No. 15

1969

Colony of the Falkland Islands.

IN THE EIGHTEENTH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

SIR COSMO HASKARD, K.C.M.G., M.B.E.
Governor.

An Ordinance

Further to amend the Firearms Ordinance 1965. Title.

(1st January 1970)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Firearms (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance 1969. Short title.

2. Section 18 of the Firearms Ordinance 1965, is amended Amendment of section 18.
(12 of 1965)
by —

- (a) the deletion of the full stop at the end thereof and the substitution therefor of a colon; and
- (b) the insertion, at the end thereof, of the following new proviso —

“Provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to —

- (a) officers or men of any of Her Majesty's forces while acting in the course of their duty or employment on Cape Pembroke Peninsula; and
- (b) persons using firearms and ammunition during any organised competition or practice on a rifle range.”.

This printed impression has been carefully compared by me with the Bill which has passed the Legislative Council, and is found by me to be a true and correctly printed copy of the said Bill.

H. L. BOUND,
Clerk of the Legislative Council.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government, the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd., and the General Employees Union. The agreement shall be effective for a period of one year from the 1st of January, 1970, and shall apply to hourly paid employees in Stanley.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used. Provided this average shall not take into account any changes in the level of taxation already imposed.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board. The minimum rate for Handymen shall be three pence more than the Labourer's rate and the maximum three pence less than the Craftsmen's rate.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be paid one penny more than the Labourer's rate and shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid 4d. per hour more than the Labourer's rate. This rate shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class		Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	...	6/3
2. *Apprentices	1st year	3/6
	2nd year	3/10
	3rd year	4/2
	4th year	4/8
	5th year	5/2
3. Handymen	...	5/4 to 6/- according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	...	5/2
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers		5/5
6. Labourers	Age	Hourly Rate.
	14-15	2/5
	15-16	2/10½
	16-17	3/7
	17-18	4/2½
	18 and over	5/1

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.

3. Extra Payments.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 4d. per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 9d. to 1/6 per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 2/- per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 3d. per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 3d. per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 6d. per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 45 hours per week made up as follows :-

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

Saturday - 7.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 45 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows :-

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 - (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 - (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 - (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 - (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 45-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Holidays.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following nine days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

February 26th, 27th & 28th, Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday, December 8th, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Annual Stanley Sports Meeting.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

7. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed one year's service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.
- (b) The following rules apply to employees who have completed one year's service with their employer.
 - (i) There shall be no entitlement to sick pay for the first week of absence caused by sickness, but if sickness lasts for more than one week, an employee shall be entitled to half pay for the second, third and fourth weeks. While off work through illness an employee shall have the option of taking part or the whole of any annual leave due to him.
 - (ii) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (c) An employer may demand a medical certificate before applying any of the rules 7 (b) (i), (ii).
- (d) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work.

8. General.

- (a) Employment is normally terminated, either by employer or employee, at the end of the working week, but employment may be terminated at the end of any working day. A minimum of two hours' notice shall be given, except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed.
- (b) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.
- (c) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.
- (d) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.
- (e) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.

MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

HELD IN STANLEY ON WEDNESDAY, 17th DECEMBER, 1969

The Council assembled at 10.00 a.m.

His Excellency the Governor

PRESENT

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary (Mr. J. A. Jones, O.B.E.)
The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer (Mr. L. C. Gleadell, O.B.E., J.P.)
Major the Honourable R. V. Goss, E.D. (First Elected Member for Stanley)
The Honourable S. Miller, J.P. (Elected Member for West Falkland)
The Honourable Mrs. King, (Second Elected Member for Stanley)
The Honourable W. H. Clement, J.P. (Nominated Independent Member)
The Honourable R. W. Hills, (Nominated Independent Member)

Clerk of Council: Mr. H. L. Bound, J.P.

PRAYER

The prayer was read by the Reverend Peter J. Millam.

Address by the President.

Honourable Members of Council:

Since it is not often that Legislative Council meets at this time of year, I should like, before we proceed with the business on the order paper, to say a few words in explanation.

The principal reason for our meeting, as will shortly be explained in detail by the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer, is to give a first reading to a Bill to amend the Income Tax Ordinance.

At the October meeting of Council the Honourable the Colonial Treasurer referred to the forthcoming publication of this Bill. It was duly published and copies were widely distributed so that persons and organizations concerned should have its provisions brought to their notice.

Today Council is to be invited to give the Bill a first reading. Subsequent stages of legislation will not be taken until next year, perhaps at the normal budget meeting, perhaps earlier. With a measure of this kind it is obviously desirable to ascertain the views of as many persons as possible likely to be affected and to promote informed discussion, in and out of Council, well in advance of taking the next legislative step.

Since our last meeting in this Chamber there has been a development with regard to our relationship to Argentina, namely, the announcement on 21st November that special talks are to take place in 1970 with a view to reaching agreement on practical measures for promoting free communications and movement in both directions between the Falkland Islands and the coast.

The talks are to be held between the United Kingdom and Argentine Governments. Representatives from the Falkland Islands have been invited to participate.

A decision regarding the response to that invitation will be largely influenced by the results of a study now being undertaken of our sea and air external and internal communications. Whatever the decision may be, Honourable Members will rightly expect me once again to emphasise that there has been no change on the question of sovereignty. The communications talks are to be about communications.

And now, Honourable Members, I suggest we turn to the business on the order paper.

ORDERS OF THE DAY - BILLS

Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 3) Ordinance, 1969

The Colonial Treasurer: The Colonial Secretary has just laid on the Table various reports including the Financial Report for 1968/69. Among the many things that this document reports is the state of our reserves at the beginning of the present financial year. They totalled £359,000 and showed a decrease of £105,000 since the corresponding date a year earlier.

When this Council met in May to consider the Appropriation Bill which, in effect, meant an examination of the estimates of revenue and expenditure, it was informed that after taking into account increases in import duties an ordinary revenue deficit of £54,000 was expected. It was further stated that consideration would be given to increases in taxation on incomes after a review of the position in October or thereabouts.

This review gave no indication that the expected deficit is overstated; indeed with the estimated transfer from the Savings Bank of £40,000 being revised at only £11,000 it is clear that substantial improvements elsewhere will be necessary if the deficit is not to increase. As there is no apparent improvement in the financial situation for 1969/70 the question of increased taxation on incomes has been considered and the Bill before Council results from these considerations.

The clauses of the Bill are set out in such a manner that the sections of the Ordinance to which they relate are in numerical order. For purposes of explanatory convenience I shall start with clause 3(b) for this starts off a kind of chain reaction.

Clause 3(b) proposes that the rate of income tax on company profits be increased from 5/9d in the £ to 7/-. The objective is to re-direct into the Colony Treasury 1/3d. in the £ that is currently paid to the United Kingdom Treasury by companies subject to both Colony and United Kingdom taxation. These companies pay whichever is the higher rate - the Colony or the United Kingdom. In the Colony in 1969 the rate is 5/9d. for income tax and 2/- for profits tax, and in the United Kingdom corporation tax is 9/-. The companies I am referring to therefore pay 7/9d. to the Colony Treasury and 1/3d. to the United Kingdom Treasury. For 1970 an amendment to profits tax already passed by Council increases the rate to 4/- but companies are able, by means of investment allowance, to reduce the effective rate to 2/-. If companies income tax is increased to 7/- it will bring the total Colony rate, presuming and indeed hoping that full advantage is taken of investment allowance, to 9/- without adding to the tax burden of these particular companies.

There are, of course, locally controlled companies which are not subject to outside taxation and the same considerations do not apply to them. These companies will find their tax bills increased. However, as tax paid by the locally controlled companies may be set off against personal income tax on income that includes dividends paid out of taxed profits, the effect of the increase in taxation on locally controlled companies is not as great as may at first thought appear, and according to the dividend distribution can be completely recovered through credits available to dividend recipients.

At clause 3(a) the entire tax scale is shown as being replaced but only the words and figures "exceeding £10,000 and 7/-" are new. This is necessary if the company rate is to be increased to 7/-, for the standard rate for individuals should be the same. Council will no doubt appreciate the significance, or perhaps I should say the lack of significance, of any tax rate on incomes exceeding £10,000.

At clause 3(e) there is provision for a reduction in company tax of 1/3d in the £ in respect of profits applied to what is known as "qualifying expenditure" which forms the basis of the investment allowance scheme introduced earlier this year and effective in 1970. The object of this abatement is to restore to 5/9d. the rate of tax applicable to profits applied to qualifying expenditure. This is something that may be of greater interest to locally controlled companies for, as I have already explained, any reduction in the Falkland Islands tax bills of United Kingdom controlled companies results in a corresponding increase in their United Kingdom bill, unless the Colony rate is greater than the United Kingdom rate. There is a drafting error in 3(e). The new sub-section is shown as No.4 but there is already a sub-section 4 to section 21. However, it is better that the proposed new sub-section remain as No. 4 and the present one be renumbered as 5. This is something that can be dealt with at a later stage.

Clause 2 is designed to ease the tax burden of elderly people on small incomes. Provided the person is over 60 years of age and has a total income of less than £500 a deduction of 2/3rds of the difference between the total income and £500 for married men and of 1/3rd for all others is introduced. A simple example can be given where a married man receives £400. In addition to the deductions for himself, his wife and the earned income relief, he may also claim a deduction of £67. 0. 0. - that is 2/3rds of the difference between what he received and £500. For an unmarried person the deduction would be £33.

There is in clause 4 the singularly uninformative amendment to section 26, the insertion of "16A". Section 26 limits the amount of deductions that may be claimed by persons in receipt of incomes arising in the Colony but who do not live here. This limitation is based on the proportion of the income that arises in the Colony to the taxpayer's total income from all sources, and is designed to prevent such people obtaining full deductions both in respect of the Colony tax liability and their liability in the country of residence. If, for example, a non-resident person is in receipt of £200 from a Colony source and £200 from a source outside the Colony, the deductions available for Colony taxation purposes would be halved. The amendment to section 26 is to provide for the new deduction for elderly people to be similarly treated.

Clauses 3(c) and (d) have no particular significance; both are designed to correct earlier drafting errors.

So much for the detail of the Bill. What, it may be asked, is the Bill designed to achieve? A negative reply is that it won't balance the budget, but it will positively ease the strain on our reserves. I cannot do better than quote from Your Excellency's address to Council at the budget meeting when you said, "There appear to me to be two distinct courses of action that we can follow. We are still able to call on reserves to the order of about £300,000. We can go on drawing on these reserves until they are exhausted and then embark upon a programme of wholesale and drastic cutting of expenditure or increasing taxation, or most likely both. Alternatively we can attempt to make the reserves last longer by undertaking a modest programme of economy in our spending, coupled with some increase in taxation." You went on to say, "I do not pretend to forecast when our present difficulties will end but we have a right to hope that our efforts to increase the productivity of the Colony and the interest being shown in the kelp of the Colony's waters will make themselves felt at some not too distant time. We have to bridge this gap in a manner most beneficial - or least harmful - to us all."

The thinking that has gone into the Bill now before Council reflects the points you made in the last sentence I quoted. It is designed to bridge the gap by redirecting into the Colony Treasury money that is currently paid to the United Kingdom Treasury. With an average wool price of 45d. this would be about £10,000 a year. It is also claimed to be the least harmful means of raising revenue. Whether a company pays the additional 1/3d. to the Colony Treasury or the United Kingdom Treasury would appear to be a matter of indifference, and for locally controlled companies there are the credits available to shareholders through dividend distribution. The measure does not conflict with the policy of Government in pressing for greater investment in the Colony. For profits applied to "qualifying expenditure" under the investment allowance scheme the tax rate is restored to 5/9d. The increase to 7/- of the tax on individual incomes in excess of £10,000 requires no comment.

comment./The.....

The Bill provides for these various amendments to come into force on 1st January 1970. However, it is not the intention to proceed today beyond the first reading: the further stages necessary for the Bill to become law will be taken at a meeting in 1970 which may be as late as the budget meeting. In any event the delay will give time for close examination of what is proposed and for the views of anyone who wishes to express an opinion to be received and studied.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was accordingly read a first time.

The Firearms (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance 1969.

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, at our October meeting we amended this same section 18 of the Firearms Ordinance in order to give effect, in response to public opinion, to a decision to prohibit shooting on the Common while permitting shooting with specified weapons, that is to say shotgun or airgun, on Cape Pembroke Peninsula. Affecting that amendment led to a further scrutiny of the Ordinance and this revealed the anomalous position what while the armed forces and persons using the rifle range are exempt under section 5 from the firearms licencing provisions, (section 3 of the Ordinance) they are not exempt from the provisions of this section 18. That is to say that the armed forces could not discharge their rifles on the Cape for military purposes and the rifle club could not fire their rifles on the range. The intention of the original legislation clearly was to permit practice or competition on the rifle range on the Common and live firing by the armed forces at Cape Pembroke Peninsula and the new amendment is designed to give effect to this intention.

I beg to move the first reading.

The motion was seconded by the Honourable R. V. Goss and the bill was taken through all its stages and passed.

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

The Colonial Treasurer seconded the motion.

President: The next meeting of the Legislative Council will take place on a date to be determined within the next one or two months. It may be as already stated, as late as the normal May budget meeting; it may be prior to that.

No Honourable Member wishes to speak, the House stands adjourned accordingly.

Report on the working of the Government Savings Bank for the year 1968/69.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
9th December 1969.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit the following report on the Savings Bank for the year that ended on 30th June 1969, together with the following accounts and statements —

1. Revenue and Expenditure Account.
2. Deposits and Withdrawals Account.
3. Investments Adjustment Account.
4. Reserve Account.
5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Statement of Investments.

2. Revenue during the year totalled £74,951 : 4 : 4 representing interest on investments. Expenditure amounted to £28,328 : 1 : 4 leaving a surplus of £46,623 : 3 : 0.

3. Deposits during the year totalled £361,245 : 13 : 9 and a further £26,328 : 1 : 4 was credited to depositors accounts in the form of interest. Withdrawals totalled £392,482 : 17 : 8.

4. At 30th June 1969 there were 1,986 depositors compared with 1,918 a year earlier. The total amount due to depositors at 30th June 1969 was £1,139,420 : 2 : 6 compared with £1,144,329 : 5 : 1 a year earlier.

5. During the year a sum of £2,181 was transferred to the Colony revenue under the authority of Section 13 (2) of the Savings Bank Ordinance. The sum represented the margin by which the assets of the bank at 30th June 1968, exceeded 110% of the amount due to depositors at that date.

6. Revaluation of investments at mid-market prices quoted on 30th June 1969 showed further depreciation amounting to £40,790 : 11 : 6. Net profit from the sale of investments during the year was £4,978 : 0 : 10.

7. At 30th June 1969 the assets of the bank totalled £1,264,663 : 17 : 0 or £125,243 : 14 : 6 more than the amount due to depositors at that date. The latter figure is £11,301 : 14 : 3 more than the required reserve of 10% of the amount due to depositors.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

20th September 1969.

Report on the working of the Note Security Fund for the year 1968/69.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
10th December 1969.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the Currency Note Security Fund for the year that ended on 30th June 1969, together with the following accounts and statements —

1. Currency Note Income Account.
2. Note Security Fund Account.
3. Note Security Fund Balance Sheet.
4. Statement of Investments.

2. During the year a total of £75,023 : 17 : 5 was lodged with the Colonial Treasurer for payment in the United Kingdom and elsewhere, and £9,039 : 12 : 6 was received by the Crown Agents for payment to persons residing in the Colony.

3. Commission at the rate of 1% on remittances from the Colony amounted to £750 : 12 : 8 and was credited to the Currency Note Income Account. Interest on investments amounting to £7,426 : 19 : 1 was also credited to the Currency Note Income Account. The balance of this account was distributed in accordance with Section 7 (5) (b) and (c) of the Currency Notes Ordinance, i.e., £1,084 : 5 : 11 to the Note Security Fund and £7,093 : 5 : 10 to Colony Revenue.

4. At 30th June 1968 the note issue was £96,500. Increases in the note issue amounting to £44,000 and decreases totalling £37,900 took place during the year.

At 30th June 1969 the note issue was £102,600 made up as follows —

Series	Denomination	No.	Value

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

20th September 1969.

Report on the working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the year 1968/69.

To The Honourable
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands,
10th December 1969.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the period 1st July 1968 to 30th June 1969, together with the following accounts and statements —

1. Statement of Revenue and Expenditure.
2. Investments Adjustment Account.
3. Statement showing the growth of the Fund during the year.
4. Statement of Assets and Liabilities at 30th June 1969.
5. Statements of Investments held at 30th June 1969.

2. Revenue for the year totalled £37,870 : 11 : 1 the principal items being £23,813 : 0 : 3 from the sale of contribution stamps, £8,772 : 4 : 10 from dividends and interest on investments and £4,945 : 12 : 6 from Colony revenue. Expenditure amounted to £13,253 : 17 : 5 of which pensions accounted for £11,063 : 19 : 0.

3. During the year the Crown Agents were able to increase the equity investment portfolio to the point where approximately 50% of the fund is invested in this market. As a result of this trading, including the disposal of gilt edged securities, a net profit of £8,898 : 15 : 6 was realised.

4. The fund increased by £4,324 : 19 : 3 during the year: surplus revenue of £24,616 : 13 : 8 and profit from trading in investments £8,898 : 15 : 6 being largely offset by depreciation of investments amounting to £29,190 : 9 : 11 on revaluation at 30th June 1969.

5. At 30th June 1969 the Fund stood at £205,353 : 9 : 3 and was represented by investments having a mid-market value of £198,207 : 14 : 9 and a cash balance of £7,145 : 14 : 6.

6. During the year twelve claims to pensions were allowed: none were disallowed. Five pensioners died. At 30th June 1969 there were seventy-three persons in receipt of a pension of whom twenty-five were married men, twenty-two were unmarried men and twenty-six were women.

7. Eighty-one (seventy-eight male and thirteen female) new contributors registered during the year. Contributions were refunded to sixty-two persons who left the Colony and to ten female contributors who married.

8. The following legislation amending the Ordinance was passed during the year —

Ordinance No. 15 of 1968 — which more clearly defined the position of contributors who are temporarily absent from the Colony.

Ordinance No. 2 of 1969 — which re-inserted the provision for females who were between the age of 50 and 60 on 1st July 1965 to exercise the option of contributing. This had been removed in error.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

- (ii) by the addition, after the definition of “Record”, of the words ““Senior Magistrate” means the magistrate appointed under Part IIA of this Ordinance”: and
- (iii) by the deletion of the definition “Court”, and the substitution therefor, after the definition of “Senior Magistrate”, of the words ““Summary Court” means a magistrate sitting either alone in summary jurisdiction or with other justices or one or more justices sitting to hear any cause which they may be empowered to hear.”.

Title.

Enacting clause.

Short title and date of commencement.

Amendment of section 2.

- Amendment of section 5. 3. Section 5 of the principal Ordinance, as replaced by section 2 of the Administration of Justice (Amendment) Ordinance 1954, is amended by the addition of the word "Summary" before the word "Court" wherever the word "Court" appears in the section.
- Appeal to Supreme Court. 4. Part II of the principal Ordinance is amended by the insertion after section 7 of the following new section —
- "7A. An appeal to the Supreme Court shall lie —
- (a) in civil cases from every decision of a Summary Court; and
- (b) in criminal cases from every decision of a Summary Court by which an accused person has been convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for a term exceeding one month or a fine exceeding £..... :
- Provided that where the accused shall have pleaded Guilty an appeal shall not lie save as to the amount or legality of the sentence."
- Insertion of new Part IIA. 5. The principal Ordinance is amended by the addition, after Part II, of the following new part —
- "PART IIA.
- Constitution of Magistrate's Court. 7B. There is hereby constituted a court subordinate to the Supreme Court to be called the Magistrate's Court, which shall consist of and be held before a Senior Magistrate appointed by the Governor for this purpose.
- General criminal jurisdiction. 7C. The Senior Magistrate shall have jurisdiction to try and determine any offence committed within the Colony other than treason, piracy, murder, manslaughter, rape or arson, and shall have power to impose a term of imprisonment not exceeding years, or a fine not exceeding £....., or both.
- Practice and procedure. 7D. The criminal jurisdiction vested in the Magistrate's Court by virtue of section 7C of this Ordinance shall be exercised so far as regards practice and procedure in the manner provided in this Ordinance, and in default thereof in conformity with the practice and procedure for the time being observed in England in Courts of Assize and Quarter Sessions.
- Assessors and jurors. 7E. The Senior Magistrate may summon two or more justices to sit with him as assessors in the Magistrate's Court, and, with the leave of the Judge may cause jurors to be summoned to attend any sitting of the Court, and may give such directions as to the time and place to which they will be summoned as he may deem fit.
- Criminal appeal. 7F. A person convicted by the Magistrate's Court may appeal to the Supreme Court —
- (a) if he has pleaded guilty, against the sentence; and
- (b) if he did not, against any order, conviction or sentence.
- Clerk. 7G. The Judge with the approval of the Governor may appoint a suitable person to be Clerk to the Magistrate's Court.
- General civil jurisdiction. 7H. The Magistrate's Court shall have civil jurisdiction to try and determine all actions and suits of a civil nature in the Colony where the amount in dispute or the value of the subject matter does not exceed £1000.
- Civil procedure and practice. 7I. The civil jurisdiction vested in the Magistrate's Court shall be exercised so far as regards powers practice and procedure in the manner provided by this Ordinance and by such rules of court as may be made pursuant to this Ordinance and in default thereof in substantial conformity with the practice and procedure for the time being observed in England in the County Courts.

7J. An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court —

Appeal in civil cases.

- (a) from all final judgments and decisions; and
- (b) by leave of the Senior Magistrate or the Judge from all interlocutory orders and decisions made in a suit before the Magistrate's Court.

7K. An appeal from the Magistrate's Court in any civil or criminal matter shall be commenced by the appellant giving notice of appeal within days after the day on which the decision of the Magistrate's Court was given :

Time for appeal.

Provided that the Judge may, if he thinks fit, direct that any notice given after the expiration of the time fixed shall be treated as given within the said period.

7L. (1) Where there is commenced in the Magistrate's Court any action founded on contract or tort where the plaintiff claims a sum exceeding £..... the defendant may, within such time as may be prescribed by rules of court, give notice that he objects to the action being tried in the Magistrate's Court.

Transfer of actions.

(2) Where such notice is given, the Senior Magistrate or the Judge may order that the case be transferred to the Supreme Court, if

- (a) the defendant gives security approved by the Senior Magistrate for the amount claimed and the costs of the trial in the Supreme Court; and
- (b) the Senior Magistrate certifies that in his opinion some important question of law or fact is likely to arise."

6. The principal Ordinance is amended by the deletion of section 53 and the substitution of the following —

Powers of Supreme Court on criminal appeal.

"53. The Supreme Court shall have the following powers in relation to an appeal from the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court —

(a) on an appeal against conviction, or against conviction or sentence, the power to

- (i) quash the conviction and acquit the appellant; or
- (ii) affirm the conviction; or
- (iii) to substitute a conviction for any other offence of which the appellant could have been lawfully convicted; or
- (iv) to affirm the sentence passed or to substitute therefor any other sentence, whether more or less severe and whether of the same nature or not, which the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court would have had power to pass; and

(v) to order a retrial of the appellant before a court of competent jurisdiction; and

(b) on an appeal against sentence only, the power

- (i) to affirm the sentence; or
- (ii) to substitute any other sentence, whether more or less severe and whether of the same nature or not, which the court would have had power to pass; and

(c) on an appeal against any other order, the power to affirm, quash or vary the order, and in such case the Judge may make any consequential or incidental order which may appear just and proper.

(d) in the exercise of his appellate jurisdiction under this section the Judge may in his discretion hear additional evidence, and may substitute a finding of guilty but insane for any sentence.

Powers of Supreme Court.
on civil appeal.

7. On the hearing of an appeal, the Judge may draw any inference of fact and either —

- (a) order a new trial on such terms as he thinks just; or
- (b) order judgment to be entered for any party; or
- (c) make a final or other order on such terms as he thinks proper to ensure the determination on the merits of the real question in controversy between the parties.

Amendment of section 69.

8. Section 69 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the addition of the words "the Magistrate's Court" after the words "in the Supreme Court", and the words "and of the Magistrate's Court" after the words "officers of the Supreme Court".

Ref. 0457/III.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill provides for the creation of a new court of law, to be known as the Magistrate's Court, which shall be subordinate to the Supreme Court but superior to the existing Court of Summary Jurisdiction.

The Magistrate's Court which shall be presided over by the Senior Magistrate shall have criminal jurisdiction to try and determine any offence other than treason, piracy, murder, manslaughter, rape or arson, and shall have civil jurisdiction to try and determine all actions and suits of a civil nature when the amount in dispute or the value of the subject matter does not exceed £1,000.

Provision is also made for the Supreme Court to hear and determine appeals from the Magistrate's Court.

A Bill for An Ordinance

To control the harvesting of kelp in the Colony and its exportation therefrom. Title.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Control of Kelp Ordinance 1970. Short title.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires — Interpretation.
 “export” means taking or sending out of the Colony;
 “licence” means a licence granted under this Ordinance;
 “sale” includes exchange, barter, and offering or exposing for sale;
 “kelp” means any alga or plant of the genus macrocystis pyrifer and lessonia growing in or on the foreshore of any part of the Colony or in or on the seabed within the territorial waters of the Colony.

3. (1) No person shall harvest any kelp for sale, processing or export save with, and in accordance with the terms of, a licence granted by the Governor. Prohibition.

(2) No person shall export any kelp save with, and in accordance with the terms of, a licence granted by the Governor.

Grant of licence.

4. The granting or withholding of any licence shall be in the absolute discretion of the Governor, and every licence to harvest kelp for sale, processing or export shall be for such period and relate to such place or places and shall be subject to the payment of such fees and such other conditions as may be specified therein.

Royalties.

5. Subject to section 6, all kelp exported shall be liable to such royalties, if any, as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Governor in Council, and such regulations may prescribe the method of collection and disposal of the royalties so imposed.

Exclusive licence in specified areas.

6. The Governor in Council may upon such terms and conditions as he may agree upon with the licensee grant an exclusive licence to harvest kelp for export in any specified areas and may provide in the licence for the royalties payable on kelp exported under the licence and for the periodical revision of these royalties.

Implied conditions of licence.

7. There shall be implied in every licence the following conditions —

(1) That the licensee shall carry on all his harvesting operations in a safe, orderly, skilful, efficient and workmanlike manner and shall not cause danger or damage to persons lawfully using or being on or in the foreshore of the territorial waters of the Colony.

(2) That the licensee shall take due and proper precautions for the safety of all persons employed by him in harvesting operations.

Offences and penalties.

8. (1) Any person who harvests any kelp for sale, processing or export or exports any kelp without being authorised so to do by a licence granted for such purpose shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year or to a fine not exceeding £200 or to both such imprisonment and fine and to forfeit any kelp found in his possession.

(2) Any person who fails to comply with the conditions specified or implied in any licence granted to him shall be guilty of an offence and in addition to any penalty not exceeding a fine of £100 which to a court it seems proper to impose the court may order that the licence be suspended or revoked and may further order the confiscation of any kelp harvested in contravention of the conditions specified in such licence.

Saving.

9. Nothing in this Ordinance shall affect any customary right of any person to harvest kelp in small quantities for agricultural and other purposes within the Colony.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill gives power to the Government to control a potentially valuable economic asset and to ensure good husbandry.

Colony Ordinances Nos. 1-6.

BY THE QUEEN

A PROCLAMATION

DIRECTING THAT CERTAIN PARTS OF THE DECIMAL CURRENCY ACT 1967
SHALL APPLY TO AND BE IN FORCE IN GIBRALTAR AND THE FALKLAND ISLANDS.

ELIZABETH R.

We, in exercise of the powers, conferred by section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870, section 3 (3) of the Decimal Currency Act 1967, and of all other powers enabling Us in that behalf, do hereby, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, proclaim, direct and ordain as follows —

1. The parts of the Decimal Currency Act 1967, as modified and set out in the Schedule hereto, shall apply and be in force in Gibraltar and the Falkland Islands.

2. This Proclamation shall be published in the Official Gazettes of Gibraltar and the Falkland Islands and shall come into force in each of those territories on the date of its publication therein in the Official Gazette.

SCHEDULE TO THE PROCLAMATION

1. (1) On and after the appointed day the denominations of money in the currency of Gibraltar and the Falkland Islands shall be the pound sterling and the new penny, the new penny being one-hundredth part of a pound sterling.

(2) In this Act "the appointed day" means such day in the year 1971 as the Governor may by order appoint.

2. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, all coins of the new currency to be made at the Mint, being coins of the metals and denominations described in column 1 of Schedule 1 to this Act, shall be circular and of the standard weight, diameter and composition specified in columns 2, 3 and 4 of that Schedule.

(2) In the making of such coins a remedy (that is, a variation from the standard weight, diameter or composition specified as aforesaid) shall be allowed of an amount not exceeding the following, that is to say —

- (a) a variation from the said standard weight of an amount per coin (measured as the average of a sample of not more than one kilogram of the coin in question) specified in column 5 of the said Schedule 1; and
- (b) a variation from the said standard diameter of 0.125 millimetre per coin; and
- (c) in the case of cupro-nickel coins, a variation from the said standard composition of two per cent.

(3) The powers exercisable by proclamation by virtue of section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 shall include power to determine —

- (a) the weight and composition of coins of the new currency to be made at the Mint, other than gold coins and coins of the metals and denominations described in the said Schedule 1; and
- (b) the remedy to be allowed in the making of such coins;

and so much of section 3 of that Act and section 2 of the Coinage Act 1946 as requires coins of other denominations to be of a weight and fineness or composition determined by reference to coins of the denominations described in those Acts shall not apply to coins specified in a proclamation made by virtue of this subsection.

(4) Coins made in accordance with this section may, if so directed by proclamation under the said section 11, be issued for use before the appointed day as current coins of such denominations of the currency in force before that day as may be specified in the proclamation.

3. (1) In section 5 of the Coinage Act 1870 (prohibition upon making of coins except by the Mint) for the words "by the Mint" there shall be substituted the words "by or with the authority of the Mint"; and references in any enactment (including this Act) to coins made by, or at or in, the Mint shall include references to coins made at any place with the authority of the Mint.

7. (1) This Act may be cited as the Decimal Currency Act 1967.

(2) Any reference in this Act to any enactment is a reference to it as amended or applied by or under any subsequent enactment.

Wild Animals and Birds Protection Ordinance 1964.

(No. 15 of 1964)

ORDER

(under section 4 of the Ordinance)

No. 3 of 1970.

C. HASKARD,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 4 of the Wild Animals and Birds Protection Ordinance 1964, the Governor in Council, after obtaining the consent of the owners of the area known as Bleaker Island, East Falkland, has made the following Order —

1. This Order may be cited as the Wild Animals and Birds Protection (Bleaker Island Sanctuary) Order 1970.

2. The whole area of Bleaker Island lying north of the fence running west to east from the settlement to Long Gulch, to be a wild animal and bird sanctuary.

3. That any person who within the said area at any time wilfully kills, injures, or takes, or attempts to kill, or take any wild animal or bird shall be guilty of an offence against the Wild Animals and Birds Protection Ordinance 1964.

4. That any person who introduces into the said area any carnivorous animal, other than a working sheep dog, shall be guilty of an offence against the said Ordinance.

5. That any person guilty of an offence under this Order shall be liable to the penalty prescribed in section 4 of the said Ordinance.

Made by the Governor in Council this 5th day of June 1970.

H. L. BOUND,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

FUGITIVE CRIMINAL

The Extradition (Genocide) Order 1970

Made - - - - - 4th February 1970*Laid before Parliament* 10th February 1970*Coming into Operation* 30th April 1970

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 4th day of February 1970

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Whereas a Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide (hereinafter referred to as "the Genocide Convention") was approved by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 9th December 1948, the terms of which are set out in Schedule 1 to this Order:

And whereas the states mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order are states with which extradition treaties are in force and which are Contracting Parties to the Genocide Convention:

And whereas the Genocide Act 1969 (a) has been enacted to give effect to the Genocide Convention:

And whereas an instrument of accession to the Genocide Convention was deposited on behalf of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland with the Secretary-General of the United Nations on 30th January 1970 and the Genocide Convention will enter into force for the United Kingdom on 30th April 1970:

And whereas the application of the Genocide Convention is extended by notification in accordance with Article XII of the Convention to the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man and the British possessions mentioned in Schedule 3 to this Order:

Now, therefore, Her Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred upon Her by section 2 of the Extradition Act 1870 (b), is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows—

1. This Order may be cited as the Extradition (Genocide) Order 1970 and shall come into operation on 30th April 1970.

2. The Interpretation Act 1889 (c) shall apply, with the necessary adaptations, for the purpose of interpreting this Order and otherwise in relation thereto as it applies for the purpose of interpreting, and in relation to, Acts of Parliament.

3. The Extradition Acts 1870 to 1935 as amended by the Genocide Act 1969 shall apply in the case of the states mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order under and in accordance with the extradition treaties therein described as supplemented by the Genocide Convention.

4. The operation of this Order is limited to the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man and the British possessions mentioned in Schedule 3 to this Order, being British possessions to which the application of the Genocide Convention is extended.

W. G. Agnew.

SCHEDULE 1

ENGLISH TEXT OF THE GENOCIDE CONVENTION

THE CONTRACTING PARTIES,

HAVING CONSIDERED the declaration made by the General Assembly of the United Nations in its resolution 96 (I) dated 11 December 1946 that genocide is a crime under international law, contrary to the spirit and aims of the United Nations and condemned by the civilized world;

RECOGNIZING that at all periods of history genocide has inflicted great losses on humanity; and

BEING CONVINCED that, in order to liberate mankind from such an odious scourge, international co-operation is required,

HEREBY AGREE AS HEREINAFTER PROVIDED:

ARTICLE I

The Contracting Parties confirm that genocide, whether committed in time of peace or in time of war, is a crime under international law which they undertake to prevent and to punish.

ARTICLE II

In the present Convention, genocide means any of the following acts committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group, as such:

- (a) Killing members of the group;
- (b) Causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group;
- (c) Deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part;
- (d) Imposing measures intended to prevent births within the group;
- (e) Forcibly transferring children of the group to another group.

ARTICLE III

The following acts shall be punishable:

- (a) Genocide;
- (b) Conspiracy to commit genocide;
- (c) Direct and public incitement to commit genocide;
- (d) Attempt to commit genocide;
- (e) Complicity in genocide.

ARTICLE IV

Persons committing genocide or any of the other acts enumerated in article III shall be punished, whether they are constitutionally responsible rulers, public officials or private individuals.

ARTICLE V

The Contracting Parties undertake to enact, in accordance with their respective Constitutions, the necessary legislation to give effect to the provisions of the present Convention and, in particular, to provide effective penalties for persons guilty of genocide or of any of the other acts enumerated in article III.

ARTICLE VI

Persons charged with genocide or any of the other acts enumerated in article III shall be tried by a competent tribunal of the State in the territory of which the act was committed, or by such international penal tribunal as may have jurisdiction with respect to those Contracting Parties which shall have accepted its jurisdiction.

ARTICLE VII

Genocide and the other acts enumerated in article III shall not be considered as political crimes for the purpose of extradition.

The Contracting Parties pledge themselves in such cases to grant extradition in accordance with their laws and treaties in force.

ARTICLE VIII

Any Contracting Party may call upon the competent organs of the United Nations to take such action under the Charter of the United Nations as they consider appropriate for the prevention and suppression of acts of genocide or any of the other acts enumerated in article III.

ARTICLE IX

Disputes between the Contracting Parties relating to the interpretation, application or fulfilment of the present Convention, including those relating to the responsibility of a State for genocide or for any of the other acts enumerated in article III, shall be submitted to the International Court of Justice at the request of any of the parties to the dispute.

ARTICLE X

The present Convention, of which the Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall bear the date of 9 December 1948.

ARTICLE XI

The present Convention shall be open until 31 December 1949 for signature on behalf of any Member of the United Nations and of any non-member State to which an invitation to sign has been addressed by the General Assembly.

The present Convention shall be ratified, and the instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

After 1 January 1950 the present Convention may be acceded to on behalf of any Member of the United Nations and of any non-member State which has received an invitation as aforesaid.

Instruments of accession shall be deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

ARTICLE XII

Any Contracting Party may at any time, by notification addressed to the Secretary-General of the United Nations, extend the application of the present Convention to all or any of the territories for the conduct of whose foreign relations that Contracting Party is responsible.

ARTICLE XIII

On the day when the first twenty instruments of ratification or accession have been deposited, the Secretary-General shall draw up a procès-verbal and transmit a copy thereof to each Member of the United Nations and to each of the non-member States contemplated in article XI.

The present Convention shall come into force on the ninetieth day following the date of deposit of the twentieth instrument of ratification or accession.

Any ratification or accession effected subsequent to the latter date shall become effective on the ninetieth day following the deposit of the instrument of ratification or accession.

ARTICLE XIV

The present Convention shall remain in effect for a period of ten years as from the date of its coming into force.

It shall thereafter remain in force for successive periods of five years for such Contracting Parties as have not denounced it at least six months before the expiration of the current period.

Denunciation shall be effected by a written notification addressed to the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

ARTICLE XV

If, as a result of denunciations, the number of Parties to the present Convention should become less than sixteen, the Convention shall cease to be in force as from the date on which the last of these denunciations shall become effective.

ARTICLE XVI

A request for the revision of the present Convention may be made at any time by any Contracting Party by means of a notification in writing addressed to the Secretary-General.

The General assembly shall decide upon the steps, if any, to be taken in respect of such request.

ARTICLE XVII

The Secretary-General of the United Nations shall notify all Members of the United Nations and the non-member States contemplated in article XI of the following:

- (a) Signatures, ratifications and accessions received in accordance with article XI;

- (b) Notifications received in accordance with article XII;
- (c) The date upon which the present convention comes into force in accordance with article XIII;
- (d) Denunciations received in accordance with article XIV;
- (e) The abrogation of the Convention in accordance with article XV;
- (f) Notifications received in accordance with article XVI.

ARTICLE XVIII

The original of the present Convention shall be deposited in the archives of the United Nations.

A certified copy of the Convention shall be transmitted to each Member of the United Nations and to each of the non-member States contemplated in article XI.

ARTICLE XIX

The present Convention shall be registered by the Secretary-General of the United Nations on the date of its coming into force.

FUGITIVE CRIMINAL

The Fugitive Offenders (Genocide) Order 1970

Made - - - - - 4th February 1970*Laid before Parliament* 10th February 1970*Coming into Operation* 30th April 1970

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 4th day of February 1970

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Her Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred upon Her by section 17 of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 (a), as extended by section 3 (1) of the Genocide Act 1969 (b), is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

1. This Order may be cited as the Fugitive Offenders (Genocide) Order 1970 and shall come into operation on 30th April 1970.

2. The Interpretation Act 1889 (c) shall apply, with the necessary adaptations, for the purpose of interpreting this Order and otherwise in relation thereto as it applies for the purpose of interpreting, and in relation to, Acts of Parliament.

3. (1) There shall be deemed to be included among the descriptions of offences set out in Schedule 1 to the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 as extended to the countries mentioned in the Schedule to this Order any offence of genocide and (so far as not so included by virtue of the foregoing) any attempt or conspiracy to commit such an offence and any direct and public incitement to commit such an offence.

(2) For the purposes of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 as extended to any country mentioned in the Schedule to this Order, no offence which, if committed in that country, would be punishable as an offence of genocide or as an attempt, conspiracy or incitement to commit such an offence shall be regarded as an offence of a political character.

(3) It shall not be an objection to any proceedings taken against a person by virtue of the preceding paragraphs of this Article that under the law in force at the time when and in the place where he is alleged to have committed the act of which he is accused or of which he was convicted he could not have been punished therefor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

The Genocide Act 1969 (which gave effect to the Genocide Convention) amends the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 by adding genocide to the offences for which a person may be returned to a Commonwealth country and by providing that it shall not be treated as an offence of a political character. This Order provides that those amendments shall apply to the 1967 Act as extended to the countries mentioned in the Schedule, being countries to which the Genocide Convention extends.

An Ordinance

Further to amend the Administration of Justice Ordinance. Title.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Administration of Justice (Amendment) Ordinance 1970 and shall come into force on the 8th day of June 1970. Short title and date of commencement.

2. Section 2 of the principal Ordinance is amended — Amendment of section 2.

- (i) by the addition, after the definition of "Judgment", of the words "Magistrate's Court" means the Court constituted under Part IIA of this Ordinance";
- (ii) by the addition, after the definition of "Record", of the words "Senior Magistrate" means the magistrate appointed under Part IIA of this Ordinance": and
- (iii) by the deletion of the definition "Court", and the substitution therefor, after the definition of "Senior Magistrate", of the words "Summary Court" means a magistrate sitting either alone in summary jurisdiction or with other justices or one or more justices sitting to hear any cause which they may be empowered to hear."

- Amendment of section 5. 3. Section 5 of the principal Ordinance, as replaced by section 2 of the Administration of Justice (Amendment) Ordinance 1954, is amended by the addition of the word "Summary" before the word "Court" wherever the word "Court" appears in the section.
- Appeal to Supreme Court. 4. Part II of the principal Ordinance is amended by the insertion after section 7 of the following new section —
- "7A. An appeal to the Supreme Court shall lie —
- (a) in civil cases from every decision of a Summary Court; and
- (b) in criminal cases from every decision of a Summary Court by which an accused person has been convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for a term exceeding one month or a fine exceeding £50:
- Provided that where the accused shall have pleaded Guilty an appeal shall not lie save as to the amount or legality of the sentence."
- Insertion of new Part II. 5. The principal Ordinance is amended by the addition, after Part II, of the following new part —
- "PART IIA.
- Constitution of Magistrate's Court. 7B. There is hereby constituted a court subordinate to the Supreme Court to be called the Magistrate's Court, which shall consist of and be held before a Senior Magistrate appointed by the Governor for this purpose.
- General criminal jurisdiction. 7C. The Senior Magistrate shall have jurisdiction to try and determine any offence committed within the Colony other than treason, piracy, murder, manslaughter, rape or arson, and shall have power to impose a term of imprisonment not exceeding seven years, or a fine not exceeding £1,000, or both.
- Practice and procedure. 7D. The criminal jurisdiction vested in the Magistrate's Court by virtue of section 7C of this Ordinance shall be exercised so far as regards practice and procedure in the manner provided in this Ordinance, and in default thereof in conformity with the practice and procedure for the time being observed in England in Courts of Assize and Quarter Sessions.
- Assessors and jurors. 7E. The Senior Magistrate may summon two or more justices to sit with him as assessors in the Magistrate's Court, and, with the leave of the Judge may cause jurors to be summoned to attend any sitting of the Court, and may give such directions as to the time and place to which they will be summoned as he may deem fit.
- Criminal appeal. 7F. A person convicted by the Magistrate's Court may appeal to the Supreme Court —
- (a) if he has pleaded guilty, against the sentence; and
- (b) if he did not, against any order, conviction or sentence.
- Clerk. 7G. The Judge with the approval of the Governor may appoint a suitable person to be Clerk to the Magistrate's Court.
- General civil jurisdiction. 7H. The Magistrate's Court shall have civil jurisdiction to try and determine all actions and suits of a civil nature in the Colony where the amount in dispute or the value of the subject matter does not exceed £1000.
- Civil procedure and practice. 7I. The civil jurisdiction vested in the Magistrate's Court shall be exercised so far as regards powers practice and procedure in the manner provided by this Ordinance and by such rules of court as may be made pursuant to this Ordinance and in default thereof in substantial conformity with the practice and procedure for the time being observed in England in the County Courts.

7J. An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court —

- (a) from all final judgments and decisions; and
- (b) by leave of the Senior Magistrate or the Judge from all interlocutory orders and decisions made in a suit before the Magistrate's Court.

Appeal in civil cases.

7K. An appeal from the Magistrate's Court in any civil or criminal matter shall be commenced by the appellant giving notice of appeal within fourteen days after the day on which the decision of the Magistrate's Court was given:

Time for appeal.

Provided that the Judge may, if he thinks fit, direct that any notice given after the expiration of the time fixed shall be treated as given within the said period.

7L. (1) Where there is commenced in the Magistrate's Court any action founded on contract or tort where the plaintiff claims a sum exceeding £750 the defendant may, within such time as may be prescribed by rules of court, give notice that he objects to the action being tried in the Magistrate's Court.

Transfer of actions.

(2) Where such notice is given, the Senior Magistrate or the Judge may order that the case be transferred to the Supreme Court, if

- (a) the defendant gives security approved by the Senior Magistrate for the amount claimed and the costs of the trial in the Supreme Court; and
- (b) the Senior Magistrate certifies that in his opinion some important question of law or fact is likely to arise."

6. The principal Ordinance is amended by the deletion of section 53 and the substitution of the following —

Powers of Supreme Court on criminal appeal.

"53. The Supreme Court shall have the following powers in relation to an appeal from the Magistrate's Court or a Summary Court —

(a) on an appeal against conviction, or against conviction or sentence, the power to

- (i) quash the conviction and acquit the appellant; or
- (ii) affirm the conviction; or
- (iii) to substitute a conviction for any other offence of which the appellant could have been lawfully convicted; or
- (iv) to affirm the sentence passed or to substitute therefor any other sentence, whether more or less severe and whether of the same nature or not, which the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court would have had power to pass; and

(v) to order a retrial of the appellant before a court of competent jurisdiction; and

(b) on an appeal against sentence only, the power

- (i) to affirm the sentence; or
- (ii) to substitute any other sentence, whether more or less severe and whether of the same nature or not, which the court would have had power to pass; and

(c) on an appeal against any other order, the power to affirm, quash or vary the order, and in such case the Judge may make any consequential or incidental order which may appear just and proper.

(d) in the exercise of his appellate jurisdiction under this section the Judge may in his discretion hear additional evidence, and may substitute a finding of guilty but insane for any sentence.

Powers of Supreme Court
on civil appeal.

7. On the hearing of an appeal, the Judge may draw any inference of fact and either —

- (a) order a new trial on such terms as he thinks just; or
- (b) order judgment to be entered for any party; or
- (c) make a final or other order on such terms as he thinks proper to ensure the determination on the merits of the real question in controversy between the parties.

Amendment of section 69.

8. Section 69 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the addition of the words "the Magistrate's Court" after the words "in the Supreme Court", and the words "and of the Magistrate's Court" after the words "officers of the Supreme Court".

An Ordinance

To control the harvesting of kelp in the Colony and its exportation therefrom.

Title.

(1st July 1970)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Control of Kelp Ordinance 1970.

Short title.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires —
“export” means taking or sending out of the Colony;
“licence” means a licence granted under this Ordinance;
“sale” includes exchange, barter, and offering or exposing for sale;
“kelp” means any alga or plant of the genus macrocystis pyrifera and lessonia growing in or on the foreshore of any part of the Colony or in or on the seabed within the territorial waters of the Colony.

Interpretation.

3. (1) No person shall harvest any kelp for sale, processing or export save with, and in accordance with the terms of, a licence granted by the Governor.

Prohibition.

(2) No person shall export any kelp save with, and in accordance with the terms of, a licence granted by the Governor.

Grant of licence.

4. The granting or withholding of any licence shall be in the absolute discretion of the Governor, and every licence to harvest kelp for sale, processing or export shall be for such period and relate to such place or places and shall be subject to the payment of such fees and such other conditions as may be specified therein.

Royalties.

5. Subject to section 6, all kelp exported shall be liable to such royalties, if any, as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Governor in Council, and such regulations may prescribe the method of collection and disposal of the royalties so imposed.

Exclusive licence in specified areas.

6. The Governor in Council may upon such terms and conditions as he may agree upon with the licensee grant an exclusive licence to harvest kelp for export in any specified areas and may provide in the licence for the royalties payable on kelp exported under the licence and for the periodical revision of these royalties.

Implied conditions of licence.

7. There shall be implied in every licence the following conditions—

(1) That the licensee shall carry on all his harvesting operations in a safe, orderly, skilful, efficient and workmanlike manner and shall not cause danger or damage to persons lawfully using or being on or in the foreshore of the territorial waters of the Colony.

(2) That the licensee shall take due and proper precautions for the safety of all persons employed by him in harvesting operations.

Offences and penalties.

8. (1) Any person who harvests any kelp for sale, processing or export or exports any kelp without being authorised so to do by a licence granted for such purpose shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year or to a fine not exceeding £200 or to both such imprisonment and fine and to forfeit any kelp found in his possession.

(2) Any person who fails to comply with the conditions specified or implied in any licence granted to him shall be guilty of an offence and in addition to any penalty not exceeding a fine of £100 which to a court it seems proper to impose the court may order that the licence be suspended or revoked and may further order the confiscation of any kelp harvested in contravention of the conditions specified in such licence.

Saving.

9. Nothing in this Ordinance shall affect any customary right of any person to harvest kelp in small quantities for agricultural and other purposes within the Colony.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meetings of Legislative Council held on 29th October 1969 and 17th December 1969 were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members of Council:

This morning our numbers are somewhat reduced but for the very good reason that two Honourable Members, Mr Pitaluga and Mr Hills, are already in the United Kingdom, together with the Senior Unofficial Member of Executive Council, Mr. Barton. There they are soon to be joined by the Colonial Secretary and Major Goss who, with Mr Pitaluga, have been nominated as the Falkland Islands representatives in the British delegation which is to meet in London a delegation from the Argentine Government in a round of talks on communications. These talks will be preceded by consultations on communications with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. I shall be referring to communications and to these talks a little later. Before I do so however I should like to refer to progress made in other fields and in doing so I acknowledge the sterling work done by many people in the Colony, work which may today pass unmentioned but is certainly not unnoticed.

I should perhaps hesitate to embark on the subject of wool prices when most members of Council are so much more familiar with this subject than I am. One reads conflicting reports, ranging from dismal forecasts in The Times and The Economist to the welcome news that a substantial proportion of the Falkland Islands wool clip is these days being disposed of to Japan where a flourishing and expanding textile industry seems to regard favourably the Falkland Islands product.

But, whatever the fluctuations of wool prices, every step which can be taken to produce more wool suited to the selective demands of the raw wool market will be a step in the right direction. In this connection I am sure that all Honourable Members look forward with interest to receiving the report by Mr Davies and the other members of the Agricultural Advisory Team who have recently spent seven months in the Colony. I know that I echo the views of all Honourable Members when I say that all of us were most impressed by this team; first, because of their obvious professional competence and, secondly, for their ability to get on both with each other and with everyone else. They did indeed most successfully become friends of the many people they met here and they are missed not only for their sound technical advice but also for their own personalities. I would like publicly to thank the Ministry of Overseas Development for making possible this most worthwhile visit and to record the appreciation of the Falkland Islands to our five friends, Messrs Davies, McCrea, Mead, Dickson and Williams.

After leaving the Falklands the Team (which is the collective description by which we knew them) spent three weeks visiting farms and research stations in Argentina and in Chile and by all accounts this was time very well spent and will help them with the production of their report. But already of course during their stay here the members of the Team were able to give a tremendous amount of useful advice and many farms are already adopting new ideas as a result. I believe that the visit of these five specialists will mark a turning point in production in the Colony, particularly if, as I sincerely hope will be the case, their visit is followed up in a constructive way.

Anyone who has stood on the site of the Anson model farm, which had such a regrettably brief existence in the middle 1920s, will wish that financial stringency and see-saw policy had not brought about its premature closure. If it should be that the recommendation of the Team is that something on the lines of the Anson farm be started again, there will certainly be no point in regretting that we could have done all this 40 years ago; rather we shall hope that funds will be forthcoming to make a fresh start on a project which I am sure would be of tremendous benefit to the industry.

Incidentally, I revisited last month the site of Anson and to my great delight I saw there something which did not exist a few years ago, namely, a substantial acreage of well-established new grassland, an example of the progress which I am glad to say one observes repeated in many parts of the Colony these days.

One unexpected outcome of the visit of the team was the realisation that our sheep population is to some extent affected by hydatid cysts which can in turn lead to hydatid disease. Energetic measures are being taken towards bringing the problem under control and in this connection I would like to thank the Hydatids Committee under the chairmanship of the Honourable Member Mr. Miller for the work they are doing to publicize the need for sensible precautions.

Infestation by keds is among the many subjects which have received the attention of the Team and they have left behind them some preliminary thoughts on how the problem can be tackled with a view to complete eradication of keds throughout the Colony. The benefits of such eradication are so obvious as to require no commendation from me and I imagine that the subject will be one which will be actively discussed by the Development Committee and at the Sheep Owners Association meetings later this winter.

I would like now to turn to the subject of education, on which our expenditure rises every year. It is expenditure which is not begrudged by the community as a whole provided we are getting value for money spent. In this connection the advice of the Education Committee of this Council has been particularly valuable and it is encouraging that each year more and more parents are taking an active interest in the schooling of their children. The staff of the Education Department, aided by three V.S.Os, has until very recently been up to strength throughout the year and for the third year running a useful seminar for all Camp teachers was held at Darwin school.

The Colony subsidizes the education of 24 children away at school overseas, 14 of them in Montevideo and the remainder in England. The view is sometimes expressed that active young people go overseas to seek their fortune and that the Colony spends funds unnecessarily on their education. This to my mind should never be a reason for failing to provide the best schooling we can, so that our children may be properly qualified for life in a world in which competition is increasingly severe. I do not think it is desirable, or indeed possible, to draw a distinction between those who prefer to remain in the Colony and those who decide to follow a career elsewhere. We have no option but to do the best we can for every child in the Colony.

With effect from September last, overseas education allowances have once again been increased, while within the Colony children's allowances are paid until a child leaves school at the age of 15.

There are encouraging numbers of apprentices coming on in various trades and the scheme organised by the Education Department whereby Stanley school pupils have spent some time visiting places of employment has proved popular.

While on the subject of education I would like once again to express thanks to the many people who undertake voluntary activities in connection with our various youth organisations. I am sorry that the play group for young children is temporarily in abeyance but it must be satisfactory for the public-spirited people who combined to bring into existence the children's playground to see how popular this has undoubtedly become.

We are fortunate that throughout the year the Medical Department has been well up to strength. The most notable innovation in this particular sphere was the decision of Government to pay the full cost of medical treatment overseas. In this connection I would like to stress that Government will only bind itself to meet the costs of those who are sent overseas on the recommendation of the Senior Medical Officer.

The postal services have run smoothly and effectively throughout the year and this applies to the whole of that Department. Post Office revenue depends to a certain extent on the policy adopted with regard to the issue of postage stamps. We have to steer a middle course between on the one hand the temptation to issue too many commemorative sets and on the other hand missing an opportunity to earn revenue because we observe too conservative a policy. Fortunately the reputation of Falkland Islands stamps continues to stand high.

During the past year we have produced two commemorative sets, the Bishop Stirling centenary and the Golden Jubilee of the Falkland Islands Defence Force; both have been well received. The latter reminds us that our small Volunteer Force has an essential role to play in training our young men how to stand to arms should the need arise. The Bishop Stirling set, on the preparation of which Mr. Thompson and Padre Millam did much work, recalls the earlier days of the Colony when contact with the Coast was freer and easier than has been the case in recent years.

Perhaps here I might be permitted to digress to mention that in about ten days time we shall be saying goodbye to Padre Millam and I would like to take this opportunity publicly to thank him for performing the duties of chaplain at our meetings and for editing the broadcasts of our Council proceedings. I am sure that all Honourable Members will join me in wishing Mr and Mrs Millam the best of good fortune in the work ahead of them.

Turning back to the subject of stamps, we have hopes that the five stamp issue due out next October commemorating the steamship Great Britain will be both attractive and profitable.

In step with the United Kingdom, the Colony will be going over to decimals in February next year and this will affect our stamps. It is intended that the current definitive issue showing the flowers of the Falkland Islands should be over-printed with the new decimal values.

For some years the Superintendent of the Power and Electrical Department has been drawing attention to the age of some of his plant and I regret that the time has come when our well-tried generators are really feeling the strain. At the budget meeting last year I mentioned that the Superintendent had told me that on average our generators had completed more than 60,000 hours which, if they drove vehicles instead of alternators, would apparently amount to one million miles each. Now we have an ominous crack in the cylinder block of one generator and it has been decided that new and more modern machinery must be the first call on our resources. We have in consequence made application for Development Aid, though at the present time we do not know for certain whether this will be forthcoming.

I might incidentally mention that to make abundantly clear the responsibilities of the Department and the consumer alike new electricity regulations have been made and publicized.

The Public Works Department has had a busy year on maintenance and servicing government property. A new classroom block was erected for the junior school, the joiners workshop was completed and oil-fired heating installed in a variety of government buildings. Much needed repair work was started on the Stanley harbour sea wall.

Modest sums have been spent on the improvement of Camp tracks, while in Stanley a limited programme of concreting further roads has been completed. Plans exist to convert further Stanley roads to concrete, a material having the great advantage of requiring very little upkeep, but before further work of this nature is undertaken we should consider whether there are not more urgent demands on our financial resources.

The Legal Department has carried out its work with customary efficiency. Although this department, for the best possible reasons, is seldom in the headlines, members will be taking a particular interest in one of the bills which is to be considered later in this meeting, the Administration of Justice (Amendment) Bill.

The Falkland Islands Police Force has performed its duties with competence and I am glad to say that there is now a small but reliable body of police reservists available should the need arise.

The Fire Brigade has had to be called upon only six times in the past 12 months, and it may be that the public is becoming more fire conscious. The number of chimney fires has been less than usual and more fires have been brought under control by the use of fire extinguishers. It is satisfactory to know however that our volunteer fire brigade is maintained in a high state of readiness and efficiency.

The Government Printer and his staff have kept up the deservedly high reputation of that unit for good quality production. Among special publications during the year were a pamphlet entitled "Notes on the Falkland Islands" issued for the benefit of visitors and a souvenir brochure commemorating the Bishop Stirling centenary.

A monthly family magazine, the "St. Mary's Herald", has made its appearance, complementing the well-established and popular Falkland Islands Monthly Review.

Committees of Council chaired by Honourable Unofficial Members have been active during the year dealing with education, development, public accounts and a special and very helpful committee on the subject of Government transport. The Standing Committee on Finance has met regularly.

And while on the subject of Council activities I would like to mention that it was with great pleasure that Honourable Members learnt that our Clerk of Councils, Mr. H.L. Bound, had been honoured by The Queen at the New Year by the award of the M.B.E., a happy coincidence with the 125th anniversary of this Council's existence.

The Stanley Town Council has had another year of satisfactory achievement in its field in close and cordial understanding with the Government.

Diversification of the economy is a perennial subject of discussion. Apart from what the Team's report may have to suggest and of course the welcome news that the pilot plant of Alginite Industries is soon to be set up, we can not point to anything substantial yet, although increasing interest in deep sea fisheries in southern waters encourages optimism that one day the Falkland Islands may come into their own as an advance base for fishery exploitation.

The University of Birmingham have undertaken the preparation of a geological map and an explanatory report that goes with it and work on this is going ahead at the present time; we hope it may be published before the end of this year. Obviously a geological map will not in itself decide anything but it will add to the knowledge of these Islands and this could one day be beneficial.

Analysis of the 68 sand samples sent home last year has produced the information that even the three purest samples were, I am sorry to say, unsuitable for use in the manufacture of fine grade optical glassware. The best sample, which came from Weddell Island, might be suitable for use in high grade domestic and decorative glassware but unfortunately sand for non optical glass is plentiful elsewhere in the world. The prospects for using our sand for glass do not therefore look very promising but it was certainly worth while having expert opinion taken on this matter.

The encouragement of tourists is frequently mentioned these days and this last summer we have seen the beginnings of what may one day bring some revenue to the Colony. Although one call by a tourist ship had to be cancelled because of a fire on board and another because of bad weather, four scheduled calls took place and were generally agreed to have been successful.

A Tourist Board has been set up under the chairmanship of Mr Sloggie with the idea of improving facilities for tourists, particularly in the Stanley area.

The trend for brighter colours for buildings in Stanley has certainly improved the appearance of the town; it could be followed up by increasing attention to the removal of unsightly rusty iron.

A likely addition to the list of places in which wild life is conserved by law is Bleaker Island, the northern part of which the Falkland Islands Company has proposed should be declared a wild animal and bird sanctuary. This form of statutory protection does not affect farming activities but it does help to ensure the survival of interesting wild life; in the case of Bleaker Island I have in mind particularly the wildfowl on the ponds there. Other countries have found that the conservation of wild birds and animals has attracted welcome revenue from tourists and there is no reason to suppose that with improved communications the same should not be true, on a modest scale, for the Falklands.

It is undoubtedly to the advantage of the Colony that certain outside agencies should operate here. I am thinking particularly of the Radio and Space Research Stations, which employ a technical staff of about 20, and of the British Antarctic Survey, which has recently built two new warehouses near the public jetty. I am thinking too of the excellent work which was done last season in Salvador Waters and the Falkland Sound by the hydrographic survey parties of H.M.S. Endurance.

In South Georgia, where Mr Chinn of the British Antarctic Survey is base commander, the new administrative arrangements are working well and we hope later this year to see in Stanley a small stern trawler on her way to South Georgia where she will be based at King Edward Point.

Every year the Falkland Islands become just that much less unknown to the outside world and the imaginative project to take the Great Britain back to England has brought the Colony some unlooked for publicity. A film called "The Unsuspected Isles" has been well received on B.B.C. television; the material was gathered last year in the Falklands by Mr Tony Morrison, while Mrs Morrison gave the Colony some unexpected publicity in The Observer. Mr Ray Sutcliffe, who accompanied Mr & Mrs Morrison, was here to begin filming the Great Britain project for another B.B.C. television programme, "Chronicle", which will be shown some time this month prior to the vessel's arrival in the United Kingdom.

We have recently enjoyed a 17-day visit from Her Majesty's Ambassador in Buenos Aires, Mr Michael Hadow; that this successful visit was possible is an indication of the move towards a more relaxed and easier relationship with the Coast.

Nor have we lacked other distinguished visitors who have gone away to sing the praises of the Falkland scene; among them I might particularly mention three names eminent in the world of ornithology, Dr Robert Cushman Murphy and Dr Roger Tory Peterson and, best known locally because of his longer visit, General Sir Gerald Lathbury, who during his time in the Islands made himself a very welcome guest wherever he went.

We have also had our first recorded visit by an officer of the Ministry of Overseas Development, Mr Braun, who spent a fortnight carrying out a very full programme in Stanley and in the Camp. Mr Braun's visit was timely for it enabled him to acquaint himself with conditions here when we are having to conduct our financial affairs most carefully. We are proud of the fact that since 1885 the Colony has been financially self supporting and this is the way we wish it to be. It allows us to stand on our own feet and to look the world in the eye.

Our financial position will be explained in detail by the Honourable The Colonial Treasurer later during this meeting but recollecting what I said a year ago on this subject I find little to add to make the position appear brighter. We were then about to consider a budget deficit of £54,000, which is now revised at a figure nearer to £100,000. This gloomy figure was calculated some weeks ago and was based on information for little more than half the financial year. I am hopeful that there is reason to expect that some improvement may emerge before the financial year closes but in saying this I must make it clear that I am not attempting to gloss over or distract attention from our financial situation. Soft words are no substitute for hard facts.

Twelve months ago a deficit of £54,000 was seen as the maximum. There were reasonable expectations that it might even be less. That it should be almost doubled is something not lightly to be shrugged off. Even with a measure of improvement on the revised deficit figures, our reserves will suffer a further serious erosion. I have on a previous occasion expressed the opinion that to draw on one's reserves is not in itself imprudent. A decrease in the value of money can be a good reason for spending a substantial part of one's reserves on development. But there is a limit below which reserves should not normally be allowed to fall. That is one reason why during recent years we have had to conduct what I might describe as our housekeeping on a strictly limited budget.

It is against this background that the budgetary prospects for the coming year appear more satisfactory than they might deserve to be regarded in better times. Thanks largely to a sequence of events that we cannot expect to see repeated in the following year, we hope - and I stress hope - that ordinary revenue will produce a small surplus over the expected ordinary expenditure and as a result our hard-pressed reserves should have a year's respite. That the budget should be balanced is important, no matter what the circumstances should be, but a balanced budget in a period of financial stringency becomes the more important when we consider the other aspect of our financial strategy, which is time.

Wool prices have shown a tendency to increase slightly but as I have already said, opinions expressed in influential British newspapers give little grounds for hope that substantial price increases are on the way. We must I feel face up to the fact that competition from man-made fibres will prevent the kind of increase in price we would all like to see. Our efforts must therefore be directed towards improving the quality and quantity of our wool. This is what our taxation policy is designed to encourage. It is in this field that time is so important, for improvements of the kind I have in mind are notoriously slow.

Some few months hence we expect to see the installation of Alginate Industries' pilot plant for the processing of kelp. This company plans to start its operations on a commercial scale within the next few years and their activities will then be an important addition to the economy of the Colony.

I referred just now to time. Time is a commodity, something that can be bought. Our purchasing power lies in the continued ability of our reserves to meet expenditure not covered by revenue. The prospect of a balanced budget takes on added importance when seen in this light. And there is a fair chance of aid from United Kingdom funds towards the cost of new power station equipment and conceivably greater assistance towards the expense of recruiting staff overseas, help for which we shall indeed be grateful if it materializes.

I shall not trespass further into the sphere of the Honourable The Colonial Treasurer. When he presents his budget we know that he will not regard soft words as a substitute for hard facts. The facts are hard. It is how we set about tackling them that matters. And in this I believe we do have one tremendous asset - a very lively sense of community, quite remarkable really when one reflects that our population is spread so thinly over so wide a land. But our population is held together by ties of blood and by bonds of sentiment which have a real meaning. This sense of community is daily reinforced; I am thinking here of the R/T and broadcasting services. It demonstrates itself in the lively interest taken in Camp in sending exhibits to the Winter and Horticultural Shows, exhibits incidentally which carry off a high proportion of the prizes. The stock show, held in conjunction with the combined sports meeting last February, was a demonstration of interest on the part of farms and attracted many visitors. These activities and many more - the sheep dog trials in West Falkland, at Darwin and in the North Camp; the joint discussions of the Agricultural Advisory Team with farm managers gathered in Stanley; the numerous sporting and social events in the Camp and town; the Camp tours of H.M.S. Endurance, the welcome given in Camp to the Royal Marines and the hovercraft unit when they are on tour - all these things help to bind us together so that, scattered though we are, we share many hopes and aspirations.

Communications are very much in the thoughts of all of us at the present time and Honourable Members will recall that at our October meeting I mentioned that arising out of our preliminary study of the Board of Trade Feasibility Survey for an airfield at Cape Pembroke it was intended that a thorough examination of the Colony's air and sea transport problems should be carried out. This examination has been undertaken by a committee consisting of all members of the Executive and Legislative Councils sitting with the Colonial Manager of the Falkland Islands Company and I wish to take this opportunity to thank particularly the members of a special Sub-Committee, that is to say the Colonial Secretary, Mr Sloggie and Mr Monro Higgs, who over a period of time have put in much hard work in preparation of detailed material as part of this examination.

In the past we have perhaps rather tended to take for granted the pattern of transport services as we find them, considering the replacement of ships or aircraft as the need arises. A variety of factors now, however, is making us look more closely at the problem of what the future transport pattern should be.

At sea during the last twelve months R.M.S. Darwin, the Colony's vital link with the outside world, has completed her voyage between here and Montevideo and around the Islands with customary efficiency, complemented in Colony waters by m.v. Forrest. In 1969 Darwin called at settlements 127 times and Forrest 158 times.

In the nature of things there must however be a limit to the useful life of any ship. R.M.S. Darwin is still in her prime, but with ever mounting costs of replacement it is understandable that Darwin Shipping Limited should be looking ahead to the day when the vessel comes to the end of her useful life.

Darwin Shipping Limited is a subsidiary of the Falkland Islands Company and is a commercial concern but one in which the Falkland Islands Government naturally takes a considerable interest in view of the fact that the Government each year pays a substantial shipping subsidy. The current two year agreement expires at the end of 1971. Darwin is an essential link in the Colony's communication system but a very expensive one and in the interest of the Colony as a whole it is prudent to try to look ahead and attempt to discern what the future pattern of transport communications might be.

I think it is appropriate to take this opportunity to digress slightly to refer to what I regard as the very satisfactory relationship which exists between the Falkland Islands Government and the Falkland Islands Company, with whom this Government frequently shares a community of interest. It is not to be expected that Government and Company should invariably see eye to eye, but nevertheless I think it fair to say no difficulty has arisen in recent years which has not eventually proved capable of a satisfactory solution. In helping to bring this about I am sure that the frequent visits of the chairman and directors of the Company to the Colony have contributed greatly. They have travelled widely in Camp and I regard it as highly satisfactory as well as a personal pleasure that it is customary for the chairman and directors when in Stanley to stay not only at Stanley House but also at Government House.

Since our last meeting we have heard the welcome news that Mr Sloggie has been confirmed in the appointment of Colonial Manager and I am sure that all members of Council wish him a long and happy tenure of Office.

I said just now that one of the factors which have to be considered in planning our communications is the useful life of R.M.S. Darwin; another is the useful life of the Beaver float planes of the Government Air Service. We have owned the present aircraft for just over three years and we have the guarantee of the de Havilland Company that they will keep us supplied with the necessary spare parts at least until 1977 but here again it is prudent to look to the years ahead and to start thinking now about what type of aircraft would be the most suitable for the Government Air Service in time to come.

The Service has had another year of satisfactory operation with our well-trying staff supplemented by engineers of the Royal Air Force on secondment. For the leave period of one of our pilots we have been able to secure the services of an officer of the Royal Air Force who was fortunately free to come to us between two periods working for the British Antarctic Survey. A considerable responsibility rests on the Air Service for ensuring the very high standard of maintenance rightly demanded before certificates of air worthiness may be issued. In Stanley we are far from the sophisticated workshops of larger centres but it is a matter of pride as well as of prudence that these essential jobs are undertaken with tremendous attention to detail.

The number of passengers carried by the Air Service last year was 3,867; the number of flying hours totalled 1,086. These figures emphasise that the internal air service has over the past 20 years become a vital element in the life of a territory without roads. At the same time we have to accept that in proportion to our population the cost of the service is high. There is the need to duplicate so much - two aircraft, two pilots, two engineers, and to hold in reserve expensive replacement spares in case of need.

It seems that we would be well advised to have our communications pattern closely examined by some well-qualified person from the United Kingdom and steps are being taken to bring this about. We are obviously going to hear a great deal more about communications.

And when our representatives set off for London to discuss our communications needs with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and to participate in communications talks with the Argentines, they will carry with them the very best wishes of us all. They will constantly have in mind what is best for the welfare of the people of the Colony - I am thinking now of people like those housewives of the outer islands and outside shepherds' houses, described by a wise observer as the "salt of the earth", who maintain their houses in spick and span condition and with a store of home-made fare ready to greet the unexpected traveller. I am thinking of fencers and tractor drivers in isolated caravans at the end of a hard day's work; of our children and their aspirations for the future; yes, and of old ladies who need a hand with their peat. We are thinking of these and many others whose homes are here. Perhaps there is something which can come out of these communications talks which can add to the worthwhile attractions of life here, something which will give an extra sense of purpose and of urgency to the improvement of our grasslands, our systems of stock handling, our tree planting, the way we go about our daily tasks, our very sense of self respect.

For this is a chance which has never come our way before, a unique chance to try by practical means to make the Falkland Islands just that much a better place in which to live and work, a place for the children of Falkland Islanders to grow up in as Falkland Islanders.

Governors and Colonial Secretaries come and go but it is indeed upon the collective wisdom and ability of the unofficial members of the Executive and Legislative Councils that the well-being of the Colony depends in increasing degree. Perhaps not everyone realises this and so it is right to say it clearly and without misunderstanding.

Our representatives - and I am not forgetting here the Honourable Member Mr. Pitaluga, who has already gone on ahead - will have the benefit in England of consultation with other Council members, Mr. Barton and Mr. Hills; they will bring themselves up to date with the thinking of the London Office of the Falkland Islands Company; they will have close discussion with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office about our communications needs; and then, well prepared, they will as part of the British Government delegation go on to talks with the Argentines, confident in the knowledge that the talks are about communications, not sovereignty; confident in the assurance so often given and once again repeated by the Secretary of State in Parliament on the 20th November last that no transfer of sovereignty can take place against the wishes of the people of the Falkland Islands.

It is on this note, Honourable Members, that I would close my address this morning; a note of sturdy expectation that our contact with the outside world will most clearly be to our advantage. These Islands, with their tradition of freedom, their high standard of living, their friendly people, their sensible labour relations, are Islands enjoying a way of life which could be the envy of less happy lands. I trust that we shall keep the Falkland Islands that way, not by stagnation, not by narrow isolation or ignoring the facts of modern life but by being unafraid to go out into the changing world, confident in our ability that by our own exertions we can grasp advantage from the environment in which geography and indeed history have together placed us.

MOTIONS

A motion for the adoption of the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period ended May 1970 was put by the Colonial Treasurer. The motion was seconded by the Colonial Secretary and carried.

BILLSControl of Kelp Ordinance 1970

Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, at our meeting in October last we gave a first reading to a Bill with the same title as the present one. As is sometimes our practice we proceeded no further with it then, and have in the interval since then, obtained further views and opinions from others who will be affected by this legislation. Those people are now agreed on the terms of the Bill which we have in front of us at the moment.

