainly we will press the point the first opportunity that we have.

Motion by the Hon D S Evans:

"That this House is dismayed at the lack of progress in erecting the new School Hostel. This development project is of the utmost importance and this House wishes to press upon Her Majesty's Government the urgent necessity of bringing the hostel into operation at the earliest possible moment."

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think both myself and the Hon Member for Stanley West had Questions in on this but I thought it would be better if we had a Motion. In fact there is not a lot you can say about it, there's a lot I could say about it not fit for the consumption. Last time I was at the Hostel was nine months ago; I went there the other day and I can't see any change, or very, very little change, appalling. I have been telling people that at least the foundations are there but they're not; apparently it is the footings which are there. You can just see them through a sea of mud. The hostel was supposed to be in operation, working, at Easter time. It is one of the most urgent things, or urgent development, we have got. Camp education, or education, is of prime importance in these Islands if we want to keep people here, especially Camp people, and we can't afford to wait too long. I put this Motion in so that we can press as hard as possible and show the British Government how strong we feel about this hostel. I don't know if it is a case of standing back and saying that it's never going to be put up by these people, wash our hands and start again; I don't think it is. It sounds very much as if things will begin to move but it depends how much longer we can go on listening to promises that don't seem to change anything. The hostel is vital, we all realise that, and we must impress on the British Government how strongly we feel.

Mr S B Wallace

I rise to second the Motion, Sir. I have been told that only children or fools laugh at partially finished constructions. The school hostel, however, does not make me feel like laughing, quite the opposite. It is a mess. There is no sign of progress and the project is months behind schedule. As a result many of the plans for improving our education and, just as important, making the best and most efficient use of our limited resources, have been delayed. We cannot use the capability we have to the best advantage until the hostel is complete. There is usually little point in recrimination but I do feel obliged to remark the fact that no one here is happy with the progress made by that construction company. I would imagine that Her Majesty's Government is none too pleased either, but I don't know. I did not have the opportunity to meet their Architectural Adviser, Mr Riley, when he visited, and therefore have little idea of how he views progress to date. I would have thought that any construction firm having the support and back-up of The Falkland Islands Company Ltd would do a quick job. An efficient construction company would certainly be an asset to the community.

/Instead we have this

Instead we have this miserable fiasco. Presumably Her Majesty's Government still has confidence in the contractors. I can only hope that it is not misplaced and that when Summer comes we shall see some progress and that when completed the Hostel is satisfactory.

Mr W H Goss

It gives me great pleasure, Your Excellency, to rise to support this Motion, and I should imagine the words that I was requested to swallow in our last Session have now been coughed back up for me by others. I strongly support the Motion.

Mr A B Monk

I beg to support the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

I have already spoken to the Motion of Thanks for Your Excellency's Address and I think I said my piece then.

Mr T J D Miller

Sir, I too expressed my views during the Motion of Thanks, and I strongly support this Motion. Parents of children in Camp are rapidly becoming very disillusioned with the idea and the concept of the School Hostel, and unless we can get this building completed, we will have a hard job to persuade parents of children to put their faith again in the concept of centralised education.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I feel that I should say at least a word; the Administration of course has great sympathy with the Motion. We must be very careful what we say about this in such public circumstances, since of course contractual obligations are involved, but I would simply like to say that we have had a visit of Mr Riley, the Architectural Adviser for the Ministry of Overseas Development and, even though he may not have had the chance of talking to Honourable Elected Members, he did have lengthy discussions with the managerial staff of the Company involved and of course with His Excellency, with the Director of Public Works, myself, and all other public servants involved. And we did very firmly get the impression that he went away in quite an optimistic frame of mind about what might be the future of the project. He certainly wasn't in any way satisfied with present progress, and of course nor are most people. Also about the same time we did have the arrival of Mr Laurie Browne, who is not Manager or even a Director of TCT, he is a Consultant to the Company, but I feel from discussions with him, and I know he has had more with His Excellency, that he has done his best to take a firm grip on the situation and realises only too well how difficult things are, and how far behind it's all got, and he has gone away, as Hon Members will be aware, for a few weeks, but will be back in the not too distant future, and he himself expressed great optimism about the possibility of pushing things ahead towards the possibility of an opening early in the New Year, which we hope very much will come to pass.

The President

We very much hope that this project will get moving, and I quite sympathise with everybody in Camp and everywhere about the deplorable slowness which has been implemented. I think it would be very unhappy if parents did lose faith in the concept of the centralised educational system which in the end, when the hostel is built - and it will get built - can only be of benefit to education in the Colony. Let us hope that it will come very soon.

The House then adjourned at 17:15 on 20th June 1979 and resumed at 10:05 on 21st June 1979.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

The Appropriation (1979/80) Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Mr President, Honourable Members

In introducing the Budget for 1979/80 I first must acknowledge the financial planning which Mr Harry Ritchie has been undertaking, both here and in London. Some progress has already been made and more will be coming before Councillors very shortly, within the next few months. Many of his recommendations, particularly those relating to revenue, are proposed in the 1979/80 Budget. I will be referring to these proposals later.

Since the presentation of last year's Budget there has been a considerable number of changes, both in Expenditure and Revenue, appearing in the Estimates relating to the current year 1978/79. In spite of these variations the target of a surplus of Revenue over Expenditure at the close of the 1978/79 year should be achieved. The revised estimated surplus is about £28,000. Tax from companies operating in the Colony proved to be over-estimated. The shortfall is largely attributable to the under-estimation of operating costs. The revised estimate of revenue in respect of Stanley rates is also lower; this arises through the recent amendment to the Stanley Rates Ordinance extending the period prior to the imposition of a penalty for late payment of rates. On the other hand, income from investments in 1978/79 is now forecast to be much higher than the original estimate. A significant increase in expenditure in 1978/79 appears in the Aviation Department Estimates. The new item of additional expenditure arose from the need urgently to purchase a new under-carriage for the Beaver aircraft. It was also necessary during the year to provide additional funds for the repayment of a company's tax over-collected, and to refund certain revenue in respect of stamps returned to the Crown Agents Stamp Bureau. Reserves supporting the Colony's ordinary revenue and expenditure are estimated to stand at £600,000 at the commencement of the new financial year, that is 1st July 1979.

The Ordinary Expenditure budgeted for 1979/80 is £2,120,000; Ordinary Revenue is estimated at £1,965,000. There is therefore an estimated deficit of £155,000.

Before going into the detailed Revenue/Expenditure proposals, I would like to remind you that, in the light of the very recent news that Government's oil supply will be issued at current rates for the next twelve months, adjustments will be made in the Select Committee to the 1979/80 Estimates of Expenditure, to show an improved amount in the above mentioned deficit of £155,000. Owing to the fact that the confirmation of the oil prices was only received a matter of days ago, it was impossible to adjust down the various Departments' fuel votes prior to issuing the Estimates to Honourable Members.

/the above mentioned deficit

Revenue proposals for 1979/80, which include, I reiterate, a number of the recommendations of Mr Ritchie, are as follows:

It is proposed that the residents rebate under the FIGAS air fares be reduced from 20p to 15p per mile for adults, and from 10p to 7½p per mile for children between the ages of one and seven.

The abolition of medical fees for residents is proposed from the date of introduction of the Employment Tax, the Bill for which is under consideration of this Council at the present time. Mr Ritchie in his Report has proposed up-dating minor fees and charges; these cannot be strictly classified as budgetary measures, but the opportunity is taken to include them for consideration. The fees include: grazing fees, Crown land rentals, driving licences and fees for vehicle driving tests, firearm licences, penguin-egg licences, wireless licences, re-diffusion fees, radio and advertising fees, library fees, printing charges, land line rentals, and registration fees. The rent of Government R/T sets is also to be reviewed.

It is proposed to increase postage on aerogrammes, small size, from 8p to 9p, large size, from 9p to 10p. Sale of water, which at present is sold at £1 per ton, is recommended to be increased to £2 per ton. An approximate increase at the rate of 20% in the rent of Government quarters is proposed. It is proposed that the electricity tariff be increased from 5.25p to 6.5p per unit. Stanley rates will be reviewed by Standing Finance Committee at their next meeting, in accordance with the Stanley Rates Ordinance.

It is proposed to increase harbour fees and impose an additional daily charge on vessels using the port for every 24 hours after the first 24 hours. The yield of revenue from this source is estimated to be £50,000. Mr Ritchie has drawn attention to the need to increase the charter fee for m.v. 'Forrest' from £48,000: a fee of £58,000 is to be proposed to the Ministry of Defence to cover the costs.

The contribution from the Dependencies in respect of services performed by the Colony on behalf of the Dependencies and the British Antarctic Territory now requires updating from £15,000 to £27,000.

Some minor increases on import duties are proposed: on beer it is proposed that the duty be increased from 33p to 40p per gallon - about ½p per can; the duty on cigarettes to be increased from £3.30 to £3.50 per lb - that is, less than 1p per packet; tobacco, to be increased from £2.80 to £3.10 - approximately an increase of 2p on a 50g tin.

Some £120,000 is forecast to accrue to the Colony in 1979/80 in respect of the issue of coins. It is expected that there will be two releases, the World Wildlife Issue scheduled for release in September; later in the year a Year of the Child Commemorative Coin should be due for release. Another important source of revenue is from philatelic sales. The following stamp issues are proposed in 1979/80: Sir Rowland

/Hill Commemorative

Hill Commemorative issue, Universal Postal Union issue, Dolphins and Porpoises issue, and Postmarks issue.

It is forecast that £80,000 will be available for transfer to Colony revenue from surplus Savings Bank income. The tax yield from companies is expected to amount to £300,000. This is based on the 1977/78 wool clip having been sold at an average price of 115.05 pence per kilo.

Commenting on the Personal Income Tax structure, Mr Ritchie states that there are some unsatisfactory features, which are namely, the tax threshold at which tax becomes payable being too low. He says where tax is payable on lower incomes the amount payable is usually in the high bracket. The provision for Earned Income Relief is generally considered to be out-moded and has been replaced by more generous Personal Allowances. The Wife Allowance is too low, with the result that the differential in tax paid by single persons and married men is too small. Tax paid on middle and higher incomes is on the low side. An Mr Ritchie goes on to say that there is no provision for separate assessments of husband and wife. He says since housing, particularly for the elderly, is a problem, it might assist if tax relief on interest paid on loans of up to, say, £10,000 for housing were granted. It is proposed to have legislation drawn up for the implementation of Mr Ritchie's tax reform in order that the proposals will take effect from assessments due for issue next January.

I give a brief summary of the proposals which will be put to Executive Council for referral to the Legislative Council meeting which will be held nearer the end of the calendar year:

Earned income relief will be abolished; there will be provision for separate assessment of husband and wife; interest on housing loans up to a maximum of £10,000 to be tax deductible; the personal allowance to be increased from £400 to £850 on the abolition of the Earned income relief; wife allowance to be increased to £500; the rates of tax to be changed as follows:

the first £500 of chargeable income at 20%
the next £500 at 25%
the following £500 at 30%
the next £500 at 35%;

the tax rate then goes into £1,000 at 40% and another £1,000 at 45%, the balance at 50%. The effect of these proposals is, I repeat, to raise the threshold at which tax becomes payable, reduce tax payable by persons in the lower income brackets as compared to the present structure, tax married persons relatively less heavily than single persons, and to get rid of the recent rather odd jump in present taxation from 27½% to 35%, making the progression even.

The proposed provisions for the separate assessment of husband and wife and for interest on housing loans to be tax deductible would of course reduce tax liability in certain cases. Full details of these proposals will be available when the tax reform bill is published.

Before referring to new items in the Government Expenditure programme for the forthcoming year, I draw attention to the framing of the Expenditure Estimates.

/Under each

Under each Government Department requiring transport, provision has been made for the hire of vehicles from the newly-formed Plant and Transport Authority. It is intended that PATA will take over all Government vehicles and plant on 1st July; vehicles will then be hired to the various Departments. The hire charge includes an element of depreciation and therefore in future Government expenditure will not show wide fluctuations from year to year in expenditure on vehicle replacements, as PATA will fund the depreciation element of hire fees for purchasing replacement vehicles.

The Estimates contain provision to cover inflation, both for imported goods and projected wage awards under the automatic salary and wages adjustment schemes.

In the FIGAS division of the Estimates, increased provision has been made for aircraft hull insurance cover. Provision is also made for a third engineer for FIGAS.

Higher expenditure is also forecast on the Stanley Airport, in particular spares required for communication aids and maintenance of telecommunications.

Under the Customs and Harbour section of the Estimates, provision is made for new beacons in the Port William area.

The Superintendent of Education has repeated last year's bid for a handyman for Stanley schools. The Education estimates also include provision for motor transport, principally for use at the School Hostel. Hon Members will note the drop in the provision under overseas scholarships vote; this arises from the recent decision taken by Councils to end the overseas scholarship scheme.

A variety of improvements are contemplated in the Medical Department: funds are included for improvements to the hospital kitchen and the food store. It is also proposed to re-stock the hospital with new linen. It is planned that the Public Works Department should undertake a number of improvements, including new floor covering for the wards. Consideration is also to be given to purchasing a portable X-ray machine which on occasions is necessary in the wards. The portable machine would also prove extremely useful during the period the new X-ray is being installed. Other notable increases in the Medical Dept vote arise from the decision reached for the Medical Dept to charter the FIGAS aircraft on occasions.

The Miscellaneous head of expenditure provides for delegates to be sent to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association (CPA) Conferences.

In addition to the major development projects, a wide variety of items are planned to be undertaken by the Public Works Department in 1979/80. The Public Works estimates contain substantial sums for improvements to the Stanley Junior and Senior Schools, the Police Station and other major buildings, including the FIDF Drill Hall and the Gymnasium. A sum of £10,000 has been inserted for the dismantling and crating of the sectional buildings from Darwin Boarding School to Stanley for erection at the Stanley School Hostel. It is also planned to make renovations to the Public Jetty and £8,000 are included for this project.

/Plans are also being

Plans are also being made to convert one of the large houses in Ross Road West into two semi-detached houses.

The maintenance cost of the Airport road for 1979/80 is estimated at £8,000.

The Estimate head Secretariat, Treasury and Central Store contains an up-grading of one storeman and, on the recommendation of the auditors, a proposal is made to recruit an assistant for training in the Income Tax office.

And finally under Ordinary Expenditure two important proposals are shown under Social Welfare. The first is an increase of 25% in Family Allowances, and the second is an increase in Non-contributory Old Age Pensions. It is proposed to increase the pension for a married couple from £11 to £12 per week, and for a single person from £8 to £9 per week. At this point I would like to draw the attention of Hon Members to the increase in pensions proposed under the Contributory scheme: for a married couple it is proposed to raise the weekly pension from £13.50 to £15.00 and in the case of a single person from £9 to £10. To finance the increase it is proposed that contributions to the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund be increased for employed persons from £1 to £1.20 per week, the employer contributing £1.80 instead of £1.50 per week, and self-employed persons, increase the contribution from £2.50 to £3.00 per week.

A considerable sum of money is to be allocated for development projects in 1979/80. Over one million pounds from United Kingdom Development Aid; over £200,000 from the Colony's Development Fund. In addition £270,000 has been borrowed from the Savings Bank (this latter source has only been used on one occasion previously for local investment). It is planned to spend £212,000 in 1979/80 on the Stanley to Darwin section of the Camp roads system, of which the United Kingdom Government will bear £167,000. The sum of £290,000 is provided for the 'Islander' aircraft and hangar. The British Government will contribute £260,000 and in the forthcoming financial year the Colony will spend £30,000 for the hangar erecting costs and ground work.

The sum of £250,000 of UK Aid has been inserted for the School Hostel, and £268,000 for the causeway and berth for off-loading oil products. Colony funds amounting to £23,484 are allocated to the Julian Fitter tourism venture. Local expenses relating to Technical Assistance are estimated at £26,000, with the Grasslands Trials Unit having the largest share of this sum. Also from Colony funds, an allocation of £50,000 is made for loans. UK aid to the order of £32,500 is provided for X-ray equipment, and £5,000 from local funds for its installation and dark-room equipment. An allocation of local funds amounting to £17,000 is included for rehabilitation of Stanley roads.

The loans to be raised from the Savings Bank are for the purchase of Green Patch farm, and £100,000 for housing in Stanley. A sum of £12,000 is also included under Development for hospital theatre equipment. This is the first allocation of aid that the Colony will be receiving from the European Development Fund.

/Turning now to the Turning now to the economic situation and the outlook, we heard yesterday about some of the difficulties that the Colony is likely to face some time in the future. We also have difficulties at present, but we are managing to overcome these with what was described as "unreliable revenue". Well, we can look at it in this way, there is so much unreliable revenue - for instance, we have no control over the price of wool. We have lived on that for a very long time now. We have also lived on stamps for a considerable time; it has been known as our second industry for the last probably fifty or sixty years. Coins are a new form of revenue; but at the same time, when we do come into a difficult period, I don't think there is any harm, so long as we bear in mind that we are using revenue which we cannot expect to get in every year. We are getting more revenue from tourism now: the amount is not large but it is important, and it is growing. We have in mind bringing a legislation before this Council later in the year to impose withholding tax. First it is necessary to negotiate with the United Kingdom Government a new tax treaty; this will take some time, we have always been advised that it takes up to a year. We have now notified the British Government that we wish to re-negotiate our tax treaty, and all efforts will be put on this item by Mr Ritchie and the Treasury here in Stanley to ensure that it comes in at the earliest possible date. We may face some problems before getting it in but we will make every endeavour to have legislation ready for Councils in the shortest possible time.

I would also like to refer to the spin-off that we are getting from the development projects; this is becoming very important to us. In fact, we would probably find it difficult, for instance, if the road project did not continue. It is most important, even for our recurrent revenue, that we continue with such projects as the road. And we can look upon the road also to produce a spin-off after it has been constructed. I know there are many who will argue, what spin-off? It is difficult to see until the time comes. I feel certain that we will be able to reduce our internal transport costs.

The one big area to which we all look forward is fishing, and I know that there is not much that we can do here at present about that, but we can only be ready for it if and when it comes.

It was also said yesterday that we do not have control over our finances. That is quite true. Inflation is imported, we must pay for our machinery from the United Kingdom, we must also pay for our food from the United Kingdom, and so forth and so on. But there are many things which we can do and everybody in this Colony can contribute - for instance, the way in which machinery is handled. Large amounts of money are spent on machinery if it is not handled properly; admittedly this will add to the expense.

I think it is up to every man, woman and child now to do what we can for the country. You, Sir, have already set the lead in your efforts to produce a far better fuel price for the last twelve months.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill:

On the Motion being passed, the Bill was read a first time. Hon Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr S B Wallace.

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would first like to congratulate the Hon the Financial Secretary and his staff on the production of the Estimates. They do not however make very pleasant reading. I would like to touch on one or two of the small matters in the Estimates.

It is good to see that contained in the Estimates now are provision for repairs and maintenance to the Airport road, and funds for the repair of Stanley roads. I was also pleased by the provision for the renewal and maintenance of our plant and machinery. For too long our vehicles fleet has simply run into the ground with no provision made at all for maintenance. In passing, I would like to know how the hire charge for the vehicles is calculated; it does seem rather steep.

Generally now, Hon Members have already commented on our precarious financial position. I can add little to what has already been said. I would say, though, that we must, when we go into Select Committee, avoid falling into the trap of taking tax proposals - or any other proposals - on their own, in isolation. We have before us the beginning of a comprehensive review of the financial structure. If changes are made, as possibly they will be, they must not be made without regard to their effect on the whole structure. We may well destroy any possibility of being able to get to grips with our financial problems.

A point that I would like to make is that in my opinion there is more to representing people than to oppose every increase in charges which would affect that section of the community. Certainly there are services which we should subsidise from General Revenue, but we must carefully consider in the light of our financial position, if the community, the whole community, can afford to subsidise the services to the extent which we have in the past or, in fact, to any extent at all.

Finally, I would like to echo the sentiments of the Hon the Financial Secretary regarding the need for every person here to help build for the future. There is, in my view, not enough public pressure on those involved in the major projects to do the best they can. I have even heard people boast about fiascos in which they have been involved on these major projects. Destruction of large pieces of equipment is regarded by certain members of the community as a huge joke. That attitude will not get us anywhere.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to thank the Hon the Financial Secretary for his Budget speech and also for his efforts to paint a bright picture for our future. I think we have achieved a balance now, the Hon Member for East Falklands has rightly pointed out the frailty of our situation. It is fragile, but on the other hand it doesn't have to be gloomy, as the Hon the Financial Secretary was trying to point out. We have got to watch things, we have got to be careful. Development costs money, we all knew that when we started development. We can't develop without incurring quite a lot of expense. So we must have all been ready to accept the fact that we could end up with a deficit at some time or another. What we have to do is carefully to watch for any opportunity to increase revenue, not to waste the revenue we've got. I would like to echo the remarks of the Hon Member for Stanley West about that. One particular example comes to everybody's mind, I think, where the whole project has been put back two or three months because of one person's carelessness, and we can't afford that kind of thing. I think if we are going to develop then we have got to work together. We haven't got to and hinder it or think it's funny that things aren't going right. It's a matter of everybody pulling their weight, which I think several Members of Council have tried to say.

Price increases are inevitable so this kind of Budget is no surprise to anyone. I don't really want to kick over it except for two things: air fares: I wouldn't be doing my job as representative for West Falklands unless I say something about the proposed increases in air fares. The way it's been proposed is that it virtually means an increase in mileage rate, or a drop in the rebate on mileage rate, which will affect the West Falklands far more than the East Falklands. I would like to give an example: Stanley to Darwin - the air fare there for an adult will go up by £2.15, 21%, whereas from Stanley to Port Stephens the air fare will go up by £5.75, which is a 65% increase. So if you have got a family travelling it's increased tremendously - well over a hundred pounds for the family to go to Stanley and back again, which makes things harder on the West. I would much prefer to see an overall surcharge on the boarding fee or something like that, rather than a mileage increase.

Another point concerns electricity rates. I think we must consider, or carefully look into the thought, of having a two tier system, whereby you've got one rate for businesses and one rate for domestic consumption. I don't know if we have the spare capacity to encourage a heavier domestic consumption, but I think we must look into it carefully to see if this is a feasible possibility.

I don't think I have any comments on any other things; we will sort it all out when we get to Select Committee.