This Bill does not differ radically from the earlier version but it is sufficiently different for it to be advisable to adopt the course of substituting this Bill that we have in front of us for the one that we looked at some months ago. Standing Rules enable us to do this. I propose that we take this Bill through all its stages today, but when the second reading is completed, that in accordance with Standing Rule 34 you would instruct that the earlier version of the Bill would be withdrawn.

There is no difference of principle between this Bill that we have here and the one that we saw some months ago. The new Bill spells out, in a new clause 6, the power of the Governor to grant an exclusive licence to harvest kelp for export and to provide for the royalties payable and for the periodical revision of royalties. These were not provided for in the earlier version of the Bill and I think that these provisions, in particular for the periodical revision of royalties, are very necessary.

The new Bill also has a clause 7 which did not appear in the earlier version. This clause is designed to ensure that a licensee employs good husbandry and also that he carries out safety measures both in respect of users of the foreshore in these islands as well as of his own employees.

In clause 8 a minor alteration inserts the words "or implied" in the second line of clause 8(2), that is to say that it brings within the ambit of that clause failure to carry out the implied conditions which are referred to in clause 7. This also was not included in the earlier version of the Bill.

I have said that all those involved in the preparation of and in commenting on this piece of legislation, including the company which we hope will develop an export business based on kelp, are satisfied with it and as Your Excellency mentioned this morning in your address, we hope that this will prove to be an asset to the future of the Colony. I think it is appropriate that we should pass this measure, the object of which is clearly stated at the end of this Bill as giving power to the government to control a potentially valuable economic asset and to ensure good husbandry. I think it is right that we should pass this Bill shortly before we expect that the company concerned, Alginate Industries Ltd will be shipping their pilot plant with an arrival date in this Colony of September.

I therefore beg to move the first reading.

The Colonial Treasurer seconded and the Bill was read a first time. After further motion made and seconded, the Bill was read a second time.

At this stage the President referred Members to Standing Rule 34 and directed that the former Bill be withdrawn.

The Bill proceeded to pass through its committee stages and was read a third time and passed.

Prison (Amendment) Ordinance 1970

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, section 7 of the present Ordinance 1966, as currently worded, requires the appointment annually of three persons as a panel of justices to visit the prison with the magistrate automatically as chairman of the panel.

I think that in the year 1970 it would be more in accordance with the spirit of the times for all justices to be able to take a turn as chairman of the visiting panel of justices. This is the purpose of this amending Bill.

I don't suggest that it is a measure of enormous importance but it does provide the opportunity for all justices of experience to take a turn in this capacity. The amending Bill would make it mandatory for a panel of three justices to be appointed at the beginning of each year, as is now the case, but for the Governor to appoint one of the three as chairman for the year. The objects and reasons in the Bill state very clearly what the purpose is, to enable all members of the panel of justices resident in Stanley to take their place as senior member of the Board of Visiting Justices to Stanley prison.

I beg to move the first reading.

The Bill was seconded by the Colonial Treasurer, taken through all its stages and passed.

Pensions (Amendment) Ordinance 1970

The Colonial Treasurer: Your Excellency, in 1968 this Council passed an Ordinance, Ordinance No. 8, which amended the Pensions Ordinance of 1965 in a manner which was intended to make retirement at the age of 65 compulsory. The amendment was made to section 6 of the Ordinance which, it has been pointed out to us, is a section setting out the circumstances in which a pension may be granted and that reference in this section to compulsory retirement is inappropriate. At the same time our attention was drawn to section 8 of the same Ordinance which already makes provision for compulsory retirement, so there was in fact no real need for the amendment which was put through in 1968. This amending Ordinance now before Council is simply to restore the Ordinance to the situation before the 1968 Ordinance was passed.

I beg to move the first reading.

The Bill was seconded by the Colonial Secretary and moved through all its stages and passed.

Education (Amendment) Ordinance 1970

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, the amendment for our consideration is to section 3 of Part I of the 1967 Education Ordinance, which currently reads:

"A child shall be entered at a recognised school on the first day of the term in which he shall reach the age of five years, provided that for the purpose of this section a term shall include the following holiday period."

This section applies to all recognised schools, that is, those schools whose vacations correspond to Stanley Schools, and to Darwin Boarding School but is directed primarily to Stanley Schools.

The object of the amendment is to clarify for parents the age when a child must enter school and the periods in the school year when a child may begin school, and also makes clear that an academic year should be deemed terminated on December 31st for the purposes of enrolment. The amendment provides that a child who is already five or who will become five on or before the last day of a term must attend school but a child who has its fifth birthday during a holiday period (between terms) may be sent to school and the parent has the choice of leaving that child until the following term and the final word rests with the Superintendent of Education.

This presents no particular difficulties with the first and second terms of the school year. It is the third term which has proved difficult until now and it is with the third term in the school year that the amendment is principally concerned. The third term begins in September.

In this case under the amendment children who are five or who will attain their fifth birthday on or before the last day of term must attend school, but this is where we find the difference. Children who may attend school are those whose fifth birthday falls on or before 31st December in that year, not those who become five years old in the holiday thereafter in January or February. Parents, I hope, will be glad to know that children who are five during the holiday period are not obliged to be enrolled early. We know for some people five seems a rather early age for a child to start school and our existing legislation, which we now propose to amend, can result in the child having to go to school, I emphasise, having to go to school, when just $4\frac{1}{2}$. This Bill cures that rather extreme situation and it also has the advantage from the Education Department's point of view that it has some control over enrolment in the third term of the year so that it can limit overcrowding in the junior forms of the school.

I beg to move the first reading.

Major Goss seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and carried the Bill was read a second time and passed through its committee stage to be committed after the third reading.

Administration of Justice (Amendment) Ordinance 1970

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, for some three years now the possibility has been under consideration of reducing the amount of work which goes to the Supreme Court and of interposing between the present Summary Court and the Supreme Court an intermediate court which would cure this situation. Perhaps the most important consideration is that there is a need for it to be seen that the executive arm of government in this Colony is as little as possible in a position to judge its own acts. At present the executive and the judiciary are combined which in itself is an objectionable situation and it is aggravated by the fact that the circulation among international, particularly international bodies, of documentation which could highlight this situation is not to be accepted, is not to be over emphasised; and it is important to reduce to a minimum the occasions when the publication of this situation should be seen to exist. And also it is important so far as possible to reduce to a minimum the occasions when the officials who at the moment perform the function of judge are obliged to perform it. The factual situation is that at the moment the Governor or the Colonial Secretary do perform this function and it is advisable, so far as we can, to reduce the number of occasions on which they have to do this. Various courses have been considered for curing this situation, most of them would have involved the Colony in considerable expenditure, and it has finally been concluded that the best solution is to establish a court, the powers of which would be such as to reduce realistically, the number of hearings in the Supreme Court, while at the same time providing wide avenues of appeal for dissatisfied litigants. The Bill which is before us is designed for this purpose and the objects and reasons succinctly state what it is designed to do. It provides for the creation of a new court to be known as the Magistrate's Court which would be subordinate to the Supreme Court but superior to the existing Summary Court.

The meat of the amending Bill is in its clause 5, which institutes the Magistrate's Court, places the appointment of the magistrate in the hands of the Governor, defines the court's criminal jurisdiction which would cover all crimes except treason, piracy, murder, manslaughter, rape and arson; specifies that the procedures of the court should be exercised in accordance with the existing Ordinance and in conformity with English practice which is our normal procedure here; permits the magistrate to summon assessors and jurors to sit with him and it provides, as I have said, wide avenues of appeal. The court's civil jurisdiction would be limited to cases where the amount at issue would not exceed £1,000 and this jurisdiction also would be exercised in conformity with English practice, and here two specific appeal procedures are provided for. Clause 6 of the amending Bill repeals section 53 of the current Ordinance. This is necessary because of the interposition of a new court between the Supreme Court and the Court of Summary Jurisdiction, and in this section it is worth noting that the present rights of appeal to the Appeal Court, which sits in Britain, are not affected by this legislation. That right of appeal will continue to exist. Clause 8 of the Bill includes within the rule-making power of the Governor in Council this new Magistrate's Court as well as the Courts of Summary Jurisdiction and the Supreme Court.

Because the Bill became available after consultation with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office rather later than was expected, it was necessary to publish it in the form in which we see it and Members will realise that this means that we have a certain number of amendments to make in committee. But none of these are amendments of principle, they are all amendments of detail. In short the Bill provides for the creation of a new court subordinate to the Supreme Court and superior to the existing Court of Summary Jurisdiction. It defines the new Court's jurisdiction and it makes provision for the Supreme Court to hear appeals from it.

I beg to move the first reading.

The Colonial Treasurer seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

The Colonial Secretary moved that the Bill be read a second time and the motion was seconded by the Colonial Treasurer and carried.

In committee the following amendments were made and agreed:

Clause 1 - amend the date 1st July 1970 to read 8th June 1970.

Clause 4 7A(b) amend to read -

"in criminal cases from every decision of a Summary Court by which an accused person has been convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for a term exceeding one month or a fine exceeding £50."

Clause 5 7C amend to read -

"The Senior Magistrate shall have jurisdiction to try and determine any offence committed within the Colony other than treason, piracy, murder, manslaughter, rape or arson, and shall have power to impose a term of imprisonment not exceeding seven years, or a fine not exceeding £1000 or both."

Clause 5 7K amend to read -

"An appeal from the Magistrate's Court in any civil or criminal matter shall be commenced by the appellant giving notice of appeal within fourteen days after the day on which the decision of the Magistrate's Court was given:

Provided that the Judge may, if he thinks fit, direct that any notice given after the expiration of the time fixed shall be treated as given within the said period."

Clause 5 7L(1) amend to read -

"Where there is commenced in the Magistrate's Court any action founded on contract or tort where the plaintiff claims a sum exceeding £750 the defendant may, within such time as may be prescribed by rules of court, give notice that he objects to the action being tried in the Magistrate's Court."

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a third time and passed.

Appropriation (1970-71) Ordinance 1970

The Colonial Treasurer: A necessary preliminary to any explanation of the budget for an ensuing year is a review of the financial situation in the current year based on what was forecast a year ago. Council will recall that on the Ordinary Revenue and Expenditure account a deficit of £54,000 was expected and that this would be financed from reserves.

At that time Ordinary Revenue was estimated to be £426,000 and Ordinary Expenditure £480,000. In the revised calculations of these two figures it appears that ordinary expenditure will be slightly less at £474,000 and Ordinary Revenue considerably less at £375,000 - giving a revised deficit of £99,000. Revenue from Customs Duties, Investment, Income Taxes and Sales of Stamps are the fields in which the earlier estimate appears to have been too optimistic.

Under Development Expenditure the revised estimate takes into account £25,000 voted during the year for work on Stanley Roads, that is, Philomel Street and Fitzroy Road, £20,000 of which is to be met from C.D. and W. funds; and £18,000 paid out in loans which are, of course, recoverable and secured.

So much for the current year. Subject to changes in the market price of investments it is estimated that reserves in support of the Ordinary Revenue will total £68,000 on 1st July 1970, and bearing in mind the revised deficit for the current year, Council will appreciate just how slender this bulwark could be. However, it is with qualified pleasure that I can report an anticipated small surplus of ordinary revenue over ordinary expenditure for 1970/71 the figures being £489,000 and £484,000, making a surplus of £5,000. The principal sources of revenue can be found under six heads, namely, Customs Duties £54,000; Electricity £41,000; Investment £104,000; Internal Revenue £160,000 and Posts and Telecommunications £74,000. On the Expenditure side the Education tops the list with £71,000 or 14% of the total; Public Works are also on the 14% mark with £70,000. £56,000, or 12% of the total is provided under the head of Posts and Telecommunications and the £55,000 under the head of Shipping Subsidy and Overseas Passages is also on the 12% mark. 11% of the total or £53,000 appears under the Medical head.

There is provision for a cost of living award to civil servants in Stanley at the rate of £30 per annum, provision for an increase in the assistance available to parents who send their children abroad for further education and provision to meet quite substantial increases in the cost of scholarships. With regard to the overseas education allowances the increases are £17 for the first child, £21 for the second, and £27 for the third or subsequent children, with £5 where the child is at day school. Other items that may have some claim to particular interest include £4,500 for overprinting stamps with decimal denominations, £4,000 for a self-propelled oil bowser to replace the existing one, £5,000 for equipment to improve the overseas telephone service and £4,000 for fire precautions at Darwin Boarding School.

It would have been satisfying to be able to say that these things were possible within the ordinary expenditure range of the current year but I regret to advise the House that this will not be so. Our estimated ordinary expenditure for 1970/71 is £10,000 more than the revised estimate for 1969/70 and continues the upward trend that since 1966/67 has seen the annual bill increase by almost £100,000. Devaluation of the £ and the cost of living have been significant factors in this trend - matters that are beyond our control. Examination of expenditure estimates for this and past years has produced fairly unanimous agreement that the only effective means of reducing expenditure is by the abandonment of a service or by the drastic reduction in the spending rates of the larger departments.

The total Ordinary Revenue estimate for 1970/71 of £489,000 is, as I have said, sufficient to produce a small surplus and our hard-pressed reserves will have a year's respite: indeed we might be able to add a little to them. Within the financial year for which we are preparing this is satisfactory but I must add a word of caution against any tendency to regard this situation as the end of, or even the turning point in our financial difficulties. There are revenue items in 1970/71, substantial revenue items, that cannot be expected every year and although the future appears to contain some brighter prospects revenue wise it would be folly to suppose that any significant improvement is just around the corner.

Examinations of the revenue estimates will show that just over one quarter comes from the sale of postage stamps or from surplus funds of the Savings Bank: the figure for stamps is £45,000 and transfer from the Bank £30,000. The remarks made earlier will perhaps be more clearly understood when I say that neither of these sources of revenue can be relied upon to repeat this performance in the following year. For this coming year we have the "Great Britain" and decimalisation issues of stamps. What may be available for transfer from the Savings Bank must be viewed with caution as so much depends upon the prices the Bank's investments can command on 30th June 1970. When the estimates were framed these prices were quite favourable but as listeners to the B.B.C.

will recall the Stock Market has recently been very uncertain and prices have fallen.

Small amounts of additional revenue are expected as the result of changes in postal rates and income tax on company profits. On the other hand the contribution from the Dependencies, for many years £10,000, is now under review and the provisional estimate for 1970/71 is £2,670.

I referred earlier to the continuing upward trend in Ordinary Expenditure. Revenue, although showing an overall tendency to increase does not keep pace with expenditure. There was a surplus of Ordinary Revenue over Ordinary Expenditure of £55,000 in 1967/68 but the following years, based on the actual result for 1968/69 and the estimates for this and next year, indicate that even with windfall items such as stamp issues and surplus Savings Bank funds, the average level of Ordinary Revenue is about £50,000 less than Ordinary Expenditure.

In the Development estimates the Colony's contribution is restricted to provision for assistance to camp stations where work is undertaken on improving tracks. Expenditure to be financed from United Kingdom Aid funds provides for the extension and automation of the power station. The estimated total cost of the project which includes a new building to house the machinery is put at £100,000, £50,000 of which is provided in these estimates. Token votes are inserted against two other items - Agricultural Development and Hydatid Disease Survey - as indications of Government thinking in the field of development expenditure. Further progress on these items will depend on advice received from authorities on the two subjects and expenditure will depend on the availability of United Kingdom aid beyond the allocation of £50,000 for each of the years 1970 and 1971 which is fully committed to the power station.

The reserves for financing development expenditure from Colony funds (that is, the Development Fund) are in rather better shape than those supporting Ordinary Expenditure, being estimated to total £159,000. Here also, however, there is need for a word of caution for £159,000 would not go very far if applied to major projects, and the possibility that the Ordinary Revenue will be in any state to make further contributions to the Development Fund in the next few years can only be regarded as extremely remote.

I beg to move the Bill be read a first time.

The Colonial Secretary seconded the motion and the Bill was read a first time. On the motion of the Colonial Treasurer seconded by the Colonial Secretary the Bill was read a second time.

Colonial Secretary: I beg to move that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House.

The motion was seconded by the Colonial Treasurer and carried. The President accordingly appointed the Colonial Secretary to be chairman of the Select Committee and all members of Council to be members of the Select Committee.

Council then adjourned.

Council resumed on 4th June

PRESENT: The President
 The Honourable the Colonial Secretary
 The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer
 Major the Honourable R.V. Goss, E.D.
 The Honourable S. Miller, J.P.
 The Honourable Mrs N. King
 The Honourable W.H. Clement, J.P.

Clerk of Council: Mr H.L. Bound, M.B.E., J.P.

The prayer was read by the Reverend P.J. Millan.

Appropriation (1970/71) Bill 1970

The Colonial Treasurer: Your Excellency, the Select Committee appointed by you to consider the Bill and the draft estimates, having completed its task reports as follows:

Head I The Governor	Reduce item 1, personal emoluments Private Secretary from £787 to £147.
Head VI Education	Item 13, Heat, Light & Power, reduce provision from £3,547 to £3,297. Item 22, Fire Precautions, Darwin Boarding School, reduce provision from £2,975 to £1.
Head VII Medical	Against a new item, labour/gardens, insert provision £25.
Head XIII Posts & Telecommunications	Delete item 22, Privacy unit for telephone service, £3,265.
Head XV Public Works	Reduce provision under item 1, personal emolument Transport Officer from £980 to £950.

The effect of these changes on the Appropriation Bill will be dealt with at the appropriate stage in committee.

The President declared the Council to be in committee.

In the committee stage clause 1, the enacting clause and title were agreed and consideration of clause 2 was deferred until after consideration of the schedule.

The Colonial Treasurer, seconded by the Colonial Secretary, moved that the schedule stand part of the Bill subject to the following amendments:

	Head	Delete	Insert
I	The Governor	£12,534	£11,894
VI	Education	£71,418	£67,194
VII	Medical	£53,305	£53,330
XIII	Posts and Telecommunications	£55,531	£51,906
XV	Public Works	£24,395	£24,365
	Total Ordinary Expenditure	£484,355	£475,861
	Total Expenditure	£569,358	£560,864

It was agreed that the schedule, as amended, should stand part of the Bill and that clause 2 be subject to the following amendment:

Delete the figures £569,358 and insert £560,864.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 3) Ordinance 1969

Colonial Treasurer: Your Excellency, at the meeting of Council held on the 17th December last I introduced the first reading of this Bill. It is not my intention to ask that the Bill should be read a second time today. My reason for this will become apparent from what I am about to say. Honourable Members will recollect that when I introduced this Bill I explained in some detail the objects behind it and particularly clauses 3(b) and 3(e) dealing with Company Tax and relief from Company Tax. I should perhaps remind Honourable Members at this point of what I said on that occasion. It was that the proposal in the Bill was to increase the rate of tax on company profits from 5/9d to 7/-, but that the rate of tax should be restored to 5/9d for every £1 of profit spent on what we now know as "qualifying expenditure". In other words there would be abatement of 1/3d in the £ for each £1 of profit applied to this kind of expenditure.

As I stated when introducing the first reading of the Bill, I thought it important that there should be some time for close examination of what is proposed and for the views of anyone who wishes to express an opinion to be received and studied. As the result of correspondence with interested parties I consider that the Bill could be improved by one amendment, the terms of which are stated in writing on the sheets of paper which I would now like to hand to the Clerk, if he would kindly distribute them (copies of the proposed amendment were passed to each member). At the appropriate time in the Bill's progress I propose to introduce this amendment to clause 3(e) which will have the effect of fading out the abatement of 1/3d where the profits are over £12,000 and of eliminating it completely for profits of over £17,000. It will be realised that this amendment is somewhat strange in that it removes a taxation relief but purports to satisfy the wishes of a taxpaying group, and the matter is not taxation in the usually accepted sense, but the limiting of taxation relief to the greatest possible extent of mutual satisfaction.

Honourable Members are aware of the care which has been taken in the past to see that legislation of this kind which might by controversial is given plenty of publicity beforehand, so that interested parties may have reasonable opportunity to comment. This is what we have done in the past and I am quite sure that it has been to the advantage of this government to do so. There may be a feeling that we should press on with this Bill without more ado, but I would regard this as mistaken policy. The amendment which I shall be proposing is one which particularly affects United Kingdom based companies and it is only right that advantage should be taken of the out-going mail to let the relative officers of these companies view the proposal before it is incorporated in our legislation.

My intention would be to ask that a meeting of the Legislative Council might be called for August, that is, the month after next, at which the complete Bill could come before Council.

Mr Miller: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as most of the Council know, I have been opposing this prolongation of implementing this Bill and I would like to quote, Your Excellency, from your speech on 17th December:

"At the October meeting of Council, the Honourable Colonial Treasurer referred to the forthcoming publication of this Bill. It was duly published and copies were widely distributed so that persons and organisations concerned should have its provisions brought to their notice. Today Council is to be invited to give the Bill its first reading. Subsequent stages of legislation will not be taken until next year, perhaps at the normal Budget Meeting, perhaps earlier. With a measure of this kind it is obviously desirable to ascertain the views of as many persons as possible likely to be affected and to promote informed discussion in and out of Council well in advance of taking the next legislative step."

and further that same morning our Honourable friend the Colonial Treasurer said in one paragraph,

"The Bill provides for the various amendments to come into force on the first of January 1970. However, it is not the intention to proceed today beyond the first reading. The further stages necessary for the Bill to become law will be taken at a meeting in 1970 which may be as late as the Budget Meeting. In any event, the delay will give time for closer examination of what is proposed and for the views of anyone who wishes to express an opinion to be received and studied."

I am perfectly happy about that, Sir. As the Honourable Colonial Secretary has just said, the victims concerned must have lots of time to consider it and if there are any useful amendments or suggestions this Council just about bends over backwards to listen to them. But this Bill became public last November and its first reading was taken on December 17th, and all of us expected then that it would be, if not before the Budget Meeting which in normal years is in May, it would at least be fully implemented in May. By that I would indicate that everybody concerned has had lots of time. Neither I nor anybody else would wish to hurry anybody, but if after a lapse of seven months only one body has suddenly replied, it would appear that nobody is really frightfully worried about it, or at least not worried enough to write to Council. Nobody wishes, of course, in this Council, to stifle criticism, and this criticism of mine is certainly not an obstructive one, but it is very necessary for the implementation of Bills of this nature not to be delayed longer than necessary. Plenty of time has elapsed.

You have told us, Sir, quite often, that government in the Falklands is by consent. Well, I have never been terribly happy about that expression, but we have got to be very careful: I am not suggesting that we are at this stage, but we have got to be jolly careful that we don't get on towards government by appeasement. The Bill is headed to be effective in the year of assessment commencing January 1st, 1970, which means that it is effective for income tax reasons, for 1969 tax year. We are now half way through 1970, and if this Bill is to be further delayed until late August, by the time assessments are distributed and the necessary taxation paid, we shall be very close to 1971. Apart from being, in my opinion, an unnecessary delay, it does not make life any easier for those people responsible for drawing up balance sheets and in issuing vouchers to shareholders.

Colonial Treasurer: I don't want to say very much, Sir. The Honourable Mr Miller did remind us - he did in fact repeat what I said in December - that the need to let people see this thing in its original form was recognised. In its amended form, of course, the only people who have yet had the privilege of setting eyes on it are the people round this table and yourself, Sir, and it is for the same reason given last December that it is now proposed that the amendment be made known to those who are interested. As I said, the Bill, as seen by people elsewhere, is not the one that is now contemplated. There is an important amendment. It is not a matter to do with taxation, it is a matter to do with relief from taxation, and I cannot see anything in the remarks made by the Honourable Member to change my opinion that the best possible course is to take the next step in August, and I therefore move that the Bill be read a second time in August.

Colonial Secretary: I beg to second the Motion.

The President: The Motion is that the Bill be read a second time in August. Before I put the question I wonder if I can ask the Honourable Colonial Treasurer if perhaps he could say something to indicate whether revenue collection is likely to be any different if we were to proceed to complete the Bill today, or to do it in August? Perhaps you could say something about this.

Colonial Treasurer: Today being the 4th June, if the Bill were passed today it would be possible for a company to pay its tax before the end of June, which means that the revenue would be received in the current financial year. As it is, most companies, and I would say most companies, pay their taxes in the latter part of the calendar year which of course is still the financial year beginning on 1st July.

The actual effect on total revenue will be absolutely nothing. The same amount of money will be collected whether the Bill is passed today or passed in August. The year of account might be changed because of the financial year ending on the 30th June.

The President: The Motion is that the Bill be read for a second time in August. Would any member care to speak to the Motion? No objection. The Bill to be read a second time in August.

Motion for Adjournment

Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

Colonial Treasurer: I beg to second the Motion.

The President: The Motion is that this House stands adjourned sine die. Would any Honourable Member care to speak to the Motion?

That being the case, I would like, Honourable Members, just to say that there is one piece of legislation which has been enacted at this meeting which I feel everyone here, although they may not have expressed any particular opinion about it, will have regarded as something very satisfactory in the history of the Colony. I refer to the legislation which was taken through all stages yesterday to create a Magistrate's Court. This is going to be something which will stand the Colony in good stead.

The Honourable Colonial Secretary did refer to the importance of separating the executive and the judiciary and this is something I have been very conscious of ever since I came here, and as Honourable Members know, I have always refrained from sitting in court as Acting Judge, because I feel that this places the Governor in a very difficult position. I hope it won't be thought that exercising the function allowed to me in the Administration of Justice Ordinance, whereby the Governor, who is in fact Acting Judge, is able to name some other person to be Acting Judge, that I have consciously off-loaded the burden on to somebody else; but it is a fact that the present Colonial Secretary, and indeed the former Colonial Secretaries, have in turn performed this function. This position will of course continue. There is no change there, but the change which does come about as a result of having a Magistrate's Court with enhanced powers and enhanced jurisdiction is that many cases which hitherto have had to go to the Supreme Court will now be dealt with by the Magistrate's Court and this, I feel, is a move in the right direction.

Honourable Members, we shall now expect to meet again in Legislative Council in August. The precise date will be gazetted in due course. My expectation is that, with other things being equal, it will be very shortly after the annual meeting of the Sheep Owners' Association and the General Employees' Union.

There being no further business, I now declare Council adjourned sine die.

Air Fares and Conditions of Carriage

1. SCHEDULED PASSENGER FLIGHTS

(1) Passenger fares for scheduled flights are calculated on the straight line distance between points of departure and destination. The fare consists of two elements forming a single whole —

- (a) a charge of one shilling (1/-) (5p) per mile plus
- (b) a flat rate (popularly known as the boarding charge) of —
 - (i) £2 for adults;
 - (ii) 30/- (£1.50) for children between the age of 7 and school leaving age (but see section 3 below);
 - (iii) 15/- (75p) for children under 7 years (but see section 3 below);
 - (iv) nil for children under 1 year.
- (2) Children over seven years of age are charged at the full fare (but see section 3 below).
- (3) Children between one and seven years of age are charged half fare (but see section 3 below).
- (4) Children under one year of age when accompanied by an adult travel free of charge.
- (5) Ministers of religion are carried free of charge provided —
 - (a) the aircraft is going to the destination required by the Minister for reasons other than the Minister's journey;
 - (b) there is a vacant seat in the aircraft.

2. MEDICAL FLIGHTS

(1) Medical flights are made at the request of the Senior Medical Officer. Applications for medical flights should be sent to the Senior Medical Officer and not to the Air Service. All bookings received by the Air Service from farm managers or private individuals will be treated as private bookings and charged as such.

(2) There is no charge against a patient proceeding to Stanley Hospital for the treatment or control of Tuberculosis, the full cost both ways being met from the Medical Department votes.

(3) There is no charge against a patient for emergency cases to Stanley for Hospital treatment but 50% of the air fare is charged to the patient for the return flight, the inward flight and the balance of the return flight is charged to Medical Department votes.

(4) Non-urgent medical cases travel both ways at assisted passage rates, i.e., 50% of the air fare payable by the patient and 50% by the Medical Department.

3. SCHOOL FLIGHTS

(1) In all cases School Flights must be booked through the Superintendent of Education. All bookings received by the Air Service from farm managers or private individuals will be treated as private bookings and charged as such.

(2) Children travelling by air to or from school at the beginning or end of the recognised school terms are charged half fare appropriate to their age group, the balance being met from the Education vote.

(3) Should a child attending school away from home proceed on holiday to a settlement other than his or her home, the Education Department will meet 50% of the charge provided it does not exceed the normal half fare for the journey between the school and the child's home. Excess distance travelled will be charged to the parent at the full fare rate in addition to the half fare between school and home.

4. CHARTER FLIGHTS

CONDITIONS

(1) Charter bookings can normally only be accepted when both aircraft are in service. It may, however, be possible to undertake a charter with only one aircraft available when bookings are light.

(2) Although charters will not normally be given priority over private bookings, application for priority can be made to the Colonial Secretary as in the case of private bookings.

(3) Aircraft on charter are still at the disposal of the Senior Medical Officer and may be diverted at any time during charter at his request if required for an urgent medical case.

(4) Government reserves the right to utilise an aircraft under charter during any waiting time or at any time during charter when the aircraft is travelling empty.

(5) Persons requiring this service should if possible advise the Air Service Office at least seven clear days before the required date. Full particulars of route, passengers and/or freights must be advised at the time of booking.

RATES

- (1) £10 — Basic Charter Fee; plus
- (2) 3/- (15p) per mile (mileage calculated on the basis Stanley to Stanley);
- (3) 2 hours free waiting, thereafter a demurrage charge of £5 per hour or part thereof will be levied.
- (4) All charges totalled (with the exception of the basic charter fee) will be reduced by the amount earned by carrying other passengers (with the agreement of the charterer).

PASSENGER INSURANCE

Insurance premiums in respect of passengers nominated by charterer must be paid in addition to the charter charge.

PASSENGER AND FREIGHT LIMITATIONS

Aircraft leaving a pick up point with full fuel load can only carry four adult passengers plus luggage or 1,000 lbs. of freight; when full fuel load is not required one extra passenger or 250 lbs. freight can be carried.

DELAYS

(1) Delays caused solely by the weather will not normally be charged to the charterer. If an aircraft is compelled or required to spend the night away from Stanley on account of the charterer the basic waiting fee of £5 per hour (after the initial two hours free waiting period) will be charged up to 6 p.m. (Stanley time). Thereafter a consolidated overnight fee of £25 will be charged and will apply until 10 a.m. (Stanley time) the following morning when, if the aircraft is still retained by the charterer, the basic waiting fee of £5 an hour will be charged.

(2) Overnight charters will not, however, be accepted in normal circumstances and the overnight charges outlined above are only intended to apply in the case of unforeseen delays caused by the charterer. In such cases the Air Service reserves the right to return to Stanley if the pilot considers this to be desirable and another charter at the usual rates will be necessary if further flying is required to complete the charter.

5. PRIORITY FLIGHTS

(1) Government reserves the right at all times to refuse passage to any person, or to carry freight or livestock.

(2) Flight priorities are —

- | | |
|------------------|---|
| 1st Priority ... | Medical Flights; |
| 2nd Priority ... | Delivery and collection of overseas mail (letters only); |
| 3rd Priority ... | Members of Executive and Legislative Councils and Government officials travelling on duty; |
| 4th Priority ... | Ordinary passenger flights (any person in this category may apply to the Colonial Secretary for a higher priority on compassionate or urgent business or other relevant grounds); |
| 5th Priority ... | Freight and livestock. |

6. AIR FREIGHT: CONDITIONS OF CARRIAGE

- (1) No guarantee of delivery by air can be given.
- (2) Air freight cannot be registered or insured and all freight is carried at owner's risk.
- (3) Explosive or inflammable articles must not be sent as air freight.
- (4) All packages consigned as freight must be clearly addressed with the weight marked on the package.
- (5) Rates for the carriage of air freight will be —

Weight	Rate
2 lbs.	4s. 6d. (22½p)
5 lbs.	6s. 0d. (30p)
8 lbs.	7s. 6d. (37½p)
11 lbs.	9s. 0d. (45p)
22 lbs.	18s. 0d. (90p)
30 lbs.	£1 10s. 0d. (£1.50)
40 lbs.	£2 5s. 0d. (£2.25)
50 lbs.	£3 0s. 0d. (£3.00)
60 lbs.	£3 15s. 0d. (£3.75)
70 lbs.	£4 10s. 0d. (£4.50)
80 lbs.	£5 5s. 0d. (£5.25)
90 lbs.	£6 0s. 0d. (£6.00)
100 lbs.	£6 15s. 0d. (£6.75)

DOGS

- (1) All dogs carried must be accompanied by the owner or a person known to the dog appointed by the owner.
- (2) Owners will provide muzzle, collar and chain to be used as instructed by the aircraft's commander.
- (3) Dogs will be securely chained to the holding down bolts in the rear of the aircraft.

- (4) Owners or their representatives will be required to load and unload their own dogs as advised by the air service staff.
- (5) Government will provide polythene sheeting to protect passengers' luggage.
- (6) Only one dog will be accepted on an aircraft at any one time.
- (7) A dog will not be granted a passage if any passenger already on board raises objection.
- (8) Last minute bookings for dogs cannot be accepted.
- (9) All owners must produce a certificate signed by an appointed inspector, certifying that—
 - (a) the dog has been dosed with Scoloban within six weeks of the flight;
 - (b) the dog has been bathed using carbolic lifebuoy soap within twelve hours of the flight time.

CATS

All cats must be enclosed in a cat basket or a well ventilated cat-proof box.

SHEEP

- (1) Sheep will not be accepted on aircraft carrying passengers.
- (2) Sheep when accepted must be accompanied by a stockman and will be carried at charter rates only.
- (3) Loading and unloading will be carried out under the supervision of the aircraft commander.

Nothing mentioned above over-rides Government's right to refuse passage or the aircraft commanders' authority to refuse passage.

DELIVERY OF PAPER MAIL TO CAMP SETTLEMENTS BY AIR

- (1) Paper mail will be delivered by air to all farms as and when opportunity occurs and provided that such distribution does not interfere with the carriage of passengers, ordinary mail and freight.
- (2) The following flat charges will be made irrespective of the distance carried —
Not exceeding 30 lbs. 4/- (20p); not exceeding 70 lbs. 10/- (50p); not exceeding 100 lbs. 15/- (75p).
- (3) Charges will be borne by the farms.

PROCLAMATION

No. 3 of 1970.

IN THE NAME of Her Majesty ELIZABETH II., by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Her other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

J. A. JONES.

By His Excellency JOHN ASHLEY JONES, Esquire, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Acting Governor of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS by the seventh clause of the Letters Patent passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, dated the 13th December 1948, constituting the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, it is provided that "whenever the Office of Governor is vacant, or the Governor is absent from the Colony or is from any cause prevented from, or incapable of, acting in the duties of his Office, then such other person as We may appoint under Our Sign Manual and Signet, or if there is no such person in the Colony so appointed and capable of discharging the duties of the administration, the Senior Member of the Executive Council then in the Colony and so capable, shall, during Our pleasure, administer the Government of the Colony".

AND WHEREAS HIS EXCELLENCY SIR COSMO HASKARD, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, has this day left the Colony on leave of absence.

AND WHEREAS no person has been appointed under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet to administer the Government of this Colony in the absence of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JOHN ASHLEY JONES, Colonial Secretary of the Falkland Islands, the Senior Member of the Executive Council aforesaid, do hereby proclaim and make known that, in pursuance of the said clause of the said Royal Letters Patent and having taken the oaths prescribed by law, I have this day assumed the Administration of the Government of this Colony and its Dependencies.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

BY THE QUEEN
A PROCLAMATION

DETERMINING THE SPECIFICATIONS AND DESIGN FOR, AND GIVING CURRENCY TO, CUPRO-NICKEL AND BRONZE COINS IN THE FALKLAND ISLANDS, THE DEPENDENCIES OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS AND THE BRITISH ANTARCTIC TERRITORY.

ELIZABETH R.

We, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870, as extended by section 2 (3) and (4) of the Decimal Currency Act 1967, and of all other powers enabling Us in that behalf, do hereby, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, proclaim, direct and ordain as follows —

1. This Proclamation shall be published in the Official Gazette of the Falkland Islands and shall come into force in the Falkland Islands, the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and the British Antarctic Territory (hereinafter referred to as "the Territories") on the date of such publication.

2. The designs for the cupro-nickel and bronze coins of the denominations described in Schedule 1 to the Decimal Currency Act 1967, as extended to the Territories by Our Proclamations dated the 20th day of December 1968 and the 30th day of September 1970, shall be as follows —

CUPRO-NICKEL COINS

(1) Ten new pence—Every ten new pence shall have for the obverse impression Our effigy with the inscription "D.G.REG.F.D. ELIZABETH II" and the date of the year, and for the reverse a lion passant guardant royally crowned, being part of the crest of England, and the inscription "10 NEW PENCE". The coin shall have a graining upon the edge.

(2) Five new pence—Every five new pence shall have the same obverse impression and inscription as the ten new pence, and for the reverse a thistle royally crowned, being the badge of Scotland, and the inscription "5 NEW PENCE". The coin shall have a graining upon the edge.

BRONZE COINS

(1) Two new pence—Every two new pence shall have for the obverse impression Our effigy with the inscription "D.G.REG.F.D. ELIZABETH II" and the date 1971, or of a succeeding year, and for the reverse the badge of the Prince of Wales, being three ostrich feathers enfiling a coronet of crosses pattée and fleurs de lys with the motto "ICH DIEN", and the inscription "2 NEW PENCE". The coin shall have a plain edge.

(2) New penny—Every new penny shall have the same obverse impression and inscription as the two new pence, and for the reverse a portcullis with chains royally crowned, being a badge of King Henry VII and his successors, and the inscription "1 NEW PENNY". The coin shall have a plain edge.

(3) New halfpenny—Every new halfpenny shall have the same obverse impression and inscription as the two new pence, and for the reverse the Royal Crown, and the inscription " $\frac{1}{2}$ NEW PENNY". The coin shall have a plain edge.

3. (1) A new coin of cupro-nickel of the denomination of fifty new pence shall be made, being a coin of a standard weight of 13.5 grammes, a standard diameter of 30 millimetres and a standard composition of seventy-five per cent copper and twenty-five per cent nickel, and being in the shape of an equilateral curve heptagon.

(2) In the making of the said coin a remedy (that is, a variation from the standard weight, diameter or composition specified above) shall be allowed of an amount not exceeding the following, that is to say:

- (a) a variation from the said standard weight of an amount per coin (measured as the average of a sample of not more than one kilogramme of the coin) of 0.08 grammes; and
- (b) a variation from the said standard diameter of 0.1 millimetres per coin; and
- (c) a variation from the said standard composition of one per cent.

(3) The design for the said coin shall be as follows —

Every fifty new pence shall have for the obverse impression Our effigy with the inscription "D.G.REG.F.D. ELIZABETH II" and the date of the year, and for the reverse a figure of Britannia seated beside a lion, with a shield resting against her right side, holding a trident in her right hand and an olive branch in her left hand; and the inscription "50 NEW PENCE". The coin shall have a plain edge.

4. The fifty new pence, the ten new pence and the five new pence may be issued for use before the day appointed under section 1 (2) of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 (as extended to the Territories by Our Proclamations dated the 20th day of December 1968 and the 30th day of September 1970) as respectively, a current cupro-nickel coin of the denomination of ten shillings issued by Our Mint in accordance with the provisions of the Coinage Act 1946 (as extended to the Falkland Islands by Our Proclamation of the 13th day of November 1947), a florin and a shilling.

Given at Our Court at Balmoral, this thirtieth day of September in the year of our Lord One thousand nine hundred and seventy and in the nineteenth year of Our reign.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

BY THE QUEEN A PROCLAMATION

DIRECTING THAT CERTAIN PARTS OF THE DECIMAL CURRENCY ACT 1967
SHALL APPLY TO AND BE IN FORCE IN THE DEPENDENCIES OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS AND THE BRITISH ANTARCTIC TERRITORY.

ELIZABETH R.

We, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870, section 3 (3) of the Decimal Currency Act 1967, and of all other powers enabling Us in that behalf, do hereby, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, proclaim, direct and ordain as follows —

1. The parts of the Decimal Currency Act 1967, as modified and set out in the Schedule hereto, shall apply and be in force in the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and the British Antarctic Territory.

2. This Proclamation shall be published in the Official Gazette of the Falkland Islands and shall come into force in the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and in the British Antarctic Territory on the date of such publication.

Given at Our Court at Balmoral, this thirtieth day of September in the year of our Lord One thousand nine hundred and seventy and in the nineteenth year of Our reign.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

SCHEDULE TO THE PROCLAMATION

1. (1) On and after the appointed day the denominations of money in the currency of the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and the British Antarctic Territory shall be the pound sterling and the new penny, the new penny being one-hundredth part of a pound sterling.

(2) In this Act "the appointed day" means such day in the year 1971 as the Governor or the High Commissioner, as the case may be, may by order appoint.

2. (1) Subject to subsection (2) below, all coins of the new currency to be made at the Mint, being coins of the metals and denominations described in column 1 of Schedule 1 to this Act, shall be circular and of the standard weight, diameter and composition specified in columns 2, 3 and 4 of that Schedule.

(2) In the making of such coins a remedy (that is, a variation from the standard weight, diameter or composition specified as aforesaid) shall be allowed of an amount not exceeding the following, that is to say —

- (a) a variation from the said standard weight of an amount per coin (measured as the average of a sample of not more than one kilogram of the coin in question) specified in column 5 of the said Schedule 1; and
- (b) a variation from the said standard diameter of 0.125 millimetre per coin; and
- (c) in the case of cupro-nickel coins, a variation from the said standard composition of two per cent.

(3) The powers exercisable by proclamation by virtue of section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 shall include power to determine —

- (a) the weight and composition of coins of the new currency to be made at the Mint, other than gold coins and coins of the metals and denominations described in the said Schedule 1; and
- (b) the remedy to be allowed in the making of such coins;

and so much of section 3 of that Act and section 2 of the Coinage Act 1946 as requires coins of other denominations to be of a weight and fineness or composition determined by reference to coins of the denominations described in those Acts shall not apply to coins specified in a proclamation made by virtue of this subsection.

(4) Coins made in accordance with this section may, if so directed by proclamation under the said section 11, be issued for use before the appointed day as current coins of such denominations of the currency in force before that day as may be specified in the proclamation.

3. (1) In section 5 of the Coinage Act 1870 (prohibition upon making of coins except by the Mint) for the words "by the Mint" there shall be substituted the words "by or with the authority of the Mint"; and references in any enactment (including this Act) to coins made by, or at or in, the Mint shall include references to coins made at any place with the authority of the Mint.

7. (1) This Act may be cited as the Decimal Currency Act 1967.

(2) Any reference in this Act to any enactment is a reference to it as amended or applied by or under any subsequent enactment.

BY THE QUEEN
A PROCLAMATION

DIRECTING THAT CERTAIN PARTS OF THE DECIMAL CURRENCY ACT 1969 SHALL APPLY TO AND BE IN FORCE IN THE FALKLAND ISLANDS, THE DEPENDENCIES OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS AND THE BRITISH ANTARCTIC TERRITORY.

ELIZABETH R.

We, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 and section 15 (4) of the Decimal Currency Act 1969 and of all other powers enabling Us in that behalf, do hereby, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, proclaim, direct and ordain as follows —

1. This Proclamation shall be published in the Official Gazette of the Falkland Islands and shall come into force in the Falkland Islands, the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and the British Antarctic Territory (hereinafter referred to as "the Territories") on the date of such publication.

2. The provisions of the Decimal Currency Act 1969 that are set out in the Schedule to this Proclamation shall, in the form in which they are there set out, apply to and be in force in the Territories.

Given at Our Court at Balmoral, this thirtieth day of September in the year of our Lord One thousand nine hundred and seventy and in the nineteenth year of Our Reign.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

SCHEDULE TO THE PROCLAMATION

DECIMAL CURRENCY ACT 1969

Section 1: Legal Tender

1. (1) Coins made by the Mint in accordance with section 2 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 or in accordance with the Coinage Acts 1870 to 1946 and not called in by proclamation under paragraph (5) of section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 shall be legal tender as follows, that is to say —

- (a) coins of cupro-nickel or silver of denominations of more than ten new pence or two shillings, for payment of any amount not exceeding ten pounds;
- (b) coins of cupro-nickel or silver of denominations of not more than ten new pence or two shillings, for payment of any amount not exceeding five pounds;
- (c) coins of bronze, for payment of any amount not exceeding twenty new pence or four shillings.

(3) Subject to subsection (6) of this section and to any direction given by virtue of section 15 (5) of this Act, coins of the old currency other than gold coins shall not be legal tender after the end of the transitional period.

(4) For the purpose of being used for any payment in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this section a coin of either the old or the new currency may be treated as being a current coin of the other currency of equal value.

(5) The powers exercisable by proclamation by virtue of section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 shall include power to direct that any coins of the new currency made by the Mint in accordance with section 2 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 other than coins of cupro-nickel, silver or bronze shall be current and be legal tender for payment of any amount not exceeding such amount (not greater than ten pounds) as may be specified in the proclamation.

(6) For the purposes of this section silver coins of the Queen's Maundy money made in accordance with section 3 of the Coinage Act 1870 shall be treated as made in accordance with section 2 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 and, if issued before the appointed day, shall be treated as denominated in the same number of new pence as the number of pence in which they were denominated.

Section 15: Minor and consequential amendments of enactments

15. (1) Section 3 of the Coinage Act 1870 (standard of coins) shall apply only to gold coins and to silver coins of the Queen's Maundy money, and accordingly—

- (a) in that section, after the word "Act" (where it first occurs) there shall be inserted the words "being gold coins or coins of silver of the Queen's Maundy money", and for the words "silver or bronze" there shall be substituted the words "or any silver coin of the Queen's Maundy money"; and
- (b) for the entries in Schedule 1 to that Act relating to silver and bronze coins there shall be substituted the entries relating to silver coins of the Queen's Maundy money set out in Schedule 3 to this Act.

(2) Section 4 of the Coinage Act 1870 (legal tender) shall apply only to gold coins, and accordingly in that section the word "gold" shall be inserted after the words "if made in", and the words "In the case of gold coins" and the words from "In the case of silver" onwards shall be omitted.

(3) Paragraph (4) of section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 (power by proclamation to determine the weight below which a coin is not to be current) shall cease to have effect.

(5) The powers exercisable by proclamation by virtue of section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 shall include power to direct that cupro-nickel or silver coins issued by the Mint before the appointed day in accordance with the Coinage Acts 1870 to 1946, being coins of any denomination specified in the proclamation, shall on and after such day (not earlier than the appointed day) as may be so specified be treated as coins of the new currency made by the Mint in accordance with section 2 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 and as being of such denomination of that currency as may be so specified.

(7) In the case of cupro-nickel coins of the denomination of fifty new pence issued for use before the appointed day as current coins of the denomination of ten shillings by virtue of section 2(4) of the Decimal Currency Act 1967, section 1 of the Coinage Act 1946 (cupro-nickel coins to be legal tender for payments up to forty shillings) shall apply as if the reference to an amount not exceeding forty shillings were a reference to an amount not exceeding ten pounds.

Section 16: Interpretation

16. (1) In this Act—

"the appointed day" means the day appointed under section 1 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967;

"the new currency" means the new currency of the Territories provided for by the Decimal Currency Act 1967;

"the old currency" means the currency of the Territories in force before the appointed day;

"the transitional period" means the period beginning with the appointed day and ending with such day as the Governor or the High Commissioner, as the case may be, may by order appoint.

(2) In this Act—

(a) references to coins made by the Mint include references to coins made at any place with the authority of the Mint; and

(b) references to coins of the new currency made in accordance with section 2 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 include references to coins made in accordance with any proclamation made under section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 by virtue of section 2(3) of the said Act of 1967.

(3) Except in so far as the context otherwise requires, any reference in this Act to any enactment or instrument is a reference to it as amended, and includes a reference to it as applied, by or under any other enactment or instrument, including this Act, and is a reference to it as it applies and is in force in the Territories.

Section 17: Repeals

17. (2) The enactments specified in Schedule 4 to this Act are hereby repealed, as from the appointed day, to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule.

Section 19: Short title, citation and commencement

19. (1) This Act may be cited as the Decimal Currency Act 1969, and the Decimal Currency Act 1967 and this Act may be cited together as the Decimal Currency Acts 1967 and 1969.

(2) Section 1 of this Act, and section 15 of this Act except subsections (5) and (7), shall not come into force until the appointed day.

INDEX OF LEGISLATION

The following items appearing in this issue should be entered in the Index of Supplementary Legislation —

Rules made for the prosecution by persons under sentence of death of petitions for special leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Rules No. 2 of 1970 — Currency Notes (Amendment) Rules 1970.

RULES MADE BY THE ACTING GOVERNOR FOR THE PROSECUTION BY PERSONS UNDER SENTENCE OF DEATH OF PETITIONS FOR SPECIAL LEAVE TO APPEAL TO THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

Date appointed for execution of sentence.

1. The date appointed for the execution of a sentence of death will normally allow an interval of not less than twenty-one and not more than twenty-five days between sentence and the last day for lodging an appeal to the Court of Appeal or, in the event of an appeal, the dismissal of the appeal and the date of execution:

Provided that the sentence shall not in any case be executed until after the expiration of the time within which notice of appeal or application for leave to appeal may be given.

Notice of intention to petition for Special Leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

2. (1) If he intends to apply for Special Leave, the applicant should as soon as possible and in any case within the period prescribed in paragraph (2) of this Rule notify his intention to the Governor through his legal representative or, if personally, through the Officer in Charge of the prison where he is confined.

(2) The period prescribed for notification under paragraph (1) of this Rule is ten clear days after notification that the Governor has not granted a pardon or respite, or, in the event of an appeal to the Court of Appeal, fourteen days after the dismissal of the appeal, if the latter should be longer.

Postponement of execution following notice under Rule 2.

3. On receipt of a notification under Rule 2, the applicant will be informed that the execution will be postponed for twenty-one days, during which period the applicant must furnish the Governor with proof that the necessary instructions, papers and funds have been sent to a solicitor practising in London, the instructions and funds by air mail and the papers by registered ordinary mail; and also where the application is to be made in forma pauperis that the procedure relating to such applications as set out in Rule 4 (c) has been complied with.

The necessary papers to be forwarded.

4. The necessary papers alluded to in Rule 3 should include —
- (a) three copies, one being a certified copy, of the record of the trial including any documentary exhibits and the judgment and order of the Court; and
 - (b) if there has been appeal, three copies, one being a certified copy, of the record of the proceedings on appeal including the judgment and order of the Court; and
 - (c) in the case of a person intending to petition in forma pauperis,
 - (i) an affidavit stating that he is not worth £100 in the world except his wearing apparel and that he is unable to provide sureties, and
 - (ii) a certificate of Counsel that he has reasonable ground of appeal.

Necessary funds.

5. The necessary funds (except where an application is made in forma pauperis) will be at least 110 guineas if one Counsel is engaged, but, if more than one Counsel is engaged or if the record is bulky, 150 to 200 guineas will be needed.

6. A petitioner in forma pauperis may, if his petition is dismissed, be excused from paying most of the costs usually chargeable, but he may nevertheless be required to pay the London solicitors' out of pocket expenses and an allowance, on a prescribed scale, towards their office expenses.

7. Solicitors in England are not under any obligation to accept a case in forma pauperis.

Action following notification under Rule 2.

8. When furnishing the required proof, the name and address of the solicitors in London to whom papers and funds have been despatched must be supplied to the Governor.

9. If the proof required by the provisions of Rule 3 is not furnished to the Governor before the expiration of the period of twenty-one days referred to in that Rule, the execution will not be further postponed unless the Governor considers that there are special reasons that would justify exceptionally an extension of the date for furnishing such proof. The applicant or his advisers will be informed by the Governor of the new date by which the required proof must be furnished.

10. If the proof required by the provisions of Rule 3 is furnished within the period of twenty-one days referred to in that Rule or on or before such date as the Governor may have fixed under the provisions of Rule 9, execution will be postponed.

11. If the execution is to be further postponed, the Governor will inform the applicant or his advisers of the date by which the application for special leave to appeal should be lodged in the Privy Council Office.

12. If the Governor is informed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office —

- (a) that the application for special leave has not been lodged by the date fixed;
- (b) that the application has been dismissed by the Judicial Committee;
- (c) that the appeal has been dismissed by the Judicial Committee;

the execution will not be further postponed, subject, however, to the power of the Governor to exercise the Prerogative of Mercy.

Dated this 25th day of November 1970.

By Command,
H. L. BOUND,
for Colonial Secretary.

Currency Notes Ordinance

(Cap. 15)

RULES

(Under section 13 of the Ordinance)

No. 2 of 1970.

J. A. JONES,
Acting Governor.

In exercise of the powers vested in him by section 13 of the Currency Notes Ordinance, the Governor, with the approval of the Secretary of State, has made the following rules —

1. These rules may be cited as the Currency Notes (Amendment) Rules 1970, and shall come into operation on the 15th day of February 1971. Citation and commencement.

2. Rule 10 (1) of the Currency Notes Rules is amended by deleting "10/-" and substituting therefor the following — Amendment of rule 10.
(Cap. 15. sub. leg.)

"10/- and 50 pence".

By Command,
H. L. BOUND,
for Colonial Secretary.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill provides for income tax to be assessed in decimal currency as from 15th February 1971.

A Bill for
An Ordinance

To make provision in connection with the introduction of a decimal currency.

Title.

(19)

Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Decimal Currency
Ordinance 1971.

Short title.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires —

Interpretation.

“the appointed day” means 15th February 1971 (the day appointed under section 1 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967);

“the new currency” means the new currency of the Falkland Islands provided for by Proclamation made under the Decimal Currency Act 1967;

“the old currency” means the currency of the Falkland
Islands in force before the appointed day;

“the transitional period” means the period beginning with the appointed day and ending with such day as the Governor may by order appoint.

3. (1) A bill of exchange or promissory note drawn or made on or after the appointed day shall be invalid if the sum payable is an amount of money wholly or partly in shillings or pence.

Bills of exchange and promissory notes.

(2) A bill of exchange or promissory note for an amount wholly or partly in shillings or pence dated 15th February 1971 or later shall be deemed to have been drawn or made before 15th February 1971 if it bears a certificate in writing by a banker that it was so drawn or made.

Conversion of references to shillings and pence in certain instruments.

4. (1) On and after the appointed day any reference to an amount of money in the old currency contained in an instrument to which this section applies shall, in so far as it refers to an amount in shillings or pence, be read as referring to the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

(2) If a reference to an amount of money in the old currency contained in an instrument to which this section applies is altered so as to make it read as it would otherwise fall to be read in accordance with subsection (1) of this section, the alteration shall not affect the validity of the instrument and, in the case of a bill of exchange or promissory note, shall not be treated as a material alteration for the purposes of section 64 of the Bills of Exchange Act 1882.

(3) This section applies to instruments of any of the following descriptions drawn, made or issued before the appointed day, namely —

(3 of 1952)
(9 of 1960)
(7 of 1961)

- (a) cheques;
- (b) any document issued by a customer of a banker which, though not a bill of exchange, is intended to enable a person to obtain payment from that banker of the sum mentioned in the document;
- (c) any document issued by a public officer which is intended to enable a person to obtain payment from the Colonial Treasurer of the sum mentioned in the document but is not a bill of exchange;
- (d) bills of exchange other than cheques;
- (e) promissory notes;
- (f) money orders and postal orders;
- (g) any document issued under the authority of the Old Age Pensions Ordinance 1952, the Family Allowance Ordinance 1960 and the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance 1961 which is intended to enable a person to obtain payment of the sum mentioned in the document but is not a bill of exchange;
- (h) any document not mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs which is intended to enable a person to obtain through a banker payment of any sum mentioned in the document.

Conversion of bank balances.

5. (1) Where the amount of the balance standing to the credit or debit of an account at a bank on or after the appointed day is not a whole number of pounds, so much of that amount as is in shillings or pence may be treated as the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

Conversion of employees' balances.

6. Where the amount of the balance standing to the credit or debit of an employee with an employer on or after the appointed day is not a whole number of pounds, so much of that amount as is in shillings or pence may be treated as the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

Payment of certain periodical payments.

7. (1) This section applies to any amount of money in the old currency payable on or after the appointed day as one of a series of payments of the same amount payable periodically, whether pursuant to an instrument or otherwise, not being an amount mentioned in subsection (3) of this section.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, where an amount of money to which this section applies is not a whole number of pounds, so much of it as is in shillings or pence may be paid by paying the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

(3) This section does not apply to an amount payable to an employee or the holder of any office by way of wages, salary or other remuneration.

8. (1) Any registered stock which immediately before the appointed day is transferable in multiples of one penny shall on and after the appointed day be transferable instead in multiples of one new penny except in so far as, in the exercise of any power in that behalf, other provision is or has been made as to the amounts in which that stock is to be transferable as from that or any later day.

Registered stock transferable in multiples of one penny.

(2) In any prospectus or other document issued before the appointed day that sets out the terms on which any such registered stock is to be issued or held, any reference to one penny as the amount in multiples of which that stock is to be transferable shall on and after that day be read as a reference to one new penny.

(3) Where the amount of the balance of any such registered stock standing in the name of any person immediately before the appointed day in an account in the register is not a whole number of pounds, so much of that amount as is in shillings or pence shall on and after that day be treated as the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

(4) In this section "registered stock" includes inscribed stock, and "the register" in relation to any registered stock, means any register or book in which that stock is registered or inscribed.

9. Where an amount of money in the old currency which is not a whole number of pounds falls to be paid after the end of the transitional period, the amount payable in respect of so much of it as is in shillings or pence shall be the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

Payments after end of transitional period.

10. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section and of any order made under section 11 of this Ordinance, where an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made before the appointed day contains a reference to an amount of money in the old currency which is not a whole number of pounds, that reference shall, in so far as it refers to an amount in shillings or pence, be read on and after that day as referring to the equivalent of that amount in the new currency.

Amendment of references to shillings and pence in Ordinances and subsidiary legislation.

(2) Subsection (1) of this section —

- (a) does not apply to any reference in this Ordinance or any subsidiary legislation made thereunder or in any other Ordinance or subsidiary legislation relating to coinage or currency, whenever passed or made; and
- (b) in the case of an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made after the application of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 does not apply if a contrary intention appears.

11. (1) Where an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made before the appointed day contains a reference to an amount of money in the old currency which is not a whole number of pounds, the Governor in Council, may by order —

Supplementary power to amend Ordinances etc, referring to shillings and pence.

- (a) if the equivalent of that amount in the new currency is not a new penny or a multiple thereof, substitute for that reference a reference to such amount in the new currency as in the opinion of the Governor in Council is the appropriate multiple of a new halfpenny (or if the case so requires a reference to a new halfpenny);

- (b) make such other amendment in that Ordinance or subsidiary legislation as in the opinion of the Governor in Council is appropriate for securing either that any amount payable thereunder will be a new halfpenny or a multiple thereof or that any amount payable thereunder will be a new penny or a multiple thereof;
- (c) if that reference is part of a rate, percentage, proportion, formula or other basis of calculation, make such amendment in the Ordinance or subsidiary legislation as in the opinion of the Governor in Council is appropriate for securing that the basis of calculation is expressed in the new currency and in convenient terms.

(2) An order under this section shall not come into operation before the appointed day.

(3) No order altering the rate of any tax shall be made under this section.

Modification of forms.

12. (1) Where any form set out in an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made before the appointed day is designed to accommodate references to sums of money wholly or partly in shillings or pence, the form may be used with such modifications as are necessary to enable it to accommodate references to sums of money wholly or partly in new pence.

(2) The foregoing subsection is without prejudice to any other provision authorising the modification of any such form.

SCHEDULE

Sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.

METHOD OF CALCULATING IN CERTAIN CASES THE AMOUNT IN NEW PENCE CORRESPONDING TO AN AMOUNT IN SHILLINGS AND PENCE.

The amount in the new currency corresponding to an amount in shillings, shillings and pence or pence shall be calculated as follows —

- (a) for any whole two shillings or multiple thereof the corresponding amount in the new currency shall be taken to be ten new pence or that multiple thereof; and
- (b) for any amount or remaining amount of less than two shillings shown in column 1 of the following Table the corresponding amount in the new currency shall be taken to be the amount (if any) in new pence shown opposite that amount in column 2 of that Table (and accordingly an amount or remaining amount of one penny shall be disregarded).

FALKLAND ISLANDS

COMMISSION passed under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet appointing ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, Esquire, O.B.E., to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, Dated 12th November 1970

ELIZABETH R.

ELIZABETH THE SECOND, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Our other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith:

To Our Trusty and Well-beloved ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, Esquire, Officer of Our Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Greeting:

I. We do, by this Our Commission under Our Sign Manual and Signet, appoint you, the said Ernest Gordon Lewis, to be, with effect from the First day of December, 1970, Our Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over Our Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, during Our pleasure, with all the powers, rights, privileges and advantages to the said Office belonging or appertaining.

II. And We do hereby command all and singular Our Officers and loving subjects in Our said Colony and its Dependencies, and all others whom it may concern, to take due notice hereof, and to give their ready obedience accordingly.

III. And We do hereby direct that this Our Commission shall determine upon signification to that effect being given by Us through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

Given at Our Court of Saint James's, this Twelfth day of November, 1970, in the Nineteenth year of Our Reign.

By Her Majesty's Command,

Fugitive Offenders Act 1967
(1967 c. 68)

ORDER

(under Sections 2(1) and (4) of the Act)

No. 2 of 1971.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 2(1) and (4) of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 and the Fugitive Offenders (Falkland Islands and Dependencies) Order 1968, the Governor with the approval of the Secretary of State, has made the following Order —

1967 c. 68.
S. I. 1968/113.

1. This Order may be cited as the Fugitive Offenders (Designated Commonwealth Countries) Order 1971 and shall come into operation on 1st February 1971.

2. The Cook Islands (being a territory for the external relations of which New Zealand is responsible) are hereby designated for the purposes of section 1 of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 as a separate country at the request of the Government of New Zealand.

3. The territory of Papua and New Guinea, Norfolk Island, Australian Antarctic territory, the territory of Cocos (Keeling) Islands, the territory of Christmas Island, the territory of Heard and McDonald Islands and the territory of Ashmore and Cartier Islands (being territories for the external relations of which Australia is responsible) shall be treated as part of Australia for the purposes of the Fugitive Offenders (Designated Commonwealth Countries) Order 1968 (which designates certain Commonwealth Countries for the purposes of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967) and the reference to Australia in the Schedule to that Order shall be construed accordingly.

4. Niue and the Tokelau Islands (being territories for the external relations of which New Zealand is responsible) shall be treated as part of New Zealand for the purposes of the Fugitive Offenders (Designated Commonwealth Countries) Order 1968 and the reference to New Zealand in the Schedule to that Order shall be construed accordingly.

By Command

J. A. JONES,
Colonial Secretary.

1st February 1971.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

Section 2(1) of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 enables any country within the Commonwealth to be designated by Order for the purposes of the Act (so that the provisions of the Act relating to the return of offenders to the independent Commonwealth countries and not those relating to United Kingdom dependencies will apply). Section 2(4) enables any territory for the external relations of which a Commonwealth country is responsible to be treated as part of that country, or (at the request of that country) as a separate country, for the purposes of such an Order. Australia and New Zealand have already been designated and this Order designates the Cook Islands (for whose external relations New Zealand is responsible) as a separate country and provides that the Dependencies set out in Articles 3 and 4 shall be treated as part of Australia or New Zealand, as the case may be.

LS

1971

Colony of the Falkland Islands.

IN THE TWENTIETH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, O.B.E.

Governor.

An Ordinance

To make provision in connection with the introduction of a decimal currency. Title.

(15th February 1971)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Decimal Currency Ordinance 1971. Short title.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires — Interpretation.

“the appointed day” means 15th February 1971 (the day appointed under section 1 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967);

“the new currency” means the new currency of the Falkland Islands provided for by Proclamation made under the Decimal Currency Act 1967;

“the old currency” means the currency of the Falkland Islands in force before the appointed day;

“the transitional period” means the period beginning with the appointed day and ending with such day as the Governor may by order appoint.

3. (1) A bill of exchange or promissory note drawn or made on or after the appointed day shall be invalid if the sum payable is an amount of money wholly or partly in shillings or pence. Bills of exchange and promissory notes.

(2) A bill of exchange or promissory note for an amount wholly or partly in shillings or pence dated 15th February 1971 or later shall be deemed to have been drawn or made before 15th February 1971 if it bears a certificate in writing by a banker that it was so drawn or made.

Conversion of references to shillings and pence in certain instruments.

4. (1) On and after the appointed day any reference to an amount of money in the old currency contained in an instrument to which this section applies shall, in so far as it refers to an amount in shillings or pence, be read as referring to the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

(2) If a reference to an amount of money in the old currency contained in an instrument to which this section applies is altered so as to make it read as it would otherwise fall to be read in accordance with subsection (1) of this section, the alteration shall not affect the validity of the instrument and, in the case of a bill of exchange or promissory note, shall not be treated as a material alteration for the purposes of section 64 of the Bills of Exchange Act 1882.

(3) This section applies to instruments of any of the following descriptions drawn, made or issued before the appointed day, namely—

(3 of 1952)
(9 of 1960)
(7 of 1961)

- (a) cheques;
- (b) any document issued by a customer of a banker which, though not a bill of exchange, is intended to enable a person to obtain payment from that banker of the sum mentioned in the document;
- (c) any document issued by a public officer which is intended to enable a person to obtain payment from the Colonial Treasurer of the sum mentioned in the document but is not a bill of exchange;
- (d) bills of exchange other than cheques;
- (e) promissory notes;
- (f) money orders and postal orders;
- (g) any document issued under the authority of the Old Age Pensions Ordinance 1952, the Family Allowance Ordinance 1960 and the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance 1961 which is intended to enable a person to obtain payment of the sum mentioned in the document but is not a bill of exchange;
- (h) any document not mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs which is intended to enable a person to obtain through a banker payment of any sum mentioned in the document.

Conversion of bank balances.

5. (1) Where the amount of the balance standing to the credit or debit of an account at a bank on or after the appointed day is not a whole number of pounds, so much of that amount as is in shillings or pence may be treated as the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

Conversion of employees' balances.

6. Where the amount of the balance standing to the credit or debit of an employee with an employer on or after the appointed day is not a whole number of pounds, so much of that amount as is in shillings or pence may be treated as the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

Payment of certain periodical payments.

7. (1) This section applies to any amount of money in the old currency payable on or after the appointed day as one of a series of payments of the same amount payable periodically, whether pursuant to an instrument or otherwise, not being an amount mentioned in subsection (3) of this section.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, where an amount of money to which this section applies is not a whole number of pounds, so much of it as is in shillings or pence may be paid by paying the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

(3) This section does not apply to an amount payable to an employee or the holder of any office by way of wages, salary or other remuneration.

8. (1) Any registered stock which immediately before the appointed day is transferable in multiples of one penny shall on and after the appointed day be transferable instead in multiples of one new penny except in so far as, in the exercise of any power in that behalf, other provision is or has been made as to the amounts in which that stock is to be transferable as from that or any later day.

Registered stock transferable in multiples of one penny.

(2) In any prospectus or other document issued before the appointed day that sets out the terms on which any such registered stock is to be issued or held, any reference to one penny as the amount in multiples of which that stock is to be transferable shall on and after that day be read as a reference to one new penny.

(3) Where the amount of the balance of any such registered stock standing in the name of any person immediately before the appointed day in an account in the register is not a whole number of pounds, so much of that amount as is in shillings or pence shall on and after that day be treated as the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

(4) In this section "registered stock" includes inscribed stock, and "the register" in relation to any registered stock, means any register or book in which that stock is registered or inscribed.

9. Where an amount of money in the old currency which is not a whole number of pounds falls to be paid after the end of the transitional period, the amount payable in respect of so much of it as is in shillings or pence shall be the corresponding amount in the new currency calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

Payments after end of transitional period.

10. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section and of any order made under section 11 of this Ordinance, where an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made before the appointed day contains a reference to an amount of money in the old currency which is not a whole number of pounds, that reference shall, in so far as it refers to an amount in shillings or pence, be read on and after that day as referring to the equivalent of that amount in the new currency.

Amendment of references to shillings and pence in Ordinances and subsidiary legislation.

(2) Subsection (1) of this section —

- (a) does not apply to any reference in this Ordinance or any subsidiary legislation made thereunder or in any other Ordinance or subsidiary legislation relating to coinage or currency, whenever passed or made; and
- (b) in the case of an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made after the application of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 does not apply if a contrary intention appears.

11. (1) Where an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made before the appointed day contains a reference to an amount of money in the old currency which is not a whole number of pounds, the Governor in Council, may by order —

Supplementary power to amend Ordinances etc, referring to shillings and pence.

- (a) if the equivalent of that amount in the new currency is not a new penny or a multiple thereof, substitute for that reference a reference to such amount in the new currency as in the opinion of the Governor in Council is the appropriate multiple of a new halfpenny (or if the case so requires a reference to a new halfpenny);

- (b) make such other amendment in that Ordinance or subsidiary legislation as in the opinion of the Governor in Council is appropriate for securing either that any amount payable thereunder will be a new halfpenny or a multiple thereof or that any amount payable thereunder will be a new penny or a multiple thereof;
 - (c) if that reference is part of a rate, percentage, proportion, formula or other basis of calculation, make such amendment in the Ordinance or subsidiary legislation as in the opinion of the Governor in Council is appropriate for securing that the basis of calculation is expressed in the new currency and in convenient terms.
- (2) An order under this section shall not come into operation before the appointed day.
- (3) No order altering the rate of any tax shall be made under this section.

Modification of forms.

12. (1) Where any form set out in an Ordinance or subsidiary legislation passed or made before the appointed day is designed to accommodate references to sums of money wholly or partly in shillings or pence, the form may be used with such modifications as are necessary to enable it to accommodate references to sums of money wholly or partly in new pence.
- (2) The foregoing subsection is without prejudice to any other provision authorising the modification of any such form.

SCHEDULE

Sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.

METHOD OF CALCULATING IN CERTAIN CASES THE AMOUNT IN NEW PENCE CORRESPONDING TO AN AMOUNT IN SHILLINGS AND PENCE.

The amount in the new currency corresponding to an amount in shillings, shillings and pence or pence shall be calculated as follows —

- (a) for any whole two shillings or multiple thereof the corresponding amount in the new currency shall be taken to be ten new pence or that multiple thereof; and
- (b) for any amount or remaining amount of less than two shillings shown in column 1 of the following Table the corresponding amount in the new currency shall be taken to be the amount (if any) in new pence shown opposite that amount in column 2 of that Table (and accordingly an amount or remaining amount of one penny shall be disregarded).

Report on the working of the Government Savings Bank for the year 1969/70.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
4th February 1971.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit the following report on the Savings Bank for the year that ended on 30th June 1970, together with the following accounts and statements —

1. Revenue and Expenditure Account.
2. Deposits and Withdrawals Account.
3. Investments Adjustment Account.
4. Reserve Account.
5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Statement of Investments.

2. Revenue during the year totalled £94,700 : 7 : 4 and was derived solely from interest on investments. This was a further significant increase over the figures for the previous years and reflects the prevailing conditions on the London money market. Expenditure amounted to £29,255 : 16 : 4 leaving a surplus of £65,444 : 11 : 0.

3. Deposits during the year totalled £429,697 : 7 : 11 and a further £27,123 : 6 : 0 was credited to depositors accounts in the form of interest at $2\frac{1}{2}\%$. Withdrawals amounted to £406,985 : 2 : 5.

4. At 30th June 1970 there were 1,978 depositors compared with 1,986 a year earlier. The total amount due to depositors, after adding interest, at 30th June 1970 was £1,189,255 : 14 : 0 compared with £1,139,420 : 2 : 6 a year earlier.

5. During the year a sum of £11,301 was transferred to Falkland Islands Government revenue under the authority of Section 13 (2) of the Savings Bank Ordinance. This sum represents the margin by which the assets of the Savings Bank at 30th June 1969, exceeded 110% of the amount due to depositors.

6. Revaluation of investments according to market prices quoted on 30th June 1970 showed appreciation amounting to £48,905 : 10 : 7. A further increase of £9,544 net resulted from trading in securities during the year.

7. At 30th June 1970 the assets of the bank totalled £1,427,093 : 5 : 2 or £237,837 : 11 : 2 more than the amount due to depositors on that date. This reserve is £118,912 more than the 10% required by Section 13 (2) of the Savings Bank Ordinance.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

Manager, Savings Bank.

Certificate and Report of the Auditor on the Accounts for 1968/69 and 1969/70.

I have examined the attached Accounts and Balance Sheets in accordance with Section 12 of the Savings Bank Ordinance. Subject to the following observations, I have obtained all the information and explanations that I have required and I certify as a result of this audit that, in my opinion, the attached Accounts and Balance Sheets are correct.

LOCAL INVESTMENTS

2. In July 1969 a loan of £35,643 was made to the Falkland Islands Government from the funds of the Savings Bank under the authority of the Loan (Telecommunications) Ordinance 1969 and Section 11 of the Savings Bank Ordinance. Partial repayment was made in 1969/70 but, owing to a misallocation between principal and interest, the Reserve Account and investments at Mid-market Value Account are each under-stated by £954 at 30th June 1970. It is understood that the necessary adjustment will be made when the next instalment is repaid.

INVESTMENTS HELD BY CROWN AGENTS

3. The holdings of investments at 30th June 1969 and 30th June 1970 have been verified from advance copies of certificates rendered by the Crown Agents. I have not seen the covering certificate of the Comptroller and Auditor General at either date.

4. The market value of short-dated gilt-edged securities has been calculated without reference to the interest accrued to the date of valuation. It has been suggested that future valuations should take accrued interest into account. (If the suggested formula had been applied at 30th June 1970, the value of the investments would have been enhanced by approximately £2,000).

F. KELLY,
Auditor.

20th February 1971

Report on the working of the Note Security Fund for the year 1969/70.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
8th February 1971.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the Currency Note Security Fund for the year that ended on 30th June 1970, together with the following accounts and statements—

1. Currency Note Income Account.
2. Note Security Fund Account.
3. Note Security Fund Balance Sheet.
4. Statement of Investments.

2. The banking business involving the transfer of credits to and from the United Kingdom by telegraphic advice was accounted for in the general account of the Treasury, where the same business, conducted by means of sight drafts on the Crown Agents, is also accounted for. This change in procedure took effect in the latter part of 1968/69.

3. The note issue was reduced by £14,900 during the year to stand at £87,700 on 30th June 1970. Details of notes in circulation at 30th June 1970 are :

Series	Denomination	No.	Value £
"C"	£5	13,223	66,115
"C"	£1	715	715
"D"	£1	2,486	2,486
"E"	£1	14,394	14,394
"C"	10/-	7,980	3,990
			£87,700

4. Income from investments amounted to £5,786 : 7 : 5 and expenditure on paper and printing amounted to £1,220 : 14 : 11. The surplus of £4,565 : 12 : 6 was transferred to the Note Security Fund (£1,027 : 7 : 10) in accordance with Section 7 (5) (b) of the Currency Notes Ordinance and to the revenue of the Colony (£3,538 : 4 : 8) in accordance with Section 7 (6).

5. The balance of the fund at 30th June 1970 was £103,766 : 10 : 5 or £16,066 more than the face value of the note issue. This reserve is £7,296 more than is required by Section 7 (6) (b) of the Currency Notes Ordinance.

I have the honour to be

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

Commissioner of Currency.

NOTE SECURITY FUND

Certificate and Report of the Auditor on the Accounts for 1968/69 and 1969/70.

I have examined the attached Accounts and Balance Sheets in accordance with Section 12 of the Currency Ordinance. Subject to the following observations, I have obtained all the information and explanations that I have required and I certify as a result of this audit that, in my opinion, the attached Accounts and Balance Sheets are correct.

CURRENCY NOTE INCOME ACCOUNT.

2. Commission on transfers of currency is no longer paid into the Currency Note Income Account, as required by Section 7 (4) of the Ordinance, but is paid direct into Colony revenues. The change in procedure does not, however, affect the value of the Note Security Fund, since surpluses in the Currency Note Income Account are payable into Colony revenues in accordance with Section 7 (6) of the Ordinance.

INVESTMENTS.

3. The holdings of investments at 30th June, 1969 and 30th June, 1970 have been verified from advance copies of certificates rendered by the Crown Agents. I have not seen the covering certificate of the Comptroller and Auditor General at either date.

4. The market value of short-dated gilt-edged securities has been calculated without regard to the interest accrued to the date of valuation. It has been suggested that future valuations should take accrued interest into account. (If the suggested formula had been applied at 30th June, 1970, the value of the Fund's investments would have been enhanced by approximately £700).

CURRENCY NOTE STOCKS.

5. The Currency Note Rules require four quarterly Boards of Survey to be held on currency stocks in addition to one surprise survey each year. Quarterly surveys have not been carried out for many years. Annual Boards of Survey are held on 1st July, and surprise surveys were carried out in January, 1969, October, 1970 and February, 1971.

F. KELLY,
Auditor.

20th February 1971

Report on the working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the year 1969/70.

To The Honourable
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands,
4th February 1971.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the period 1st July 1969 to 30th June 1970, together with the following accounts and statements —

1. Statement of Revenue and Expenditure.
2. Investments Adjustment Account.
3. Statement showing the growth of the Fund during the year.
4. Statement of Assets and Liabilities at 30th June 1970.
5. Statements of Investments held at 30th June 1970.

2. Revenue for the year amounted to £40,037 : 19 : 8 of which the principal items were £22,686 from the sale of contribution stamps, £11,739 : 7 : 2 from interest on investments and £5,596 from the Falkland Islands Government as a contribution towards the cost of higher pensions. Expenditure totalled £17,639 accounted for in the main by £13,029 : 13 : 2 paid out in pensions and £3,367 : 12 : 6 contributions refunded on the departure of contributors from the Colony.

3. The net result of transactions involving the purchase and sale of investments was a profit of £5,969 : 19 : 5. The revaluation at current market prices of investments held on 30th June 1970 revealed a net depreciation of £11,972 : 12 : 8.

4. The fund increased by £16,396 : 5 : 5 during the year, this being the net result of the excess of income over expenditure of £22,398 : 18 : 8 plus the profit of £5,969 : 19 : 5 from trading in investments, offset by the depreciation of £11,972 : 12 : 8 on revaluation of investments.

5. At 30th June 1970 the Fund stood at £221,749 : 14 : 8 of which £215,050 : 8 : 1 was held in securities and £6,699 : 6 : 7 in cash.

6. During the year sixteen claims to pensions were allowed : none were disallowed. Eight pensioners died. At 30th June 1970 there were eighty-one persons in receipt of a pension of whom thirty-four were married men, twenty unmarried men and twenty-seven were women.

7. Sixty-six (fifty male and sixteen female) new contributors registered during the year. Contributions were refunded to seventy-five contributors who left the Colony and to six female contributors who married. Three contributors died during the year.

8. No new legislation affecting the Ordinance was enacted during the year.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

OLD AGE PENSIONS EQUALISATION FUND

Certificate and Report of the Auditor on the Accounts for 1968/69 and 1969/70.

I have examined the attached Accounts and Statements of Assets and Liabilities in accordance with Section 22A of the Old Age Pensions Ordinance. Subject to the following observations, I have obtained all the information and explanations that I have required and I certify as a result of this audit that, in my opinion, the attached Accounts and Statements of Assets and Liabilities are correct.

INVESTMENTS.

2. The holdings of investments at 30th June, 1969 and 30th June, 1970 have been verified from advance copies of certificates rendered by the Crown Agents. I have not seen the covering certificate of the Comptroller and Auditor General at either date.

3. In 1967/68 approval was given for up to one half of the Fund to be invested in equities, and the investments in the hands of the Crown Agents have been managed on this basis since 31st May, 1968. For investment purposes, new accruals to the Fund are divided equally between gilt-edged securities and equities. The accounts in their present form do not show separately the transactions relating to the two classes of investment, but according to the investment records the market value of each class at 30th June, 1970 was as follows :

Gilt-edged securities	96,701
Equities	118,349
	£ 215,050

4. The market value of short-dated gilt-edged securities has been calculated without regard to the interest accrued to the date of valuation. It has been suggested that future valuations should take accrued interest into account. (If the suggested formula had been applied at 30th June, 1970, the value of the Fund's investments would have been enhanced by approximately £3,000).

FUND BALANCE.

5. On the basis of the figures in the accounts, the movement of the Fund during 1968/69 and 1969/70 can be summarised as follows :

Fund Balance at 1.7.1968	£ 201,029
ADD
Accruals on account of pension transactions : i.e. pension contributions received, less pensions paid, less management expenses	£ 26,938
LESS
Decrease on account of investment transactions : i.e. depreciation and losses on sales of investments, less gains on sales	£ 26,295
add investment management charges	£ 434
less income on investments	(-) £ 20,512
	(-) £ 6,217
Fund Balance at 30.6.1970	£ 221,750

6. Quarterly reports on the performance of the equity portfolio are received from the Crown Agents, and the latest of these that I have seen (as at 30th September, 1970) indicates some improvement as compared with the position at 30th June, 1970. I have no information about the performance of the gilt-edged portfolio after 30th June, 1970.

ACTUARIAL REPORT.

7. The last actuarial review was made as at 30th June, 1967, when the financial condition of the Fund was considered to be satisfactory. The next review is due to be made at 30th June, 1972.

Government Employees' Provident Fund 1969/70

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
5th February 1971.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the Government Employees' Provident Fund for the year that ended on 30th June 1970, together with the following accounts and statements.

1. Revenue and Expenditure Account.
2. Deposits and Withdrawals Account.
3. Investments Adjustment Account.
4. Reserve Account.
5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Statement of Investments.

2. Revenue during the year, derived solely from interest on investments, failed to cover expenditure and there was a deficit of £36 : 6 : 2.

3. Deposits amounted to £628 : 17 : 0 including the employers' bonus : withdrawals totalled £330 : 15 : 9.

4. At 30th June 1970 there were 9 contributors compared with 10 a year earlier. The amount due to contributors at 30th June 1970 was £6,740 : 18 : 5 compared with £6,283 : 4 : 3 at 30th June 1969.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES' PROVIDENT FUND

Certificate and Report of the Auditor on the Accounts for 1968/69 and 1969/70.

I have examined the attached Accounts and Statements of Assets and Liabilities in accordance with Section 4 of the Government Employees' Provident Fund Ordinance. Subject to the following observations, I have obtained all the information and explanations that I have required and I certify as a result of this audit that, in my opinion, the attached Accounts and Statement of Assets and Liabilities are correct.

2. The holdings of investments at 30th June, 1969 and 30th June, 1970 have been verified from advance copies of certificates rendered by the Crown Agents. I have not seen the covering Certificate of the Comptroller and Auditor General at either date.

3. The market value of short-dated gilt-edged securities has been calculated without regard to the interest accrued to the date of valuation. It has been suggested that future valuations should take accrued interest into account.

F. KELLY,
Auditor.

20th February 1971

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government, the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd., and the General Employees Union. The agreement shall be effective for a period of one year from the 1st of January, 1971, and shall apply to hourly paid employees in Stanley.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used: provided this average shall not take into account any changes in the level of taxation already imposed.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised:—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	32.08p
2. *Apprentices	1st year 18.33p
	2nd year 20p
	3rd year 21.67p
	4th year 24.17p
	5th year 26.67p
3. Handymen	27½p to 30.83p according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	26.67p
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	27.92p
6. Labourers	Hourly Rate.
	Age 14-15 12.92p
	15-16 15.21p
	16-17 18.75p
	17-18 21.88p
	18 and over 26.25p

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.

3. Extra Payments.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 2p per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 4p to 7½p per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 10p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 1½p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 1½p per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 2½p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 45 hours per week made up as follows :-

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

Saturday - 7.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 45 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows :-

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 - (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 - (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 - (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 - (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 45-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Holidays.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following seven days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday and Commonwealth Day, October Bank Holiday, Anniversary of Battle of Falkland Islands, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Annual Stanley Sports Meeting.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

7. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed one year's service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.
- (b) The following rules apply to employees who have completed one year's service with their employer.
- (i) There shall be no entitlement to sick pay for the first week of absence caused by sickness, but if sickness lasts for more than one week, an employee shall be entitled to half pay for the second, third and fourth weeks. While off work through illness an employee shall have the option of taking part or the whole of any annual leave due to him.
 - (ii) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (c) An employer may demand a medical certificate before applying any of the rules 7 (b) (i), (ii).
- (d) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work.

8. General.

- (a) Employment is normally terminated, either by employer or employee, at the end of the working week, but employment may be terminated at the end of any working day. A minimum of two hours' notice shall be given, except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed.
- (b) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.
- (c) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.
- (d) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.
- (e) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on 10th September 1970, having been circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members,

This session has been called primarily to deal with matters relating to decimalisation and to clear the deck legislatively speaking for the budget session. Therefore this morning I am not going to survey the overall economy (in any case after only a month in the Colony this might be a hazardous undertaking) but simply to touch on certain items of immediate interest and perhaps reflectively to give you some of my first impressions.

Two weeks ago, in a Press Release, I announced that the firm of Management Consultants, Peat Marwick & Mitchell, had been engaged by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to carry out a survey of our communications both external and internal. Since then the team has started preliminary planning in London and has had talks with officials of the various ministries and with the Head Office of the Falkland Islands Company and other firms who have interests in the Islands. I have now been informed that the two-man team consisting of Mr. R.F. Morrison and Mr. J.G. Beckett will arrive at the end of March on the "Darwin" and leave on the 10th April. At the same time a third member will proceed to Latin America to carry out further investigations of the problem at that end. So we can look forward to a busy time in preparing for the arrival of the team but I know that you will be encouraged by the fact that things are on the move.

And now to the Report of the Sheep and Cattle Industries of the Falkland Islands by the team led so ably by Mr. Davies. Advance copies of the report have been given to Members of LegCo and to one or two organisations particularly interested in this problem but copies for general distribution will not arrive until the next "Darwin". However, it can be said that this is a thorough, comprehensive and thoughtful work requiring a great deal of study by all of us before we can decide on the best way to proceed. And we are fortunate that Mr. Mackenzie, the Deputy Director of Agriculture in the Overseas Development Administration and Mr. Thorne, the Adviser on Animal Health, are on present planning arriving on the next "Darwin" with a view to ascertaining reactions to the report. While they are here they will be visiting the camps for down-to-earth practical discussions with camp managers. I have conveyed to Mr. Davies and his team the gratitude of all of us for such an excellent report.

Earlier I mentioned communications and some of you may think that I have overstressed this problem. I do not think so and to my mind it is simply a question of getting our priorities in the right order. I see adequate physical communications not simply as an end in themselves but only part of the widening of our horizons so that we can play our role to the full in the world. That is why, in my opinion, we should look forward with confidence to the talks on communications with the Argentine. Our position on sovereignty has been made clear and if we can find a way of having more contact with the Argentine it can only do good for both parties. It has been said that the adaptability and vigour of a people are in danger of declining when they are not under external pressure: well, we are under all sorts of pressures, including an economic one, so that there is no danger of us growing weak.

May I conclude on a personal note. People ask me, what do I think of the Islands, and the Kelpers: certainly a land of contrast. A few days ago I was in the Naval Hovercraft off Volunteer Point and Carysfort and the winds were gusting up to 50 miles an hour so that for one nostalgic moment I thought I was on one of the switch-back railways so popular at the World Fairs. And then later, fishing on the Murrell, dead calm with glorious blue skies and only the sound of the steamer duck to break the silence. As for the Kelper, when he is talking to you he looks you straight in the eye and that is a good enough first impression for me.

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen, thank you.

Resolution - Adoption of Report of Standing Finance Committee

A Motion for the adoption of the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period ended October 1970 was put by the Colonial Treasurer. The Motion was seconded by the Colonial Secretary and carried.

Resolution - Abolition of Death Penalty

COLONIAL SECRETARY: Your Excellency, in 1966, approximately five years ago, this Council passed the Abolition of Death Penalty - The Murder, Abolition of Death Penalty Ordinance, and this was for an experimental period of five years. The relevant portion of section 4 of the Ordinance states that this Ordinance shall continue in force until the 31st July 1971 and shall then expire unless the Legislature by affirmative Resolution otherwise determines, and the text of the Resolution which we have in front of us today is that this Council resolves, pursuant to section 4 of the Murder, Abolition of Death Penalty Ordinance 1966, that the said Ordinance should not expire as otherwise provided by section 4 of that Ordinance. So our purpose today in fact is to make abolition of the death sentence for murder permanent.

When this matter was debated in 1966 very detailed and able arguments were put forward both in favour of abolition and against and I don't intend this morning to rehearse these arguments at any length. In summary form, my predecessor's argument really was that few if any of the conditions exist locally which are normally cited as justification for retaining the death penalty. That, as I say, briefly summarises the case that he made as regards the local conditions. As regards the general case for abolition he quoted from a speech made by the Lord Chancellor in the House of Lords in 1965 which, with your permission, I should like to quote again because it puts in words much better than I could use the case for abolition. The Lord Chancellor said:

"It is my own view that the deliberate putting to death of a man or woman in cold blood as a punishment for crime is no longer consistent with our own self-respect. I do not believe that fallible human beings are entitled to impose a punishment so irrevocable that, if they find they have made a mistake, they have, by choosing this form of punishment, made it impossible for them to do anything to rectify that mistake. Further, I do not believe that any other human being is himself or herself fit to decide that some other human being is not fit to live."

My predecessor referred to the period between 1966 and the time when this Resolution came to be debated as being a testing period. Well, in my own view nothing has occurred here or elsewhere during that time to prove that the temporary abolition of the death penalty has made murder more common, easier, less detectable. It was said during the debate in 1966 that if hanging achieved anything the result would be a world in which there were no murders. We all know that hanging did not achieve that result. Your Excellency, I beg to move.

COLONIAL TREASURER: I beg to second the Motion

MR. MILLER: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't intend to speak very long. I was, of course, present at the original debate in 1966 in which several Members of this Council spoke, and I would in the course of the next few moments merely like to record that my views have not changed and I have reason to believe that those views are held by one or two other Members of this Council, and I hope they will get up and say so; and of course anybody who opposes those views. Unfortunately, he is unable to vote but it would appear that we've got the Clerk of Council on our side from his opening remarks! Her Majesty's Government in July of last year re-voted this Bill and it followed its expected course and hanging is no longer possible in Britain. It's been thrown out, albeit by a smaller majority than five years before. There are still mixed views and I have been quite affected by something that has happened since July 1970 in Britain, where a man who had strangled a woman received what they call a life sentence, but he came out after July 1970 having served only eight years; and within three months he formed an association with another woman and strangled her. Because he wasn't hanged the first time another innocent life was lost. It is all very well the Colonial Secretary quoting from the speeches of the Chancellor in 1965. He has those views; the rest of us have ours, and figures can be made to prove anything. The previous Colonial Secretary said that there's no local machinery for dealing with murderers, but it doesn't take very long to arrange that. But this Bill, which removes the death penalty, was passed only after a vote in 1966. It was to continue, as the Colonial Secretary has said, until this House passed a Resolution confirming it before July '71.

This Resolution of course is now before us. But it is important to me that no previous Minute in another House enabling discussion has been put before us. This is our first written introduction to this Resolution and it smacks strongly to me of anticipation that no Members have any views on this final adoption and that it would have 100 per cent support. I could be wrong, but that is how it would appear to me, and I sincerely hope that Members will speak after me and give their views both ways.

It also enables me to make a reference to something else.

During the last 18 months I have strongly opposed the suggestion for a joint Council and I continue resolutely to oppose this and will do so as long as I am on Council. If we have such a Council the function it will perform in this House will make it even more of a rubber stamp than it already appears to be.

MR. CLEMENT: Your Excellency, Honourable Members of Council, I am not going to waste the time of Council this morning, but I heartily agree with what Mr. Miller said about the abolition of the death penalty. I think it is something dreadful, that any government is afraid to put a criminal - a murderer - to death.

With regard to the second item that Mr. Miller mentioned: I am not certain about that. The combined Council saves an immense amount of time. It may eliminate, of course, the entertainment here which people seem rather in favour of. I am sure the Colonial Treasurer will bear me out in this. In presenting his very complicated and extensive budget, he has to present this to Executive Council, and then afterwards the Members of Legislative Council have to have it all over again. So there I am not very certain about it. It certainly provides entertainment if there are two Councils distinct; but is the entertainment value so great that the two Councils should not be joined together Sir? It does seem that the combined Council saves an immense amount of time.

MAJOR GOSS: Your Excellency, I also agree with a good deal of what Mr. Miller has said about the death penalty. No doubt his facts are correct, but on the other hand it is very clear to me what the Colonial Secretary has said, that hanging achieves very little, and I would certainly vote in favour of abolition, although I have split views on this.

With regard to the question of a joint Council that Mr. Miller has mentioned, I have very strong views.

It arose as one of my suggestions supported by another three Members sitting at this table, and I fail to see how elected representatives of this Colony can do their job if all they are required to do is to attend the normal functions of the Legislature. The work of the colony is not done in this Council: this is well known. It is done in the Executive Council and I maintain that every elected Member must, of necessity, be a Member of the Senior Council. Otherwise they are not kept fully in the picture. Perhaps there is an element of entertainment at these meetings. Normally I find them somewhat dry, but it is my view that we are not sitting here to entertain the public; we are sitting here to do our best in their interests, Sir.

MR. PITALUGA: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am going to come out very strongly in support of Mr. Miller and Mr. Clement and will vote on retaining the death penalty for these islands. In our history, long and quite chequered, I think we have only had one actual hanging here and I hope there will never have to be another one. But I would not like to see the means by which it can be done if necessary, done away with. A crime of that sort is very rare, I should think, in the history of the islands, whether detected or not, and I hope it will remain that way, but we are, it appears, heading for a time when there will be a greater influx of tourists, foreigners as well as British, and it will be much more difficult for the immigration authorities to be certain of the sort of people who are coming in. What they may do when they get here, under the pretence of looking at birds or something else, is anybody's guess, but I hope they will all be well-behaved and not do anything silly. But should one of them commit a capital crime or even consider committing such a crime, I should like that person to know that he will be dealt with very firmly.

The Lord Chancellor's words, I think, are very nice ones but I don't entirely agree with everything he said, nor do I agree that the death penalty, or rather the removal of the death penalty, has made no difference to the amount of capital crime. I think, in fact, it is pretty obvious, that there has been an increase, and I think it is only human nature where certain people know they are going to get away with something like eight to twelve years in prison. A life sentence is not really a deterrent for the determined murderer, and unfortunately there are a lot of these in society nowadays. So I am going to firmly oppose the Resolution.

On the second matter which Mr. Miller raised, the joint Council, I have rather mixed views on it still. Perhaps this is rather odd after it working for quite a long time but I would prefer not to say anything further one way or the other at this stage, Sir.

MR. HILLS: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have listened with interest to what Honourable Members have said on these two subjects but I cannot say that I am really shaken from my view before I entered this Council.

I feel that I must support the abolition of the death penalty. My reason for doing this is further supported by what the Honourable Colonial Secretary quoted from a certain quote in another place, and I am firmly convinced that I do not feel that I am qualified to support something which involves the taking of life for the reasons we have before us. Also what we have to remember, I feel, is that when we pass any Bills, that we are passing these for the Falklands and that what happens in the outside world we have very little say. Therefore I feel that I will have to support the abolition of the death penalty for these reasons.

On the other point of a joint Council, I am afraid that I feel something the same way as the Honourable Mr. Pitaluga; I have mixed feelings on this. I think it calls for further discussion by Council; in particular certain points which I wouldn't at this stage be prepared to say here today. So at the moment I am not quite clear in my mind whether we should have a joint Council or not.

/COLONIAL SECRETARY

COLONIAL SECRETARY: Your Excellency, it falls to me to wind this up and I won't take too long about it; and I won't argue too much either. I would like to start by assuring the Honourable Member Mr. Miller that indeed nothing was further from my intention that this should be a "rubber stamp" performance. Indeed one of the reasons for including this Resolution on the Order Paper at this meeting was that we would probably have more time to devote to it than would be the case if we had left it until the Budget Meeting when the Order Paper is normally crowded. So I hope that Mr. Miller will accept that in the spirit in which it is meant.

The subject itself upon which we are talking is, as we very much know, one of personal conviction. I'd like simply to repeat what I said in my earlier speech; statistics don't indicate that the temporary abolition of the death penalty has increased the number of murders. Similarly, although I didn't say it then, it's impossible to prove that the death penalty acts as a deterrent. But if you take that and the statistics, such as they are, together, it would seem quite obvious that the death penalty for murder does not act as a deterrent.

One or two minor points, really for the record more than anything else; while it is true that there was a smaller majority in the British House in favour of permanent abolition than there had been five years previously, the majority was still fairly substantial. It was, if I remember rightly, about 150; in other words, roughly 2 to 1 in favour of abolition. And two final minor points relating to matters raised by the Honourable Member Mr. Pitaluga: in the case of the unfortunate tourist whom he hoped was not going to misbehave here, I suppose one could say that if a tourist did do that he would find himself in for a much longer sojourn in the islands than he originally envisaged. The second point that also arises from something Mr. Pitaluga said, I have been told, probably inaccurately, that the hangman in the case many years ago here subsequently committed suicide.

THE PRESIDENT: This is a subject I see that I come into literally in mid-stream. I have read the reports of the debates which you had previously on this subject and it is something which always does arouse strong feelings, and with the best of intentions on all sides. It is not for me to influence you one way or the other. You have had the pros and cons put extremely ably by the Members this morning, and indeed in the past. I was myself impressed with the standard of debate over the previous discussion. I do not know whether we would get any further by delaying again for some time if it was the wish of the Members to withdraw the Motion for a period for further reflection and discussion in Executive Council, would you have any objection, Honourable Colonial Secretary?

COLONIAL SECRETARY: No indeed, I have no objection, Your Excellency, but as I said, I suspect this is a matter of conviction. Whether any of us are likely to change our opinions I am inclined to doubt, but I cannot definitely say that I am speaking for everybody.

In the vote which followed four Members voted in favour of the Resolution and four against. The President gave his casting vote in favour and the Motion was carried.

RESOLUTION - CUSTOMS (DECIMALISATION OF DUTIES)

COLONIAL SECRETARY: Your Excellency, this item was inadvertently omitted from the Order Paper and as it is closely connected with decimalisation, which, as you mentioned in your address, is the principal business for which we are here today, apart from that with which we have just dealt, a certificate of urgency has been signed in respect of it which I now beg to lay on the Table.

COLONIAL TREASURER: Your Excellency, we have import duties on a number of items, matches, spirits, wines, beer and tobacco, and export duties on whale and seal oil and whale and seal products, the latter two applying principally to South Georgia. At the present moment these are all calculated in what has been known as pounds, shillings and pence terms, and it is of course necessary as from next week to have a rate expressed in decimal currency.

Not all of these existing rates convert exactly. About 50 per cent of them convert exactly, others if converted to the equivalent sum would involve fractions of a penny. It is therefore the intention, as I shall read out shortly in the Resolution, that they be converted to the nearest $\frac{1}{2}$ new penny. I might add that some go up and some go down and there is no suggestion that the revenue is going to benefit to any significant scale although I believe a small sum of money, about £50 to £60, may accrue to the revenue. I beg to move that the following Resolution be adopted -

BE IT RESOLVED, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance, as follows -

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Decimalisation of Duties) Resolution 1971, and shall come into operation on the 15th day of February 1971.

2. Paragraph 2 of the Customs Order (hereinafter referred to as the principal Order) is amended as follows -

- (a) in Item 1 by deleting from the third column "10/-" and substituting therefor "50p";
- (b) In Item 2(a) by deleting from the third column "135/-" and substituting therefor "£6.75";
- (c) in Item 2(b) by deleting from the third column "5/5", "15/11", "11/9", "6/-", "7/10", "23/5", "17/1", and "8/9", and substituting therefor "27p", "79 $\frac{1}{2}$ p", "59p", "30p", "39p", "£1.17", "85 $\frac{1}{2}$ p", and "44p", respectively;
- (d) in Item 2(c) by deleting from the third column "2/2" and substituting therefor "11p"; and
- (e) in Item 3 by deleting from the third column "24/3", "14/6", "11/7", "25/-", "15/-", and "12/-", and substituting therefor "£1.21", "72 $\frac{1}{2}$ p", "58p", "£1.25", "75p", and 60p respectively.

3. Paragraph 3 of the principal Order is amended by deleting "2/6" and "sixpence" and substituting therefor "12 $\frac{1}{2}$ p" and "2 $\frac{1}{2}$ p" respectively. The references of course to pence are what we know as new pence.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Motion was carried.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

Decimal Currency Ordinance 1971

COLONIAL TREASURER: Your Excellency, much of what is required in the way of Legislation for decimalisation has been done by proclamation by Her Majesty, but there remain a number of things which are perhaps more local in their need which we must deal with by local legislation, and this Bill is designed to achieve that end.

The Bill provides for the conversion of balances; balances of bank accounts, balances of people's pay accounts, balances of local traders, and it provides that where these balances are to be converted to decimal currency they should be converted in such a way as not to leave a half-penny in the new balance. To achieve this end a schedule is attached to the Bill which gives the manner in which these conversions shall be made. It is obvious, of course, that in doing this some people might lose a half new penny and that others might gain a half new penny, but I doubt if anyone will get annoyed about that.

It also provides for the Governor in Council to convert to the new currency sums of money appearing in legislation where these sums of money do not convert exactly to the new currency; and the Governor in Council is authorised to declare that sums of money appearing in the existing currency shall be certain sums in the new currency in multiples of the new pence. Again it is likely that these rates may go up or may go down by a halfpenny, again nothing that people should get worked up about.

It also provides that where sums of money appearing in the existing legislation convert exactly to sums in the new currency they shall be converted without more ado, in other words, automatic conversion.

The Bill also provides that people who deal in cheques must make their cheques in such a manner that the sum of money to be transferred does not include new halfpence.

I beg to move the Bill be read a first time.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

The Colonial Treasurer, seconded by the Colonial Secretary, moved the second reading.

MR. MILLER: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this Bill is of course going to be passed fairly rapidly, there is no question of that because we are so closely tied with Great Britain anyway, especially in financial matters. But it seems to me, or rather I would say it has never been clear to me, (possibly Honourable Colonial Treasurer will be able to enlighten me shortly) as to the real reasons why Britain decided to adopt decimal currency. I know that it has something to do with the Common Market, but there is considerable doubt whether Britain is going to join the Common Market. The second point is that apart from its hallowed name, or what was a hallowed name, of sterling, it is unfortunate that they adopted the £ as the 100 point figure instead of 10/- as they did in Australia and New Zealand. It is far easier when you visit these countries to calculate in your own currency what things are worth when you start with a dollar being ten shillings. I know I had to pay an exorbitant price for a shirt, or so I thought, but it is very clear to me that it cost me £5 10s. 0d. because it said eleven dollars. But under this question of a decimal point and new pence you can't think exactly what you are paying. However, maybe the Honourable Colonial Secretary will enlighten me as to why we are doing it - apart from the fact that we have to follow Great Britain - when he speaks later. But this Bill will, of course, go through. We have no option.

The Bill was read a second time and having passed through its committee stage, was read a third time and passed.

Income Tax (Amendment) Ordinance 1971

COLONIAL TREASURER: Your Excellency, this is again decimalisation and the object of the Bill is to express in decimal terms the rates of income tax. With two exceptions it is possible to express in decimal terms the exact rates of tax as they are presently paid in £sd. The exceptions are the sum of 5/9 in the £ for incomes over £2,300 and the sum of 1/3 abatement that is available in certain respects to farms that claim what is called qualifying expenditure. In both cases these have been rounded off to the nearest full penny and again it is one of those things which we can hardly avoid in the changing over from old to new currency, and I beg to move the Bill be read a first time.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read accordingly. On further Motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time and, having passed through its committee stage without amendment, was read a third time and passed.

Supplementary Appropriation (1969/1970) Ordinance 1971

COLONIAL TREASURER: Your Excellency, during the course of the year 1969/70 the expenditure authorised for the various heads of expenditure by the Appropriation Bill were exceeded in six or seven cases. It is necessary now to pass this supplementary Bill, which is a formality, because all these sums of money have in fact been dealt with by the Standing Finance Committee and their findings, their report, has already been adopted. This Bill is a formality and I beg to move that it be read a first time.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill subsequently passed through all its stages and was carried.

Licensing (Amendment) Ordinance 1971

COLONIAL TREASURER: Your Excellency, this Bill seeks to make provision for a restaurant licence and by restaurant licence I mean that intoxicating liquor can be sold to people taking meals on licenced premises. The amendment to the existing legislation is to read as follows:

"Restaurant Licence: A restaurant licence shall authorise the holder to sell on the premises intoxicating liquor in any quantity to any person taking a meal in the restaurant to be consumed at such meal on any day, between the hours of 10.00 a.m. and 11.30 p.m." and "Notwithstanding anything in section 21 of this Ordinance, the holder of a restaurant licence may sue for and recover the value of any intoxicating liquor supplied under subsection (1) of this section" and the fee for a restaurant licence is to be £5.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill passed through all its stages and was carried.

Control of Kelp (Amendment) Ordinance 1971

COLONIAL SECRETARY: Your Excellency, I cannot claim that this is going to be a particularly interesting Bill because the objects and reasons state that this Bill remedies a misprint of "of" for "or" appearing in section 7(1) in the Control of Kelp Ordinance 1970. In fact, we are here solely to amend a printing error. The object of the original Bill which was passed in June of last year was to give Government power to deal with a potentially valuable economic asset, and to ensure good husbandry. Alginate Industries Limited had been consulted and were satisfied with it. Section 7 (1) is part of the section concerning husbandry and it says that in every licence there should be an implied condition that the licensee shall carry on all his harvesting operations in a safe, orderly, efficient and workmanlike manner and shall not cause danger or damage to persons lawfully using or being on or in the foreshore of the territorial waters of the colony, and this was where the error crept in, because in fact this should read "in the foreshore or the territorial waters of the colony". I said when I first stood up that this isn't a particularly interesting piece of legislation, but in fact, if we didn't cure this defect in the Bill it would have quite a limiting effect. There is a considerable difference between the words "in the foreshore or the territorial waters" and "in the foreshore of the territorial waters", so while it may appear we are not doing much we are in fact doing quite a lot to protect the rights of the people in this colony.

I wonder if, with your permission, because I think it probably comes within the ambit of Standing Rule 11(4), I might be allowed to digress slightly. Standing Rule 11(4) says that a Member must confine his observations to the subject under discussion, but I think at the moment anything to do with this Bill is of interest to the colony, and it may therefore be of interest to say that the company's pilot plant is now about to become operational. The company has been waiting to receive a missing piece of equipment, which I understand is called a viscometer, which was finally located and has been supplied from the United States, and the Colonial Manager tells me that work has started on the first sample of macrocystis, and this work is being directed initially to solving certain mechanical problems connected with milling macrocystis, which is apparently unusually gummy and is creating some problems. But this after all is what the pilot plant is for. And also some experiments are scheduled to take place with lessonia which is the other type of kelp, tree kelp, mentioned in the main Ordinance. The drying and milling of lessonia was not really originally contemplated; I understand it was not regarded as being a commercial proposition, but I believe there may be possibilities.

Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading.

The Colonial Treasurer seconded the Motion and the Bill passed through all its stages and was carried.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

COLONIAL SECRETARY: Your Excellency, before moving the adjournment I wonder, perhaps, as I failed to catch your eye at a crucial stage earlier today, I might answer a question put by Mr. Miller in so far as I can as Colonial Secretary. I suspect the Colonial Treasurer is better equipped to answer it than I am.

As I understand it, the main reason for Britain going decimal was not so much an intention or a hope of joining the Common Market as that the continued use commercially of a different currency was in fact hampering the growth of commerce and business. As regards the second question he put, as to why we are going decimal, it is indeed as he says. The Treasurer might possibly want to add something to this, I don't know. I am certain it would be exceptionally difficult for us here, if I took Honourable Member aright, to continue to operate in the old coinage while everybody else had gone decimal. I am sure that there are people here who would not for one moment wish to be in that position.

I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

The Colonial Treasurer seconded the Motion and the House adjourned accordingly.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Further to amend the Government Wharves Ordinance.

Title.

Date of commencement.

(1971)

Enacting clause.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Government Wharves (Amendment) Ordinance 1971, and shall come into operation on the day of 1971.

Repeal and replacement of section 4.
(Cap. 29)

2. Section 4 of the Government Wharves Ordinance (hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance) is repealed and replaced by the following — charges.

4. When any vessel of a measurement of not less than two tons, other than a vessel under mail contract with the Government, shall be placed alongside or made fast to a Government wharf for the purpose of discharging or taking in cargo or landing or embarking passengers or for any other purpose the owner or master of such vessel shall pay the wharfage charges specified in the Wharfage Regulations. Such wharfage shall be paid or secured to the satisfaction of the Harbour Master before such vessel is removed from such Government wharf. Any person or persons removing any vessel from any Government wharf without such wharfage being paid or secured as aforesaid shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £10.”

Amendment of section 7.

3. Section 7 of the principal Ordinance is amended by the insertion, after “alongside” of “or made fast to”.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill provides for the payment of wharfage not only by the owner or master of any vessel placed alongside a Government wharf but also by the owner or master of any vessel made fast to a Government wharf.

- (e) special dental services connected with root treatment, crowning and dentures when half the normal charge shall be levied subject, however, to the proviso that the full cost of any special compounds and precious metals shall be charged.

5. No charge for either medical or dental services shall be made in respect of injuries incurred by any member of the Falkland Islands Defence Force while on duty; provided that normal charges as provided for under these regulations shall be levied in any case in which the injuries are incurred as the result of the member's own misconduct.

Falkland Islands Defence Force.

6. Any person other than a Government servant who was employed by Government on the 1st December 1959, and who prior to that date had the same privileges in respect of charges for medical or dental services as Government servants, shall not be deprived of such privileges while their service with Government after the 1st December 1959, remains unbroken.

Government Employees employed by Government on 1st December 1959, to retain privileges.

CAMP MEDICAL AND DENTAL SERVICES

There shall be available to persons living in the Camp and employers of labour in the Camp certain exemptions from Medical and Dental fees provided the person and employer are subscribers.

The annual subscription shall be — for the person — single	£2

" " " — married	£4
for the employer —	£2 per 1,000 sheep depastured.

These subscriptions shall cover in the case of a married person, all members of his household except those gainfully employed on their own account and in the case of an employer, all employees.

The subscription shall be paid or renewed before 31st January in each year for the previous year.

The following benefits shall be available to subscribers —

1. MEDICAL FLIGHTS

- (a) Medical flights are made at the request of the Senior Medical Officer. Applications for medical flights should be sent to the Senior Medical Officer and not to the Air Service. All bookings received by the Air Service from farm managers or private individuals will be treated as private bookings and charged as such.
- (b) There is no charge against a patient proceeding to Stanley Hospital for the treatment or control of Tuberculosis, the full cost both ways being met from the Medical Department votes.
- (c) There is no charge against a patient for emergency cases to Stanley for Hospital treatment but 50% of the air fare is charged to the patient for the return flight. The inward flight and the balance of the return flight is charged to Medical Department votes.
- (d) Non-urgent medical cases travel both ways at assisted passage rates, i.e. 50% of the air fare payable by the patient and 50% by the Medical Department.

2. No charges shall be levied in respect of any of the medical or dental services provided for under these regulations with the exception of —

- (a) maternity fees;
- (b) in patient fees;
- (c) dentures;
- (d) the cost of any special compounds and precious metals used in dentistry.

3. Subscribers who have attained the age of sixty and who have made not less than twenty annual payments to the Camp Medical and Dental Service but who are no longer resident in the Camp shall for the purposes of these regulations be regarded as subscribers on continued payment of the annual subscription.

Transport for Medical and Dental Officers will normally be provided by Government, but where a Medical or Dental Officer is on a progressive tour farms are expected to assist by conveying the officer to the next farm. No charges are to be raised for this transport.

All farm facilities required by a visiting Medical or Dental Officer are to be provided free of charge by the farm.

Itinerant Dental Officers are personally responsible for any charges raised in respect of board and lodging.

MEDICAL TREATMENT OVERSEAS

The Senior Medical Officer is authorised to recommend to a patient who is normally resident in the Colony that he or she should proceed to Montevideo for specialist treatment, the cost of which shall be borne by the Falkland Islands Government.

The cost of such treatment shall be limited to —

- (a) passages at the basic rate in R.M.S. "Darwin";
- (b) landing expenses in Montevideo and taxi hire to the hospital;
- (c) charges raised by the hospital and doctors in Montevideo. The grade of accommodation in the hospital will generally be in the general wards, but this is a matter for the doctor in the hospital who will take into account the nature of the patient's illness;
- (d) where the patient is not an in patient in Montevideo, accommodation equivalent to the Government "B" class accommodation will be provided. Should a patient wish to occupy superior accommodation in Montevideo the entire cost of such accommodation will be for the patient's account in the first instance, subject to reimbursement by the Falkland Islands Government by an amount not exceeding that which would have been incurred had the patient occupied Government "B" class accommodation.

Any claim made under this section must be supported by receipted vouchers.

The question of whether or not a patient should be recommended to seek specialist advice or treatment abroad rests with the Senior Medical Officer, and patients seeking such advice or treatment without his recommendation are not entitled to any assistance from public funds.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on 12th February 1971, having been circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members,

We are in a difficult period and I do not intend this year in my Address to get too involved in detail but to concentrate on the overall economic picture.

We are a farming community and wool is our wealth. I know there are other forms of revenue but for the foreseeable future wool will remain our life's blood. The downward trend in wool prices in a basically mono crop economy is serious as it has an effect on every aspect of life in the Falklands. Professor Guillebaud in his Report issued in 1967 mentioned that the then expenditure level could be financed as long as wool commanded a price of 50 (old) pence per pound and that in any year in which it fell below this figure there would be a deficit. Since that time costs have gone up and to maintain our services at today's level would require a wool price in excess of 60 pence per pound. We all know the real position. Wool prices have reached what is probably the lowest point for half a century and this at a time when inflationary pressures in most of the developed countries have been intense with the result that the prices of imports have continued to pursue a steep climb upwards. In simple terms we are caught in the classic squeeze situation of falling prices for exports and rising prices for imports. It would not be so bad if we could see the position improving within the next year or so but as mentioned in the Davies Report the future of wool in world markets is far from exciting. Again I quote Guillebaud who emphasised that the prosperity of our Islands as a country, and therefore the standard of living of our people, depends chiefly on three main factors: the ability and enterprise of our farm managers; the numbers and quality of the employees on our farms; and the world price of wool. It is this last factor over which we have no control. Rising import prices push up the cost of living with the resultant demand for wage and salary increases.

What can be done? Obviously estimates of expenditure must be scrutinised much more closely than hitherto and this I am pleased to say Members of the Executive and Legislative Councils certainly did earlier this month when considering the draft estimates. Even more we must look at the broad patterns of our expenditure and see whether by concentration in certain cases we can achieve significant savings without loss of service. Our heavy expenditure heads are the usual ones of Transport, Medical and Education and to some extent we have to mark time on the first of these, Transport, until we have received the findings of the Peat, Marwick and Mitchell Report about which I will speak again later. In FIGAS we have a magnificent service comparable to any in the world doing a similar job and there may well be areas for using the flexibility of its service to rationalise our medical and educational organisation. These are matters which I know are of great concern to many people in the camp who before changes are made would like to be assured that any alternative arrangements are likely to be satisfactory. But we are faced with a position where it is necessary to take a hard fresh look at all established institutions so as to ensure that overheads are kept to a minimum: market forces will ensure that this is done on the farms and it is up to Government to ensure that it is done on the administrative side. Again we are becoming increasingly uncompetitive when trying to fill vacancies for such posts as Doctors, Dentists, Nurses and even Plumbers to mention only a few. The problem is quite simple, either we pay the present market going rate or the post remains unfilled. We are therefore faced with upping salary scales overall to the general market level or possibly accepting the Overseas Services Aid Scheme which provides inter alia for inducement additions to salaries paid to staff recruited in the U.K. or possibly a combination of both. But these are the sort of problems on which decisions will be necessary soon if we are to maintain our present level of services, let alone improve the existing ones. I hope the foregoing is not too depressing as in spite of it all we are not doing too badly. Under the skilled guidance of the Honourable Treasurer the deficits during the past two years have been kept to a reasonable level: he will no doubt be giving you detailed figures later in his speech but it is the downward trend which is worrying as we are steadily eating up our reserves. The time is coming therefore to consider whether some sort of budgetary assistance may be required within the next few years and with the agreement of the Executive Council I have let H.M.G. know the position. No doubt in the forthcoming months we shall be exchanging views on the subject.

May I now turn to relations with the Argentine and the talks on communications. I think you all know that H.M.G. and the Argentine in an attempt to improve relations by more contact agreed in the United Nations that discussions should take place with a view to seeing whether communications could be improved between the Islands and the Argentine. A first round of talks at official level took place at London in 1970 and I have tried to keep you informed about what transpired at the talks and subsequently. You will have had an opportunity to let your representatives have your comments and this is important so that they are in a position in meetings with myself and others to reflect your views. This is a complicated question and I would like you to keep the following points in mind:

1. As mentioned in my speech at the last meeting of LegCo H.M.G.'s stand on the sovereignty issue has been made abundantly clear in the statements in the House of Commons and elsewhere: these statements, clear and unequivocal, stand above any device such as a "freeze" or "umbrella" in connection with communications talks.
2. When you are having talks on such a subject as communications other matters having a bearing on the main topic will of course arise.
3. H.M.G. is insisting that any agreement with the Argentines on communications shall be conditional upon an arrangement such as the "sovereignty umbrella". Equally the Argentinians are maintaining the stand that an agreement on a "sovereignty umbrella" should be conditional on agreement upon communications.
4. H.M.G. sees the whole communications exercise as a way of defusing the sovereignty issue and helping the Islands without any concessions on sovereignty or their "Britishness".
5. In negotiations there is nothing to stop one of the parties making a number of offers but equally the other party is not bound to accept them all.
6. H.M.G. wishes to see a viable economy maintained in the Islands and this is becoming increasingly difficult through factors well known to you all (some of which I have mentioned earlier in my speech) and will become even more so unless there is an economic pattern of external communications. It is not a question of forcing a communications link on the Islands which people do not want but of trying to find the best way of maintaining our external connections.
7. As I mentioned in my recent release the talks have been purely exploratory and no decisions have been reached. And so it is we are talking and maintaining a civilised dialogue that may last for some time.

After all I have said, in case there is still some misunderstanding, I would like to make my position abundantly clear: I was not appointed Governor and Commander in Chief of these Islands with a view to assisting in disposing of part of the Queen's Realm.

The next round of talks is scheduled for the 20th June in B.A. and Mr. Scott, an Under Secretary in the F.C.O. accompanied by two colleagues, is coming to the Islands in June to spend a week with us so that they can hear at first hand from Members of the Executive and Legislative Councils your views on the talks. If as we hope some progress is made at the B.A. round a further series of talks (as agreed at the London meeting) will probably be held in Stanley towards the end of this year. While here I hope that Mr. Scott and his party will have a chance, weather permitting, to have a look at both East and West Falklands. Mr. Scott apparently is a keen ornithologist and has particularly asked if he can see something of the magnificent bird life which our Islands have to offer.

Mr. Scott is an official and not a politician. He will, as one of the senior officers keeping an eye on our affairs in the F.C.O., have talks with ExCo and myself on a whole range of subjects including that of our present budgetary position, important to us at the moment.

Now let me turn to the Radio Newsreel Broadcast which many of you heard on Saturday night. The B.B.C. does not necessarily reflect the views of the British Government (I have been at the receiving end of too many outraged complaints about the B.B.C. from all over the world not to have forgotten this important point). I think the programme on Saturday night illustrates the difficulty that Newscasters and Commentators have in striking a right balance when trying to cover a complicated subject in a few minutes. In this particular case the correspondent concentrated on the dispute and then mentioned that a majority was in favour. In favour of what? Talks with the Argentine? Communications with the Argentine? and so one may go on with further questions. The point is that at the moment we are not being asked to vote on anything. In due course if our representatives can find common ground with the Argentine Government and the framework of an agreement, then will be the time to consider whether the terms are acceptable to the majority of the people.

And naturally one of the main subjects will be the Peat, Marwick and Mitchell recommendations on the future pattern of our communications both external and internal. So far I have not received their recommendations so, like you, I have to guess as to whether the team has come down in favour of an airfield with a link to the mainland or a shipping service. What we can expect to receive is a carefully costed set of options and then I am afraid the decisions will have to be made by us. Also decisions will have to be taken on measures to cover the gap between the planned withdrawal of the "Darwin" and the introduction of a new pattern of communications.

As far as our internal communications are concerned I would like to take this opportunity to mention that no decision has yet been taken about the future of the m.v. Forrest as quite obviously this is one of the factors in the equation on which we are awaiting advice from our Consultants.

So this is a time for us to keep all our options open as far as communications are concerned. The Report may come down, on strictly economic grounds, for the continuation of a sea service to the mainland. It may, applying the same stringent standards, come down in favour of an airfield with a link to the mainland either to Chile, the Argentine or, less likely in view of the distances involved, to Uruguay: in any case if there is a regular air link to the mainland this presumably will have to be backed up by the possibility of alternative routes. When I suggest that we must keep an open mind I do so for many reasons, one of which is that we are living in times of change and that there is no guarantee that what served us well for the past 50 years is going to serve us equally well into the 80's and 90's. We may well find that market conditions and the economics of a particular route have a major influence on which way we go.

Switching from sea to land again, we did earlier in the year receive a few copies of the Davies Report on the Sheep and Cattle Industries of the Falkland Islands: this was followed up by the visit of Messrs Thorne and Mackenzie of the Overseas Development Administration. These are early days of the consideration of quite a massive report but we have already alerted O.D.A. that we would be prepared to accept the services of an Agro Economist to investigate the best ways in which possible Development Aid could be utilised. I must however add a caution. With the best will in the world, with falling wool prices this is a difficult time to ask farmers to increase their capital investment in pasture or in fact any other improvement.

On the development side plans are going ahead for the construction of a new power station in Stanley and the re-modelling of the Stanley School after the fire is in progress. One development which may in time have a beneficial effect on the Islands economy is the experimental work being carried out by Alginate Industries. Some of you may have seen the pilot plant in operation in Stanley and I understand that the results so far have proved reasonably encouraging.

I would like to cover during the closing minutes one or two subjects which are of importance to the Islands. The first of these is Defence. It is good having the Marine detachment and the Hovercraft Unit stationed with us in Stanley and I would like to take this opportunity of congratulating them for the way they have made a point of travelling round the camps and meeting the people. I have been impressed by the efficiency of the Falkland Islands Defence Force and I think it is a pity that attendance at their summer camp was so poor. Next year as far as Government is concerned I intend to give a lead (which I expect to be followed by private employers) so that employees can be released for this important training period and I intend to go out and see something of their field work on the spot myself. Also I welcome the part being played by the B.A.S. and E.S.R.O. staff in the social and community life of the Islands.

And now I am going to make a personal plea. It seems ironic that one should have to raise the question of the environment in such a beautiful area free from pollution. However, in Stanley, attractive as the town is, the amount of rubbish and discarded vehicles lying around the place is an eyesore. Every playing field seems to be covered with one of the greatest curses of modern living, the empty tin can or the non-returnable container. Let us see if we can do something to clear up the mess. We have made a start with some of the old junk but the main start should be made in the schools and in the homes so that the young people do understand the benefits of keeping the place clean.

And finally, the future? it is difficult to predict but I am reasonably confident. Economic conditions in the U.S.A. and in Europe have improved and interest rates are now a little easier so that given even a modest upturn in the demand for wool we should be able to cope. We may have to adapt, adjust and accept change but this is no bad thing in a fast moving world from which I am afraid we cannot be insulated. Someone said to me the other day that they would like to continue to live as their forebears did. This is a longing which at times we must all have but it is difficult to achieve. What we can do is to draw strength from the pioneering work and the foresight of those that have gone before.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY:

1. Mr. Pitaluga asked the Colonial Secretary if in view of the revival of public interest in the Swimming Pool and its Fund, and the obvious desirability of such an amenity, consideration could be given to appointing two or more Trustees to manage the Fund and pursue the objects for which it was opened.

The Colonial Secretary: Certainly, Sir. This development is welcome to the Government and, if I may say so, to me personally.

Mr. Pitaluga: Your Excellency, I must thank the Honourable Colonial Secretary for his very satisfactory reply. Before making a brief comment, I should like to make my apologies to you and Honourable Members for my late arrival this morning, but weather conditions being what they are I couldn't have made it in from Salvador any earlier.

The Colonial Secretary's answer to my question was very satisfactory, and if it will assist him I shall be glad to put forward the names of one or two people who I think might be able to assist. Thank you.

The Colonial Secretary: I shall be glad to accept that.

2. Mr. Pitaluga enquired whether Government was satisfied that the Hydatid Eradication Programme was operating satisfactorily and that the control measures required by law were being adequately met in all areas.

The Colonial Secretary: I have no specific evidence to the contrary. However, particular complaints based on evidence can be investigated.

Mr. Pitaluga: My thanks again to the Colonial Secretary. It has been my impression that industry and the public are not being sufficiently reminded of the Hydatid Campaign and its purpose, with the result that relaxations may be creeping in particularly with regard to the disposal of offal and the safeguarding from dogs of those sheep carcasses remaining from the mass slaughterings. It is my hope that Government will take steps to keep the campaign fully active and not let it be overlaid by our other problems.

Mr. Miller: Your Excellency, could I say something here as Chairman of the Hydatids Committee. I would like to say that as far as I know the Hydatid Campaign is proceeding satisfactorily. In my fairly extensive travels round the camp, I have observed that it appears well looked after in this respect. I have not been everywhere but I think that on the whole it is satisfactory; it is of course very difficult to police these matters.

The Colonial Secretary: If I may say so I am delighted to have a Supplementary answered by another Member.

3. Mr. Pitaluga asked what progress has been made on the recommendations of the Thorogood Report on Camp Radio and Telephone improvement.

The Colonial Secretary: Sir, the report in question was a technical one which indicated that there might be a number of feasible solutions to the problem; but precise costings were not given. It seems likely that any project arising from the Thorogood Report will require considerable sums, consequently a provisional request has been made to the Overseas Development Administration, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, for the provision, under British Technical Assistance, of a two-man team to advise on ways and means of improving our telecommunications and our sound broadcast system.

Mr. Pitaluga: My reason for asking this question is that I rather expected these two experts to turn up sometime during 1970, but apparently the matter hasn't gone as smoothly at the other end as we would have liked and they are not here yet. I hope it will not be too long before we see their arrival because I feel that this problem should be dealt with as soon as can be arranged.

MOTION

A Motion for the adoption of the Standing Finance Committee Report for the period December 1970 to April 1971, was put by the Colonial Treasurer. The Motion was seconded by the Colonial Secretary and carried.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

THE GOVERNMENT WHARVES (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE 1971

The Colonial Treasurer: Your Excellency, this is a small revenue raising measure. The Government Wharves Ordinance in its present form requires owners of vessels to pay wharfage provided, in the words of the Ordinance - "that the vessel is placed alongside a Government wharf". Because of their draft, larger vessels cannot always get alongside the wharves. Nevertheless, they put lines ashore and make use of the facilities in much the same way as smaller vessels which can berth alongside. The particular amendment which is proposed in this Bill is that the words "or made fast to" shall be added to section 4 of the Ordinance so that wharfage will in future be paid by a ship whether it is placed alongside or only made fast to a Government wharf.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

/This

This was seconded by the Colonial Secretary. After a further Motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time and Council went into Committee.

The Colonial Treasurer: I beg to move that Clause 1 stands part of the Bill subject to the addition of "1st" and "July" to complete the date of commencement quoted therein, which would mean that the section will read "This Ordinance may be cited as the Government Wharves (Amendment) Ordinance 1971 and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1971."

This was agreed, and the Bill was then taken through all its stages.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE APPROPRIATION (1971/72) ORDINANCE 1971

The Colonial Treasurer: Your Excellency, may I spend a minute or two reviewing the outlook for the current year. Council will recall that a year ago a surplus of £13,000 was forecast on the Ordinary Revenue and Expenditure Account, being the result of a revenue expected to total £489,000 and estimated expenditure of £476,000. These figures have been reviewed during the past few months and there seems every likelihood that revenue will now amount to £522,000 and expenditure will be held at £494,000. The surplus produced by these figures is £28,000. A feature of the financial picture of the year has been the incidence of applications for additional provision for reasons of rising prices abroad. These applications have not been for large sums but the trend is decidedly noticeable and we would be well advised to take note of it for the indications are that it will continue.

To be able to forecast a surplus this time last year was a pleasure, and to report that the surplus is likely to be greater than expected is doubly so; but let us not get too excited about it for there are some sobering facts to come. Taking into account the anticipated surplus of £28,000, reserves in support of the ordinary revenue at 1st July 1971 are expected to total £143,000, subject to fluctuations in the market value of investments which, happily, seem to be modestly upwards.

Expenditure under the Development section has followed the programme set out in the approved estimates, and additional items include housing loans totalling £5,000 and preliminary work on repairing and modernising the Senior School following the fire damage sustained last winter. The balance of the Development Fund at 1st July is expected to be £148,000.

Setting aside for the moment the purposes for which our reserve funds were intended it is estimated that at 1st July 1971 the Colony will have a total of £300,000 in the several funds and accounts.

Ordinary expenditure during 1971/72 is estimated to total £483,000 or £11,000 less than the revised total for the current year. By departmental heads the greatest allocation of money is to Education with £69,000, followed by the Public Works Department with £66,000 and the Medical Department with £61,000. This latter figure is £8,000 more than the allocation for the current year which is accounted for by the fact that the contracts of almost the entire professional staff all end in the coming year and provision is made for leave salaries and gratuities. The withdrawal of R.M.S. "Darwin" at the end of the year will not immediately cease payments under the Shipping Subsidy contract, and a sum of £24,000 is provided in anticipation of a claim of this amount when the operating results of Darwin Shipping Limited for 1971 are known. No provision for a Mail Contract beyond 31 December 1971 or any other subsidy is provided in these estimates. All in all, however, some satisfaction can be had from the expectation that total ordinary expenditure in 1971/72 may be less than the revised estimate for the current year in spite of the pressures that exist.

Ordinary Revenue for the period is estimated to total £431,000 which is £92,000 less than the revised estimate for the current year. This means that there will be a deficit of £52,000, or, put another way, that our reserves will be reduced by £52,000.

The budget provides for no new taxation measures. There is provision for an increase in the price of electricity in anticipation of a substantial increase in the price of oil from £13 per ton to £23. Details will be announced shortly of revised fees for medical services and subscriptions and for the boarding charges at Darwin School. The fees for wharfage will also go up. There is no pretence that any of these are designed as remedies for the budgetary situation: they are intended as measures to make some contribution towards the increasing costs of the services provided.

The fall in revenue of almost £100,000 from the revised 1970/71 figure is due to the lower price at which sheep farms were able to sell the 1969/70 clip, to the absence of a stamp issue next year and to a lesser amount being available for transfer from the Savings Bank. Nevertheless, a sum of £90,000 is expected to come from the Bank and it does not require a particularly vivid imagination to appreciate the situation in a year when the Bank could not contribute sums of this magnitude, or none at all: and either situation should be expected sooner or later.

The early wool sales in 1971 may not be sufficient evidence on which to base the final result: but if they do not improve the industry will not be profitable this year and the small revenue from company taxation expected in 1971/72 will be reduced to almost nothing in 1972/73. Added to the decreasing value that our one crop economy can command we have the increased cost of all things that we need to import. Increased import prices means increased cost of living. Increased cost of living means either wage and salary awards or a decline in the standard of living.

There is no provision in these estimates for tax increases but careful attention - I don't mean snipping off £100 here and there - is being given to ways in which a really useful contribution to easing the budgetary situation by reducing expenditure without seriously curtailing the services provided is being given. It is noted with satisfaction that more people now favour a harder look at expenditure, particularly under the big three - Education, Medical and Public Works - than was previously the case, and economy measures are now finding support that six, four and even two years ago were opposed with vigour. Our affairs would certainly benefit from action motivated by foresight, not dire necessity.

In the Development section of the Estimates the programme to be met from Colony funds is estimated to cost £17,000. Of this sum £6,000 is recoverable being the amount set aside for loans should there be applications. There is provision for completing the Senior School and for a replacement float for the Beaver aircraft. Token provision is inserted for setting up a greater reserve of aviation fuel following the recent crisis.

A grant has been approved by the United Kingdom Government for a Scrambler Unit for the Overseas Telephone Unit Service which should ensure privacy for users of this service.

Information is still awaited of the conditions of the loan of £100,000 from the United Kingdom Government for the remaining expenditure on the Power Station. It is expected that this work will be completed in the forthcoming year.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

/This

This was seconded by the Colonial Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. On a Motion put by the Colonial Treasurer and seconded by the Colonial Secretary, the Bill was read a second time.

The Colonial Secretary: I beg to move that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House.

This was seconded by the Colonial Treasurer and carried. The President accordingly appointed the Colonial Secretary, the Colonial Treasurer, and all Unofficial Members to be Members of the Select Committee and adjourned the meeting.

Council resumed at 4.00 p.m.

Present: The President and all Members

THE APPROPRIATION (1971/72) ORDINANCE 1971 (Contd.)

The Colonial Treasurer reported that the Select Committee had met as directed and there were no amendments to the draft Estimates as printed.

The President declared Council to be in Committee and the Bill was taken through its committee stage without amendment.

Council then resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

Major Goss: Your Excellency, in rising to second the Motion for Adjournment I would like, firstly, to thank you for your address to Council this morning and for the assurances which it contained. People here, having studied the recent release of all matters concerning the Communications Talks, have written to me sensible letters containing some of their worries and fears about any possible closer link with the Argentine. One of the main points they have stressed both in letters and in discussion is their Britishness and their earnest desire that their councillors should at all times protect the rights and privileges of the people of these Islands as British subjects.

I can assure you Sir, that they have raised this matter in all sincerity and I am sure that your assurances and reassurances as contained in your address will do much towards clearing the air on this all important point. We are above all a very British community.

Secondly, I should like to refer to the matter of Adrian Porter's references to the Falklands and communications with the Argentine as broadcast from the BBC in Radio Newsreel on Saturday the 15th May. His remarks still remain a source of irritation to me and I am sure to many others throughout these Islands. Reference to the Argentine taking the first step to what would amount to effective control of these Islands is, to say the least in my view a sweeping statement. It also states that reports of the offers have now been leaked - leaked from where? A British passport will not be acceptable. Who, to date, is in a position to make that statement? The report goes on, as everyone knows, in similar vein, and the evening report ends to the effect that the Islanders are reported to have accepted the offers favourably. The afternoon report contained a further interesting paragraph that was removed from that which was broadcast in the evening. I wonder why it was cut. Let me say here and now Sir, that we are all well aware of the fact that nothing has been accepted in any way as far as the people of these Islands are concerned and I sincerely hope that you, Sir, can somehow or in some way persuade the BBC that they should make an announcement to this effect. If this cannot be done at least I have mentioned the matter for the record and I was also concerned in sending a telegram to the British Press only yesterday afternoon containing our denial of any acceptance.

Sir, I beg to second the Motion for the Adjournment.

Mr. Miller: Your Excellency, there is not much for me to say after the Honourable Major Goss except that I would once again like to emphasise that paragraph in your speech this morning about sovereignty and I would like to read it again, also for the record. "As mentioned"- I am quoting your speech Sir - "at the last meeting of Legislative Council H.M.G.'s stand on the sovereignty issue has been made abundantly clear in statements in the House of Commons and elsewhere: these statements, clear and unequivocal, stand above any device such as a 'freeze' or 'umbrella' in connection with communications talks."

If people listening to your speech when it is broadcast hear that, I do hope that they will mark it, digest it and really take it in. Nobody in your Council, Sir, and we are all Falkland Islanders, have the slightest intention of risking our birthright and I think I made that abundantly clear in my tour of the West Falkland. I found that when I left, or when I considered my notes of the different farms where I spoke, people accepted that and appeared to be happy about it. They may have been a little upset when they heard the broadcast from the BBC on Saturday, but having heard the message in your speech, those who can think at all must realise that it was inaccurate reporting. Your Excellency has, however, made it completely clear that nobody is agreeing to anything, and this Council is not going to agree to anything until we find there are no strings attached to any proposition and everybody on this Council knows what it is all about. I think that is all I need to say, but I would just like the ordinary citizen to digest your remark about sovereignty.

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, I had intended to speak somewhat on the lines of the Honourable Mr. Miller but he has taken half of my speech out of my mouth. However, I would like, in the same way as he has, to plagiarise slightly on what you said this morning and make a brief statement which I hope all my colleagues will endorse. Like you we, the Members of your Council, were not elected, or appointed, in order to assist in disposing of part of the Queen's realm and territories.

The President: Thank you very much for these speeches, Honourable Members; and I would just like to say, following what I said this morning, that I am proud to be here as Governor and your Commander-in-Chief at this period. I realise that it is a testing time for all of us and I hope together, myself, Council and people here, that we can come to some agreement and arrangement regarding our communications, - it is a wide open question at the moment, that will be for the betterment of the people and of our children that are coming along. Thank you very much.

The Motion is that the House stands adjourned sine die.

The Motion was passed and the House adjourned accordingly.

A Bill for An Ordinance

To amend the Matrimonial Proceedings
(Court of Summary Jurisdiction) Ordinance 1967. Title.

(19) Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Matrimonial Proceedings (Court of Summary Jurisdiction) (Amendment) Ordinance 1971, and shall come into operation on the day of 1971. Short title and commencement.

2. Subsection (1) of section 4 of the Matrimonial Proceedings (Court of Summary Jurisdiction) Ordinance 1967, is amended — Amendment of section 4.
(10 of 1967)

- (a) in paragraphs (b) and (c) by deleting "not exceeding £7.50"; and
- (b) in paragraph (g) by deleting "payments by way of a weekly sum not exceeding in the case of payments by either one of the parties in respect of any one child the sum of £2.50" and substituting therefor "weekly payments".

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill removes the limits of £2.50 and £7.50 imposed upon the weekly rate of payments for the maintenance of a child, and for the maintenance of a party to a marriage, which may be required by a court of summary jurisdiction and leaves the court free to make whatever order it considers reasonable.

The Treasury,
 Stanley,
 3rd January, 1972.

L. GLEADELL,
Colonial Treasurer.

Report on the working of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the year 1970/71.

To The Honourable
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands,
14th December 1971.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund for the period 1st July 1970 to 30th June 1971, together with the following accounts and statements —

1. Statement of Revenue and Expenditure.
2. Investments Adjustment Account.
3. Statement showing the growth of the Fund during the year.
4. Statement of Assets and Liabilities at 30th June 1971.
5. Statements of Investments held at 30th June 1971.

2. Revenue for the year amounted to £41,167 of which the principal sources were the sale of stamps £21,380, interest on investments £12,357 and the contribution from the Falkland Islands Government towards the cost of higher pensions to pensioners who did not pay contributions at the current rate. Expenditure totalled £18,448 of which £15,535 was accounted for in the form of pensions, and £2,475 in refunds to contributors leaving the Colony permanently. The surplus was £22,719.

3. With the extension of the investment policy into the equity market trading in this field has become a regular rather than an incidental feature of the fund. A net profit of £11,267 was the result of the years trading, and investments held at 30th June 1971 showed appreciation amounting to £32,574 when revalued at the mid-market quotations of that day.

4. At 30th June 1970 the fund stood at £221,749. At 30th June 1971 the balance was £288,309, the increase of £66,560 being accounted for thus —

Surplus on the Revenue Expenditure Account	£ 22,719
Net profit from trading in investments	11,267
Appreciation of investments when revalued at 30th June 1971	32,574
	£ 66,560

5. At 30th June 1971 the balance of the fund was held in investments having a market value of £281,010 and cash to the value of £7,299.

6. During the year twelve claims to pensions were allowed: none were disallowed. One pensioner died. At 30th June 1971 there were ninety-two persons in receipt of a pension of whom thirty-seven were married men, twenty-five unmarried men and thirty were women.

7. Seventy new contributors registered during the year, fifty-one men and nineteen women. Contributions were refunded to sixty-five contributors who left the Colony and to six female contributors who married.

8. No new legislation affecting the Ordinance was enacted during the year.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

5. Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
6. Statement of Investments.

2. Revenue during the year totalled £83,042 and came solely from interest on investments. After providing for Expenditure in the form of interest on deposits £28,566 and the Administration Charge of £2,000, there was a surplus of £52,476.

3. Deposits during the year totalled £394,394; withdrawals amounted to £428,959. Taking into account the £28,566 credited to accounts in the form of interest the net fall in the level of deposits was £5,999.

4. At 30th June 1971 there were 1,970 depositors compared with 1,978 a year earlier. The total amount due to depositors on 30th June 1971 was £1,183,257 compared with £1,189,255 a year earlier.

5. During the year a sum of £118,912 was transferred to Falkland Islands Government Revenue under the authority of Section 13 (2) of the Savings Bank Ordinance. This sum represents the margin by which the assets of the Savings Bank at 30th June 1970, exceeded 110% of the amount due to depositors on that date.

6. Revaluation of investments according to market prices quoted on 30th June 1971 showed a further recovery amounting to £67,458. A net profit of £22,055 resulted from trading in securities during the year.

7. At 30th June 1971 the assets of the bank totalled £1,444,172 or £260,915 more than the amount due to depositors. This reserve is £142,590 more than the 10% required by Section 13 (2) of the Savings Bank Ordinance and authority has been obtained for a further transfer to Falkland Islands Government revenue.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

Report on the working of the Note Security Fund for the year 1970/71.

The Honourable,
The Colonial Secretary,
Stanley.

Colonial Treasury,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
14th December 1971.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit a report on the Currency Note Security Fund for the year that ended on 30th June 1971, together with the following accounts and statements —

1. Currency Note Income Account.
2. Note Security Fund Account.
3. Note Security Fund Statement of Assets and Liabilities.
4. Statement of Investments.

2. During the year notes having a 50 pence value were introduced as part of the Colony's decimalisation exercise.

3. There was an increase of £2,800 in the face value of notes in circulation since the same date in 1970. At 30th June 1971 the total note issue was £90,500 made up as follows :

Series	Denomination	No.	Value £
"C"	£5	14,038	70,190.00
"C"	£1	711	711.00
"D"	£1	1,867	1,867.00
"E"	£1	13,245	13,245.00
"C"	10/-	6,109	3,054.50
"D"	50p	2,865	1,432.50

4. Interest on investments amounted to £5,670 and the cost of obtaining the 50p notes was £564. The surplus income was transferred to the Note Security Fund (£1,051) in accordance with Section 7 (5) (b) of the Currency Notes Ordinance and to Colony revenue (£4,053) in accordance with Section 7 (b).

5. At 30th June 1971 there was a surplus of assets over liabilities of £15,717, liabilities being represented by the note issue of £90,500, and an amount of £8,033 to be returned to the general Colony cash balance held by the Treasurer. The reserve is £6,667 more than is required by Section 7 (6) (b) of the Currency Notes Ordinance.

I have the honour to be

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. GLEADELL,

Colonial Treasurer.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Title.

To legalise certain payments made in the year 1970/71 in excess of the Expenditure sanctioned by Ordinance No. 6 of 1970.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make further provision for the service of the Colony for the period 1st July 1970 to 30th June 1971.

Enacting clause.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands as follows —

Short title.

1. This Ordinance may be cited for all purposes as the Supplementary Appropriation (1970/71) Ordinance, 1972.

Appropriation of excess expenditure for the period 1st July 1970 to 30th June 1971.

2. The sums of money set forth in the Schedule hereto having been expended for the services herein mentioned beyond the amounts granted for those services by the Ordinance providing for the service for the period 1st July 1970 to 30th June 1971, the same are hereby declared to have been duly laid out and expended for the service of the Colony in that period, and are hereby approved, allowed and granted in addition to the sum mentioned for those services in the said Ordinance.

Schedule.

BY THE QUEEN
 A PROCLAMATION

DIRECTING THAT CERTAIN COINS OF THE OLD CURRENCY SHALL BE TREATED IN THE FALKLAND ISLANDS, THE DEPENDENCIES OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS AND THE BRITISH ANTARCTIC TERRITORY AS COINS OF THE NEW CURRENCY.

ELIZABETH R.

Whereas, by virtue of Proclamations issued under the Coinage Acts 1870 to 1946, and the Decimal Currency Acts 1967 to 1969, certain parts of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 and of the Decimal Currency Act 1969 are in force in the Falkland Islands, the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and the British Antarctic Territory:

We, therefore, in pursuance of section 11 of the Coinage Act 1870 as extended by section 15 (5) of the Decimal Currency Act 1969 and of all other powers enabling Us in that behalf, do hereby, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, proclaim, direct and ordain as follows —

1. Cupro-nickel or silver coins issued by Our Mint before the fifteenth day of February One thousand nine hundred and seventy-one in accordance with the Coinage Acts 1870 to 1946, being coins of the denominations of the crown, the double-florin, the florin, the shilling, and the sixpence, shall, after the coming into force of this Proclamation, be treated within the Falkland Islands, the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and the British Antarctic Territory as coins of the new currency made by Our Mint in accordance with section 2 of the Decimal Currency Act 1967 and as being of the denominations respectively of twenty-five, twenty, ten, five, and two and a half new pence.

2. This Proclamation shall be published in the Official Gazette of the Falkland Islands and shall come into force in the Falkland Islands, the Dependencies of the Falkland Islands and the British Antarctic Territory on the date of such publication.

Given at Our Court at Buckingham Palace, this 22nd day of December in the year of our Lord One thousand nine hundred and seventy-one and in the twentieth year of Our Reign.

No. 12 of 1971.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by subsection (1) of section 3 of the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance 1959, the Governor in Council has made the following Order —

Citation.

1. This Order may be cited as the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) (the Netherlands) Order 1971.

Extension of Part I.

2. The provisions of Part I of the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance 1959 shall extend to the Netherlands.

Declaration of superior courts.

3. The following courts shall be deemed to be superior courts of the Netherlands for the purposes of Part I of the Ordinance, that is to say —

- (a) the Hoge Raad der Nederlanden;
- (b) the gerechtshoven; and
- (c) the arrondissementsrechtbanken.