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to thank the Hon the Financial Secretary for his excellent presentation of the Budget for the forthcoming year. Nobody these days can really expect not to have increases with inflation; one has to have increases if one is going to try and pay one's way. I am pleased to hear that the original proposed deficit of £155,000 is now likely to come down a bit, in view of the reduction in the oil price increase for the Falklands, for which I know all of us have you to thank, Sir, for largely negotiating it on our behalf.

One or two things do stick out a bit; I would like to echo the remarks of the Member for West Falklands on the FIGAS air fares. Those of us in Camp I think would accept reluctantly that air fares have to go up but I would be against the proposed method of increase and I would favour a surcharge, not necessarily just on the boarding fee, but a surcharge on the cost per passage. The present proposal would mean that if a husband and wife and a family of two kids living at Fox Bay came into Stanley for a holiday, it would cost them £112 return, which is a lot of money; and they have no other way of travelling other than on the aircraft; whereas those of us living on the East, we have at least got an alternative if we own a vehicle. I would certainly prefer to see a percentage increase overall, rather than this proposed system which hits particularly at those who have no alternative but to use the air service. We know the air service is expensive to run, and we must try to find ways of reducing the subsidy element in it, but I think we must realise that certain members of the community have to rely on the air service; they have no alternative.

I notice in the Estimates there is a sum of £12,000 for oil-fired central heating; I would think that is one figure which needs careful examination, in view of the fact that we know oil is not going to get any cheaper in the future, and, as we heard yesterday, we want to think a lot more about using our natural resources.

Perhaps there are ways we can streamline the Civil Service a bit. We seem to be hearing continually of posts being advertised here and there in the Civil Service. Of course Government needs more staff if we are going to develop and expand, but perhaps, under close scrutiny, one or two departments may be a little bit top heavy, I don't know. I look forward to going into some of these details in Select Committee.

I would like to comment on the increase in rents of the Government R/T sets. I think it's fair enough for the new R/T sets which are giving improved service, but some of the old ones are getting a little bit past it; I don't really know if we could expect somebody who has a 'black box' and can only get through to Stanley on odd occasions, to have to pay more for the service. However, we shall see in Select Committee.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have not got an awful lot to say about the Budget at this time, except to congratulate the Financial Secretary for his very clear explanation of it all, and I would like to be associated with his remarks about us all caring more for the job we are doing. I think that applies to industry as well, because obviously if people are careless with industrial machinery used by industry it means that less tax finally comes to Government, because we've got to buy something else to replace it.

It is slightly misleading to say we have a little list here of items of substantial increases in Expenditure, and it is a little misleading to say that the charter of the aircraft by the Medical Department is an item of substantial increase in expenditure; it is also a substantial increase in revenue on the other side, and the same goes for increased contributions to the air service by the Post Office. I think this is a little misleading, to put it in as an increase in expenditure, because there must be a balancing increase in revenue from the other side.

I must say I do not agree with the reference that the £80,000 extracted from the Savings Bank is merely a payment to shareholders. The suggestion is that the general public are the shareholders in the Government Savings Bank, and so they are in a way, but not of course when one says that you get a return; all banks pay a return to their shareholders but other banks have a lot more activities and provide a lot more facilities and more than risk facilities. Shareholders establishing banks providing these facilities, putting their money into it, are entitled to some return; but our bank unfortunately only provides very limited facilities, although I think I am right in saying that we are going to have current account facilities and all this sort of thing shortly.

I would like to talk briefly about taxation. I must say the personal income tax schedule worries me considerably. I can't see much alternative to it but it amounts, in fact, to this: that people virtually up to a figure of about £10,000 per annum are paying more tax here than they are in the UK in income tax, and I think it particularly affects those in the five, six, seven, eight thousand pound bracket and the people in those tax brackets are the sort of people, like professional people, whom we have to attract from abroad into our Administration. I just wonder quite how attractive it will be if they know they are going to be taxed more heavily out here than they were from where they come. I know in the United Kingdom of course they have a large VAT tax indeed now - I think it is 14% or something like that; but of course in the case of VAT, you don't necessarily have to purchase that lawn-mower which has £20 VAT added to it, or something like that. You do have a choice. You have no choice whatsoever as far as income tax is concerned. I think 15% VAT tax, according to my arithmetic, which I admit is a bit shaky, roughly can be equated to a 7½% income tax on ordinary tax-payers' level of income and, presuming an average sort of expenditure pattern. So that even with their large VAT tax the average tax-payer in the United Kingdom in that sort of income bracket is better off than they are here.

I am very unhappy that the company tax proposals have been shelved for a while and not brought forward; by making minor adjustments in the proposed scale we could have overcome objections from out here, and it is a pity that objections from elsewhere seem to have stalled the thing. I hope the Financial Secretary, in conjunction with Mr Ritchie and Spain Brothers and the tax people in the UK, will be able to overcome these objections, and that we can get this company tax proposal in, because it should be beneficial to everybody. I was disappointed that we haven't got withholding tax in now, and I would have thought that if we took the step of insisting that all companies which operated out here were registered here, we would not have to worry too much about a double taxation agreement insofar as that tax is concerned. Perhaps I am mistaken but that is the way I look at it. I can't see that the withholding tax is what we have to worry about in double taxation agreements when we are talking about straight transfers of surplus cash from here, company profits and so forth from here being invested elsewhere; I can't see why we have to worry about whether we have got a double taxation agreement or not for that sort of thing.

The Employment Tax I think is possibly a slightly contentious issue but quite obviously we are going to pass some sort of tax to yield that sort of money, so I suppose the estimate in that respect can be accepted.

Concerning the £100,000 for housing loans, I wonder if we might not be better to try to form a building society, as it were, and finance from there in the initial stages of the loan, rather than make straight loans, but that is something we can talk about also. However, I would like to congratulate the Hon the Financial Secretary on the very great deal of work he has done on our behalf.

/straight loans

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to congratulate the Financial Secretary on his Budget. It is much more pleasant than I expected, to be quite honest, and I am not going to talk for very long - just mention a few odd pet subjects.

I am delighted to hear the review on the Old Age Pensions, and I think that will go down very well indeed. The electricity tariff is a contentious issue with me, and not because my workshop is totally propelled by electricity either, mainly because of the domestic issue. On several occasions last winter I went into various people's houses and the elderly couples were literally sitting in the dark, listening to the radio, because they felt that the tariff was a bit high. If we jump it up again, with all these thousands of figures we have been presented to prove that we have to do it, it could cause a lot of dismay to a lot of people, and I would concur with my friend from West Falklands that, on the domestic side, this dismay is genuine. Electricity is something which people will use more of if the price has not risen, thus taking a risk - which the Administration never seems to be prepared to do. Thus it would yield equally as much cash as it would if the tariff is put up, because with the economy view of switching off the electricity instead of switching it on, the metre will not carry on spinning and we will not carry on getting our revenue. Admittedly it is a risk, but all those figures do not convince me that we will not get the money; but if we are going to put it up another penny I don't mind personally, but I think there are a lot of people who will object to it and it might cause a lot of dismay. We should consider this very carefully in Select Committee before we decide what we are going to do with it. If we don't take a risk for one year we are never going to know; if we are not prepared to take the risk then I want it publicly known that I am prepared to take it.

I am delighted, too, that the purchase is proposed of a portable X-ray unit until our modern X-ray unit gets under way. I think that for the serious patients and the ones who bring in quite a bit of revenue to us by unfortunate accidents at sea, this X-ray unit is a very valuable asset to the Senior Medical Officer.

It delighted me that the Public Jetty was going to be repaired. I remember about ten years ago that was going to be done, and a few pieces of flat iron have been nailed on the top and a new hand-rail was put on the steps, but a major operation on the jetty is vital.

I am very hopeful about our fishing and I think that if we get this economic zone worked out first, the revenue from fishing should come very shortly after.

The Financial Secretary touched on machinery and its handling. I would wholeheartedly agree with him that the handling of machinery is vital to any economy. Fortunately the machinery I have bites back at you if you handle it badly, and you just can't afford to do that.

/But the misuse of

But the misuse of vehicles can cause a terrific amount of unnecessary expenditure and to a certain extent a danger to the public. I think anybody handling any Government vehicle should treat it as his own because, after all, he did pay for it. I think all of us should work for our Islands; they're ours, let's keep them that way. What is public expenditure I feel is everybody's expenditure.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, I rise to congratulate the Financial Secretary on his excellent speech. It's gloomy as we all know, but we have had our backs to the wall before and we were able to get away from it, and I think we will again this time. It is most encouraging that some people are now trying to think along the lines that I wanted to think some time ago, regarding the misuse and abuse of Government and public machinery. That is one of the things which is going to be very costly to the Colony and, as the point was rightly made by the Financial Secretary, it is up to everybody to put their shoulders to the wheel and go forward, and not drag our feet behind. I think there has been a lot of foot-dragging. I am a very coarse speaker, when I see something I am not afraid to speak about it, but a lot are; they will run away from it and leave it to. That is the wrong attitude; if we see something wrong we have got to face the issue.

Financial Secretary

Sir, I have one or two replies which I am able to give to Hon Members at the moment, but I would like first of all to mention the work behind the scenes that is done in preparing the Estimates; it is not only in the Treasury but by all Heads of Departments. Heads of Departments this year have taken note particularly of the Colony's financial position and I think they should be congratulated for making their bids for expenditure. No doubt all the Heads of Departments will be seen by the Committee, and so far I have been quite impressed by the presentation of their estimates to me. I would also like to pass on my thanks to the Treasury staff, who have had to bear the bulk of the work this year, and I must say that I think we have some very promising young officers in the Service.

The hire charge to which the Hon Member for Stanley West referred, just to quote one or two of the popular vehicles: the hire charge by PATA for a Landrover - short-wheel-base - is 85p per hour, and for a long-wheel-base 90p, which works out to £6.50 for a short-wheel-or £7 for a long-wheel-base per day; that includes depreciation, maintenance and fuel.

Regarding the oil-fired central heating to which one Hon Member referred, I feel that this is one item which is a carry-over from last year's Estimates. However, you will need to examine it carefully in Select Committee.

I still disagree entirely with the Hon Elected Member for East Falklands on his view on the Savings Bank; however, we will continue the argument in another place. Referring to bank facilities, cheque books have now been ordered through the Crown Agents and they are due for delivery in early July; we would hope that they will be in the Colony a short time after that.

/due for delivery

On the matter of the delay of company tax proposals, it is not now possible to introduce them and to give them retroactive effect. We have been advised by our income tax agents in London that this could create some problems, and, too, it would be wrong to impose them at this stage. However, now we have six months before us before the next tax year to work out any problems. A double taxation treaty is necessary before we can impose withholding tax. It is a very technical subject and I will discuss this further with the Hon Member for East Falklands during the course of the meetings. The question of registration of companies here in the Falklands will not make any difference to their tax position, as the companies are taxed where they are controlled, not where they are registered. I therefore now look forward to the meeting of the Select Committee.

The Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the whole House, under the Chairmanship of the Hon the Chief Secretary.

Council adjourned, and resumed at 14.43 hours on 25th June, 1979.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE APPROPRIATION (1979/80) BILL 1979

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, as Chief Secretary and under the Standing Orders of this House, I find myself in the position of Chairman of the Select Committee on the Appropriation Bill. However, as is very well known, the Chief Secretary on such an occasion only has very minor duties - I think the only decisions I made were with regard to what time we met and what time we had coffee and that sort of thing! Traditionally, Sir, the Financial Secretary reports the actual proceedings of this Committee and with respect, Sir, may I ask if my Honourable Colleague may be allowed to do that.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, the Committee appointed by you considered the Estimates in detail and the Revenue and Expenditure proposals for the forthcoming year 1979/80. The deficit which was forecast amounted to £155,000, has now resulted in a much lower deficit, reduced to £27,133. This has been brought about by the improved position regarding oil prices, which is the major item affecting the reduction in the deficit.

There were certain items in the Estimates deferred because of the limitations in the ability of our Works Department to cope with these jobs, because of manpower difficulties. Council therefore considered the items in the order in which they are important to the Colony.

Referring to items of Revenue, the majority were accepted, but some consideration was given to air fares in particular and, although we intend to raise virtually the same amount from air fares, it has been decided that the more equitable method, particularly for those in the distant parts of the Colony, would be to add a 20% surcharge to every account. So therefore in future FIGAS air fares will be subject to a 20% surcharge for residents.

We are finding it difficult to impose an increase on the rental of R/T sets, in particular on the very small farms with only perhaps one or two thousand sheep. It is felt that an economic charge on such a small unit would be detrimental to the sheep farmer; therefore this matter is to be referred to Standing Finance Committee, to be taken at a further meeting, after consideration has been given to this matter by the Administration.

The following amendments have been made to the Estimates in Select Committee:

Expenditure Estimates, under

Head I - The Governor

Item 2. Heat, Light & Power -
Decrease from £15,200 to £10,500

Increase from £3,000 to £7,700

Head XVI - Secretariat, Treasury & Central Store

Item 1. Personal Emoluments, Development Officer -
Decrease from £4,707 to £10

I might add at this point that the difficulty in recruiting a Development Officer has been taken into consideration and it is unlikely that one will be recruited in the very near future. The policy still remains, however, that all Councillors agree that a Development Officer should be recruited when possible.

Private Secretary to Development Officer -
To be deleted.

Item 2. Stationery & Office Requisites -
Decrease from £6,922 to £6,622

Item 10. Heat, Light & Power -
Decrease from £13,250 to £9,350

/At the Committee stage,

At the Committee stage, clause 1 of the Bill was agreed and consideration of clause 2 was deferred until after the Schedule had been considered. The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed.

The Hon the Financial Secretary, seconded by the Hon the Chief Secretary, moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill, subject to the following amendments -

Head I - The Governor

Delete £44,573
Insert £37,773

Head II - Agriculture

Delete £14,596
Insert £14,369

It was agreed that the Schedule as amended should stand part of the Bill and that clause 2 should also stand part of the Bill subject to the following amendment -

That the words and figures "£3,617,232" be deleted and "£3,484,728" be substituted therefor.

Council resumed.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, following the decisions taken in the Select Committee, it is necessary to pass a Resolution of this Council for increasing the various import duties, namely: the import duty on beer to be increased from 33p to 40p per gallon, which is about .525p per can; the duty on cigarettes to be increased from £3.30 to £3.50 per lb; and the duty on tobacco to be increased from £2.80 to £3.10 per lb, which, for local interest, will mean that the duty on a 50g tin will be increased by possibly 2p.

It is necessary to lay on the Table a Certificate of Urgency for this Resolution and I lay this Certificate on the Table now. I therefore beg to move the following Resolution -

BE IT RESOLVED in exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance that paragraph 2 of the Customs Ordinance be amended a) in item 1 by deleting "33p" and substituting the following -

"40p" ;

b) in item 5 (b) by deleting "£3.30" and substituting the following -

"£3.50"; and

/ c) in item 5 (c)

c) in item 5 (c) by deleting "£2.20" and substituting the following -

"£3.10".

The Hon the Chief Secretary seconded the Motion which was carried with immediate effect.

MOTION

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, during the course of the Select Committee we also considered the question of housing in the Colony, and the Members realise the importance of this matter and its urgency. As the first step it is necessary to obtain finance for extending the housing programme in Stanley. After careful consideration it was thought that we should go ahead and obtain funds on loan terms from the Government Savings Bank, for the erection of five new houses in Stanley.

Some decisions have to be made as yet on the type of housing and this will be undertaken at the earliest opportunity. In order to raise this amount it is necessary to pass a Resolution of this House and I now beg to move the following Resolution -

This Resolution may be cited as the Housing Loan Resolution 1979.

BE IT RESOLVED in exercise of the powers conferred by section 3 of the Loans Ordinance 1979 that the Financial Secretary be authorised to raise an internal loan for the purpose of purchasing and erecting dwelling houses not exceeding in total £100,000.

The Hon the Chief Secretary seconded the Motion and the Resolution was adopted.

ORDERS OF THE DAY BILLS

Supplementary Appropriation (1977/78) Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this is the annual task that we have to do to legalise expenditure in excess of the amount provided in the Appropriations Bill. All the items appearing in the Bill have been approved by the Standing Finance Committee. The total is £1,514,811, the majority of which is related to the permanent airfield and the transfer from our Ordinary Reserves to the Development Fund, all undertaken in 1977/78. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Bill passed through all its stages without debate or amendment.

/Report of the Select Committee

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL 1979

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I rise to report the proceedings of the Select Committee on the Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 1979. The Select Committee on this subject sat yesterday, Sir, and discussed the Amendment Bill.

The Financial Secretary made it clear that we are having delays about this matter, Sir. The crux of the matter is that experts and advisers in the United Kingdom are not prepared to advise us firmly to proceed with this Bill at this stage. There are, I think, major questions to be resolved about the retroactive effect of the Bill and other matters, on which our adviser, Mr Ritchie, and Spain Brothers, are in consultation.

Consequently it was necessary to make some decision as to what exactly we do with the Bill now and if you will permit it, Sir, my Honourable colleague the Financial Secretary I believe is prepared to speak further on this matter.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, there are certain difficulties relating to this Bill which we had hoped would come into effect from 1st January 1979. We are advised that this would be a wrong step. Our advisers in London state that there should be no retroactive effect to this Ordinance.

There are also the points which were raised in the previous meeting of this Council, whereby the rates were regarded as inequitable, and it is considered that we should now study a fresh Bill, taking into account the points raised in the Interim Report of the Select Committee, which the previous Chief Secretary reported to you, Sir, after the first meeting of the Select Committee.

The other points, on which there have been certain representations made, are being taken up, and the difficulties will be established and reported back to this Council. We will have legislation ready for the next Meeting, towards the end of this year, and it can then be introduced with effect from the 1980 year of assessment. Therefore I beg to move that the Bill be withdrawn for replacement by a fresh Bill.

The motion was seconded by the Hon the Chief Secretary and the Bill was withdrawn.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE EMPLOYMENT TAX BILL 1979

Chief Secretary

Sir, with the permission of Your Excellency, I would now like to report on the proceedings of the Select Committee on the Employment Tax Bill. The previous deliberations of this Committee under the Chairmanship of my predecessor, resulted in certain proposals which were outlined in an Interim Report, and the Committee then adjourned until the present Meeting of the Legislative Council.

/In the ensuing interval

In the ensuing interval there has been time for further thought and discussion, and indeed we are all grateful for views which have been made known to Hon Members and which have enabled us to give full and proper consideration to this Bill.

We met again yesterday in Select Committee and have completed the process. We first of all agreed, as recommended in the Interim Report, that a more appropriate title might be found for the Bill. It was felt by some Hon Members and their constituents that the title might relate more closely to the purpose for which the money is being sought, and we therefore felt that it should make some reference to medical charges, or at least some reference to medical services. There were also some who felt that it might be more palatable if the measure were referred to as a levy rather than a tax. Consequently, Sir, we have amended the proposed title of the Ordinance to The Medical Services Levy Ordinance 1979.

Another point raised in the Interim Report was the question of dividend income being exempted from this levy, and, Members being generally in favour of such an exemption, the text of the Bill has been amended accordingly.

Similarly, the exemption of annuities previously proposed was agreed, and this has been dealt with in the List of Exemptions in section 7 of the new Bill. These amendments having been made as a result of the interim recommendations, the Committee then discussed the question of modifying the Bill without of course changing its original objects and intentions, in order to simplify the book-keeping and other clerical and administrative requirements involved in the collection of the levy.

This matter, of course, had been the subject of representations previously made to some Hon Members, and indeed all Members agreed on the desirability of making whatever measures were introduced as simple as possible to operate. To this end, the Select Committee agreed to adopt proposals to modify the Bill which they considered would lighten these burdens, while not in any way departing from the original objects and intentions of the measure.

The result of these amendments may be summarised in general terms as: provision for the levy to be raised by deduction by employers at the time of payment of 1% of employees' earnings, payment by employers of $1\frac{1}{2}\%$ of such earnings - that is to say, a total of $2\frac{1}{2}\%$ of total wage costs, - which employers will remit to the Treasury annually at an agreed date, and further payment by self-employed contributors of $1\frac{1}{2}\%$ of their net profit before tax. None of these contributions, it was felt, should be income-tax deductible.

Sections 5 and 6 of the Bill were therefore amended in accordance with these provisions. Also, in these circumstances, it was no longer considered necessary to specify a ceiling annual figure, as earnings would have to be unrealistically high to reach the figures proposed in the original Bill. That part of the original section 6 was therefore deleted.

Perhaps, Sir, because this is the crucial point of this piece of legislation, I ought to repeat that the general effect of the amendments made in Select Committee under sections 5 and 6 will be that the employer will pay $1\frac{1}{2}\%$ of the employee's gross emoluments; the employee will pay 1% on his gross emoluments, the self-employed will pay $1\frac{1}{2}\%$ on net profits before tax, and, as I have already mentioned, none of these levies will be income tax deductible, and this provision will be the subject of an amendment to the Income Tax Ordinance in due course, Sir.

/made in

There were a few other very minor amendments to the wording and numbering of the remaining sections of the Bill. However, in view of the importance of the amendments I have already mentioned, we thought it preferable to have the Bill re-printed (not exactly re-printed according to the traditions and standards of printing in this Colony, I am afraid, Sir, but re-typed and re-duplicated) and it is this Bill which is now before us and which I commend to Your Excellency and to Hon Members for consideration in Committee of the whole House.

Finally, Sir, I think I should remind Hon Members - because it is sometimes only too easy when considering points of amending detail to lose sight of the main objectives - that the main purpose in introducing this Bill was to enable us to abolish medical charges to residents, and that it is in fact the intention to discontinue such charges with effect from 1st July this year if the Bill, in its present form, becomes law.

The Bill then proceeded through all its remaining stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

Road Traffic (Amendment) Bill 1979

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill seeks to give a Police Officer power to arrest without Warrant any person driving or attempting to drive a motor vehicle whilst under the influence of drink or drug.

The Bill has, I am sure, been considered by all Hon Members. The law as it stands at the moment is, in many people's opinion, a bad law. It is difficult, if not impossible, to prevent a person suspected of driving under these conditions, proceeding, and this of course puts Police Officers who may have reason to suspect that such an offence is being committed, or about to be committed, in a very difficult position, lays them open to very severe criticism if such a person should drive away a vehicle and an accident, or perhaps injury, should result. Consequently, Sir, this amending Bill has been prepared.