Made by the Governor in Council this 21st day of December 1971.

ORDER

(Under section 2(1) of the Act)

No. 13 of 1971.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 2(1) of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 and the Fugitive Offenders (Falkland Islands and Dependencies) Order 1968, the Governor with the approval of the Secretary of State has made the following Order —

1967 c. 68.
S.I. 1968/113.

1. This Order may be cited as the Fugitive Offenders (Designated Commonwealth Countries) (No. 4) Order 1971 and shall come into operation on 1st January 1972.

2. Nauru is hereby designated for the purposes of section 1 of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967.

By Command,

J. A. JONES,
Colonial Secretary.

31st December 1971.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

Section 2(1) of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 enables any country within the Commonwealth to be designated by Order for the purposes of Section 1 of the Act (so that the provisions of the Act relating to the return of offenders to the independent Commonwealth countries and not those relating to United Kingdom dependencies will apply). This Order designates Nauru for those purposes.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on 17th
May 1971, having been circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Distinguished Member of the Consular Corps, Ladies and Gentlemen,

May I, at the outset, welcome the new Members of the Council: I look forward to working with them in furthering the progress and prosperity of the Colony. Also, I would like to pay tribute to the work done by the retiring Members of the Council, all of whom made an important contribution to the deliberations of the past few years.

It is now just a year since I arrived in the Falklands so it is an appropriate time to review what has been done and to look ahead and to see where we are going. On the constitutional side there has been for the past few years the experiment with the One Council system - that is to say holding joint meetings of the Legislative Council and the Executive Council. This is not a new concept and in some colonies this form of Government works reasonably well - the handling of Government business is quite often speeded up and it does enable the Governor to draw regularly on the advice of all the Members of Councils. However, the major disadvantage of the system is that to some extent debate in the Legislative Council is inclined to be stereotyped because so much has already been discussed and decided in meetings of the Joint Council. For this and other reasons I have decided that in future the new Legislature will operate as originally envisaged in the Constitution, i.e. a separate Legislative Council and an Executive Council. Of course no constitution is perfect and much depends on how much Members are prepared to contribute. At times this does mean some sacrifice but this is the penalty of being in public life. Also debates in the Council are no substitute for elected Members regularly meeting their constituents and explaining how certain decisions have been reached. From time to time Members must be prepared to stand up at public meetings and explain current policies. It is not good enough to say that all proceedings of Executive Council are confidential and that nothing can be said outside the Council Chamber; of course some matters, at least initially, may be confidential but the great mass of subjects discussed in Council are not and there is no reason why the public should not be kept informed. By means of press releases, radio talks and the use of the media generally we have tried to keep you in the picture but I repeat that this is no substitute for the close rapport that should exist between Members and their constituents. This is particularly important in the Falklands where, in the absence of a press rumours of all types have a tendency to flourish - we cannot stop this harmless sport but it can be kept within bounds by the steady flow of factual information.

May I add while still on the subject of the constitution, that there seems to be a misunderstanding about the conduct of Government business in Executive Council. In the Council there is no question of deciding issues by counting heads but as in the case of Cabinet business one tries to draw out all the advice and information available on the subject under discussion so that the right decision is reached. Also I have not noticed any difference in the attitude of elected or nominated independent members in deciding how a particular problem should be tackled and certainly both classes of members express their feelings and opinions equally freely. This is not the place for me to dwell on the conventions of the conduct of Cabinet business but basically this is how we try to operate in Executive Council. Finally, before leaving the question of the constitution I would like to give an assurance that any anomalies (and there are some) in the law governing the holding of general elections in the Colony will be removed by the time of the next election.

May I turn now to external affairs, and in particular to our relations with the Argentine. On the agreements reached in B.A. in June much has been said and written and I do not intend to repeat it all. However, I would like to say that the agreements do reflect a degree of political maturity that is rare in these days and that we should not under-estimate what has been achieved. I would like to pay tribute to the work done by our negotiating team including the members from the Islands for the way in which they handled the talks. Of course the acid test is going to be how these agreements work out in practice. We can only proceed step by step and see how things go: always prepared to talk but not to compromise on our basic position. And now we have to live by and adjust to the changing pattern of our communications network. So far the agreements have worked well and we can expect the first regular amphibian flight in a couple of days thus introducing the fortnightly service and there are many other areas in which the provisions of the agreement have been implemented - not quite as spectacular perhaps as the air link but in important fields such as medical, postal, tele-communications and education. We expect that a third round of talks will take place in Stanley in March when it will be possible to review progress generally, to iron out any problems that have arisen and to plan for the future.

Air communications figure prominently in the list of priorities. Firstly in regard to the main airfield at Cape Pembroke you will understand why it was not possible for the British Army with its commitments to undertake this task but we have had working since November a survey team from the firm of consulting engineers, Messrs Rendel, Palmer and Tritton, and this team, under the energetic leadership of Mr Warren, should complete its fieldwork tomorrow and leave by the amphibian on the 12th. This survey team will have compiled sufficient data to enable its main report to be written and for the detailed plans and specifications to be prepared leading to the issue of tender documents.

So that while prospects in the medium and long term look good we are faced with some problems in the immediate months ahead. It is clear that we under-estimated the problems involved in the introduction of the amphibian service: some of these problems I would like to touch on briefly. The Grumman Albatross was originally designed for air/sea rescue work for use by the U.S. Navy and Coastguard and although it is a first-rate plane for its primary task its payload to and from the coast is not great. By the time we have put on first-class mail there may, depending on weather conditions, only be space for 4 to 5 passengers some of whom may be priority medical cases. Also in the weather conditions prevailing quite often in Stanley Harbour, take-off, even jet assisted, can be hazardous. The advent of an air service, even a temporary one, generates new traffic so that already there is a pent-up demand for seats on the amphibian and this at a time when the "A.E.S." is fully booked up on its runs to and from the coast. The foregoing are some of the practical reasons why the idea of a temporary airfield was first aired in the hope that the demand on the amphibian would be reduced while increasing the capacity and the comfort available to the travelling public. When our Air Attache in B.A. was in Stanley with the technical team from the Argentine Air Force it was thought that possibly a temporary strip could be put in at Hooker's Point good enough with aluminium strip matting to take the two-engined turbo-prop Guarani aircraft operated by LADE as part of their services in Patagonia. It was appreciated on both sides that if such a strip was to be constructed a subsidiary agreement would be required between the Governments concerned and the details of such an agreement are at present being discussed at diplomatic level. We have made it clear that such an agreement should protect our sovereign rights, provide that most of the construction party from the Argentine should be civilian, make provision for the use of some Falkland Islands labour and also provide that the aluminium strip etc. is removed once the main field is constructed. We feel that it is reasonable for the Argentines to be responsible for ensuring that the technical specifications of the strip are up to the standard required to receive the Guarani aircraft. A further study of the technical problems involved will be carried out by a small team from the Argentine which I have just heard during the past few days will be arriving on the 12th. Subject to the foregoing (particularly the conclusion of a subsidiary agreement) H.M.G. is of the opinion that the building of the temporary strip would be advantageous to the Colony during the period leading up to the construction of the main airfield.

On the subject of communications, I would like to emphasise that we must look at the overall problem, air and sea both internal and external, bearing in mind amongst other factors the recommendations of the Peat, Marwick and Mitchell report and our changed external link.

As I see it our communications will develop as follows. Passenger movements to the mainland will be by air for the most part as this has been found to be the cheapest way of moving people. When the "A.E.S." is replaced by possibly a faster and larger vessel, passenger accommodation if any will probably be limited. Internally after the departure of the "Darwin", we must have a ship capable of picking up the wool clip, supplying the camp with a satisfactory sea link for freight plus FIGAS for moving passengers. This means that a ship larger than the m.v. "Forrest" is required for the internal task and the proposals discussed with the Chairman of the Falkland Islands Company appear to me to offer a sound basis on which to operate. Basically we must run any replacement vessel commercially if it is going to be efficient and there is a great deal to be said for the Company, Government and the private farmers working together in a company limited by guarantee to control the operation of the ship. This is a question which has hung fire too long and I hope will receive the urgent attention of the incoming Executive Council. And while on the subject of internal communications I would like to mention that we must bear in mind the question of re-equipping FIGAS within the next few years as our sturdy and rugged Beavers will not fly for ever: the cost of replacements will no doubt be heavy. It is my view that the internal air service forms an integral part of life in the Falklands and it is difficult to envisage how people, particularly those in camp, could get along without it. Also by its very nature it is difficult to run this air service on strictly commercial lines and it is therefore an area where it is reasonable for a part of its running costs to be borne by Government as a social service element. One final point on communications - when the regular air service is in operation it is important that the full advantages are enjoyed by the people in camp as well as those in Stanley - if this means more flights internally so that airmail is delivered to and from the stations, so be it.

On the economic front the position looks more hopeful; the price of wool appears to have bottomed out and we can only hope that at least the upward trend in price will be maintained. Our negotiations with Alginate Industries have been protracted but this is not surprising considering the complexity of the details of the agreement and of the difficulties of negotiating at a distance. However, these negotiations should be concluded within a short time and although nothing spectacular will emerge immediately we can look forward in the years to come to a steady increase in production and of course revenue.

The general strength of sterling and of the London Stock Exchange has had a beneficial effect on the value of our investments and once again by the judicious transfer of the appreciation of our reserves and of the savings bank investments we should be able to balance the budget.

At this juncture I would like to turn to a question that has aroused some controversy and not a little heat in discussions around the town during the elections and that is the question of the Overseas Aid Scheme and whether we should adopt its provisions including the granting of inducement allowances. I would like to make it clear that this scheme was brought in by H.M.G. as part of her Aid Scheme to Developing Countries particularly during the difficult periods when they did not have sufficient trained staff to fill all the vacancies mainly in the professional fields. The scheme is designed to attract citizens of the U.K. to serve abroad at a time when qualified people are in short supply. Under the scheme H.M.G. inter alia pays the passages of the officer and his family, makes provision for educational allowances and grants an inducement allowance to assist in covering the cost of uprooting the family from the U.K. with which he was continuing links to maintain. I would like to make it crystal clear - H.M.G. pays the inducement allowances to those people from the U.K. whom she has encouraged to serve abroad. No country is forced to accept OSAS but it is a help when competing in the very restricted market that exists in the U.K. at the present time for professional people such as doctors, nurses, dentists, teachers, etc. not to mention engineers, plumbers and the like. If we as the Government are prepared to turn down this scheme well and good, but it means that from our own resources we will have to pay the market rate or the post will remain unfilled. It is as simple as that despite the fact that the choice may be hard. The adoption of the scheme would be no reflection on the quality or work of the local staff but, as I repeat, simply a method, device, call it what you may, for making it attractive for qualified people in the U.K. to serve abroad. I can think of an analogy in the commercial world. If an Englishman employed in London, for example, by Lloyds Bank of Europe, is transferred to Paris to do a similar job, he expects to receive and does receive allowances to enable him to live in Paris and to enable him to continue to keep up his commitments at home in the U.K. - the Frenchmen in Paris working alongside him does not regard this as discriminatory as he knows that if he is removed to London he will be treated in the same way. And I would like to take this opportunity of paying tribute to the work done by Members of our local Civil Service. I know it is easy to "knock" members of the Civil Service - it is a favourite sport all over the world - but the machinery of Government has to be kept going and the services provided which the public has a right to expect. This is not easy in a small colony such as ours where of necessity the service looks large when compared with the size of the population. There is no room for complacency, let alone in Government, but when members of the Service are doing a good job it should be recognised. In any case it is time that our salary structure generally was looked at afresh and there will be a Salaries Commissioner coming out to the Colony probably next month.

On a personal note I would like to say a word or two of appreciation for the long and distinguished work contributed to the Colony by the Honourable Leslie Gleadell. I think if I recall correctly he started work in the Secretariat in 1937 and during the last decade he has guided our financial affairs. I am certain that all in the Colony will join me in wishing Leslie and his family every success in their new home, New Zealand.

And just in case this is the last meeting of the Council before the Honourable Colonial Secretary leaves the Falklands, I would, on behalf of us all, like to thank him for the work he has done for the Islands during the past three years. We wish him and Mrs. Jones every success in any new assignment that they may undertake.

We can look forward to continuing aid from the U.K. in the form of technical assistance and, apart from the work being done by Rendel, Palmer and Tritton on the main airfield, the following arrived in the Colony on Saturday:

- (a) Mr Griggs, a visiting expert from the BBC who will be looking into the aspects of broadcasting resulting from the Thorogood Report;
- (b) Mr Theophilus, an Agri-economist whose task will be to establish the areas where investment would be profitable in agriculture;
- and (c) Mr Casserly, a Water Engineer who will be looking at the Stanley water supply.

With improved communications I hope that we can call on more help of this type and in particular I think the time has come for the whole pattern of our educational set up to be looked at by an expert.

I have spoken for a long time but I think it has been necessary as despite all the information being put out one hears complaints continually that the public do not know what is going on - well, now you have it. As for the future I am still optimistic and with the impetus that we can expect from an improved pattern of communications I am certain that progress can be maintained and that as in the past we can continue to stand on our own feet financially and economically.

QUESTION FOR ORAL REPLY

Mr Pitaluga asked if Government was aware that approximately three-quarters of a mile of the road from the Two Sisters Gate towards Stanley is now virtually impassable, even for Landrovers, and would it give immediate and urgent consideration to having this section repaired.

The Colonial Secretary: Yes, Sir, Government is aware that the stretch of the track in question is in a poor state, no doubt in considerable measure due to the poor summer we have been experiencing in the Stanley area.

Consideration will be given to the possibility of effecting repairs. The Hon. Member will appreciate that it will be a question of priorities and of cost. A preliminary estimate suggests that costs, for anything but purely temporary and so probably a wasteful repair is likely to be considerable.

I am prepared to give an undertaking that the item will figure on the agenda of the Standing Finance Committee.

Mr Pitaluga: Your Excellency, Hon. Members, I would like to thank the Hon. Colonial Secretary for his reply to my question and his promise to give consideration to the possibility of effecting repairs. With your permission I will just briefly clarify one or two points. The particular stretch to which I referred is not three-quarters but slightly under the half-mile. I checked this on my return to camp last week. However, there are other parts of that road towards the other end which are almost as bad, being almost permanently under deep water most of the year. This road has deteriorated over a period of six to seven years and for most of that time vehicles have been leaving the road and crossing some dreadful camp to avoid possible damage.

MOTIONS

Reconstitution of Standing Committee on Education

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, before actually moving the Motions I should like to say very briefly that these Committees, particularly the Education Committee and the Development Committee, have in the past done excellent work and I should like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to the work of the Chairman and Members of those Committees in the previous legislature. Meanwhile I have pleasure in moving the motions for the reconstitution of these Committees, in this case the Education Committee. Sir, I beg to move that the Standing Committee of Council, known as the Education Committee, be reconstituted in accordance with Rule 40A(1) of Standing Rules and Orders.

The Hon. R. M. Pitaluga seconded, the question was put and the Motion was carried.

Standing Committee on Education : Membership

The Colonial Secretary moved that the following Hon. Members of Council be appointed to the Standing Committee on Education:

The Hon. S. Miller (Chairman)
The Hon. R. M. Pitaluga
The Hon. A. B. Monk
The Hon. W. E. Bowles
The Hon. W. R. Luxton

and that the quorum shall be two.

The Hon. R. M. Pitaluga seconded, the question was put and the resolution was carried.

Reconstitution of Standing Committee on Development

The Colonial Secretary moved that the Standing Committee of Council, known as the Development Committee, be reconstituted in accordance with Rule 40A (1) of the Standing Rules and Orders.

The Honourable S. Miller seconded, the question was put and the resolution was carried.

Standing Committee on Development: Membership

The Colonial Secretary moved that the following Hon. Members of Council be appointed to the Development Committee:

The Hon. L.G. Blake (Chairman)
The Hon. R.H. Pitaluga
The Hon. W.E. Bowles
The Hon. W.R. Luxton

and that the quorum shall be one half of the total membership.

The Hon. S. Miller seconded, the question was put and the resolution was carried.

Reconstitution of Standing Committee on Public Accounts

The Colonial Secretary moved that the Standing Committee of Council, known as the Public Accounts Committee, be reconstituted in accordance with Rule 40A (1) of the Standing Rules and Orders.

The Hon. Colonial Treasurer seconded, the question was put and the resolution was carried.

Standing Committee on Public Accounts: Membership

The Colonial Secretary moved that the following Hon. Members of Council be appointed to the Public Accounts Committee:

The Hon. S. Miller (Chairman)
The Hon. R.M. Pitaluga
The Hon. L.G. Blake
The Hon. W.E. Bowles

and that the quorum shall be one half of the total membership.

The Hon. Colonial Treasurer seconded, the question was put and the resolution was carried.

Standing Committee on Finance: Report for the period
May to September 1971

A Motion for the adoption of the Standing Finance Committee Report for the period May to September 1971, was put by the Colonial Treasurer. The Motion was seconded by the Colonial Secretary and carried.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

The Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

The Motion was seconded by the Colonial Treasurer and His Excellency asked if any Member wished to speak to the Motion.

The Colonial Secretary: I should like, with your permission, to make a few remarks both of a welcoming and of a valedictory nature.

It is pleasant to be able to welcome Members of a new legislature. We fall into categories, two by two, though I hasten to add that no comparison is intended with the Ark! Two Members of the last legislature, whom I warmly welcome back; two Members of former legislatures whom it is a pleasure to welcome as Elected Members; and two entirely new Members to whom also I extend a warm welcome. Your Excellency having publicly stated that we revert to the Two-Council system, I am sure that Members will make the most of their opportunity in future to provide lively but also informed and constructive debate.

Alas, the other two - the two officials, the Hon. Colonial Treasurer and myself, will not be here to participate. And I should like to take the opportunity which this Motion gives of extending thanks and appreciation to the Hon. L.C. Gleadell for the sterling work he has performed for the colony over the years, and to wish him a happy retirement. I am sure all our good wishes go with him and his family.

For myself, I could have wished to have seen the airfield - that longed for airfield - built and in operation before laying down my burden here. This is not to be. But that there is at least an air service is a great source of satisfaction to me. And that the colony, though it has problems - life would be deadly dull if there were no problems - has been able to reach a satisfactory modus vivendi with its continental neighbour, an arrangement which has brought benefits, as it was anticipated that it would, of freer communications, is also a source of satisfaction. In this, and in other areas, my successor - for, yes, to use the same phrase as my predecessor, "you are to be lumbered with another one" - another Colonial Secretary; my successor will find a great deal of hard work awaiting him but it is my hope that he will find that he can build on a firmly laid foundation.

In my successor's, and in all your endeavours - Members, you, Sir, all the inhabitants of this colony - I wish you well.

The Hon. S. Miller: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to rise as an old Member and thank the Honourable Colonial Secretary for his remarks and would also like to support his remarks about the retiring Colonial Treasurer who is to leave us shortly. Naturally we have not always seen eye to eye with Mr. Gleadell but I am quite aware of his integrity and his startling capabilities for being right and I would like to wish him well wherever he goes.

The Hon. Colonial Treasurer: I would like to thank you, Sir, for the kind words you said this morning in your address, the Colonial Secretary who also said kind things of me, and my Honourable friend on my right here. If I may make one small correction to what you said - I started for this Government in 1936, 19th March at 2.00 p.m. There were 26 applicants. I think it was the salary which attracted them - £3 a month!

I do not know yet when we leave the Islands, movement is not so easy but I hope it will be some time next month when we go to New Zealand. May I, at this stage, thank everybody for the help they have given me over these many years and may I commend Mr. Harold Rowlands and wish him best success and happiness in the future.

H.E. the Governor: I would like to add that your departure is a loss to the Falkland Islands but I am delighted that New Zealand is getting the gain. I am certain that you will settle down well there.

The Hon. W.E. Bowles: On behalf of the two new Members at this table I would like to thank you very much for the warm welcome we have received. I have sat at this table many times before at Town Council meetings and I trust the times we have here will be just as pleasant as those on Town Council.

H.E. the Governor: Just before we adjourn Honourable Members, I understand that one or two Members have been interested about when the next Meeting of the Legislative Council might be. I am afraid I cannot give a definite answer yet. On present plans I am scheduled to go down to the Antarctic in the middle of February with the idea that on the way back I divert into Ushuaia on the Endurance and pick up our delegation which is coming here for the Talks in March, that is supposing the Talks take place. But if the Talks are on quite definitely - if they are on, I should know within the next week or two - it may mean that we have a combined meeting of the Legislative and Executive Councils to consider how we play this meeting, directives, and constitution of our team for the Talks. The Motion is that the house stands adjourned sine die.

The Motion was passed and the House adjourned accordingly.

FUGITIVE CRIMINAL

The Extradition (Tokyo Convention) Order 1971

Made - - - - - 22nd December 1971

Laid before Parliament 31st December 1971

Coming into Operation 21st January 1972

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 22nd day of December 1971

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Whereas Article 16.1 of the Convention on Offences and certain other Acts Committed on board Aircraft (hereinafter referred to as the "Tokyo Convention") signed at Tokyo on 14th September 1963 and which entered into force for the United Kingdom on 4th December 1969 provides as follows —

"Offences committed on aircraft registered in a Contracting State shall be treated, for the purpose of extradition, as if they had been committed not only in the place in which they have occurred but also in the territory of the State of registration of the aircraft":

And whereas by section 2 (1) of the Tokyo Convention Act 1967 (a) it is provided that, for the purposes of the application of the Extradition Act 1870 (b) to crimes committed on board an aircraft in flight, any aircraft registered in a country in which the Tokyo Convention is for the time being in force shall at any time while that aircraft is in flight be deemed to be within the jurisdiction of that country, whether or not it is for the time being also within the jurisdiction of any other country:

And whereas the States mentioned in Schedule 1 to this Order are States with which extradition arrangements are in force and in respect of which the Tokyo Convention is for the time being in force:

Now, therefore, Her Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred upon Her by sections 2 and 17 of the Extradition Act 1870 and section 2 (2) of the Tokyo Convention Act 1967, or otherwise in Her Majesty vested, is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

1. This Order may be cited as the Extradition (Tokyo Convention) Order 1971 and shall come into operation on 21st January 1972.

2. The Interpretation Act 1889(c) shall apply for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. The Extradition Acts 1870 to 1935 as amended by section 2 of the Tokyo Convention Act 1967 shall apply in the case of the States mentioned in Schedule 1 to this Order under and in accordance with the extradition treaties described in the second column of that Schedule as supplemented by Article 16.1 of the Tokyo Convention, which entered into force as between those States and the United Kingdom on the dates specified in the third column of that Schedule.

(a) 1967 c. 52. (b) 1870 c. 52. (c) 1889 c. 63.

4. The operation of this Order is limited to the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man and the territories mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order, being territories to which the application of the Tokyo Convention is extended.

W. G. Agnew.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held on 10th January 1972, having been circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Padre Helyer, ladies and gentlemen,

I am not making a formal speech this morning as I do not want to anticipate the content of my Budget address which will be made within the next month or so. However, as Members will be aware, one of the purposes of this meeting is to consider one or two short Bills, including one arising from the signing of the Buenos Aires Agreement on the First of July 1971. In this connection, Members might like to know that the Agreement for the building of the temporary airfield at Hooker's Point is likely to be signed by Her Majesty's Government and the Government of the Argentine later this week and we can expect that the first ship, or ships, bringing in equipment to help in the construction of the airfield will arrive during the first week in May.

Apart from these items I am pleased that, in addition, some Members have tabled questions on matters which I consider to be of public interest - some of the questions have just been submitted to me while I was having breakfast and I hope that the replies will be as adequate and of equal interest as the questions themselves.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

1. Mr. Fitaluga asked if Government was aware of the possibility of a ready and lucrative market in South America for dried but unprocessed kelp and whether it would take action to explore this possibility before concluding any binding agreement with Alginate Industries Ltd.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: Government is aware of the possibilities of markets for dried kelp not only in South America but in other countries. However, the market is a specialised one and in our negotiations with Alginate Industries Ltd Government has been aiming for a contract which will build up into a growing and consistent demand for our product while also providing for a degree of local processing.

Before Government signs a contract with Alginate Industries Ltd it will want to be assured that development of our kelp industry will in fact take place within a reasonable time and at a rate which bears some relationship to the supplies of kelp available.

A further check will be made on the market possibilities in South America.

Mr. Fitaluga: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, on thanking the Acting Colonial Secretary for his reply to my question I will just mention that I was anxious to stress to Government the undesirability of permitting a one-company monopoly of our kelp beds thus preventing any development of other markets - using our own resources; for example, a possible harvesting, drying and baling of kelp during the winter months which may prove to be a viable proposition.

I am confident that Government's enquiries in South America will prove encouraging and should this be so perhaps early consideration should then be given to issuing local harvesting and exportation licences.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: I think I can give the Honourable Members assurance that Government will have this in mind and these things will, in fact, be the subject of consideration.

The President: May I just add to that, Honourable Members. I did take another check on the current situation in Latin American countries. Telegrams came in a couple of days ago confirming that the market was limited, that it is not booming, or as profitable as we may have been led to think by recent visitors to these shores. Information will be laid before Executive Council Members in due course. I will let you see the telegrams.

2. Mr. Pitaluga asked if, in view of the greatly changed pattern and frequency of the Colony's overseas mail traffic, Government would make a statement on its present and future policy towards mail deliveries to, and collections from the Camp.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: As His Excellency mentioned in his last address to this Council, the benefits of our new pattern of external communications, providing as they do for a more speedy delivery of airmail, must be felt in the Camp as well as in Stanley. This means that our external delivery and collection services around the Camp will have to be improved and this again will mean more flights by FIGAS.

The present arrangements are that inward letter mail is delivered on routine flights and drops carried out at points which conveniently occur on the scheduled flights. In this manner the operation is carried out within three flying days.

With the advent of the twice monthly air service to the mainland of South America, mail pickups from the two points on the West Falkland have been discontinued.

During the course of the preparation of the budget, Government will be giving consideration to the question of how the extra cost of the FIGAS flights will be carried

Mr. Pitaluga: Your Excellency, Honourable Members. My thanks again to the Acting Colonial Secretary for his reply to my second question. The much improved mail deliveries are enjoyed and greatly appreciated by Camp residents, who will be glad to hear, as I am, that they will be normal practice with a further possibility of improvement.

3. Mr. Monk enquired whether, in view of the attempted take-over of the Falkland Islands Company Ltd by Messrs Levy and Davis and all that this implies, if they are successful, the Government would give an assurance that m.v. "Forrest" would on no account be offered for sale to anyone until these people had implemented the former F.I.C. Board's decision to provide a vessel for local use out here

The Acting Colonial Secretary: Yes. Government is glad to give an assurance that m.v. "Forrest" will not be offered for sale until such time as the vessel to be provided by the Falkland Islands Company for local use actually arrives in the Colony.

Mr. Monk: I would like to thank the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary for that reply and I would also like to say that there has been considerable anxiety among a lot of Camp people about the "Forrest", and that I think the reply will go quite a way to allaying that anxiety.

4. Mr. Monk said that if the attempted take-over of the Falkland Islands Co. Ltd. by Messrs Levy and Davis was successful, those people might want to realise all available assets. The only readily saleable assets of consequence out here were the stock. Would the Government bear in mind the very serious consequences that the sale of all F.I.C. stock overseas, to say, the Argentine Meat Producers Corporation would have on the Falkland Islands' economy, and if necessary introduce legislation to prevent this happening.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: It is too early as yet to know the full implications of the recent flurry of buying of the Falkland Islands Company's shares but Government have no evidence that the reorganised board of directors is thinking of trying to dispose of the company's livestock. Government is watching the position closely and if any action is required to protect the overall interests of the Colony this will be taken.

Mr. Monk: I would like to thank the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary for the reply. I think in view of our present knowledge it was adequate.

The President: In view of the importance of this topic perhaps I can just bring you up to date.

I am beginning almost to feel like a stockbroker - I have been in touch with London this morning. A telegram has just come in and the market price of the shares at the moment, four hundred and twenty five pence, has been see-sawing a little bit again. We are told it is 'speculative buying and a thin market', which is a cliché used when these sort of things happen. There is no change as far as the board is concerned. As you know Messrs Levy and Davis of Monitor Securities have been made members of the board, but my latest information is that the position is exactly the same as it used to be before Easter, except for a rise of fifteen pence which is marginal, and I do not think there is any great reason for concern at the moment.

Mr. Miller: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to add a rider to my Honourable friend's question on this matter of disposal of the Company's livestock. If it is at all possible to have legislation to control it, I feel that it is as well to hustle that legislation. We do not know what happens at board meeting behind closed doors in London. We do not want suddenly to find that stock has been disposed of by an agreement with some company or other when we have not got any controlling legislation. If it is possible to have this legislation, I feel that it is better to have it on the stocks and if any attempts are made like that we can say "No, you can't do that".

The President: The point taken Mr. Miller, but I do not think that we have reached the stage where we have to worry too much. At the moment there are still many members on the board of the company, who are known to you better than they are known to me, who still have continuing and great interest in this part of the world. All I can do is to keep in touch with my Office in London and with the company in 120 Pall Mall, and I have no doubt that if we have to take action to look out for ourselves we can do it.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: Honourable Members, in view of the urgency expressed by the Honourable Mr. Miller about this point, our legal adviser on my left has kindly dropped me across a note which, in fact, gives an assurance that the Governor may, even this day if he wishes to do so, prohibit the exportation of all livestock by proclamation under the provision of section 35 of the Customs Ordinance Cap. 16. So at least we have machinery which could cut this sort of thing off pretty smartly if such things happen and we have to do so.

Mr. Miller: Thank you for that reassurance.

5. Mr. Monk asked if the Government would indicate what precisely were the instructions to the Air Department, if any, regarding the delivery of airmail brought in by overseas aircraft to Camp stations with special reference to small stations which may not have very frequent landings by Beaver.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: The question posed by the Honourable A. B. Monk has, I hope, been covered in the reply given to the Honourable R. M. Pitaluga when he raised similar points in an earlier question.

Mr. Monk: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I quite agree with the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary that my question has been answered.

The President: I may say Honourable Members, I am very much aware of this need, we will have to have a look at it in considering the budget. I think there is a certain amount of reluctance, obviously, by the Air Service to be flying and dropping mail all over the place, when we have been putting pressure on them to run a more economical service. I think the subsidy support from the Post Office is not great enough; this is an accounting thing but I think we will have to have a look at that and make certain that as far as possible the full advantage of the improved overseas service is conveyed to people in the Camp. It may mean some rationalisation, some concentration, but that must be our aim.

6. Unofficial Members jointly asked, in view of the recent developments in Uruguay, which appears to be moving towards a state of civil war, will Government take immediate action through the British Embassy in Montevideo to ensure the continued safety of the Falkland Islands children at the British School and further to ensure that it is promptly informed by the Embassy if the situation deteriorates?

The Acting Colonial Secretary: Honourable Members, Government shares the Honourable Members' concern about reports coming in about developments in Uruguay and in particular in Montevideo. Members will be aware that the protection of British subjects in a time like this is always a prime consideration for the Embassy concerned, and the Governor will be informed immediately there is any deterioration in the situation. He is in touch with the Embassy and will keep Honourable Members and the public informed of developments.

The President: May I just add to this question which I am afraid was the one which arrived while I was having breakfast. I realise the concern on this matter but we do have very good communications - telegraphic and cipher communications - with Latin America and they know, and have standing instructions from me, to keep me informed if there is any trouble there affecting our people. We do not want to worry them because in times like this the Embassy is no doubt under tremendous pressure with telegrams and enquiries coming in from all over the world, and I am in touch. I am certain that if there is any development of significance I will be told immediately. The trouble with this sort of situation is, as you are no doubt all well aware, it happens quickly. Sometimes having been blown up in the press and on the radio, so that the actual situation may be far more settled and quiet, particularly where the children are, then we might think from the reports coming in.

I have had nothing in from Montevideo to suggest that there is any danger to our children there at the moment, but I will certainly keep you well informed. In fact, I have had more in from B.A. I think.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

THE MATRIMONIAL PROCEEDINGS (COURT OF SUMMARY JURISDICTION) ORDINANCE 1971.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, Honourable Members - Like much of our legislation, our Matrimonial Laws are framed on those of Great Britain, and, following the example of the English Matrimonial Proceedings Act of 1960, we imposed limits on the maintenance payments which our Courts can order to be made for the maintenance of a party to a marriage and the dependent children.

Under section 4 of our matrimonial legislation you will find that there is provision for the payment of a weekly sum not exceeding £7.50 to a party of the marriage and a maximum weekly payment of £2.50 for the maintenance of each child. These figures are in some cases considered unrealistic and in 1968 the limits were withdrawn from the English Act, thus leaving the Courts free to make orders for the payment of such weekly amounts as they considered reasonable having in mind all the circumstances relating to the case.

It is desirable that our own Court should likewise be freed from these limitations and brought into line with English practice.

The Bill before the House is a simple amending one and merely seeks to delete the two ceilings of £7.50 and £2.50.

If Honourable Members care to glance at clause 1, it will be seen that the date of commencement has been left blank, and since there are no matrimonial cases scheduled to come before the Court before 1st May, it is proposed to adopt this date, that is, 1st May 1972, as the formal date of commencement. I will make provision for this during the committee stage.

Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Motion was seconded by Mr. Pitaluga. The Bill was read a first time. After a further Motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time and Council went into committee.

The Acting Colonial Secretary: I beg to move that clause 1 stands part of the Bill subject to the following amendments, namely, the substitution of "1972" for "1971" in the short title, and the addition of "1st" and "May" to complete the date of commencement, thus the section will read, "This Ordinance may be cited as the Matrimonial Proceedings (Court of Summary Jurisdiction) (Amendment) Ordinance 1972, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of May 1972."

This was agreed, and the Bill was then taken through all its stages.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE CONTROL OF KELP (AMENDMENT) (NO. 2) ORDINANCE 1971

The Acting Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency, Honourable Members - Two years ago, when we enacted legislation to control the harvesting and exploitation of our kelp industry, we concerned ourselves with the two known types of kelp, that is, macrocystis and lessonia. Macrocystis being the small leafy type which one sees growing near the foreshore here in Stanley Harbour, and indeed around many of our harbours and ocean beaches. Lessonia is the heavier type commonly referred to as tree kelp, and is only found in the shallower waters of the more exposed beaches.

It has now been established that a third variety, identified as durvillea, exists around our shores, and this type resembles in some ways the tree kelp, but is far less stalky and grows in even shallower waters. The chemical yield from durvillea is far greater than that extracted from lessonia and up to ten per cent greater than that obtainable from macrocystis (and if anyone thinks I have suddenly become an authority on the processing of kelp, I would add that I spent half an hour or so with Mr. Gooch of Alginate Industries Ltd before this meeting).

Alginatc Industries Limited are investigating the kelp areas with a view to establishing whether this new type exists in sufficient quantities to justify commercial exploitation.

Obviously we will need to up-date our legislation to take into account the existence of the new variety, which is not described in the parent ordinance, and the purpose of this Bill is to do just that. The action required is very simple and involves merely the deletion of the original section which defines the word "kelp" and re-wording the section to include durvillea.

I notice that in the short title of the Bill the Ordinance is referred to as "The Control of Kelp (Amendment) (No. 2) Ordinance, 1971. This, of course, would have been correct had we carried out the exercise as originally intended during 1971, but since we are now in 1972 we will need to amend the short title to read "The Control of Kelp (Amendment) Ordinance 1972". However, again the proper place to do this is during the committee stage and it now remains for me formally to move the first reading.

Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

Mr. Monk seconded and the Bill moved on through the first and second reading. In the committee stage clause 1 was amended to read "This Ordinance may be cited as the Control of Kelp (Amendment) Ordinance 1972".

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1970/71) ORDINANCE 1972

The Colonial Treasurer: Your Excellency - This Bill seeks to legalise expenditure incurred in respect of the 1970/71 fiscal year in excess of that provided in the 1970/71 Appropriation Ordinance.

All items of excess expenditure have been dealt with in Standing Finance Committee.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

Mr. Bowles seconded and the Bill subsequently passed through all its stages and was carried.

THE INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE 1972

The Colonial Treasurer: Your Excellency - This amendment to the Income Tax Ordinance is required to implement the undertaking embodied in clause 3 of the Joint Statement made in Buenos Aires at the second round of talks between the British and Argentine governments, which provides that the salaries and emoluments of Argentine residents engaged in activities relating to communications should be free of Falkland Islands' tax.

The phrasing of the amendment to our Ordinance will ensure that the exemption is in accordance with the Joint Statement and applies only to Argentine employees from the mainland who are actually engaged in the communications work referred to in the Joint Statement.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

Mr. Miller seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

The Colonial Treasurer, seconded by Mr. Miller, moved the second reading.

The Bill was read a second time and, having passed through the committee stage without amendment, was then read a third time and passed.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

The Acting Colonial Secretary: Your Excellency -
I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

The Colonial Treasurer seconded the motion and the House adjourned accordingly.

CIVIL AVIATION

The Hijacking Act 1971 (Overseas Territories) Order 1971

Made - - - - - 27th October 1971

Coming into Operation 1st November 1971

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 27th day of October 1971

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Her Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred on Her by Subsection (2) of section 6 of the Hijacking Act 1971 (a), by section 17 of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 (b) as extended by subsection (1) of the said section 6, by the Foreign Jurisdiction Act 1890 (c) and of all other powers enabling Her in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

1. This Order may be cited as the Hijacking Act 1971 (Overseas Territories) Order 1971 and shall come into operation on 1st November 1971.

2. The Interpretation Act 1889 (d) shall apply, with the necessary adaptations, for the purpose of interpreting this Order and otherwise in relation thereto as it applies for the purpose of interpreting, and in relation to, Acts of Parliament.

3. (1) Sections 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 of the Hijacking Act 1971, modified and adapted as in Schedule 1 hereto, shall extend to the Territories specified in Schedule 2 hereto.

(2) For the purpose of construing the said Act as so extended as part of the law of any Territory to which it extends "the Territory" means that Territory, including its territorial waters, and "any Territory" means any of the Territories to which this Act extends, including its territorial waters.

4. The amendments specified in Schedule 3 hereto shall be made to the Pacific (Fugitive Criminals Surrender) Order in Council 1914 (e).

W. G. Agnew.

SCHEDULE 1.

Article 3.

PROVISIONS OF THE HIJACKING ACT 1971 AS EXTENDED TO THE TERRITORIES SPECIFIED IN SCHEDULE 2.

Hijacking

1. (1) A person on board an aircraft in flight who unlawfully, by the use of force or by threats of any kind, seizes the aircraft or exercises control of it commits the offence of hijacking, whatever his nationality, whatever the State in which the aircraft is registered and whether the aircraft is in the Territory or elsewhere, but subject to subsection (2) of this section.

(2) If —

- (a) the aircraft is used in military, customs or police service; or
- (b) both the place of take-off and the place of landing are in the territory of the State in which the aircraft is registered; subsection (1) of this section shall not apply, unless —

- (i) the person seizing or exercising control of the aircraft is such a person as is mentioned in subsection (3) of this section; or
- (ii) his act is committed in the Territory; or

- (iii) the aircraft is registered in the United Kingdom or in any Territory or is used in the military or customs service of the United Kingdom or of any Territory or in the service of any police force in the United Kingdom or in any Territory.

(3) The persons referred to in subsection (2) (i) of this section are the following, namely, —

- (a) a citizen of the United Kingdom and Colonies;
- (b) a British subject by virtue of section 2 of the British Nationality Act 1948 (a);
- (c) a British subject without citizenship by virtue of section 13 or section 16 of that Act;
- (d) a British subject by virtue of the British Nationality Act 1965 (b); and
- (e) a British protected person within the meaning of the British Nationality Act 1948.

(4) A person who

- (a) commits the offence of hijacking; or
- (b) in the Territory induces or assists the commission elsewhere of an act which would be the offence of hijacking but for subsection (2) of this section; shall be liable on conviction to imprisonment for life.

(5) For the purposes of this section the period during which an aircraft is in flight shall be deemed to include any period from the moment when all its external doors are closed following embarkation until the moment when any such door is opened for disembarkation, and, in the case of a forced landing, any period until the competent authorities take over responsibility for the aircraft and for persons and property on board.

(6) For the purposes of this section the territorial waters of any State shall be treated as part of its territory.

Violence against passengers or crew

2. (1) Without prejudice to section 1 of the Tokyo Convention Act 1967 (c) (which makes similar provision for offences on board British-controlled aircraft) as extended to the Territory, where a person (of whatever nationality) does on board any aircraft (wherever registered) and while outside the Territory, any act which, if done in the Territory would constitute the offence of murder, attempted murder, manslaughter, culpable homicide or assault or an offence under section 18, 20, 21, 22, 23, 28, or 29 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 (d) or section 2 of the Explosives Substances Act 1883 (e), his act shall constitute that offence if it is done in connection with the offence of hijacking committed or attempted by him on board that aircraft.

(2) For the purposes only of this section the said sections of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 and of the Explosives Substances Act 1883, if not already in force in the Territory, shall be deemed to be in force in the Territory as they are in force in England.

Extradition

3. There shall be deemed to be included among the descriptions of offences set out in Schedule 1 to the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 as extended to the Territory any offence under this Act and any attempt to commit such an offence.

Aircraft operated by joint or international organisation

4. If the Secretary of State by order made by statutory instrument declares —

- (a) that any two or more States named in the order have established an organisation or agency which operates aircraft; and
- (b) that one of those States has been designated as exercising, for aircraft so operated, the powers of the State of registration, the State declared to have been designated as aforesaid shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be the State in which any aircraft so operated is registered; but in relation to such an aircraft section 1 (2) (b) of this Act shall have effect as if it referred to the territory of any one of the States named in the order.

Prosecution of Offences

5. (1) Proceedings for an offence under this Act shall not be instituted in the Territory, except by or with the consent of the Attorney-General of the Territory.

(a) 1948 c. 56. (b) 1965 c. 34. (c) 1967 c. 52. (d) 1861 c. 100. (e) 1883 c. 3.

(2) In section 3 of the Visiting Forces Act 1952 (a) (restriction of trial by United Kingdom courts) as extended to the Territory or any part thereof, the following shall be inserted after paragraph (b) of subsection (1) —

“or

(bb) the alleged offence is the offence of hijacking on board a military aircraft in the service of that force” and in subsection (4) for the words “paragraphs (b) and (c)” there shall be substituted the words “paragraphs (b) to (c)”.

(3) In this section, the expression “Attorney-General” includes the Solicitor-General, and if neither of such offices exists, the expression means that officer whose functions include the general control of public prosecutions.

Article 4.

AMENDMENTS TO THE PACIFIC (FUGITIVE CRIMINALS SURRENDER) ORDER IN COUNCIL 1914

1. There shall be deemed to be included in the list of offences in respect of which surrender may be granted contained in the First Schedule to the Pacific (Fugitive Criminals Surrender) Order in Council 1914 (hereinafter in this Schedule referred to as “the Order”) any offence under the Hijacking Act 1971 (hereinafter in this Schedule referred to as “the Act”) and (so far as not so included by virtue of the foregoing) any attempt to commit such an offence.

2. The Order shall be applied as if an Order in Council made under section 2 of the Extradition Act 1870 (b) as extended by section 3 (2) of the Act were such an arrangement as is referred to in Article 3 of the Order, but where the Order is so applied it shall have effect as if the only offences in respect of which surrender may be granted within the meaning of the Order were offences under the Act and attempts to commit such offences.

3. For the purposes of the Order any act, wherever committed, which

(a) is an offence under the Act or an attempt to commit such an offence or would be such an offence or attempt but for section 1 (2) of the Act; and

(b) is an offence against the law of any State in the case of which the Order has been directed to apply by notice under Article 3 thereof; shall be deemed to be an offence committed within the jurisdiction of that State.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

This Order extends the provisions of the Hijacking Act 1971, subject to exceptions, adaptations and modifications, to the territories specified in Schedule 2 thereto. It also modifies the Pacific (Fugitive Criminals Surrender) Order in Council 1914.

The purposes of the Act were to give effect to the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft signed at The Hague on 16th December 1970 (Cmnd. 4577); and for connected purposes.

FUGITIVE CRIMINAL

The Extradition (Hijacking) Order 1971

Made - - - - - 22nd December 1971
Laid before Parliament 31st December 1971
Coming into Operation 21st January 1972

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 22nd day of December 1971

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Whereas the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft (hereinafter referred to as "the Convention") signed at The Hague on 16th December 1970, the terms of which are set out in Schedule 1 to this Order, will enter into force for the United Kingdom on 21st January 1972:

And Whereas the States mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order are foreign States in respect of which the Convention is for the time being in force and with which extradition arrangements are in force:

And Whereas the States mentioned in Part I of Schedule 3 to this Order are foreign States in respect of which the Convention is for the time being in force but with which no extradition arrangements are in force:

And Whereas section 3 (2) of the Hijacking Act 1971 (a) provides that where no such arrangement as is mentioned in section 2 of the Extradition Act 1870 (b) has been made with a State which is a party to the Convention, an Order in Council applying that Act may be made under that section as if the Convention were such an arrangement with that State:

Now, therefore, Her Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred upon Her by sections 2 and 17 of the Extradition Act 1870 and sections 3 (2) and 6 (1) of the Hijacking Act, 1971, or otherwise in Her Majesty vested, is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

1. This Order may be cited as the Extradition (Hijacking) Order 1971 and shall come into operation on 21st January 1972.

2. (1) In this Order any references to the Extradition Acts and to the Act of 1870 are, respectively, references to the Extradition Acts 1870 to 1935 and to the Extradition Act 1870, as amended or extended by any subsequent enactment.

(2) The Interpretation Act 1889 (c) shall apply for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. The Extradition Acts shall apply in the case of a State mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order under and in accordance with the extradition treaties described in the second column of that Schedule as supplemented by paragraphs 1 and 4 of Article 8 of the Convention (set out in Schedule 1 to this Order), which entered into force for those States on the dates specified in the third column of the said Schedule 2.

4. The Extradition Acts shall apply in the case of the States mentioned in Part I of Schedule 3 to this Order (being States in respect of which the Convention entered into force on the dates specified in the second column of that Schedule) subject to the conditions contained in, and in accordance with, Part II of that Schedule.

(c) 1889 c. 63.

5. The operation of this Order is limited to the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man and the territories specified in Schedule 4 to this Order, being territories to which the application of the Convention is extended.

SCHEDULE 1

THE CONVENTION

CONVENTION FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF UNLAWFUL SEIZURE OF AIRCRAFT

PREAMBLE

THE STATES PARTIES TO THIS CONVENTION

CONSIDERING that unlawful acts of seizure or exercise of control of aircraft in flight jeopardize the safety of persons and property, seriously affect the operation of air services, and undermine the confidence of the peoples of the world in the safety of civil aviation;

CONSIDERING that the occurrence of such acts is a matter of grave concern;

CONSIDERING that, for the purpose of deterring such acts, there is an urgent need to provide appropriate measures for punishment of offenders;

HAVE AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

ARTICLE 1

Any person who on board an aircraft in flight:

- (a) unlawfully, by force or threat thereof, or by any other form of intimidation, seizes, or exercises control of, that aircraft, or attempts to perform any such act, or
- (b) is an accomplice of a person who performs or attempts to perform any such act commits an offence (hereinafter referred to as "the offence").

ARTICLE 2

Each Contracting State undertakes to make the offence punishable by severe penalties.

ARTICLE 3

1. For the purposes of this Convention, an aircraft is considered to be in flight at any time from the moment when all its external doors are closed following embarkation until the moment when any such door is opened for disembarkation. In the case of a forced landing, the flight shall be deemed to continue until the competent authorities take over the responsibility for the aircraft and for persons and property on board.

2. This Convention shall not apply to aircraft used in military, customs or police services.

3. This Convention shall apply only if the place of take-off or the place of actual landing of the aircraft on board which the offence is committed is situated outside the territory of the State of registration of that aircraft; it shall be immaterial whether the aircraft is engaged in an international or domestic flight.

4. In the cases mentioned in Article 5, this Convention shall not apply if the place of take-off and the place of actual landing of the aircraft on board which the offence is committed are situated within the territory of the same State where that State is one of those referred to in that Article.

5. Notwithstanding paragraphs 3 and 4 of this Article, Articles 6, 7, 8 and 10 shall apply whatever the place of take-off or the place of actual landing of the aircraft, if the offender or the alleged offender is found in the territory of a State other than the State of registration of that aircraft.

ARTICLE 4

1. Each Contracting State shall take such measures as may be necessary to establish its jurisdiction over the offence and any other act of violence against passengers or crew committed by the alleged offender in connection with the offence in the following cases —

- (a) when the offence is committed on board an aircraft registered in that State;

- (b) when the aircraft on board which the offence is committed lands in its territory with the alleged offender still on board;
- (c) when the offence is committed on board an aircraft leased without crew to a lessee who has his principal place of business or, if the lessee has no such place of business, his permanent residence, in that State.

2. Each Contracting State shall likewise take such measures as may be necessary to establish its jurisdiction over the offence in the case where the alleged offender is present in its territory and it does not extradite him pursuant to Article 8 to any of the States mentioned in paragraph 1 of this Article.

3. This Convention does not exclude any criminal jurisdiction exercised in accordance with national law.

ARTICLE 5

The Contracting States which establish joint air transport operating organizations or international operating agencies, which operate aircraft which are subject to joint or international registration shall, by appropriate means, designate for each aircraft the State among them which shall exercise the jurisdiction and have the attributes of the State of registration for the purpose of this Convention and shall give notice thereof to the International Civil Aviation Organization which shall communicate the notice to all States Parties to this Convention.

ARTICLE 6

1. Upon being satisfied that the circumstances so warrant, any Contracting State in the territory of which the offender or the alleged offender is present, shall take him into custody or take other measures to ensure his presence. The custody and other measures shall be as provided in the law of that State but may only be continued for such time as is necessary to enable any criminal or extradition proceedings to be instituted.

2. Such State shall immediately make a preliminary enquiry into the facts.

3. Any person in custody pursuant to paragraph 1 of this Article shall be assisted in communicating immediately with the nearest appropriate representative of the State of which he is a national.

4. When a State, pursuant to this Article, has taken a person into custody, it shall immediately notify the State of registration of the aircraft, the State mentioned in Article 4, paragraph 1 (c), the State of nationality of the detained person and, if it considers it advisable, any other interested States of the fact that such person is in custody and of the circumstances which warrant his detention. The State which makes the preliminary enquiry contemplated in paragraph 2 of this Article shall promptly report its findings to the said States and shall indicate whether it intends to exercise jurisdiction.

ARTICLE 7

The Contracting State in the territory of which the alleged offender is found shall, if it does not extradite him, be obliged, without exception whatsoever and whether or not the offence was committed in its territory, to submit the case to its competent authorities for the purpose of prosecution. Those authorities shall take their decision in the same manner as in the case of any ordinary offence of a serious nature under the law of that State.

ARTICLE 8

1. The offence shall be deemed to be included as an extraditable offence in any extradition treaty existing between Contracting States. Contracting States undertake to include the offence as an extraditable offence in every extradition treaty to be concluded between them.

2. If a Contracting State which makes extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty receives a request for extradition from another Contracting State with which it has no extradition treaty, it may at its option consider this Convention as the legal basis for extradition in respect of the offence. Extradition shall be subject to the other conditions provided by the law of the requested State.

3. Contracting States which do not make extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty shall recognize the offence as an extraditable offence between themselves subject to the conditions provided by the law of the requested State.

4. The offence shall be treated, for the purpose of extradition between Contracting States, as if it had been committed not only in the place in which it occurred but also in the territories of the States required to establish their jurisdiction in accordance with Article 4, paragraph 1.

ARTICLE 9

1. When any of the acts mentioned in Article 1 (a) has occurred or is about to occur, Contracting States shall take all appropriate measures to restore control of the aircraft to its lawful commander or to preserve his control of the aircraft.
2. In the cases contemplated by the preceding paragraph, any Contracting State in which the aircraft or its passengers or crew are present shall facilitate the continuation of the journey of the passengers and crew as soon as practicable, and shall without delay return the aircraft and its cargo to the persons lawfully entitled to possession.

ARTICLE 10

1. Contracting States shall afford one another the greatest measure of assistance in connection with criminal proceedings brought in respect of the offence and other acts mentioned in Article 4. The law of the State requested shall apply in all cases.
2. The provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article shall not affect obligations under any other treaty, bilateral or multilateral, which governs or will govern, in whole or in part, mutual assistance in criminal matters.

ARTICLE 11

Each Contracting State shall in accordance with its national law report to the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organisation as promptly as possible any relevant information in its possession concerning:

- (a) the circumstances of the offence;
- (b) the action taken pursuant to Article 9;
- (c) the measures taken in relation to the offender or the alleged offender, and, in particular, the results of any extradition proceedings or other legal proceedings.

ARTICLE 12

1. Any dispute between two or more Contracting States concerning the interpretation or application of this Convention which cannot be settled through negotiation, shall, at the request of one of them, be submitted to arbitration. If within six months from the date of the request for arbitration the Parties are unable to agree on the organisation of the arbitration, any one of those Parties may refer the dispute to the International Court of Justice by request in conformity with the Statute of the Court.
2. Each State may at the time of signature or ratification of this Convention or accession thereto, declare that it does not consider itself bound by the preceding paragraph. The other Contracting States shall not be bound by the preceding paragraph with respect to any Contracting State having made such a reservation.
3. Any Contracting State having made a reservation in accordance with the preceding paragraph may at any time withdraw this reservation by notification to the Depositary Governments.

ARTICLE 13

1. This Convention shall be open for signature at The Hague on 16 December 1970, by States participating in the International Conference on Air Law held at The Hague from 1 to 16 December 1970 (hereinafter referred to as The Hague Conference). After 31 December 1970, the Convention shall be open to all States for signature in Moscow, London and Washington. Any State which does not sign this Convention before its entry into force in accordance with paragraph 3 of this Article may accede to it at any time.
2. This Convention shall be subject to ratification by the signatory States. Instruments of ratification and instruments of accession shall be deposited with the Governments of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, which are hereby designated the Depositary Governments.
3. This Convention shall enter into force thirty days following the date of the deposit of instruments of ratification by ten States signatory to this Convention which participated in The Hague Conference.
4. For other States, this Convention shall enter into force on the date of entry into force of this Convention in accordance with paragraph 3 of this Article, or thirty days following the date of deposit of their instruments of ratification or accession, whichever is later.
5. The Depositary Governments shall promptly inform all signatory and preceding States of the date of each signature, the date of deposit of each instrument of ratification or accession, the date of entry into force of this Convention, and other notices.
6. As soon as this Convention comes into force, it shall be registered by the Depositary Governments pursuant to Article 102 of the Charter of the United Nations and pursuant to Article 83 of the Convention on International Civil Aviation (Chicago, 1944).

ARTICLE 14

1. Any Contracting State may denounce this Convention by written notification to the Depositary Governments.

2. Denunciation shall take effect six months following the date on which notification is received by the Depositary Governments.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the undersigned Plenipotentiaries, being duly authorised thereto by their Governments, have signed this Convention.

DONE at The Hague, this sixteenth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and seventy, in three originals, each being drawn up in four authentic texts in the English, French, Russian and Spanish languages.

PART II

APPLICATION OF THE EXTRADITION ACTS IN THE CASE OF THE STATES MENTIONED IN PART I

1. The Extradition Acts shall have effect as if the only extradition crimes within the meaning of the Act of 1870 were offences under the Hijacking Act 1971 and attempts to commit such offences.

2. The Extradition Acts shall only apply where the case is such that paragraphs 2 and 4 of Article 8 of the Convention apply.

3. No proceedings shall be taken on an application by information or complaint, for a provisional warrant of arrest (that is to say, a warrant issued under section 8 of the Act of 1870 otherwise than in pursuance of subparagraph 1 of the first paragraph thereof), and no such warrant shall be issued, unless the application is made with the consent of the Secretary of State signified by an order in the form set out in Part III of this Schedule or in a form to the like effect; but, subject as aforesaid, the signification of consent shall not affect the provisions of the said section 8.

4. Without prejudice to sections 3, 9 and 11 of the Act of 1870, the fugitive criminal shall not be surrendered if—

- (a) it appears to the Secretary of State, to the magistrate hearing the case in pursuance of section 9 of that Act or to the High Court on an application for a writ of habeas corpus—
 - (i) that the request for his surrender (though purporting to be made on account of such an offence as is mentioned in paragraph 1 above) is in fact made for the purpose of prosecuting or punishing him on account of his race, religion, nationality or political opinions, or
 - (ii) that he might, if surrendered, be prejudiced at his trial or punished, detained or restricted in his personal liberty by reason of his race, religion, nationality or political opinions, or
 - (iii) that if charged in England or Wales with the offence of which he is accused he would be entitled to be discharged under any rule of law relating to previous acquittal or conviction; or
- (b) it appears to the Secretary of State or to the High Court on an application for a writ of habeas corpus that—
 - (i) by reason of the passage of time since the fugitive criminal is alleged to have committed the offence of which he is accused or to have become unlawfully at large, or
 - (ii) because the accusation against him is not made in good faith in the interests of justice, it would, having regard to all the circumstances, be unjust or oppressive to surrender him.

5. (1) Without prejudice to his so deciding on other grounds, the Secretary of State may, in the circumstances mentioned in the following subparagraph, decide not to make an order or issue a warrant—

- (a) for the purposes of paragraph 3 above signifying his consent to an application for a provisional warrant of arrest, or
- (b) under section 7 of the Act of 1870 requiring the issue of a warrant of arrest, or
- (c) under section 11 of the Act of 1870 ordering the fugitive criminal to be surrendered.

(2) The circumstances referred to in the preceding sub-paragraph are—

- (a) that the Secretary of State is not satisfied that provision is made by the law of the State requesting surrender under which a person accused or convicted in the United Kingdom of the like offence as that with which the fugitive criminal is accused or convicted might be surrendered to the United Kingdom if found in that State, or
- (b) that under the law of the State requesting surrender the fugitive criminal is liable to the death penalty for the offence of which he is accused, or
- (c) that the fugitive criminal is a citizen of the United Kingdom and Colonies.

PART III

FORM OF CONSENT OF SECRETARY OF STATE TO APPLICATION FOR A PROVISIONAL WARRANT OF ARREST

Whereas AB, a person recognised by the Secretary of State as a diplomatic representative of, has requested consent to application being made for the issue of a provisional warrant for the arrest of CD, late of, who is (accused) (convicted) of the commission of an offence, or attempt to commit an offence, within the jurisdiction of the said State, being an offence which, if committed in England, would be an offence under the Hijacking Act 1971:

Now I hereby, by this my Order under my hand and seal, signify to you my consent to the said application being made.

Given under the hand and seal of the undersigned, one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State this day of 19.

The Nuclear Installations (Falkland Islands and Dependencies) Order 1972

Made - - - - - 4th February 1972

Coming into Operation 15th March 1972

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 4th day of February 1972

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Her Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred upon Her by section 28 (1) of the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 (a) is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

1. (1) This Order may be cited as the Nuclear Installations (Falkland Islands and Dependencies) Order 1972 and shall come into operation on 15th March 1972.

(2) The Interpretation Act 1889 (b) shall apply with the necessary adaptations for the purpose of interpreting this Order and otherwise in relation thereto as it applies for the purpose of interpreting, and in relation to, Acts of the Parliament of the United Kingdom.

(3) In the Schedule to this Order any reference to a provision of the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 shall be construed as a reference to that provision as it has effect in the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies under this Order.

2. Sections 10 to 17, inclusive, 21, 26 and 30 of the Nuclear Installations Act 1965, modified and adapted as in the Schedule hereto, shall extend to the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.

W. G. Agnew.

SCHEDULE

Provisions of the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 (as amended) as extended to the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies

10. In the case of any nuclear matter which is not excepted matter and which —

- (a) is in the course of carriage on behalf of a relevant operator; or
- (b) is in the course of carriage to such an operator's relevant installation with the agreement of that operator from a place outside the relevant territories; or
- (c) having been on such an operator's relevant installation or in the course of carriage on behalf of such an operator, has not subsequently been on any relevant installation or in the course of any relevant carriage or (except in the course of relevant carriage) within the territorial limits of a country which is not a relevant territory, it shall be the duty of that operator to secure that no occurrence taking place wholly or partly within the territorial limits of the Colony causes injury to any person or damage to any property of any person other than that operator, being injury or damage arising out of or resulting from the radioactive properties, or a combination of those and any toxic, explosive or other hazardous properties, of that nuclear matter.

Duty of certain foreign operators.

11. Where any nuclear matter, not being excepted matter, is in the course of carriage within the territorial limits of the Colony on behalf of any person (hereafter in this section referred to as "the responsible party") and the carriage is not relevant carriage, it shall be the duty of the responsible party to secure that no occurrence involving that nuclear matter causes injury to any person or damage to any property of any person other than the responsible party, being injury or damage incurred within the said territorial limits and arising out of or resulting from the radioactive properties, or a combination of those and any toxic, explosive or other hazardous properties, of that nuclear matter.

Duty of other persons causing nuclear matter to be carried.

12. (1) Where any injury or damage has been caused in breach of a duty imposed by section 10 of this Act —

- (a) subject to sections 13 (1), 15, 16 (2) and 17 (1) of this Act, compensation in respect of that injury or damage shall be payable wherever the injury or damage was incurred;
- (b) subject to subsections (3) and (4) of this section and to section 21 (2) of this Act, no other liability shall be incurred by any person in respect of that injury or damage.

Right to compensation by virtue of s. 10.

(2) Subject to subsection (3) of this section, any injury or damage which, though not caused in breach of such a duty as aforesaid, is not reasonably separable from injury or damage so caused shall be deemed for the purposes of subsection (1) of this section to have been so caused.

(3) Where any injury or damage is caused partly in breach of such a duty as aforesaid and partly by an emission of ionising radiations which does not constitute such a breach, subsection (2) of this section shall not affect any liability of any person in respect of that emission apart from this Act, but a claimant shall not be entitled to recover compensation in respect of the same injury or damage both under this Act and otherwise than under this Act.

(4) Subject to section 13 (2) of this Act, nothing in subsection (1) (b) of this section shall affect —

- (a) the operation of the Carriage of Goods by Sea Ordinance of the Colony (a); or
- (b) the operation of the Carriage by Air Act 1961 (b) or the Carriage by Air (Supplementary Provisions) Act 1962 (c) as extended or applied to the Colony by the Carriage by Air (Overseas Territories) Order 1967 (d) and the Carriage by Air Acts (Application of Provisions) (Overseas Territories) Order 1967 (e).

13. (1) The duty imposed by section 10 or 11 of this Act —

- (a) shall not impose any liability on the person subject to that duty with respect to injury or damage caused by an occurrence which constitutes a breach of that duty if the occurrence, or the causing thereby of the injury or damage, is attributable to hostile action in the course of any armed conflict, including any armed conflict within the Colony; but
- (b) shall, subject to section 16 (2) of this Act, impose such a liability where the occurrence, or the causing thereby of the injury or damage, is attributable to a natural disaster, notwithstanding that the disaster

Exclusion, extension or reduction of compensation in certain cases.

(a) Laws of the Falkland Islands (Rev. 1950) c. 7. (b) 1961 c. 27. (c) 1962 c. 43.

is of such an exceptional character that it could not reasonably have been foreseen.

(2) Where, in the case of an occurrence which constitutes a breach of the duty imposed by section 10 of this Act, a person other than the person subject to that duty makes any payment in respect of injury or damage caused by that occurrence and—

- (a) the payment is made in pursuance of any of the following five international Conventions, that is to say, the draft Convention (setting out rules relating to bills of lading) of the International Conference on Maritime Law held at Brussels in October 1922, as amended in October 1923, the Convention for the Unification of Certain Rules Relating to International Carriage by Air concluded at Warsaw on 12th October 1929, the Warsaw Convention as amended at The Hague 1955, the Convention Supplementary to the Warsaw Convention held at Guadalajara in 1961 for the Unification of Certain Rules Relating to International Carriage by Air Performed by a Person other than the Contracting Carrier and the Convention on the Contract for the International Carriage of Goods by Road signed at Geneva on 19th May 1956, or
- (b) the injury or damage was incurred in a country which is not a relevant territory and the payment is made by virtue of a law of that country and by a person who has his principal place of business in a relevant territory or is acting on behalf of such a person, the person making the payment may make the like claim under this Act for compensation of the like amount, if any, not exceeding the amount of the payment made by him, as would have been available to him, if the injury in question had been suffered by him or, as the case may be, the property suffering the damage in question had been his.

(3) The amount of compensation payable to or in respect of any person under this Act in respect of any injury or damage caused in breach of the duty imposed by section 10 of this Act may be reduced by reason of the fault of that person if, but only if, and to the extent that, the causing of that injury or damage is attributable to any act of that person committed with the intention of causing harm to any person or property or with reckless disregard for the consequences of his act.

Protection for ships and aircraft.

14. A claim under this Act in respect of any occurrence such as is mentioned in section 10 or 11 of this Act which constitutes a breach of a person's duty under section 10 or 11 of this Act shall not give rise to any lien or other right in respect of any ship or aircraft; and section 3 (3) and (4) of the Administration of Justice Act 1956 (a), as extended to the Colony by the Admiralty Jurisdiction (Falkland Islands) Order 1966 (b) (which relates to the bringing of actions in rem against ships or aircraft) and section 503 of the Merchant Shipping Act 1894 (c) (which relates to the limitation of the liability of shipowners) shall not apply to that claim.

Time for bringing claims under ss. 10 and 11.

15. (1) Subject to subsection (2) of this section but notwithstanding anything in any other enactment, a claim by virtue of section 10 or 11 of this Act may be made at any time before, but shall not be entertained if made at any time after, the expiration of ten years from the relevant date, that is to say, the date of the occurrence which gave rise to the claim or, where that occurrence was a continuing one, the date of the last event in the course of that occurrence to which the claim relates.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (1) of this section, a claim in respect of injury or damage caused by an occurrence involving nuclear matter stolen from, or lost, jettisoned or abandoned by, the person whose breach of a duty imposed by section 10 of this Act gave rise to the claim shall not be entertained if the occurrence takes place after the expiration of the period of twenty years beginning with the day when the nuclear matter in question was so stolen, lost, jettisoned or abandoned.

Satisfaction of claims by virtue of s. 10.

16. (1) A relevant operator shall not be required by virtue of section 10 of this Act to make any payment by way of compensation in respect of an occurrence—

- (a) when the occurrence involves nuclear matter in the course of carriage and the claim is in respect of damage to the means of transport being used for that carriage, unless the relevant law otherwise provides;
- (b) to the extent that the amount required for the satisfaction of the claim is not required to be available by the relevant law and has not been made available by means of a relevant contribution.

(2) A relevant operator shall not be required by virtue of section 12 (1) (a) or section 13 (1) (b) of this Act to make any payment by way of compensation in respect of an occurrence if he would not have been required to have made that payment if the occurrence had taken place in his home territory and the claim had been made by virtue of the relevant law.

17. (1) No court in the Colony shall have jurisdiction to determine any claim or question under this Act certified by the Governor to be a claim or question which, under any relevant international agreement, falls to be determined by a court of some other relevant territory; and any proceedings to enforce such a claim which are commenced in any court in the Colony shall be set aside.

Jurisdiction, shared liability and foreign judgments.

(2) Where under the foregoing subsection the Governor certifies that any claim or question falls to be determined by a court of a relevant territory, that certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the jurisdiction of that court to determine that claim or question.

(3) Where by virtue of section 10 of this Act and any relevant law liability in respect of the same injury or damage is incurred by two or more persons, then, for the purposes of any proceedings in the Colony relating to that injury or damage, including proceedings for the enforcement of a judgment registered under Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance of the Colony (a) both or all of those persons shall be treated as jointly and severally liable in respect of that injury or damage: provided that where such liability is incurred as a result of an occurrence involving nuclear matter in the course of carriage in one and the same means of transport the maximum total amount for which such persons shall be liable, apart from payments in respect of interest or costs, shall not exceed the highest amount required to be available by the relevant law, together with such amounts, if any, as fall to be made available by means of relevant contributions.

(4) Part I of the Foreign Judgments (Reciprocal Enforcement) Ordinance of the Colony (a) shall apply to any judgment obtained in a court outside the Colony which is certified by the Governor to be a relevant foreign judgment for the purposes of this Act, whether or not it would otherwise have so applied, and shall have effect in relation to any judgment so certified as if in section 6 of that Ordinance subsections (1) (a) (ii), (2) and (3) were omitted.

(5) It shall be sufficient defence to proceedings in the Colony against any person for the recovery of a sum alleged to be payable under a judgment given in a country outside the Colony for that person to show that—

- (a) the sum in question was awarded in respect of injury or damage of a description which is the subject of a relevant international agreement; and
- (b) the country in question is not a relevant territory; and
- (c) the sum in question was not awarded in pursuance of any of the international Conventions referred to in the enactments mentioned in section 12 (4) of this Act.

(6) Where, in the case of any claim by virtue of section 10 of this Act, the relevant operator is the government of a relevant territory, then, for the purposes of any proceedings brought in a court in the Colony to enforce that claim, that government shall be deemed to have submitted to the jurisdiction of that court, and accordingly rules of court may provide for the manner in which any such action is to be commenced and carried on; but nothing in this subsection shall authorise the issue of execution against the property of that government.

21. (1) Where, in the case of an occurrence involving nuclear matter in the course of carriage, a claim in respect of damage to the means of transport being used for that carriage is duly established against any person by virtue of section 10 of this Act, then, no payment towards the satisfaction of that claim shall be made out of funds which are required to be available for the purpose by the relevant law or which have been made available by means of a relevant contribution, such as to prevent the satisfaction out of those funds up to an aggregate amount equivalent to £2,100,000 sterling of all claims which have been or may be duly established against the same person in respect of injury or damage caused by that occurrence other than damage to the said means of transport.

Supplementary provisions with respect to cover for compensation in respect of carriage.

(2) Where, in the case of an occurrence involving nuclear matter in the course of carriage, a claim in respect of damage to the means of transport being used for that carriage is duly established against a relevant operator by virtue of section 10 of this Act, but by virtue of section 16 (1) (a) thereof that operator is not required to make a payment in satisfaction of the claim, section 12 (1) (b) of this Act shall not apply to any liability of that operator with respect to the damage in question apart from this Act.

(3) Where any nuclear matter is to be carried by, or on behalf or with the agreement of, a relevant operator in such circumstances that he may incur liability by virtue of section 10 of this Act and that operator has pursuant to the relevant law provided the carrier with a document, issued or by or on behalf of the person by whom there falls to be provided the funds required by the relevant law to be available to satisfy any claim in respect of the carriage in question and containing the name and address of that operator and particulars of those funds, none of the contents of that document shall be disputed in any court by the person by whom or on whose behalf it was issued.

(4) The requirements of section 6 of the Road Traffic Ordinance of the Colony (a) (which relates to compulsory insurance or security against third-party risks of users of motor vehicles) shall not apply in relation to any injury to any person for which any person is liable by virtue of section 10 of this Act.

Interpretation.

26. (1) In this Act, except where the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the following meanings respectively, that is to say —

“the Colony” means the Colony of the Falkland Islands and includes its Dependencies;

“excepted matter” means nuclear matter consisting only of one or more of the following, that is to say —

- (a) isotopes prepared for use for industrial, commercial, agricultural, medical or scientific purposes;
- (b) natural uranium;
- (c) any uranium of which isotope 235 forms not more than 0.72 per cent.;
- (d) nuclear matter of such other description, if any, as may be excluded from the operation of the relevant international agreement by the relevant law;

“Governor” means the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony and includes any person for the time being performing the functions of that office;

“home territory”, in relation to a relevant operator, means the relevant territory in which, for the purposes of a relevant international agreement, he is the operator of a relevant installation;

“injury” means personal injury and includes loss of life;

“nuclear matter”, means, subject to any exceptions which may be prescribed —

- (a) any fissile material in the form of uranium metal, alloy or chemical compound (including natural uranium), or of plutonium metal, alloy or chemical compound, and any other fissile material which may be prescribed; and
- (b) any radioactive material produced in, or made radioactive by exposure to the radiation incidental to, the process of producing or utilising any such fissile material as aforesaid;

“occurrence”, in sections 16(1) and (2) and the proviso to section 17(3) of this Act, means in the case of a continuing occurrence the whole of that occurrence;

“prescribed” means prescribed by regulations made by the Governor in Council and laid before the Legislative Council as soon as may be after they are made;

“relevant carriage”, in relation to nuclear matter, means carriage on behalf of —

- (a) a relevant operator; or
- (b) a person authorised to operate a nuclear reactor which is comprised in a means of transport and in which the nuclear matter in question is intended to be used;

“relevant contribution”, in relation to any claim, means any sums falling by virtue of any relevant international agreement to be paid by the government of any relevant territory towards the satisfaction of that claim;

“relevant foreign judgment” means a judgment of a court of a relevant territory other than the Colony which, under a relevant international agreement, is to be enforceable anywhere within the relevant territories;

“relevant installation” means an installation to which a relevant international agreement applies;

“relevant international agreement” means an international agreement with respect to third-party liability in the field of nuclear energy to which the United Kingdom or Her Majesty's Government therein are party, other than an agreement relating to liability in respect of nuclear reactors comprised in means of transport;

“relevant law” means the law of a relevant territory regulating in accordance with a relevant international agreement matters falling to be so regulated and, in relation to a particular relevant operator, means the law such as aforesaid of his home territory;

“relevant operator” means a person who, for the purposes of a relevant international agreement, is the operator of a relevant installation in a relevant territory;

“relevant territory” means a country for the time being bound by a relevant international agreement;

(2) References in this Act to the carriage of nuclear matter shall be construed as including references to any storage incidental to the carriage of that matter before its delivery at its final destination.

(3) Any question arising under this Act as to whether —

- (a) any person is a relevant operator; or
- (b) any law is the relevant law with respect to any matter; or
- (c) any country is for the time being a relevant territory, shall be referred to and determined by the Governor.

(4) Save where the context otherwise requires, any reference in this Act to any enactment shall be construed as a reference to that enactment as amended, extended or applied by or under any other enactment.

30. (1) This Act may be cited as the Nuclear Installations Act 1965.

Short title and commencement.

(2) This Act, except for section 17 (5), shall come into force on 15th March 1972 and section 17 (5) shall come into force on such later date as the Governor may by order appoint.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

This Order extends to the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, with adaptations and modifications, certain provisions of the Nuclear Installations Act 1965, as amended, which relate to the duty in respect of the carriage of nuclear matter, to the right to compensation for breach of that duty and to the bringing and satisfaction of claims and certain ancillary provisions.

PROCLAMATION

No. 2 of 1972

Made under section 24 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council)
 Orders in Council, 1948 to 1964.

IN THE NAME of Her Majesty ELIZABETH II., by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Her other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

E. G. LEWIS.

*By His Excellency ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, ESQUIRE,
 Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire,
 Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.*

WHEREAS by subsection (1) of section 24 of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council) Orders in Council, 1948 to 1964, it is provided that the sittings of the Council shall be held at such times and places as the Governor shall from time to time appoint by Proclamation:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, in exercise of the powers vested in me aforesaid, do by this Proclamation appoint Tuesday the 6th day of June 1972, at 10.00 a.m. at the Court and Council Chambers, Stanley, to be the time and place for a sitting of the Legislative Council of the Colony.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony at Government House, Stanley, this 14th day of May, in the year of our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-two.

By His Excellency's Command,
 H. L. BOUND,
Acting Colonial Secretary.

A Bill for
 An Ordinance

For the licensing and control of Banking in the Colony. Title.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Banking Ordinance 1972. Short title.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires — Interpretation.

“bank” means any financial institution whose business includes the acceptance of deposits of money withdrawable by cheque;

“banking business” means the business of accepting deposits of money which may be withdrawn or repaid on demand or after a fixed period or after notice and the employment of those deposits in whole or in part by lending or any other means for the account and at the risk of the person accepting such deposits;

“banking licence” means a licence granted by the Governor in Council under section 5;

“company” means a company incorporated under the Companies and Private Partnership Ordinance or any company incorporated under any other Ordinance, Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom or letters patent of the United Kingdom; Cap. 13.

“licensed bank” means a bank licensed under section 5;

3. No banking business shall be transacted in the Colony except by a company:

Provided that the Governor in Council may at his discretion grant a special licence to any person not being a company who at the date of the commencement of this Ordinance carried on, conducted,

Banking business to be transacted only by a company.

managed or directed banking business in the Colony, and such banking business shall thereupon for the purposes of this Ordinance be deemed to be a licensed bank to which all the provisions of this Ordinance relating to a licensed bank shall apply:

Provided that the Governor in Council may at his discretion grant to any licensed bank exemption from any one or more of such provisions.

Banking company to be licensed.

4. (1) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this or any other Ordinance, no company shall carry on the business of banking without first being licensed in that behalf by the Governor in Council.

(2) Every company carrying on banking business in the Colony on the date on which this Ordinance comes into operation shall as from that date and for the six months next following that date be deemed to be duly licensed but if such company proposes to continue to carry on banking business in the Colony after the expiration of the said period of six months it shall, within three months after the date on which this Ordinance comes into operation, apply to the Governor in Council for a licence.

Grant and refusal of licence.

5. (1) The Governor in Council may at his discretion grant a licence to carry on the business of banking in the Colony, subject to such conditions as he may think fit, to any company which has a paid up share capital of not less than £250,000.

(2) The Governor in Council may at his discretion and without assigning any reason therefor refuse to grant a banking licence or cancel any banking licence in the manner hereinafter set out.

Restriction of use of word "bank" or "trust".

6. No person other than a company licensed to carry on banking business under the provisions of this Ordinance shall, without the consent of the Governor, use the word "bank" or "trust" or any derivative thereof in the name under which business is being carried on or use any name implying that the business of banking is carried on.

Maintenance of reserve fund.

7. (1) Subject to subsection (2) of this section, every company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance shall maintain a reserve fund and shall, out of its net profits of each year and before any dividend is declared, transfer to that fund a sum equal to not less than twenty-five per centum of such profits whenever the amount of the reserve fund is less than the issued paid up capital of the company.

(2) Subsection (1) of this section shall not apply to any company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance with respect to which it is proved to the satisfaction of the Governor in Council that the aggregate reserves of such company are adequate in respect of its business.

Restriction of dividends.

8. No company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance in the Colony shall pay any dividend on its shares until all its capitalised expenditure not represented by tangible assets has been completely written off.

Restriction on certain activities.

9. (1) A company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance shall not in the Colony —

- (a) grant to any person, firm, corporation or company, or to any group of companies or of persons which group is under the control or influence of one and the same person, any advance or credit facility, or give any financial guarantee or incur any other liability on behalf of such person, firm, corporation, company or group so that the total value of the advances, credit facilities, financial guarantees and other liabilities in respect of such person, firm, corporation, company or group is at any time more than twenty-five per centum of the sum of the paid up capital and published reserves of the licensed company:

Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to transactions between banks or between the branches of a bank, or to the purchase of telegraphic transfers, or to the purchase of bills of exchange or documents of title to goods where the holder of such bills or documents is entitled to payment outside the Colony for exports or to advances made against such transfers, bills or documents;

- (b) grant any advance or credit facility against the security of its own shares;
- (c) grant or permit to be outstanding unsecured advances or unsecured credit facilities of an aggregate amount in excess of £1,500 or of one per centum of the sum of the paid up capital and published reserves of such company, whichever is the greater, or give any financial guarantees in excess of such amount without security, or incur any other liability in excess of such amount without security —
 - (i) to or on behalf of any one of its directors, whether such advances, facilities, guarantees or other liabilities are obtained by or on account of such director, jointly or severally;
 - (ii) to or on behalf of any firm, partnership or private company in which it, or any one or more of its directors is interested as director, partner, manager or agent, or to or on behalf of any individual, firm, partnership or private company of whom or of which any one or more of its directors is a guarantor;
- (d) grant or permit to be outstanding to its officials and employees unsecured advances or unsecured credit facilities which in aggregate amount for any one official or employee exceed one year's emolument of such official or employee.

(2) in subsections (c) and (d) of subsection (1) of this section the expression "unsecured advances or unsecured credit facilities" means advances or credit facilities granted without security, or, in respect of any advance or credit facility granted with security, any part thereof which at any time exceeds the market value of the assets constituting that security.

10. (1) The Governor may appoint an advisory committee consisting of such persons and appointed upon such terms as he may think fit to advise him on matters relating to banking business and he may at any time determine any appointment so made.

Appointment of advisory committee.

(2) The Governor may make rules providing for the procedure to be followed at any meeting held by the advisory committee.

11. (1) The Governor in Council may, after consultation with the advisory committee and if he considers it to be in the public interest so to do, order any licensed bank —

Special powers of Governor in Council.

- (a) to produce to such person and within such period as may be named in such order any books, accounts or documents of such bank; or such other information relating to the banking business of such bank, provided that no statement or information shall be required with respect to the affairs of any particular customer of a licensed bank;
- (b) to delete from the name under which it is carrying on business within such period as shall be named in such order the word "bank" or "trust" or any derivative thereof or any other word or words forming part of its name;
- (c) to refrain from carrying on banking business;
- (d) to return for cancellation by the Colonial Treasurer any licence issued to such bank under this Ordinance:

Provided that no order under paragraph (a) of this subsection shall be made unless the production of any such books, accounts or documents is in the opinion of the Governor in Council necessary for the proper prosecution of any investigation the result of which might lead the Governor in Council to make an order under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of this subsection:

And provided further that before any order is made under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of this subsection, the Governor in Council shall give the licensed bank notice of his intention to make such an order and shall afford such licensed bank an opportunity of submitting to him a written statement of its case.

(2) The Colonial Treasurer shall publish in the Gazette the name of any licensed bank the licence of which is cancelled.

(3) If any person to whom any books, accounts or documents have been produced under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section shall otherwise than for the purpose of this Ordinance publish or disclose any such books, accounts or documents or any extract therefrom or particular therein he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on conviction upon indictment to a fine of £500.

Exhibition of balance sheet.

12. (1) Not later than four months after the close of each financial year of each licensed bank, or such longer period as the Colonial Treasurer may, in any particular case permit, the licensed bank shall publish in the Colony Gazette and forward to the Colonial Treasurer a copy of its balance sheet and profit and loss account and the full and correct names of the directors of the licensed bank. The balance sheet and profit and loss account shall bear on their face the certificate of an approved auditor in accordance with subsection (1) of section 13 of this Ordinance.

(2) Every licensed bank shall exhibit and keep exhibited throughout the year in every office of the bank in the Colony a copy of its last balance sheet and profit and loss account.

(3) The requirements of this section shall be in addition to and not in derogation of the requirements of the Companies and Private Partnership Ordinance or of any other Ordinance, Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom or letters patent of the United Kingdom.

Approved auditor.

13. (1) Every licensed bank shall appoint annually an approved auditor whose duties shall be to make to the shareholders of that licensed bank a report upon the annual balance sheet and accounts, and in every such report the auditor shall state whether, in his opinion, the balance sheet is full and fair and properly drawn up, whether it exhibits a true and correct statement of the licensed bank's affairs, and, in any case in which the auditor has called for explanation or information from the officers or agents of the licensed bank, whether this is satisfactory.

(2) For the purposes of this section, an approved auditor is a person for the time being declared by the Colonial Treasurer by notice in the Gazette to be approved for such purposes.

Persons debarred from management.

14. No person —

- (a) who has been a director of, or directly concerned in the management of a licensed bank which has had its licence revoked in accordance with paragraph (d) of section 11 of this Ordinance or has been wound up by a Court; or
- (b) who has been sentenced by a competent court to a term of imprisonment involving dishonesty and has not received a full pardon for that offence; or
- (c) who is or becomes bankrupt, suspends payment to or compounds with his creditors;

shall, without the express authorisation of the Governor, act or continue to act as a director of, or be directly or indirectly concerned in, the management of any licensed bank.

15. (1) Any company which acts in contravention of the provisions of section 4 (1) of this Ordinance and any officer of such company who is in default, shall be guilty of an offence and liable — Penalties.

- (a) on summary conviction to a fine of £100; and
- (b) on conviction upon indictment to a fine of £500.

(2) Any person who contravenes the provisions of section 3, 6 or 14 of this Ordinance shall be guilty of an offence and liable —

- (a) on summary conviction to imprisonment for two years or to a fine of £200 or to both such imprisonment and fine; and
- (b) on conviction upon indictment to imprisonment for five years or to a fine of £500 or to both such imprisonment and fine.

(3) Any licensed bank failing to comply with an order made under section 11 (1) of this Ordinance or of failing to comply with the provisions of section 12 (1) or (2) of this Ordinance and any officer of such a bank in default shall be guilty of an offence and liable —

- (a) on summary conviction to imprisonment for two years or to a fine of £100 or to both such imprisonment and fine; and
- (b) on conviction upon indictment to imprisonment for five years or to a fine of £500 or to both such imprisonment and fine, and, in the case of an offence under section 11 (1) (a) of this Ordinance, in addition, to a penalty of £25 for each day during which the default continues.

(4) Any company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance which fails to pay the fees provided by section 16 shall, in addition to any other penalty under this Ordinance for such failure, be guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £25 for each day during which the fee remains unpaid, and every officer of such company who knowingly authorises or permits such non-payments is liable to a like conviction and fine.

16. (1) Every company to which a licence is granted shall, upon the issue of such licence, pay to the Government a fee of £250. Annual licence fee.

(2) On or before the first day of January every year after the year in which a licence has been granted to a company that company shall, during the subsistence of such licence, pay to the Government a fee of £250.

17. Nothing in this Ordinance shall apply to the Government Savings Bank. Saving.

18. The Governor in Council may make such rules as may be necessary for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Ordinance. Rules.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

To make provision for the licensing and control, in the Colony, of banks, banking business, and matters connected therewith.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Title. Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance.

Date of commencement. (1st January 1972)

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows—

Short title. 1. (1) This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amendment) Ordinance 1972.

(2) The provisions of this Ordinance shall have effect with respect to tax chargeable for the year of assessment commencing on the 1st day of January 1972, and for all subsequent years of assessment.

Amendment of section 21.
(Cap. 32.)

2. Section 21 of the Income Tax Ordinance is amended—

- (a) in subsection (1), by the deletion of "35p" and the substitution therefor of "30p";
- (b) in subsection (2), by the deletion of "35p" and the substitution therefor of "30p";
- (c) in subsection (2A)—
 - (i) by the deletion of "20p" and "15p" and the substitution therefor of "10p" and "7½p" respectively;
 - (ii) by the deletion of the semicolon at the end of paragraph (i) and the substitution therefor of a full stop; and
 - (iii) by the deletion of paragraphs (j), (k), (l), (m), (n), and (o);
- (d) by the deletion of subsection (4); and
- (e) by renumbering subsection (5) as subsection (4).

OBJECTS AND REASONS

To reduce the standard rate of Income Tax, and Company Tax, from 35p to 30p, with effect from 1st January 1972.

To restore the level of profits tax to 10p and 7½p for incorporated and unincorporated bodies respectively, and to remove the other provisions of Ordinance No. 9 of 1969. This Ordinance introduced a form of penalty profits tax for firms engaged in sheepfarming and listed a range of "qualifying expenditure" that ranked for Investment Allowance. Investment Allowance could fully offset the effect of the penalty tax provided an adequate accumulation of qualifying expenditure was maintained. The Ordinance has been difficult to administer and has not fully achieved its purpose.

To repeal the special additional abatement of 6p available to Companies incurring qualifying expenditure.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Title. Further to amend the Estate Duty Ordinance.

Date of commencement. (1st July 1972)

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Estate Duty (Amendment) Ordinance 1972 and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1972.

Amendment of section 4. 2. Section 4 of the Estate Duty Ordinance is amended in subsection (2) by the deletion of paragraph (b) and the substitution therefor of the following —

“(b) in the case of every person dying after the 1st day of July 1972, property whether real or personal in which the deceased person or any other person had an estate or interest limited to cease on the death of the deceased shall be deemed to pass on the death of the deceased, notwithstanding that the estate or interest had been surrendered, assured, divested, or otherwise disposed of, whether for value or not, to or for the benefit of any person entitled to an estate or interest in remainder or reversion in such property, unless that surrender, assurance, divesting or disposition was bona fide made or effected three years before the death of the deceased, and bona fide possession and enjoyment of the property was assured thereunder immediately upon the surrender, assurance, divesting, or disposition, and thence forward retained to the entire exclusion of the person who had the estate or interest limited to cease as aforesaid, and of any other benefit to him by contract or otherwise;”.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill is designed to make it clear that a surrendered life interest, effected within three years before the death of the deceased, is deemed to pass at death.

(Cap. 25)

2. Section 4 of the Estate Duty Ordinance is amended in subsection (2) by the deletion of paragraph (b) and the substitution therefor of the following — disposition was bona fide made or effected three years before the death of the deceased, and bona fide possession and enjoyment of the property was assured thereunder immediately upon the surrender, assurance, divesting, or disposition, and thence forward retained to the entire exclusion of the person who had the estate or interest limited to cease as aforesaid, and of any other benefit to him by contract or otherwise;".

“(b) in the case of every person dying after the 1st day of July 1972, property whether real or personal in which the deceased person or any other person had an estate or interest limited to cease on the death of the deceased shall be deemed to pass on the death of the deceased, notwithstanding that the estate or interest had been surrendered, assured, divested, or otherwise disposed of, whether for value or not, to or for the benefit of any person entitled to an estate or interest in remainder or reversion in such property, unless that surrender, assurance, divesting or

Colony of the Falkland Islands.

IN THE TWENTY-FIRST YEAR OF THE REIGN OF

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, C.M.G., O.B.E.

Governor.

An Ordinance

Title.

For the licensing and control of Banking in the Colony.

Enacting clause.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Banking Ordinance 1972.

Interpretation.

2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires — “bank” means any financial institution whose business includes the acceptance of deposits of money withdrawable by cheque; “banking business” means the business of accepting deposits of money which may be withdrawn or repaid on demand or after a fixed period or after notice and the employment of those deposits in whole or in part by lending or any other means for the account and at the risk of the person accepting such deposits;

“banking licence” means a licence granted by the Governor in Council under section 5;

“company” means a company incorporated under the Companies and Private Partnership Ordinance or any company incorporated under any other Ordinance, Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom or letters patent of the United Kingdom;

“licensed bank” means a bank licensed under section 5;

Cap. 13.

3. No banking business shall be transacted in the Colony except by a company:

Banking business to be transacted only by a company.

Provided that the Governor in Council may at his discretion grant a special licence to any person not being a company who at the date of the commencement of this Ordinance carried on, conducted, managed or directed banking business in the Colony, and such banking business shall thereupon for the purposes of this Ordinance be deemed to be a licensed bank to which all the provisions of this Ordinance relating to a licensed bank shall apply:

Provided that the Governor in Council may at his discretion grant to such company exemption from any of the provisions of sections 7, 8, 9, 12, 13, or 16 of this Ordinance.

4. (1) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this or any other Ordinance, no company shall carry on the business of banking without first being licensed in that behalf by the Governor in Council.

Banking company to be licensed.

(2) Every company carrying on banking business in the Colony on the date on which this Ordinance comes into operation shall as from that date and for the six months next following that date be deemed to be duly licensed but if such company proposes to continue to carry on banking business in the Colony after the expiration of the said period of six months it shall, within three months after the date on which this Ordinance comes into operation, apply to the Governor in Council for a licence:

Provided further that the Governor in Council may at his discretion grant to such licensed bank exemption from any of the provisions of sections 5, 7, 8, 9, 12, or 13 of this Ordinance.

5. (1) The Governor in Council may at his discretion grant a licence to carry on the business of banking in the Colony, subject to such conditions as he may think fit, to any company which has a paid up share capital of not less than £250,000.

Grant and refusal of licence.

(2) The Governor in Council may at his discretion and without assigning any reason therefor refuse to grant a banking licence or cancel any banking licence in the manner hereinafter set out.

6. No person other than a company licensed to carry on banking business under the provisions of this Ordinance shall, without the consent of the Governor, use the word "bank" or "trust" or any derivative thereof in the name under which business is being carried on or use any name implying that the business of banking is carried on.

Restriction of use of word "bank" or "trust".

or continue to use 16/74

7. (1) Subject to subsection (2) of this section, every company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance shall maintain a reserve fund and shall, out of its net profits of each year and before any dividend is declared, transfer to that fund a sum equal to not less than twenty-five per centum of such profits whenever the amount of the reserve fund is less than the issued paid up capital of the company.

Maintenance of reserve fund.

(2) Subsection (1) of this section shall not apply to any company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance with respect to which it is proved to the satisfaction of the Governor in Council that the aggregate reserves of such company are adequate in respect of its business.

8. No company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance in the Colony shall pay any dividend on its shares until all its capitalised expenditure not represented by tangible assets has been completely written off.

Restriction of dividends.

9. (1) A company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance shall not in the Colony —

Restriction on certain activities.

(a) grant to any person, firm, corporation or company, or to any group of companies or of persons which group is under the control or influence of one and the same person, any advance or credit facility, or give any financial guarantee or incur any other liability on behalf of such person, firm, corporation, company or group so that the total value of the advances, credit facilities, financial guarantees and other liabilities in respect of such person, firm, corporation, company or group is at any time more than twenty-five per centum of the sum of the paid up capital and published reserves of the licensed company:

Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to transactions between banks or between the branches of a bank, or to the purchase of telegraphic transfers, or to the purchase of bills of exchange or documents of title to goods where the holder of such bills or documents is entitled to payment outside the Colony for exports or to advances made against such transfers, bills or documents;

- (b) grant any advance or credit facility against the security of its own shares;
- (c) grant or permit to be outstanding unsecured advances or unsecured credit facilities of an aggregate amount in excess of £1,500 or of one per centum of the sum of the paid up capital and published reserves of such company, whichever is the greater, or give any financial guarantees in excess of such amount without security, or incur any other liability in excess of such amount without security —
 - (i) to or on behalf of any one of its directors, whether such advances, facilities, guarantees or other liabilities are obtained by or on account of such director, jointly or severally;
 - (ii) to or on behalf of any firm, partnership or private company in which it, or any one or more of its directors is interested as director, partner, manager or agent, or to or on behalf of any individual, firm, partnership or private company of whom or of which any one or more of its directors is a guarantor;
- (d) grant or permit to be outstanding to its officials and employees unsecured advances or unsecured credit facilities which in aggregate amount for any one official or employee exceed one year's emolument of such official or employee.

(2) in subsections (c) and (d) of subsection (1) of this section the expression "unsecured advances or unsecured credit facilities" means advances or credit facilities granted without security, or, in respect of any advance or credit facility granted with security, any part thereof which at any time exceeds the market value of the assets constituting that security.

Appointment of advisory committee.

10. (1) The Governor may appoint an advisory committee consisting of such persons and appointed upon such terms as he may think fit to advise him on matters relating to banking business and he may at any time determine any appointment so made.

(2) The Governor may make rules providing for the procedure to be followed at any meeting held by the advisory committee.

Special powers of Governor in Council.

11. (1) The Governor in Council may, after consultation with the advisory committee and if he considers it to be in the public interest so to do, order any licensed bank —

- (a) to produce to such person and within such period as may be named in such order any books, accounts or documents of such bank; or such other information relating to the banking business of such bank, provided that no statement or information shall be required with respect to the affairs of any particular customer of a licensed bank;

- (b) to delete from the name under which it is carrying on business within such period as shall be named in such order the word "bank" or "trust" or any derivative thereof or any other word or words forming part of its name;
- (c) to refrain from carrying on banking business;
- (d) to return for cancellation by the Colonial Treasurer any licence issued to such bank under this Ordinance:

Provided that no order under paragraph (a) of this subsection shall be made unless the production of any such books, accounts or documents is in the opinion of the Governor in Council necessary for the proper prosecution of any investigation the result of which might lead the Governor in Council to make an order under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of this subsection:

And provided further that before any order is made under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of this subsection, the Governor in Council shall give the licensed bank notice of his intention to make such an order and shall afford such licensed bank an opportunity of submitting to him a written statement of its case.

(2) The Colonial Treasurer shall publish in the Gazette the name of any licensed bank the licence of which is cancelled.

(3) If any person to whom any books, accounts or documents have been produced under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section shall otherwise than for the purpose of this Ordinance publish or disclose any such books, accounts or documents or any extract therefrom or particular therein he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on conviction upon indictment to a fine of £500.

12. (1) Not later than four months after the close of each financial year of each licensed bank, or such longer period as the Colonial Treasurer may, in any particular case permit, the licensed bank shall publish in the Colony Gazette and forward to the Colonial Treasurer a copy of its balance sheet and profit and loss account and the full and correct names of the directors of the licensed bank. The balance sheet and profit and loss account shall bear on their face the certificate of an approved auditor in accordance with subsection (1) of section 13 of this Ordinance.

Exhibition of balance sheet.

(2) Every licensed bank shall exhibit and keep exhibited throughout the year in every office of the bank in the Colony a copy of its last balance sheet and profit and loss account.

(3) The requirements of this section shall be in addition to and not in derogation of the requirements of the Companies and Private Partnership Ordinance or of any other Ordinance, Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom or letters patent of the United Kingdom.

13. (1) Every licensed bank shall appoint annually an approved auditor whose duties shall be to make to the shareholders of that licensed bank a report upon the annual balance sheet and accounts, and in every such report the auditor shall state whether, in his opinion, the balance sheet is full and fair and properly drawn up, whether it exhibits a true and correct statement of the licensed bank's affairs, and, in any case in which the auditor has called for explanation or information from the officers or agents of the licensed bank, whether this is satisfactory.

Approved auditor.

(2) For the purposes of this section, an approved auditor is a person for the time being declared by the Colonial Treasurer by notice in the Gazette to be approved for such purposes.

14. No person —

- (a) who has been a director of, or directly concerned in the management of a licensed bank which has had its licence revoked in accordance with paragraph (d) of section 11 of this Ordinance or has been wound up by a Court; or Persons debarred from management.

- (b) who has been sentenced by a competent court to a term of imprisonment involving dishonesty and has not received a full pardon for that offence; or
- (c) who is or becomes bankrupt, suspends payment to or compounds with his creditors;

shall, without the express authorisation of the Governor, act or continue to act as a director of, or be directly or indirectly concerned in, the management of any licensed bank.

Penalties.

15. (1) Any company which acts in contravention of the provisions of section 4 (1) of this Ordinance and any officer of such company who is in default, shall be guilty of an offence and liable —

- (a) on summary conviction to a fine of £100; and
- (b) on conviction upon indictment to a fine of £500.

(2) Any person who contravenes the provisions of section 3, 6 or 14 of this Ordinance shall be guilty of an offence and liable —

- (a) on summary conviction to imprisonment for two years or to a fine of £200 or to both such imprisonment and fine; and
- (b) on conviction upon indictment to imprisonment for five years or to a fine of £500 or to both such imprisonment and fine.

(3) Any licensed bank failing to comply with an order made under section 11 (1) of this Ordinance or of failing to comply with the provisions of section 12 (1) or (2) of this Ordinance and any officer of such a bank in default shall be guilty of an offence and liable —

- (a) on summary conviction to imprisonment for two years or to a fine of £100 or to both such imprisonment and fine; and
- (b) on conviction upon indictment to imprisonment for five years or to a fine of £500 or to both such imprisonment and fine, and, in the case of an offence under section 11 (1) (a) of this Ordinance, in addition, to a penalty of £25 for each day during which the default continues.

(4) Any company licensed to carry on banking business under this Ordinance which fails to pay the fees provided by section 16 shall, in addition to any other penalty under this Ordinance for such failure, be guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £25 for each day during which the fee remains unpaid, and every officer of such company who knowingly authorises or permits such non-payments is liable to a like conviction and fine.

Annual licence fee.

16. (1) Every company to which a licence is granted shall, upon the issue of such licence, pay to the Government a fee of £250.

(2) On or before the first day of January every year after the year in which a licence has been granted to a company that company shall, during the subsistence of such licence, pay to the Government a fee of £250.

Saving.

17. Nothing in this Ordinance shall apply to the Government Savings Bank.

Rules.

18. The Governor in Council may make such rules as may be necessary for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Ordinance.

Index of Retail Prices

The Committee appointed to conduct a review of the structure for measuring the Cost of Living in Stanley submitted its final report to Government in January 1972.

The composition of the Committee was —

The Colonial Treasurer (Mr. L. Gleadell, O.B.E., J.P.) Chairman

General Secretary, General Employees Union,
(Major R. V. Goss, O.B.E., E.D.) Member

The Colonial Manager, Falkland Islands Co.,
Ltd. (Mr. A. Sloggie) Member

Mr. R. W. Hills, Member

The Secretary, Sheep Owners Association (Mr.
B. O. Barnes) Observer

The report of the Committee has been considered by the Governor in Council and it has been decided to adopt the new Index of Retail Prices as recommended.

The new index includes changes to the list of commodities which arise mainly from the arrival on the market of new items, and changes in buying habits.

Budgetary surveys for the construction of the new retail price index were undertaken in March, April and May 1971 among certain households in Stanley. The new index includes the following weights which are based on the information obtained from the survey —

Foodstuffs	409
Clothing	128
Fuel and Light	45
Household durable goods	54
Miscellaneous goods	85
Alcoholic drinks	54
Tobacco	40
Housing	98
Services	87

The base line of the new Index is 1st January 1971.

The revised scale of awards as recommended by the Committee has been adopted and is published under a separate notice.

The Copyright (International Conventions) Order 1972

Made	28th April 1972
Laid before Parliament	8th May 1972
Coming into Operation	31st May 1972

At the Court at Windsor Castle, the 28th day of April 1972

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Her Majesty, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, and by virtue of the authority conferred upon Her by sections 31, 32 and 47 of the Copyright Act 1956 (a) and of all other powers enabling Her in that behalf, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

PART I

Citation, commencement and interpretation

1. This Order may be cited as the Copyright (International Conventions) Order 1972, and shall come into operation on 31st May 1972.

2. (1) In this Order —

“the Act” means the Copyright Act 1956, as amended by the Design Copyright Act 1968 (b) and the Copyright (Amendment) Act 1971 (c); and “material time” means —

(i) in relation to an unpublished work or subject-matter, the time at which such work or subject-matter was made or, if the making thereof extended over a period, a substantial part of that period;

(ii) in relation to a published work or subject-matter, the time of first publication.

(2) The Interpretation Act 1889 (d) shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament and as if this Order and Orders hereby revoked were Acts of Parliament.

PART II

Protection for literary, dramatic, musical and artistic works, sound recordings, cinematograph films and published editions

3. Subject to the following provisions of this Order the provisions of Parts I and II of the Act (except section 14) and all the other provisions of the Act relevant to those Parts, shall in the case of any country mentioned in Schedules 1 or 2 hereto apply —

(a) in relation to literary, dramatic, musical or artistic works, sound recordings, cinematograph films or published editions first published in that country, as they apply to such works, recordings, films or editions first published in the United Kingdom;

(b) in relation to persons who, at any material time are citizens or subjects of, or domiciled or resident in, that country, as they apply to persons who at such time, are British subjects or are domiciled or resident in the United Kingdom; and

(c) 1971 c. 4.

- (c) in relation to bodies incorporated under the laws of that country, as they apply to bodies incorporated under the laws of any part of the United Kingdom.

4. (1) Subject to the following provisions of this Article, the relevant provisions of Schedule 7 to the Act shall have effect in relation to any work or other subject-matter in which copyright subsists by virtue of this Part of this Order as if for any references therein to the commencement of the Act or any of its provisions or to the date of the repeal of any provision of the Copyright Act 1911^(a) or of any other enactment there were substituted references to 27th September 1957 (being the date on which the Copyright (International Conventions) Order 1957^(b) came into operation).

(2) Subject to the following provisions of this Article, in the case of any country mentioned in Schedule 2 hereto in relation to which a date is specified in that Schedule —

- (a) paragraph (1) of this Article shall have effect as if, for the reference to 27th September 1957, there were substituted that date (if different); and
- (b) copyright shall not subsist by virtue of this Part of this Order in any work or other subject-matter by reason only of its publication in such a country before the date so specified.

(3) This Article shall not apply —

- (a) in the case of Ghana, Kenya, Malawi, Mauritius, Nigeria or Zambia; or
- (b) to any work or subject-matter first published in the United States of America, if, immediately before 27th September 1957, copyright under the Copyright Act 1911 subsisted in such work or subject-matter by virtue of either an Order in Council dated 9th February 1920, regulating copyright relations with the United States of America^(c), or the Copyright (United States of America) Order 1942^(d), as amended^(e).

5. The acts restricted by section 12 of the Act as applied by this Part of this Order shall not include —

- (a) causing the recording to be heard in public; or
- (b) broadcasting the recording;

except in the case of the countries mentioned in Schedule 3 to this Order.

6. Where any person has before the commencement of this Order incurred any expenditure or liability in connection with the reproduction or performance of any work or other subject-matter in a manner which at the time was lawful, or for the purpose of or with a view to the reproduction or performance of a work at a time when such reproduction or performance would, but for the making of this Order, have been lawful, nothing in this Part of this Order shall diminish or prejudice any right or interest arising from, or in connection with, such action which is subsisting and valuable immediately before the commencement of this Order unless the person who, by virtue of this Part of this Order, becomes entitled to restrain such reproduction or performance agrees to pay such compensation as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration.

7. Nothing in the provisions of the Act as applied by this Part of this Order shall be construed as reviving any right to make, or restrain the making of, or any right in respect of, translations, if such right has ceased before the commencement of this Order.

 (c) S.R. & O. 1920/257 (1920 I, p. 286).

PART III

Protection in respect of broadcasts

8. The provisions of section 14 of the Act, so far as they relate to sound broadcasts, and all the other provisions of the Act relevant thereto, other than section 40 (3), shall apply, in the case of each of the countries mentioned in Schedule 4 to this Order, in relation to sound broadcasts made from places in any such country by an organisation constituted in, or under the laws of, the country in which the broadcast is made, as they apply in relation to sound broadcasts made from places in the United Kingdom by the British Broadcasting Corporation; so, however, that paragraphs 17 and 18 of Schedule 7 to the Act shall have effect as if for the references therein to the commencement of section 14 there were substituted references to the relevant date set out in the said Schedule 4 (being the date on which the provisions of section 14 of the Act so far as they relate to sound broadcasts were first applied in the case of that country).

9. The provisions of section 14 of the Act, so far as they relate to television broadcasts, and all the other provisions of the Act relevant thereto, other than section 37 (4), section 40 (3) and Schedule 5, shall apply in the case of each of the countries mentioned in Schedule 5 to this Order, in relation to television broadcasts made from places in any such country by an organisation constituted in, or under the laws of, the country in which the broadcast was made, as they apply in relation to television broadcasts made from places in the United Kingdom by the British Broadcasting Corporation or the Independent Television Authority; so, however, that —

- (a) section 24 (3) (c) of the Act shall have effect as if for the reference to the Corporation or the Authority or any organisation appointed by them there were substituted a reference to any owner or prospective owner of copyright in television broadcasts; and
- (b) paragraphs 17 and 18 of Schedule 7 to the Act shall have effect as if for the references therein to the commencement of section 14 there were substituted references to the relevant date set out in Schedule 5 to this Order, (being the date on which the provisions of section 14 of the Act so far as they relate to television broadcasts were first applied in the case of that country).

PART IV

Extensions and revocations

10. Parts I and II of this Order shall extend to the countries mentioned in Schedule 6 to this Order subject to the modifications mentioned in that Schedule and Part III shall extend to Gibraltar and Bermuda subject to the modifications mentioned in Schedule 7 to this Order.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

This Order revokes the Orders mentioned in Schedule 8 (being Orders providing for the protection, in the United Kingdom and the countries to which the Copyright Act 1956 has been extended, of works and other subject-matter originating in other countries party to international copyright conventions) and re-enacts the revoked provisions with minor modifications.

The Order also takes account of —

- (a) the accession of Fiji to the Berne Union, the Universal Copyright Convention and the International Convention for the Protection of Performers, Producers of Phonograms and Broadcasting Organisations,
- (b) the confirmation by Mauritius of its adherence to the Universal Copyright Convention and
- (c) the fact that Western Samoa is no longer a member of the Berne Union.

Parts I and II of the Order are extended to the countries named in Schedule 6, being countries in which the Copyright Act 1956 is in force by virtue of Orders in Council made under that Act. In the case of Bermuda and Gibraltar Part III of the Order, which relates exclusively to sound and television broadcasts, is also extended (with modifications).

THE COLONIAL FIRE BRIGADES LONG SERVICE MEDAL
FALKLAND ISLANDS

In exercise of the powers conferred on him by Royal Warrant dated the 21st day of March 1956 as amended by Royal Warrants dated the 10th day of April 1967 and the 14th day of July 1971, the Governor with the approval of a Secretary of State, has made the following regulations governing the award of the Colonial Fire Brigades Long Service Medal to members of the Fire Brigades of the Falkland Islands and Dependencies in replacement of the regulations published in the Gazette Vol. LXXVI No. 11 of the 2nd day of October 1967, which are hereby revoked.

25th September 1972.

T. H. LAYNG,
Colonial Secretary.

THE COLONIAL FIRE BRIGADES LONG SERVICE MEDAL
FALKLAND ISLANDS

No. 1 of 1972

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

Citation.

1. These regulations may be cited as the Colonial Fire Brigades Long Service Medal Regulations 1972.

Service required.

2. (1) The Colonial Fire Brigades Long Service Medal will be granted as a reward for long service and good conduct to members of all ranks of properly organised Fire Brigades of the Falkland Islands and Dependencies who on or after the 21st day of March 1956 shall have completed eighteen years' continuous service as hereinafter defined.

(2) A Clasp will also be granted to a recipient of the Medal on his completing twenty-five years' qualifying service, and a further Clasp on completing thirty years' qualifying service. For each Clasp so awarded a small silver rose may be added to the ribbon when worn alone.

Continuity of service.

3. (1) Service in properly organised Fire Brigades in other Colonies, Associated States or Territories under Her Majesty's Protection or Administration may be allowed to reckon towards the required period of qualifying service, as may also service which would reckon as qualifying service for the Fire Brigade Long Service and Good Conduct Medal, if the total period of such service amounts to not less than eighteen years:

Provided, however, that where service has been rendered in the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies and in one or more of the territories defined above an interval not exceeding twelve months between any two periods of service shall not be regarded as breaking the continuity of such service:

Provided also that a break in service not exceeding six calendar months in the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies or in any one territory as defined above shall not be regarded as breaking the continuity of such service.

(2) Service in Her Majesty's Armed Forces or Merchant Navy whether on secondment, on recall or when called upon to serve may be allowed to reckon towards the required period of qualifying service, provided that such military or Merchant Navy service interrupted and was continuous with qualifying fire service.

Exemplary character.

4. (1) For the purposes of these regulations service shall be reckoned as qualifying service only if it is certified that the character and conduct of the person recommended for the grant of the Medal or Clasp has been exemplary.

(2) Exemplary character means a record clear of any serious offence or persistent minor offences. Provided that the Superintendent of the Fire Brigade notwithstanding recorded offences, may recommend an award where general conduct and character merit such recommendation and always provided that no serious offence has been committed during the last five years of the qualifying period of service.

5. Recommendations for the award of the Medal or Clasp shall be submitted by the Superintendent of the Fire Brigade to the Governor. The Medal will be awarded on the authority of the Governor and a notification of such award shall be published in the Gazette.

Recommendations.

6. (1) A recipient of the Medal or Clasp who is convicted of a criminal offence or is dismissed or removed from the Fire Service for misconduct shall forfeit the Medal or Clasp unless the Governor shall otherwise direct.

Forfeiture and restoration.

(2) A Medal or Clasp so forfeited may be restored to the recipient by the Governor at his discretion.

(3) A notice of forfeiture or restoration shall in every case be published in the Gazette.

7. In the event of loss, application may be made for replacement of the Medal or Clasp. Such application, stating the circumstances in which the loss occurred, will be forwarded to the Governor through the Superintendent of the Fire Brigade. If the explanation of the loss is considered satisfactory, the Medal or Clasp may be replaced on payment or otherwise.

Replacement of Medal and Clasp in event of loss.

THE COLONIAL POLICE LONG SERVICE MEDAL
FALKLAND ISLANDS

In exercise of the powers conferred on him by Royal Warrant dated the 21st day of March 1956 as amended by Royal Warrant dated the 14th day of July 1971, the Governor with the approval of a Secretary of State, has made the following regulations governing the award of the Colonial Police Long Service Medal to members of the Police Force of the Colony in replacement of the regulations published in the Gazette Vol. LXVII No. 11 on the 1st day of September 1958, which are hereby revoked.

(2) Service in Her Majesty's Armed Forces or Merchant Navy whether on secondment, on recall or when called upon to serve may be allowed to reckon towards the required period of qualifying service, provided that such military or Merchant Navy service interrupted and was continuous with qualifying Police service.

Exemplary character.

4. (1) For the purposes of these regulations service shall be reckoned as qualifying service only if it is certified that the character and conduct of the person recommended for the grant of the Medal or Clasp has been exemplary.

(2) Exemplary character means a record clear of any serious offence or persistent minor offences. Provided that the Officer in Charge of Police notwithstanding recorded offences, may recommend an award where general conduct and character merit such recommendation and always provided that no serious offence has been committed during the last five years of the qualifying period of service.

5. Recommendations for the award of the Medal or Clasp shall be submitted by the Officer in Charge of Police to the Governor. The Medal will be awarded on the authority of the Governor and a notification of such award shall be published in the Gazette.

Recommending authority.

6. (1) A recipient of the Medal or Clasp who is convicted of a criminal offence or is dismissed or removed from the Police Force for misconduct shall forfeit the Medal or Clasp unless the Governor shall otherwise direct.

Forfeiture and restoration.

(2) A Medal or Clasp so forfeited may be restored to the recipient by the Governor at his discretion.

(3) A notice of forfeiture or restoration shall in every case be published in the Gazette.

7. In the event of loss, application may be made for replacement of the Medal or Clasp. Such application, stating the circumstances in which the loss occurred, will be forwarded to the Governor through the Officer in Charge of Police. If the explanation of the loss is considered satisfactory the Medal or Clasp may be replaced on payment or otherwise.

Replacement of Medal and Clasp in event of loss.

AGR/10/4.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government, the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd., and the General Employees Union. The agreement shall be effective for the period from the 2nd November 1972 to 31st December 1973, and shall apply to hourly paid employees in Stanley.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	39.5p
2. *Apprentices	1st year 24p
	2nd year 25.5p
	3rd year 27.5p
	4th year 30.5p
	5th year 33.5p
3. Handymen	34p to 38p according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	33.5p
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	34.5p
6. Labourers	Hourly Rate.
	Age
	14-15 17.5p
	15-16 20.5p
	16-17 24.5p
	17-18 28p
	18 and over 33p

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.

3. Extra Payments.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 2p per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 4p to 7½p per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 10p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 1½p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 1½p per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 2½p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 40 hours per week made up as follows -

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 40 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows -

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 - (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 - (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 - (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 - (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 40-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Holidays.(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following eight days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

New Year's Day, Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday and Commonwealth Day, October Bank Holiday, Anniversary of Battle of Falkland Islands, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Annual Stanley Sports Meeting.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

7. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed one year's service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.

- (b) There shall be no entitlement to sick pay for the first three days of sickness.

- (c) If sickness lasts for more than three days an employee shall be entitled to the following sick pay commencing after the expiry of the first three days of sickness -

- (i) Employees who have completed one year's service with their employer -

Full pay for the first week.

Half pay for the second and third weeks.

- (ii) Employees who have completed three year's service with their employer -

Full pay for the first two weeks.

Half pay for the third and fourth weeks.

- (d) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (e) An employer may demand a medical certificate before making any payment in respect of sick pay.
- (f) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work.

8. General.

- (a) Employment is normally terminated, either by employer or employee, at the end of the working week, but employment may be terminated at the end of any working day. A minimum of two hours' notice shall be given, except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed.

- (b) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.

- (c) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.

- (d) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.

- (e) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.

A Bill for An Ordinance Further to amend the Live Stock Ordinance.

Title.

Date of commencement.

(19)

Enacting clause.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Live Stock (Amendment) Ordinance 1972, and shall come into operation on the day of 197 .

Amendment of section 2.
(Cap. 40)

2. Section 2 of the Live Stock Ordinance (hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance) is amended by deleting the definition of "Dipping" and substituting therefor the following new definition—

" "Dipping" means the subjection of sheep to effective tick and ked destroying preparation (in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendations) by means of immersion or by such other means or in such other manner as may be approved by the Governor in Council or, with reference to lice, scab, or itch-mite in sheep, means the subjection of sheep to effective lice, scab, or itchmite destroying preparation by such means or in such manner as may be approved by the Governor in Council."

Amendment of section 3.

3. Section 3 of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting "No inspector shall either directly or indirectly, be an owner of or dealer in sheep or act as the agent of any farmer, under a penalty for any such offence not exceeding £50." and substituting therefor the following —

"No inspector shall be actively engaged in sheepfarming."

Amendment of section 7.

4. Section 7 of the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting "the sum of four shillings per day and night" and substituting therefor the following —

"the boarding charge as in the Sheepowners' Association Ltd. and the General Employees Union Agreement in force at the time."

5. Section 8 of the principal Ordinance is amended, in subsection (3), by deleting "agemark" and substituting therefor the following —

Amendment of section 8.

"marks other than those used for stud identification purposes."

6. Section 10 of the principal Ordinance is amended in paragraph (3) by inserting at the beginning thereof the following —

Amendment of section 10.

"wilfully with intent to mutilate."

7. Section 11 of the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced by the following —

Repeal and replacement of section 11.

"Compulsory dipping.

11. (1) Every owner shall dip or cause to be dipped with an insecticidal dip approved by an inspector all sheep running on land whereof he is the occupier as soon as they are shorn and before any sheep is allowed to leave the shearing pens after having been shorn, by means of a spray, shower or plunge-dip.

(2) Between the 1st day of March and the 30th day of June in every year, every owner shall dip or cause to be dipped with an insecticidal dip approved by an inspector all sheep running on land whereof he is the occupier, by means of plunge dipping:

Provided that —

- (a) for purposes previously approved in writing by the inspector, the inspector may advance or extend, for not more than 30 days, the period during which sheep must be dipped;
- (b) with the approval of the Governor in Council and subject to such conditions as may be imposed by the Governor in Council, the period during which sheep must be dipped may be advanced or extended for experimental purposes.

(3) Any person who contravenes the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pence for every sheep in the flock not dipped".

8. The principal Ordinance is amended by the addition, after section 11, of the following new section —

Addition of new section 11A.

"Exemption from dipping.

11A. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 11 of this Ordinance an inspector may —

- (a) exempt the owner of any island from dipping if the sheep examined by him on that island are found to be free from tick, ked, lice, scab or itchmite, for a period of five years; provided that any sheep brought on to that island are plunge-dipped on arrival no matter what the time of the year;
- (b) exempt the owner of any mainland station from dipping in any one year, if the sheep are found to be free from tick, ked, lice, scab and itchmite, provided that:
 - (i) prior agreement in writing for such exemption is obtained from the owner of every station that has a boundary with the station occupied by the applicant;
 - (ii) in case of a dispute between the applicant and any one or more of his neighbours, the inspector is satisfied that the boundary fence between the disputing parties is in good repair and that any flock that will be running on the applicant's side of the boundary is free from tick, ked, lice, scab and itchmite;

(iii) where an owner considers that any section of boundary fence which is the responsibility of a neighbour, to be in a state of bad repair, he may have it examined by an inspector and if the inspector is satisfied that the fence requires attention, then the complaining owner may carry out the repairs or renewal required and recover the full costs of such repairs or renewal from the neighbour whose responsibility that fence repair or renewal was.

(2) An application for exemption from the provisions of subsection (1) of section 11 of this Ordinance must be made not later than the 15th day of October in any year.

(3) An application for exemption from the provisions of subsection (2) of section 11 of this Ordinance must be made not later than the 14th day of February in any year."

Amendment of section 24.

9. Section 24 of the principal Ordinance is amended —

- (a) by being renumbered as subsection (1) thereof;
- (b) by the insertion of the following new subsection —

"(2) Any person who leaves a travelling sheep which is ailing or disabled alive on any station which the sheep is crossing shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £10."

Amendment of schedule.

10. The Schedule to the principal Ordinance is amended in Form 4 by deleting the words "nett lbs" where those words twice occur and substituting therefor the words "nett kilos".

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to implement recommendations made by the Sheepowners Association Limited in conjunction with the Agricultural Advisory Team which recently visited the Colony for the control and eradication of keds on sheep.

(No. 15 of 1964)

ORDER

(Under section 4 of the Ordinance)

No. 1 of 1973.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 4 of the Wild Animals and Birds Protection Ordinance 1964, the Governor in Council has made the following Order —

1. This Order may be cited as the Wild Animals and Birds Protection (Stanley Common and Cape Pembroke Peninsula) Order 1973.

2. The area known as Stanley Common and Cape Pembroke Peninsula to be a wild animal and bird sanctuary.

3. That any person who within the said area at any time wilfully kills, injures, or takes, or attempts to kill, or take any wild animal or bird shall be guilty of an offence against the Wild Animals and Birds Protection Ordinance 1964.

4. That any person who introduces into the said area any carnivorous animal shall be guilty of an offence against the said Ordinance.

5. That any person guilty of an offence under this Order shall be liable to the penalty prescribed in section 4 of the said Ordinance.

Made by the Governor in Council this 18th day of January 1973.

R. BROWNING,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

“Brigade” means the Stanley Fire Brigade;

“Cemetery” means the Stanley Cemetery and additions thereto and all buildings used in connection therewith;

“Fire appliances” means engines for extinguishing fires, fire escapes, fire hydrants, pumps, pipes, water buckets and other implements for use in the case of fire, or any of them;

PART I — FIRE BRIGADE

Appointment of Committee.

3. (1) The Governor shall appoint a Committee of not less than three persons to supervise all matters in connection with the Brigade, and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place.

(2) The Governor may nominate from amongst the Committee such person as he may think fit to be Chairman.

Appointment of Officers.

4. The Governor shall appoint a Superintendent for the routine administration of the Brigade, together with such other officers as he may deem necessary, and may prescribe their powers and functions.

Responsibilities of Committee.

5. (1) The Committee shall be responsible for —

- (a) the maintenance of appliances and any replacements thereof or additions thereto in a good and serviceable condition;
- (b) the purchase of appliances as and when the same are required;
- (c) the purchase, maintenance or hire of motor vehicles for drawing fire appliances;
- (d) the building, provision or lease of buildings or premises for keeping motor vehicles and fire appliances;
- (e) control and maintenance of an efficient Brigade;
- (f) appointment and pay of men to act as firemen;
- (g) payment of rewards to firemen and other persons for exertion in the case of fire and compensation for loss suffered by them in so doing.

(2) Expenses incurred in the exercise of the above powers shall be regarded as expenses for the maintenance and general upkeep of the Brigade and shall be defrayed out of general revenues.

Charge to shipowners.

6. The owner of or agent for any ship in respect of which the services of the Brigade have been required shall pay to the Government the actual expenses incurred by the Brigade on the occasion and a reasonable sum for the use of fire appliances and the attendance of firemen. In the event of dispute between the Government and such owner or agent as to the sum to be paid the amount shall finally be settled by the Senior Magistrate.

Measures to prevent spread of fire.

7. Any police constable acting under the orders of his superior officer or any firemen may enter and if necessary break into any building being or reasonably supposed to be on fire, or any land adjoining or near thereto, without the consent of the owner or occupier thereof, and may do all acts and things they may deem necessary for extinguishing fire in any such building or for protecting the same or rescuing any person or property therein from fire.

Inspector.

8. The Governor may at any time appoint an Inspector who shall have full power to test the Brigade as to its efficiency and to inspect and test all fire appliances. The Inspector so appointed shall submit a report thereon to the Governor and steps shall forthwith be taken to remedy all such inefficiency and defects as the Governor shall require.

Power to fix fire hydrant plates.

9. Upon giving seven days' notice in writing to the owner of any property situate in the vicinity of a fire hydrant, the Superintendent may cause a plate indicating the location of such fire hydrant to be fixed to such part of the property as may, in the opinion of the Superintendent be best suited to indicate the location.

Power to make regulations.

10. The Governor in Council may by regulation provide for —

- (a) the making and issue of reports and certificates regarding—
 - (i) fires attended by the Brigade;
 - (ii) premises, vessels or other property damaged by fire;

- (iii) matters relating to fire risk or fire precautions in or connected with any premises, vessel or other property, and fees to be charged in relation thereto;
- (b) generally, for the carrying into effect of the provisions of the Part of this Ordinance in relation to any matter, whether similar or not to those in this section mentioned, as to which it may be convenient to make regulations.

11. Any person who —

- (1) assaults, resists, impedes or obstructs a fireman in the discharge of his duty;
- (2) wilfully damages any fire appliances;
- (3) gives or causes to be given any false alarm of fire to the Brigade;
- (4) refuses to allow the fixing of a fire hydrant location plate as referred to in section 9 or obstructs any person in the course of the fixing thereof or removes or defaces any such plate after it has been so fixed;

Offences.

shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding £200 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months and in addition shall pay the cost of any damage occasioned by such offence.

PART II — CEMETERY

12. The Cemetery shall vest in the Government, which shall undertake its maintenance and control.

Vesting of Cemetery.

13. (1) The Governor may appoint a Board of Visitors of not less than three persons, to supervise all matters connected with the cemetery, and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place.

Board of visitors.

(2) The Governor may nominate from amongst the members of the Board such person as he may think fit to be Chairman.

14. The Governor may appoint a fit and proper person to be Caretaker of the cemetery, who shall have the custody and charge thereof.

Caretaker.

15. The Board shall from time to time visit and inspect the cemetery, and bring to the notice of the Governor any matter which may in their opinion affect its maintenance, the maintenance of good order therein and the condition and appearance thereof.

Inspection of cemetery.

16. No dwelling house other than the caretaker's house shall be built within 100 feet of the outer wall or boundary of the cemetery.

Prohibition of dwelling houses near cemetery.

17. The Governor may permit a chapel to be built in the cemetery for the performance of the burial service.

Chapel.

18. The Governor shall permit part of the cemetery to be consecrated and shall maintain part of the cemetery exclusively for the burial of Roman Catholics.

Consecrated ground.

19. The Governor may —

Exclusive rights of burial.

- (1) define such parts of the cemetery as he shall deem fit for the purpose of granting exclusive rights of burial therein.
- (2) grant or sell the exclusive right of one or more burials in any such parts either in perpetuity or for a limited time.
- (3) grant or sell the right of placing a monument, gravestone or enclosure in any such part or a tablet or other inscription on the walls of any Chapel or other building in the cemetery.

20. (1) The grant of exclusive right of burial or right of placing a monument, gravestone, enclosure, tablet or other inscription as provided by section 17 shall be in the Form A in the Schedule hereto.

Grant of exclusive right of burial.

(2) Every assignment of an exclusive right of burial shall be in the Form B in the Schedule hereto and shall when executed within the Colony be registered with the Registrar General at the Central Registry within two months of execution, or when executed outside the Colony be registered with the Registrar General at the Central Registry within six months of the date of execution otherwise it shall be void and of no effect.

(3) No body shall be buried in any place in respect of which an exclusive right of burial has been granted without the consent of the grantee thereof.

(4) No grant of the exclusive right of burial shall give the right to bury within the consecrated part of the cemetery the body of any person not entitled to be buried in consecrated ground according to the rights and usages of the Church of England or to place any monument, gravestone, tablet or other inscription respecting any such body within the consecrated part of the cemetery.

Plan and register.

21. (1) The Governor shall cause to be kept and maintained at the Secretariat a plan of the cemetery on a scale sufficiently large to show the site of every place reserved for exclusive right of burial and the numbers thereof, which shall be entered in a register to be kept exclusively for that purpose of the names and descriptions of the persons to whom exclusive right of burial has been granted.

(2) A fee of £12 shall be payable for the registration of the assignment of the exclusive right of burial in such register.

Maintenance of good order and appearance of cemetery.

22. (1) The Board may for the purpose of maintaining the good order and appearance of the cemetery exercise the following powers —

- (a) to remove stones, bricks and other material of monuments and memorials of the dead which have fallen from their places;
- (b) to remove rails which form part of the memorials or monuments of the dead which are in a ruinous condition;
- (c) to arrange the materials of monuments and memorials of the dead, which have become ruinous or dilapidated so as to render them less unsightly in appearance.

(2) Any expenses incurred by the Board in the exercise of the above powers shall be regarded as expenses of the maintenance and upkeep of the cemetery, and shall be defrayed out of general revenues.

Power to remove monuments etc., improperly erected.

23. The Board may order the removal of any gravestone, monument, tablet or other inscription and any enclosure placed within the cemetery without its authority.

Penalties.

24. (1) Any person who shall wilfully destroy or injure any building, wall or fence belonging to the cemetery, or destroy or injure any plant therein, or who shall disfigure any wall thereof or put up any bill therein or in any wall thereof, or wilfully destroy, injure or deface any monument, tablet, inscription, or gravestone or other enclosure within the cemetery, or do any wilful damage therein, shall commit an offence and shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding £200 in addition to the cost of replacement or repair of the damage caused by him.

(2) Any person who shall play at any game or sport, or save at a military funeral, discharge firearms in the cemetery, or shall wilfully and unlawfully disturb any persons assembled in the cemetery for the purpose of burying any body therein, or who shall commit any nuisance within the cemetery, shall commit an offence and shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £20.

Rules.

25. The Governor may from time to time make rules for the use, control, and upkeep of the cemetery, and for regulating the fees and payments to be made and received for vaults, graves and burials in the cemetery, and in respect of the right of erecting therein any monument, gravestone, tablet or monumental inscription, and in respect of any other matters.

PART III

TOWN HALL, PUBLIC LIBRARY AND MUSEUM

26. The Town Hall, Public Library and Museum shall be deemed to be vested in the Government in trust for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Colony, together with all books, papers, manuscripts and documents now forming the Public Library, and all objects, trophies and specimens now forming the Public Museum. Maintenance of Town Hall, etc.
27. (1) The Governor may appoint a Committee for the control and management of the Town Hall, Public Library and Museum, which shall consist of not less than three members, and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place. Committee.
- (2) The Governor may nominate from amongst the members of the Committee such person as he may think fit as Chairman.
28. The Committee shall be empowered to purchase and receive gifts of such papers, documents, objects, trophies and specimens as may from time to time be required or offered. Powers of Committee.
29. The Committee may make charges for admission to the Public Museum, and for the use or hire of books, papers and documents in the Public Library, and may impose such fines in connection therewith as it may decide. Charges and fines.
30. The Committee shall be responsible for the efficient maintenance and control of the Town Hall. Town Hall.
31. The Governor in Council may make rules generally, for the carrying into effect of the provisions of this part of this Ordinance in relation to any matters, as to which it may be convenient to make rules. Rules.

to be transferred to the central Government.

A Bill for
An Ordinance

To authorise the levy of a general rate and a water rate in Stanley. Title.

(1st July 1973) Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Stanley Rates Ordinance 1973, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1973. Short title and commencement.

2. In this Ordinance unless the context otherwise requires — Definitions.

“Court” means the Supreme Court;

“Domestic purposes” means ordinary and reasonable purposes of domestic life and shall include the use of water for fixed baths, water closets, urinals, hot water, heating, washing cars and carriages and for the watering of gardens forming part of the amenities of the house;

“Financial Secretary” means the officer in charge of the Treasury of the Colony;

“Premises” means any lands, tenements, hereditaments or property in Stanley which are or may become liable to a rate, in respect of which the valuation list is conclusive;

“Rate” means a rate the proceeds of which are applicable to purposes of a public nature in Stanley and which is leviable on the basis of an assessment in respect of the annual value of premises in Stanley;

“Stanley” means the area described in the First Schedule to this Ordinance.

Administration.

3. (1) This Ordinance shall be administered and rates collected by the Financial Secretary on behalf of the Government.

(2) The Governor may from time to time appoint such other officers, who shall be persons holding public office in the Government service of the Colony, as he may think necessary for the purposes of this Ordinance.

Accounting and collection.

4. The Financial Secretary shall be responsible for the assessment and collection of rates, and shall pay all amounts collected in respect thereof into the Treasury for the credit of general revenues.

PART I — GENERAL RATELiability for general rate.

5. A rate shall be made and levied by the Governor in Council on the owners (except as hereinafter mentioned) of all premises and shall be assessed on the net annual value of all such premises:

Provided that an owner shall be liable to be rated although the premises are unoccupied at the time of assessment of the rate:

Provided also that where rates due are in arrear the Financial Secretary may serve upon any person paying rent in respect of the premises so rated or any part thereof a notice stating the amount of such arrears and requiring all future payments of rent (whether the same have already accrued due or not) by the person paying the rent to be made direct to the Financial Secretary until such arrears shall have been duly paid, and such notice shall operate to transfer to the Financial Secretary the right to recover receive and give a discharge for such rent.

Part payment.

6. If the owner assessed or liable to such rates ceases to be the owner of the premises in respect whereof he is so assessed or liable before the end of the period for which the rate was made, or before it is fully paid off, he shall be liable to pay only such part of the rate as may be in proportion to the time during which he continues to be such owner. In every such case any person becoming owner or occupier of the premises during part of the said period shall pay such part of the rate as may be in proportion to the time during which he continues to be such owner, and it shall be recovered from him in the same manner as if he had been originally assessed or liable.

Exemptions.

7. The following premises and the owners and occupiers thereof are exempt from rateability —

- (a) The property of the Crown;
- (b) Property occupied by the Crown for the purposes of government of the Colony (including property occupied by the Falkland Islands Defence Force);
- (c) Every church, chapel or similar building used and maintained exclusively for the public celebration of divine service and not being part of any premises used for human habitation:

Provided that no such church, chapel or like building so used and maintained as aforesaid shall be deemed or taken to be part of premises for human habitation by reason only that it communicates therewith.

Rate may be prospective or retrospective.

8. A rate may be made and levied either prospectively in order to raise money for the payment of expenses to be incurred within one year thereafter, or retrospectively in order to raise money for the payment of expenses incurred within one year previously, and at such rate of assessment as the Governor in Council may think fit and as is authorised by this Ordinance, from which rate of assessment there shall be no appeal.

9. A rate shall be made at a certain and equal rate assessed upon the net annual value of all premises liable to be assessed and rated, that is to say, at the rate of one or more new pence or fractions of a new penny for every pound of the net annual value.

Assessment.

10. A rate shall contain every particular required under the form set out in the Second Schedule hereto, so far as such particulars can be ascertained, and shall be signed at the foot thereof by the Financial Secretary, and unless the same be so signed it shall be of no force or effect.

Form of general rate.

11. A rate shall be due on the 1st day of July in each year and shall be paid in advance.

When rate due.

12. Any person who shall remove from any premises in respect of which he may be rated and assessed and leave any rate unpaid, or who shall remove any of his goods from any premises in order to avoid a distress thereon, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding £100.

Penalty for rate arrears.

13. The Financial Secretary may reduce or remit the payment of any rate on account of the poverty of any person liable to the payment thereof.

Rate remission.

14. (1) The Financial Secretary shall permit every rated inhabitant of Stanley, and every other person authorised in writing by the Governor, to inspect at all reasonable hours every rate made by him, and every account required to be kept by him, paying five new pence for each rate or account inspected, and the Financial Secretary shall on demand give a copy of or extract from any rate or account to any such inhabitant or other person paying one new penny for every hundred words or fraction thereof.

Rates may be inspected.

(2) All moneys received by the Financial Secretary for any inspection, copy of or extract from any rate or account shall be credited to general revenues.

15. The Financial Secretary shall within seven days after the making of a rate give notice thereof by publishing the notice in any newspaper circulating in Stanley and by causing the notice to be affixed on the public notice boards in Stanley and by local broadcast, and the rate shall not be valid until notice is duly given.

Publication of rate.

16. (1) Information on the following matters shall be included in the demand note on which the rate is levied —

Demand notes.

- (a) such description as is reasonably necessary for identification of the premises in respect of which the demand note is issued;
- (b) the net annual value;
- (c) the amount in the pound at which the rate is charged;
- (d) the period in respect of which the rate is made;
- (e) particulars as to any discount admissible for prompt payment.

(2) A demand note may include a demand for any water or other rate, rent or charge payable to the Government.

(3) A demand note shall be sufficiently authenticated if signed by the Financial Secretary.

17. Whenever the payment of any rate falls into arrear a sum equal to 5 per centum of the amount of the rate payable shall be added thereto and the provisions of the Ordinance relating to the collection and recovery of rates shall apply to the collection and recovery of such sum.

Penalty for rates in arrear.

Assessment Committee.

18. The Governor shall appoint an Assessment Committee consisting of five members two of whom shall not be officers in the public service of the Colony, and shall appoint a person to fill any casual vacancy caused by death resignation disqualification or otherwise.

Functions of Assessment Committee.

19. The Assessment Committee shall —

- (1) maintain a book containing particulars of all premises in Stanley, and shall make such alterations therein as may be required from time to time, and from the particulars therein contained prepare a draft valuation list.
- (2) on the 1st day of May in every year and not otherwise except by order of the Court devise and forward to the Financial Secretary the draft valuation list.
- (3) hold meetings to consider any objection under section 20 made to the draft valuation list and may make such alterations insertions and corrections in the list whether for the purpose of meeting an objection or for other reason as they think proper.

Preparation of draft valuation list and objections.

20. The Financial Secretary shall forthwith on receipt of the draft valuation list as provided in section 19 (2) cause a notice to be published in the manner prescribed for publication of a rate in section 15 that the draft valuation list may be inspected at the Treasury during the usual office hours and that any person aggrieved by any assessment therein or omission therefrom may lodge an objection within 21 days from such notice.

Valuation conclusive subject to appeal.

21. After the expiration of 21 days from the notice provided for in section 20, should there be no objection to the draft valuation list, or from the notification by the Assessment Committee to the Financial Secretary of its decision on all such objections, the draft valuation list shall, subject to any appeal provided for in section 24 and to any amendment that may be ordered by the Court, be conclusive evidence of the net annual value of all premises therein mentioned for all purposes of rating and assessment.

Power of Financial Secretary to amend rate.

22. (1) The Financial Secretary may at any time make such amendments in a rate (being either the current or the last preceding rate) as appears to him necessary in order to make the rate conform with the provisions of this Ordinance or any amendment thereof and in particular may —

- (a) correct any clerical or arithmetical error in the rate;
- (b) correct any erroneous insertions or omissions or any misdescription;
- (c) make such additions to or corrections in the rate as appear to be necessary by reason of —
 - (i) any newly erected premises or any premises which were unoccupied at the time of making the rate coming into occupation; or
 - (ii) any premises previously rated on a single premise becoming liable to be rated in parts;

Provided that not less than seven days before making any such amendment the effect of which is to alter the amount appearing in the rate as chargeable in respect of any premises, the Financial Secretary shall send notice of the proposed amendment to the owner of the premises, and to the occupier if he is liable to pay the rate, and shall consider any objection which may be made by him or them.

(2) Every amendment under paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of the preceding subsection shall have effect as if it were contained in the rate as originally made.

23. (1) Any member of the Assessment Committee may at all reasonable hours of the day, having given one clear day's notice in writing, enter any premises for the purpose of discharging his duties and remain therein so long as may be necessary for that purpose, and any person preventing or hindering such member from entering or remaining as aforesaid shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to a daily penalty of £5.

Powers of Assessment Committee: entry and returns.

(2) The Assessment Committee may at any time require the owner of any premises to make a return containing such particulars as may reasonably be required for the purpose of carrying out this Ordinance within 21 days after the service of the notice calling upon him so to do, and any person who fails without reasonable excuse to comply with such notice shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding £20, and to a further penalty not exceeding £2 for each day during which the default continues after conviction, and any person who makes or causes to be made a return which is false in any material particular shall be liable on summary conviction in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding £50.

24. Any person aggrieved by —

Appeals.

- (a) any assessment or rate;
- (b) any order or requirement of the Financial Secretary or Assessment Committee under this Ordinance;
- (c) any conviction or order of the Magistrate's Court or of a Court of Summary Jurisdiction registered or made under this Ordinance;
- (d) the refusal of the Magistrate's Court or a Court of Summary Jurisdiction to convict or make an order under this Ordinance may within one month after such grievance shall have arisen appeal to the Court in manner prescribed by the Administration of Justice Ordinance or any amendment or re-enactment thereof:

(Cap. 3)

Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to authorise an appeal against the rate or assessment hereby authorised unless the same shall be unequal.

25. (1) The Chief Secretary may within one month from the date of the valuation list appeal to the Court against any assessment in or omission from the said list.

Appeals by Chief Secretary.

(2) The Chief Secretary may appeal against the making, registering, or omitting to make an order by the Financial Secretary or Assessment Committee in prejudice, abridgment or derogation from the rights or privileges of Her Majesty or the duties powers or authorities vested in the Governor, within one month of the making of such neglect or omissions.

(3) The Chief Secretary shall not be required to enter into a recognisance to prosecute an appeal.

26. The Court may cause the order of the Court in an appeal to be recorded on the valuation list and the decision upon any appeal shall be conclusive and binding on all parties thereto.

Order of Court.

27. Where there is no provision for the service of notice of appeal or statement of the grounds of appeal the Court may direct upon whom and the manner in which service shall be made.

Service of notice.

28. (1) Any person liable to pay a rate who fails to pay the same when due, or quits or is about to quit any premises without payment of a rate then due, may be summoned to appear before a Court of Summary Jurisdiction to show cause why such rate should not be paid. If the defaulter fails to appear or show sufficient cause for non-payment such Court may make an order for the payment of the same and may by warrant cause the same to be levied by distress on the goods or chattels of the defaulter.

Summary proceedings for recovery of rate.

(2) The costs of the recovery of arrears may be added to such arrears.

Charge on premises.

29. (1) Where any rate shall remain unpaid the Financial Secretary may apply to the Magistrate's Court or to a Court of Summary Jurisdiction for an order that the amount of rate remaining unpaid together with the costs caused by attempting to collect the same shall be a first charge on the premises and such Court is hereby empowered to make such order.

(2) An order made under this section shall be registered with the Registrar General at Stanley before it shall become effective.

PART II — WATER RATE

Water rate.

30. (1) A water rate may be made and levied by the Governor in Council on the owners of all premises in respect of all water supplied for domestic purposes and shall be assessed on the net annual value of all such premises.

Domestic purposes.

Non-domestic charges.

(2) Where water is supplied to ships a fixed rate of 20p per ton shall be charged:

Provided that the Governor in Council may from time to time require a fixed charge in respect of any premises or class of premises to which water is supplied for a non-domestic purpose or vary or cancel any fixed charge in respect of water so supplied subject to public notice being given of such order as provided in section 15.

Supply by meter.

31. (1) The Financial Secretary may, public notice of which shall be given as hereinbefore provided, require water to be supplied by measure to any ship or premises or class of premises and may recover any money payable in respect thereof in the same manner as water rates.

Lease or sale of meters.

(2) When water is supplied by measure the Financial Secretary shall, at the option of the consumer, sell or let for hire at such economical rate as he shall decide, a meter or other instrument for measuring the quantity of water supplied and consumed and the purchase price or rent shall be recoverable in the same manner as water rates.

Power of entry.

(3) When water is supplied by measure the Financial Secretary or officers acting on his behalf may between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. enter any premises so supplied in order to inspect any meter or any other instrument or apparatus for measuring water, or for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of water supplied or consumed and for the purpose of removing any meter or other apparatus the property of the Government and any person hindering such officer from entering for any of such purposes shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £5 for each offence.

Exemptions, recovery of rates etc.

32. The provisions of Part I of this Ordinance relating to exemptions, assessment, when rate is due, penalty for leaving premises when rate is in arrear, demand notes and recovery of arrears of rates including charging premises shall be applicable to the water rate as if the same had been expressly made in respect thereof.

Power to cut off supply.

33. The Financial Secretary may in addition to any other remedy for the recovery of water rate in arrear herein contained order the stoppage of the flow of water into the premises in respect of which such rate is payable by cutting the pipe to such premises or by such other means as he may think fit and may recover the cost of such cutting off and of any re-connection in addition to the arrears of water rate:

Provided that the Financial Secretary shall before serving notice of intention to cut off require the occupier to pay water rate in arrear in accordance with the second proviso to section 5 and the provisions thereof shall be applicable to the water rate as if the same had been expressly made in respect thereof.

PART III — GENERAL

water between any pumping station, reservoir, tank and filterbed which is or may become the property of the Government.

3. (1) The Governor may appoint any person to be Water Water Authority.
Authority.

(2) The duties of the Water Authority shall include the management of the waterworks, the control of all matters relating thereto, and the maintenance in Stanley of existing mains and public fittings in good and serviceable condition, and the supply and maintenance of such further mains and public fittings as may from time to time be required.

Power of Water
Authority.

4. (1) The Water Authority or any person acting under his directions may —

- (a) at all reasonable hours enter in and upon any land, hereditaments and premises to inspect and repair any pipe, fittings or other appliance;
- (b) after twenty-one days' notice to the owner or occupier thereof enter on any land and lay pipes and other appliances on or through such land, making compensation to the owner or occupier for all damages sustained by him or them by reason of the exercise of the said powers; such compensation, in the absence of agreement to be determined by arbitration as provided by the Land Ordinance.

(Cap. 36)

(2) The Water Authority or any person acting under his directions may at any time diminish, withhold, suspend or divert the supply of water either wholly or in part whenever it may be expedient or necessary for the purpose of conserving the supply of water, or for extending, altering or repairing the waterworks, and in particular may cut off the supply of water to private property in Stanley —

- (a) whenever any nuisance liable to pollute the water supply or cause damage to the waterworks exists on that property or in any fittings therein or thereon until such nuisance has been remedied to the satisfaction of the Water Authority, or
- (b) whenever any fittings are out of repair or have not been approved by the Water Authority or are liable to pollute the water supply and the necessary repairs or alterations have not been effected to the satisfaction of the Water Authority within the period prescribed in the written notice by the Water Authority to the owner or occupier of such property, or
- (c) whenever the available supply is insufficient by reason of drought or any other unavoidable circumstance, or
- (d) whenever it shall be necessary to repair, clean or alter the waterworks or any fittings, or
- (e) whenever water is used for a purpose other than the purpose for which it is supplied, or
- (f) in the case of the continued breach or violation of any requirement of this Ordinance or of any regulation made thereunder.

New connections.