I should perhaps bring to the attention of Hon Members, as indeed was done in the Memorandum circulated with the Bill, the fact that a procedure has been agreed and would be introduced should the Bill become law, whereby a person arrested under these circumstances would have the right to require and demand a medical examination. The procedure was laid down in the Memorandum circulated to Members and I don't think I need to go into it again at this stage, but I thought it was worthwhile reminding Hon Members that this would be the case, Sir. I beg to move the first reading of this Bill.

On Motion passed and seconded, the Bill was read a first time.

/Hon Members then spoke

Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Hon Members, I had reservations about this Bill. I had visions of all of a sudden being arrested after a couple of beers one evening, but my reservations are outweighed by the fact that we can't allow people to drive around drunk, and if the law as it stands at present is bad, then we must change it. If we don't, sooner or later there is going to be an accident and if, as things stand, the Police are unable to deal with drunken driving, then I think we have a responsibility and I support this Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, I too support this Bill but I would like to point out to Hon Members the problems that are involved in executing this Bill, because it is difficult for a policeman - or for any person for that matter - to decide whether a driver is or is not under the influence of alcohol or, in this instance it says 'drink', so it doesn't have to be alcohol presumably, but I presume it has been gone through very thoroughly with the medical authorities and with the Chief Police Officer, who have agreed to contact each other when some individual is arrested, without causing that person too much stress or undue strain. As the Chief Secretary so aptly pointed out, I think this is a good idea, because there are some people who would prefer to have a medical examination before they are formally arrested; it will give the Police Department something to go ahead with. I do hope, though, that this Bill will be imposed on all those who are suspected of this offence, but I do feel sorry for the policeman in many respects, because I think they are going to have quite a difficult job, but it will at least caution people. If somebody who is seriously under the influence of drink has a serious accident and there is damage done to property or to individuals, which is even worse, then someone has to carry the can. Sir, with those points, I would like to support the Bill.

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Hon Members, I am in rather a quandary here as unfortunately I haven't given sufficient attention to this Bill, but it seems fairly clear to me. Instinctively I am against the Bill, as I feel it restricts people's liberty and it could be open to abuse. I was under the impression that the problem here was no worse than it has ever been, but talking to Hon Members it would appear that we have got quite a problem here. I should have gone to see the Chief of Police and talked to him about it and this I haven't done. I think I would like to abstain from voting here because I just have not given enough thought to this Bill; I didn't realise its implications.

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, Hon Members, I rise to support this Bill and I would like to echo the comments made by various other Hon Members - the fact that this Bill could possibly be open to abuse. I remember we went into quite some discussion on this point when the Bill was considered in Executive Council, but the fact is that on the whole

/there is a need for there is a need for this legislation, and I think we have just got to accept the fact that we need it, and trust our Police Officers to carry it out correctly. I wish to support the Motion.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Hon Members, in rising to support the Bill I have very little to say other than that if there are reservations regarding the legality of it or of it being open to abuse, the only thing we can do is try it and see. If it is abused then there is time to remand it. I support the Motion.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Hon Members, in rising to support this Bill I don't think we need to worry about people's civil liberties being infringed if we are trying to stop them driving under the influence of drug or alcohol, and if the procedure laid down here is followed in the event of somebody being apprehended by the Police. I'm afraid I haven't got the full draft of the old Bill that we are amending, and I am uncertain in my mind that the procedure which should be followed will, in fact, be part of the amendment to the old legislation - that is, points 1-6 of the procedure to be adopted by the Police in the case of somebody being apprehended, and the rights of the alleged offender in being able to demand to be examined by a doctor. It only says in the Memorandum here which procedure should be followed. I should like to ask Your Excellency if the House could be informed whether these points in the procedure, 1-6, will be effectively part of the legislation if we pass this Bill, because they constitute a very important right for the citizen. He is able, under these points, to demand to be examined by a doctor, which is absolutely essential if he is being apprehended for driving under the influence of drink.

Chief Secretary

Sir, the procedure as outlined in the Memorandum circulated to Hon Members indeed does not form part of the amendment proposed. It is a proposed administrative procedure and if I may say so, the Honourable Member has hit upon a very important point. I think what is envisaged, Sir, is that this will be introduced as an administrative matter, and it will be for learned magistrates in trying such cases to satisfy themselves that an accused in such circumstances has been able to avail himself of whatever procedure is necessary. Indeed, Sir, I think the Senior Magistrate would agree with the point I have just made that such a procedure, if not adopted, would be taken into consideration by the Court.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, it does seem to me that the procedure should form part of the Bill and if it does not form part of the Bill it seems to me that the procedure laid down is only at the discretion of the Magistrate, and therefore the apprehended person may or may not be examined by a doctor. I am afraid I do not support the Bill unless the procedure is an integral part of it.

Chief Secretary

Sir, I don't think I can add anything to what I have already said. I have myself had experience of working as a Magistrate in a Territory where there was not a legal requirement for a medical examination and I am afraid it was very difficult in those circumstances, as a Magistrate, to make up one's mind whether or not one was in the process of perpetrating a miscarriage of justice. I can only add, Sir, that perhaps if there were sufficient feeling on the subject, the Administration might consider withdrawing the Bill to have a further amendment drafted.

/and I am afraid it was

At the Motion for the second reading of the Bill the Hon the Chief Secretary moved that the Bill be withdrawn. The Motion was seconded by the Hon the Financial Secretary and carried.

Guardianship of Minors Bill 1979

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill seeks to repeal the Guardianship of Children Ordinance 1958 and substitute up-to-date legislation reflecting modern thinking on the subject. It is based principally on the United Kingdom Guardianship of Minors Act 1971 as amended to date.

The Bill has of course been circulated to Hon Members, as has a Memorandum commenting on it. I would like to draw Members to one or two points concerning the principal changes which would be embodied in this legislation.

First of all, it would specify how many personal representatives or trustees in whom a minors estate might be vested could be appointed; it would make mothers equally liable with fathers for the maintenance of minors; it would authorise the Court, if the Court considered the surviving parent unfit to have the custody of a minor, to appoint a guardian to act jointly with the surviving parent or to be the sole guardian. It would also provide for the payment of maintenance to any person other than a parent having custody of a minor, it would extend the provisions of this law to illegitimate children, and it would also make provision for appeals to the Supreme Court.

Sir, I beg to move the first reading of this Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

Council adjourned at 15:40 hours and resumed at 16:10.

Matrimonial Causes Bill 1979

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, in rising to move the first reading of this Bill, I must first apologise to the House for the delay in bringing it before the House. In fact the Bill was presented to Executive Council in September last year and I think was circulated to all Hon Members of this House in October last year. There are two reasons for the delay: firstly, the Bill falls within the category of legislation which requires the prior approval of the Secretary of State, under clause 16 of the Royal Instructions. Secondly, it was in any case thought desirable that the Bill, because of its length and complexity, should be circulated to Hon Members well before the time when they were asked to pronounce upon it in the House.

/desirable that the Bill,

As to the Objects and Reasons of the Bill, I should perhaps remind Hon Members these are printed at the end of the Bill.

This Bill is a reproduction of the United Kingdom Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 and the Recognition of Divorces and Legal Separations Act 1971, subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as the circumstances of the Colony require.

It provides that matters relating to matrimonial proceedings, maintenance agreements, declarations of legitimacy, validity of marriage, British nationality and the recognition in the Colony of overseas divorces and legal separations, and generally brings the divorce law of the Colony into line with the divorce law of the United Kingdom.

That, Your Excellency and Honourable Members, is the main purpose of the legislation: it brings our legislation into line with the divorce laws of the United Kingdom. The fact that this needed doing was first brought to our attention by His Honour Sir Peter Watkin Williams, who drew attention to the fact that there were some inequities in the divorce legislation as it affected us in the Falkland Islands. He made certain suggestions for eliminating these inequities in such a manner that it would people involved in such proceedings on the same footing as they would be if they were in the United Kingdom.

There were four points about this legislation - which looks formidable, and indeed is - which we desire to bring to the attention of Honourable Members. Firstly, that the age of majority throughout is given as 18 years, to accord with the recommendations for voters made by the Select Committee on the Constitution; secondly, that the period to elapse between the decree nisi and the decree absolute is extended from three months to six; thirdly, that the new law will generally facilitate divorce proceedings, and, fourthly, that provisions relating to maintenance are more comprehensive and accord with modern thinking - for instance persons of means will have their estates more closely attached than hitherto to provide maintenance for the other party of the marriage and any children of it.

If this law is passed it will repeal the existing Cap 44. Sir, I beg to move the first reading of this Bill.

The Bill was then read a first and second time and the Council went into Committee. On the Motion that clause 14 should stand part of the Bill the Hon the Chief Secretary spoke as follows:

Chief Secretary

Sir, before proposing that clause 14 should stand part of the Bill, I would like to point out that as a result of the Bill being referred to the Secretary of State, he has required that we should amend clause 14 as it stands in the printed Bill by the addition of a further sub-section. If I may read what is to be amended -

/Clause 14 to be amended

Clause 14 to be amended by substituting a semi-colon for a full stop at the end of paragraph (c) and that we should thereafter insert the following paragraph -

- (d) in the case of a polygamous marriage entered into outside the Colony that at the time of the marriage either part was domiciled in the Colony for the purposes of paragraph (d) of this section a marriage may be polygamous although at its inception neither party has any spouse additional to the other.

Sir, I beg to move that clause 14 as amended stand part of the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

Old Age Pensions (Amendment) Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill seeks to increase Old Age Pensions and also proposes that the contributions to the Old Age Pensions Scheme be increased, in order to pay better pensions.

In proposing this Bill I would like to say how much the old people, the senior citizens, are in this Council's mind. Throughout the Select Committee meeting while considering the Revenue proposals and also the general inflation affecting the Colony, every Council Member has expressed concern for the elderly folk of the Falkland Islands.

This proposal is to increase the pension for a married couple from £13.50 to £15 per week, and for a single pensioner from £9 to £10 a week. We are proposing that the contribution for an employed person be increased from £1.00 to £1.20 per week - that is 20p; the employer to pay £1.80 instead of £1.50 - that is 30p; and to increase the contribution by a self-employed person from £2.50 to £3.00 - which is 50p. I might add that these contributions are subject to deduction for income tax purposes.

We have again reached the position where we should call on the Actuary to consider whether we can improve the pensions at some time in the future, and during the next few months I will be in discussion with the Old Age Pensions Government Actuary in Britain and ask him to review the position, to find out exactly how the Fund stands at present and what the future liabilities are likely to be.

I don't think I can say more beyond reiterating the concern of all Councillors for increasing Old Age Pensions. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

After the Bill had been read a first time, Hon Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I heartily support this Bill and I thoroughly endorse the Financial Secretary's remarks about our concern for the old people.

/I would like to point out

I would like to point out just one thing about the scale of payment; the self-employed person under this Bill is going to pay £3 per week, and the basic rate for a self-employed person under the United Kingdom scheme is only £1.90. Now I know that the scale of our pension fund is obviously what causes this sort of disparity - theirs is a huge island while ours is very tiny. But I do think these figures illustrate how the citizens' expenses and these sort of things are now very high indeed and way up and above the U.K. level for these things. Of course under the United Kingdom pension scheme one gets a very much higher pension as well, and I welcome the Financial Secretary's remark that the Actuary should be called in to review the Fund and see if we can't increase pensions here without a further increase of contributors' subscriptions. I support the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as this is one of my pet subjects I naturally support the Bill and endorse fully what the Financial Secretary has said; I know he is equally concerned about our senior citizens.

I listened very carefully to my Honourable Friend talking about these figures of payment and to the comparisons he made. It might well be true but I think we have a population problem here, we don't have the numbers to keep the employed people's contributions at a low figure. When one looks at it from the other side, a self-employed contributor, contributing £3 a week, actually helps a married couple to receive a pension by five times that amount. I think this perhaps throws a different light on the situation.

I too will look forward to the Actuary's review.

Mr T J D Miller

Sir, I too wish to support this Bill. There is one other aspect of it which I would like to mention. In these days of inflation, to a certain extent, increases in taxes and payments on the wage-earning section of the community tend to be offset by higher wages from the employers or, in the case of an employer, where he can he will put up the price of his commodity to cover these rises. But the old age pensioner can't do anything about inflation because he can't pass on his living costs to anybody else. That is why I think it is very important that each year we bear in mind the pension rates and the cost of living.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I have noted the points made by Honourable Members and one thing I would point out¹⁸ that the United Kingdom National Health Insurance contribution is not subject to taxation in U.K., so although the contributions for Old Age Pensions are higher, they are tax deductible in the Falklands.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

/Non-contributory

Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions (Amendment) Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, following the introduction of the last Bill, it seems only fair that we should consider increasing the pensions to non-contributory pensioners.

It is proposed that an increase be made of £1, for a married couple from £11 to £12 and for a single person from £8 to £9. This will cost the tax-payer in the region of £1,000 a year and this is a reducing sum.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill was read a first time and Hon Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, in rising to support this Bill one thing crosses my mind. There are still a small number of people in the Falklands who, for one reason or another, are not entitled to receive a pension under the existing legislation for the Non-Contributory Old Age Pensions. Some of them do not receive pensions. The reasons are varied. I would like to take this opportunity to ask the Hon Financial Secretary to look into these various cases and prepare a report for Councillors' consideration. I wish to support the Bill.

Financial Secretary

Sir, I can give the Honourable Elected Member for the Camp an assurance that his request will be followed up. As a matter of fact, it is in hand at present. We did touch on it in Select Committee and it was also raised at a recent meeting of the Executive Council. I should think there are probably in the region of twelve people or so in the Falklands who are not in receipt of a pension, and it may be that we should consider extending this scheme for a certain number of people.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1979

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this is a very small Bill and it is very easy to understand. It is one of the proposals which arose from suggestions made by Mr Ritchie for up-dating certain fees, and it has been considered in Select Committee. It requires legislation for increasing the fee for a Firearms Licence from £1 to £2 (that is for each weapon).

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through all stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

/Treaspass (Amendment) Bill

Trespass (Amendment) Bill 1979

Chief Secretary

Sir, this Bill seeks to repeal the Schedule to the Trespass Ordinance Cap. 74 and replace it with a new Schedule providing for higher grazing fees on Stanley Common with effect from 1st January 1980.

Sir, this Bill also is a matter which has been discussed in Select Committee and this also, like the previous Bill, arises from the recommendations of the Fiscal Adviser, Mr Ritchie, his general advice being that minor fees and charges should be revised upwards and increased. I think that there is probably only one point to be made about this, from me, and that is that the Schedule was last revised seventy-five years ago.

Sir, I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill was read a first time and Hon Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows:

Mr W E Bowles

Sir, I would like to support the Bill, especially as it is its diamond jubilee, I believe.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

Mr T J D Miller

Your Excellency, there are a few things I would like to say in rising to support this Motion.

During this Session we have discussed immigration to a considerable length. One point I feel which none of us directly mentioned but which needs looking into is that of the clause in the existing Ordinance, which provides that if an employer brings someone into the Colony, he has to ship that person back if he resigns his job within twelve months of arrival. I know that it is always argued that without this clause all sorts of people could be brought into the Islands, and it is a job of the selection of candidates by employers, but this fact is widely known to people coming out here now. It doesn't take much investigation by somebody in England who thinks about coming to the Falklands; they don't have to investigate very far now until they find this out, and no matter how good a selection board or an interviewer may be, it is very hard - in fact it is impossible - to be able to say for sure that the person or family coming out to the Falklands are going to stay, and that they are not going to come out here, work for ten or eleven months and then hand in their notice, knowing full well that they are going to get all their passages and expenses paid back to their country of origin. In other words, with the present Ordinance people have the golden opportunity of just coming out to the Falklands for a ten- or eleven-month working holiday, with all expenses paid both ways. This is something which I feel must be looked at when the immigration regulations are examined.

We have also heard people talk about all these farms where the employers are going on about shortage of labour, and about all these people who are advertising through the Secretariat and why aren't farms doing anything about them. Well, some people are; I have written to two people in the last three months who have advertised through the Secretariat, and I have received no acknowledgement from either. It's not always the case that nobody is trying to do anything to get people out here. I hope that the Committee, if one is set up to examine our Immigration Ordinance, will really ask questions from everybody and thoroughly examine the whole set-up.

On the aspect of taxation, which has been well covered during this Session, it is an inescapable fact now that the trend of personal taxation in the Falklands seems to be increasing all the time, and one can add on to personal taxation such things as the Medical Services Levy and so on. All these things are becoming a disincentive to work, and I am talking about ordinary working people, not the Hon Member for West Stanley's 'feather-bedded farmers'. Some examples: the proposed income tax legislation that was announced the other day and which is now being studied. At the bottom of the scale, a married person with an income of £2,000 in the Falklands, under the new legislation - which may or may not come in - will pay £125 tax. A married couple in England with an income of £2,000 pay £46 tax - a third of the amount here. That is at the bottom of the scale.

At the top, the professional people, the people in the £5,000 to £6,000 a year range: here the difference is now even more marked. If you earn £5,000 in the Falklands, as a married couple, you pay £1,220 in tax. In England you pay £918: a difference of £300. A single person in the Islands earning between £2,500 and £3,000 - and more or less the same figures apply to a married person earning between £2,500 and £3,000 - (and this is the bulk of the wage earners in the Falklands) would, if we accept the income tax proposals, be paying £50 to £90 more than someone with the corresponding salary in the U. K. Now I don't think this is going to help us attract many people from England to these Islands. I know people will say that in England you pay 15% VAT - Value Added Tax - on all the goods you buy, but to a large extent what you buy is what you, the individual, can control. And the wage-earner is concerned not so much with what he pays for something once he has received his pay, but what is knocked off his pay before he gets it in the first place. I think this is something that we must bear in mind very closely when we come to examine the income tax proposals.

I know of one person in Camp who stopped working for three or four months because by carrying on working and earning more Government would get so much of it, arguing that he would be put up into a higher bracket. His case may be an exception, but you hear quite a few people - and I dare say the same is happening around Stanley - who are saying similar things, saying 'well, perhaps I'm not going to take on that contract job, or do that bit of overtime, because if I get £10 for it that is going to put me into the 40% bracket, so

/I'll be paying £4.50

I'll be paying £4.50 of it into the Government! The problem is of course that Government needs money and it is getting to the stage where there are very few to pay that money. I think it is something we should all bear in mind.

Our Fiscal Adviser has produced some very good papers and I hope he will continue to do so, but we don't always have to accept every paper. Our Fiscal Adviser naturally sees the problems from the outside. We can't expect him to see the problems from inside, which is how we, the people who live here, see them. We must think very seriously in the future about the present trend of income tax and taxation in general in the Falklands.

I would like to refer to one other point. I had the opportunity yesterday of visiting the Airport site and during talks and viewing down there two things became apparent about which I am very concerned. There is a bird problem- the feathered variety- at the Airport: a goose problem with aircraft. I think consideration must be given to what can be done to reduce, in fact if need be to eliminate totally, the goose population from the Stanley Airport area. I know that our conservation friends are going to be horror-struck at the thought, but I would rather see a few square miles of the Falklands with no geese rather than an aircraft carrying passengers put at risk, and it could happen.

The other thing which became apparent down there was the state of the drainage ditches around the runway. They are all blocked. This is no reflection at all on the Airport handymen and staff; it would be an impossible task for the existing labour force to clear them, but I think priority must be given to getting those ditches cleared and the water table lowered; otherwise we are going to have very major problems with our airstrip, which is costing us a fortune already.

Sir, I wish to support the Motion.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to support this Motion I always wonder what would happen if one rose to vote the motion out. I really would like to know what happens to Council if we don't support the Motion, do we just sort of sit here forever, being fed at intervals?

Anyway, I think the Budget has shown how vulnerable we are to oil price fluctuations and I think we owe Your Excellency a great deal for so ably getting the price reduced. That reduction has virtually allowed us to balance the Budget, but it does illustrate very much how vulnerable we are to OPEC people. I think it also illustrates the fact that we should re-think our energy policy in some respects. I know we are trying and will continue to try to get legislation and so forth which will enable us perhaps to develop oil sources of our own. In the meanwhile, I think we should turn our thoughts to alternative sources of energy, and of course our traditional energy supply is peat. It is a bit impracticable and all the rest of it, but I really do think that we should give this source of energy a lot of thought, and if necessary try to get some money to encourage ways in which we can get it out and use it without too much labour. Members in approving some oil-fired central heating facilities in some Government quarters clearly put the marker down that they were only approving the expenditure on these things because a lot of the equipment was already here, but that we really did want to consider alternative energy sources in the future.

/With reference to

With reference to income tax, which of course is a heavy burden, I don't intend to quote any figures whatsoever on the matter but I think that we can fairly say to Her Majesty's Government that we really are trying to pay our way in the world and to take as big a share as we can of the expenses of running this Colony, and we hope that it will spare Her Majesty's Government the effort in trying to solve all the problems which stop us developing maritime resources and alternative sources of income.

With regard to the money we voted for the housing loan, I welcome this step in our development, because housing is so urgently needed here. I am a little disappointed that it is not to be a Government subscription, as it were, to a building society, or a housing corporation, into which also businesses and private individuals could contribute. I think there is a place for a building society here and I think it would enable people to invest some of their money here and feel that they belong. I wonder if perhaps we could consider ways of using some of this money, if not all, for that purpose. And while we are investigating the possibility of buying houses from overseas and all this sort of thing, I think we really must look again at the houses around about that are empty. Some of them no doubt are empty for very good reasons but there are some houses which are just empty and it seems to me that, as housing is so short and we continually hear that it is preventing immigration and is desperately wanted, we really must look again at this housing question and see if we can't make use of the empty houses that we already have.

I think, Your Excellency, I have very little else to say; one of the things which has happened and gone ahead so well in this last year is the Green Patch Scheme. It has given me enormous satisfaction and I hope it will be the beginning of a new era, an era where the young and able people can get a share in their land.

I beg to support the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this will be my last chance to speak at this meeting, and I hope unlike the first opportunity I had to speak, the Studio tape-recorder has been fitted out with some stronger fuses. I was a little disappointed at not getting too much support for my proposal to leave the electricity tariff as it was or, if necessary, to reduce it slightly, because I still believe that people would then use more of it and we would get more revenue. However, be that as it may, there are some more things on the brighter side.