5. (1) Any owner of private property in Stanley who is desirous of laying or installing fittings shall apply to the Water Authority for approval thereof and shall lodge with the Water Authority such plans, specifications and other information as he may require.

(2) The laying or installation of fittings on private property shall be at the expense of the owner thereof.

(3) The Water Authority shall convey water to the boundary of private property in Stanley and shall connect the fittings of the owner thereof with the water mains, provided that no fittings shall be connected or installed until that same have been approved by the Water Authority.

(4) Any person who shall connect or instal, or cause to be connected or installed, any fittings in Stanley without the approval of the Water Authority first obtained shall commit an offence.

6. The Water Authority shall give notice to the owner of private property on which any defective fittings are situate requiring such owner to repair such defective fittings to the satisfaction of the Water Authority and in case of non-compliance with such notice the Water Authority may execute such repairs and charge the said owner with the cost thereof and in addition an amount equal to twenty per centum of such cost.

Repair of defective fittings.

7. The Water Authority may perform any work on behalf of a private person in connection with the laying, installation, maintenance or repair of any fittings in Stanley, and shall receive in payment from such person the actual cost of the work and in addition an amount not exceeding ten per centum of the actual cost.

Work performed on behalf of private persons.

8. No person shall take water from the public fountains for any other than a domestic purpose.

PROCLAMATION

No. 2 of 1973

IN THE NAME of Her Majesty ELIZABETH II., by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Her other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

T. H. LAYNG

By His Excellency THOMAS HENRY LAYNG, ESQUIRE, Acting Governor of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS by the seventh clause of the Letters Patent passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, dated the 13th December 1948, constituting the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, it is provided that "whenever the Office of Governor is vacant, or the Governor is absent from the Colony or is from any cause prevented from, or incapable of, acting in the duties of his Office, then such other person as We may appoint under Our Sign Manual and Signet, or if there is no such person in the Colony so appointed and capable of discharging the duties of the administration, the Senior Member of the Executive Council then in the Colony and so capable, shall, during Our pleasure, administer the Government of the Colony".

AND WHEREAS HIS EXCELLENCY ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, ESQUIRE, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, has this day left the Colony on leave of absence.

AND WHEREAS no person has been appointed under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet to administer the Government of this Colony in the absence of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, THOMAS HENRY LAYNG, Chief Secretary of the Falkland Islands, the Senior Member of the Executive Council aforesaid, do hereby proclaim and make known that, in pursuance of the said clause of the said Royal Letters Patent and having taken the oaths prescribed by law, I have this day assumed the Administration of the Government of this Colony and its Dependencies.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Given at Stanley, this 28th day of May, in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-three.

Laid before Parliament	17th March 1971
Coming into Operation	18th March 1971

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 11th day of March 1971

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Her Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred upon Her by section 6 of the Merchant Shipping Act 1965 (a) and all other powers enabling Her in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

1. (1) This Order may be cited as the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) (Overseas Territories) Order 1971.

(2) This Order shall come into operation on 18th March 1971.

2. (1) In this Order, except in so far as the context otherwise requires —

“the Act” or “this Act” means, in relation to any of the territories mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order, the Merchant Shipping Act 1965 as extended to that territory;

“Governor” means the Governor of the territory and includes any person or persons administering the government of the territory;

“the principal Act” means the Merchant Shipping Act 1894 (b);

“the territory” means, in relation to any of the territories mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order, that territory.

(2) If under the law in force in the territory another authority has been substituted for the Exchequer as respects that territory in section 83 of the principal Act, the reference to the Exchequer in section 1 (4) of the Act shall be construed in relation to that territory as a reference to such substituted authority; and if under such law another authority has been substituted for the Board of Trade as respects the territory in section 84 of the principal Act, the reference to the Board of Trade in item 1 in Schedule 1 to the Act shall be construed in relation to that territory as a reference to such substituted authority.

(3) The Interpretation Act 1889 (c) shall apply, with the necessary adaptations, for the purpose of interpreting this Order and otherwise in relation thereto as it applies for the purpose of interpreting, and in relation to, Acts of Parliament.

3. The provisions of sections 1, 7 and 8 (2) and (4) of, and Schedules 1 and 2 to, the Merchant Shipping Act 1965, modified and adapted as in Schedule 1 to this Order, shall extend to the territories mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Order.

4. The Merchant Shipping (Colonies etc.) Tonnage Measurement Order 1956 (d) is hereby revoked.

SCHEDULE 1 TO THE ORDER

Article 3.

Tonnage regulations.

1. (1) The tonnage of any ship to be registered under Part I of the principal Act shall be ascertained in accordance with regulations made by the Governor; and those regulations shall, as respects anything done after the commencement of this Act, be taken to be the provisions referred to in the principal Act as the tonnage regulations of that Act.

(2) Regulations under this section —

- (a) may make different provision for different descriptions of ships or for the same description of ships in different circumstances;
- (b) may make any provision thereof dependent on compliance with such conditions, to be evidenced in such manner, as may be specified in the regulations;
- (c) may provide for the ascertainment of any space to be taken into account for the purposes of section 85 of the principal Act (payment of dues where goods carried in spaces not forming part of registered tonnage) and may exempt any space from being taken into account for those purposes; and
- (d) may prohibit or restrict the carriage of goods or stores in spaces not included in the registered tonnage of a ship and may provide for making the master and the owner each liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds where such a prohibition or restriction is contravened.

(3) Regulations under this section may make provision for assigning to a ship, either instead of or as an alternative to the tonnage ascertained in accordance with the other provisions of the regulations, a lower tonnage applicable where the ship is not loaded to the full depth to which it can be safely loaded, and for indicating on the ship, by such mark as may be specified in the regulations, that such a lower tonnage has been assigned to it and, where it has been assigned to it as an alternative, the depth to which the ship may be loaded for the lower tonnage to be applicable.

(4) Regulations under this section may provide for the measurement and survey of ships to be undertaken, in such circumstances as may be specified in the regulations and notwithstanding sections 6 and 86 of the principal Act, by persons appointed by such organisations as may be authorised in that behalf by the Governor; and so much of section 83 of the principal Act and section 1 of the Merchant Shipping (Mercantile Marine Fund) Act 1898 (a) as requires the payment of fees into the Exchequer shall not apply to fees payable under the said section 83 to persons appointed in pursuance of this subsection.

(5) Regulations under this section may make provision for the alteration (notwithstanding section 82 of the principal Act) of the particulars relating to the registered tonnage of any ship registered before the coming into operation of the regulations.

(6) Regulations under this section may provide for the issue of documents certifying the registered tonnage of any ship or the tonnage which is to be taken for any purpose specified in the regulations as the tonnage of a ship not registered in the territory.

(7) For the purposes of this Act and without prejudice to the generality of the powers therein contained, any tonnage regulations made (whether before or after the coming into operation of this Act in the territory) by the Board of Trade or the Secretary of State under the provisions of this Act as in force in the United Kingdom shall, in so far as they relate to ships to be registered under Part I of the principal Act, and unless varied by or repugnant to regulations made by the Governor under this Act as extended to the territory, be deemed to be regulations made under this Act. Such regulations shall be read subject to the modifications set out in the next following subsection and to any further modifications which may be made thereto by the Governor.

(8) The modifications hereinbefore referred to are that, except where the context otherwise requires, references —

- (a) to the United Kingdom shall be taken as references to the territory;
- (b) to the Board of Trade, the Board or the Secretary of State shall be taken as references to the Governor;
- (c) to any Act (including this Act) or to any rules or regulations made under such an Act shall be taken as references to that Act, or, as the case may be, those rules or regulations, as in force in the territory.

7. (1) The enactments mentioned in Schedule 1 to this Act, in their application to the territory, and to ships registered in the territory shall have effect subject to the amendments specified in relation thereto in the second column of that Schedule, being minor amendments and amendments consequential on the foregoing provisions of this Act.

Amendments and repeals.

(2) The enactments mentioned in Schedule 2 to this Act, in their application to the territory, and to ships registered in the territory are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule.

Construction and Commencement.

8. (2) This Act shall be construed as one with the Merchant Shipping Acts 1894 to 1964 as in force in the territory.

(4) This Act shall come into operation on such day as the Governor may by order appoint.

An Ordinance

To authorise the levy of a general rate and a water rate in Stanley. Title.

(1st July 1973)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Stanley Rates Ordinance 1973, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1973. Short title and commencement.

2. In this Ordinance unless the context otherwise requires — Definitions.

“Court” means the Supreme Court;

“Domestic purposes” means ordinary and reasonable purposes of domestic life and shall include the use of water for fixed baths, water closets, urinals, hot water, heating, washing cars and carriages and for the watering of gardens forming part of the amenities of the house;

“Financial Secretary” means the officer in charge of the Treasury of the Colony;

“Premises” means any lands, tenements, hereditaments or property in Stanley which are or may become liable to a rate, in respect of which the valuation list is conclusive;

“Rate” means a rate the proceeds of which are applicable to purposes of a public nature in Stanley and which is leviable on the basis of an assessment in respect of the annual value of premises in Stanley;

“Stanley” means the area described in the First Schedule to this Ordinance.

Administration.

3. (1) This Ordinance shall be administered and rates collected by the Financial Secretary on behalf of the Government.

(2) The Governor may from time to time appoint such other officers, who shall be persons holding public office in the Government service of the Colony, as he may think necessary for the purposes of this Ordinance.

Accounting and collection.

4. The Financial Secretary shall be responsible for the assessment and collection of rates, and shall pay all amounts collected in respect thereof into the Treasury for the credit of general revenues.

PART I — GENERAL RATE

Liability for general rate.

5. A rate shall be made and levied by the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislature on the owners (except as hereinafter mentioned) of all premises and shall be assessed on the net annual value of all such premises:

Provided that an owner shall be liable to be rated although the premises are unoccupied at the time of assessment of the rate:

Provided also that where rates due are in arrear the Financial Secretary may serve upon any person paying rent in respect of the premises so rated or any part thereof a notice stating the amount of such arrears and requiring all future payments of rent (whether the same have already accrued due or not) by the person paying the rent to be made direct to the Financial Secretary until such arrears shall have been duly paid, and such notice shall operate to transfer to the Financial Secretary the right to recover receive and give a discharge for such rent.

Part payment.

6. If the owner assessed or liable to such rates ceases to be the owner of the premises in respect whereof he is so assessed or liable before the end of the period for which the rate was made, or before it is fully paid off, he shall be liable to pay only such part of the rate as may be in proportion to the time during which he continues to be such owner. In every such case any person becoming owner or occupier of the premises during part of the said period shall pay such part of the rate as may be in proportion to the time during which he continues to be such owner, and it shall be recovered from him in the same manner as if he had been originally assessed or liable.

Exemptions.

7. The following premises and the owners and occupiers thereof are exempt from rateability —

- (a) The property of the Crown;
- (b) Property occupied by the Crown for the purposes of government of the Colony (including property occupied by the Falkland Islands Defence Force);
- (c) Every church, chapel or similar building used and maintained exclusively for the public celebration of divine service and not being part of any premises used for human habitation:

Provided that no such church, chapel or like building so used and maintained as aforesaid shall be deemed or taken to be part of premises for human habitation by reason only that it communicates therewith.

Rate may be prospective or retrospective.

8. A rate may be made and levied either prospectively in order to raise money for the payment of expenses to be incurred within one year thereafter, or retrospectively in order to raise money for the payment of expenses incurred within one year previously, and at such rate of assessment as the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislature may think fit and as is authorised by this Ordinance, from which rate of assessment there shall be no appeal.

9. A rate shall be made at a certain and equal rate assessed upon the net annual value of all premises liable to be assessed and rated, that is to say, at the rate of one or more new pence or fractions of a new penny for every pound of the net annual value. Assessment.
10. A rate shall contain every particular required under the form set out in the Second Schedule hereto, so far as such particulars can be ascertained, and shall be signed at the foot thereof by the Financial Secretary, and unless the same be so signed it shall be of no force or effect. Form of general rate.
11. A rate shall be due on the 1st day of July in each year and shall be paid in advance. When rate due.
12. Any person who shall remove from any premises in respect of which he may be rated and assessed and leave any rate unpaid, or who shall remove any of his goods from any premises in order to avoid a distress thereon, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding £100. Penalty for rate arrears.
13. The Financial Secretary may reduce or remit the payment of any rate on account of the poverty of any person liable to the payment thereof. Rate remission.
14. (1) The Financial Secretary shall permit every rated inhabitant of Stanley, and every other person authorised in writing by the Governor, to inspect at all reasonable hours every rate made by him, and every account required to be kept by him, paying five new pence for each rate or account inspected, and the Financial Secretary shall on demand give a copy of or extract from any rate or account to any such inhabitant or other person paying one new penny for every hundred words or fraction thereof. Rates may be inspected.
- (2) All moneys received by the Financial Secretary for any inspection, copy of or extract from any rate or account shall be credited to general revenues.
15. The Financial Secretary shall within seven days after the making of a rate give notice thereof by publishing the notice in any newspaper circulating in Stanley and by causing the notice to be affixed on the public notice boards in Stanley and by local broadcast, and the rate shall not be valid until notice is duly given. Publication of rate.
16. (1) Information on the following matters shall be included in the demand note on which the rate is levied — Demand notes.
- (a) such description as is reasonably necessary for identification of the premises in respect of which the demand note is issued;
 - (b) the net annual value;
 - (c) the amount in the pound at which the rate is charged;
 - (d) the period in respect of which the rate is made;
 - (e) particulars as to any discount admissible for prompt payment.
- (2) A demand note may include a demand for any water or other rate, rent or charge payable to the Government.
- (3) A demand note shall be sufficiently authenticated if signed by the Financial Secretary.
17. Whenever the payment of any rate falls into arrear a sum equal to 5 per centum of the amount of the rate payable shall be added thereto and the provisions of the Ordinance relating to the collection and recovery of rates shall apply to the collection and recovery of such sum. Penalty for rates in arrear.

Assessment Committee.

18. The Governor shall appoint an Assessment Committee consisting of five members two of whom shall not be officers in the public service of the Colony, and shall appoint a person to fill any casual vacancy caused by death resignation disqualification or otherwise.

Functions of Assessment Committee.

19. The Assessment Committee shall —

- (1) maintain a book containing particulars of all premises in Stanley, and shall make such alterations therein as may be required from time to time, and from the particulars therein contained prepare a draft valuation list.
- (2) on the 1st day of May in every year and not otherwise except by order of the Court devise and forward to the Financial Secretary the draft valuation list.
- (3) hold meetings to consider any objection under section 20 made to the draft valuation list and may make such alterations insertions and corrections in the list whether for the purpose of meeting an objection or for other reason as they think proper.

Preparation of draft valuation list and objections.

20. The Financial Secretary shall forthwith on receipt of the draft valuation list as provided in section 19 (2) cause a notice to be published in the manner prescribed for publication of a rate in section 15 that the draft valuation list may be inspected at the Treasury during the usual office hours and that any person aggrieved by any assessment therein or omission therefrom may lodge an objection within 21 days from such notice.

Valuation conclusive subject to appeal.

21. After the expiration of 21 days from the notice provided for in section 20, should there be no objection to the draft valuation list, or from the notification by the Assessment Committee to the Financial Secretary of its decision on all such objections, the draft valuation list shall, subject to any appeal provided for in section 24 and to any amendment that may be ordered by the Court, be conclusive evidence of the net annual value of all premises therein mentioned for all purposes of rating and assessment.

Power of Financial Secretary to amend rate.

22. (1) The Financial Secretary may at any time make such amendments in a rate (being either the current or the last preceding rate) as appears to him necessary in order to make the rate conform with the provisions of this Ordinance or any amendment thereof and in particular may —

- (a) correct any clerical or arithmetical error in the rate;
- (b) correct any erroneous insertions or omissions or any misdescription;
- (c) make such additions to or corrections in the rate as appear to be necessary by reason of —
 - (i) any newly erected premises or any premises which were unoccupied at the time of making the rate coming into occupation; or
 - (ii) any premises previously rated on a single premise becoming liable to be rated in parts;

Provided that not less than seven days before making any such amendment the effect of which is to alter the amount appearing in the rate as chargeable in respect of any premises, the Financial Secretary shall send notice of the proposed amendment to the owner of the premises, and to the occupier if he is liable to pay the rate, and shall consider any objection which may be made by him or them.

(2) Every amendment under paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of the preceding subsection shall have effect as if it were contained in the rate as originally made.

23. (1) Any member of the Assessment Committee may at all reasonable hours of the day, having given one clear day's notice in writing, enter any premises for the purpose of discharging his duties and remain therein so long as may be necessary for that purpose, and any person preventing or hindering such member from entering or remaining as aforesaid shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to a daily penalty of £5.

Powers of Assessment Committee: entry and returns.

(2) The Assessment Committee may at any time require the owner of any premises to make a return containing such particulars as may reasonably be required for the purpose of carrying out this Ordinance within 21 days after the service of the notice calling upon him so to do, and any person who fails without reasonable excuse to comply with such notice shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding £20, and to a further penalty not exceeding £2 for each day during which the default continues after conviction, and any person who makes or causes to be made a return which is false in any material particular shall be liable on summary conviction in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding £50.

24. Any person aggrieved by —

- (a) any assessment or rate;
- (b) any order or requirement of the Financial Secretary or Assessment Committee under this Ordinance;
- (c) any conviction or order of the Magistrate's Court or of a Court of Summary Jurisdiction registered or made under this Ordinance;
- (d) the refusal of the Magistrate's Court or a Court of Summary Jurisdiction to convict or make an order under this Ordinance may within one month after such grievance shall have arisen appeal to the Court in manner prescribed by the Administration of Justice Ordinance or any amendment or re-enactment thereof:

Appeals.

Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to authorise an appeal against the rate or assessment hereby authorised unless the same shall be unequal.

(Cap. 3)

25. (1) The Chief Secretary may within one month from the date of the valuation list appeal to the Court against any assessment in or omission from the said list.

Appeals by Chief Secretary.

(2) The Chief Secretary may appeal against the making, registering, or omitting to make an order by the Financial Secretary or Assessment Committee in prejudice, abridgment or derogation from the rights or privileges of Her Majesty or the duties powers or authorities vested in the Governor, within one month of the making of such neglect or omissions.

(3) The Chief Secretary shall not be required to enter into a recognisance to prosecute an appeal.

26. The Court may cause the order of the Court in an appeal to be recorded on the valuation list and the decision upon any appeal shall be conclusive and binding on all parties thereto.

Order of Court.

27. Where there is no provision for the service of notice of appeal or statement of the grounds of appeal the Court may direct upon whom and the manner in which service shall be made.

Service of notice.

28. (1) Any person liable to pay a rate who fails to pay the same when due, or quits or is about to quit any premises without payment of a rate then due, may be summoned to appear before a Court of Summary Jurisdiction to show cause why such rate should not be paid. If the defaulter fails to appear or show sufficient cause for non-payment such Court may make an order for the payment of the same and may by warrant cause the same to be levied by distress on the goods or chattels of the defaulter.

Summary proceedings for recovery of rate.

(2) The costs of the recovery of arrears may be added to such arrears.

Charge on premises.

29. (1) Where any rate shall remain unpaid the Financial Secretary may apply to the Magistrate's Court or to a Court of Summary Jurisdiction for an order that the amount of rate remaining unpaid together with the costs caused by attempting to collect the same shall be a first charge on the premises and such Court is hereby empowered to make such order.

(2) An order made under this section shall be registered with the Registrar General at Stanley before it shall become effective.

PART II — WATER RATE

Water rate.

30. (1) A water rate may be made and levied by the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislature on the owners of all premises in respect of all water supplied for domestic purposes and shall be assessed on the net annual value of all such premises.

Domestic purposes.

Non-domestic charges.

(2) Where water is supplied to ships a fixed rate of 20p per ton shall be charged:

Provided that the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislature may from time to time require a fixed charge in respect of any premises or class of premises to which water is supplied for a non-domestic purpose or vary or cancel any fixed charge in respect of water so supplied subject to public notice being given of such order as provided in section 15.

Supply by meter.

31. (1) The Financial Secretary may, public notice of which shall be given as hereinbefore provided, require water to be supplied by measure to any ship or premises or class of premises and may recover any money payable in respect thereof in the same manner as water rates.

Lease or sale of meters.

(2) When water is supplied by measure the Financial Secretary shall, at the option of the consumer, sell or let for hire at such economical rate as he shall decide, a meter or other instrument for measuring the quantity of water supplied and consumed and the purchase price or rent shall be recoverable in the same manner as water rates.

Power of entry.

(3) When water is supplied by measure the Financial Secretary or officers acting on his behalf may between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. enter any premises so supplied in order to inspect any meter or any other instrument or apparatus for measuring water, or for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of water supplied or consumed and for the purpose of removing any meter or other apparatus the property of the Government and any person hindering such officer from entering for any of such purposes shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £5 for each offence.

Exemptions, recovery of rates etc.

32. The provisions of Part I of this Ordinance relating to exemptions, assessment, when rate is due, penalty for leaving premises when rate is in arrear, demand notes and recovery of arrears of rates including charging premises shall be applicable to the water rate as if the same had been expressly made in respect thereof.

Power to cut off supply.

33. The Financial Secretary may in addition to any other remedy for the recovery of water rate in arrear herein contained order the stoppage of the flow of water into the premises in respect of which such rate is payable by cutting the pipe to such premises or by such other means as he may think fit and may recover the cost of such cutting off and of any re-connection in addition to the arrears of water rate:

Provided that the Financial Secretary shall before serving notice of intention to cut off require the occupier to pay water rate in arrear in accordance with the second proviso to section 5 and the provisions thereof shall be applicable to the water rate as if the same had been expressly made in respect thereof.

PART III — GENERAL

34. No justice of the peace shall be incapable of acting in cases arising under this Ordinance by reason of his being a ratepayer or being liable to contribute to or be benefited by any rate or fund out of which any expenses incurred by the Government under this Ordinance are to be defrayed. Capacity of Justices.

35. Notices, orders and other documents required or authorised to be served under this Ordinance may be served by delivering them or a true copy thereof to some person on the premises, or if there is no person on the premises who can be served by fixing them on some conspicuous part of the premises. 1973

Colony of the Falkland Islands

IN THE TWENTY-SECOND YEAR OF THE REIGN OF
Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, C.M.G., O.B.E.
Governor.

An Ordinance

To provide certain public services in Stanley Town. Title.

(1st July 1973) Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Stanley Town Public Services Ordinance 1973, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1973. Short title and commencement.

2. In this Ordinance unless the context otherwise requires — Definitions.
"Board" means the Board of Visitors;
"Brigade" means the Stanley Fire Brigade;
"Cemetery" means the Stanley Cemetery and additions thereto and all buildings used in connection therewith;
"Fire appliances" means engines for extinguishing fires, fire escapes, fire hydrants, pumps, pipes, water buckets and other implements for use in the case of fire, or any of them;
"Firemen" means members of the Stanley Fire Brigade.

PART I — FIRE BRIGADE

Appointment of Committee.

3. (1) The Governor may appoint a Committee of not less than three persons to supervise all matters in connection with the Brigade, and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place.

(2) The Governor may nominate from amongst the Committee such person as he may think fit to be Chairman.

Appointment of Officers.

4. The Governor shall appoint a Superintendent for the routine administration of the Brigade, together with such other officers as he may deem necessary, and may prescribe their powers and functions.

Responsibilities of Committee.

5. (1) The Committee shall be responsible for —

- (a) the maintenance of appliances and any replacements thereof or additions thereto in a good and serviceable condition;
- (b) the purchase of appliances as and when the same are required;
- (c) the purchase, maintenance or hire of motor vehicles for drawing fire appliances;
- (d) the building, provision or lease of buildings or premises for keeping motor vehicles and fire appliances;
- (e) control and maintenance of an efficient Brigade;
- (f) appointment and pay of men to act as firemen;
- (g) payment of rewards to firemen and other persons for exertion in the case of fire and compensation for loss suffered by them in so doing.

(2) Expenses incurred in the exercise of the above powers shall be regarded as expenses for the maintenance and general upkeep of the Brigade and shall be defrayed out of general revenues.

Charge to shipowners.

6. The owner of or agent for any ship in respect of which the services of the Brigade have been required shall pay to the Government the actual expenses incurred by the Brigade on the occasion and a reasonable sum for the use of fire appliances and the attendance of firemen. In the event of dispute between the Government and such owner or agent as to the sum to be paid the amount shall finally be settled by the Senior Magistrate.

Measures to prevent spread of fire.

7. Any police constable acting under the orders of his superior officer or any firemen may enter and if necessary break into any building being or reasonably supposed to be on fire, or any land adjoining or near thereto, without the consent of the owner or occupier thereof, and may do all acts and things they may deem necessary for extinguishing fire in any such building or for protecting the same or rescuing any person or property therein from fire.

Inspector.

8. The Governor may at any time appoint an Inspector who shall have full power to test the Brigade as to its efficiency and to inspect and test all fire appliances. The Inspector so appointed shall submit a report thereon to the Governor and steps shall forthwith be taken to remedy all such inefficiency and defects as the Governor shall require.

Power to fix fire hydrant plates.

9. Upon giving seven days' notice in writing to the owner of any property situate in the vicinity of a fire hydrant, the Superintendent may cause a plate indicating the location of such fire hydrant to be fixed to such part of the property as may, in the opinion of the Superintendent be best suited to indicate the location.

Power to make regulations.

10. The Governor in Council may by regulation provide for —

- (a) the making and issue of reports and certificates regarding—
 - (i) fires attended by the Brigade;
 - (ii) premises, vessels or other property damaged by fire;

- (iii) matters relating to fire risk or fire precautions in or connected with any premises, vessel or other property, and fees to be charged in relation thereto;
- (b) generally, for the carrying into effect of the provisions of the Part of this Ordinance in relation to any matter, whether similar or not to those in this section mentioned, as to which it may be convenient to make regulations.

11. Any person who —

- (1) assaults, resists, impedes or obstructs a fireman in the discharge of his duty;
- (2) wilfully damages any fire appliances;
- (3) gives or causes to be given any false alarm of fire to the Brigade;
- (4) refuses to allow the fixing of a fire hydrant location plate as referred to in section 9 or obstructs any person in the course of the fixing thereof or removes or defaces any such plate after it has been so fixed;

Offences.

shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding £200 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months and in addition shall pay the cost of any damage occasioned by such offence.

PART II — CEMETERY

12. The Cemetery shall vest in the Government, which shall undertake its maintenance and control.

Vesting of Cemetery.

13. (1) The Governor shall appoint a Board of Visitors of not less than three persons, to supervise all matters connected with the cemetery, and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place.

Board of visitors.

(2) The Board may elect from amongst its members such person as it may think fit to be Chairman.

14. The Governor may appoint a fit and proper person to be Caretaker of the cemetery, who shall have the custody and charge thereof.

Caretaker.

15. The Board shall from time to time visit and inspect the cemetery, and bring to the notice of the Governor any matter which may in their opinion affect its maintenance, the maintenance of good order therein and the condition and appearance thereof.

Inspection of cemetery.

16. No dwelling house other than the caretaker's house shall be built within 100 feet of the outer wall or boundary of the cemetery.

Prohibition of dwelling houses near cemetery.

17. The Governor may permit a chapel to be built in the cemetery for the performance of the burial service.

Chapel.

18. The Governor shall permit part of the cemetery to be consecrated and shall maintain part of the cemetery exclusively for the burial of Roman Catholics.

Consecrated ground.

19. The Governor may —

Exclusive rights of burial.

- (1) define such parts of the cemetery as he shall deem fit for the purpose of granting exclusive rights of burial therein.
- (2) grant or sell the exclusive right of one or more burials in any such parts either in perpetuity or for a limited time.
- (3) grant or sell the right of placing a monument, gravestone or enclosure in any such part or a tablet or other inscription on the walls of any Chapel or other building in the cemetery.

20. (1) The grant of exclusive right of burial or right of placing a monument, gravestone, enclosure, tablet or other inscription as provided by section 17 shall be in the Form A in the Schedule hereto.

Grant of exclusive right of burial.

(2) Every assignment of an exclusive right of burial shall be in the Form B in the Schedule hereto and shall when executed within the Colony be registered with the Registrar General at the Central Registry within two months of execution, or when executed outside the Colony be registered with the Registrar General at the Central Registry within six months of the date of execution otherwise it shall be void and of no effect.

(3) No body shall be buried in any place in respect of which an exclusive right of burial has been granted without the consent of the grantee thereof.

(4) No grant of the exclusive right of burial shall give the right to bury within the consecrated part of the cemetery the body of any person not entitled to be buried in consecrated ground according to the rights and usages of the Church of England or to place any monument, gravestone, tablet or other inscription respecting any such body within the consecrated part of the cemetery.

Plan and register.

21. (1) The Governor shall cause to be kept and maintained at the Secretariat a plan of the cemetery on a scale sufficiently large to show the site of every place reserved for exclusive right of burial and the numbers thereof, which shall be entered in a register to be kept exclusively for that purpose of the names and descriptions of the persons to whom exclusive right of burial has been granted.

(2) A fee of £12 shall be payable for the registration of the assignment of the exclusive right of burial in such register.

Maintenance of good order and appearance of cemetery.

22. (1) The Board may for the purpose of maintaining the good order and appearance of the cemetery exercise the following powers —

- (a) to remove stones, bricks and other material of monuments and memorials of the dead which have fallen from their places;
- (b) to remove rails which form part of the memorials or monuments of the dead which are in a ruinous condition;
- (c) to arrange the materials of monuments and memorials of the dead, which have become ruinous or dilapidated so as to render them less unsightly in appearance.

(2) Any expenses incurred by the Board in the exercise of the above powers shall be regarded as expenses of the maintenance and upkeep of the cemetery, and shall be defrayed out of general revenues.

Power to remove monuments etc., improperly erected.

23. The Board may order the removal of any gravestone, monument, tablet or other inscription and any enclosure placed within the cemetery without its authority.

Penalties.

24. (1) Any person who shall wilfully destroy or injure any building, wall or fence belonging to the cemetery, or destroy or injure any plant therein, or who shall disfigure any wall thereof or put up any bill therein or in any wall thereof, or wilfully destroy, injure or deface any monument, tablet, inscription, or gravestone or other enclosure within the cemetery, or do any wilful damage therein, shall commit an offence and shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding £200 in addition to the cost of replacement or repair of the damage caused by him.

(2) Any person who shall play at any game or sport, or save at a military funeral, discharge firearms in the cemetery, or shall wilfully and unlawfully disturb any persons assembled in the cemetery for the purpose of burying any body therein, or who shall commit any nuisance within the cemetery, shall commit an offence and shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £20.

Rules.

25. The Governor in Council may from time to time make rules for the use, control, and upkeep of the cemetery, and for regulating the fees and payments to be made and received for vaults, graves and burials in the cemetery, and in respect of the right of erecting therein any monument, gravestone, tablet or monumental inscription, and in respect of any other matters.

PART III

TOWN HALL, PUBLIC LIBRARY AND MUSEUM

26. The Town Hall, Public Library and Museum shall be deemed to be vested in the Government in trust for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Colony, together with all books, papers, manuscripts and documents now forming the Public Library, and all objects, trophies and specimens now forming the Public Museum.

Maintenance of Town Hall, etc.

27. (1) The Governor shall appoint a Committee for the control and management of the Public Library and Museum, which shall consist of not less than three members, and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place.

3. (1) The Governor in Council may appoint any person to be Water Authority. Water Authority.

(2) The duties of the Water Authority shall include the management of the waterworks, the control of all matters relating thereto, and the maintenance in Stanley of existing mains and public fittings in good and serviceable condition, and the supply and maintenance of such further mains and public fittings as may from time to time be required.

Power of Water
Authority.

4. (1) The Water Authority or any person acting under his directions may —

- (a) at all reasonable hours enter in and upon any land, hereditaments and premises to inspect and repair any pipe, fittings or other appliance;
- (b) after twenty-one days' notice to the owner or occupier thereof enter on any land and lay pipes and other appliances on or through such land, making compensation to the owner or occupier for all damages sustained by him or them by reason of the exercise of the said powers; such compensation, in the absence of agreement to be determined by arbitration as provided by the Land Ordinance.

(Cap. 36)

(2) The Water Authority or any person acting under his directions may at any time diminish, withhold, suspend or divert the supply of water either wholly or in part whenever it may be expedient or necessary for the purpose of conserving the supply of water, or for extending, altering or repairing the waterworks, and in particular may cut off the supply of water to private property in Stanley —

- (a) whenever any nuisance liable to pollute the water supply or cause damage to the waterworks exists on that property or in any fittings therein or thereon until such nuisance has been remedied to the satisfaction of the Water Authority, or
- (b) whenever any fittings are out of repair or have not been approved by the Water Authority or are liable to pollute the water supply and the necessary repairs or alterations have not been effected to the satisfaction of the Water Authority within the period prescribed in the written notice by the Water Authority to the owner or occupier of such property, or
- (c) whenever the available supply is insufficient by reason of drought or any other unavoidable circumstance, or
- (d) whenever it shall be necessary to repair, clean or alter the waterworks or any fittings, or
- (e) whenever water is used for a purpose other than the purpose for which it is supplied, or
- (f) in the case of the continued breach or violation of any requirement of this Ordinance or of any regulation made thereunder.

New connections.

5. (1) Any owner of private property in Stanley who is desirous of laying or installing fittings shall apply to the Water Authority for approval thereof and shall lodge with the Water Authority such plans, specifications and other information as he may require.

(2) The laying or installation of fittings on private property shall be at the expense of the owner thereof.

(3) The Water Authority shall convey water to the boundary of private property in Stanley and shall connect the fittings of the owner thereof with the water mains, provided that no fittings shall be connected or installed until that same have been approved by the Water Authority.

(4) Any person who shall connect or instal, or cause to be connected or installed, any fittings in Stanley without the approval of the Water Authority first obtained shall commit an offence.

6. Section 10 of the principal Ordinance is amended in paragraph (3) by inserting at the beginning thereof the following —

Amendment of section 10.

"wilfully with intent to mutilate."

7. Section 11 of the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced by the following —

Repeal and replacement of section 11.

"Compulsory dipping.

11. (1) Every owner shall dip or cause to be dipped with an insecticidal dip approved by an inspector all sheep running on land whereof he is the occupier as soon as they are shorn and before any sheep is allowed to leave the shearing pens after having been shorn, by means of a spray, shower or plunge-dip.

(2) Between the 1st day of March and the 30th day of June in every year, every owner shall dip or cause to be dipped with an insecticidal dip approved by an inspector all sheep running on land whereof he is the occupier, by means of plunge dipping:

Provided that —

- (a) for purposes previously approved in writing by the inspector, the inspector may advance or extend, for not more than 30 days, the period during which sheep must be dipped;
- (b) with the approval of the Governor in Council and subject to such conditions as may be imposed by the Governor in Council, the period during which sheep must be dipped may be advanced or extended for experimental purposes.

(3) Any person who contravenes the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pence for every sheep in the flock not dipped".

8. The principal Ordinance is amended by the addition, after section 11, of the following new section —

Addition of new section 11A.

"Exemption from dipping.

11A. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 11 of this Ordinance an inspector may —

- (a) exempt the owner of any island from dipping if the sheep examined by him on that island are found to be free from tick, ked, lice, scab or itchmite, for a period of five years; provided that any sheep brought on to that island are plunge-dipped on arrival no matter what the time of the year;
- (b) exempt the owner of any mainland station from dipping in any one year, if the sheep are found to be free from tick, ked, lice, scab and itchmite, provided that:
 - (i) prior agreement in writing for such exemption is obtained from the owner of every station that has a boundary with the station occupied by the applicant;
 - (ii) in case of a dispute between the applicant and any one or more of his neighbours, the inspector is satisfied that the boundary fence between the disputing parties is in good repair and that any flock that will be running on the applicant's side of the boundary is free from tick, ked, lice, scab and itchmite;

(iii) where an owner considers that any section of boundary fence which is the responsibility of a neighbour, to be in a state of bad repair, he may have it examined by an inspector and if the inspector is satisfied that the fence requires attention, then the complaining owner may carry out the repairs or renewal required and recover the full costs of such repairs or renewal from the neighbour whose responsibility that fence repair or renewal was.

(2) An application for exemption from the provisions of subsection (1) of section 11 of this Ordinance must be made not later than the 15th day of October in any year.

(3) An application for exemption from the provisions of subsection (2) of section 11 of this Ordinance must be made not later than the 14th day of February in any year."

Amendment of section 24.

9. Section 24 of the principal Ordinance is amended —

- (a) by being renumbered as subsection (1) thereof;
- (b) by the insertion of the following new subsection —

"(2) Any person who leaves a travelling sheep which is ailing or disabled alive on any station which the sheep is crossing shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £10."

Amendment of schedule.

10. The Schedule to the principal Ordinance is amended in Form 4 by deleting the words "nett lbs" where those words twice occur and substituting therefor the words "nett kilos".

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on 25th October 1972 were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen,

This is the third time it has been my privilege to address the Budget Session of the Legislative Council and if the length of the Order Paper is any guide we are in for a busy but I hope constructive session. And I think it is appropriate that I should begin with a survey of our financial position.

All of you are aware that for the past few years it has not been possible for us to balance the budget and it has been necessary to run down our reserves. In view of the low prices being received from the sale of our wool this was to some extent inevitable but we have now reached the stage when we must stop the slide going any further. To make things worse we are living in inflationary times so that while reserves have been falling the cost of running our services has been soaring. That is why it has been necessary for the Government to introduce what might be called a tough budget with the object, inter alia, of reducing subsidies and making the burden fall on those who benefit from the services. Unpalatable as some of the proposed measures may be, they are essential if we are to maintain our financial independence. Grant in aid is no substitute for these measures as before HMG would approve such aid she would want to be satisfied that we had done everything possible to put our own house in order. I do not intend to pre-empt the speech by the Honourable Financial Secretary but it is sufficient to say that the proposed measures are the minimum required to balance the budget. This is a critical year as costs are rising and our revenue will not feel the benefit of the higher prices obtained from the sale of our wool last season until the next financial year.

If we are able to get over this hump the outlook for the future is not too gloomy. Next year, financially speaking, as I have mentioned earlier, should be a good year and although the price of wool at the moment is drifting down from its earlier high levels the medium-term outlook for wool does not appear to be unpromising. In addition it does look as if at long last Alginate Industries are clearing the decks for action and other firms have shown an interest in exploiting our kelp resources. A firm is likely to look at the possibilities of establishing a fishing industry based on the Islands, and tourism will, we hope, continue to increase and so put more money into circulation. But as always it is our wool on which we must rely and HMG is being very generous with Development Aid, much of which will be used to assist and stimulate the farming industry. In addition to the £1½ million earmarked for the permanent airfield we will receive in Development Aid this year £100,000 and £50,000 in subsequent years. Our first Five Year Development Plan is at present being drawn up and considered and it should be able to give a boost to such sectors as tourism, broadcasting, telecommunications etc. in addition to the aid flowing to the farms.

This year has seen the beginning of an export trade to the mainland and 20,000 sheep were shipped to Puerto Descado; we hope that this trade will continue to grow - I think that both the SOA and CAP should be congratulated on the way this operation was carried out. In building up such a trade, I consider that we should take a long-term view of this possibility for diversification and be wary of the "one-off" type of transaction which may only bring short-term benefits.

We have had two experts out from the Overseas Development Administration to look at our fiscal and O & M problems and we hope that as a result of their advice the administration will be improved but in regard to the fiscal measures in particular I repeat that we can receive all the advice in the world but in the last resort the decision must be ours.

I would now like to touch on the Civil Service and the work of some of the departments. As a result of the Sedgwick report some bright young men are now joining the permanent and pensionable staff which will certainly pay dividends in the future. It is important that we have a sound Service as although our population is small the administrative problems of coping with the full regalia of government for a population dispersed over a wide area are still formidable.

On the educational front the decision has been taken to close Darwin Boarding School when, and not until, a suitable hostel is built in Stanley with the aid of United Kingdom funds. I know that this is a subject which has aroused strong feelings but I am certain that with the Colony's children having equality of educational opportunity the Camp will not be left behind. The report by Mr. Bell, the educational adviser, has been received and will be considered in due course but I can say at this stage that he has made some useful and constructive suggestions, particularly about Camp education.

I hope to open the new Power Station on 19th May and we are considering whether it is possible to turn the old Power House into a heated swimming pool; for the first time there is a real chance that this old project will get off the ground.

In spite of the Sedgwick report we are still having great difficulty in recruiting doctors and the response to our recent advertisements in the United Kingdom has been disappointing. We will have the opportunity when the medical adviser from the ODA, Dr. Evans, arrives out here next week to discuss this aspect of our medical problems but in the meantime, in order that we are not left in a position of having only one doctor during the winter, we are endeavouring to recruit a doctor from the Argentine.

Before leaving the departments I would like to take this opportunity of paying tribute to the work done by Mr. Nap Bound who recently retired as Deputy Chief Secretary, by Mr. Charles Reive of the Broadcasting Service and last but not least by Mr. Gutteridge who is planning to leave the Colony shortly.

In the past on these occasions I have always spent a great deal of time on the subject of communications but this year I trust I do not have to go all over the ground again. We all know the efficiency with which the weekly air service is running and long may it continue to do so; so far the operation of this service reflects great credit on LADE. Internally, FIGAS continues apace and the Monsunen is coping well in its planned role. Although the m.v. Forrest is now on charter to the Ministry of Defence it is good to know that she will continue to sail in our waters. One final point on communications is the question of the main airfield, a subject which I know is very much in your thoughts. Although arrangements for the construction of this field have been proceeding satisfactorily in London there appears to have been some slippage in the time schedule but the Crown Agents are proposing to go out to tender at the end of May and a contractor should be appointed before the end of this year. I realise this is not entirely satisfactory and it is one of the many subjects I will follow up when I return to London at the end of this month.

On the political front it is difficult for me to add to what has already been announced following the recent fourth round of talks with the Argentine held in London, a conference attended by the Chief Secretary, Mr. Layng, and by Messrs. Monk and Pitaluga, where they formed part of the British delegation. It is understandable that in this period of uncertainty it was unlikely that much would be achieved in London but it is my earnest hope that the excellent links we have built up with the Argentine will be strengthened in the future. We are, in the true sense, getting to know each other and it would, in my opinion, be disastrous for all concerned if anything happened to place in jeopardy the progress made so far. Equally I am certain that a policy of gradualism and toleration is required if this progress is to be maintained and, given good will on both sides, I see no reason why this should not be achieved.

On the question of a reform of the Constitution certain proposals have been submitted to the FCO and these are now being studied. I hope to receive the comments of the FCO at an early date and then the Council and the public will be given every opportunity to study and discuss this whole question before final decisions are taken. Inevitably a change in the Constitution does take time but as we are planning ahead for many years it is important that we finally come up with the best legislative framework for the Colony.

Finally you may have noticed from the last census that our population is dropping and we are now down below the 2,000 mark. We must expect that in the next few years both BSRO and BAS are likely to reduce their commitments in Stanley so that our numbers will be further eroded; these losses could of course be counterbalanced by staff coming in from Alginates if this project gets under way. However, with our improved communications this may be the time to consider attracting more people to the Colony - after all now our isolation has been reduced these Islands, in the days of pollution and high food prices, do have a great deal to offer.

MOTION OF THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY

Mr. Miller:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to support this motion I would like to welcome this innovation, which my Honourable friend the Chief Secretary has discovered for us somewhere. I don't know why it has not been discovered before; perhaps previous governors would worry what we might say to them on these occasions. Had we been professionals no doubt we would probably have found out for ourselves, but of course we are not professionals because nobody pays us! To be serious though, Sir, the medical service is the first thing I would like to turn to. I welcome the forthcoming motion of the Honourable Members of the West Falklands. We cannot exist without a minimum of two doctors so we hope the Buenos Aires one materialises. If he does not, to me the solution is simple. We have still got to continue with two doctors. I have a question later which may now be superficial, in connection with another doctor, but the whole situation to me is still unhappy and unsatisfactory. Investigation by the adviser to the Ministry of Overseas Development Administration will, we hope, help us and we can only hope that he really dives into the whole problem and gets to the bottom of our various worries.

Budgetary policy - you referred in your address, Sir, to a tough budget. Well, it is a tough budget but this morning I listened to the BBC seven o'clock news and I heard then that Skylab, this thing that the Americans just put into the air, cost a thousand million pounds, and we are going to have to worry over the next few days over a few thousand. In this Colony's established lifetime, it has always paid its way. Increasingly this has been more difficult as we know: I am quoting something everybody knows. We could have been run into financial trouble over such items as Stanley Roads (if we can call some of them that, I would call them pitted stone runs), but they are still deteriorating and we cannot afford to do anything about them. But, unfortunately for some of us, the Secretary of State has been as uncompromising as he can be in spite of our past record of standing squarely on our own feet. I quote from a recent Government Minute: "The Secretary of State has intimated that he trusts that Honourable Members will accept the Comben and Waller proposals as he considers that failure to do so will lead directly to the Colony being placed on Grant Aided terms. He has made no secret of the fact that in these circumstances, the direct control of our finances from Whitehall, the new measures, will anyhow be imposed". I underline the last sentence. This paragraph I am afraid infuriated me at the time and whenever I read it, it still makes me angry. After our past record of financial soundness, we have temporarily reached bedrock in our reserves - do we get sympathy - oh no! Out comes the big Whitehall stick. The Falkland Islanders will knuckle under or else! Your Excellency, Honourable Members, we believe we can escape our promised bashing by means that the civil servants have not thought of, fortunately. It is not fortunately that they have not thought of them, but that will be enlarged upon by our next speakers on this motion. The United Kingdom Government suggested hammering some sections of our people but this can be avoided we believe and we intend to avoid this direct attack by all means possible. Experts have been sent out to us but for far too short a time. Not the two more recent ones but one or two others before them. They have been pleasant and no doubt extremely efficient people at their job but at so short a visit they have not time to find out fundamentally how we tick, especially in the Camp.

Your Excellency also referred to a census population drop. Now this may be alarming to some people but there is an answer to some of it. Because of the low price of wool in the last two or three years many of the farms have deliberately cut their staff because they could not afford to keep them and it has been expensive to replace them from the other side of the world; and although one cannot run a property without a reasonable sized staff, we are hoping gradually to get back to the original standards. That I am sure in turn affects the population drop, to a certain extent. Fundamentally Your Excellency we have two broad principles to follow - we must be very sure that Camp people's life is not made such that they cannot afford to live there and because of this hamstringing the wool industry. The whole of this town lives on the industry, we have heard that very often before, and with a failing in this industry we are all down-and-out, shopkeepers, businesses, civil servants, retired people, the lot. We don't intend to let this begin to happen and if the Secretary of State is put into a position to use his big stick, already referred to, he surely and certainly will. To end on a more cheerful note, current wool prices virtually ensure a surplus budget next year, why therefore flog ourselves unduly when within twelve months we may be able to undo some of the proposed unpleasantnesses? So in spite of some of my opinions I beg to support this Motion of Thanks.

The President:

"Thank you very much. Mr. Pitaluga?"

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have not prepared a speech of any sort; I have had little experience of this before. I thought I would wait to see what happened. I hope you will bear with me as I produce something, but I fully support the things that Mr. Millor has said regarding our budget. It is, as he said, a tough one and I agree it is tough; it is no secret now of course that this budget is going to balance, the first one which has done so for several years. The way it has been made to balance is very good; it is very thorough but it does involve mainly increased revenue rather than reductions in expenditure. I would be much happier if I had seen greater reductions in expenditure by Government, however with Development Aid being poured into the place again (you mention a figure of one hundred thousand pounds for this year) that must also generate more expenditure by our own side. I do not see how it can be otherwise.

However, we have to think about the effect of this budget on the Islands and these days the environmentalist is the thing we hear about; it is one of the most popular 'in' words and these people are already working in our Colony, making sure that these bird sanctuaries etc. are looked after. In other countries they make sure that populations do not go across good forests, parks, and so on. They make sure that large buildings are not stuck up in parts of cities which were beauty spots before. Something like this has got to be. We must look at something like this when we are considering our budget, because in imposing measures which will make it balance just as they stand, the environment here is going to be considerably different at the end of it all and we as Members of Council being very conscientious about balancing our budget, will still have to see what we are doing to the public and this may be rather more difficult.

There are all sorts of changes already going on, and Darwin Boarding School closing down is one of them. This is something I have not heard very much reaction to yet, but I do know that people are concerned about it. I think I would be out of order if I mentioned any details of the budget so I want to stress that we must be careful in balancing our budget that, at the end of it, we still have a place that is nice to live in, or at least worth living in.

Mr. Miller has made reference to the many experts we have had. I have met most of them and enjoyed their company; I have learnt a lot from them and I hope that I have been of some use to them as well when they were producing their reports. At the same time these people do not have to live here after their reports have been implemented and this makes quite a difference.

There is another subject, too, on which I feel very strongly and that is of course the business of these Talks. I have just had the privilege of taking part in the Fourth Round in London, but it is well known officially that we did not achieve very much, at the same time we did not give anything away. The thing that really does sicken me though, Sir, is the secrecy that surrounds these Talks. Obviously these things do have to be kept secret though the point that I am really getting at is that the public never knows what is happening before the Talks take place. No announcement was made until after we had gone and people were left guessing, making up their own stories on what we might be going for. We came back and there was nothing at all put over saying what we had achieved or did not achieve while we were away. I know it is the British Government which insists on this attitude, but I don't know why, though I have my own ideas on this one. They struck me as being extremely inflexible, obviously on our behalf. They are like a gramophone, saying "there will be no change in sovereignty without the consent of the Islanders", time after time; but at the same time it is not necessarily helping just doing that. There has to be some flexibility somewhere and again it is rather like the effect of the budget, we have got to sell this sort of thing to the public. I would hope, Sir, that in future we have something broadcast regarding these Talks before they take place and if possible could we have something about the ones which have just taken place even though it obviously won't be much, but it will at least put the official side to the public. I think I have nothing more to add to that. I beg to support the Motion."

The President:

"Thank you very much."

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, in rising to this Motion and largely because I have had the wind taken out of my sails, I would like to take one point you raised in your speech a little further, and this has been mentioned by both previous speakers unfortunately! The fall in the population of the Colony as brought out in the Census. We must, as a Council, bear in mind the fact that it would be only too easy for us, instead of arresting this drift, to accelerate it and during the next week we might be going to give it first push. Most of the acceleration we are giving at the moment, and we are not doing anything to attract people to these islands, will drive them away. Most of the people who depart will be the productive labour force of the Colony. It has been said that we must cut our coat to fit our cloth but we must remember that the cloth is wool and if we have no wool - no cloth, if we have no coat, we have no Colony. I await the day when perhaps instead of aiming to attract tourists we start to aim to attract residents. Thank you."

The President:

"Thank you very much."

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am at a disadvantage. Being the junior at the table, everybody has said everything I wanted to say, and said everything I could have said; but we have here a mountain of paper and ninety five per cent of it deals with budgetary matters which is the main session after all of this meeting of Legislative Council. A lot of hard work from people here has gone into producing these figures and the advice of an endless stream of experts: we have had experts from fiscal matters to fishing and I think there is one digging holes in peat banks at the moment! The result of all their advice, in so far as our budgetary matters are concerned, is that we have this small estimated revenue surplus and that is something we have not seen for a long while: but the important thing is how has it been obtained or is it really a true picture of our revenue prospects.

To take the second point first I do not think it represents a true picture of our revenue prospects this year at all. It is in my mind quite certain that we can fully expect far more revenue from company taxation than is estimated here. There is no revenue allowed for from the Government Savings Bank and depressed though the Stock Market is in the United Kingdom, I am perfectly certain they will pay us a little and pay us more than we are going to give to the investors in interest and in charges. I do not think there is any question that our revenue is going to exceed this estimate; why then are we going to be asked to adopt all these little financial measures, small increases of taxation, in fees, things like increases in the Air Service rates for instance. We are told that that Service is subsidised. We knew that anyway, we didn't need a fiscal expert to tell us that.

All these niggling little things producing a few thousand pounds here, a few thousand there, when in fact it probably would not be necessary but, and one has got to bear in mind also when increasing the Air Service charges for instance, that it is quite expensive enough already to travel that way. Even quite a moderate increase in Air Service Charges is the quickest way to depopulate the West Falklands I have heard of. They are one hundred per cent dependent on the Air Service for travelling unless they are Charnel swimmers and if you make it financially impossible for them to travel, they are not going to stop out there. They have a hard time stopping out in the outback anyway I expect but you cannot expect them to stop under these circumstances, so that is some of our revenue gone. Instead of all these niggling little increases in taxation in my view the real way to tackle this revenue business is an export tax on produce, on the value of produce sold. It can be done of course in several ways. You can take the wool by weight (and incidently if one penny per kilo was put on the wool products exported from this Colony it would produce us twenty thousand pounds a year near enough), however, I do not think that is the best sort of export tax, I think it would be better to have it on the value. If you have it on weight and unfortunately we have a recession in wool prices we are still paying the same level of tax - I suppose the sheep don't know so they still produce the same amount of wool, but if we have it on the value of exports well then our tax liability will go down. Some people will say, well that is only loading it on the sheep's back, but let us face it the whole lot is loaded on the sheep's back anyway, and I think it would be a relatively painless way of increasing revenue. It would not annoy, drive people away, it would be far more painless than all these other measures.

I am not going to be a party to approving any legislation which I think will bear hardly on certain sections of the population. Previous speakers have said that if we do not approve all this stuff then they are going to 'Wave the big stick' at us. In my opinion that is a lot of nonsense: we do not have to approve one single item of the Comben and Waller Report if we don't want to. All we have got to do is balance our budget and not ask them for any money; that is all that is necessary and if we can do it by instituting an export tax and throw out some of those things, I say let us do it.

The other thing of course which strikes one about the budget, the estimates, is there are no economies. We have had an O. & M. expert, he was supposed to, and a fiscal expert; we were led to believe that these gentlemen would lead to economies. I do not see many economies, there are one or two tiny ones. We are budgeting for a revenue of seventy thousands odd more than last year and that is a result of having these experts out: another seventy thousand pounds in expenditure. I know you can offset some of that through inflation but it is not the sort of result I would expect from O. & M. experts. Thank goodness we are not paying them. I suppose I have probably said enough on budgetary matters but I would like to emphasise I am not going to be a party to approving any proposed legislation that I think will bear hardly on any sector of the population because I think we have far more easy means of raising revenue.

Talking about communications, our Argentine friends have without doubt made a most excellent job of their part of the communications agreement. They have provided us with a very efficient air service. What have we done? What has been done for us by the United Kingdom Government? We are still told we are going to get an airfield down there. You certainly would not know it by looking anyway and I am told it is nine months behind time now and it is still only in the paper stage; nobody has had the contract offered: it has not been tendered. I think it is most embarrassing for us here to be so dependent on the goodwill and kindness of our Argentine friends, not to be able to help ourselves a bit, and I think the administration should make every effort to energise these people with regard to the major airstrip. Only the other day on the BBC they were talking about the Foulness airport complex that they are going to build, at Foulness I suppose, which is going to cost three hundred million pounds, three hundred millions, ours is going to cost two million. They said that in 1978 this thing is going to be operational in Foulness, that is how quickly they can move if they want to. Our little two million pounds expenditure probably would not even pay for a transit shed there. I think they want stirring up.

The other thing of course about communications is of course the Talks; but they have been referred to by another Honourable Member and as you noted, nothing was achieved. I must support the Honourable Mr. Pitaluga on all he said on this subject. It seems to me quite absurd to agree to engage in Talks of any sort and not be prepared to talk at all, and I would be the last one to suggest that there should be any negotiations whatsoever on sovereignty. That is not what is wanted but at least one should be prepared to talk about the nuts and bolts, ideas that are put forward. If you are not, if you are only prepared to go there and say no, well damn it you can send a letter can't you. There is no point in going to all that expenditure. Well, Your Excellency, I would like to support the Motion of Thanks".

The President:

"Thank you".

Mr. Bowles:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to support the Motion of Thanks, I suppose it is my turn to put my foot in it. Can we balance the budget in one session? I don't know. Messrs. Comben and Waller have proposed methods affecting everyone; their report is an excellent one, but can we possibly hope to achieve such a target in so short a time? If we must avoid Grant in Aid at all times then we must be realistic and face up to our problems in order to acquire satisfactory solutions. We must attempt to make further savings. I feel that every Government employee should be recruited or employed on a productive basis. It does not matter whether his or her salary is hourly, weekly or monthly, as long as payment is made by the tax-payer then surely some form of productivity or achievement must prevail. In cases where it may not, then adjustments will have to be made. It is a tough line and we have got a tough budget.

On the Talks I would like to agree with Mr. Monk and Mr. Pitaluga. I have not heard the results and I am looking forward to them when we eventually hear about them. I, too, feel that the Argentine Government has done a good job in presenting us with a weekly air service. I look forward to the British airfield. I am fairly confident that it will come. I don't think I have anything more to say. Thank you very much."

The President:

"Thank you very much".

Mr. Luxton:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as you have said Sir, the primary reason for this meeting is to study the budget. The budget that the administration has produced, in my view, is the most disappointing and depressing document that it has been my misfortune to come across for a long time. So much was expected from Messrs. Comben and Waller in the way of streamlining Government departments and cutting expenditure but the net result, if I may correct my Honourable friend's figure by a couple of thousand, is that this Council is being asked to approve expenditure of sixty eight thousand pounds more than last year. When I pointed this out to one cynical person he said "Think how much worse it might have been if it had not been for Comben and Waller", but (if past performance is anything to go by) during the forthcoming year we are likely to be faced with a request for at least another ten per cent and though this Council has the final control over expenditure, I think it continues to grant meekly everything that this Parkinsonian administration demands, and the situation is going to get worse and worse. I suggest Honourable Members that the time has come for us to say that the Colony expenditure must be held to a figure similar to the last year's and let the departmental heads get on with it. I am not convinced with the Comben and Waller report; many departments are grossly over-staffed and inefficient. I consider the Secretariat as the most glaring example. I am convinced that a commercial organisation and methods expert would have done very much better than Messrs. Comben and Waller. I do not pretend to be an expert on office management but talking to those who do know something about it has convinced me that there is considerable room for improvement. The Chief Secretary himself has said many times that a vast amount of time in the Secretariat is taken up with answering footling enquiries from various world bodies. I suggest that this Colony is not big enough to undertake this sort of thing and that in that sort of case those world bodies which make a habit of collecting pointless information should be invited to come here to collect it themselves. The Public Works Department is another fat spender. We have heard a lot about the balanced budget and by the end of this session that may appear in a different light. I will content myself with one observation - it has always irritated me that the front yard of one of our most efficient departments should have taken on the appearance of a rubbish dump. I am referring to the sight that greets the eye of any local air traveller and it is even more irritating to find that the said rubbish is to be removed and transported, no doubt at colossal public expenditure, and be permanently dumped on Victory Green opposite our main tourist hotel.

In short, I really do not think that this Colony can any longer afford to keep its administration, with its delusions of grandeur at times, in the manner to which it has become accustomed.

On the well-worn subject of Darwin School, it now appears that in this Council I am the only remaining member in favour of keeping it going and expanding it, spending more money on it and generally improving it. I was very surprised and disappointed at the hasty change of mind by my fellow members of the Education Committee. We had a meeting at which we discussed it very thoroughly and we sent a very strongly worded minute to the Chief Secretary advising him that we thought it should be expanded and improved and that Development Aid should be spent at Darwin. We have been told that the British Government won't allow us to spend our Development Aid on Darwin School and that that is the Development Aid that is now planned for Stanley but it must be remembered that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office take their advice from their representative on the spot, and most of us know what he thinks. Once again the technique used is of carrying on bringing in experts until at last one says what the administration wants him to say. It is quite obvious that Mr. Bell's primary mission was to chop Darwin Boarding School and if you will bear with me I would like to quote from another educational expert whose report was not widely circulated, in fact I only know of one copy until one Honourable Member took the time and trouble to have it re-copied and circulated, and he said and I quote: "Education in the Camp can only be satisfactorily carried out through the expansion of Darwin Boarding School. There should be no difficulty in filling the school if accommodation for an additional twenty boarders is provided and the age of entry raised to eight, while if all eligible children took advantage of what is provided, a school double the present size would be justified. Additionally classrooms should be bigger than those presently available, there should be an assembly hall which can be used as a gymnasium, and better and more staff accommodation is needed". That I think, no date on it but is approximately, yes there is - November 1962. There is a lot more interesting reading in that report and not a scrap of notice has ever been taken of it. I suppose we can console ourselves with the fact that the original iniquitous proposal to house the children, as far as I can gather, in an old nissen hut re-erected between a couple of the Government houses up 'Little Italy', was squashed. At least we hope the children will have a habitable dwelling. I regret that most of what I have said has sounded critical but in this budget, this mountain of paper, with which we have been presented, I find very little that is praiseworthy. The trend over the last ten years has been horrifying; if you project the increase in Government expenditure forward it will not be very many more years before the entire gross national product of the Colony is required to keep the Government going. As one other member has said the sheep only grows so much wool, we can't go out to our sheep and tell him that whereas he was only producing eight pounds of wool the Government now wants twice as much money so now he must grow sixteen. It just does not work. At the present moment prices are high and for the next year it is likely that we should be able to budget for a surplus. However prices are uncertain, they could well drop again and God help us if they do! I beg to support the Motion."

The President:

"Thank you very much".

Chief Secretary: "Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I did not intend to speak to this motion - not because I did not wish to add my thanks to those of other Members to His Excellency for his address, but simply because this has traditionally been, I think, a place where there is an opportunity for elected Members to have their say without an official Member spoiling their fun at the end by arguing about any of the very excellent points which they have raised. This is not the time to enter into detailed discussion about the Budget. It must be rather tantalising for members of the public who have not yet, we hope, seen details of the Budget, although we have all made reference to it, and I do not want to delay too long the start of the Financial Secretary's Budget speech which will set everyone's fears at rest or show them that their worst fears were, in fact, justified. I do want, however, to make one or two small points which I have noted down having listened to Honourable Members excellent addresses.

First of all I think we must not lose sight of the fact that we are a colony. This is a really outdated, very old-fashioned situation. Most other colonies in the world have, or are now actively in the processes of making arrangements for them to cease to be a colony. We, however, are in a very peculiar and special position. We are very small indeed; it is probably not open to us to take the steps which other colonies have taken, that is to say, to assume independence or association with other territories and become self-governing and independent. We are thus a colony and unfortunately we have to obey the rules which Britain, our mother country, has laid down for her colonies. We have large books of rules which tell us what we must do and how we must regulate our affairs and however irksome it may be to members, we have I am afraid as long as we are a colony, to accept that we have to do what the Secretary of State acting for Her Majesty the Queen tells us.

The second point I wanted to make was that we have heard a great deal about how hard the new Budget proposals, of which only those of us around the table yet know the details, are going to affect Stanley and the Camp. I think I should point out that one of the main points made in a report which Honourable Members have received, but it is one which it has slipped their memories to castigate in the way that the other reports have been castigated, that is to say that of Mr. Armstrong the economist. One of his main, central themes was, and is, that a big problem that this colony has faced and continues to face is the large amount of money which is expatriated from the colony in the form of profits from the wool farms. A lot of money from the Falklands each year leaves the Falklands and goes to enrich the shareholders of the wool farms overseas. This is money which we would very much like to see retained in the colony and used for our own enrichment - instead it leaves in the form of profits to the share-holders of the farms.

Therefore there is quite a lot to be said for increased taxation which reduces these profits which are, to us living in the Falklands, sent overseas and of no use. I think we should not forget that when we are discussing increased taxation measures.

The other point I would like to stress is that of inflation. Some Honourable Members said that we should keep to the level of expenditure of previous years. This would be wonderful; this would be lovely. I have just been back to London which I only left nine months ago; the increase of prices just in this short nine months horrified me. Indeed, I go back to England on an average every twelve or fifteen months and each time the increase of prices on things I know very well - bus fares from my home to the centre of town and things like that, goes up enormously. Here in the Colony we are living in some kind of dreamland where we are trying to swim against the stream; we are trying to go against what is happening everywhere else in the world and it is just futile. We can't do it. Each "AES" the provisions come into the Colony, they cost more each time, inevitably. This is simply the reflection of the increased prices in the rest of the world and it is simply futile to say that we have got to keep Government departments to the same amount that they have been spending in the past. It is normal budgetary practice for a Financial Secretary to tell his departments that they must keep within the last year's limit plus the rate of inflation which is usually allowed at seven per cent. Elsewhere where I have been head of department the Financial Secretary sends down his little note saying "Last year you spent £150,000 in your department, next year your allocation is £150,000 plus seven per cent for inflation". Now let me remind you that in the United Kingdom last year the total real rate of inflation was twelve per cent but to try to keep within the amount that we have spent in past years is simply impossible. Most of the other points were touched upon and which Members should be dealing with at question time in their motions, in their bills, and as I said earlier this is not the place to argue each individual point that is raised and I would simply like to end by supporting the motion of thanks to His Excellency".

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, there is only one point that I would like to refer to, which Honourable Members have mentioned, and that is the proposal for an export duty on wool. It is only some ten years back that the export duty was abolished. In the proposal to abolish it, it was said "The proposal to abolish export duty marks a milestone in the Colony's taxation policy and is one which I think will be widely welcomed. If this proposal is adopted the sheep farming industry will be entirely free from any sort of direct taxation that is not based on profits, and the importance of this I can hardly emphasise too much". There is also another implication to be considered and that is the fact that taxation paid in the way of export duty does not rank for double taxation relief in the United Kingdom. However, during the Select Committee meeting of the Council we will examine the proposal in detail and I am very pleased that the Honourable Member has brought it up for re-consideration. The remainder of the points relating to the budget I hope that I will cover adequately in the introduction of that subject. I would like to add my support to the Motion."

The President:

"Thank you Mr. Rowlands. Well, Honourable Members, I would like to thank you for your most useful contributions to the discussion this morning and for your vote of thanks. I think they will be invaluable when we are in the Select Committee discussing the budget and I don't want to go into detail now of what will come up in the questions and the debate committee, but I was particularly impressed with the suggestions by our two Members who went to the London Talks, that they thought we should open this up a bit and be flexible in our approach and be prepared to at least discuss this problem we do have, and which I am afraid we do have to live with here - it affects us more probably than anyone else. Thank you very much Honourable Members."

PAPERS LAID ON THE TABLE BY THE CHIEF SECRETARY:

Medical Report 1972.

Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Council since October 1972.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLYThe Clerk:

"Question No. 1/73 by the Honourable A. B. Monk, JP".

Mr. Monk:

"Has any firm been awarded the contract to construct the Cape Pembroke Airfield yet?"

Chief Secretary:

"At the present time, no Sir. However a short list of suitable and interested contractors has been compiled and it is expected that the successful firm will be named before the end of this year."

Mr. Monk:

"Thank you".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 2/73 by the Honourable A. E. Monk, JP".

Mr. Monk:

"Have Alginate Industries indicated when they will start commercial operations in the Falklands?"

Chief Secretary:

"Alginate Industries Ltd. are actively studying and planning their forthcoming operations in the Colony, but have not yet informed government of any firm date when they will begin commercial production".

Mr. Monk:

"Is it right that in fact the reason they are not making much progress is that they cannot raise the money?"

Chief Secretary:

"I am in a slightly difficult position here because I am possibly in possession of some confidential information concerning their affairs which it would be improper for me to divulge. All I can say is that they are certainly actively looking for a source of a not inconsiderable sum of money, about three million pounds, which they are planning to invest in the Colony in their capital installations."

Mr. Monk:

"Can you tell me if they have any plans for forming a locally registered company to run their affairs over here when they start up?"

Chief Secretary:

The formation of a locally registered company certainly does take place in the plans that they are discussing at the moment. I don't think that they have reached any firm decision either way on that particular issue".

Mr. Monk:

"Can you tell me in so far as we are concerned whether a locally registered company would be more advantageous to us tax-wise or not?"

Chief Secretary:

"Tax is a complex subject but I think the answer is that it certainly would be more advantageous to us, in my opinion".

Mr. Blake:

"Will the Honourable Chief Secretary clarify the licensing system with a view to telling Council when Alginate Industries will effectively start contributing to the Colony's revenue?"

Chief Secretary:

"I regret I have not got the full contract before me to read the relevant clause but my memory of this is that in fact we do begin to benefit next year".

Mr. Luxton:

"I should like to ask the Chief Secretary if there are any plans to encourage another developer if in fact Alginate Industries fail to do so?"

Chief Secretary:

"We have a large folder of other alginate, seaweed companies who write to us periodically and our impression certainly is that if Alginates fall by the wayside any one of a number of others are going to apply to take over their concession. Certainly our impression is that these other companies who are looking with considerable interest at our seaweed are assisting Alginates to come to a more rapid decision on their affairs than has been the case in the past".

Mr. Blake:

"Will the Honourable Member clarify the issue? Alginate Industries do not have a sole concession to the kelp harvest in the islands do they?"

Chief Secretary:

"Alginate Industries have been awarded a concession which does not cover the whole islands, it covers the concession area in which I understand the best kelp is in fact situated. It is possible to have one or more other companies operating at the same time but they would in fact have to operate in the second rate kelp areas".

Mr. Miller:

"Is it not a fact that, when Alginate Industries were granted this concession over a certain area we were advised, and I believe it was in the original contract or agreement some years ago, they had first option on other areas. Is that correct?"

Chief Secretary:

"I am in some difficulty here because this contract is confidential. I think we should perhaps not proceed too far. Other companies have been pressing us for details of the agreement which is a commercial agreement between Alginate and ourselves. I think (I don't want to slide out under questions which I do know the answer to), we probably ought to call a halt here from ordinary commercial honesty".

Mr. Miller:

"Thank you".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 3/73 by the Honourable A. B. Monk, JP".

Mr. Monk:

"Is there any contingency planning with regard to our communications should our relations with the Argentine government become less cordial when their newly elected government takes office?"

Chief Secretary:

"Yes Sir. While any disruption of our communications - apart from that which is normally caused by wintry weather - is considered most unlikely, Her Majesty's Government will ensure that the Colony is not cut off from the outside world".

Mr. Monk:

"Are the contingency plans secret?"

Chief Secretary:

"Yes, inevitably so".

Mr. Blake:

"Will the Honourable Member please confirm that this contingency plan is not just the 'AFS' replacement?"

Chief Secretary:

"I will confirm that".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 4/73 by the Honourable W. R. Luxton".

Mr. Luxton:

"Is Government taking active steps to recruit a Medical Officer for Fox Bay and if so what is being done to rectify the disgraceful state into which Marnon House has fallen, both inside and out?"

Chief Secretary:

"Yes Sir. Every effort is being made to recruit a third doctor for the Colony. It is hoped that he will be posted to Fox Bay and in this case Marnon House will be restored. It must be faced however that at present those doctors who are showing an interest in coming to the Falklands are not prepared to serve at Fox Bay. The choice may therefore have to be taken between having a third doctor stationed in Stanley and continuing with only two doctors".

Mr. Luxton:

"I feel sure that the Chief Secretary will agree that it has been the tentative opinion of the administration in the past that a doctor is not necessary in Fox Bay. Can you tell me if this attitude is being communicated to the persons responsible for recruitment at the other end so that perhaps they are not trying very hard?"

Chief Secretary:

"Dr. Evans, the medical adviser to the Secretary of State, is in charge of our recruitment problems. He is coming out next week at our express request to investigate the various difficulties that are facing the Medical Department. He has seen the Comben and Waller Report which comes down very strongly and advises us that, in fact, it is the opinion of the Organisation and Methods experts that a doctor is not necessary as well at Fox Bay"

Mr. Luxton:

"I am aware of that Sir. Is the Chief Secretary aware of the way in which the recruiting agency tried actively to persuade the last two doctors who have arrived in the Falklands from coming here?"

Chief Secretary:

"There is a world-wide shortage of doctors prepared to go to out-of-the-way places and it seems an unenviable task for the medical recruiters in London to have to try to balance up the respective needs of the different territories for doctors; doctors who are in short supply. Dr. Evans and his friends in London have to try to decide whether to recommend that one of thirty or forty vacancies in Africa or the Far East should be filled, or one vacancy in the Falklands should be filled. It is a very hard task for them to perform and I have no inside knowledge of how in fact they do go about making these very difficult decisions."

The President:

"You will have a fair opportunity gentlemen to discuss this when the Motion comes up on the general question of the medical services."

Mr. Monk:

"Is it the intention of government to post a doctor to Fox Bay and then restore the house, or the other way around?"

Chief Secretary:

"The way things work is that we get a considerable period of warning after we have got a doctor who is prepared to go to Fox Bay; certainly never less than two or three months and as soon as we manage to secure a doctor who will agree to accept the posting to Fox Bay, we shall then set in motion a swift, and efficient and effective exercise to put Marnon House into order".

Mr. Blake:

"Would the Honourable Member confirm whether government has any contingency plan for the safe conduct of Dr. Evans to prevent him getting hijacked on the West Falkland - at least he has the title of doctor, if not the ability?"

Chief Secretary:

"No Sir, there is no contingency planning".

Mr. Blake:

"I am most grateful for that".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 5 of 1973 by the Honourable W. R. Luxton".

Mr. Luxton:

"Is Government satisfied with the progress of the campaign to eliminate hydatid disease?"

Chief Secretary:

"From the statistics it is clear that there has been a drop in the percentage of hydatid disease in sheep. Dosing of dogs with Scoloban according to the returns, is satisfactory but Government is not entirely satisfied that all inspectors are ensuring that the disposal of offal is carried out according to the very strict standards required. Certainly there can be no room for complacency with regard to either the dosing of dogs or the disposal of offal.

In regard to the incidence of this disease in humans, it is hoped that full Casoni and serological tests will be carried out later in the year or early next year and the opportunity will be taken to seek the advice of Dr. Evans of the ODA when he is here later this month on the whole question of hydatid disease and the contemplated programme of eradication."

Mr. Miller:

"Is the Honourable Member able to tell us from whence he obtained his statistics, because those supplied from the butchery do not support them".

Chief Secretary:

"Yes Sir. I am indebted to the Officer in Charge of the Agricultural Department for about 40 sheets of graphs for each station, which do show a downward curve. It is, I believe, a fairly marginal downward curve but it is a downward curve and I have no reason to doubt these very carefully produced statistics."

Mr. Miller:

"I should put this in the form of a question. I get all these returns from which the Officer in Charge of the Agricultural Department composes his graphs every time that they are issued, and I keep them all, naturally. I keep a detailed file and I find there is an increase of three per cent in the reported incidence in the year before the current one, starting from July 1st. (I am sorry I cannot put this very well in the form of a question.) This I consider perfectly natural because, as we were told by the experts who first warned us about hydatid disease, sheep acquire these cysts at an early age and they keep them for all their life and until we get away from killing sheep which were 2/3 years old when we first started the campaign, we will still have a high incidence, and the sheep we are killing now are presumably 5/6 year olds and are bound still to have a high incidence."

Chief Secretary:

"I take it that the Honourable Sidney Miller's supplementary question was - "Are you sure?" and all I can say is that I have these beautiful graphs which show, for the West Falklands for the 1st January 1971 the figure is for the West 36 which has now gone down to 31. For the East Falkland Islands the figure started at 40 and has now gone down to 37. For the Colony total the figure started at 39 and has now gone down to 34. These are graphs worked out at my request as a result of this question so that I could substantiate the answer which, I must confess, was written for me while I was away; but these, I think, are the best graphs available."

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Are you satisfied that Dr. Evans who must be a desk-bound recruiting officer a lot of times, is qualified to advise on this rather complicated and specialist problem?"

Chief Secretary:

"Dr. Evans has been alerted to this problem. I do not think he would claim to be a world expert on hydatids but, of course as the Secretary of State's Medical Adviser he has the advice of a whole range of experts, and we are lucky in having a doctor here who is particularly interested in this problem, who went into it before he came out, has been in correspondence with the ODA since he has been here. I have no doubt that Dr. Evans will arrive with absolutely all the information and advice at his fingertips that we are hoping for."

Mr. Luxton:

"I am grateful to the Chief Secretary for the satisfactory answer, particularly with the part dealing with the disposal of offal. I, too, am not satisfied, and what steps does Government intend to take to enforce this?"

Chief Secretary:

"It is, of course, extremely difficult in a scattered community of our nature. We want Inspectors at all the settlements. The question of enforcement and of gingering up the Inspectors is, as the Honourable Member points out, an extremely difficult one. I think the best thing we can really suggest is that Managers of farms take a personal interest in ensuring that the Inspectors do carry out their duties. We have a small Police force but it cannot really hope to make much impact on the enforcement of this particular legislation. We do make a point when we have a vet on the few visits that are made of a veterinary nature here that he does go around and sees the Inspectors, but it really does, I think, boil down to the Managers of the farms doing their best to chase up the Inspectors to do their job properly!"

Mr. Luxton:

"Thank you, Sir. I really do think that the system leaves too many loop holes. Will Government consider the appointment of an independent Inspector with wide powers to enforce the Ordinance, the power to arrive at any point in the Islands, unannounced and unexpected, and make a snap inspection. It hurts me to suggest, after what I said earlier, that additional expenditure should be made, but I do feel that unless this thing is brought under control rapidly lives are going to be lost and the saving in the expenditure may well come about by the saving of colossal hospital fees in Buenos Aires in the future."

Chief Secretary:

"Thank you Mr. Luxton. I think that is a useful suggestion and I will certainly ensure that it is followed up. I might point out that the details I have of the incidence of hydatid disease are as follows:

between 1963-69, 6 years, there were four cases.

'70 - 3 cases

'71 - no cases

'72 - 3 cases

and there have been no cases reported so far this year. So, the actual disease problem in humans is possibly not enormous."

Mr. Luxton:

"The Chief Secretary says that the problem is not enormous, I do not expect the 2/3 cases each year share that view. Could he tell me, roughly, what medical treatment for these cases has cost the Colony. I understand that it can be a very severe operation. I am not asking for an accurate figure but just a rough idea."

Chief Secretary:

"No Sir. I will ensure that you are sent the necessary details as soon as they are dug out. I am afraid I have not got them at my finger tips".

Mr. Blake:

"Would the Honourable Member confirm that in actual fact members of the public who have a complaint about hydatid conditions can communicate these in complete confidence to the Senior Medical Officer?"

Chief Secretary:

"Yes, I am sure I can give you that assurance".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 6 of 1973 by the Honourable W. R. Luxton".

Mr. Luxton:

"If the procedure of releasing some issues of stamps before the formal release date is to continue, will Government give an assurance that in future the availability of these will receive better publicity than has occurred in the past?"

Chief Secretary:

"Yes Sir. When it is considered necessary, on account of transport delays, to put British Antarctic Territory stamps on pre-release sale in the Colony, steps will be taken to ensure that adequate advance notice is given by means of both broadcast and written public notice".

Mr. Luxton:

"I should like to ask the Chief Secretary why it was that he advised me in a letter that the announcement regarding the last issue of stamps was broadcast on the 7th January, when, in fact, the announcement was not sent from the Post Office until the 8th January and was, in fact broadcast on the 8th, 9th and 10th. Furthermore I should like him to explain why the stamps were in the possession of a Post Office employee on Sunday the 7th January".

Chief Secretary:

"I apologise if I mis-led the Honourable Member, when I informed him that a broadcast took place on the 7th when in fact it took place on the 8th, 9th and 10th. I am afraid here I have no access to ascertain what in fact did take place. As far as the possession of stamps by a Post Office employee is concerned, there has been in the past a system whereby certain officers act as the Government Philatelic Bureau which receives large, overseas orders which have to be fulfilled by a certain date. The duties of these officers were of interminable tearing up of sheets of stamps and licking them, sticking them on envelopes and addressing those envelopes. A tedious, menial and time consuming job and it has been in the past the opinion of the Post Master that this was necessary in order to complete this job by the given date, for these stamps to be issued to those officers so that they could get on licking and sticking them on in an attempt to catch the post".

Mr. Luxton:

"This is news to me. I think it may be news to a lot of other Honourable Members. I had no idea that the Government were in fact dealing in stamps. Could the Chief Secretary tell me approximately what the revenue is in this particular case?"

Chief Secretary:

"I think we are going rather far away from the question. I am afraid I cannot tell you offhand what the revenue for philatelic sales is. We make substantial revenue from such sales, like all territories of this nature. I think our income from philately is something in the order of £12 or £15,000 a year, something we are hoping to boost. It is a very valuable source of revenue".

The Clerk:
"Question No. 7 of 1973 by the Honourable E. G. Blake, JP"

Mr. Blake:
"Will the Honourable Chief Secretary tell Council of the progress on the Permanent Airfield Project and in view of the fact that Government contracts, like the wheels of Hell, tend to "grind exceedingly slow", when we can expect the first sod to be turned at Cape Pembroke?"

Chief Secretary:
"Preliminary arrangements for the construction of the permanent airfield are proceeding more or less according to plan but there has been some slippage in the time schedule; the design drawings are complete and tender drawings and tender documents are almost ready. Similarly the draft specifications and bill of quantities should be ready this week and the Crown Agents propose to go out to tender at the end of this month with the closing date for the receipt of tenders being 1st September. On this basis the latest estimate for the first sod being turned at Cape Pembroke is 1st May next year. I regret this answer I have given is slightly different from that on your sheet. I did spend an afternoon with the Engineer in London responsible for this project and I have got, I think, completely up to date information on it."

Mr. Blake:
"Will the Honourable Member please confirm that this is likely to be the total slippage upon the first sod date?"

Chief Secretary:
"I regret I cannot accept responsibility for all the slippages that may, one must face it, occur between the putting out to tender, contracting, contractor getting here, contractor putting up his housing, contractor getting his labour and the contractor actually getting underway in the middle of a Falklands winter."

Mr. Pitaluga:
"Could you tell us, please, why this has been handed over to the Crown Agents to deal with instead of being dealt with by the Ministry of Overseas Administration".

Chief Secretary:
"I am afraid that this is the way the Government in London works. The Ministry of Overseas Administration engineers commission the Crown Agents, who commission a supervisory team of engineers to get on with it. This is the same machinery that works with the recruitment, for instance, of overseas staff. The Overseas Development Agency is the controlling authority, the Crown Agents do much of the nuts and bolts work and they again sometimes sub-contract further out. It sounds complicated and it must be taken that perhaps sometimes it does leave something to be desired".

Mr. Miller:

"Can the Honourable Member assure us now the Crown Agents have taken over this procedure of arranging tenders, and as we already know that F&G is going to put this airfield up, that the rather high commission and usual charges that Crown Agents add to all the things they do for us, will not unexpectedly find their way back here?"

Chief Secretary:

"The airfield is being financed from UK vote in its entirety. There is no suggestion that anything will find its way back here except, we trust, the airfield, but we have nothing in the estimates next year to finance any commission of any kind and there has been no mention that we shall have to pay for anything at all".

Mr. Monk:

"If due to all the delays and inflation the Development Aid in fact proves insufficient have we got reason to suppose that we will get some more."

Chief Secretary:

"In my experience elsewhere when the money runs out with half an air strip the British Government comes good and produces the other half"

The Clerk:

"Question No. 8 of 1973 by the Honourable L. G. Blake, JP".

Mr. Blake:

"Will the Honourable the Financial Secretary tell members which organisations with a base in the Colony do not pay Colony taxes and the number of their employees who do not pay local income tax?"

Financial Secretary:

"Yes Sir. The following organisations based in the Colony do not pay Falkland Islands Income Tax:

The Argentine Airline LADE and the Argentine Petroleum Organisation YPF
 The United Kingdom Ministry of Defence
 The United Kingdom Department of Trade and Industry
 The United Kingdom Science Research Council including the European Space Research Organisation
 The British Antarctic Survey

All their employees pay Falkland Islands Income Tax unless they are exempted from Income Tax under Section 8 of our Income Tax Ordinance."

Mr. Blake:

"Could the Honourable Member, before I ask supplementaries, tell me what Section 8 of the Income Tax Ordinance means?"

Financial Secretary:

"Section 8 of the Income Tax Ordinance covers all exemptions from Income Tax. The items which the Member will be interested in:- the financial emoluments received by the OAG during the time he is administering and the emoluments drawn by the Governor while he is on leave; the emoluments payable to members of permanent consular service of foreign countries in respect of their offices or respective services claimed by them in their official capacity; the emoluments paid from Imperial funds to members of HM Forces; persons in the permanent service of the Imperial Government in the Colony in respect of their offices under the Imperial Government."

Mr. Blake:

"In view of the fact that this is a very small community and that we have difficulty in meeting HMG requirements to balance our budget, has the Financial Secretary any scheme on foot which would encourage these individuals, or HMG, to at least contribute to the high per capita costs of maintaining Government for those individuals exempted".

Financial Secretary:

"No Sir. At present there are only four officials working in the Colony Government who are exempted from Falkland Islands income tax. Their conditions make them pay UK income tax. In the case of two employees their emoluments are, in fact, higher than the amount which we pay the British government for them. In the other case, they are members of the services. In addition to that, our Royal Marine contingent, which now numbers 37, do not, of course, pay tax, and the LADE Agent and his deputy and the two members of the YPF do not pay. Otherwise all personal emoluments are taxed".

Mr. Blake:

"I thank the Honourable Financial Secretary for the information given with regard to the individuals. I would like to turn to the organisations. Can the Financial Secretary confirm that the Comben and Waller team did not, in any way, recommend touching the British Government with regard to her organisations which work here for an increase".

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency. The British Government's workings based in the Colony are providing services which do not lend themselves to be taxed. They are putting money in the Colony. The UK Science Research Council and the European Space Research Organisation do pay Stanley rates to the Stanley Town Council at present which will be taken over shortly by the Government subject to the Bill before Council passing. The British Antarctic Survey pays the Government a contribution for the services rendered. This is at present under review. The proposals made in the budget may effect this contribution. It has now been placed on the top priority list in the Treasury that the contribution will be looked at again immediately this budget ends."

Mr. Blake:

"I am most grateful to the Financial Secretary for this information but I would like to go back to that last question dealing with these organisations, with the exception of the Argentine airline LADE, the Ministry of Defence etc., is it not so that all other employers in the Colony contribute to the Colony's revenue as well as their employees whereas it is only the employees and not the employers of these British Government organisations which contribute to the Colony's revenue".

Financial Secretary:

"Well, let us look at the list a little closer. The UK Ministry of Defence do provide our defence of the Islands, which must cost an enormous amount of money. The UK Department of Trade and Industry provide a lighthouse. The UK Science Research Council and the European Space Research Organisation do have a fair number of people stationed here paying taxes. The British Antarctic Survey also pumps new money into the Government each year. It pumps money into the public in the way of contracts. This is all new money coming into the country which is good for the country - and the fact is that none of these organisations make a profit here."

The President:

"That is the point. They are non profit making organisations providing scientific research and in the case of the Argentine airline and YPF covered by the Communications Agreement. It seems to me to be reasonable enough".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 9 of 1973 by the Honourable W. E. Bowles".

Mr. Bowles:

"Has Government received the awaited Actuary's report on the Old Age Pensions Fund and will an early study of his assessment be forthcoming?"

Financial Secretary:

"Government has not yet received the Report by the Government Actuary on the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office have been asked that the Actuary treats this matter as urgent. I can assure you that there will be no delay in referring the report to Council for study when it is received here".

Mr. Bowles:

"Has the Actuary's report arrived since Council papers have been processed?"

Financial Secretary:

"No Sir".

Mr. Bowles:

"Thank you".

Mr. Blake:

"Does the Financial Secretary expect this Actuary's report to be any more enlightening than the last one? The last one seemed to think that we needed something over two million pounds to carry a satisfactory pension scheme".

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency. I am not qualified to criticise the Actuary's report. I have every confidence in the Actuary's report and speaking to a member of the staff of Peat, Marwick and Mitchell recently, he enlightened me that an Actuary requires special qualifications. He certainly looked at the report, and has asked for a copy of the next report, and he gave every confidence that it was a good report".

Mr. Blake:

"I thank the Honourable Financial Secretary for his confidence and would ask if that special qualification is a crystal ball?"

Financial Secretary:

"May I be excused not to answer the question?"

The Clerk:

"Question No. 10 of 1973 by the Honourable R. M. Pitaluga".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Is Government aware that each year, significant numbers of contract people and marines leave these islands wishing that they could return and settle? If so, will it consider whether a scheme of assisted passages might be workable for people who have some guarantee of employment?"

Chief Secretary:

"During the past year, no approaches have been made to Government by marines or contract employees requesting assistance to return and settle in the Colony..

As Honourable Members will be aware from study of the budget which is being debated at this session, it is considered that the state of the Colony's finances do not permit past policies of extensive subsidies in social and economic fields to continue at a high level. Proposals for any additional subsidies, thus would not be welcomed and it is considered that recruitment and passage costs for workers in the Colony should continue to be paid, as hitherto, by prospective employers!"

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Where such people have proved satisfactory in their posts, does Government, apart from contract people, ever encourage them to return for a further term?"

Chief Secretary:

"I take it that the question, Sir, refers to Government contract employees. Certainly, when they have been satisfactory Government likes them to return and Government pays for them to return and pays all costs associated with their return".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Thank you for your reply, Sir".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 11 of 1973 by the Honourable R. M. Pitaluga".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Will Government please explain the apparent lack of proper arrangements for the reception and accommodation of the returning school children in Comodoro Rivadavia last month and give an assurance that all possible steps will be taken to avoid a repetition?"

Chief Secretary:

"It is understood, in fact, that the arrangements for the school children for whom this government has direct responsibility - those returning to Montevideo - want very smoothly.

The arrangements for the children going to school in Argentina were, as in the past, in the hands of the Argentine Foreign Ministry. It is understood that uncertainty over the availability of aircraft, coupled with communication difficulties over a weekend and the presence of several Falkland Islands mothers which made members of the Rotary Club in Comodoro feel that their assistance was unnecessary contributed towards a breakdown in plans. The local Argentine member of the Joint Consultative Committee has given assurances that in future the children will fly straight through to Buenos Aires in a single day and that they will be accompanied by a responsible adult".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Were there any repercussions from the Argentine immediately following the events you have just described?"

Chief Secretary:

"I do not entirely follow what you are getting at I am afraid. There were no repercussions of which I am aware".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"I am sorry, perhaps I should have said "complaints from the Argentine authorities".

Chief Secretary:

"No Sir, there were no complaints from the Argentine authorities. There were several complaints from Falkland Islands mothers".

Mr. Monk:

"Do I understand from the Chief Secretary's reply that he does not consider the mothers who accompanied the children were responsible adults?"

Chief Secretary:

"A number of the letters of complaint which I received made as a specific point in their complaint that it was not up to the mothers who were coping privately with their children to look after other children that weren't theirs. This is the point that this, perhaps not very well drafted, answer was trying to get across".

Mr. Blake: "Does the Chief Secretary not consider that Government has every responsibility for all scholarship children leaving this Colony?"

Chief Secretary:

"This is a slightly difficult one as to how far Government should be regarded as a paternalistic organisation responsible for all Falkland Islanders. You must face it that these children are private children going overseas on Argentine Government scholarships. The British Government does not assume responsibility for British children going to the United States on United States scholarships. I do not really see why this Government should be saddled with any particular responsibility other than the general responsibility which it undertakes for all Falkland Islanders at all times."

Mr. Blake:

"Is it not a fact that the majority of these children attending schools in Argentina were recommended for scholarships by this Government or a Department of this Government?"

Chief Secretary:

"The Argentine Foreign Ministry requested the assistance of the Scholarship Committee here in selecting the children to be offered scholarships".

The President:

"I think we will have to get it better next time and we will. I think there is a case for sending one of our teachers possibly with the children next time to make certain just in case things go wrong. This was just an unfortunate comedy of circumstances and everything just seemed to go mad. Next time it will probably work like clock work but we will certainly have contingency planning to make quite certain that they are not left on their own again".

The Clerk:

"Question No. 12 of 1975 by the Honourable S. Miller, JP".

Mr. Miller:

"This question was made before we had some recent news but I think it is still effective because it has not yet been implemented.

Failing the recruitment of a third doctor this winter does Government consider that the health of the whole Colony can be safely left in the hands of a solitary medical officer?"

Secretary:

"No Sir. It would be unreasonable to expect the doctor concerned (notwithstanding his ability and energy) to carry such a load. The response to our advertisements in the United Kingdom for a doctor has been disappointing and therefore we are trying to recruit a doctor from the Argentine. I may say that I hope, when I get back to the office at lunch time, there will be a telegram on my desk saying that the doctor who we have been wooing has signed his contract".

Miller:

"Thank you, Sir, but he has not got here yet and can my Honourable friend tell the House that failing such satisfactory recruitment the present staff of two medical officers will be retained until a replacement can be found."

Chief Secretary:

"I personally went into this question when I was in BA and I feel that if this particular doctor does not sign his contract and, indeed he wrote to me by yesterday's mail detailing his travel arrangements and lots of domestic details, I am almost one hundred per cent certain that he will, if by any chance he does fall down I am sure that the British Hospital will assist us in recruiting another one at similarly short notice."

Mr. Miller:

"Thank you".

Mr. Monk:

"Can he speak English?"

Chief Secretary:

"Our proposed new doctor is an Argentine national of Hungarian extraction who speaks impeccable English".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"What will be the length of his contract?"

Chief Secretary:

"He has been offered a 3½ month contract on special terms. He has intimated that he has not finally decided on what he is going to do at the end of that and that if he likes us and he likes you and you are nice to him, he might conceivably stay on for a year or two".

Mr. Blake:

"Would the Chief Secretary arrange that he should tour with Dr. Evans also?"

Chief Secretary:

"I am afraid he won't be here then".

MOTIONS

By the Honourable L. G. Blake, JP - "That this house views with grave concern the state of the Colony's medical service, in view of the inability of this government to recruit and maintain a satisfactory number of doctors".

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in bringing this Motion to Council I would like to deal with a little of the history of the situation. Back as far as the end of July last year, in view of the possible shortage of doctors in Stanley an administrative decision was taken to move the doctor from Fox Bay to Stanley. This was debated hotly within the Colony, particularly on the West Falklands, but in September/October of last year Dr. Lehmann moved in here and Dr. Novak departed for places unknown. You, Sir, at that time assured us that everything would be done to recruit temporary or permanent medical assistance and if necessary an approach would be made to Argentina. The next step was the departure of Dr. Ferguson and at about the same time Legislative Council and Executive Council were persuaded to accept the Sedgwick proposals with OSAS (to a great degree with a view to improving our recruitment position particularly for medical officers). From then onwards we sat with our fingers crossed and it looks as though we will be sitting for a long time to come. Fortunately in answer to our advertisement, and probably prayers from this Council and the general populace on these Islands, in January Doctor Cox arrived and a sigh of relief, even if only temporary, was breathed; but with the imminent departure of Dr. Lehmann it was decided that Doctor Cox should stay in Stanley where the best use of his services could be made. Finally in January/February the Sedgwick proposals were accepted by the civil service and the figures could go out in the advertisements. The next step was of course Dr. Lehmann's tour of the Camp settlements and he said at the time that he thought that a six monthly visit was quite a good thing; it kept people happy anyway. And then in March of this year Dr. Lehmann departed and we are back to square one with just two doctors in Colony. Which brings us almost up to date when you Sir, in conjunction with the Chief Secretary I believe, made an approach to the British Hospital in Buenos Aires for a locum, which was immediately filled. This was apparently no problem and to bring us right up to date, this morning we laid on the table the Medical and Sanitary Report for the Colony which within its red cover informs the wide world that most residents of the Colony can now contact their medical officer by radio-telephone or direct. I would very much have liked to have seen that modified - at the moment for possibly seven hours a day many residents can contact their doctor, if you happen to fall ill outside that period, well that is too bad, you just sit and hatch it until morning and hope that nothing untoward will happen. In recent months when someone has needed a doctor on the far West, on I think two occasions, unfortunately interference from South America spoilt the alarm system so that was not functioning either, so no contact could be made - and we are now told that it is unlikely that we will succeed in recruiting a third doctor for Fox Bay. But I think that is only since the administration has decided, and I don't just mean the Colony administration but Her Majesty's Government's administration in Britain, have decided that really the Fox Bay set-up is unnecessary, though it has appeared that doctors are reluctant to serve at Fox Bay. It is quite obvious I think that either someone within the Colony or the Ministry of Overseas Development, or the Crown Agents as they all seem to have a finger in the pie of recruitment (or persuading doctors to go elsewhere) is feeding to prospective medical officers the idea that the only place to serve is Stanley because there won't be enough for them to do at Fox Bay. If we maintain the proposed number of doctors in other words three, in Stanley, they can be employed taking in each other's washing, otherwise I am not too sure what they would do because there would be fewer per capita for a resident doctor than there would be on the West Falklands, but this is something that we hope will change with the magic visit of Doctor Evans and unless a third doctor is stationed outside Stanley I can see no justification whatsoever for recruiting him because there is not a hope in hell I think of getting a doctor to serve under conditions like a Camp teacher, in other words an itinerant doctor. I cannot imagine anyone accepting these conditions and so what is the alternative? The only alternative is a really adequate communications system which would operate efficiently and without any doubt twenty-four hours a day throughout most of the islands. The figure set out by Mr. Lefevre for this sort of equipment is three hundred and twenty five thousand pounds or there-about. I don't think Solomon could have found a better answer than that one and in my opinion it is the most lunatic method

I have ever heard of for saving one man's salary.
I thank you Sir".

The President:

"Thank you very much. Would anybody like to second that?"

Mr. Laxton:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I suppose this is taking on the appearance of a West Falkland job but after all we are the people possibly most concerned. My Honourable friend has covered the ground so well that there does not seem to be much left for me to say except that I agree with everything he has said, absolutely. I would just like to add that we have known for a long time that the people who are supposed to be recruiting doctors and other professional personnel for the Colony are in fact actively discouraging applicants from coming here. We have simply got to do something about this and in view of the fact that Your Excellency and the Chief Secretary are visiting Britain shortly, I trust they will convey to the Minister responsible the extreme concern of this House at this situation. It is happening too often for far too long, not only with doctors but with teachers, nursing staff and so on. But for the fact that Dr. Cox particularly wanted to come to the Falklands I suspect he would now be in Anguilla, the Solomon Islands or some such place by this time. There appears to be no interest at all in the respective departments in our problems. I am told that as late as August last year ODA were still advising applicants for jobs in the Falklands that they would have to fly to Montevideo and then travel down on the 'Darwin'. Well that speaks for itself. Of course a large part of the blame must lie with this Government. The Administration has been aware of what was happening for, as I said, at least a year. By now some effective action should have been taken and I trust that it very soon will. I beg to second the Motion".

The President:

"Thank you very much. Anybody else like to speak to the Motion?"

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, it falls to my lot again to answer Honourable Members on the question of a doctor for the West and the question of the medical department, as a whole, for the Colony. I would like to say at the outset that the Administration officials are extremely sympathetic to the situation of the people living on West Falkland. We fully realise that there are many very isolated farms there and that the medical set-up is very far from ideal. We appreciate that even more so on the outlying islands there could be occasions when it would be difficult to get prompt medical help to anybody who was taken sick suddenly but we have I am afraid to face the fact that the population of the West is not large, something in the region of four hundred people. We have to face the fact that the doctor stationed at Fox Bay previously was very much underemployed - he made a report not only to this Government but to the Ministry of Overseas Development in England stating that on average he saw approximately one patient per day and I am afraid a statement of that nature, a report of that nature to the Ministry in London, cannot help but have a profound effect. The Ministry is responsible for the recruitment of doctors throughout the British Commonwealth, throughout the territories to which Britain gives aid; we have only to pick up the papers to read about the millions in Africa and Asia who have very few doctors indeed and naturally the officials in London who have to advise a young doctor wishing to give two years of his service to an overseas community, would have to decide between a country in which there is a lot of disease and a lot of poor people and a very few doctors, and a country like the Falklands where there are very few people, very little disease and an extremely healthy population. If any of us seriously put ourselves in the position of advising a doctor like that looking at an indent from the Falklands for a doctor to go to Fox Bay where he knows that there is perhaps one patient per day on an average going to see that doctor; four hundred prospective patients in a temperate, healthy climate with no endemic disease, yellow fever, malaria, plague, all those other diseases that far away places suffer from, we must realise this, we inevitably have to recommend that the doctor goes to where he is going to give best use of his training and of his services. I am sure the two members who spoke to this Motion, if they were seated behind a desk in Whitehall having to decide whether to recommend Doctor Cox to go to the Solomons where a doctor deals with twelve thousand people, or Fox Bay, Falklands, where he deals with four hundred, would see which advice they would feel they had to give to that doctor coming towards them. This is the position that people like Doctor Evans are in; I am afraid we must accept that it is inevitable that they will advise the young doctors to go to places where they think they will be made use of. I don't see what really we can do about this, we have increased our competitiveness in salaries but there has of course been a time lag and this has not borne fruits yet. OSAS, in fact the rates of OSAS, were finally agreed when I was in London two weeks ago; the machinery for paying out OSAS we shall be dealing with in one of our Bills in a few days' time. OSAS has not yet come into effect, nobody here has yet touched a penny of OSAS and of course although the recruiters in London are mentioning to doctors that OSAS is in the air they have not yet been able to tell them the pounds, shillings and pence, how much a doctor is going to receive. As I say it has only been agreed for a matter of days in fact, so we can hope perhaps that the position will improve slightly but I think I would be deluding members if I was to intimate that the position was likely to improve greatly. There is a world shortage of doctors and we come pretty near the bottom of the priority list for doctors to be sent out under the Overseas Development scheme from England. We have been faced with this crisis recently over a relief for Dr. Ashmore and we pulled out the stops. I made a personal appeal to the Medical Director of the British Hospital in Buenos Aires, and he has been able to find us what I hope will be a satisfactory young doctor for a period of three months. We are in fact lucky in that this particular young doctor may stay on longer than that for personal reasons, that he wishes to work in a British territory as this may assist him in getting further training in the United Kingdom later on. The Honourable proposer of the Motion has said that if we do have a third doctor who is not stationed at Fox Bay that he does not feel that it is justified to have him stationed in Stanley and the implication is presumably that we should reduce the complement to two doctors only. I am advised that the third doctor is justified medically in that if we have a third doctor here a great deal more can be performed in the way of operations. That is to say, it is necessary to have someone skilled in anaesthetics to assist in an operation. We could deal with more sophisticated operating techniques and we would save money and time and presumably lives by not having to send so many cases to Buenos Aires. There is the additional point too of the third doctor to act as leave relief; we would be self supporting as far as leave is concerned and we would not have to recruit under emergency conditions as we have had to do recently. Honourable Members are aware that we are studying the question of reducing the length of tours as another means of stimulating recruitment, and if tours in fact do become two years as a matter of routine then the third doctor will spend quite a lot of time acting as leave relief for one or other of the other two doctors who are away on leave; and finally of course the point of the third doctor would be to have him touring, as a camp doctor. In previous island territories where I have been posted doctors have been almost continually on tour, visiting villages and settlements. We have made the innovation I think of Doctor Lehmann's camp tour which has been referred to by the Honourable proposer of the Motion. I think this was a success, I think it was appreciated and we are certainly proposing that it shall be repeated at I trust, reasonably frequent intervals. A third doctor in Stanley, when there are three, would enable more operations to be done, would act as leave relief and would act as touring camp doctor. So that is the situation as we see it; we are endeavouring as well as we can to recruit a doctor for Fox Bay. We have made it quite plain that the post is for Fox Bay - this is also an innovation, in the past I think I am right in saying that all doctors have been recruited for the Falklands and it has been stated that they might be required to serve periods in the Camp, or words to that effect. We have now changed this because we are simply recruiting a doctor for Fox Bay and in the terms of the recruitment we have been bound to put down what the details of the job are, exactly what the facilities are, and this it is possible may have deterred doctors from coming but it is better to be honest and to let the man know exactly what he is coming to rather than get him out here on what he may later claim to be false pretences. He is then discontented and wishes to go back. The doctors we have had who have shown interest have all so far insisted that they feel they would be wasted if they were not stationed in Stanley. So Honourable Members that is the position with regard to the Medical Department as we see it, specifically in answer to the points raised by the proposer and seconder of the Motion".

The President:

"Thank you, Honourable Chief Secretary".

Mr. Blake:

"If I may Sir, I would like to come back. We have all I am sure listened with great interest to the Chief Secretary telling us just what the recruitment position is. I would like to point out that this recruitment position has been the same for years. The African colonies and the other colonies have all been disease-ridden for as long as I can remember and probably as long as many others can remember. The population in the Falkland Islands has decreased slightly but it would not make very much difference, and so the problem in front of the recruiting officer has not really varied but I repeat that it is only within the last nine months that it has suddenly become impossible to attract anyone for Fox Bay and I think the Chief Secretary might have pin-pointed it a little more accurately when he said that in the advertisement we do of course, out of all honesty, have to point out that they might only be seeing one patient a day and that the last doctor was bored stiff. We have had many doctors in the West Falklands and they have all been perfectly satisfied until the last one. He specified when they tried to persuade him to come to Stanley, that he wished to go to the camp and when he got to the camp he was frustrated for some odd reason, he did not like the conditions; he did not like his house and he got fed up. I do not think that that is a viable example and if an employer paints as gloomy a picture of a job as he possibly can then he will almost certainly not get an applicant and this is why I raised the Motion and I think it has been admirably pointed out that the administration of this government is not interested in recruitment."

The President:

"Does anyone else want to speak to the Motion?"

The Motion before the House, Honourable Members, is "That this House views with grave concern the state of the Colony's medical services, in view of the inability of this Government to recruit and maintain a satisfactory number of doctors", and it has been seconded. I put the Motion to the vote".

The Motion was put to the meeting and carried.

By the Honourable the Chief Secretary - "That the Colony draft Development Plan 1973-1978 be formally adopted".

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, I wish to ask that this Motion be held over and debated at the end of this session, after the bills."

The President:

"Yes, thank you".

A motion for the adoption of the Standing Finance Committee Report for the period October 1972 to April 1973, was put by the Financial Secretary. The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and carried.

In introducing a resolution to approve the Pensions (Amendment) Regulations 1973, the Financial Secretary said:

"Your Excellency, the need to amend the Pensions Regulations arises from the adoption of the following two proposals contained in the Salaries Revision Report by Mr. P. C. M. Sedgwick, C.M.G.

The first to change the pension factor from 1/720 to 1/600 for pensionable service beyond the first 20 years of pensionable service.

The second to take into account as pensionable service, any period of service between the officer's eighteenth and twentieth birthdays. Service under the age of 20 could not previously be taken into account as pensionable service.

Changes to the pensions regulations are not normally referred to the Legislature but as the effective date of the Revised Conditions was 1st October, 1972 Section 3(3) of the Ordinance requires the approval of the Legislative Council to give retrospective effect before it is made in Executive Council. It has been considered by the Governor in Council that it is equitable to give the two amendments retrospective effect in order to confer the benefits upon those officers whose effective dates of retirement were after 1st October 1972.

I beg to move that the following resolution be adopted:

Be it resolved pursuant to subsection (3) of section 3 of the Pensions Ordinance 1965 that the Pensions Amendment Regulations 1973 considered by the Governor in Council on the 1st day of March, 1973 under subsection 3(2) of the Ordinance, be approved".

The motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary.

The Resolution was then made and passed.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

THE APPROPRIATION (1973/74) BILL 1973

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, before presenting the 1973/74 Budget I will briefly sum up the financial matters relating to the current Fiscal Year which ends on June 30th. The Estimates of Ordinary Revenue and Expenditure anticipated a deficit of £46,000. This deficit is now revised at £75,000. During the year consideration was given to the proposals made by the Salaries Commissioner, Mr. P. C. M. Sedgwick, and the majority of his recommendations was eventually implemented, the cost of which is the major supplementary expenditure that has increased the year's expenditure from £479,000 to £533,000. Revenue is expected to total £25,000 more than initially included in the Estimates. Customs duties, income tax and earnings of the a.v. 'Forrest' are the outstanding items of increased revenue. Savings Bank surplus revenue available for transfer expected to total £80,000, fell short of the estimate by £17,000, due to the fall in the London Stock Market prices towards the end of the last financial year. The General Revenue Balance Account and the Reserve Fund which support the Colony's Ordinary Budget are estimated to be reduced to slightly less than £80,000 at the end of the current financial year.

Development Revenue and Expenditure have not changed the Colony's Development Fund to any striking degree from the balance forecast last June. At the end of June 1973 the Development reserves should stand at approximately £120,000.

For the fiscal year 1973/74 a balanced budget has been estimated. The surplus of £2,000 is undoubtedly insignificant, but the budget proposals are of significance. They include a wide range of revenue proposals which will affect everyone and I will now summarise these proposals in the order in which they appear in the Estimates.

- (1) Under Aviation it is proposed to double the charge made by the Falkland Islands Government Air Service for passengers from 5 pence to 10 pence per mile. Expected net revenue from this source £8,000.
- (2) Customs Duties Import duties to be increased. Duty on spirits which at present is £6.75 per gallon it is proposed to increase to £8.25 per gallon. On present consumption this would supply an additional revenue of £7,500 per annum and would increase the price of a bottle by 25 pence. It is also suggested that duty on wines be increased. Duty on cigarettes which is at present 75 pence per lb increase to £1.25 per lb. It is expected that this increase will supply an additional revenue of £3,000 and would increase the price of twenty cigarettes by 2½ pence. Similar increases to be applied to duty on tobacco and cigars.
- (3) Revenue of £5,000 is included from an import duty to be levied on diesel fuel of 5 pence per gallon.
- (4) The imposition of a 20% ad valorem duty on the following selected goods is expected to yield £6,000 -

- Perfumery and cosmetics
- Cameras and photographic equipment, including cine cameras, projectors, sound recorders and reproducers
- Photographic materials
- Watches and clocks
- Gramophones and tape recorders, records and tapes
- Jewellery
- Refrigerators, Deep Freezers, and dish washing machines

It is proposed that all these items should bear a 20% Import Duty.

- (5) Additional revenue of £800 is anticipated from increases in registration fees, which it is proposed should be increased in the region of 400%.
- (6) £5,000 additional tax is expected to accrue through the introduction of a new Income Tax Scale of which I will explain the implications during the course of the meeting when consideration will be given to making certain amendments to our Income Tax Ordinance.
- (7) A bill to amend the Estate Duty Ordinance will also be considered and includes a proposal to revise the Estate Duty rates. The additional revenue expected from this source is £5,000.
- (8) £900 additional revenue has been inserted under revenue from Radio Licences. It is proposed to double the Radio Licence fee from £1 to £2.
- (9) It is proposed to increase a licence to deal in firearms from 50 pence to £25 and to increase the charge for bearing a firearm to £1 for each weapon.
- (10) The fee of 25 pence for permission to gather 1,000 penguin eggs will be 50 pence for the right to gather 100.
- (11) It has been recommended that electricity should not be sold at less than 2.72 pence per unit and it is now intended that this should be the new charge, that is an increase from 2.3 pence to 2.72 pence per unit. A net revenue of £6,000 is anticipated from this source.
- (12) In consequence of the abolition of the Town Council, general and water rates will accrue to Government and it is the intention to levy a combined general and water rate. Revenue of £15,000 in respect of rates is embodied in the Estimates under a new Revenue Head - Municipal Services. The new Stanley Rates to be levied are to be increased threefold, with a double rate for business premises.
- (13) It is expected that the proposed increase to charge 2 pence per word instead of 1 penny for internal telegrams will generate additional revenue of £1,200.
- (14) Over £1,000 is anticipated from increasing the rate of telephone rentals from £6.50 to £10 per annum.
- (15) Certain postage rates are to be reviewed and it is expected that the result of the review will bring in approximately £4,000. The major proposal in this category is the increase in local postage from 1p to 3p per letter.
- (16) All Government house rents are to be doubled and it is expected that £4,500 per annum will accrue to Government through this increase.

Besides those proposals for increasing revenue there are a number of other aspects concerning the revenue estimates which require explanations. Revenue from the m.v. 'Forrest' has been based on the assumption that the charter to the Ministry of Defence will continue after the end of the current agreement due to expire in October.

Because of the present low market value of gilt-edged securities, a transfer from the Savings Bank is not expected in 1973/74, and the total revenue from investments is estimated not to exceed £20,000 which compared with previous years is a considerable drop in revenue from this source.

On the other hand Companies and profits tax is up by £88,000 on 1972/73 Estimates which is brought about by the higher price obtained for the 1971/72 wool clip. The combined estimates for companies and profits tax is shown at £124,000.

£24,000 is anticipated from the sale of stamps and this includes the sale of a tourism issue to be released later in the year.

The ordinary revenue for the year is expected to total £550,000. The estimate of Ordinary Expenditure is approximately £548,000. The majority of expenditure estimates show an increase over previous years and this is largely attributable to the improved conditions of service and the leap in commodity prices. The need to provide for Stanley services because of the imminent abolition of the Town Council has also contributed to the increased expenditure.

Under Agriculture expenditure a token has been inserted for the consideration of a visit by a Veterinary Officer.

Aviation estimates include provision for a relief pilot during the absence of the pilot on overseas leave.

Expenditure on Education is expected to exceed £80,000 and the considerable increase is mainly due to improvements in staff salaries.

The expenditure included for the Met. Service takes into account a relief forecaster during the period the permanent Forecaster is on overseas leave.

£1,000 has been set aside under travelling and subsistence allowances and a further £1,000 has been earmarked under the passages vote to cover expenditure for officers being sent abroad for training. This provision has been made on the very strong recommendation of the Salaries Commissioner for the need for the Government to embark on a training programme.

The Pensions estimates of expenditure include provision for an increase in pensions recommended by Mr. Sedgwick.

The Police estimates contain a proposal to upgrade a constable to corporal.

Under Posts and Telecommunications estimates provision is made to regrade the post of Postmaster to Head of Department. This proposal follows last years decision to abolish the post of Superintendent.

At this stage I would like Honourable Members to note that a number of minor changes will be made to the draft Estimates in Select Committee in respect of the Posts and Telecommunications establishment arising from recommendations contained in the Comben and Waller Report.

Following the very recent decision made on the recommendation of the Organisation and Methods Expert to combine the Power and Electrical Department with the Public Works Department a number of amendments applying to this amalgamation for incorporating in the Draft Estimates will also be studied in Select Committee.

A few changes have been made to the designation of posts on the Public Works establishment. Provision has been inserted for one additional Filtration Plant Operator.

The principal reason for the increase in the Secretariat, Treasury and Central Store Estimates is brought about by the higher salaries payable under the Sedgwick Conditions of Service.

A token estimate has been inserted under the Supreme Court Estimates for consideration of a visit to the Colony by a Supreme Court Judge.

Later in the meeting the Honourable the Chief Secretary will be outlining the Colony's Development Programme for the next five years, and I will therefore confine my comments on Part II of the Estimates, which is the Development Section, to the expenditure relating to the 1973/74 financial year.

A grant of £100,000 has been made available by Her Majesty's Government to be expended by the 31st March 1974. The largest slice of which is to be spent on improvements in the sheep farming industry. £50,000 is proposed for fencing subsidy, and £20,000 towards the capital costs of a grasslands trials unit.

Of the £80,000 grant for a school hostel in Stanley it is intended to spend £10,000 during 1973/74. £10,000 is included for tourism loans, and £750 for handicrafts loans. £5,000 to be spent on culverts for minor roads. £500 for tourism promotion. £750 for a Government Peat Cutting Machine and £3,000 for a Dustcart for collection of garbage in Stanley.

Falkland Islands development funds will bear the cost of £250 for tourism promotion. £8,000 for the purchase and installation of water meters in Stanley. £4,000 of Colony funds is set aside for housing loans. A new prison estimated to cost the Colony £16,000 is contemplated. The first £4,000 anticipated is to be spent in 1973/74. The total development expenditure to be financed from Colony sources during 1973/74 is put at £16,250. Subject to the approval of the Development Plan future commitments of the Colony's Development Fund on those projects expected to be initiated in 1973/74 amount to £13,000 that is £12,000 for the prison and a further £1,000 for tourism promotion. The uncommitted balance of the Colony's Development Fund at 30th June, 1974 is therefore estimated at £83,000.

At the last Budget session of Council, Honourable Members welcomed the offer made by the British Government to send an expert team to look at our revenue and expenditure estimates. Members are aware that the team visited the Colony in January and it is their recommendations that make up the 1973/74 Budget Proposals. The two experienced experts were impressed by the comprehensive services supplied by the Government to the population particularly in the Departments of Aviation, Medicine and Posts and Telecommunications and quoting from concluding remarks in their report they state 'nevertheless we are convinced that those who enjoy these services do not pay enough for them. They have been subsidised to too great an extent out of general taxation and out of income derived in one way or another, from the Colony's investments'. Mr. Conben and Mr. Waller go on to say 'While we believe that the level of taxation should be increased to some extent, the recommendations upon which we lay most stress are those designed to reduce the element of subsidy in certain services'.

In my opinion it is particularly urgent now that the number of overseas visitors using the various Government Services is increasing, that we take a very close look at this matter. The fairest way would appear to be to make those who use those services, the Beaver, water, electricity, etc., pay for them in full rather than saddle the tax-payer with paying subsidies.

Expenditure has risen steadily every year and will continue to rise, on the other hand, revenues have fluctuated and the proposals contained in this year's estimates should help to take the dependence off investment income which has in recent budgets been a major volatile component.

The increases in revenue are not only designed to overcome our immediate financial problems but to put our finances on a better footing for the future. With the exceptionally high prices obtained for the 1972/73 wool clip which will increase 1974/75 tax revenue the Budget for the next year should balance with a comfortable surplus. But it must be borne in mind that our reserves need to be maintained and should be built up. There are certain other suggestions made in the Corben/Waller report for a reduction in expenditure and we welcome Mr. Waller's return later in the year to centralise Government Accounting but in my opinion any savings are likely to be small. I am quite convinced that expenditure will continue to rise and this is a fact that we must face.

I think it is far too difficult to jump to any conclusion regarding the economic future of the Falkland Islands and in this connection I would like to quote a section of the ninth paragraph of Mr. Sedgwick's report on the salary structure he says:

'An economy which is almost wholly dependent on a single primary product is naturally extremely vulnerable to world market fluctuation and no amount of gazing into a crystal ball can provide a convincing forecast of the Colony's Economic future.'

In the Select Committee on the estimates I shall be discussing the inflationary problem that will arise from the introduction of the proposals for revenue increases. The proposed increases in internal flight fares, Stanley rates, and so forth will call for increases in cost of living allowances which in itself will have an effect on the Colony's finances. But more important I have been advised by the visiting experts that they expect the Colony to be hit by outside inflation far greater than at present, within the financial year. The pensioner and others in the fixed income group are likely to be hardest hit and assistance may have to be given to certain members of this particular group.

There are a great deal of matters to be discussed at length at the meeting of Select Committee but whatever we decide we must report back to Council with a still balanced budget. To maintain our autonomy we must avoid grant in aid and without the implementation of the proposals made in the Corben/Waller Report it is unlikely that we would qualify for such aid.

As the Honourable the Chief Secretary stated this morning. We cannot continue to live in a dreamland, but must face up to the realities of rising prices throughout the world.

We cannot shy away from tax increases and live off our reserves. We cannot set aside taking unpopular decisions when it is necessary to make such legislation, but we will certainly study the Honourable A. B. Monk's proposal for the re-introduction of a wool tax.

The economic future of the Colony is not all gloomy. Revenue from our help may soon emerge and possible revenue from commemerative coinage may be of some help. We look forward to meeting the Select Committee.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

This was seconded by the Chief Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. On a Motion put by the Financial Secretary and seconded by the Chief Secretary, the Bill was read a second time.

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I only very briefly want to say that I do not specifically propose an export tax on wool. What I had in mind (perhaps I put it badly) is an export tax generally, if you like to put it that way, an ad valorem tax, call it what you like, on net sales of all produce overseas, and that would of course include wool, seaweed, sheep, anything you like to mention. I do not specifically refer to a tax on wool. Thank you".

Mr. Miller:

Your Excellency, after that admirable speech, or statement of facts I suppose one could call it really, by the Honourable Financial Secretary when he said that we must (he was reiterating something the Chief Secretary said), we must not continue to live in a dreamland and he thought that we should adopt these measures. We might just as well if we adopt these measures, or some of them go on living in a dreamland because this will be an empty one".

Chief Secretary:

"I beg to move that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House."

This was seconded by the Financial Secretary and carried. The President accordingly appointed the Chief Secretary, the Financial Secretary, and all Unofficial Members to be Members of the Select Committee in the terms of Standing Order 43; and adjourned the meeting, saying

"Before adjourning I would like to congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary for the way he presented the Appropriation Bill, like me it will do nothing to assist you in heading the top of the popularity stakes, and I congratulate you professionally. The Council will be adjourned".

Council resumed at 9 a.m. on Monday the 21st May.

PRESENT

The President and all Members.

The Financial Secretary reported that the Select Committee had considered the draft Estimates and went on to say -

"Your Excellency, the Select Committee has now considered the 1973/74 Draft Estimates and before reading the amendments to them I would like to advise you that the following changes were agreed to the revenue raising proposals included in the Budget -

It was agreed that the Aviation Boarding Fee be doubled and that the charge per mile be increased from 5 pence to 10 pence per mile but that an abatement of 5 pence per mile be given to residents of the Colony.

It was agreed that duty on wines should not be increased.

It was agreed that import duty should not be levied on diesel oil and luxury goods.

The proposed amendments to the Income Tax Ordinance were generally accepted but the Committee are requesting a further study of the allowances, this will receive further consideration later in the year.

It was agreed that a minor change be made to the proposed Estate Duty Ordinance before passing.

The proposed firearms dealers licence to be reduced from £25 to £10.

The Rate at present levied in Stanley to be twofold with a double Rate for business premises.

In addition to the general increase in the rate of telephone rentals from £6.50 to £10 it was agreed that business telephones be increased to £20.

The Committee agreed that local postage should be increased to 2p per letter.

It was agreed that Hospital fees in Stanley should be increased by 25% and that similar fees should be imposed on patients sent abroad for medical treatment.

It was agreed that Rediffusion and advertising fees be revised upwards.

The effect of these changes and a number of other amendments both to Revenue and Expenditure, increases the anticipated surplus to £16,912. Shortly after the Select Committee had completed its business I was advised that a further £9,000 would be credited to the Falkland Islands Government. This had not been anticipated in framing the budget and this welcome windfall will increase the surplus estimated to £26,000.

The Select Committee propose the following amendments to the Draft Estimates:

Under Revenue - decrease Head II Customs Duties 1 Imports from £75,000 to £64,000. Under Revenue Head IV Fees and Fines - increase item 4 Hospital Charges, Medical and Dental Fees from £7,700 to £11,000; increase item 10 Cemetery from £60 - £100. Under Expenditure Head VII Medical - decrease item 1 Personal Emoluments (ii) Two Medical Officers from £5,670 to £4,260; decrease item 1 Personal Emoluments Temporary Medical Officer from £975 to £700; decrease item 1 Personal Emoluments (xiii) Cost of Living Allowances from £1,158 to £1,148; insert new item under item 1 Personal Emoluments Laboratory Assistant £504; increase item 2 Drugs from £2,500 to £3,000; reduce item 13 Medical Treatment Overseas from £10,000 to £8,000 and delete the provision of £294 under item 21 Board and Lodging, Temporary Medical Officer. Under Expenditure Head VIII Meteorological, under item 1 Personal Emoluments change the title of Learner Met. Assistant to Meteorological Assistant and increase provision to £1,049; item 1 Personal Emoluments delete (iii) Relief Forecaster; item 1 Personal Emoluments increase (iv) Cost of Living Allowances from £132 to £144. Under Expenditure Head X Miscellaneous increase item 13 Telephone Rental BAS from £92 to £220 increase item 14 Telephone Rental - Colony from £650 to £1436. Under Expenditure Head XI Pensions and Gratuities increase item 2 Gratuities from £4,653 to £8,095. Under Expenditure Head XIII Posts and Telecommunications decrease item 1 Personal Emoluments (xv) Mail Sorting Allowances and Overtime from £430 to £100 and change the title to Overtime Tourist Ships; decrease item 1 Personal Emoluments (xvi) Charge and Acting Allowance from £675 to £16; decrease item 5 Sorting and Delivery from £1,584 to £167. Under Head XVII Public Works Special change the title of Item 8 Refrigerator and Electric Cooker for Private Secretary to Electric Cooker for Private Secretary and reduce the provision from £175 to £25. Under Part II of the Estimates Development Expenditure to be met from United Kingdom and increase item 6 Peat cutting machine to £2,750; decrease item 7 Trials Unit - Capital Costs from £20,000 to £18,000; decrease item 11 Minor Roads - Culverts from £5,000 to £4,000; increase item 12 Dustcart from £3,000 to £4,000 and add 'and Incinerator' to the title."

In the Committee stage Clause 1 of the Bill was agreed and consideration of Clause 2 was deferred until after consideration of the Schedule.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed.

The Financial Secretary seconded by the Chief Secretary moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill, subject to the following amendments -

	Head	Delete	Insert
I.	The Governor	14,598	14,098
V.	Customs and Harbour	18,104	21,803
VI.	Education	84,180	77,891
VII.	Medical	57,708	54,723
VIII.	Meteorological	4,447	4,012
X.	Miscellaneous	7,315	8,229
XI.	Pensions and Gratuities	25,785	29,227
XIII.	Posts and Telecommunications	63,475	61,069

	Total Ordinary Expenditure	547,718	543,008
	Total Expenditure	703,773	699,063

It was agreed that the Schedule, as amended, should stand part of the Bill and that Clause 2 should also stand part of the Bill subject to the following amendment - That the words and figures "£703,773" be deleted and the words and figures "£699,063" be substituted.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, at the time of introducing the Appropriation Ordinance I referred to proposals for raising revenue by raising the rates of duties on cigarettes, cigars, tobacco, and spirits. To put these increases into effect I beg to move the following Resolution:

In exercising the powers conferred on Legislative Council by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance it is hereby resolved by the Legislative Council as follows:

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution 1973, and shall come into operation on the 21st day of May 1973.
2. Item 2 (a) of paragraph 2 of the Customs Order is amended by deleting £6.75 and substituting £8.25.
3. Item 3 of paragraph 2 of the Customs Order is hereby amended by deleting from the third column of the figures £1.21, 72½p, 58p, £1.25, 75p and 60p and substituting therefor the figures £2, £1.20, 95p, £2.10, £1.25 and £1 respectively.

The Chief Secretary seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

BILLS

THE SAVINGS BANK (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, as promised at the last meeting of the legislature the question of increasing the Savings Bank interest rate was referred to the Fiscal Adviser. Our financial adviser and his colleague have come down firmly in favour of an increase in the interest and have recommended $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent, on the basis that the existing income tax exemption will be continued. The approval of the Secretary of State in accordance with section 9 of the Savings Bank Ordinance has been obtained. The Bill now before the House proposes that interest payable on deposits in the Government Savings Bank be increased to $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent per annum. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

This was seconded by the Chief Secretary.

During the debate which followed the second reading of the Bill the following Members addressed Council:

Mr. Luxten, who said

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in my opinion the increase from $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent to $3\frac{1}{2}$ is pretty paltry. $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in this day and age, even with it being paid tax free, really does not begin to keep up with the present rate of inflation and I therefore would like to propose an amendment that the rate be increased to 5 per cent."

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, I would like to second this amendment. One of the main reasons for amending this, besides wanting to give the investors a better deal in the Savings Bank which of course all Honourable Members want to do, is to prevent a possible drift from the Bank, the Government Savings Bank, to a commercial bank. We have now the first registered bank registered in the Colony and it would be quite a wind-fall for them if they could get their hands on a quantity of this just by hopping up the interest rate. Now I think this could quite easily be their idea and at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent as against a possible 6, $6\frac{1}{2}$ on deposit, just is not attractive even with tax exemption and should government decide to go ahead with this Bill now, I urge them most strongly to consider in the very near future, after a maximum of one year's running, a further amendment to the interest rate".

The President:

"Thank you very much. Anybody else like to speak?"

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have nothing further to add after what has been said by the two Honourable Members for the West Falkland, I would just like to say that I support their proposal."

Financial Secretary:

"Honourable Members are aware that considerable surplus income has been appropriated from the Savings Bank for Colony revenue over the past few years but I would like to draw attention to the fact that government guarantees interest on deposits in the Government Savings Bank and it could be that the appropriations to Colony revenue referred to might operate in the reverse direction. Raising the rate higher would no doubt afford temporary satisfaction to depositors; if however a larger increase could not permanently be maintained the disappointment caused on reduction would probably outweigh the previous satisfaction and might lead to heavy withdrawals. I am therefore of the opinion that a rate once fixed should be maintained and only increased or at least, only reduced very rarely for special reasons. We have obtained expert advice on this matter. The Savings Bank Ordinance and the fixing of the rate of interest requires the prior approval of the Secretary of State and at this stage we cannot consider increasing the interest rate beyond $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent".

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the situation thus is I think that we have no power in fact at this moment to accept the amendment that has been proposed. We are under the rules as laid down in this matter and in order to bring this matter before the House today it has been necessary to obtain the prior approval of the Secretary of State to make the increase to $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. This we have done and this is as far as we are able to go at this juncture today. Thus we either have to agree to accept the Bill as it is up to $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent and then introduce perhaps a subsequent Bill bringing the amount up to 5 per cent, or we have to reject the Bill as it is today."

The President:

"In view of the explanations given by the Financial Secretary and the Chief Secretary are Members prepared to withdraw that amendment because there might be trouble if we do not pass this through now; we might not get an increase at all? It does require the approval of the Secretary of State and you have our assurance that the question of the interest rate, is constantly in front of us and this was done on the best expert advice we had, taking into account our financial situation".

Mr. Luxton:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, under the circumstances and in view of your assurance that the rate will be kept under revision in view of what might happen if a commercial bank opens in the Colony, I will withdraw the amendment."

The President:

"Thank you very much, Honourable Mr. Luxton".

In Committee, the commencement date, namely, 1st October 1975, was inserted in Clause 1.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE FIREARMS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1973Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this is a very brief Bill which simply gives effect to the increase of the licence fee payable for a firearm to one pound per annum and in addition it gives effect to the increase of a firearms dealer's licence to ten pounds per annum. It is simply a revenue measure and will bring in a small amount of additional revenue. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

After being seconded, the Bill was read a first time.

After the second reading,

Mr. Luxton said:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Chief Secretary has just told us that this is going to bring in a small amount of revenue to the Colony; I have no objection to the increase to ten pounds for a firearms dealer's licence but I object most strongly to the, in my view excessive, increase of one pound per weapon. I regard it as a tax on sport, primarily a tax on Camper's sport, the amount of revenue we are going to gain is piffling and it seems to me to be a discriminatory thing. If we need to raise revenue in this fashion then I see no reason why we should not have a tax on footballs, cricket bats, squash rackets, tennis rackets, golf clubs, whatever you like. It discriminates completely against one of the Camper's main sources of amusement and if we follow it with a tax on fishing rods that will fix it completely. I regard it as absolutely excessive and I intend to oppose this".

The President:

"Thank you. I see some fishermen at the back of the hall looking worried. Anybody like to support that amendment?"

Mr. Miller:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support what my Honourable friend has just said and I would like to add to it a reminder that for some time some of us, and in fact most of us in this Council, have been worried about the extent that we are getting plagued with geese on pastures in the Camp, and this is not going to help in the diminution of geese. I know this business of the diminution of geese has been played down by the civil service side; rather sort of pushed to one side because there is a body of conservationists, mainly in England (we have our representatives here but mainly in England) who are not interested in doing any more than keeping up what is a menace to the industry. So I would like to add to two of my Honourable friends' remarks that this, if it goes through, is a further attack on the diminution of geese".

The President:

"Thank you. Any comments on that, Honourable Chief Secretary?"

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, the increase is very small, I think that anybody who is wealthy enough to have purchased a gun can well afford to pay one pound a year for its use. We have had a general rise in wages throughout the Colony this year, the Camper has had a rise of thirteen per cent recently, and is looking forward to a rise of some two or three times that amount I understand in the not far distant future. Stanley workers have had a substantial rise quite recently. The increase is small, it is a tax on the well-to-do, those who can afford to purchase a gun. It brings us, as we have said, a small amount of additional revenue but lots of small amounts of additional revenue add up to a substantial amount of additional revenue and I think this is a small and fairly painless increase in taxation that most sectors of the population could swallow without too much difficulty."

The Bill was then considered in committee.

During the Committee stage, Clause 2 was amended by the insertion of the words "or renewal" between the words "grant" and "of", and Clause 3 was amended by the substitution of "£10" for "£25".

The Bill was read a third time and passed as amended.

THE ESTATE DUTY (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, I have discovered that the provisions of this Bill do not fully achieve the recommendations made in the Comben and Waller Report regarding Estate Duty, through a misinterpretation of their proposals. Also Honourable Members considered that the proposed rates of duty be amended and it is considered that a fresh bill should be drafted. I beg to move that the Bill be withdrawn".

Leave to withdraw the Bill was given.

THE INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this bill is the outcome of recommendations made by Messrs. Comben and Waller in their report on the public finances with regard to our Income Tax Ordinance. Firstly, to increase certain allowances - Personal allowances from £150 to £230; allowance of £130 for a wife to £180; the income limit up to which old age relief applies to be increased from £500 to £600. Secondly, Messrs. Comben and Waller state that if these increases are made they consider that the present low rates of tax ought to be increased in order to replace from higher incomes the loss of tax from increases in the allowances and also to furnish further revenue. The following rates are proposed - On the first £500 of chargeable income 15%; on the next £500 20%; on the next £500 25%; on the next £1000 30%; on the next £1000 35%; on the next £1000 40%; on excess over £4500 45%. Thirdly, it is proposed to abolish profits tax and increase the rate of company tax from 30% to 40%. Fourthly, in the case of director-controlled companies there is a limit to the amount that can be allowed for remuneration of directors. It is proposed to remove this limit in the case of directors resident in the Colony as it is considered that the limitation can be an obstacle to business activities. As the removal only applies to a resident director, and subject to Colony tax on his remuneration, there will be no serious loss of tax. Sir, Honourable Members discussed this bill during a Select Committee in the House and requested that it be taken to the second reading only today. They feel that the proposed allowances should be studied further. As our income tax year does not commence until January it is considered that there can be no real objection to this request and it is now intended that the bill be taken to the second reading and then left until the next meeting of Council".

This was seconded by Chief Secretary. During the second reading of the Bill the Financial Secretary formally proposed that the Bill should be referred to the next meeting of the Legislative Council.

This was agreed and the Bill stands referred to the next meeting of Council accordingly.

STANLEY TOWN COUNCIL (REPEAL) BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this brings us to the end of our work in connection with the budget at this session, and we now come on to the second main group of bills which is before us for attention today and to start off with we have the Stanley Town Council Repeal Ordinance. This is a simple bill repealing the Stanley Town Council Ordinance which was passed some two decades ago. There has been a considerable amount of discussion concerning the repeal of the Stanley Town Council Ordinance and government sought the advice and the opinion of the Stanley Town Council, committees of Executive Council and of as wide a body of opinion as it was able to do, and the arguments in favour of the abolition of the Town Council seem to be overwhelming. We have a very small capital city here of only eleven hundred people and the administrative burden of looking after three councils - Town Council, an Executive Council and a Legislative Council for only eleven hundred people has really become excessive and counter productive. There simply is not enough work, simply are not enough people, simply are not enough problems for three councils to deal with, in fact Stanley was in danger of becoming so tied up with red tape, so much involved with councils and committees that there was a very real danger that things simply would not get done. The Stanley Town Council has always felt that it's hands have been tied by the fact that it was too small to have sufficient funds to engage people to do the jobs that it wanted to do. It was always obliged to operate through government; it was always obliged to go on its hands and knees to ask government departments to do jobs for it, so that it became apparent that really it would be far more efficient for those government departments to do the jobs in the first place without going through the intermediary of the Town Council machinery. Therefore, as far as I am aware, there has in fact been no opposition from any quarter to the proposed abolition of the Town Council. The Council itself voted that it considered that its duties could be more efficiently and with the expenditure of less money, be performed by government departments. We heard at the last meeting of Legislative Council the proposals for constitutional reform and should this Colony move forward to a fully democratically elected Council then the administration of the town of Stanley will come directly under this fully democratically elected Council in a normal and orthodox way. The bill before us simply repeals the Stanley Town Council Ordinance and we have following it about half a dozen or more subsidiary bills which amend other references to the Town Council in other legislation. Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading of this bill".

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am fully in favour of this bill, the object which is of course to run your affairs more efficiently and more cheaply, we hope. Unfortunately government costs seem to escalate (from figures I have had from commercial concerns) more quickly than commercial concerns cost of operation. Quite evidently it is going to be necessary for us, for all of you, to keep a very close watch on expenditure. We are going to have to be very careful that we do not find expenditure being charged to Stanley which should be charged to government revenue. For example of course expenditure which is being partly charged to Stanley is the water filtration plant and all that. Under the government's original proposals in the Rates Ordinance the full cost of this was going to be offset by Stanley residents by a very large increase in rates, a three-fold increase in rates. It seemed to me, and possibly other Members, that while Stanley should, because they are going to benefit, bear a large proportion of the cost they should not be called upon to bear the whole of the costs. The water filtration plant and the whole system was set up by central government without any reference to Stanley residents. They were not asked if they wanted this expensive affair up there, they were given it; the central government put it there then it is the central government's obligation to pay part of the costs that have resulted and I think we are going to have to be careful that costs which are not solely the concern of Stanley, are not unloaded wholly on Stanley. Thank you".

The President:

"Thank you very much, Honourable Mr. Monk".

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE ROAD TRAFFIC (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this is the first of a series of very brief bills which amend other legislation in which the words 'Stanley Town Council' appear and this is simply an amendment to the Road Traffic Ordinance deleting the words 'or the Stanley Town Council' in subsection 3. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

Mr. Pitaluga seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE LICENSING (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this is another very small, minor, brief amendment following on the repeal of the Stanley Town Council Ordinance. This amends the formal words used in the Licensing Ordinance. The previous ordinance read "approved by the Magistrate and in the case of premises in Stanley by the Stanley Town Council and in the case of premises not in Stanley by the Board of Health", and the amendment proposed is simply "approved by the Magistrate and by the Board of Health". Your Excellency I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

Mr. Blake seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE LAND (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this is another of these very brief amending bills. What is being done to the Land Ordinance is amend the previous form of words which stated "Section 139 of the Stanley Town Council Ordinance" by substituting the words "the first schedule to the Staley Rates Ordinance 1973" which is an ordinance we shall shortly be dealing with. Your Excellency I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Financial Secretary seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL (ELECTIONS) (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this is another of these minor amending bills and this seeks to amend the Legislative Council (Elections) Ordinance; substituting for the previous form of words which stated 'Stanley Town Council Ordinance' in respect to Section 3 of the Bill the words 'the first schedule to the Stanley Rates Ordinance 1973'. Your Excellency I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

Mr Bowles seconded.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE INTERPRETATION AND GENERAL LAW (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, I am glad to see we are nearly half way through now with all these minor amendments. This is yet another amendment to the Interpretation of the General Law Ordinance and this simply amends the definition of Stanley and substitutes the following 'Stanley means the area defined in the first schedule to the Stanley Rates Ordinance 1973' and deletes the reference to the previous Town Council area. Your Excellency I beg to move the first reading of this Bill".

Mr. Luxton seconded.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE STANLEY TOWN PUBLIC SERVICES BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, we have now repealed the Stanley Town Council Ordinance and this new ordinance to provide certain public services in Stanley town makes provision for the duties of the previous Town Council to be performed under the auspices of the government. The bill is in three parts, the first part is concerned with the Fire Brigade, the second part with the Cemetery, and the third part with the Town Hall, Public Library and Museum. The new ordinance follows very closely the old provisions. Opportunity has been taken to bring certain matters up to date, to streamline others and to also increase one or two amounts to bring them into line with every day monetary values. There is nothing new or startling in this ordinance; it is very closely modelled on what the Stanley Town Council previously administered and there is nothing I think which calls for any particular comment. It is all detail that is well known to us concerning the Fire Brigade, the Cemetery, the Town Hall, Public Library and Museum. Your Excellency I beg to move the first reading of this Bill."

The Bill was seconded by the Financial Secretary.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time, after which Mr. Blake said:

"Your Excellency, on this bill we have before us now and one or two that are to follow - I would like to introduce some minor amendments in that I have opposed at all times and continue to do so, control purely by the Governor and in many cases the Governor in Council, where I feel that part of the load should be carried outside. The amendments I have on this bill are changes in words, I will introduce them now Sir or if you would rather in the committee stage. There is an example in Part II Section 13 (i) 'The Governor may appoint a board of visitors of not less than three persons to supervise all matters connected with the Cemetery and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place'. In this case I would like to introduce the word 'shall' for 'may'. I know Your Excellency would certainly appoint a watch-dog committee, because this is presumably what the visitors would be, but the day might come when someone thinks 'No, I would like to do that one myself'; under these circumstances it is a change of form of words and by changing the word 'may' to 'shall' it is necessary that Subsection 2 of Section 13 (ii) 'the Governor may' be changed to 'the board may' and again in the Town Hall section, but if you like I will go through the lot now Sir".

The President:

"Thank you very much. Chief Secretary would you like to speak on that? It might be an idea if we adjourned on this and went through it. There is a lot of detail on this."

Chief Secretary:

"Yes I would suggest we deal with it in committee. I have one proposed amendment too, the other way around".

The President:

"Well if you agree we can adjourn on this one and discuss it later. You are quite happy to go ahead?"

Mr. Blake:

"I am quite happy to go ahead Sir, unless the administration would prefer to stop?"

Chief Secretary:

"No indeed. Let us get the proposals and if there is anything which we feel we need further study then we can propose an adjournment. But let us go into the committee stage and get down to it."

Council then went into Committee to consider the Bill Part by Part.

Part I. Clauses 1 - 11:

Chief Secretary:

"Well, I had before Mr. Blake spoke, wished to correct what is in fact a misprint in Section 3 'the Governor shall appoint a committee of not less than three persons to supervise the Fire Brigade'. I wish to propose that this should be restored to 'the Governor may appoint a committee of not more than three persons'. I am not convinced that running a Fire Brigade by a committee of three persons is the most efficient way of running a Fire Brigade. The Fire Brigade already has its Superintendent who works for the Superintendent of Public Works who in turn works up the normal governmental chain and is responsible ultimately to the Governor in Council, Executive Council, and I am not very clear that there is a need for a mandatory committee of three persons to fit into that chain of command. I am not sure that this is going to increase efficiency. Executive Council already has its very clear role on the matter and an additional committee I am not sure is going to increase efficiency. It would conceivably be too many cooks in the broth. I therefore propose 'the Governor may appoint a committee' instead of 'the Governor shall appoint a committee' and he can appoint a committee if there appears to be a need and a good job for a committee to do".

Financial Secretary:

"I beg to second the Motion".

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think basically Mr Layng is right but it does seem to me that with respect to the Fire Brigade, I do not think I very much favour a committee to run the Fire Brigade, but it does seem to me in that case that if you say 'the Governor may appoint a committee', and he does not want to appoint a committee, then this Subsection 5, the responsibilities of a committee, becomes null and void, because there is no committee".

Chief Secretary:

"Yes agreed, and these functions anyhow, the purchase and maintenance of Fire Brigade vehicles, are done in the ordinary way by the department who is responsible for them. I am not sure that a committee of respectable elders of the city are going to be a great deal of help on this. They may be, and therefore the provision for 'may appoint' is a valuable one, but I don't think a mandatory one".

Part II. Clauses 12 - 25:

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that Clause 13 Subsection 1 be amended to read 'the Governor shall appoint a board of visitors of not less than three persons to supervise all matters in connection with the Cemetery and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place'. That subsection 2 of Clause 12 shall read 'the board may nominate from amongst their members of the board such a person as they may think fit to be chairman' and in Clause 14 'the Board may appoint a fit person to be caretaker of the Cemetery who shall have the custody and charge thereof', and in Clause 25 'The Governor in Council may from time to time make rules for the use, control and upkeep of the Cemetery and for the regulating of fees and payments to be made and received for vaults, graves, burials in the Cemetery etc."

The President:

"Thank you very much. Are they all the amendments?"

Chief Secretary:

"Government has no objection to the amendments to Section 13. A board of visitors to something like a Cemetery is certainly of use and a mandatory provision for that will not be opposed. Similarly for the board to nominate its own chairman, I think we might even go further and say 'the Board may elect from amongst its members?'"

Mr. Blake:

"Well I assumed that if a board was nominated then it was necessary that they elected, unless they fought it out on the green".

Chief Secretary:

"And similarly in Section 25 'the Governor may from time to time', the implication is always the Governor in Council because that is the only way he can make regulations. However the amendment to Section 14 is not I think, acceptable. It is not possible for a board of visitors to appoint a civil servant, i.e. a Cemetery caretaker. I think that will have to be left in the hands of the head of department. This is a menial job, Cemetery keeper, and I do not think that this is a proper job for a board of visitors to do, any more than a board of visitors at the hospital appoints the nurses or the board of visitors at the prison appoints the policemen. I think that I would suggest that Mr. Blake might reconsider that one".

Mr. Blake:

"Yes I would be happy to meet you on that one".

Parts III and IV. Clauses 26 - 32:

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that Clause 27 Subsection 1 be amended to read 'the Governor shall appoint a committee for the control and management of the Town Hall, Public Library and Museum, which will consist of not less than three members and may at any time remove such persons or any of them and appoint others in their place'; Subsection 2 be amended to read 'the committee shall nominate from, elect, from among their members of the committee such person as they may think fit as chairman'. These are the only two I have, I think".

The President:

"I see no objection to these two suggestions".

Chief Secretary:

"No Sir, this committee around the table made some very strong recommendations as to how the Town Hall should be run and I, as head of government, gave an undertaking that these would be followed up. If we now put it back in the hands of the committee, when we have rather strongly criticised its running in the past, I should have to withdraw my undertaking that the Town Hall will be organised in the way that this House requested that it should be. I would like myself to see some of the innovations, shall I say bringing up-to-date the running of the Town Hall, put into effect and if we do mandatorily appoint a committee to look after this we may, in fact, be continuing with the status quo because we must accept that perhaps the committee may not agree with the views put forward by Honourable Members on Friday. I would propose that this is still left as 'may' and that we give rein to some of the new ideas that Honourable Members, the Honourable Messrs. Luxton and Pitaluga, proposed for the better use of this very estimable building. I would therefore suggest that we leave this as 'may appoint' and keep it up our sleeves for a future occasion to see how things run".