I would like to congratulate all our Heads of Departments because I think this particular Budget has been one of the easiest to go through during the 1970s. It has taken a much shorter time than usual and I think all Heads of Departments have done their homework very well and very ably and I feel that they all deserve a word of congratulation.

I am delighted of course that the old age pensioners were not forgotten and I know they never will be. Also, like my Colleague, I am delighted that provision has been made for the commencement of a housing project. This is urgently required, irrespective of when it gets moving or when it gets finished. At least we have opened the door.

Our decline in population continues to bother me as it does all of us, but I don't think we can expect the decline to continue. If we can obtain housing and obtain people, continue with the work, develop everything in general, and look to the long-term policy of the Colony, I think we might be at a turning point in the near future when we can see brighter days ahead. I have every confidence in this, especially with the opportunities we have in our off-shore resources and, indeed, the future of the wool market as a whole, and I think we should also look to some other diversification in farming and, like my Colleague, I too wish the Green Patch venture well. It will stabilise the community to a great extent and I hope that other opportunities will follow suit for those young people who are interested in this field.

Sir, I would like to support the Motion.

Mr W H Goss

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to support the Motion I would first like to thank Your Excellency for the work you have put in to get our oil brought down to a reasonable price. Maybe it won't stay down long but it certainly has been brought down to an acceptable figure. With the general world trend, we can't expect anything else other than oil prices to rise.

Regarding our tax and taxation being higher than in Britain, while it is so, of course, we have other advantages.

Regarding the airfield, I don't think the rise of the water table is such a great danger - not as yet anyhow. Something may have to be done in the following Spring, but to control that when the ditches are cleaned out, we would have to control the cause, and that is sand. Sand grass is something which grows very slowly, it's not a quick taker, but it has built up over the years and that should have been introduced long ago on the northwest side of the strip. I have been told by people connected with the airport that the sand doesn't drift across there; it may not have drifted across there for the last six months or so, but wait until the Spring comes again. The land is heavily grazed now and there is nothing to protect the sand coming across, but we will have to have a metal barrier nearer the ditch, up the side of the hill.

No doubt the geese are going to increase, they're not going to decrease with the flying of aircraft into Stanley Airport. To date our landings are done on the sea or on a pond, but wait until we start landing on the prepared strips in the Camp, which are going to have some nice, luscious, green grass. I would think there is going to have to be provision made for somebody to go to the strips ahead of the aircraft to clear geese off them, but the great danger is of them returning after being chased off, just as an aircraft comes in to land. I think the very great danger with geese is still to meet us.

I beg to support the Motion

/Mr D S Evans

Mr D S Evans

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this has been quite a severe Budget and I think it worries us all to some extent. There have been one or two bright spots but overall things do seem to be coming more expensive.

I think one of the things we have all appreciated are your efforts with regard to oil prices; it has been very nice to vote down the prices whenever we came to Light, Heat & Power, and it underlines just how vulnerable we are with regard to oil.

I hope we will think very carefully about what was said to the Motion on immigration and that we can get together as soon as possible and agree on a vigorous and cohesive policy. I hope it doesn't just lie fallow.

I feel that comparisons with Britain on fiscal matters are unfair. We live in a small and isolated community and we cannot possibly compete with Britain. I think that for such a small community we provide an excellent range of services. We haven't the population that Great Britain has so we haven't the revenue to call on. If we want the services that we have then I'm afraid we will have to pay for them. It is a case of roundabouts and swings, some cases we lose out, others we win.

We have initiated an investigation into the possibility of a two-tier system for the electricity tariff to see if we could reduce it for domestic consumption and thereby increase consumption, but I don't really hold out much hope here, because at certain times in winter the Power House is on full load and we haven't the spare capacity. So really, if this is the case, there is no point in reducing the tariff and expecting the generating station to cope. It won't be able to. I do think we are going to have to get away from electricity in the future, or it is going to become more and more expensive.

Your Excellency, I have enjoyed this Session, as always, and I have found it very interesting to talk to Heads of Departments. I would like to support the Motion for the Adjournment.

Mr S B Wallace

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish I had stood up long before; I seem to have crossed out everything I was going to talk about as other Members stood up.

The Estimates have, I think, as everyone has said, underlined our need to tap every source of revenue we can, and to this end I was glad to hear that we can look forward shortly to sorting out any complications which prevent us benefiting from some of the wealth we generate.

I think that overall my Hon Friend the Member for East Stanley put the situation into perspective when he said that we have faced this sort of situation before and have dealt with it, and that we will certainly deal with this one as well.

Before ending I would like to say that in my view our external affairs are very quiet and this I think is a direct result of talking with the other side and is a very positive incentive to continuing to do so.

/There is one rather

There is one rather small matter to which I have given some thought, and that concerns our licensing laws. I wonder if they are not out-moded; some of the hours during which bars are open are, to say the least, not very convenient, and I think before the next Session we could perhaps give some thought to modernising them.

I would also like to echo the Hon Member for West Falkland when he said we should not continually relate our Colony, with a community of 1,800 people, to that of an advanced industrial society like that of the United Kingdom.

To finish, Sir, I would like to say that certainly we have problems but everyone is looking for ways to solve them. I support the Motion.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I noted the comments made by Hon Members in referring to the income tax reform proposed to us by Mr Ritchie. These proposals will receive consideration later in the year. I would like to emphasise that this Bill will be published in plenty of time for the public to see it and allow them time to go to their Councillors and discuss it with them.

I agree entirely with the Hon Elected Member for West Falklands in stating that making comparisons with the economy of Britain are unsound. I believe that is perfectly true. Many of the expenses that one has in Britain one does not have here; for example, travelling expenses and such like. But we also have expenses here that they do not have in Britain, and I don't see any point whatsoever in making comparisons. I think we must relate our own tax proposals to the wages that are paid in the Falklands. No doubt if we all went to Britain at least some would command a higher wage, but we would have much larger expenses. I therefore think that we should be very careful in making comparisons with another country. There are advantages and disadvantages. In this small community it is a fact to say that the cost of the social wage is very high here, but the services - there is no doubt about it - are good and are always being improved.

I think what we should remember when considering the Budget this year and in future is that we are now developing; we are now moving forward, and I feel that something must arise soon. Obviously we should take every advantage we can to improve, and we should not stagnate. I feel that for a number of years we were stagnating and perhaps we are just finding the result of that. We should now look forward to the time when we develop and reap the benefit of that development, in the not too distant future.

In ending, I would like to say how much I appreciate the responsible attitude of Councillors during Select Committee and during this Meeting, and their patience and help in getting through the Budget proposals and Estimates.

I support the Motion.

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I feel that I should not have too much to say. I should, I feel, be leaving this to you, Sir, but I suppose I have to say something since I moved the Motion. For me of course this has been my first Council and I should like to echo my Colleague's sentiments in thanking Honourable Members for their co-operation and their tremendous interest in all our discussions. It has been a tremendous eye-opener to me to see how Select Committee works, and indeed to see how well it can work with the co-operation of Heads of Departments and, indeed, of Honourable Members.

Perhaps I should also say a word if I may, Sir, of thanks to my Colleague the Financial Secretary, who has borne the brunt of all work, virtually, of this Session: all the work of any major importance has fallen upon his shoulders. We all know he is working under considerable disability, he is still, to some extent, convalescent after his time in Hospital, and I for one was extremely grateful for everything he did for us in this Session.

Throughout all the speeches of this Session I have been making notes on all sorts of points; many of them fortunately have been repeated by the same Members so perhaps the final list won't be as long as it may look. Obviously one is not going to promise to do something about all of them before the next Session, but we shall certainly be looking at them, and particularly at some of the Motions which have been passed by this House.

One or two have taken my attention particularly. Immigration, for example, which has been mentioned by everybody, and somebody said the other day - I think it may have been the Hon Councillor Evans - that perhaps we think too much in terms of bringing people in to jobs and not enough of attracting people in to live here permanently. If we get good enough people coming to do jobs we would be hoping that they would stay, but it is my hope that our investigations into the immigration policy will look to the longer term future.

Secondly, Sir, if I may choose just one or two of these points which have been raised. Fuel - this of course is the big worry and everybody has said so and everybody realises it. You, Sir, have saved our bacon this time, but I am not sure that we can look to that sort of thing happening again. I don't want to be pessimistic of course, but we must bear in mind that, although we have managed to knock down our expenditure this time, there is going to come a time when we are going to have to re-stock with oil; and nobody should be carried away too much, but my assessment of the Falkland Islands character so far is that this challenge will be met with the same determination as all the others.

And if I may end perhaps on an optimistic note and choose one other topic which has been discussed many times: Green Patch. As a farmer's son I consider Green Patch to be a point of great optimism in the future of this country, and would like to wish it all the luck in the world.

Thank you Sir.

/The President

The President

Thank you Honourable Members. I am very glad everybody did support the Motion because for a while there I had a macabre picture come up before my eyes, of all you gentlemen sitting down there wasting away to skeletons, with cobwebs dripping down from the ceiling! I don't think you were in any great danger of that happening because one of the few privileges and powers that I have in presiding over your affairs - I don't have many, and I don't really get much of a chance to talk - but one of the few powers I have got, I believe, is that I can adjourn at any time and no one may gain-say me, although of course you are perfectly entitled to sit there forever while I go out, if you find those chairs sufficiently comfortable.

In my opening Address I did refer to some possible changes in our procedure and I think several Councillors echoed that; we certainly don't want all sorts of Constitutional changes, but some changes in our procedures might be helpful. Of course, the Clerk here very ably demonstrated the possibility. His experiment nearly collapsed because I couldn't remember myself, but I would like to say that that was because I didn't have my 'prompt' sheet; but maybe we can move along on these ad hoc impromptu amendments to rather speed things up.

One thing that I did omit to say earlier, it is just a small point but I will do it now while talking about Constitutions and the possibility of streamlining the electoral arrangements, which no doubt are very cumbersome, is that we shall, as I think it has been announced, shortly be drawing up a new electoral register. This has no particular significance, it is something that we can do every year, it is provided for in the Ordinance, and in the United Kingdom it is done every year in October. We haven't done it now for a couple of years so probably this will be a good time to do it, just so that we have for the next year a fairly up-to-date electoral list with the new people, the young people, coming on to the Register, and taking account of people moving about the Colony. This is a little exercise which I think will be going on under the direction of the Clerk during the next few weeks.

My function I think is really only to say thank you and congratulations. I would particularly like to congratulate the Hon Members for the excellent work they have done in examining in close detail our Budget, and satisfying themselves that our expenditure is justified and will be properly spent, and also in looking very carefully at our revenue proposals.

As a result of the work done in Select Committee we have got the Budget much more nearly back into balance with a deficit which is manageable, and now of course that that has been said, we have to look to future years. We do have adequate reserves that will tide us over for some while to come until our revenue and income can be increased by greater development.

I would also like to congratulate the Heads of Departments who have been referred to by Hon Councillors, for the work they have put in to get their Estimates in good order. I did ask them all to come in much earlier; at the start of the Estimate procedure we all had a meeting, and I did impress on them the need to present their Estimates reasonably and responsibly and to keep their additional demands on our resources down as far as they could, whilst at the same time providing for at least as good, and hopefully a better, service. I am very grateful to them for doing so and I think you had very good and profitable discussions with them in Select Committee.

I would also like to congratulate the Financial Secretary because I think despite the late start he had, although he was ably supported by his staff, he has done a good job getting us to the position we are now at in our financial affairs. I think we owe the Financial Secretary an enormous debt, I can't think where else we would find somebody managing our finances so well despite all the difficulties. We always seem to come out just about on the right side. I don't know what the secret of the Financial Secretary's success is but I should think the present Chancellor of the Exchequer would like to know, because he doesn't seem to do quite so well himself.

Also I would like to congratulate the Chief Secretary because it is his first experience with our deliberations, and he answered Hon Members' questions fairly and well, and I think this serves as his apprentice effort, and we now look forward to a long period of good, wise counsel from the Administration through the Chief Secretary.

I must also thank Mr Harold Bennett, our Senior Magistrate, for his drafting work; some of this drafting was not immediate, instant, drafting, but some had to be pretty quick and I think we owe Mr Bennett a very great debt for taking on at very short notice what was almost in fact a complete re-draft of a Bill. And of course, as always, thanks to the Clerk beside me who provides me with my programme and prompt notes and so on and so forth and generally helps me through the proceedings. I think behind him one must also thank all the girls, the typists and others, the staff in the Secretariat who really have to produce this monumental amount of paper to enable us to get on with our business and it is no light job. I have even seen that the new papers were produced between some time yesterday afternoon and this morning; they were started only yesterday. This goes on all the time and I think we owe a great debt to the staff in the Secretariat which I hope the Clerk will convey to them. I think that as a House and as a Government we are well served by the Secretariat. Cabinet Ministers in the U.K. wouldn't get a better service than we do.

All I have to do now is to accept the Motion and adjourn the House sine die.

1979

Colony of the Falkland Islands

IN THE TWENTY-EIGHTH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF
Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

JAMES ROLAND WALTER PARKER, C.M.G., O.B.E.
Governor.

An Ordinance

To make further and better provision in respect of the law governing matrimonial causes and of matters incidental thereto or connected therewith. Title.

(22nd August 1979)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

PART I
PRELIMINARY

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Matrimonial Causes Ordinance 1979, and shall come into operation on the 22nd day of August 1979. Short title and commencement.

2. (1) In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires — Interpretation.
1973 c. 18 s. 52

“adopted” means adopted in pursuance of an adoption order made under any enactment in force in the Colony at any time relating to the adoption of children;

“child”, in relation to one or both of the parties to a marriage, includes an illegitimate or adopted child of that party or, as the case may be, of both parties;

“child of the family”, in relation to the parties to a marriage, means —

- (a) a child of both of those parties; and
- (b) any other child who has been treated by both of those parties as a child of their family;

“court” means the Supreme Court;
 “custody”, in relation to a child, includes access to the child;
 “education” includes training;
 “the Proctor” means the Chief Secretary.

(2) In this Ordinance —

- (a) references to financial provision orders, periodical payments and secured periodical payments orders and orders for the payment of a lump sum, and references to property adjustment orders, shall be construed in accordance with section 24 below; and
- (b) references to orders for maintenance pending suit and to interim orders for maintenance shall be construed respectively in accordance with section 25 and section 30 (5) below.

(3) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that references in this Ordinance to remarriage include references to a marriage which is by law void or voidable.

PART II

DIVORCE, NULLITY AND OTHER MATRIMONIAL SUITS

JURISDICTION OF COURT

Jurisdiction of court.
 1973 c. 45 s. 5

3. (1) The court shall have jurisdiction in —

- (a) proceedings for divorce, judicial separation or nullity of marriage; and
- (b) proceedings for death to be presumed and a marriage to be dissolved in pursuance of section 22 below.

(2) The court shall have jurisdiction to entertain proceedings for divorce or judicial separation if (and only if) either of the parties to the marriage —

- (a) is domiciled in the Colony on the date when the proceedings are begun; or
- (b) was habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with that date.

(3) The court shall have jurisdiction to entertain proceedings for nullity of marriage if (and only if) either of the parties to the marriage —

- (a) is domiciled in the Colony on the date when the proceedings are begun; or
- (b) was habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with that date; or
- (c) died before that date and either —
 - (i) was at death domiciled in the Colony; or
 - (ii) had been habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with the date of death.

(4) The court shall have jurisdiction to entertain proceedings for death to be presumed and a marriage to be dissolved if (and only if) the petitioner —

- (a) is domiciled in the Colony on the date when the proceedings are begun; or
- (b) was habitually resident in the Colony throughout the period of one year ending with that date.

DIVORCE

Divorce on breakdown of marriage.
 1973 c. 18 s. 1

4. (1) Subject to section 6 below, a petition for divorce may be presented to the court by either party to a marriage on the ground that the marriage has broken down irretrievably.

(2) The court hearing a petition for divorce shall not hold the marriage to have broken down irretrievably unless the petitioner satisfies the court of one or more of the following facts, that is to say —

- (a) that the respondent has committed adultery and the petitioner finds it intolerable to live with the respondent;
- (b) that the respondent has behaved in such a way that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent;
- (c) that the respondent has deserted the petitioner for a continuous period of at least two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition;
- (d) that the parties to the marriage have lived apart for a continuous period of at least two years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition (hereafter in this Ordinance referred to as "two years' separation") and the respondent consents to a decree being granted;
- (e) that the parties to the marriage have lived apart for a continuous period of at least five years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition (hereafter in this Ordinance referred to as "five years' separation").

(3) On a petition for divorce it shall be the duty of the court to inquire, so far as it reasonably can, into the facts alleged by the petitioner and into facts alleged by the respondent.

(4) If the court is satisfied on the evidence of any such fact as is mentioned in subsection (2) above, then, unless it is satisfied on all the evidence that the marriage has not broken down irretrievably, it shall, subject to sections 6 (3) and 8 below, grant a decree of divorce.

(5) Every decree of divorce shall in the first instance be a decree nisi and shall not be made absolute before the expiration of six months from its grant unless the court by general orders from time to time fixes a shorter period, or unless in any particular case the court from time to time by special order fixes a shorter period than the period otherwise applicable for the time being by virtue of this subsection.

5. (1) One party to a marriage shall not be entitled to rely for the purposes of section 4 (2) (a) above on adultery committed by the other if, after it became known to him that the other had committed that adultery, the parties have lived with each other for a period exceeding, or periods together exceeding six months.

Supplemental provisions
as to facts raising presumption of breakdown.
1973 c. 18 s. 2

(2) Where the parties to a marriage have lived with each other after it became known to one party that the other had committed adultery, but subsection (1) above does not apply, in any proceedings for divorce in which the petitioner relies on that adultery the fact that the parties have lived with each other after that time shall be disregarded in determining for the purposes of section 4 (2) (a) above whether the petitioner finds it intolerable to live with the respondent.

(3) Where in any proceedings for divorce the petitioner alleges that the respondent has behaved in such a way that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with him, but the parties to the marriage have lived with each other for a period or periods after the date of the occurrence of the final incident relied on by the petitioner and held by the court to support his allegation, that fact shall be disregarded in determining for the purposes of section 4 (2) (b) above whether the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent if the length of that period or of those periods together was six months or less.

(4) For the purposes of section 4 (2) (c) above the court may treat a period of desertion as having continued at a time when the deserting party was incapable of continuing the necessary intention if the evidence before the court is such that, had that party not been so incapable, the court would have inferred that his desertion continued at that time.

(5) In considering for the purposes of section 4 (2) above whether the period for which the respondent has deserted the petitioner or the period for which the parties to a marriage have lived apart has been continuous, no account shall be taken of any one period (not exceeding six months) or of any two or more periods (not exceeding six months in all) during which the parties resumed living with each other, but no period during which the parties lived with each other shall count as part of the period of desertion or of the period for which the parties to the marriage lived apart, as the case may be.

(6) For the purposes of section 4 (2) (d) and (e) above and this section a husband and wife shall be treated as living apart unless they are living with each other in the same household, and references in this section to the parties to a marriage living with each other shall be construed as references to their living with each other in the same household.

(7) Provision shall be made by rules of court for the purpose of ensuring that where in pursuance of section 4 (2) (d) above the petitioner alleges that the respondent consents to a decree being granted the respondent has been given such information as will enable him to understand the consequences to him of his consenting to a decree being granted and the steps which he must take to indicate that he consents to the grant of a decree.

Restriction on petitions
for divorce within three years of marriage.

1973 c. 18 s. 3

6. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, no petition for divorce shall be presented to the court before the expiration of the period of three years from the date of marriage (hereafter in this section referred to as "the specified period").

(2) The judge may, on an application made to him allow the presentation of a petition for divorce within the specified period on the ground that the case is one of exceptional hardship suffered by the petitioner or of exceptional depravity on the part of the respondent; but in determining the application the judge shall have regard to the interests of any child of the family and to the question whether there is reasonable probability of a reconciliation between the parties during the specified period.

(3) If it appears to the court, at the hearing of a petition for divorce presented in pursuance of leave granted under subsection (2) above, that the leave was obtained by the petitioner by any misrepresentation or concealment of the nature of the case, the court may —

- (a) dismiss the petition, without prejudice to any petition which may be brought after the expiration of the specified period upon the same facts, or substantially the same facts, as those proved in support of the dismissed petition; or
- (b) if it grants a decree, direct that no application to make the decree absolute shall be made during the specified period.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit the presentation of a petition based upon matters which occurred before the expiration of the specified period.

Divorce not precluded
by previous judicial separation.

1973 c. 18 s. 4

7. (1) A person shall not be prevented from presenting a petition for divorce, or the court from granting a decree of divorce, by reason only that the petitioner or respondent has at any time, on the same facts or substantially the same facts as those proved in support of the petition, been granted a decree of judicial separation or an order under, or having effect as if made under, the Matrimonial Proceedings (Court of Summary Jurisdiction) Ordinance 1967.

(2) On a petition for divorce in such a case as is mentioned in subsection (1) above, the court may treat the decree or order as sufficient proof of any adultery, desertion or other fact by reference to which it was granted, but shall not grant a decree of divorce without receiving evidence from the petitioner.

(3) Where a petition for divorce in such a case follows a decree of judicial separation or an order containing a provision exempting one party to the marriage from the obligation to cohabit with the other, for the purposes of that petition a period of desertion immediately preceding the institution of the proceedings for the decree or order shall, if the parties have not resumed cohabitation and the decree or order has been continuously in force since it was granted, be deemed immediately to precede the presentation of the petition.

8. (1) The respondent to a petition for divorce in which the petitioner alleges five years' separation may oppose the grant of a decree on the ground that the dissolution of the marriage will result in grave financial or other hardship to him and that it would in all the circumstances be wrong to dissolve the marriage.

Refusal of decree in five year separation cases on grounds of grave hardship to respondent.

1973 c. 18 s. 5

(2) Where the grant of a decree is opposed by virtue of this section, then —

- (a) if the court finds that the petitioner is entitled to rely in support of his petition on the fact of five years' separation and makes no such finding as to any other fact mentioned in section 4 (2) above, and
- (b) if apart from this section the court would grant a decree on the petition, the court shall consider all the circumstances, including the conduct of the parties to the marriage and the interests of those parties and of any children or other persons concerned, and if of opinion that the dissolution of the marriage will result in grave financial or other hardship to the respondent and that it would in all the circumstances be wrong to dissolve the marriage it shall dismiss the petition.

(3) For the purposes of this section hardship shall include the loss of the chance of acquiring any benefit which the respondent might acquire if the marriage was not dissolved.

9. If at any stage of proceedings for divorce it appears to the court that there is a reasonable possibility of a reconciliation between the parties to the marriage, the court may adjourn the proceedings for such period as it thinks fit to enable attempts to be made to effect such a reconciliation.

Provision to encourage reconciliation.

1973 c. 18 s. 6 (2)

The power conferred by the foregoing provision is additional to any other power of the court to adjourn proceedings.

10. Provision may be made by rules of court for enabling the parties to a marriage, or either of them, on application made either before or after the presentation of a petition for divorce, to refer to the court any agreement or arrangement made or proposed to be made between them, being an agreement or arrangement which relates to, arises out of, or is connected with, the proceedings for divorce which are contemplated, or, as the case may be, have begun, and for enabling the court to express an opinion, should it think it desirable to do so, as to the reasonableness of the agreement or arrangement and to give such directions, if any, in the matter as it thinks fit.

Consideration by the court of certain agreements or arrangements.

1973 c. 18 s. 7

11. (1) In the case of a petition for divorce —

- (a) the court may, if it thinks fit, direct all necessary papers in the matter to be sent to the Proctor, who shall argue before the court any question in relation to the matter which the court considers it necessary or expedient to have fully argued;

Intervention of Proctor.

1973 c. 18 s. 8

- (b) any person may at any time during the progress of the proceedings or before the decree nisi is made absolute give information to the Proctor on any matter material to the due decision of the case, and the Proctor may thereupon take such steps as he considers necessary or expedient.

(2) Where the Proctor intervenes or shows cause against a decree nisi in any proceedings for divorce, the court may make such order as may be just as to the payment by other parties to the proceedings of the costs incurred by him in so doing or as to the payment by him of any costs incurred by any of those parties by reason of his so doing.

Proceedings after decree nisi: general powers of court.

1973 c. 18 s. 9

12. (1) Where a decree of divorce has been granted but not made absolute, then, without prejudice to section 11 above, any person (excluding a party to the proceedings other than the Proctor) may show cause why the decree should not be made absolute by reason of material facts not having been brought before the court; and in such a case the court may —

- (a) notwithstanding anything in section 4 (5) above (but subject to sections 13 (2) to (4) and 44 below) make the decree absolute; or
- (b) rescind the decree; or
- (c) require further inquiry; or
- (d) otherwise deal with the case as it thinks fit.

(2) Where a decree of divorce has been granted and no application for it to be made absolute has been made by the party to whom it was granted, then, at any time after the expiration of three months from the earliest date on which that party could have made such an application, the party against whom it was granted may make an application to the court, and on that application the court may exercise any of the powers mentioned in paragraphs (a) to (d) of subsection (1) above.

Proceedings after decree nisi: special protection for respondent in separation cases.

1973 c. 18 s. 10

13. (1) Where in any case the court has granted a decree of divorce on the basis of a finding that the petitioner was entitled to rely in support of his petition on the fact of two years' separation coupled with the respondent's consent to a decree being granted and has made no such finding as to any other fact mentioned in section 4 (2) above, the court may, on an application made by the respondent at any time before the decree is made absolute, rescind the decree if it is satisfied that the petitioner misled the respondent (whether intentionally or unintentionally) about any matter which the respondent took into account in deciding to give his consent.

(2) The following provisions of this section apply where —

- (a) the respondent to a petition for divorce in which the petitioner alleged two years' separation or five years' separation coupled, in the former case, with the respondent's consent to a decree being granted, has applied to the court for consideration under subsection (3) below of his financial position after the divorce; and
- (b) the court has granted a decree on the petition on the basis of a finding that the petitioner was entitled to rely in support of his petition on the fact of two years' or five years' separation (as the case may be) and has made no such findings as to any other fact mentioned in section 4 (2) above.

(3) The court hearing an application by the respondent under subsection (2) above shall consider all the circumstances, including the age, health, conduct, earning capacity, financial resources and financial obligations of each of the parties, and the financial position of the respondent having regard to the divorce, it is likely to be after the death of the petitioner should the petitioner die first; and,

subject to subsection (4) below, the court shall not make the decree absolute unless it is satisfied —

- (a) that the petitioner should not be required to make any financial provision for the respondent, or
- (b) that the financial provision made by the petitioner for the respondent is reasonable and fair or the best that can be made in the circumstances.

(4) The court may if it thinks fit make the decree absolute notwithstanding the requirements of subsection (3) above if—

- (a) it appears that there are circumstances making it desirable that the decree should be made absolute without delay, and
- (b) the court has obtained a satisfactory undertaking from the petitioner that he will make such financial provision for the respondent as the court may approve.

NULLITY

14. A marriage celebrated after the commencement of this Ordinance shall be void on the following grounds only, that is to say —

Grounds on which a marriage is void.
1973 c. 18 s. 11

- (a) that it is not a valid marriage under the provisions of the Marriage Ordinance (that is to say where —
 - (i) the parties are within the prohibited degrees of relationship;
 - (ii) either party is under the age of sixteen; or
 - (iii) the parties have intermarried in disregard of certain requirements as to the formation of marriage);
- (b) that at the time of the marriage either party was already lawfully married;
- (c) that the parties are not respectively male and female.
- (d) in the case of a polygamous marriage entered into outside the Colony, that either party was at the time of the marriage domiciled in the Colony.

Cap. 43

For the purposes of paragraph (d) of this section a marriage may be polygamous although at its inception neither party has any spouse additional to the other.

15. A marriage celebrated after the commencement of this Ordinance shall be voidable on the following grounds only, that is to say —

Grounds on which a marriage is voidable.
1973 c. 18 s. 12

- (a) that the marriage has not been consummated owing to the incapacity of either party to consummate it;
- (b) that the marriage has not been consummated owing to the wilful refusal of the respondent to consummate it;
- (c) that either party to the marriage did not validly consent to it, whether in consequence of duress, mistake, unsoundness of mind or otherwise;
- (d) that at the time of the marriage either party, though capable of giving a valid consent, was suffering (whether continuously or intermittently) from mental derangement within the meaning of the Mental Health Ordinance of such a kind or to such an extent as to be unfitted for marriage;
- (e) that at the time of the marriage the respondent was suffering from venereal disease in a communicable form;
- (f) that at the time of the marriage the respondent was pregnant by some person other than the petitioner.

Cap. 46

16. (1) The court shall not, in proceedings instituted after the commencement of this Ordinance, grant a decree of nullity on the Bars to relief where marriage is voidable.

1973 c. 18 s. 13

ground that a marriage is voidable if the respondent satisfies the court —

- (a) that the petitioner, with knowledge that it was open to him to have the marriage avoided, so conducted himself in relation to the respondent as to lead the respondent reasonably to believe that he would not seek to do so; and
- (b) that it would be unjust to the respondent to grant the decree;

(2) Without prejudice to subsection (1) above, the court shall not grant a decree of nullity by virtue of section 15 above on the grounds mentioned in paragraph (c), (d), (e) or (f) of that section unless it is satisfied that proceedings were instituted within three years from the date of the marriage.

(3) Without prejudice to subsections (1) and (2) above, the court shall not grant a decree of nullity by virtue of section 15 above on the grounds mentioned in paragraph (e) or (f) of that section unless it is satisfied that the petitioner was at the time of the marriage ignorant of the facts alleged.

Foreign marriages.
1973 c. 18 s. 14

17. (1) Where, apart from this Ordinance, any matter affecting the validity of a marriage would fall to be determined (in accordance with the rules of private international law) by reference to the law of a country outside the Colony, nothing in section 14, 15 or 16 (1) above shall —

- (a) preclude the determination of that matter as aforesaid; or
- (b) require the application to the marriage of the grounds or bar there mentioned except so far as applicable in accordance with those rules.

(2) In the case of a marriage which purports to have been celebrated under the Foreign Marriage Acts 1892 to 1947 or has taken place outside the Colony and purports to be a marriage under common law, section 14 above is without prejudice to any ground on which the marriage may be void under those Acts or, as the case may be, by virtue of the rules governing the celebration of marriages outside the Colony under common law.

Application of ss. 4(5), 11
and 12 to nullity proceedings.
1973 c. 18 s. 15

18. Sections 4 (5), 11 and 12 above shall apply in relation to proceedings for nullity of marriage as if for any reference in those provisions to divorce there were substituted a reference to nullity of marriage.

Effect of decree of nullity
in case of voidable
marriage.
1973 c. 18 s. 16

19. A decree of nullity granted after the commencement of this Ordinance in respect of a voidable marriage shall operate to annul the marriage only as respects any time after the decree has been made absolute, and the marriage shall, notwithstanding the decree, be treated as if it had existed up to that time.

OTHER MATRIMONIAL SUITS

Judicial separation.
1973 c. 18 s. 17

20. (1) A petition for judicial separation may be presented to the court by either party to a marriage on the ground that any such fact as is mentioned in section 4 (2) above exists, and the provisions of section 5 above shall apply accordingly for the purposes of a petition for judicial separation alleging any such fact, as they apply in relation to a petition for divorce alleging that fact.

(2) On a petition for judicial separation it shall be the duty of the court to inquire, so far as it reasonably can, into the facts alleged by the petitioner and into any facts alleged by the respondent, but the court shall not be concerned to consider whether the marriage has broken down irretrievably, and if it is satisfied on the evidence of any such fact as is mentioned in section 4 (2) above it shall, subject to section 44 below, grant a decree of judicial separation.

(3) Sections 9 and 10 above shall apply for the purpose of encouraging the reconciliation of parties to proceedings for judicial separation and of enabling the parties to a marriage to refer to the court for its opinion an agreement or arrangement relevant to actual or contemplated proceedings for judicial separation, as they apply in relation to proceedings for divorce.

21. (1) Where the court grants a decree of judicial separation it shall no longer be obligatory for the petitioner to cohabit with the respondent.

Effects of judicial separation.

1973 c. 18 s. 18

(2) If while a decree of judicial separation is in force and the separation is continuing either of the parties to the marriage dies intestate as respects all or any of his or her real or personal property, the property as respects which he or she died intestate shall devolve as if the other party to the marriage had then been dead.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in section 4 (1) (a) of the Matrimonial Proceedings (Court of Summary Jurisdiction) Ordinance 1967, a provision in force under an order made, or having effect as if made, under that section exempting one party to a marriage from the obligation to cohabit with the other shall not have effect as a decree of judicial separation for the purposes of subsection (2) above.

10 of 1967.

22. (1) Any married person who alleges that reasonable grounds exist for supposing that the other party to the marriage is dead may present a petition to the court to have it presumed that the other party is dead and to have the marriage dissolved, and the court may, if satisfied that such reasonable grounds exist, grant a decree of presumption of death and dissolution of the marriage.

Presumption of death and dissolution of marriage.

1973 c. 18 s. 19

(2) In any proceedings under this section the fact that for a period of seven years or more the other party to the marriage has been continually absent from the petitioner and the petitioner has no reason to believe that the other party has been living within that time shall be evidence that the other party is dead until the contrary is proved.

(3) Sections 4 (5), 11 and 12 above shall apply to a petition and a decree under this section as they apply to a petition for divorce and a decree of divorce respectively.

(4) It is hereby declared that neither collusion nor any other conduct on the part of the petitioner which has at any time been a bar to relief in matrimonial proceedings constitutes a bar to the grant of a decree under this section.

GENERAL

23. If in any proceedings for divorce the respondent alleges and proves any such fact as is mentioned in subsection (2) of section 4 above (treating the respondent as the petitioner and the petitioner as the respondent for the purpose of that subsection) the court may give to the respondent the relief to which he would have been entitled if he had presented a petition seeking that relief.

1973 c. 18 s. 20

PART III

FINANCIAL RELIEF FOR PARTIES TO MARRIAGE AND CHILDREN OF FAMILY

FINANCIAL PROVISION AND PROPERTY ADJUSTMENT ORDERS

24. (1) The financial provision orders for the purposes of this Ordinance are the orders for periodical or lump sum provision available (subject to the provisions of this Ordinance) under section 26 below for the purpose of adjusting the financial position of the parties to a marriage and any children of the family in connection with proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation and under section 30 (6) below on proof of neglect by one party to a marriage to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance for the other or a child of the family, that is to say —

Financial provision and property adjustment orders.

1973 c. 18 s. 21

(a) any order for periodical payments in favour of a party to a marriage under section 26 (1) (a) or 30 (6) (a) or in favour of a child of the family under section 26 (1) (d), (2) or (4) or 30 (6) (d);

- (b) any order for secured periodical payments in favour of a party to a marriage under section 26 (1) (b) or 30 (6) (b) or in favour of a child of the family under section 26 (1) (e), (2) or (4) or 30 (6) (e); and
- (c) any order for lump sum provision in favour of a party to a marriage under section 26 (1) (c) or 30 (6) (c) or in favour of a child of the family under section 26 (1) (f), (2) or (4) or 30 (6) (f),

and references in this Ordinance to periodical payments orders, secured periodical payments orders, and orders for the payment of a lump sum are references to all or some of the financial provisions orders requiring the sort of financial provision in question according as the context of each reference may require.

(2) The property adjustment orders for the purposes of this Ordinance are the orders dealing with the property rights available (subject to the provisions of this Ordinance) under section 27 below for the purpose of adjusting the financial position of the parties to a marriage and any children of the family on or after the grant of a decree of divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, that is to say —

- (a) any order under subsection (1) (a) of that section for a transfer of property;
- (b) any order under subsection (1) (b) of that section for a settlement of property; and
- (c) any order under subsection (1) (c) or (d) of that section for a variation of settlement.

ANCILLARY RELIEF IN CONNECTION WITH DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS, ETC.

Maintenance pending suit.
1973 c. 18 s. 22

25. On a petition for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, the court may make an order for maintenance pending suit, that is to say, an order requiring either party to the marriage to make to the other such periodical payments for his or her maintenance and for such term, being a term beginning not earlier than the date of the presentation of the petition and ending with the date of the determination of the suit, as the court thinks reasonable.

Financial provision orders
in connection with divorce
proceedings, etc.
1973 c. 18 s. 23

26. (1) On granting a decree of divorce, a decree of nullity of marriage or a decree of judicial separation or at any time thereafter (whether, in the case of a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, before or after the decree is made absolute), the court may make any one or more of the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) an order that either party to the marriage shall make to the other such periodical payments, for such term, as may be specified in the order;
- (b) an order that either party to the marriage shall secure to the other to the satisfaction of the court such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (c) an order that either party to the marriage shall pay to the other such lump sum or sums as may be so specified;
- (d) an order that a party to the marriage shall make to such person as may be specified in the order for the benefit of a child of the family, or to such a child, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (e) an order that a party to the marriage shall secure to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of such a child, or to such a child, to the satisfaction of the court, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;

- (f) an order that a party to the marriage shall pay to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of such a child, or to such a child, such lump sum as may be so specified;

subject, however, in the case of an order under paragraph (d), (e) or (f) above, to the restrictions imposed by section 32 (1) and (3) below on the making of financial provision orders in favour of children who have attained the age of twenty-one.

(2) The court may also, subject to those restrictions, make any one or more of the orders mentioned in subsection (1) (d), (e) and (f) above —

- (a) in any proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, before granting a decree; and
 (b) where any such proceedings are dismissed after the beginning of the trial, either forthwith or within a reasonable period after the dismissal.

(3) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1) (c) or (f) above —

- (a) an order under this section that a party to a marriage shall pay a lump sum to the other party may be made for the purpose of enabling that other party to meet any liabilities or expenses reasonably incurred by him or her in maintaining himself or herself or any child of the family before making an application for an order under this section in his or her favour;
 (b) an order under this section for the payment of a lump sum to or for the benefit of a child of the family may be made for the purpose of enabling any liabilities or expenses reasonably incurred by or for the benefit of that child before the making of an application for an order under this section in his favour to be met; and
 (c) an order under this section for the payment of a lump sum may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order and may require the payment of the instalments to be secured to the satisfaction of the court.

(4) The power of the court under subsection (1) or (2) (a) above to make an order in favour of a child of the family shall be exercisable from time to time; and where the court makes an order in favour of a child under subsection (2) (b) above, it may from time to time, subject to the restrictions mentioned in subsection (1) above, make a further order in his favour of any of the kinds mentioned in subsection (1) (d), (e) or (f) above.

(5) Without prejudice to the power to give a direction under section 33 below for the settlement of an instrument by the Registrar of the Supreme Court where an order is made under subsection (1) (a), (b) or (c) above on or after granting a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, neither the order nor any settlement made in pursuance of the order shall take effect unless the decree has been made absolute.

27. (1) On granting a decree of divorce, a decree of nullity of marriage or a decree of judicial separation or at any time thereafter (whether, in the case of a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, before or after the decree is made absolute), the court may make any one or more of the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) an order that a party to the marriage shall transfer to the other party, to any child of the family or to such person as may be specified in the order for the benefit of such a child such property as may be so specified, being property to which the first mentioned party is entitled, either in possession or reversion;

Property adjustment
 orders in connection with divorce proceedings, etc.
 1973 c. 18 s. 24

- (b) an order that a settlement of such property as may be so specified, being property to which a party to the marriage is so entitled, be made to the satisfaction of the court for the benefit of the other party to the marriage and of the children of the family or either or any of them;
- (c) an order varying for the benefit of the parties to the marriage and of the children of the family or either or any of them any ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlement (including such a settlement made by will or codicil) made on the parties to the marriage;
- (d) an order extinguishing or reducing the interest of either of the parties to the marriage under any such settlement, subject, however, in the case of an order under paragraph (a) above, to the restrictions imposed by section 32 (1) and (3) below on the making of orders for a transfer of property in favour of children who have attained the age of twenty-one.

(2) The court may make an order under subsection (1) (c) above notwithstanding that there are no children of the family.

(3) Without prejudice to the power to give a direction under section 33 below for the settlement of an instrument by the Registrar of the Supreme Court, where an order is made under this section on or after granting a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, neither the order nor any settlement made in pursuance of the order shall take effect unless the decree has been made absolute.

Matters to which court is to have regard in deciding how to exercise its powers under ss. 26 and 27.

1973 c. 18 s. 25

28. (1) It shall be the duty of the court in deciding whether to exercise its powers under section 26 (1) (a), (b) or (c) or 27 above in relation to a party to the marriage and, if so, in what manner, to have regard to all the circumstances of the case including the following matters, that is to say —

- (a) the income, earning capacity, property and other financial resources which each of the parties to the marriage has or is likely to have in the foreseeable future;
- (b) the financial needs, obligations and responsibilities which each of the parties to the marriage has or is likely to have in the foreseeable future;
- (c) the standard of living enjoyed by the family before the breakdown of the marriage;
- (d) the age of each party to the marriage and the duration of the marriage;
- (e) any physical or mental disability of either of the parties to the marriage;
- (f) the contributions made by each of the parties to the welfare of the family, including any contribution made by looking after the home or caring for the family;
- (g) in the case of proceedings for divorce or nullity of marriage, the value to either of the parties to the marriage of any benefit (for example, a pension) which, by reason of the dissolution or annulment of the marriage, that party will lose the chance of acquiring;

and so to exercise those powers as to place the parties, so far as it is practicable and, having regard to their conduct, just to do so, in the financial position in which they would have been if the marriage had not broken down and each had properly discharged his or her financial obligations and responsibilities towards the other.

(2) Without prejudice to subsection (3) below, it shall be the duty of the court in deciding whether to exercise its powers under section 26 (1) (d), (e) or (f), (2) or (4) or 27 above in relation to a child of the family and, if so, in what manner, to have regard to all the circumstances of the case including the following matters, that is to say —

- (a) the financial needs of the child;
- (b) the income, earning capacity (if any), property and other financial resources of the child;
- (c) any physical or mental disability of the child;
- (d) the standard of living enjoyed by the family before the breakdown of the marriage;
- (e) the manner in which he was being and in which the parties to the marriage expected him to be educated or trained;

and so to exercise those powers as to place the child, so far as it is practicable and having regard to the considerations mentioned in relation to the parties to the marriage in paragraph (a) and (b) of subsection (1) above, just to do so, in the financial position in which the child would have been if the marriage had not broken down and each of those parties had properly discharged his or her financial obligations and responsibilities towards him.

(3) It shall be the duty of the court in deciding whether to exercise its powers under section 26 (1) (d), (e) or (f), (2) or (4) or 27 above against a party to a marriage in favour of a child of the family who is not the child of that party and, if so, in what manner, to have regard (among the circumstances of the case) —

- (a) to whether that party had assumed any responsibility for the child's maintenance and, if so, to the extent to which, and the basis upon which, that party assumed such responsibility;
- (b) to whether in assuming and discharging such responsibility that party did so knowing that the child was not his or her own;
- (c) to the liability of any other person to maintain the child.

29. (1) Where a petition for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation has been presented, then, subject to subsection (2) below, proceedings for maintenance pending suit under section 25 above, for a financial provision order under section 26 above, or for a property adjustment order may be begun, subject to and in accordance with rules of court, at any time after the presentation of the petition.

(2) Rules of court may provide, in such cases as may be prescribed by the rules —

- (a) that application of any such relief as is mentioned in subsection (1) above shall be made in the petition or answer; and
- (b) that applications for any such relief which are not so made, or are not made until after the expiration of such period following the presentation of the petition or filing of the answer as may be so prescribed, shall be made only with the leave of the court.

FINANCIAL PROVISION IN CASE OF NEGLECT TO MAINTAIN

30. (1) Either party to a marriage may apply to the court for an order under this section on the ground that the other party to the marriage (in this section referred to as the respondent) —

- (a) being the husband, has wilfully neglected —
 - (i) to provide reasonable maintenance for the applicant, or
 - (ii) to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance for any child of the family to whom this section applies;
- (b) being the wife, has wilfully neglected to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance —
 - (i) for the applicant in a case where, by reason of the impairment of the applicant's earning capacity through age, illness or disability of mind or body, and having regard to any resources of the applicant and the respondent respectively which are, or should properly be made, available for the purpose, it is reasonable in all the circumstances to expect the respondent so to provide or contribute, or

(ii) for any child of the family to whom this section applies.

(2) The court shall not entertain an application under this section unless—

- (a) the applicant or the respondent is domiciled in the Colony on the date of the application; or
- (b) the applicant has been habitually resident there throughout the period of one year ending with that date; or
- (c) the respondent is resident there on that date.

(3) This section applies to any child of the family for whose maintenance it is reasonable in all the circumstances to expect the respondent to provide or towards whose maintenance it is reasonable in all the circumstances to expect the respondent to make a proper contribution.

(4) Where the child of the family to whom the application under this section relates is not the child of the respondent, then, in deciding—

- (a) whether the respondent has been guilty of wilful neglect to provide, or to make a proper contribution towards, reasonable maintenance for the child, and
- (b) what order, if any, to make under this section in favour of the child,

the court shall have regard to the matters mentioned in section 28 (3) above.

(5) Where on application under this section it appears to the court that the applicant or any child of the family to whom the application relates is in immediate need of financial assistance, but it is not yet possible to determine what order, if any, should be made on the application, the court may make an interim order for maintenance, that is to say, an order requiring the respondent to make to the applicant until the determination of the application such periodical payments as the court thinks reasonable.

(6) Where on an application under this section the applicant satisfies the court of any ground mentioned in subsection (1) above, the court may make such one or more of the following orders as it thinks just, that is to say—

- (a) an order that the respondent shall make to the applicant such periodical payments, for such term, as may be specified in the order;
- (b) an order that the respondent shall secure to the applicant to the satisfaction of the court, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (c) an order that the respondent shall pay to the applicant such lump sum as may be so specified;
- (d) an order that the respondent shall make to such person as may be specified in the order for the benefit of the child, to whom the application relates, or to that child, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (e) an order that the respondent shall secure to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of that child, or to that child, to the satisfaction of the court, such periodical payments, for such term, as may be so specified;
- (f) an order that the respondent shall pay to such person as may be so specified for the benefit of that child, or to that child, such lump sum as may be so specified;

subject, however, in the case of an order under paragraph (d), (e) or (f) above, to the restriction imposed by section 32 (1) and (3) below on the making of financial provision orders in favour of children who have attained the age of eighteen.

(7) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (6) (c) or (f) above, an order under this section for the payment of a lump sum —

- (a) may be made for the purpose of enabling any liabilities or expenses reasonably incurred in maintaining the applicant or any child of the family to whom the application relates before the making of the application to be met;
- (b) may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order and may require the payment of the instalments to be secured to the satisfaction of the court.

(8) For the purpose of proceedings on an application under this section adultery which has been condoned shall not be capable of being revived, and any presumption of condonation which arises from the continuance or resumption of marital intercourse may be rebutted by evidence sufficient to negative the necessary intent.

ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS WITH RESPECT TO FINANCIAL PROVISION AND PROPERTY ADJUSTMENT ORDERS

31. (1) The term to be specified in a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage shall be such term as the court thinks fit, subject to the following limits, that is to say —

- (a) in the case of a periodical payments order, the term shall begin not earlier than the date of the making of an application for the order and shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death of either of the parties to the marriage, or, where the order is made on or after the grant of a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, the remarriage of the party in whose favour the order is made; and
- (b) in the case of a secured periodical payments order, the term shall begin not earlier than the date of the making of an application for the order, and shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death or, where the order is made on or after the grant of a decree, the remarriage of the party in whose favour the order is made.

(2) Where a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage is made otherwise than on or after the grant of a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, and the marriage in question is subsequently dissolved or annulled but the order continues in force, the order shall, notwithstanding anything in it, cease to have effect on the remarriage of that party, except in relation to any arrears due under it on the date of the remarriage.

(3) If after the grant of a decree dissolving or annulling a marriage either party to that marriage remarries, that party shall not be entitled to apply, by reference to the grant of that decree, for a financial provision order in his or her favour, or for a property adjustment order, against the other party to that marriage.

32. (1) Subject of subsection (3) below, no financial provision order and no order for a transfer of property under section 27 (1) (a) above shall be made in favour of a child who has attained the age of eighteen.

Duration of continuing financial provision orders in favour of party to marriage, and effect of remarriage.

1973 c. 18 s. 28

Duration of continuing financial provision orders in favour of children, and age limit on making certain orders in their favour.

1973 c. 18 s. 29

(2) The term to be specified in a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a child may begin with the date of the making of an application for the order in question or any later date but —

- (a) shall not in the first instance extend beyond the date of the birthday of the child next following his attaining the upper limit of the compulsory school age (that is to say, the age that is for the time being that limit by virtue of section 2 of the Education Ordinance 1967) unless the court thinks it right in the circumstances of the case to specify a later date; and
- (b) shall not in any event, subject to subsection (3) below, extend beyond the date of the child's eighteenth birthday.

14 of 1967

(3) Subsection (1) above, and paragraph (b) of subsection (2), shall not apply in the case of a child, if it appears to the court that —

- (a) the child is, or will be, or if an order were made without complying with either or both of those provisions would be, receiving instruction at an educational establishment or undergoing training for a trade, profession or vocation, whether or not he is also, or will also be, in gainful employment; or
- (b) there are special circumstances which justify the making of an order without complying with either or both of these provisions.

(4) Any periodical payments order in favour of a child shall, notwithstanding anything in the order, cease to have effect on the death of the person liable to make payments under the order, except in relation to any arrears due under the order on the date of the death.

Direction for settlement of instrument for securing payments or effecting property adjustment.

1973 c. 18 s. 30

33. Where the court decides to make a financial provision order requiring any payments to be secured or a property adjustment order —

- (a) it may direct that the matter be referred to the Registrar of the Supreme Court for him to settle a proper instrument to be executed by all necessary parties; and
- (b) where the order is to be made in proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation it may, if it thinks fit, defer the grant of the decree in question until the instrument has been duly executed.

VARIATION, DISCHARGE AND ENFORCEMENT OF CERTAIN ORDERS, ETC.

Variation, discharge, etc., of certain orders for financial relief.

1973 c. 18 s. 31

34. (1) Where the court has made an order to which this section applies, then, subject to the provisions of this section, the court shall have power to vary or discharge the order or to suspend any provision thereof temporarily and to revive the operation of any provision so suspended.

(2) This section applies to the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) any order for maintenance pending suit and any interim order for maintenance;
- (b) any periodical payments order;
- (c) any secured periodical payments order;
- (d) any order made by virtue of section 26 (3) (c) or 30 (7) (b) above (provision for payment of a lump sum by instalments);
- (e) any order for a settlement of property under section 27 (1) (b) or for a variation of settlement under section 27 (1) (c) or (d) above, being an order made on or after the grant of a decree of judicial separation.

(3) The powers exercisable by the court under this section in relation to an order shall be exercisable also in relation to any instrument executed in pursuance of the order.

(4) The court shall not exercise the powers conferred by this section in relation to an order for a settlement under section 27 (1) (b) or for a variation of settlement under section 27 (1) (c) or (d) above except on an application made in proceedings —

- (a) for the rescission of the decree of judicial separation by reference to which the order was made, or
- (b) for the dissolution of the marriage in question.

(5) No property adjustment order shall be made on an application for the variation of a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order made (whether in favour of a party to a marriage or in favour of a child of the family) under section 26 above, and no order for the payment of a lump sum shall be made on an application for the variation of a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage (whether made under section 26 or under section 30 above).

(6) Where the person liable to make payments under a secured periodical payments order has died, an application under this section relating to that order may be made by the person entitled to payments under the order or by the personal representatives of the deceased person, but no such application shall, except with the permission of the court, be made after the end of the period of six months from the date on which representation in regard to the estate of that person is first taken out.

(7) In exercising the powers conferred by this section the court shall have regard to all the circumstances of the case, including any change in any of the matters to which the court was required to have regard when making the order to which the application relates and, where the party against whom that order was made has died, the changed circumstances resulting from his or her death.

(8) The personal representative of a deceased person against whom a secured periodical payments order was made shall not be liable for having distributed any part of the estate of the deceased after the expiration of the period of six months referred to in subsection (6) above on the ground that they ought to have taken into account the possibility that the court might permit an application under this section to be made after that period by the person entitled to payments under the order; but this subsection shall not prejudice any power to recover any part of the estate so distributed arising by virtue of the making of an order in pursuance of this section.

(9) In considering for the purposes of subsection (6) above the question when representation was first taken out, a grant limited to settled land or to trust property shall be left out of account and a grant limited to real estate or to personal estate shall be left out of account unless a grant limited to the remainder of the estate has previously been made or is made at the same time.

35. (1) A person shall not be entitled to enforce through the court the payment of any arrears due under an order for maintenance pending suit, an interim order for maintenance or any financial provision order without the leave of that court if those arrears become due more than twelve months before proceedings to enforce the payment of them are begun.

(2) The court hearing an application for the grant of leave under this section may refuse leave, or may grant leave subject to such restrictions and conditions (including conditions as to the allowing of time for payment or the making of payment by instalments) as the court thinks proper, or may remit the payment of the arrears or of any part thereof.

Payment of certain arrears unenforceable without the leave of the court.

1973 c. 18 s. 32

Orders for repayment in certain cases of sums paid under certain orders.
1973 c. 18 s. 33

(3) An application for the grant of leave under this section shall be made in such manner as may be prescribed by rules of court.

36. (1) Where on an application made under this section in relation to an order to which this section applies it appears to the court that by reason of —

- (a) a change in the circumstances of the person entitled to, or liable to make, payments under the order since the order was made, or
- (b) the changed circumstances resulting from the death of the person so liable,

the amount received by the person entitled to payments under the order in respect of a period after those circumstances changed or after the death of the person liable to make payments under the order, as the case may be, exceeds the amount which the person so liable or his or her personal representatives should have been required to pay, the court may order the respondent to the application to pay to the applicant such sum, not exceeding the amount of the excess, as the court thinks just.

(2) This section applies to the following orders, that is to say —

- (a) any order for maintenance pending suit and any interim order for maintenance;
- (b) any periodical payments order; and
- (c) any secured periodical payments order.

(3) An application under this section may be made by the person liable to make payments under an order to which this section applies or his or her personal representatives and may be made against the person entitled to payments under the order or her or his personal representatives.

(4) An application under this section may be made in proceedings in the court for —

- (a) the variation or discharge of the order to which this section applies, or
- (b) leave to enforce, or the enforcement of, the payment of arrears under that order.

(5) An order under this section for the payment of any sum may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order.

MAINTENANCE AGREEMENTS

Validity of maintenance agreements.
1973 c. 18 s. 34

37. (1) If a maintenance agreement includes a provision purporting to restrict any right to apply to the court for an order containing financial arrangements, then —

- (a) that provision shall be void; but
- (b) any other financial arrangements contained in the agreement shall not thereby be rendered void or unenforceable and shall, unless they are void or unenforceable for any other reason (and subject to sections 38 and 39 below), be binding on the parties to the agreement.

(2) In this section and in section 38 below —

“Maintenance agreement” means any agreement in writing made, whether before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, between the parties to a marriage, being —

- (a) an agreement containing financial arrangements, whether made during the continuance or after the dissolution or annulment of the marriage; or

- (b) a separation agreement which contains no financial arrangements in a case where no other agreement in writing between the same parties contains such arrangements;

“financial arrangements” means provisions governing the rights and liabilities towards one another when living separately of the parties to a marriage (including a marriage which has been dissolved or annulled) in respect of the making or securing of payments or the disposition or use of any property, including such rights and liabilities with respect to the maintenance or education of any child, whether or not a child of the family.

38. (1) Where a maintenance agreement is for the time being subsisting and each of the parties to the agreement is for the time being either domiciled or resident in the Colony, then, subject to subsection (3) below, either party may apply to the court for an order under this section.

Alteration of agreements by court during lives of parties.

1973 c. 18 s. 35

(2) If the court is satisfied either —

- (a) that by reason of a change in the circumstances in the light of which any financial arrangements contained in the agreement were made or, as the case may be, financial arrangements were omitted from it (including a change foreseen by the parties when making the agreement), the agreement should be altered so as to make different, or, as the case may be, so as to contain, financial arrangements, or
- (b) that the agreement does not contain proper financial arrangements with respect to any child of the family,

then subject to subsections (3), (4) and (5) below, the court may by order make such alterations in the agreement —

- (i) by varying or revoking any financial arrangements contained in it, or
- (ii) by inserting in it financial arrangements for the benefit of one of the parties to the agreement or of a child of the family,

as may appear to the court to be just having regard to all the circumstances, including, if relevant, the matters mentioned in section 28 (3) above; and the agreement shall have effect thereafter as if any alteration made by the order had been made by agreement between the parties and for valuable consideration.

(3) Where the court decides to alter, by order under this section, an agreement by inserting provision for the making or securing by one of the parties to the agreement of periodical payments for the maintenance of the other party or by increasing the rate of the periodical payments which the agreement provides shall be made by one of the parties for the maintenance of the other, the term for which the payments or, as the case may be, the additional payments attributable to the increase are to be made under the agreement as altered by the order shall be such term as the court may specify, subject to the following limits, that is to say —

- (a) where the payments will not be secured, the term shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death of either of the parties to the agreement or the remarriage of the party to whom the payments are to be made;
- (b) where the payments will be secured, the term shall be so defined as not to extend beyond the death or remarriage of that party.

(4) Where the court decides to alter, by order under this section, an agreement by inserting provision for the making or securing by one of the parties to the agreement of periodical payments for the maintenance of a child of the family or by increasing the rate of the periodical payments which the agreement provides shall be made or secured by one of the parties for the maintenance of such a child, then, in deciding the term for which under the agreement as altered by the order the payments, or as the case may be, the additional payments attributable to the increase are to be made or secured for the benefit of the child, the court shall apply the provisions of section 32 (2) and (3) above as to age limits as if the order in question were a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of the child.

(5) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that nothing in this section or in section 37 above affects any power of the court before which any proceedings between the parties to a maintenance agreement are brought under any other enactment (including a provision of this Ordinance) to make an order containing financial arrangements or any right of either party to apply for such an order in such proceedings.

Alteration of agreements
by court after death of one party.

(6)

39. (1) Where a maintenance agreement within the meaning of section 37 above provides for the continuation of payments under the agreement after the death of one of the parties and that party dies domiciled in the Colony, the surviving party or the personal representatives of the deceased party may, subject to subsections (2) and (3) below, apply to the court for an order under section 38 above.

(2) An application under this section shall not, except with the permission of the court, be made after the end of the period of six months from the date on which representation in regard to the estate of the deceased is first taken out.

(3) If a maintenance agreement is altered by the court on an application made in pursuance of subsection (1) above, the like consequences shall ensue as if the alteration has been made immediately before the death by agreement between the parties and for valuable consideration.

(4) The provisions of this section shall not render the personal representatives of the deceased liable for having distributed any part of the estate of the deceased after the expiration of the period of six months referred to in subsection (2) above on the ground that they ought to have taken into account the possibility that the court might permit an application by virtue of this section to be made by the surviving party after that period; but this subsection shall not prejudice any power to recover any part of the estate so distributed arising by virtue of the making of an order in pursuance of this section.

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTAL

Avoidance of transactions intended to prevent or reduce financial relief.

1973 c. 18 s. 37

40. (1) For the purposes of this section "financial relief" means relief under any of the provisions of sections 25, 26, 27, 30, 34 (except subsection (5)) and 38 above, and any reference in this section to defeating a person's claim for financial relief is a reference to preventing financial relief from being granted to that person, or to that person for the benefit of a child of the family, or reducing the amount of any financial relief which might be so granted, or frustrating or impeding the enforcement of any order which might be or has been made at his instance under any of those provisions.

(2) Where proceedings for financial relief are brought by one person against another, the court may, on the application of the first-mentioned person —

- (a) if it is satisfied that the other party to the proceedings is, with the intention of defeating the claim for financial relief, about to make any disposition or to transfer out of the jurisdiction or otherwise deal with any property, make such order as it thinks fit for restraining the other party from so doing or otherwise for protecting the claim;

- (b) if it is satisfied that the other party has, with that intention, made a reviewable disposition and that if the disposition were set aside financial relief or different financial relief would be granted to the applicant, make an order setting aside the disposition;
- (c) if it is satisfied, in a case where an order has been obtained under any of the provisions mentioned in subsection (1) above by the applicant against the other party, that the other party has, with that intention, made a reviewable disposition, make an order setting aside the disposition;

and an application for the purposes of paragraph (b) above shall be made in the proceedings for the financial relief in question.

(3) Where the court makes an order under subsection (2) (b) or (c) above setting aside a disposition it shall give such consequential directions as it thinks fit for giving effect to the order (including directions requiring the making of any payments or the disposal of any property).

(4) Any disposition made by the other party to the proceedings for financial relief in question (whether before or after the commencement of those proceedings) is a reviewable disposition for the purposes of subsections (2) (b) and (c) above unless it was made for valuable consideration (other than marriage) to a person who, at the time of the disposition, acted in relation to it in good faith and without notice of any intention on the part of the other party to defeat the applicant's claim for financial relief.

(5) Where an application is made under this section with respect to a disposition which took place less than three years before the date of the application or with respect to a disposition or other dealing with property which is about to take place and the court is satisfied —

- (a) in a case falling within subsection (2) (a) or (b) above, that the disposition or other dealing would (apart from this section) have the consequence, or
- (b) in a case falling within subsection (2) (c) above, that the disposition has had the consequence, of defeating the applicant's claim for financial relief, it shall be presumed, unless the contrary is shown, that the person who disposed of or is about to dispose of or deal with the property did so or, as the case may be, is about to do so, with the intention of defeating the applicant's claim for financial relief.

(6) In this section "disposition" does not include any provision contained in a will or codicil but, with that exception, includes any conveyance, assurance or gift of property of any description, whether made by an instrument or otherwise.

(7) The provisions of this section shall not apply to a disposition made more than three years before the commencement of this Ordinance.

41. (1) Where —

- (a) a periodical payments or secured periodical payments order in favour of a party to a marriage (hereafter in this section referred to as "a payments order") has ceased to have effect by reason of the remarriage of that party, and
- (b) the person liable to make payments under the order or his or her personal representatives made payments in accordance with it in respect of a period after the date of the remarriage in the mistaken belief that the order was still subsisting,

the person so liable or his or her personal representatives shall not be entitled to bring proceedings in respect of a cause of action arising

Orders for repayment in certain cases of sums paid after cessation of order by reason of remarriage.

1973 c. 18 s. 38

out of the circumstances mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b) above against the person entitled to payments under the order or her or his personal representatives, but may instead make an application against that person or her or his personal representatives under this section.

(2) On an application under this section the court may order the respondent to pay to the applicant a sum equal to the amount of the payments made in respect of the period mentioned in subsection (1) (b) above or, if it appears to the court that it would be unjust to make that order, it may either order the respondent to pay to the applicant such lesser sum as it thinks fit or dismiss the application.

(3) An application under this section may be made in proceedings in the court for leave to enforce, or the enforcement of, payment of arrears under the order in question.

(4) An order under this section for the payment of any sum may provide for the payment of that sum by instalments of such amount as may be specified in the order.

(5) No officer of the court to whom payments under an order to which this section applies are required to be made shall be liable for any act done by him in pursuance of the order after the date on which that order ceased to have effect by reason of the remarriage of the person entitled to payments under it, if, but only if, the act was one which he would have been under a duty to do had the order not ceased to have effect as aforesaid and the act was done before notice in writing of the fact that the person so entitled had remarried was given to him by or on behalf of that person, the person liable to make payments under the order or the personal representatives of either of those persons.

Settlement, etc., made in compliance with a property adjustment order may be avoided on bankruptcy of settler.

1973 c. 18 s. 39

Payments, etc., under order made in favour of persons suffering from mental derangement.

1973 c. 18 s. 40

(Cap. 46)

42. The fact that a settlement or transfer of property had to be made in order to comply with a property adjustment order shall not prevent that settlement or transfer from being a settlement of property to which section 42 (1) of the Bankruptcy Act 1914 (avoidance of certain settlements) applies.

43. Where the court makes an order under this part of this Ordinance requiring payments (including a lump sum payment) to be made, or property to be transferred to a party to a marriage and the court is satisfied that the person in whose favour an order is made is incapable, by reason of mental derangement within the meaning of the Mental Treatment Ordinance, of managing and administering his or her property and affairs then, the court may order the payments to be made, or as the case may be, the property to be transferred, to such persons having charge of that person as the court may direct.

PART IV

PROTECTION, CUSTODY, ETC., OF CHILDREN

Restrictions on decrees for dissolution, annulment or separation affecting children.

1973 c. 18 s. 41

44. (1) The court shall not make absolute a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, or grant a decree of judicial separation, unless the court, by order, has declared that it is satisfied —

- (a) that for the purposes of this section there are no children of the family to whom this section applies; or
- (b) that the only children who are or may be children of the family to whom this section applies are the children named in the order and that —
 - (i) arrangements for the welfare of every child so named have been made and are satisfactory or are the best that can be devised in the circumstances; or
 - (ii) it is impracticable for the party or parties appearing before the court to make any such arrangements; or
- (c) that there are circumstances making it desirable that the decree should be made absolute or should be granted, as the case may be, without delay notwithstanding that there are or may be children of the family to whom this section applies and that the court is unable to make a declaration in accordance with paragraph (b) above.

(2) The court shall not make an order declaring that it is satisfied as mentioned in subsection (1) (c) above unless it has obtained a satisfactory undertaking from either or both of the parties to bring the question of the arrangements for the children named in the order before the court within a specified time.

(3) If the court makes absolute a decree of divorce or of nullity of marriage, or grants a decree of judicial separation, without having made an order under subsection (1) above the decree shall be void but, if such an order was made, no person shall be entitled to challenge the validity of the decree on the ground that the conditions prescribed by subsections (1) and (2) above were not fulfilled.

(4) If the court refuses to make an order under subsection (1) above in any proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, it shall, on an application by either party to the proceedings, make an order declaring that it is not satisfied as mentioned in that subsection.

(5) This section applies to the following children of the family, that is to say —

(a) any minor child of the family who at the date of the order under subsection (1) above is —

- (i) under the age of fifteen, or
- (ii) receiving instruction at an educational establishment or undergoing training for a trade, profession or vocation, whether or not he is also in gainful employment; and

(b) any other child of the family to whom the court by an order under that subsection directs that this section shall apply; and the court may give such a direction if it is of opinion that there are special circumstances which make it desirable in the interest of the child that this section should apply to him.

(6) In this section “welfare”, in relation to a child, includes the custody and education of the child and financial provision for him.

45. (1) The court may make such order as it thinks fit for the custody and education of any child of the family who is under the age of eighteen —

- (a) in any proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, before or on granting a decree or at any time thereafter (whether, in the case of a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, before or after the decree is made absolute);
- (b) where any such proceedings are dismissed after the beginning of the trial, either forthwith or within a reasonable period after the dismissal;

and in any case in which the court has power by virtue of this subsection to make an order in respect of a child it may instead, if it thinks fit, direct that proper proceedings be taken for making the child a ward of court.

(2) Where the court makes an order under section 30 above, the court shall also have power to make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the custody of any child of the family who is for the time being under the age of eighteen; but the power conferred by this subsection and any order made in exercise of that power shall have effect only as respects any period when an order is in force under that section and the child is under that age.

Orders for custody and education of children in cases of divorce, etc., and for custody in cases of neglect.

1973 c. 18 s. 42

(3) Where the court grants or makes absolute a decree of divorce or grants a decree of judicial separation, it may include in the decree a declaration that either party to the marriage in question is unfit to have the custody of the children of the family.

(4) Where a decree of divorce or of judicial separation contains such a declaration as is mentioned in subsection (3) above, then, if the party to whom the declaration relates is a parent of any child of the family, that party shall not, on the death of the other parent, be entitled as of right to the custody or the guardianship of that child.

(5) Where an order in respect of a child is made under this section, the order shall not affect the rights over or with respect to the child of any person, other than a party to the marriage in question, unless the child is the child of one or both of the parties to that marriage and that person was a party to the proceedings on the application for an order under this section.

(6) The power of the court under subsection (1)(a) or (2) above to make an order with respect to a child shall be exercisable from time to time; and where the court makes an order under subsection (1)(b) above with respect to a child it may from time to time until that child attains the age of eighteen make a further order with respect to his custody and education.

(7) The court shall have power to vary or discharge an order made under this section or to suspend any provision thereof temporarily and to revive the operation of any provision so suspended.

Power to commit children
to care of other person.
1973 c. 18 s. 43

46. (1) Where the court has jurisdiction by virtue of this Part of this Ordinance to make an order for the custody of a child and it appears to the court that there are exceptional circumstances making it impracticable or undesirable for the child to be entrusted to either of the parties of the marriage, the court may if it thinks fit make an order committing the care of the child to any other person.

(2) While an order made by virtue of this section is in force with respect to a child, the child shall continue in the care of the other person notwithstanding any claim by a parent or other person.

(3) An order made by virtue of this section shall cease to have effect as respects any child when he becomes eighteen, and the court shall not make an order committing a child to the care of any other person under this section after he has become seventeen.

Power to provide for supervision of children.
1973 c. 18 s. 44

47. (1) Where the court has jurisdiction by virtue of this Part of this Ordinance to make an order for the custody of a child and it appears to the court that there are exceptional circumstances making it desirable that the child should be under the supervision of an independent person, the court may, as respects any period during which the child is, in exercise of that jurisdiction, committed to the custody of any person, order that the child be under the supervision of an independent person.

(2) Where a child is under the supervision of an independent person in pursuance of this section the jurisdiction possessed by the court to vary any financial provision order in the child's favour or any order made with respect to his custody or education under this Part of this Ordinance shall, subject to any rules of court, be exercisable at the instance of the court.

(3) The court shall have power from time to time by an order under this section to vary or discharge any provision made in pursuance of this section.

PART V

RECOGNITION OF OVERSEAS DIVORCES AND LEGAL SEPARATIONS

Recognition in the Colony
of overseas divorces and
legal separations.
1971 c. 53 s. 2

48. Sections 49 to 51 shall have effect, subject to section 54 below, as respects the recognition in the Colony of the validity of overseas divorces and legal separations, that is to say, divorces and legal separations which —

- (a) have been obtained by means of judicial or other proceedings in any country outside the Colony; and
- (b) are effective under the law of that country.

49. (1) The validity of an overseas divorce or legal separation shall be recognised if, at the date of the institution of the proceedings in the country in which it was obtained —

- (a) either spouse was habitually resident in that country; or
- (b) either spouse was a national of that country.

(2) In relation to a country the law of which uses the concept of domicile as a ground of jurisdiction in matters of divorce or legal separation, subsection (1)(a) of this section shall have effect as if the reference to habitual residence included a reference to domicile within the meaning of that law.

(3) In relation to a country comprising territories in which different systems of law are in force in matters of divorce or legal separation, the foregoing provisions of this section (except those relating to nationality) shall have effect as if each territory were a separate country.

50. (1) Where there have been cross-proceedings, the validity of an overseas divorce or legal separation obtained either in the original proceedings or in the cross-proceedings shall be recognised if the requirements of paragraph (a) or (b) of section 49 (1) above, are satisfied in relation to the date of the institution either of the original proceedings or of the cross-proceedings.

(2) Where a legal separation the validity of which is entitled to recognition by virtue of the provisions of section 49 above or of subsection (1) of this section is converted, in the country in which it was obtained, into a divorce, the validity of the divorce shall be recognised whether or not it would itself be entitled to recognition by virtue of those provisions.

51. (1) For the purpose of deciding whether an overseas divorce or legal separation is entitled to recognition by virtue of this Part, any finding of fact made (whether expressly or by implication) in the proceedings by means of which the divorce or legal separation was obtained and on the basis of which jurisdiction was assumed in those proceedings shall —

- (a) if both spouses took part in the proceedings, be conclusive evidence of the fact found; and
- (b) in any other case, be sufficient proof of that fact unless the contrary is shown.

(2) In this section “finding of fact” includes a finding that either spouse was habitually resident or domiciled in, or a national of, the country in which the divorce or legal separation was obtained; and for the purpose of subsection (1)(a) of this section, a spouse who has appeared in judicial proceedings shall be treated as having taken part in them.

52. (1) In this section “the common law rules” means the rules of law relating to the recognition of divorces or legal separations obtained in the country of the spouses’ domicile or obtained elsewhere and recognised as valid in that country.

(2) In any circumstances in which the validity of a divorce or legal separation obtained in a country outside the Colony would be recognised by virtue only of the common law rules if either —

- (a) the spouses had at the material time both been domiciled in that country; or

Grounds for recognition.

Cross-proceedings and divorce following legal separation.
1971 c. 53 s. 4

Proof of facts relevant to recognition.
1971 c. 53 s. 5

Existing common law and statutory rules.
1971 c. 53 s. 6

- (b) the divorce or separation were recognised as valid under the law of the spouses' domicile, its validity shall also be recognised if subsection (3) below is satisfied in relation to it.

(3) This subsection is satisfied in relation to a divorce or legal separation obtained in a country outside the Colony if either —

- (a) one of the spouses was at the material time domiciled in that country and the divorce or separation was recognised as valid under the law of the domicile of the other spouse; or
- (b) neither of the spouses having been domiciled in that country at the material time, the divorce or separation was recognised as valid under the law of the domicile of each of the spouses respectively.

(4) For any purpose of subsection (2) or (3) above "the material time", in relation to a divorce or legal separation, means the time of the institution of proceedings in the country in which it was obtained.

(5) Sections 48 to 51 above are without prejudice to the recognition of the validity of divorces and legal separations obtained outside the Colony by virtue of the common law rules (as extended by this section), or of any enactment other than this Ordinance; but, subject to this section, no divorce or legal separation so obtained shall be recognised as valid in the Colony except as provided by those sections.

Non-recognition of divorce by third country no bar to remarriage.

1971 c. 53 s. 7

53. Where the validity of a divorce obtained in any country is entitled to recognition by virtue of sections 48 to 51 or section 52 (2) above, or by virtue of any rule or enactment preserved by section 52 (5) above, neither spouse shall be precluded from re-marrying in the Colony on the ground that the validity of the divorce would not be recognised in any other country.

Exceptions from recognition.

1971 c. 53 s. 8

54. (1) The validity of a divorce or legal separation obtained outside the Colony shall not be recognised in the Colony if it was granted or obtained at a time when, according to the law of the Colony (including its rule of private international law and the provisions of this Part), there was no subsisting marriage between the parties.

(2) Subject to subsection (1) of this section, recognition by virtue of sections 48 to 51 or section 52 (2) above, or of any rule preserved by section 52 (5) thereof of the validity of a divorce or legal separation obtained outside the Colony may be refused if, and only if —

- (a) it was obtained by one spouse —
- (i) without such steps having been taken for giving notice of the proceedings to the other spouse as, having regard to the nature of the proceedings and all the circumstances, should reasonably have been taken; or
- (ii) without the other spouse having been given (for any reason other than lack of notice) such opportunity to take part in the proceedings as, having regard to the matters aforesaid, he should reasonably have been given; or

- (b) its recognition would manifestly be contrary to public policy.

(3) Nothing in this Part shall be construed as requiring the recognition of any findings of fault made in any proceedings for divorce or separation or of any maintenance, custody or other ancillary order made in any such proceedings.

55. (1) In this Part, "country" includes a colony or other dependent territory of the United Kingdom but for the purposes of this Part a person shall be treated as a national of such a colony or dependent territory only if it has a law of citizenship or nationality separate from that of the United Kingdom and he is a citizen or national of that colony or dependent territory under that law.

Interpretation and transitional provisions.

1971 c. 53 s. 10 (3) & (4)

(2) The provisions of this Part relating to overseas divorces and legal separations and other divorces and legal separations obtained outside the Colony apply to a divorce or legal separation obtained before the commencement of this Ordinance as well as to one obtained on or after that date and, in the case of a divorce or legal separation obtained before that date —

- (a) require, or, as the case may be, preclude, the recognition of its validity in relation to any time before that date as well as in relation to any subsequent time; but
- (b) do not affect any property rights to which any person became entitled before that date or apply where the question of the validity of the divorce or legal separation has been decided by the court before that date.

PART VI

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTAL

56. (1) Any person who is a British subject, or whose right to be deemed a British subject depends wholly or in part on his legitimacy or on the validity of any marriage, may, if he is domiciled in the Colony or claims any real or personal estate situate in the Colony, apply by petition to the court for a decree declaring that he is the legitimate child of his parents, or that the marriage of his father and mother or of his grandfather and grandmother was a valid marriage or that his own marriage was a valid marriage.

Declaration of legitimacy, etc.

1973 c. 18 s. 45

(2) Any person claiming that he or his parent or any remoter ancestor became or has become a legitimated person may apply by petition to the court in the manner prescribed by rules of court, for a decree declaring that he or his parent or remoter ancestor, as the case may be, became or has become a legitimated person.

In this subsection "legitimated person" means a person legitimated by the Legitimacy Act 1926, and includes a person recognised under section 8 of that Act as legitimated.

(3) Any person who is domiciled in the Colony or claims any real or personal estate situate in the Colony may apply to the court for a decree declaring his right to be deemed a British subject.

(4) Applications to the court under the preceding provisions of this section may be included in the same petition, and on any application under the preceding provisions of this section the court shall make such decree as it thinks just, and the decree shall be binding on Her Majesty and all other persons whatsoever, so however that the decree shall not prejudice any person —

- (a) if it is subsequently proved to have been obtained by fraud or collusion; or
- (b) unless that person has been given notice of the application in the manner prescribed by rules of court or made a party to the proceedings or claims through a person so given notice or made a party.

(5) A copy of every application under this section and of any affidavit accompanying it shall be delivered to the Chief Secretary at least one month before the application is made, and the Chief Secretary shall be a respondent on the hearing of the application and on any subsequent proceedings relating thereto.

(6) Where any application is made under this section, such persons as the court hearing the application thinks fit, shall, subject to rules of court, be given notice of the application in the manner prescribed by rules of court, and any such persons may be permitted to become parties to the proceedings and to oppose the application.

(7) No proceedings under this section shall affect any final judgment or decree already pronounced or made by the court.

(8) The court may direct that the whole or any part of the proceedings shall be heard in camera, and an application for a direction under this subsection shall be heard in camera unless the court otherwise directs.

Evidence.

1973 c. 18 s. 48

57. (1) The evidence of a husband or wife shall be admissible in any proceedings to prove that marital intercourse did or did not take place between them during any period.

(2) In any proceedings for nullity of marriage, evidence on the question of sexual capacity shall be heard in camera unless in any case the judge is satisfied that in the interests of justice any such evidence ought to be heard in open court.

Parties to proceedings under this Ordinance.

1973 c. 18 s. 49

58. (1) Where in a petition for divorce or judicial separation, or in any other pleading praying for either form of relief, one party to a marriage alleges that the other has committed adultery, he or she shall make the person alleged to have committed adultery with the other party to the marriage a party to the proceedings unless excused by the court on special grounds from doing so.

(2) Rules of court may, either generally or in such cases as may be prescribed by the rules, exclude the application of subsection (1) above where the person alleged to have committed adultery with the other party to the marriage is not named in the petition or other pleading.

(3) Where in pursuance of subsection (1) above a person is made a party to proceedings for divorce or judicial separation, the court may, if after the close of the evidence on the part of the person making the allegation of adultery it is of opinion that there is not sufficient evidence against the person so made a party, dismiss him or her from the suit.

(4) Rules of court may make provision, in cases not falling within subsection (1) above, with respect to the joinder as parties to proceedings under this Ordinance of persons involved in allegations of adultery or other improper conduct made in those proceedings, and with respect to the dismissal from such proceedings of any parties so joined; and rules of court made by virtue of this subsection may make different provision for different cases.

(5) In every case in which adultery with any party to a suit is alleged against any person not made a party to the suit or in which the court considers, in the interest of any person not already a party to the suit, that that person should be made a party to the suit, the court may if it thinks fit allow that person to intervene upon such terms, if any, as the court thinks just.

Matrimonial causes rules.

59. The Governor in Council may make rules for the better carrying out of the purposes and provisions of this Ordinance and in particular, but without prejudice, may make rules —

- (a) as to all matters of procedure under this Ordinance;
- (b) prescribing the forms to be used under this Ordinance;
- (c) with regard to any matter as to which rules may be made under this Ordinance;
- (d) prescribing the fees and costs to be paid, charged or allowed under this Ordinance.

60. The Matrimonial Causes Ordinance is repealed.

Cap. 44.

61. Without prejudice to the provisions of section 38 of the Interpretation Act 1889 (which relates to the effect of repeals) nothing in the repeal made by this Ordinance shall affect any application made, proceeding begun, or made or deemed to have been made, or direction given or deemed to have been given, under any provisions of the Matrimonial Causes Ordinance repealed by this Ordinance, and subject to the provisions of this Ordinance —

- (a) every such application or proceeding which is pending at the commencement of this Ordinance shall have effect as if made or begun under the corresponding provision of this Ordinance; and
- (b) every such order or direction shall, if in force at the commencement of this Ordinance, continue in force.

REGISTER OF ELECTORS 1979

Legislative Council (Elections) Ordinance (Cap. 37)

In accordance with section 8 (1) (b) of the Legislative Council (Elections) Ordinance a list of electors for each of the four electoral areas has been prepared and is published with this notice.

2. Any person who claims to be qualified to be registered as an elector, but whose name has been omitted from the electors list for his electoral area, may, within 10 days after the publication hereof apply to the Registration Officer of his area in the Form A in the First Schedule of this Ordinance to have his name inserted, and any person appearing from the electors lists to be himself entitled to be registered may within the same period apply by way of objection to the Registration Officer of the area concerned in the Form J in the Fourth Schedule to remove any name or names from the electors list for such area.

3. The electors lists may be inspected in Stanley at the Secretariat, the Post Office and the Public Library during normal hours of business, and in the Camp at Fox Bay East and the Store, Goose Green. Copies have also been sent to all farm managers.

The Secretariat,

Stanley.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

BY THE QUEEN
A PROCLAMATION

Determining the Specifications and Designs for, and Giving Currency to, Gold and Silver Coins in Our Colony of the Falkland Islands

ELIZABETH R.

We, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870, section 2 (3) of the Decimal Currency Act 1967, and of all other powers enabling Us in that behalf, do hereby, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, proclaim, direct and ordain as follows —

1. This Proclamation shall be published in the Official Gazette of the Falkland Islands and shall come into force there on the date of such publication.

2. (1) New coins of the following denominations shall be made at Our Mint —

- (a) gold coins of the denomination of one hundred and fifty pounds;
- (b) silver coins of denominations of ten pounds and five pounds.

(2) The coins shall be of the standard weight, standard diameter and standard fineness specified in the Schedule hereto.

(3) In the making of the coins a remedy (that is to say, a variation from the standard weight, diameter and fineness specified as aforesaid) shall be allowed of an amount not exceeding the amount specified in the said Schedule.

3. The designs for the said coins shall be as follows —

(a) Every gold and silver coin shall have for the obverse impression Our Effigy with the inscription

“QUEEN ELIZABETH THE SECOND ”

(b) The reverse impressions shall be as follows —

- (i) one hundred and fifty pounds: in the centre a fur seal on a foreground of rock with wavelets beyond, with the inscription “FALKLAND ISLANDS” to the left and above, the inscription “£150” below, and the date of the year to the right;
- (ii) ten pounds: in the centre two steamer ducks standing on a foreground of rock with wavelets beyond, with the inscription “FALKLAND ISLANDS” to the left and above, the inscription “£10” below, and the date of the year to the right;
- (iii) five pounds: in the centre a humpback whale in a background of water, with the inscription “FALKLAND ISLANDS” to the left and above, the inscription “£5” below, and the date of the year to the right.

(c) Every gold and silver coin shall have a graining on the edge.

4. The said coins shall be current within Our Colony of the Falkland Islands.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

BY THE QUEEN

A PROCLAMATION

Modifying the Application of the Coinage Act 1870 to Our Colony of the Falkland Islands

ELIZABETH R.

We, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 and of all other powers enabling Us in that behalf, do hereby, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, proclaim, direct and ordain as follows—

1. This Proclamation shall be published in the Official Gazette of the Falkland Islands and shall come into force there on the date of such publication.

2. So much of section 3 of the Coinage Act 1870 as requires coins of denominations other than those mentioned in the First Schedule to that Act to be of a weight and fineness or composition determined by reference to coins of the denominations so mentioned shall apply only to silver coins of the Queen's Maundy money, and accordingly in that section (as amended) for the words "If any coin of gold or any silver coin" there shall be substituted the words "If any silver coin".

3. In section 4 of the Coinage Act 1870 after the words "in accordance with the provisions of this Act" there shall be inserted the words "or of a proclamation made in pursuance of this Act".

Given at Our Court at Windsor Castle, this eleventh day of April in the year of our Lord One thousand nine hundred and seventy-nine and in the twenty-eighth year of Our Reign.

 - (b) There is no charge against a patient proceeding to Stanley Hospital for the treatment or control of Tuberculosis, the full cost both ways being met from the Medical Department votes.
 - (c) There is no charge against a patient for emergency cases to Stanley for Hospital treatment but 25% of the air fare is charged to the patient for the return flight. The inward flight and the balance of the return flight are charged to Medical Department votes.
 - (d) Non-urgent medical cases travel both ways at assisted passage rates i.e. 25% of the air fare payable by the patient and 75% by the Medical Department.
2. Transport for medical and dental officers will normally be provided by Government, but where a medical or dental officer is on a progressive tour, farms are expected to assist by conveying the officer to the next farm. No charges are to be raised for this transport.
3. All farm facilities required by a visiting medical or dental officer are to be provided free of charge by the farm.
4. Itinerant dental officers are personally responsible for any charges raised in respect of board and lodging.

SCHEDULE G

Medical Treatment Overseas

1. The Senior Medical Officer is authorized to recommend to a patient who is normally resident in the Colony that he or she should proceed to Argentina for specialist treatment the cost of which shall be paid by the Falkland Islands Government.
2. The cost of such treatment shall be limited to —
 - (a) return passages to Argentina excluding Stanley Airport tax;
 - (b) landing expenses in Argentina and taxi hire to the hospital;
 - (c) charges raised by the hospital and doctors in Argentina. The grade of accommodation in the hospital will generally be in the general wards, but this is a matter for the doctor in the hospital who will take into account the nature of the patient's illness;
 - (d) where the patient is not an in-patient in Argentina a subsistence allowance will be provided by the Falkland Islands Government. The rate of the allowance will be a single daily rate laid down by the Chief Secretary.

3. Any person proceeding to Argentina for medical treatment under the provisions of this Schedule shall not be required to reimburse the Falkland Islands Government the charges for the treatment referred to in paragraph 2 of this Schedule.

4. The question of whether or not a patient should be recommended to seek specialist advice or treatment abroad rests with the Senior Medical Officer, and patients seeking such advice or treatment without his recommendation are not entitled to any assistance from public funds.

Made by the Governor in Council this 22nd day of August 1979.

R. BROWNING,
Clerk of Councils.

"Age of entry. 3. (1) A child shall be entered as a pupil at a recognised school on the first day of the term in which he shall attain the age of five years:

Provided that a child who has attained the age of four years may, with the approval of the Superintendent, be entered as a pupil at a recognised school on the first day in any term.

(2) For the purposes of this section "term" includes any subsequent holiday period."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to clarify the general provisions for the entry of a child as a pupil at a recognised school.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Title. Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance.

Date of commencement. (1st January 1980)

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows—

Short title and commencement. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance 1979 and shall apply to assessments for the year of assessment commencing on the 1st day of January 1980 and to all subsequent years of assessment.

Amendment of section 12. 2. Section 12 of the principal Ordinance is amended —
(Cap. 32) (a) by deleting the full stop at the end of paragraph (g) and substituting a semi-colon; and
(b) by adding after paragraph (g) the following new paragraph:
“(h) any amount paid or payable under section 5 of the Medical Services Levy Ordinance 1979.”

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to ensure that any payment under the Medical Services Levy Ordinance does not qualify as an allowable deduction for the purpose of ascertaining the chargeable income of any person under the Income Tax Ordinance. The reason for not allowing the Medical Services Levy as a deduction arises from the decision, made by the Legislative Council in June 1979, to reduce the amounts payable by employers and self-employed persons, on emoluments, under the formerly proposed Employment Tax Bill, from 4% (3% tax deductible) to 1½%, under the Medical Services Levy Ordinance, not tax deductible.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Title. To amend the Stanley Rates Ordinance 1973.

Date of commencement. (1st January 1980)

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows—

Short title and commence- 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Stanley Rates (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance 1979 and shall come into operation on the 1st day of January 1980.
ment.

Amendment of section 13. 2. Section 13 of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting "poverty" and substituting the following —
"financial circumstances".
(5 of 1973)

Amendment of section 30. 3. Section 30 of the principal Ordinance is amended in subsection (2) by deleting "£1.00" and substituting the following —
"£2.00".

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to increase the rate charged for water supplied to ships from £1.00 to £2.00 per ton and to delete the word "poverty" from section 13 of the Stanley Rates Ordinance replacing it with the words "financial circumstances" to enable a broader interpretation of the rate remission section of the Ordinance.

5. Section 11 of the principal Ordinance is amended by inserting after “Sixth” the following — “or Seventh”.

Repeal and replacement of section 14.

6. Section 14 of the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced by the following new section —

“Deduction in respect of earned income.

14. (1) Where a husband and wife are assessed jointly there shall be allowed for the purpose of ascertaining the chargeable income of the husband in respect of so much of the income as is earned by his wife her actual earnings, subject to a maximum of £1,040:

Provided that when a loss arises in the exercise of any trade, business, profession or vocation or a loss is brought forward from a previous year under section 13 of this Ordinance, no deduction shall be allowed except in respect of the amount, if any, by which the earned income exceeds such loss or the aggregate amount of such losses, as the case may be.

(2) For the purposes of this section and of section 20 of this Ordinance the expression “earned income” means any income arising in respect of any gains or profits immediately derived by the individual from any trade, business, profession, employment or vocation carried on or exercised by her either as an individual or in the case of a partnership as a partner personally acting therein, or in respect of any pension, superannuation, or other allowance given in respect of past services of the individual, whether the individual shall have contributed to such pension, superannuation or other allowance or not, after deducting the expenses referred to in sections 10 and 11 of this Ordinance.”.

Amendment of section 15.

7. Section 15 of the principal Ordinance is amended —

- (a) in subsection (1), by deleting “£350” and substituting the following —

“£600”;

- (b) in subsection (2), by deleting "£175" and substituting the following— "£350";
- (c) in subsection (3) (a)—
 - (i) by deleting "£500" and substituting the following— "£600";
 - (ii) by deleting "£300" and substituting the following— "£350";
- (d) in subsection (4), by deleting "£400" and substituting the following— "£1,040";
- (e) by deleting subsection (5).

8. Section 16 of the principal Ordinance is amended —

Amendment of section 16.

- (a) in subsection (1), by deleting "£300" and substituting the following— "£350";
- (b) in paragraph (i) of the proviso to subsection (1), by deleting "£320" and substituting the following— "£380".

9. Section 16A of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting "£1,050" wherever it occurs and substituting the following— "£2,000".

Amendment of section 16A.

10. Section 20 of the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced by the following new section —

Repeal and replacement of section 20.

"Married women.

20. (1) The income of a married woman shall for the purposes of this Ordinance be deemed to be the income of her husband and shall be charged in the name of the husband and not in her name nor in that of her trustee:

Provided that that part of the total amount of tax charged upon the husband which bears the same proportion to that total amount as the amount of the income of the wife bore to the amount of the total income of husband and wife, may if necessary, be collected from the wife, notwithstanding that no assessment has been made upon her.

(2) A married woman separated from her husband under an order of a court of competent jurisdiction or a written agreement or in such circumstances that the Commissioner considers that the separation is likely to be permanent shall be treated as an unmarried person.

(3) A married woman in receipt of earned income and her husband may elect to be assessed separately. In the case of such election the following provisions shall apply —

- (a) both husband and wife shall be assessed for tax as single persons and shall be entitled to the personal relief for single persons;
- (b) the additional relief for a wife under section 15 (1) of this Ordinance shall not be granted;
- (c) the reliefs provided for under sections 15 (3), 16 and 17 shall be granted to the husband only;
- (d) the husband's income shall include all income of his wife other than her earnings;
- (e) the wife shall not be entitled to the earned income relief provided for under section 14 of this Ordinance;

- (f) separate assessment of husband and wife shall be permitted only where the wife is in receipt of earnings (or a pension pertaining thereto) or profits relating to personal exertion income in which her own skills are used and such earnings or profits arise or accrue from a source which is unconnected with any trade, business, profession or vocation carried on by her husband, either individually or in association with any other person or by a company in which the husband has an interest.

(4) An election for separate assessment under this section shall be made jointly by the husband and wife in writing to the Commissioner not later than the 1st day of February in the year immediately following the year of income.

(5) When an election is made in respect of any year it shall be irrevocable in respect of that year and such election shall continue to apply in respect of subsequent years until the election is jointly revoked by the husband and wife.

(6) When an election is revoked after the 1st day of February in any year the revocation shall not have effect in respect of that year but shall affect subsequent years.

(7) Revocation of an election shall not be a bar to further election."

Amendment of section 21.

11. Section 21 of the principal Ordinance is amended —

- (a) in subsection (1), by deleting from "on every" to "50 per cent" and substituting the following —

"On every pound of — the first £500 of chargeable income 20 per cent

the next £500 „ „ „ 25 per cent

„ „ £4,500 „ „ „ 30 per cent

„ „ £2,000 „ „ „ 35 per cent

the remainder of chargeable income 50 per cent."

- (b) by repealing subsection (2) and substituting the following subsections —

"(2) Subject to subsection (2A) or (2B) below the chargeable income of a company shall be charged at the standard rate of 52 per cent on every pound of the chargeable income thereof.

(2A) A company whose total chargeable income does not exceed £30,000 shall be charged at the rate of 42 per cent.

(2B) A company whose total chargeable income exceeds £30,000 but does not exceed £50,000 shall be entitled to marginal relief by subtracting from the full liability at 52 per cent three-twentieths of the difference between chargeable income and £50,000."

Repeal and replacement of sections 22 and 23.

12. Sections 22 and 23 of the principal Ordinance are repealed and replaced by the following —

"Taxation of dividends.

22. (1) When a dividend is paid to a shareholder by a company registered in the Colony that shareholder shall be entitled to a tax credit at the rate of thirtyseventieths of the dividend paid to him.

(2) The amount of the dividend and the tax credit shall be added to the other income of the shareholder in arriving at his total income for tax purposes and he shall be assessed for tax on this amount less allowable deduction. There shall be deducted from the amount of tax so assessed the amount of the tax credit and, should the net amount of tax then payable be less than the amount of the tax credit, the difference shall be refunded to him.”.

13. Section 32 of the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced by the following —

Repeal and replacement of section 32.

“INTEREST WITHHOLDING TAX AND TAXATION OF ROYALTIES AND MANAGEMENT FEES

Interest withholding tax.

32. (1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the other provisions of this Ordinance, there shall be paid a tax, to be known as interest withholding tax, in respect of the payments specified in subsection (2) of this section at the rate of ten per cent of the gross amount payable.

(2) Such tax shall be payable in respect of —

- (a) any payment of interest made to a person not resident in the Colony;
- (b) any loan, advance or other like payment made to a person not resident in the Colony unless such loan, advance or other like payment is made at an interest rate in excess of such per cent per annum as may from time to time be prescribed by the Governor in Council and that interest is liable to tax in the Colony:

Provided that when any such loan, advance or other like payment is subsequently repaid the Commissioner shall refund any tax found to have been paid in excess of the amount properly payable.

(3) For the purpose of this section the term “interest” means income from debt claims of every kind, whether or not carrying a right to participate in the debtor’s profits, and in particular income from government securities and income from bonds or debentures including premiums and prizes attaching to such securities, bonds or debentures.

(4) The tax shall be payable by and recoverable from —

- (a) the person making the payment of interest to which subsection (2) (a) of this section applies; or
- (b) in the case of any loan, advance or like payment covered by subsection (2) (b) of this section the person granting the loan or making the advance or like payment, and shall be paid to the Commissioner within thirty days of the date of payment of interest or of the granting of a loan or making an advance or like payment. Failure to make payment by due date shall be an offence.

Royalties.

32A. (1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the other provisions of this Ordinance, royalties arising in the Colony and paid to a person not resident in the Colony shall bear tax at the rate of ten per cent of the gross amount of the royalties.

(2) For the purpose of this section the term "royalties" means payments of any kind received as a consideration for the use of, or the right to use, any copyright of literary, artistic or scientific work, any patent, trade mark, design or model, plan, secret formula or process, or for the use of, or the right to use, industrial, commercial or scientific equipment, or for information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience, and rights to variable or fixed payments as consideration for the working of or the right to work mineral or mineral oil deposits sources and other natural resources.

(3) The tax shall be payable by and recoverable from the person paying the royalty and shall be paid to the Commissioner within thirty days of the date of payment of the royalty. Failure to make payment by due date shall be an offence.

Management Fees.

32B. (1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the other provisions of this Ordinance, management fees and any such sums paid or credited for the management of or supervision in connection with the carrying on of a trade or business to the extent that such fees, payments or credits do not constitute reimbursement of expenditure that is —

(a) of a kind that is tax deductible under this Ordinance; and

(b) incurred in relation to the fees, payments or credits by the person receiving them, shall bear tax at the rate of fifteen per cent.

(2) For the purpose of this section the term "management fees" means payments of any kind to any person, other than to an employee of the person making the payments, for or in respect of, the provision of industrial, scientific or commercial advice, or management or technical services, or similar services or facilities.

(3) The tax shall be payable by and recoverable from the person paying the fees or making the payments or credits and shall be paid to the Commissioner within thirty days of the date of payment of the fees or of making the payments or credits. Failure to make payment by due date shall be an offence."

Repeal of sections 46, 47 and 48.

14. Sections 46, 47 and 48 of the principal Ordinance are repealed.

Amendment of section 49.

15. Section 49 of the principal Ordinance is amended —
 (a) by deleting subsections (2) and (3); and
 (b) by renumbering subsection (1) as section 49.

Addition of new section 50A.

16. The principal Ordinance is amended by adding after section 50 the following new section —

"Unilateral tax credit.

50A. (1) Where any person resident in the Colony proves that he had paid, by deduction or otherwise, overseas tax on any part of his income which arises from a source outside the Colony and which is also chargeable to Colony tax, he shall be entitled to a credit against such Colony tax equal to the overseas tax or the Colony tax on that part of his income whichever is the less.

(2) For the purpose of this section "overseas tax" means an income tax or tax of a similar character imposed by the laws of any territory outside the Colony other than a territory with the Government of which arrangements have been made which have effect under section 49.

(3) For the purpose of calculating the amount of any credit under this section the provisions of subsections (2) to (10) of section 50 shall apply as if references therein to arrangements having effect under section 49 were references to this section and as if reference to foreign tax were references to overseas tax."

17. The Fifth Schedule to the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced by the following new Schedule —

Repeal and replacement of Fifth Schedule.

" FIFTH SCHEDULE Section 8A.

Tax-free concessions.

1. Any person who has been declared a pioneer enterprise in accordance with the provisions of section 8A of this Ordinance shall be exempt from tax in respect of the profits derived from specified trade or business for a period of five years from the date when his trade or business commences or the first day of production, whichever date is the earlier:

Provided that the declaration of a pioneer enterprise may be extended by the Governor in Council for a further period not exceeding three years in which case the extent of the exemption from tax shall be such as the Governor in Council determines:

Provided also that no tax concession shall be granted for any year unless the Commissioner is satisfied that —

- (a) in the case of a person the same person to whom the concession was granted continues the trade or business; or
- (b) in the case of a partnership at least thirty per cent of the partners are the same as on the date when the concession was granted and in the case of a company at least thirty per cent or more of the voting power or the right to receive dividends is held by the same person or persons as on the date when the concession was granted:

Provided further that the Governor in Council shall have power to waive the requirements of the preceding proviso if he deems fit.

Depreciation.

2. There shall, during the period of the concession, be deducted from or charged to the income, as the case may be, of a pioneer enterprise the maximum amounts authorized in respect of depreciation under section 11 of this Ordinance:

Provided that there shall be no obligation to claim initial allowances but an election not to do so shall continue for the whole of the period of the concession.

End of tax concession period.

3. If the end of the tax concession period does not coincide with the end of the accounting period of the pioneer enterprise, the profits or gains for the accounting period in which the last day of the tax concession falls will be apportioned between the parts of the accounting periods which precede and follow the end of such tax concession period on a time basis.

Calculation of income.

4. The income of any trade or business declared by the Governor in Council to be a pioneer enterprise shall be calculated separately from the income of any other trade or business carried on by the person, partnership or company by whom the pioneer enterprise is owned.

Application for declaration of a pioneer enterprise.

5. (1) Application for a declaration under Section 8A of this Ordinance shall be made to the Governor in Council through the Financial Secretary by the person who carries on or intends to carry on the trade or business.

(2) Every such application shall provide full information about the enterprise, including—

- (a) the nature of the trade or business;
- (b) a description of the benefits to the Colony to be expected;
- (c) the estimated amount of the capital to be employed;
- (d) the conditions under which workers will be employed, an estimate of their number and provision for their housing; and
- (e) such other particulars as the Financial Secretary may require.

Approval.

6. The Governor in Council may make a declaration of a pioneer enterprise subject to such conditions he thinks fit.

Accounts.

7. The annual accounts of an approved pioneer enterprise shall be audited by an auditor approved by the Financial Secretary and such accounts and any other information requested shall be delivered to the Commissioner within six months of the end of each accounting period.

Offences

8. Any person failing to furnish accounts by the due date or to provide information requested by the Commissioner shall be guilty of an offence and shall, on conviction, be liable to a fine not exceeding £1,000.

Revocation.

9. (1) The Governor in Council may revoke a declaration made under section 8A of this Ordinance if—

- (a) he is satisfied that the person concerned has furnished incorrect or misleading information or has in any way misrepresented the facts or has failed to submit audited accounts or other information requested; or
- (b) he is satisfied that the person concerned has failed to comply with any conditions laid down under paragraph 6 of this Schedule or with any other provisions of this Schedule.

(2) Such revocation may be from any date and may apply from the date of commencement of the tax concession if the Governor in Council considers this to be appropriate.

Dividends.

10. Upon the agreement of the Commissioner of the amount of the profits of a pioneer enterprise to be exempt from tax under this section or upon final determination of that amount on appeal, the amount thereof in the case of a company may be credited by the company to a special account and the amount of any dividend paid out of that account to the company's shareholders shall be exempt from tax in the hands of such shareholders:

Provided that no such exemption shall apply to a dividend declared more than two years after the end of the tax concession period specified in paragraph 1 of this Schedule, including any extension of the tax concession period approved by the Governor in Council under the proviso to paragraph 1 of this Schedule."

18. The principal Ordinance is amended by adding after the Sixth Schedule the following new Schedule —

"SEVENTH SCHEDULE Section 11.

Addition of Seventh Schedule.

DEPRECIATION

Interpretation.

1. In this Schedule —

"expenditure", in relation to the cost of a capital asset, means the amount spent upon the provision of that asset by the person claiming the depreciation deduction, reduced by the amount of any grant, subsidy or contribution towards that cost made by any other person or authority;

"written-down value", in relation to a capital asset, means the amount of the expenditure upon that asset less the sum of any wear and tear and depreciation deductions made in respect of that asset for all earlier years or which could have been made if the asset had been employed continuously since the expenditure was incurred in the production of income.

Deduction.

2. Where a person referred to in section 11 employs during the year immediately preceding the year of assessment in the course of his trade, business, profession or vocation any of the capital assets specified in paragraph 3 of this Schedule, there shall be allowed, upon his making a claim thereto, a deduction on account of the depreciation of such assets (in this Schedule referred to as a "depreciation deduction").

Depreciation allowance.

3. The following depreciation allowances shall be given for capital expenditure incurred on projects commenced after the 1st January 1979 —

- (a) on machinery and plant (other than ships and aircraft) and tractors an initial allowance in the year in which the expenditure is incurred of up to 100%; where the full 100% is not claimed, in subsequent years a writing down allowance of 25% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
- (b) on ships - an initial allowance of up to 50% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 10% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
- (c) on aircraft - a writing down allowance of 15% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
- (d) on motor vehicles (other than tractors) a writing down allowance of 25% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;

- (e) on industrial buildings used for the purpose of productive manufacturing or processing, mining or fishing - an initial allowance of up to 30% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 10% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
- (f) on hotel buildings - an initial allowance of up to 20% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 10% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
- (g) on agricultural buildings - an initial allowance of up to 30% and thereafter a writing down allowance of 10% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given;
- (h) on other buildings - a writing down allowance of 10% per annum of the written-down value of the asset shall be given.

Balancing deduction.

4. Where during the year immediately preceding the year of assessment a capital asset in respect of which a wear and tear or a depreciation deduction has been made is sold, scrapped or destroyed and the amount of the sale proceeds or insurance recoveries is less than the written-down value, there shall be made a deduction equal to the amount of the deficiency.

Balancing charge.

5. Where during the year immediately preceding the year of assessment a capital asset in respect of which a wear and tear or a depreciation deduction has been made is sold, scrapped or destroyed and the amount of the sale proceeds or insurance recoveries is more than the written-down value, the amount of the excess (or the total amount of all wear and tear and depreciation deductions made, if less) shall be additional income chargeable to tax for that year of assessment.

Buildings.

6. Where a building is bought or sold together with land the Commissioner shall make such apportionment of the total sum as is just for the purpose of arriving at the separate value of the building.

Agricultural buildings.

7. For the purposes of this Schedule agricultural buildings do not include housing, offices, shops on farm settlements, storehouses (except where they are used solely to store agricultural produce). The cost of a building shall not include the cost or value of the land on which it is built.

New ventures.

8. Where a company undertakes a new industrial, commercial or other venture, it shall, before qualifying for the allowance referred to in paragraph 3 of this Schedule, be required to form a separate company which shall be taxed separately from any existing company."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

1. To review the following income tax allowances —
 - (a) abolish earned income relief and increase the personal allowance from £400 to £1,040;
 - (b) increase the deduction for wife from £350 to £600;
 - (c) increase the limit up to which Old Age Relief applies from £1,050 to £2,000;
 - (d) wife's earned income to be allowed as a deduction as follows — the smaller of (a) £1,040 or (b) the amount of the earned income. (At present one fifth of the wife's earned income is allowable as a deduction up to a maximum of £850);
 - (e) increase child allowance from £300 to £350;
 - (f) increase child allowance (educated overseas) from £320 to £380;
 - (g) increase dependent relative allowance from £300 to £350;
 - (h) increase allowance for relative in charge of children from £175 to £350.
2. Provision for election for separate assessment of wife's earnings.
3. The Bill also proposes allowing interest payments, on housing loans up to £10,000, as a tax deduction.
4. In addition to substitute the following new scale of tax rates —

First £500 of chargeable income	20%
Next £500 of chargeable income	25%
Next £4,500 of chargeable income	30%
Next £2,000 of chargeable income	40%
Balance	50%
5. The Bill also provides for an increase in company tax from 45% to 52%. Where profits of a company do not exceed £30,000 the rate of company tax is reduced to the small companies rate of 42%. Should chargeable income exceed £30,000 but not exceed £50,000 marginal relief would be given by subtracting from the full liability at 52% three-twentieths of the difference between chargeable income and £50,000.
6. A new schedule of depreciation allowances in respect of capital expenditure incurred on projects commenced after 1st January 1979 is included in the Bill.
7. Replacement of the present system of taxing dividends paid by local companies by an Imputation system.
8. The Bill includes provision for a 10% interest withholding tax, a 10% tax on royalties and a tax of 15% on management fees.
9. Provision is also included for the introduction of tax holidays for Pioneer Industries.
10. Updating the provisions relating to Double Taxation Relief:
 - (a) Repeal of section 46, as relief for United Kingdom Tax is displaced by the United Kingdom / Falkland Islands Double Taxation Agreement;
 - (b) Replacement of the provisions relating to relief for Commonwealth Tax, which is now outmoded, with the modern system of providing for unilateral tax credit.

A Bill for
An Ordinance

To make provision with respect to the storage and use of gas and for purposes connected therewith. Title.

(19) Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Gas Ordinance 1979 and shall come into operation on the day of 1979. Short title and commencement.

2. No person shall land, introduce, use or keep in the Colony any gas except in accordance with this Ordinance and any regulations made thereunder. Restriction on the keeping etc., of gas.

3. (1) The Governor in Council may make regulations for the purpose of securing that the public is as far as practicable protected from any personal injury, fire, explosion or other dangers arising from the conveyance, storage, distribution or use of gas. Safety regulations.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1) above, any regulations made under this section may make provision for empowering any Inspector appointed under such regulations, with such other persons (if any) as may be necessary, —

- (a) to enter any premises for the purpose of inspecting any gas fitting on the premises, any flue or means of ventilation used in connection with any such gas fitting, or any service pipe or other apparatus (not being a gas fitting) which is on the premises;

- (b) where he so enters any such premises, to examine or apply any test to any such object as is mentioned in paragraph (a) above and (where the object is a gas fitting) to verify that supply of air is available for it, with a view to ascertaining whether the provisions of any regulations made under this section have been complied with or whether the object is in such a condition, or (in the case of a gas fitting) the supply of air available for it is so inadequate, that it (or, in the case of a flue or means of ventilation, the gas fitting in connection with which it is used) is likely to constitute a danger to any person or property; and
- (c) where in his opinion it is necessary to do so for the purpose of averting danger to life or property to disconnect and seal off any gas fitting or any part of the gas supply system on the premises.

Saving.

4. This Ordinance shall not apply to the importation of gas for the use of the Armed Forces of the United Kingdom, to the keeping or using thereof by such Forces, or to the supply or marketing thereof to such Forces.

Penalties.

5. Regulations made under the provisions of this Ordinance may provide that any person contravening or failing to comply with any provision of the regulations shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £200.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill makes provision with respect to the storage and use of gas and for purposes connected therewith, in particular to allow for regulations to be made to ensure that gas is correctly handled under all conditions and that consequently the public is protected as far as possible.