Mr. Monk:

"I beg to second the Motion".

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, I sympathise fully with the Chief Secretary in his feelings with regard to the Town Hall. However I have little intention of withdrawing my amendments but would suggest perhaps although it lengthens this ordinance and may delay it slightly, it be extended to five sections, which would separate the Public Library and Museum, which are the ones which definitely the public have a particular interest in, from the Town Hall which basically requires managing rather than overseeing."

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Your Excellency, I would like to support Mr. Blake's amendment to his amendment. I don't like the idea of the Town Hall coming under a committee. On the Public Library and Museum I think it would be quite a good idea and relieve Mr. Layng and other officials from running two small departments that could possibly benefit from having a small committee".

Chief Secretary:

"Therefore what we need to do perhaps is simply in Subsection 27 (1) say 'the Governor shall appoint a committee for the control and management of the Public Library and Museum'; crossing out the words 'Town Hall'. That then makes us all happy.

The amendments to the Bill having been agreed, and the Bill taken through the remaining stages, Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE STANLEY RATES BILL 1973Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this is another bill made necessary by the abolition of the Town Council. It seeks to authorise the levy of a general and water rate in Stanley;

it provides for the Financial Secretary to administer the Ordinance and collect the rates and also places the responsibility for the assessment on him. Part I General Rate: under this section of the Ordinance 'The Governor in Council is required to levy a rate on all premises which shall be assessed at the net annual value of all such premises. The following premises are to be exempt from rateability - the property of the Crown, property occupied by the Crown for the purpose of the government of the Colony, every church, chapel or similar building used and maintained exclusively for the public celebration of divine service and not being part of any premises used for human habitation'. Under clause 8 of the Bill 'a rate may be prospective or retrospective'. Clause 9 sets out the manner of assessment; under the proposed Ordinance rates are to be due on July 1st each year and must be paid in advance. Failure to pay by June 30th will necessitate a penalty of five per cent being added to the rate. A clause has also been inserted to impose a penalty on any person who may remove from a premise without having paid rates in respect of that premise. Clause 13 permits the Financial Secretary to reduce or remit the payment of any rate on account of the poverty of any person liable to the payment thereof. Clause 14 of the ordinance authorises the Financial Secretary to permit every rated inhabitant of Stanley and every other person authorised by the Governor to inspect every rate made by him. A charge for such an inspection will be made. Clause 15 requires publication of rates. Clause 18 requires the Governor to appoint an Assessment Committee consisting of five members and in Clause 19 the duties of the Assessment Committee are detailed. Clauses 20 to 29 set out the procedure to be followed for the preparation of valuation lists, appeals, power of the Assessment Committee and Financial Secretary and proceedings for recovery of rates; under the first clause in this section the Governor in Council is authorised to levy a water rate on the owners of premises. Water supplied to ships after June 30th 1973 is to be charged at the rate of twenty pence per ton and the remainder of this section lays down the conditions for the supply of water by meter; the procedure for the recovery of rates; exemptions etc. Section 36 repeals the Stanley Rates Ordinance. The First Schedule sets out the boundaries of Stanley and the Second Schedule the form of general rate. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

This was seconded by the Chief Secretary. After a further motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time.

During the debate on the Bill, the following members addressed Council.

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, once more not wishing to be disrespectful to Your Excellency I would like to move an amendment to both the general rate and the water rate sections of this ordinance so that the assessment and financial calculation is done, or governed, by the Standing Finance Committee of the legislature which of course are immediately answerable to the electorate so that at least they will have a chance to kick somebody even if it is not the Town Council."

Mr. Miller:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, all I have is actually a query, which I am sure the Honourable Financial Secretary will answer for us; he has given it to me in private but because of the ambiguity of the phrase in this Bill and the fact also that these proceedings are broadcast it might help the householder in Stanley to hear him - I refer to the Definition of the word 'rate' and also in Clause 2 and in Part 1 General Rate, Clause 5, it says the rate shall be made and levied by the Governor in Council and shall be assessed at the net annual value of all such premises. During the four years I have been in Stanley I have never been quite sure how my rates have been assessed except I know that it has got something to do with the floor measurement, they have been so incredibly low that I have not even bothered to find out. I believe that they are calculated, or were for the Town Council, for private premises on the basis of floor areas or a total sum of floor areas; for business premises I believe it is the total sum of cubic feet in the whole building; but this phrase here is 'shall be assessed on the net annual value of all such premises', which sounds as if it could mean something quite different. I have had, as I said at the beginning, an explanation from my Honourable friend the Financial Secretary. If he could repeat that now it might help listeners when this is broadcast because they are probably as puzzled as I was yesterday afternoon".

The President:

"Thank you very much".

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable members, I was interested to hear what the Honourable Mr. Miller said - the previous rates in Stanley were so low that they were worth ignoring, or how they were arrived at was worth ignoring. I wonder if other Stanley residents would agree with that? However, it would not seem that doubling the rate is going to produce any great hardship but I think that Clause 13 of the General Rates, dealing with General Rates, is probably one of the most important clauses there, in that it allows for remission of rates provided the person concerned can show that they would suffer genuine hardship by paying them, in other words they have not got very much money. I think a similar clause should be inserted in the Water Rates section; there does not seem to be any such clause in the Water Rate Section Part 2. as the water rate is not separated from the general rate as of now, but when the meters are installed there will probably be a separate water rate and as the water part of it is probably going to be quite a large part of the total, I think a similar clause should be inserted in that part of the Ordinance".

The President:

"Thank you very much Honourable Members".

Financial Secretary:

"Yes, I will deal with the points raised by the Honourable L. G. Blake in committee. Government has no objection to the proposals and with regard to the point raised by the Honourable S. Miller, the present rate levied by the Town Council is based on the floor area of the building; in the case of businesses the area of a building premise in excess of eight feet is also added to the assessment. I cannot presuppose the work of the Assessment Committee which is to be formed but for this current year we have arranged the rates so that we use the Town Council valuation list and this is going to be doubled, so that everybody will be paying near enough to double what they are paying now with the exception of businesses and that will be four times the amount that they are paying at present. On the point raised by the Honourable A. B. Monk I will also consider that when we come to the committee stage".

Mr. Bowles:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think what Mr. Rowlands has said is correct but he did not really clarify the eight feet part of it. The eight feet he referred to is the height of the walls of the room and any wall in excess of eight feet is rated as per every six inches in excess of eight feet."

Chief Secretary:

"With regard to Mr. Monk's point about remission of fees, I had taken it that Section 32 in fact did cover this under water rates. 'The provisions of Part 1 of this ordinance relating to exemptions etc. shall be applicable to the water rate as if the same had been expressly made in respect thereof.' This I think covers the point he has made."

Financial Secretary:

"I beg to move that Clauses 1 to 37 stand part of the Bill with the following amendments - To Clause 5, the deletion of the words 'the Governor in Council' and insertion of the words 'by the Standing Finance Committee of the legislature'; and to Clause 30 (1) by the deletion of 'the Governor in Council' and by the insertion of 'the Standing Finance Committee of the legislature'; and the proviso to Sub-clause 2 of Clause 30 by the deletion of 'the Governor in Council' and the insertion of 'Standing Finance Committee'.

The point raised by the Honourable A. B. Monk now appears to be satisfactory as pointed out by the Honourable Chief Secretary".

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, in passing to the Financial Secretary the amendments that I wish to propose, I seem to have omitted to pass him the amendment in Section 8 where it refers to the 'Governor in Council' which will also have to be 'Standing Finance Committee of the Legislature'.

Financial Secretary:

"I also move that the 'Governor in Council' be deleted from Clause 8 of the bill and 'Standing Finance Committee' inserted."

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am satisfied that Section 32 adequately covers the point I made. I would like to emphasise that I think that the Assessment Committee or whoever is responsible for these things should take every effort to make clear to poor people, people that are not likely to be able easily to afford the rates, that there is machinery for them to get a remission of rates".

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, I will ensure that this is in fact done. I agree with the Honourable A. B. Monk that this point is a very important one."

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, I beg to second the Motion proposed by the Honourable Financial Secretary".

Council then resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE STANLEY WATER SUPPLY BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this is now the penultimate bill that we have to deal with following on the repeal of the Stanley Town Council Ordinance. This deals with the nuts and bolts of supply of water. There are not I think any contentious provisions in it. It concerns such things as new connections, repairs, work performed on behalf of private persons, and makes provision for penalties and offences for any person disregarding the provisions of the Ordinance. These are all provisions which were contained in the previous Stanley Town Council Ordinance and need now to be re-enacted following the repeal of that Ordinance. Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading of this Bill".

The Financial Secretary seconded.

Chief Secretary:

"I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time."

The Financial Secretary seconded.

Mr. Blake then said:

"Your Excellency, I seem to have missed a group of scribbles at the bottom of this page when having coffee. The Chief Secretary earlier in the session said that the words 'the Governor' can be taken to mean 'the Governor in Council'. I would prefer to see 'in Council' added and if this meets with the administration's approval I would like to insert the words in Section 3 between 'the Governor' and 'may', the words 'in Council' and again in Section 10".

Chief Secretary:

"The government has no objections to these amendments".

Council then resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE PETROLEUM BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, we now come I think to the final bill regulating matters following the repeal of the Town Council Ordinance. This one is a new bill to regulate the importation and storage and handling of petrol and it re-enacts those provisions which were previously administered by the Town Council concerning the important question of storage of petrol. There is nothing new or innovatory in this Ordinance. I think the Honourable Mr. Blake will be proposing an amendment which should have been put in and government will have no objection to that amendment which will allow provision for storage of petrol outside the town area without a licence. Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading of this Bill".

This was seconded by the Financial Secretary. After a further Motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time.

Mr. Blake went on to say:

"Your Excellency, as intimated by the Honourable Chief Secretary, I have in fact two amendments to the Bill. The first amendment being the same as in previous bills, the insertion between 'Governor' and 'may' in section 6 the words 'in Council', and a new subsection to section 8 'This ordinance shall not apply to areas outside those listed in the First Schedule of the Stanley Rates Ordinance'".

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, government has no objections to these amendments".

Council then resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION (AMENDMENT) BILL 1972

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, we have now completed the second main bundle of business before this Council in this session, namely the repeal of the Stanley Town Council and the enactment of the legislation needed to allow government to carry on with functions previously performed by the Town Council. We have now come to the last group of six small amending bills dealing with miscellaneous points. The amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Ordinance simply seeks to add to the list of occupational diseases for which compensation is payable under the Ordinance, the disease, hydatid disease. This I think is a non-contentious provision. We have heard a certain amount about hydatid disease in this Council already in this session and I beg to move the first reading of this Bill".

Mr. Pitaluga seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage, and after Council had resumed, was read a third time and passed.

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1971-72) BILL 1972

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this Bill seeks formally to legalise the over-expenditure incurred during the financial year 1971-72. Excess expenditure incurred has already been considered in detail by the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislature. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Chief Secretary seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't wish to comment in any way on the actual items of expenditure as laid down here but I would like to make the point that I sincerely hope that we do not have to incur supplementary expenditure this coming financial year on this scale. We have endeavoured to make the point clear to the administration. Our vote on the appropriations was a final vote in so far as is humanly possible".

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) (NO. 3) BILL 1972

Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, this Bill is designed to exempt from Falkland Islands income tax those inducement allowances which are payable from United Kingdom funds to officers designated under the Overseas Service Aid Scheme. The object in exempting such allowances from tax is to make service in the Colony more attractive for professional officers whose services are in demand throughout the developing world. OSAS inducement allowances are paid tax free in almost every territory which receives such aid from Britain. The need for this Bill also arises through a change in the accounting procedure for OSAS. Formerly inducement allowances were subject to local tax but the top scales of the tax relative to the inducement from Her Majesty's Government was abated from the OSAS reimbursement to the Falkland Islands government. A simplified procedure has now been introduced where the inducement allowance is credited directly to the officer's bank account in Britain. This saves the Treasury a great deal of effort. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Chief Secretary seconded the motion and the Bill was read a first time.

After a further motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time and Council went into Committee.

In Committee the Title was amended to read: The Income Tax (Amendment) Ordinance 1973; and the commencement date, namely, 1st January 1973, was inserted in Clause 1 (2).

Council resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE BANKING (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973.Financial Secretary:

"Your Excellency, during the printing of the Banking Ordinance 1972 for publication after it had been passed by the Legislature, an error was made in that the proviso to Section 3 and the proviso to Section 4 were printed in the wrong order and consequently appeared in the wrong sections. The Registrar has advised that in order to avoid any doubt in the interpretation of this Ordinance, an amending ordinance should be enacted regularising the position. This Bill is designed to correct the printed errors. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Chief Secretary seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE LIVE STOCK (AMENDMENT) BILL 1972Mr. Miller:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, it has been felt for some time that the Live Stock Ordinance needs up-dating to cater for present day farming techniques, mainly dipping, as reflected in the report of the Agricultural Advisory Team led by Mr. T. H. Davies. The matter was referred to the Sheepowners' Association for consideration and advice, actually four years ago. The Bill attached to this memorandum embodies the collective recommendations received from interested bodies of opinion. I am glad to be able to introduce this bill because we have been waiting to see it for four years, and as farmers do, we have already discussed what we have produced here two or three days ago and there are still some aspects about which we are unhappy, though whatever we do to amend a bill that will still happen because that is how sheep farmers are brought up. I beg to move the first reading of this Bill."

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too welcome this Bill which has been a long time in coming forward but I am confident that it does much to tidy up our Live Stock Ordinance and I look forward to seeing the good effects which may come of it. As has been done in the past here to clarify any point that has not been clear in the published Bill and it is one has been out for some time and one or two of my farming friends have complained that it is not tight enough in Section 11 (a) Subsection (b) (3). It has on the third page, this is the part regarding boundary fences, that part which is the responsibility of the neighbour, and my farming friends suggested to me that if the inspector is satisfied that the fence requires attention, no provision is made for who is going to do it. There should be some time limit in which the owner of that section of the fence, or the one responsible for it, should have time to do it himself but in fact discussing this with my colleagues around the table this morning we are satisfied that that is not the point at all; if the inspector agrees that the fence should be repaired then the complaining owner is authorised to go straight ahead and do it and I hope this will be administered. I beg to second the Motion."

The Bill was read a first time.

After a further motion moved and seconded the Bill was read a second time and Council went into Committee.

In Committee, Clause 1 was amended to read: This Ordinance may be cited as the Live Stock (Amendment) Ordinance 1973.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE DEFENCE FORCE (AMENDMENT) BILL 1973

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, we now come to the last bill in our very long order paper, this is an amendment to the Defence Force Ordinance and it seeks to give effect to two measures - Firstly, to streamline and bring up-to-date the command structure of the Force; it abolishes the title and post of Commandant which was a somewhat old fashioned title and position and it makes provision for the command of the Defence Force to be under the direct control of the Governor who of course is the Commander in Chief anyhow, who will be assisted by a Staff Officer responsible for the discipline of the Force and for the administrative side of operating the Force, and by another Officer who will be responsible for the operational control of the Force in the field and in training. Secondly, it makes provision for the possibilities of members of the Force sustaining injuries while undergoing training or instruction receiving compensation and thus fills a loop-hole in the previous ordinance. Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading of this bill."

The Bill was read a first time after being seconded.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

NOTICE FOR ADJOURNMENT

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die".

Financial Secretary:

"I beg to second the motion".

Mr. Monk:

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I know certain members, official, and unofficial probably, are hoping that I am not going to talk too long, and I think that under this motion I am only allowed to talk of one subject. Unfortunately I have got several I would like to talk on; however, I would like to refer briefly in that case to finance. Reference was made to the fact that under Grant in Aid from the United Kingdom you were putting in a certain sum for a peat-cutting machine. I don't want people to get it into their heads that we are now going to try to reverse the trend and go back to burning peat instead of gas oil, although it might be desirable. The actual figures for the items put in there is £2,750 for a peat-cutting machine, which in fact means a tractor and a mechanical machine which could be used for cutting peat but could also be used for a lot of other useful purposes. I hope that the general public realise that in so far as the charge per mile on our internal air service is concerned there is in fact to them no change whatsoever. There is a doubling of the boarding charge, the object of that really was to raise some money somehow. We could not afford to subsidise the air service by the very large amount that we have been doing so, but we doubled the boarding charge which had the effect really of loading the air service charges more on the East than West Falklands because the percentage increase was greater on short flights. But I think the greater air charge for visitors and non-residents should bring us quite a bit of money and it is only appropriate that if we are encouraging the tourist trade we should also try and soak them a bit. However, generally speaking about our revenue, methods of collecting revenue, I think are very unsatisfactory. We have balanced the budget by making increases and all sorts of little duties and rates and taxes. We have picked around at it and arrived at a balanced budget. Well it balances at the moment unless we grant too much supplementary expenditure. The trouble with the fees and duties and all that sort of thing, is that they always bear more heavily upon the less well paid section of the population. That is, if they want to live, as distinct from exist. They have all got to pay the same duty on buying some dutiable object as the better-off have. I think we should give serious consideration to altering our system of revenue so that it has more of a general nature and so could be paid by all of us but according to our means. I think this, the whole system of duties and fees and all that sort of thing, ad valorem taxes and these sort of things, is not the fairest way to raise revenue at all. I would like to say in ending that I think we have a vote of thanks, especially to Mr. Harold Rowlands who went to such very considerable trouble to answer all our queries, especially in committee, and have observed that he has been working exceedingly long hours in the last few days in order to prepare all the information, corrected it after we had picked around at it. Thank you, Your Excellency".

Financial Secretary:

"I thank the Honourable gentleman".

Chief Secretary:

"Your Excellency, I am afraid that in our hurry to adjourn this meeting and get away, we have forgotten the postponed Motion for the Adoption of the Development Plan and I wish to propose that the Motion for Adjournment be held in suspension for a few moments and I am not clear whether the procedure is correct; whether we should adjourn the Motion for Adjournment and pass on briefly to the Motion for the Adoption of the draft outline Development Plan. Is this acceptable to Members and to Your Excellency?"

MOTION FOR ADOPTION OF DEVELOPMENT PLAN 1973-8 (cont)Chief Secretary:

"Well Your Excellency, I wish to propose that we adopt the draft outline development plan for the Colony for the period 1973-78. This has been discussed in Select Committee of the whole House and the outline proposed by Mr. Armstrong amended administratively and subsequently amended by the Select Committee of the House is now in the hands of all Members and this provides as it were an outline shopping list for the next five years. Her Majesty's Government have very generously offered to provide us with the sum of three hundred thousand pounds over this period - one hundred thousand pounds for the current financial year and fifty thousand pounds for the following four years, a total of three hundred thousand pounds for the period. This is extremely generous aid, particularly when it is taken in conjunction with the two million pounds of extra development aid which has been allocated to us for the construction of the permanent airstrip, and this does I believe make us as a Colony, in receipt of more development aid per capita than any other overseas territory in the world. One constraint of course is always upon us, that is we have got to spend this money in the time and this is where sometimes with a small administration and geographical distance it is difficult. It must be emphasised that if we agree this plan now, we have then got to write up each item in detail and convince London that we are in fact proposing to spend the money in a sensible, worthwhile and productive manner and then when we have got approval we have got to get on and spend it before it lapses at the end of the UK financial year. For this reason, for the current period on which we have a hundred thousand pounds to spend before the first of April next year, we have paid special note to this factor and included in this period items which are easy to spend, items that we can sign a cheque as it were and get quickly, which do not require a great deal of preparation, and work and planning, and designing, and so on to spend. In the current financial year we are obliged to spend £50,000 on fencing, on a subsidy to farmers for fencing; this is one of the two conditions of having £100,000 in this year - this is £50,000 which has been brought forward from last year because for reasons that were not our own fault, approval was not received in time for this money to be dispersed and spent before the end of the last financial year. Therefore for the current period, and I am reading this out mainly for the benefit of those who will be hearing this over the broadcast for the first time for the current period £50,000, i.e. half the allocation will be spent on fencing, for the rest the next biggest item is a Trials Unit to investigate grasslands seeding. We hope to get two or three agronomists out here to undertake trials into replanting our grasslands, making better food for sheep and thus increasing the productivity of the land. The proposal is that we should spend some £17,000 on a Trials Unit. The next largest item for the current period is £10,000 for loans to any undertakings who are proposing to put up facilities for tourists, tourist lodges, hotels, items which will enable the territory to attract more tourists, get more money from tourists and increase revenue from this sector. Another £10,000 goes towards the preliminary work on the school hostel to be built at a site near Stanley, £5,000 is assigned for purchasing of culverting material for camp tracks, minor roads, to enable some of the many places where there are ditches to have a reasonably permanent culvert or bridge built for them. Further funds have been allocated, some £2,750 for a peat-cutting machine so that farmers can come and see what the machine looks like, what its capabilities are and government can investigate the economies of turning over to mechanised peat cutting from the traditional, rather dreary, toil of cutting peat by hand. Four thousand pounds is put in for a dust cart and incinerator for Stanley so we can make some slight progress from having our ashes carried around in open drums, from which of course a considerable amount blows away. Small amounts are put forward for loans to handicrafts to enable the Spinners and Weavers Society to proceed with their excellent work. Five hundred pounds for tourist promotion; and then in the local development sector a start will be made on the construction of a new prison; eight thousand pounds is allocated for water meters so that in fact those who use more water will pay more money for it. We shall not have the present system whereby people pay a flat rate irrespective of how many taps they leave running and how much water they use. That then is the outline of the current year's one hundred thousand pounds on which we shall have to get cracking and spend as hard as we can because we have, of course now only ten months or so in which to spend it. For next year the development aid from the United Kingdom will go in toto on the new school hostel; the construction of the hostel is planned to span from the very end of the present year, through next year and be completed in the beginning of 1975/76. We are planning to apply for technical assistance under a separate vote to obtain an engineering architect to come out to design the hostel, the prison, the swimming pool and various other engineering projects that we have in mind. For the following year 1975/76 five thousand pounds is allocated for a fencing subsidy; ten thousand pounds for loans; ten thousand pounds in order to start work on some major road project as yet unspecified. This is timed to coincide with the period when the airfield is nearing the end of its construction and there will be heavy machinery probably available here, and is therefore the most favourable time to start on a major road project. It is felt that if we do not start to build some proper roads at some stage, and if we build a few miles a year, we shall, in the fullness of time, have completed something in the way of all weather tracks. In the same year five thousand pounds is allocated for broadcasting equipment and forty thousand pounds for telecommunications, in order to put into effect some of the Lefevre recommendations of which we have heard mention at this meeting and which we know are urgently needed, particularly in the West, in order to bring communications up to an acceptable level, particularly in emergencies. Other small amounts are allocated for fertiliser subsidies and for the school hostel completion. The following year, if the plan continues along the same lines - money for fencing, money for continuing the major road, broadcasting, money to put in the minor road improvements, telecommunications, fertilisers again, and the final year of the planned programme continues with money allocated in addition for the last two years for re-equipment of the internal air service.

This all looks very nice on paper; it is a plan and as such it will be the business of this Council each year to re-assess the progress made up to the end of the current year and then to reallocate the money as necessary in the light of experience, in the light of development, so as to make sure that the plan is still on the right lines and has not been tied dogmatically to plans laid too far before-hand; that is to say, this is a flexible plan, it will be looked at again each year. If progress is falling behind in one sector which is urgently needed, money will be reallocated to that sector in order to make progress go as is required. So we are not binding ourselves to any firm allocation, we are simply at a period looking five years ahead and trying to see how we feel this money should best be programmed. Without a plan of this kind the United Kingdom Development Aid authority is not prepared to make disbursements - they want to be assured that we are planning ahead, looking over the whole area of government expenditure, capital expenditure and that we are looking at the thing sensibly. I therefore wish to propose to Honourable Members that we do accept formally this plan which we can then forward to London together with the detailed write-up on each of the projects and hope that we can without delay get our fingers on some of this money which has been promised to us for the forthcoming period. Your Excellency, I beg to move that this Development Plan be adopted".

Financial Secretary:

"I beg to second the Motion".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Your Excellency, I would just like hastily to say that I can support the draft Development Plan and as I have got a plane to catch, I ask your indulgence to leave this meeting. I wish Your Excellency and Honourable Members a good winter and good fun in SEC. Thank you".

Mr. Bowles:

"Your Excellency, in rising to support the adoption of the Colony draft Development Plan which was agreed in the Development Committee and although I am in agreement with it I wish it to be publicly known that I strongly object to the high installation costs of water meters in Stanley, without any guarantee that water consumption will be reduced. However, outnumbered on this I wish to support the Motion".

Mr. Monk:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the first year's Development Plan and with great misgivings I am prepared to go along with the rest provided that, as I understand it, it is only a sort of base on which to make your future demands, shall we say. I have not yet been honoured with a Lefevre Report, I understand that the cost of his recommendations is three hundred and twenty thousand pounds and I shall persistently oppose the implementation of that sort of expenditure through development funds; however, there is none this year I am glad to say. I would also like to comment on the fact that this year local development fund expenditure is twelve thousand two hundred and fifty pounds. That seems a reasonable sort of sum in view of our peculiar state. We are put down at seventy thousand pounds a year - and I suppose we might find it, but to me it looks like pie in the sky. I only hope that the United Kingdom government when they get these draft estimates and when they see seventy thousand pounds down against our Local Development Fund for the next three or four years, are not going to say "That's what they want therefore we will give them fifty thousand pounds" and that we would be tied to producing seventy thousand pounds year after year regardless of how much money we have got".

Mr. Blake:

"Your Excellency, I support the foregoing whole-heartedly. I am sure in fact the general public will be delighted that we are likely to have a new prison. It seems an excellent thing to invest in. My main reason for standing up now, knowing that it has been said even in this Council Chamber and said periodically outside - that this is a plan for farmers by farmers. I would like to reiterate what the Chief Secretary said initially that the fifty thousand pounds fencing subsidy was a condition put on, not by the Development Committee but by the British Government. I would like to repeat, to emphasise this, as I am quite certain that the comment that is going to float around this town is "Well the farmers have done it again".

The draft Development Plan 1973-1978 for the colony was then adopted by Council.

The President:

"And then before we adjourn, Honourable Members there are one or two points I would like just quickly to cover and some thoughts arising from the Motion of Thanks to my address. I think that one or two people I have spoken to seem to get the wrong impression about remarks made that we are still a Colony.

Certainly we are still a Colony, but we are not governed by fiat from London. There is full and continuing consultation going on with me as Governor; and on all matters of importance naturally I consult the Council. The other matter is this question of the level of taxation on farms and the returns on farms. It is important, in spite of what the economists say, that the farmers do get a fair return on their capital - and the Falkland Islands as in other Colonies, is not developed by economists, it is developed by men of vision who are prepared to take risks, physically and financially. The third point is this question of experts - we have had so many expert reports recently and we continue to get them, but it is important that we subject all their recommendations to very close scrutiny indeed. There is more involved in government than the cold, analytical approach of the economist or the organisation and methods efficiency men, and the people in the Colony here have a right to feel that their many problems here, are being looked at with compassion and with sympathy and understanding by their elected representatives and, I hope, by their government. That is why I am glad that in your deliberations in Select Committee you have managed to come up with a balanced budget and yet also managed to bear this criteria in mind. And it does not mean that you have shirked taking difficult decisions. You have not, but you have softened the blow particularly for some of the people in Camp. I would like to congratulate all the Honourable Members for the work they have put in this last week and the responsibility shouldered, and would particularly like to thank, on the official side, the Chief Secretary who despite his 'flu and cold and everything else has worked extremely hard in the committee here, and also our Financial Secretary who as we know has had the lights burning for the last few nights. Thank you very much Honourable Members and I think we can adjourn until the next meeting".

- (b) a flat rate (popularly known as the boarding charge) for passengers other than medical passengers, of —
 - (i) £4 for adults;
 - (ii) £3 for children between the age of 7 and school leaving age (but see Part III below);
 - (iii) £1.50 for children from 1 to 7 years (but see Part III below);
 - (iv) nil for children under 1 year; or
- (c) a flat rate for medical passengers of —
 - (i) £2 for adults (but see Part II below);
 - (ii) £1.50 for children between the age of 7 and school leaving age (but see Part II below);
 - (iii) 75 pence for children from 1 to 7 years (but see Part II below);
 - (iv) nil for children under 1 year.
- (2) Children over seven years of age are charged at the full fare (but see Part III below);
- (3) Children between one and seven years of age are charged half fare (but see Part III below).
- (4) Children under one year of age when accompanied by an adult travel free of charge.
- (5) Ministers of Religion are carried free of charge provided —
 - (a) the aircraft is going to the destination required by the Minister for reasons other than the Minister's journey;
 - (b) there is a vacant seat in the aircraft.

(6) Every passenger may take with him free of charge personal baggage to a maximum weight of 30 lbs. Baggage in excess of this weight will be carried only at the aircraft commander's discretion and shall be paid for at air freight rates (Part VI. 1. Conditions of Carriage paragraph (5) refers).

(7) A rebate of 5 pence per mile will be given to persons normally resident in the Colony.

(8) "Normally resident" means a person (together with his family) who normally resides in the Colony, or is in the Colony under a contract of service to an employer who has a place of business in the Colony, or has resided in the Colony for a continuous period of not less than one year since arriving in, or returning to the Colony.

II. MEDICAL FLIGHTS

(1) Medical flights are made at the request of the Senior Medical Officer. Applications for medical flights should be sent to the Senior Medical Officer and not to the Air Service. All bookings received by the Air Service from farm managers or private individuals will be treated as private bookings and charged as such.

(2) There is no charge against a patient proceeding to Stanley Hospital for the treatment or control of Tuberculosis, the full cost both ways being met from the Medical Department votes.

(3) There is no charge against a patient for emergency cases to Stanley for Hospital treatment but 50% of the air fare is charged to the patient for the return flight, the inward flight and the balance of the return flight are charged to Medical Department votes.

(4) Non-urgent medical cases travel both ways at assisted passage rates, i.e., 50% of the air fare payable by the patient and 50% by the Medical Department.

III. SCHOOL FLIGHTS

(1) In all cases School Flights must be booked through the Superintendent of Education. All bookings received by the Air Service from farm managers or private individuals will be treated as private bookings and charged as such.

(2) Children travelling by air to or from school at the beginning or end of the recognised school terms are charged half fare appropriate to their age group, the balance being met from the Education vote.

(3) Should a child attending school away from home proceed on holiday to a settlement other than his or her home, the Education Department will meet 50% of the charge provided it does not exceed the normal half fare for the journey between the school and the child's home. Excess distance travelled will be charged to the parent at the full fare rate in addition to the half fare between school and home.

IV. CHARTER FLIGHTS

I. CONDITIONS

(1) Charter bookings can normally only be accepted when both aircraft are in service. It may, however, be possible to undertake a charter with only one aircraft available when bookings are light.

(2) Although charters will not normally be given priority over private bookings, application for priority can be made to the Chief Secretary as in the case of private bookings.

(3) Aircraft on charter are still at the disposal of the Senior Medical Officer and may be diverted at any time during charter at his request if required for an urgent medical case.

(4) Government reserves the right to utilise an aircraft under charter during any waiting time or at any time during charter when the aircraft is travelling empty.

(5) Persons requiring this service should if possible advise the Air Service Office at least seven clear days before the required date. Full particulars of route, passengers and / or freights must be advised at the time of booking.

2. RATES

(1) £54 per hour (commencing from the time of 'engine on' at Stanley to the time of 'engine off' at Stanley rounded to the nearest 15 minutes).

(2) 2 hours free waiting, thereafter a demurrage charge of £5 per hour or part thereof will be levied.

(3) Charges will be reduced by the amount earned by carrying other passengers (with the consent of the charterer).

3. PASSENGER AND FREIGHT LIMITATIONS

Aircraft leaving a pick up point with full fuel load can only carry four adult passengers plus luggage or 1,000 lbs. of freight; when full fuel load is not required one extra passenger or 250 lbs. freight can be carried.

4. DELAYS

(1) Delays caused solely by the weather will not normally be charged to the charterer. If an aircraft is compelled or required to spend the night away from Stanley on account of the charterer the basic waiting fee of £5 per hour (after the initial two hours free waiting period) will be charged up to 6 p.m. (Stanley time). Thereafter a consolidated overnight fee of £25 will be charged and will apply until 10 a.m. (Stanley time) the following morning when, if the aircraft is still retained by the charterer, the basic waiting fee of £5 an hour will be charged.

(2) Overnight charters will not, however, be accepted in normal circumstances and the overnight charges outlined above are only intended to apply in the case of unforeseen delays caused by the charterer. In such cases the Air Service reserves the right to return to Stanley if the aircraft commander considers this to be desirable and another charter at the usual rates will be necessary if further flying is required to complete the charter.

V. PRIORITY FLIGHTS

(1) Government reserves the right at all times to refuse passage to any person, or to carry freight or livestock.

(2) Flight priorities are —

1st Priority ...	Medical Flights;
2nd Priority ...	Delivery and collection of overseas mail (letters only);
3rd Priority ...	Members of Executive and Legislative Councils and Government officials travelling on duty;
4th Priority ...	Ordinary passenger flights (any person in this category may apply to the Chief Secretary for a higher priority on compassionate or urgent business or other relevant grounds);
5th Priority ...	Freight and Livestock.

VI. AIR FREIGHT

1. CONDITIONS OF CARRIAGE

- (1) No guarantee of delivery by air can be given.
- (2) Air freight cannot be registered or insured and all freight is carried at owner's risk.
- (3) Explosive or inflammable articles must not be sent as air freight.
- (4) All packages consigned as freight must be clearly addressed with the weight marked on the package.
- (5) Rates for the carriage of air freight will be —

Weight	Rate	Weight	Rate
2 lbs.	22p.	50 lbs.	£3.00
5 lbs.	30p.	60 lbs.	£3.75
8 lbs.	37p.	70 lbs.	£4.50
11 lbs.	45p.	80 lbs.	£5.25
22 lbs.	90p.	90 lbs.	£6.00
30 lbs.	£1.50	100 lbs.	£6.75
40 lbs.	£2.25

(6) Half the normal rate will be charged for the freighting into Stanley of fresh produce when the space would otherwise be unused.

2. DOGS

(1) All dogs carried must be accompanied by the owner or a person known to the dog appointed by the owner.

(2) Owners will provide muzzle, collar and chain to be used as instructed by the aircraft's commander.

(3) Dogs will be securely chained to the holding down bolts in the rear of the aircraft.

(4) Owners or their representatives will be required to load and unload their own dogs as advised by the air service staff.

(5) Government will provide polythene sheeting to protect passengers' luggage.

(6) Only one dog will be accepted on an aircraft at any one time.

(7) A dog will not be granted a passage if any passenger already on board raises objection.

(8) Last minute bookings for dogs cannot be accepted.

(9) All owners must produce a certificate signed by an appointed inspector, certifying that —

(a) the dog has been dosed with Scoloban within six weeks of the flight;

(b) the dog has been bathed using carbolic lifebuoy soap within twelve hours of the flight time.

(10) Rates for the carriage of dogs shall be —

(a) a flat rate of £1 plus

(b) a charge of 2½ pence per mile.

3. CATS

All cats must be enclosed in a cat basket or a well ventilated cat-proof box.

4. SHEEP

(1) Sheep will not be accepted on aircraft carrying passengers.

(2) Sheep when accepted must be accompanied by a stockman and will be carried at charter rates only.

(3) Loading and unloading will be carried out under the supervision of the aircraft commander.

Nothing mentioned above over-rides Government's right to refuse passage or the aircraft commanders' authority to refuse passage.

VII. DELIVERY OF PAPER MAIL TO CAMP SETTLEMENTS BY AIR

(1) Paper mail will be delivered by air to all farms as and when opportunity occurs and provided that such distribution does not interfere with the carriage of passengers, ordinary mail and freight.

(2) The following flat charges will be made irrespective of the distance carried —

Not exceeding 30 lbs. 20 pence; not exceeding 70 lbs. 50 pence; not exceeding 100 lbs. 75 pence.

(3) Charges will be borne by the farms.

Maintenance of private lines.

13. All instruments, wire and accessories on any private line or any private long distance line shall be supplied at the cost of the owner of the line, and the line, instruments, etc., shall be erected and maintained by the owner at his entire cost.

Non-interference with Government equipment.

14. Any person other than a Government employee who shall make any alteration to or connection with a Government wire or instrument shall commit an offence and shall be liable, in addition to the cost of reinstatement of such wire or instrument, to a fine not exceeding five pounds.

Urgent calls.

15. No call, except for medical, police or fire services, shall be made between the hours of midnight and 6.0 a.m.

Maintenance of service.

16. Government will maintain the telephone circuit in Stanley but shall not be held responsible for a breakdown in the service owing to any cause whatsoever nor shall any subscriber be entitled to claim rebate in the rental in respect thereof.

Complaints.

17. Subscribers shall report any complaints and irregularities to the Postmaster.

Non-payment of rent.

18. (1) In the event of any subscriber not paying the relative rentals provided for under these rules within one month of the due date of payment his wire shall, without further notice to him, be disconnected and shall not be reconnected until he has paid the said rent and a reconnection fee of £1.

(2) Should any subscriber not pay the said rent within three months of the said date of payment the Government will remove his instrument and all telephone wires in connection therewith, and the instrument shall not be reinstated until the said rent and all costs of reinstatement have been paid.

(3) In addition to such disconnection or removal Government may claim a proportionate part of the rent of the instrument for the period during which it has been installed on a subscriber's premises.

19. In these rules where the context so admits —

Interpretation.

“subscriber” means the person who is responsible to Government for the telephone rental under these rules;

“business subscriber” means any person engaged in any trade or business in addition to companies, partnerships, government departments and all overseas organisations based in the Colony.

“private long distance line” means a telephone line extending beyond Stanley erected and maintained by the owner at his entire cost.

20. The Telephone and Telegraph Rules made on the 13th day of April 1964, are hereby rescinded.

Rescission.

Made by the Governor in Council on the 19th day of June 1973.

An Ordinance

Title.

To regulate the importation, storage, sale and handling of petroleum products.

Enacting clause.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title and commencement.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Petroleum Products Ordinance 1973, and shall come into operation on a day to be appointed by the Governor in Council by notice in the official Gazette.

Definitions.

2. "Petroleum products" mean super petrol, petrol, kerosene, gas-oil, aviation fuel, lubricants and bitumen.

Licence to land, etc.

3. No person shall land, introduce or keep or attempt to land, introduce or keep in the Colony any petroleum products except in accordance with this Ordinance and any rules made thereunder.

Issue of licences.

4. (1) No person shall supply, market or transport or keep in any place wholly or partly for sale any petroleum products in the Colony unless so authorised by the Governor by notification in the official Gazette.

(2) The power to grant any authority under this Ordinance shall include the power to refuse or cancel any such authority.

(3) The Governor may impose such conditions as he may think fit as a precaution against fire, and any authorised person neglecting or failing to comply therewith shall commit an offence and upon conviction therefor the Governor may forthwith rescind the authority granted to him.

5. The Governor in Council may make rules in respect of any of the following matters — Rules.

- (a) the regulation of the storage of petroleum products whether by the owners of motor cars or by persons storing petroleum products for the purposes of sale;
- (b) the inspection of premises in which petroleum products are stored in bulk;
- (c) the conditions necessary to render premises fit for the storage of petroleum products whether stored in bulk or otherwise;
- (d) generally for giving effect to the objects and intention of this Ordinance.

6. Any person who contravenes or fails to comply with the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £200. Offences.

7. This Ordinance shall not apply — Saving.

- (a) to the importation of petroleum products for the use of the Armed Forces of the United Kingdom, to the keeping or using thereof by such Forces, or to the supply or marketing thereof to such Forces;
- (b) to petroleum products kept for private use so long as the amount kept does not exceed four imperial gallons.

8. The Petroleum Ordinance 1973 is repealed.

Repeal of Ordinance No. 8
of 1973.

This printed impression has been carefully compared by me with the Bill which has passed the Legislative Council, and is found by me to be a true and correctly printed of the said Bill.

POST OFFICE ORDINANCE
(Chapter 52)

Post Office (Private Letter Boxes) Rules 1973

No. 5 of 1973.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 4 (c) of the Post Office Ordinance, the Governor in Council has made the following rules —

Citation and commencement.

1. These rules may be cited as the Post Office (Private Letter Boxes) Rules 1973, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of November 1973.

Definition of term "person".

2. In these rules the term "person" shall mean the whole of a family together with employees, and in the case of a firm the principals and anyone working for them.

Conditions of rental.

3. (1) Private post office boxes may be rented at the Post Office under the following conditions, and upon any breach thereof the Postmaster may at once withdraw permission for the use of the box —

- (a) a private box may not be rented in a fictitious name or for an improper use;
- (b) no two persons, unless they are in business partnership, may jointly rent one private box; and
- (c) the business or the private address of the renter must be furnished.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (1) of this rule, any person not being a box renter may have his correspondence placed in the private box of a renter, subject to the written consent of such renter being furnished to the Postmaster and on payment of a fee equal to half the rental payable in respect of the box under Rule 8.

Delivery of correspondence.

4. (1) Correspondence will be placed in a private box only when addressed to the renter or to his care or when specially addressed to the number of the box.

(2) Delivery into a private box is, in all respects, equivalent to personal delivery to the addressee.

(3) A person not being a renter whose correspondence is addressed to a private box can only obtain such through the renter.

(4) Correspondence missorted or erroneously addressed to a wrong box shall immediately be reposted, endorsed "Not for Box No.....". Should a case come under notice where this is not done, or when flagrant neglect is shown by the renter or person in possession of the key, in detaining or delaying such correspondence, the Postmaster may declare the box forfeited and may demand the return of the key.

(5) In exceptional circumstances, such as the loss of a key, correspondence from any private box may, temporarily, be delivered at the counter, subject to compliance with the provisions of Rule 5.

Proof of identification.

5. Unless the renter is well known, or can be identified by someone well known to a responsible officer of the Post Office, the only admitted "proof of identification" shall be the receipt for the private box rent.

6. Correspondence may be re-addressed from one box to another only in exceptional circumstances and upon application to the Postmaster. Officers of the Post Office shall not be obliged to re-address correspondence unless the box be closed, either temporarily or permanently.

Re-addressing of correspondence.

7. (1) When a private box is let, a key shall be supplied, which is required to be returned undamaged when the box is given up. Renters are not permitted to have extra keys made.

Locks and keys.

(2) If a key is lost, information must at once be given to the Postmaster, in order that a new key may be made. A charge of £1 shall be made for the issue of a new key.

(3) No lock may be placed on any box other than a lock supplied by the Post Office, and no repairs to a box may be executed except by the Post Office.

(4) The Postmaster shall not be liable for loss from any private box when the key issued to a renter has been lost.

8. The rental in respect of a private box shall be payable in advance on the 31st day of December in each year, any portion of a calendar quarter being considered a full quarter, and shall be at the rate of 60p per annum.

Rentals.

9. Failure to pay the rental of a private box within one month of the renewal date shall result in the forfeiture of the box, which may be re-let by the Postmaster.

Failure to pay rental.

Made by the Governor in Council this 24th day of October 1973.

R. BROWNING,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, ladies and gentlemen, this is I am afraid a short meeting called to consider a bill that requires urgent action by the legislature and therefore I am not making the usual formal address, but I would like on behalf of my wife and myself to say how good it is to be home and to send our greetings to all our friends in Stanley and in the Camp.

When I was in the UK I had the honour of being received by Her Majesty the Queen. She takes a great interest in our progress and is very well versed in every aspect of the Colony's affairs.

Also while on leave we met so many friends, friends of the islands in the UK and on the Continent, too numerous to mention all the names but here are some - Mr. Richard Luce, M.P., Mr. Bernard Conlan, M.P. (of the CPA delegation), Sir Michael Hadow, Sir Gerald Lathbury, Sir Edwin Arrowsmith, and Dr. Slessor who I found tucked away in Javea in Spain. All sent their particular regards to all their friends in the Colony and it is good that we have such friends, and people who look back with so much affection and good memories of the time they were in the Falklands. Thank you very much.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILL

The Petroleum Products Bill 1973

The Chief Secretary Your Excellency, Honourable Members, before introducing this bill I now lay on the Table the Certificate of Urgency signed by Your Excellency whereby this bill is brought before Council in accordance with Standing Rules and Orders with a degree of urgency.

As we are all aware the price of petrol in the Colony has escalated to an alarming degree over the past two or three years and has gone from a price of some twenty-five pence per gallon up to the current price which I think is sixty-three pence; and the new consignment of petrol which arrived yesterday I understand is likely to cost eighty or ninety pence or thereabouts per gallon. This very high price and this large increase has of course caused grave concern in the Colony - and I might say here that one of our world records is the highest proportion of car ownership to population of anywhere in the world. There has, as we are all aware, been a general demand, agitation, for some means of reducing this extremely high price for petrol. The high price, I think we are probably all aware, is due to the fact that the petrol has to be bought on the mainland, put into drums, shipped over here, unloaded and then put into our petrol pump here and we are paying also for the price of the shipping, wharfage, labour and so on. We all know that the only way that we can reduce this very high price is by arranging a bulk installation in Stanley for the petrol; bulk tanks, pipes, pumping gear and so on.

And I think we are all aware that over the past eighteen months or so your government has been making strenuous efforts to interest an oil company in setting up these bulk installations. Recently we have been entering, with Her Majesty's Government, into negotiations with the Argentine state petroleum concern, YPF, and agreement is very close to being reached with this organisation for an investment of some one million dollars in the Colony for bulk installations for petrol, gasoil, and possibly aviation spirit, kerosene, lubricating oils, as well. This is a very substantial investment and as is normal in investments of this magnitude in small places, the petroleum company naturally wishes to ensure that it is going to get some reasonable return from its investments. The draft agreement therefore, which is under consideration and we hope will very soon be signed, between Her Majesty's Government and the Argentine Government, is very satisfactory to us. It has been vetted by our legal advisers in London; it includes all the safeguards covering sovereignty which have been worked into all the other agreements which have been concluded with the Argentine Republic, for the airfield, communications, and so on, and this agreement will provide for YPF to have the monopoly for supply of petroleum products to the Colony. I think that there is probably nowhere else in the world which has concluded an agreement for supply, for an investment of this size, where a monopoly provision does not apply. It is not possible for the oil company faced with this very large investment, to undertake this very substantial construction project, without being assured that they are going to get all the returns from the sale of petroleum, and I think that wherever this kind of thing has happened with other companies - BCSO, Shell, BP, Mobil, in similar territories, I am safe in saying that there has always been a monopoly provision.

In Executive Council this matter has been discussed twice and agreement has been given in principle for this agreement, with this provision, between Her Majesty's Government and YPF, to be signed and Councillors have been aware that there is in fact virtually no alternative to this, apart from carrying on at these very, very high prices. We have been negotiating this agreement now for nearly two months and the objections we have raised to the preliminary text have all been overcome. We have got written into this agreement I think, everything we have asked for, and it is entirely satisfactory; it is an agreement which will last until the end of 1974 in the first place and thereafter it will be terminable at six months notice - so we are not binding ourselves for ever and ever.

The legislation which we are considering today is in the main designed to give the Governor in Council the power to regulate the import of petroleum products and ensure that the provisions of the agreement are enforceable. The legislation is very close and very similar to the legislation which was passed at the last meeting of Legislative Council which only concerned, in fact, petroleum; this legislation has been extended to cover all petroleum products, gasoil, kerosene, and so on, and the main provision is to permit the Governor in Council to license, to allow who shall import and sell the petroleum. There is no intention that the rules made under this legislation, should be applied outside Stanley. The rules, I emphasise, that is to say that there will be no change in the present situation on Camp settlements for storage and so on. There is no intention of enforcing any stringent new regulations on the storage of petroleum products outside Stanley. The situation will not be altered in any way in that respect.

Under the agreement there is a provision whereby if YPF do not supply what is required, that the Governor will then sign an authorisation for independent import of that product, so there need be no worry that anybody with a peculiar, particular type of engine which needs a peculiar, particular type of fuel, lubricant, so on, will be unable to get it. If YPF do not import it and supply it as a matter of course, then we have authority under the agreement - the Governor will sign authorisation for this product to be imported. Similarly, if the products imported are in any way unsatisfactory, a similar provision will apply, so that there is no question of us having to put up with unsatisfactory products, insufficient quantities, or anything like that. If anything goes wrong there is this escape clause which will allow us to import and get what we need, and of course if anybody has any very small requirements, to import a small quantity of a specialised product they can do that anyhow under the final provision of paragraph 7 (b) which allows anybody to bring in four gallons of anything they like; so that if somebody has a turbo-prop. model engine or anything and needs a specialised fuel, they can always import the four gallons needed.

So gentlemen, that I think is the situation as it is. Your Executive Council has felt that there is no possible alternative to the situation in which we are placed. Petrol prices are extremely high; we either have to put up with prices that have risen steeply or we have to conclude this agreement, and in order to conclude this agreement it is necessary to pass this legislation. Her Majesty's Government is unable to sign this agreement with the Argentines until this legislation is passed which ensures that we will be able to keep to the terms of the agreement. We, none of us, like monopolies but unfortunately in small places they are really an inescapable fact of life; if we were operating in a large territory of several million people it would be reasonable and practicable to have two or three or four oil companies operating, but we must face the fact that we are only one thousand nine hundred and fifty-seven souls in this Colony and it is not reasonable to expect two oil companies to operate. In our circumstances we really cannot escape from the fact that there is only enough business for one company. In order to interest that company in coming in we have to allow them a monopoly of provision, if we do not allow a monopoly they will not come in. So gentlemen, it seems to me, it seems to the administration, it seems to the Executive Council, and I put it to you that it will seem to you too that we really have no alternative. We don't like monopolies, we don't like foreign companies, no country does, but unfortunately no British company has been prepared to put this investment of a million dollars into the Colony and therefore we feel that there is no reasonable alternative. To reject this legislation means in effect that we are rejecting a reduction of the price of petrol down to thirty something pence from the current eighty something or ninety something pence. This is the issue that is before us. Your Excellency I beg to move that the Bill is read for the first time.

The Motion was seconded by the Financial Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. On a Motion put by the Chief Secretary and seconded by the Financial Secretary the Bill was read a second time.

The following Members then addressed Council:-

Mr. Monk - Your Excellency, Honourable Members, commercially of course this bill is what we want - cheaper fuels, that is quite evident, and I realise the need for a monopoly, that is also quite evident. What I do not like about it all is that the monopoly has to be granted to the country which wants us. It is a pity that the monopoly could not have been granted to the country that does not want us very much. No-one can tell me that the British government could not have built these tanks here; no-one can tell me that they have not got lots of small product tankers in the RFA which could have made one voyage a year and supplied us with all our requirements of every sort - but of course the difference is they don't want us, the other people do. By granting this monopoly in the supply of fuel to them we remove one more option, one of our options gone; another one went when we granted the communications agreement and the licence to build the airstrip; gave them all our communications, virtually. That was one option gone, this is another. It is probably inescapable, we have to for the reasons I have given - that no-one else will take it on, not even the British Government. We are told that we are sheltered under a sovereignty umbrella in the same way as the communications agreement also is under the sovereignty umbrella. I would like to remind people that under strong pressures umbrellas have a habit of turning inside out and exposing those that are holding them; and I submit that this Colony is under some pressure now, the pressure of indifference from Her Majesty's Government and the pressure from the Argentine Government. Therefore Honourable Members I am not going to vote for this legislation, I would like to abstain.

Mr. Blake - Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Honourable Chief Secretary must have been extremely worried about this bill this morning because he has reminded the members of Executive Council two or three times that they have already agreed to it - so stay in line! He need have no fear as far as I am concerned because I have not put on a different shirt this morning, but I would like to draw his attention to one small point which I raised yesterday and that is one of my pet themes - in clause 4.(3) as published, the bill reads "the Governor may impose such conditions as he may think fit". I would move that between the words "Governor" and "may" the words "in Council" be added.

Mr. Monk - I second that.

The Chief Secretary - Yes Sir, I was going to make all my comments at the end. The government has no strong views on this. I would point out that this is simply regulations, as a precaution against fire. I am not entirely sure that in fact Council is the best body to draw up niggling regulations about six feet away and fences and all the rest of it. I am not sure that this is not in fact more correct, as our legal advisers (very eminent men in London) have drafted this; I am sure that it is in fact more appropriate for the Governor as advised by his experts, his Superintendent of Fire, his Superintendent of Works, his technical experts. I personally tend to feel that the bill as drafted is probably more correct and more acceptable, but if Honourable Members feel strongly that they wish to be involved in deciding and carrying the responsibility for the decisions of these technical matters relating to safety precautions against fire, I feel government will not oppose it but I think it is perhaps not the wisest move.

The Bill was taken through the Committee Stage, without amendment, read a third time and passed.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

The Chief Secretary: Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

The Financial Secretary: I beg to second the Motion.

Mr. Blake: Your Excellency, Honourable Members, it is known and has been known throughout the Colony for some time that the fate of the doctor at Fox Bay, or the hoped for doctor at Fox Bay, has been in the balance and despite assurances from yourself Sir, and every effort from this end, no doctor materialised. It has even been hinted that no doctor would materialise until we did as we were told and abolished the post. Yesterday, despite strongest pressure from the West Falkland we did just that and we swallow it rather like a laxative, and the one thing I hope is that in moving us it does not completely move everyone from the West Falkland. It was a sorry day and I hope that we won't all live to regret it.

The President - No other member wishes to speak?
The House is adjourned accordingly.

INCOME TAX ORDINANCE
(Chapter 32)

Double Taxation Relief (United Kingdom) (Amendment)
Order 1973

No. 7 of 1973.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 49 of the Income Tax Ordinance, the Governor in Council has made the following order — Cap. 32.

1. This Order may be cited as the Double Taxation Relief (United Kingdom) (Amendment) Order 1973 — Citation.

2. It is hereby declared — Arrangement.

- (a) that the arrangements specified in the Supplementary Arrangement set out in the Schedule to this Order have been made with Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom with a view to affording relief from double taxation in relation to income tax or corporation tax and taxes of a similar character imposed by the laws of the United Kingdom varying the arrangements set out in the Schedule to the Income Tax (Double Taxation Relief) Order, 1949; and (1 of 1949)
- (b) that it is expedient that those arrangements should have effect.

Made by the Governor in Council this 24th day of October 1973.

R. BROWNING,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

SCHEDULE

SUPPLEMENTARY ARRANGEMENT BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS AND HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED KINGDOM TO AMEND THE EXISTING ARRANGEMENTS MADE IN 1949 FOR THE AVOIDANCE OF DOUBLE TAXATION AND THE PREVENTION OF FISCAL EVASION WITH RESPECT TO TAXES ON INCOME, AS MODIFIED BY THE ARRANGEMENT MADE IN 1968.

1. The Arrangement made in 1949 between His Majesty's Government and the Government of the Falkland Islands for the avoidance of double taxation and the prevention of fiscal evasion with respect to taxes on income as modified by the Arrangement made in 1968 shall be amended —

- (a) by the addition in the first sub-paragraph of Paragraph 2 (1) (K), immediately following the word "business", of the phrase —
"including a building site or construction or assembly project which exists for more than twelve months";

(b) by the substitution for Paragraph 6 of the following new Paragraph —

- "6. (1) (a) Dividends paid by a company which is a resident of the United Kingdom to a resident of the Colony may be taxed in the Colony.
- (b) Where a resident of the Colony is entitled to a tax credit in respect of such a dividend under sub-paragraph (2) of this Paragraph tax may also be charged in the United Kingdom, and according to the laws of the United Kingdom, on the aggregate of the amount or value of that dividend and the amount of that tax credit at a rate not exceeding 15 per cent.
- (c) Except as aforesaid, dividends paid by a company which is a resident of the United Kingdom to a resident of the Colony who is subject to tax in the Colony on them shall be exempt from any tax in the United Kingdom which is chargeable on dividends.

- (2) A resident of the Colony who receives dividends from a company which is a resident of the United Kingdom shall, subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (3) of this paragraph and provided he is subject to tax in the Colony on those dividends, be entitled to the tax credit in respect thereof to which an individual resident in the United Kingdom would have been entitled had he received those dividends, and to the payment of any excess of such credit over his liability to United Kingdom tax.
- (3) Sub-paragraph (2) of this Paragraph shall not apply where the recipient of the dividend is a company which, either alone or together with one or more associated companies, controls directly or indirectly at least 10 per cent of the voting power in the company paying the dividend. For the purposes of this sub-paragraph two companies shall be deemed to be associated if one is controlled directly or indirectly by the other, or both are controlled directly or indirectly by a third company.
- (4) Dividends paid by a company which is a resident of the Colony to a resident of the United Kingdom who is subject to tax in the United Kingdom in respect thereof shall be exempt from any tax in the Colony which is chargeable on dividends in addition to the tax chargeable in respect of the profits or income of the company.
- (5) The term "dividends" as used in this Paragraph means income from shares, or any other item which under the law of the territory of which the company paying the dividend is a resident, is treated as a dividend or distribution of the company.
- (6) If the recipient of a dividend is a company which owns 10 per cent or more of the class of shares in respect of which the dividend is paid then sub-paragraphs (1) and (2) or, as the case may be, sub-paragraph (4) of this Paragraph shall not apply to the dividend to the extent that it can have been paid only out of profits which the company paying the dividend earned or other income which it received in a period ending twelve months or more before the relevant date. For the purposes of this sub-paragraph the term "relevant date" means the date on which the beneficial owner of the dividend became the owner of 10 per cent or more of the class of shares in question.

Provided that this sub-paragraph shall not apply if the beneficial owner of the dividend shows that the shares were acquired for bonafide commercial reasons and not primarily for the purpose of securing the benefit of this Paragraph.

- (7) The provisions of sub-paragraphs (1) and (2) or as the case may be, sub-paragraph (4) of this Paragraph shall not apply where a resident of one of the Territories has in the other territory a permanent establishment and the holding by virtue of which the dividends are paid is effectively connected with a business carried on through that permanent establishment. In such a case the provisions of Paragraph 3 shall apply.
- (8) Where a company which is a resident of one of the territories derives profits or income from sources within the other territory, the Government of that other territory, shall not impose any form of taxation on dividends paid by the company to persons not resident in that other territory, or any tax in the nature of an undistributed profits tax on undistributed profits of the company, by reason of the fact that those dividends or undistributed profits represent, in whole or in part, profits or income so derived."

2. This Supplementary Arrangement shall enter into force when the last of all such things shall have been done in the United Kingdom and the Colony as are necessary to give them the force of law in the United Kingdom and the Colony respectively and shall thereupon have effect —

- (a) as respects Paragraph 1 (a) from the date of entry into force; and
- (b) as respects Paragraph 1 (b) in relation to dividends paid on or after 6 April 1973.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

This supplementary arrangement provides for —

- (i) Extension to the definition of 'permanent establishment'.
- (ii) Amendment to paragraph 6 of the Double Taxation Arrangement to take into account the new code of taxation introduced in the United Kingdom to take effect from April 1973.

FUGITIVE CRIMINAL

The Austria (Extradition) (Extension) Order 1972

Made - - - - 23rd October 1972
Laid before Parliament 31st October 1972
Coming into Operation 8th November 1972

At the Court at Windsor Castle, the 23rd day of October 1972

Present,

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty in Council

Whereas a Treaty was concluded on 9th January 1963 between Her Majesty in respect of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Federal President of the Republic of Austria for the reciprocal extradition of criminals:

And whereas a Protocol amending the said Treaty was signed on 15th January 1969:

And whereas the said Treaty and Protocol were ratified on 12th May 1970:

And whereas by the Austria (Extradition) Order 1970 (a), it was provided that the Extradition Acts 1870 to 1935 should apply as from 12th August 1970 in the case of the Republic of Austria under and in accordance with the said Treaty, as amended by the said Protocol, and that the operation of the Order should be limited to the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man:

And whereas in accordance with the provisions of Article 2 (1) (b) of the said Treaty, as amended by Article 1 of the said Protocol, it has been agreed by Notes exchanged on 25th August 1971, the terms of which are set out in the Schedule to this Order, that the application of the Treaty should be extended to those territories for the international relations of which Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom are responsible and which are set out in the Annex to the said Notes:

And whereas it has been agreed that the Exchange of Notes should enter into force on 8th November 1972:

Now, therefore, Her Majesty, by virtue and in exercise of the powers in this behalf conferred on Her by sections 2 and 17 of the Extradition Act 1870 (b) or otherwise in Her Majesty vested, is pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows —

1. This Order shall come into operation on 8th November 1972 and may be cited as the Austria (Extradition) (Extension) Order 1972.
2. The Interpretation Act 1889(c) shall apply for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.
3. The Extradition Acts 1870 to 1935 shall apply in the case of the Republic of Austria under and in accordance with the said Treaty, as amended by the said Protocol and extended by the said Exchange of Notes.
4. The operation of this Order is limited to the territories (including their dependencies) specified in the Annex to the said Exchange of Notes, other than the British Solomon Islands Protectorate and Brunei.

SCHEDULE

EXCHANGE OF NOTES BETWEEN HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND AND THE GOVERNMENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF AUSTRIA PROVIDING FOR THE EXTENSION OF THE EXTRADITION TREATY SIGNED ON 9TH JANUARY 1963.

No. 1

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to the Austrian Ambassador

Foreign and Commonwealth Office
S.W.1.

25th August 1971

Your Excellency

I have the honour to refer to the Extradition Treaty between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Republic of Austria, signed at Vienna on 9th January, 1963 and to the Protocol amending the said Treaty, signed at Vienna on 15th January, 1969. Instruments of ratification in respect of the Treaty and Protocol were exchanged on 12th May, 1970 and the Treaty as amended has thereby entered into force on 12th August, 1970.

In accordance with the provisions of paragraph (1) (b) of Article 2 of the Treaty as amended, I have the honour to propose that the application of the Treaty shall be extended to the territories listed in the Annex to this Note. If the foregoing proposal is acceptable to the Republic of Austria, I have the honour to suggest that this Note and its Annex, together with Your Excellency's reply in that sense, shall constitute an agreement between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Republic of Austria which shall enter into force three months after the date of receipt by the United Kingdom of a notification by the Republic of Austria that the requirements for its entry into force under Austrian constitutional procedure have been fulfilled.

I have the honour to be, with the highest consideration,
Your Excellency's obedient Servant
(For the Secretary of State)

H. V. Richardson.

Jaenner 1963 in Wien unterzeichneten Auslieferungsvertrag zwischen dem Vereinigten Koenigreich von Grossbritannien und Nordirland und der Republik Oesterreich sowie auf das am 15. Jaenner 1969 in Wien unterzeichnete Protokoll betreffend die Abaenderung des genannten Vertrages Bezug zu nehmen. Die Ratifikationsurkunden zu dem Vertrag und zu dem Protokoll wurden am 12. Mai 1970 ausgetauscht und der Vertrag ist daher in seiner abgeaenderten Fassung am 12. August 1970 in Kraft getreten.

Im Einklang mit Artikel 2 Absatz 1 lit. b des Vertrages in seiner abgeaenderten Fassung beehre ich mich vorzuschlagen, dass die Anwendung des Vertrages auf die im Anhang zu dieser Note angefuhrten Gebiete ausgedehnt wird.

Sollte der obige Vorschlag fuer die Republik Oesterreich annehmbar sein, beehre ich mich anzuregen, dass diese Note zusammen mit ihrem Anhang und der zustimmenden Antwort Eurer Exzellenz ein Abkommen zwischen dem Vereinigten Koenigreich von Grossbritannien und Nordirland und der Republik Oesterreich darstellen soll, welches drei Monate nach dem Tag in Kraft treten wird, an dem das Vereinigte Koenigreich von der Republik Oesterreich die Mitteilung erhaelt, dass die fuer das Inkrafttreten in Oesterreich erforderlichen verfassungsrechtlichen Voraussetzungen erfuellt sind."

Ich beehre mich, Eurer Exzellenz mitzuteilen, dass die Republik Oesterreich mit dem in Ihrer Note enthaltenen Vorschlag einverstanden ist.

Mit dem Ausdruck meiner ausgezeichneten Hochachtung verbleibe ich als

Euer Exzellenz sehr ergebener

Wilfried Platzer

Instrument under the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands appointing Major Richard Victor Goss, O.B.E., E.D., to be a Member of the Executive Council.

E. G. LEWIS.

By His Excellency ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, ESQUIRE,
Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS by certain Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the 13th day of December 1948, constituting the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands, it is amongst other things declared that there shall be an Executive Council in and for the said Colony which shall consist of such persons as may be directed under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet.

AND WHEREAS by Instructions under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet, bearing date the 13th day of December 1948, it is declared that the Governor may, from time to time, appoint persons other than ex-officio Members to be Members of the Executive Council of the Colony.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, do hereby appoint — to be a Member of my Executive Council until the 9th day of January 1975.

MAJOR RICHARD VICTOR GOSS, O.B.E., E.D.,

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony at Government House, Stanley, this 10th day of January in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-four.

By His Excellency's Command,

T. H. LAYNG,

Chief Secretary.

EXC/19/1C.

Instrument under the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands appointing Alexander Sloggje, Esquire, to be a Member of the Executive Council.

E. G. LEWIS.

By His Excellency ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, ESQUIRE,
Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS by certain Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the 13th day of December 1948, constituting the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands, it is amongst other things declared that there shall be an Executive Council in and for the said Colony which shall consist of such persons as may be directed under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet.

AND WHEREAS by Instructions under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet, bearing date the 13th day of December 1948, it is declared that the Governor may, from time to time, appoint persons other than ex-officio Members to be Members of the Executive Council of the Colony.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of the Falkland Islands and its Dependencies, do hereby appoint—to be a Member of my Executive Council until the 9th day of January 1975.

ALEXANDER SLOGGIE, ESQUIRE,

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony at Government House, Stanley, this 10th day of January in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-four.

By His Excellency's Command,

T. H. LAYNG,

Chief Secretary.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meetings of the Legislative Council held from 15th to 21st May 1973 and on 25th October 1973, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen,

This is the first major meeting of the Legislative Council since the Budget Session and, as is customary, I intend to review the progress made since May of last year. You will recall that at the meeting in May, the Council approved a series of measures, some I fear unpalatable, but very necessary if we were going to balance the budget, arrest the erosion of our reserves and avoid going into bankruptcy. Many of these measures stemmed from the result of reports by Messrs. Comben and Waller and Mr. Garth Armstrong, all officials from the Overseas Development Administration of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, but the decisions to implement these measures had to be taken by the Council. Looking back, I consider it took considerable strength of will on the part of Members to pass the measures and today we can see the results in our Revised Estimates. In the original estimates approved in May 1973 revenue was estimated to be £560,000 but the revised figure is now nearer £620,000, a rise of almost £60,000. The chief reasons for the improvement in revenue are:-

Companies tax being higher than anticipated as a result of the continued firmness of the wool market.
Better sales from our postal stamps.
Increase in the charter fee of the m.v. "Forrest" to the Ministry of Defence.
The £7,500 refund of the shipping subsidy in respect of R.M.S. "Darwin" and, finally, an unexpected surplus available for transfer from the Savings Bank.

However, equally, there has been a rise in expenditure, the original estimate was £543,000 but the revised figure is now nearer £612,000, a rise of £69,000. The increased expenditure is principally due to the following:-

- (i) Higher cost of living allowances;
- (ii) Medical services up £10,000 in respect of medical treatment overseas and maintenance of the patients;
- (iii) Aviation up £12,000 mainly due to the soaring costs of Avgas;
- (iv) Passage costs up £4,000 and so on.

So, it will be seen from the above how necessary it was for the Council to act as it did so as to ensure that we could maintain our economic independence and avoid slipping into Grant in Aid. Naturally, Government is constantly looking for new ways of increasing revenue but the economic health of the Colony still depends to a large extent on the price of wool remaining at a reasonably high figure.

Another important feature at the Budget meeting was the passing of our first 5 year Development Plan and I am pleased that we can report favourably on its implementation. £45,000 has been paid out in fencing grants and orders have been placed for a further £35,000 worth of items so we can hope to carry out about 80 per cent of the current year's projects which is good going even measured against the best of Development Plans.

Also since May further progress has been made in our plan to have all Government departments looked at where necessary by Overseas experts. We know that there is criticism about the number of experts flowing into the Colony at the present time and there is some misunderstanding about why they are here and what they have to do. These experts are specialists in their field and therefore can be a great help to the Colony in making certain that our procedures are up to date and the most economical possible. The experts that come out have no wish to be over critical and, for the most part, you will find their reports helpful and constructive. The two experts from the Civil Aviation Authority, Captain Branson and Mr. Jones, have given me a verbal report on their findings on their inspection of FIGAS and, on the whole, these are very favourable. This is what we expected, but, on the other hand, they have found discrepancies in certain of our procedures and in due course these will be rectified. Also, it was a great pleasure to have here recently Mr. Michael Macoun, the Secretary of State's Overseas Police Adviser and, here again, his preliminary report is reasonably favourable and certainly very helpful and, in due course, when the full report has been considered by Council I hope it will be possible for many of our Police to proceed to the United Kingdom for further training at the various Police Colleges and Training establishments.

One report which has given me and I know many others in the Islands much pleasure is that by the distinguished fisheries expert, Dr. Leslie Stewart. His study of the history of the introduction of trout into the rivers of the Falkland Islands is a fascinating document and I am certain that his recommendations for the future, if adopted by the Council, will set the pattern for the development of an inland fisheries for decades to come.

As part of stream-lining the administrative organisation, the Stanley Town Council was abolished and the various Government Departments concerned are dealing satisfactorily with the township problems. The tidying up of the town is going ahead and the rubbish dump has been moved inland. I know that, at times, the inland dump is not all that satisfactory but steps will be taken to improve this and also to cover up the awful eyesore of the old dump which offends the eye when one is coming into Stanley through the gap.

The mizzen mast from the "Great Britain" has been moved on to its plinth on Victory Green and, despite comments from the usual critics I am certain that this will be, in time, an added tourist attraction. In addition, the Battle Memorial has been cleaned up and the lettering repainted so that once again visitors to the Islands can see just exactly what is being commemorated.

Another more controversial decision was that to centralise the medical services with all the doctors being stationed in Stanley, visits being paid to the Camp on the lines of a flying doctor service. This new organisation obviously cannot operate efficiently until we have three doctors in post and I have written personally to the Overseas Development Administration asking the medical authorities there to do everything possible to help in obtaining the services of another Medical Officer. In the meantime, in order to complement this service and to improve our links with the Camp, we have arranged that a 24 hour watch should be maintained by the Government Wireless Station to deal with medical and other emergencies. It has, for example, already proved its worth, when the "Monsunen" went on to a reef at Pebble in the middle of the night and we were alerted here in Stanley at once.

And, finally, we have had a visit from an expert Mr. Crook whose task is to overhaul the hospital administration so that our methods and procedures are brought up to date in line with modern thinking.

I would like to take this opportunity of recording how sorry we are to see that ESRO has ceased to operate and that its run down of staff will be complete within the next six months. As I have mentioned on previous occasions, there is no deep Government plot in this which is simply the result of decisions taken for technical reasons by this European organisation. However, if all goes well we hope that this gap can be partially filled by the operations of Alginatc Industries Limited.

When I arrived in the Colony some three years ago we were in the midst of a crisis in regard to our communications organisation, particularly external and I make no apologies now for reverting to this subject which time and time again I have mentioned at meetings of the Legislative Council. You will remember that early in 1971 we had a transportation study carried out by Messrs. Peat, Marwick and Mitchell & Co., the well known management consultants and in their report several conclusions were drawn and I would like to mention these again as it appears to me that certain people have forgotten what really are our problems in this regard. Peat, Marwick and Mitchell said, and I quote -

"the conclusion we draw is that an air service to Patagonia is the best means of providing for external passenger movement. On grounds of cost and passenger comfort alone, the Fokker F.27 service offered by LADE the Argentine development airline operating in Patagonia is preferable Supplies of produce should be moved by two ships, one working internally and the other from the U.K. Additionally, an air service can be expected to provide some stimulus to the economy".

Looking back, how true and pertinent were these observations. And now we have a weekly air service working very efficiently enabling us to receive our mail regularly, to receive visits from people from all over the world, to evacuate our medical cases to the mainland for specialist treatment - and so on - with all the benefits that flow from an efficient link with the outside world. I know that the Joint Statement signed in B.A. between Her Majesty's Government and the Argentine Government in July 1971 provides for HMG to take the necessary measures to arrange a regular shipping service and this has been done to the extent that a vessel from the U.K. calls in at Mar del Plata at regular intervals: there are signs that not all the cargo space on offer is being taken up on this vessel. In addition, our shipping links have been supplemented by several visits from Argentine ships and by tourist ships that can now come in as a result of the Communications Agreement. So now we have the position of our passengers being moved by air and a sea link with the U.K. touching in at Mar del Plata to look after our heavy freight from the U.K. and the export of our wool to the European markets. Given this situation there seems to be little room for another shipping service which, if provided, would have to be very heavily subsidised by this Government. The decision to take off the R.M.S. "Darwin" (a logical and responsible commercial decision) from its run was taken on economic grounds and those considerations would apply even more so today with the fuel situation becoming more difficult and crewing costs going up all the time.

Finally, as you know, under the Communications Agreement HMG undertook to provide a permanent airfield and I am afraid that I have little fresh to tell you about this at the moment except that tenders have been received from three firms and these are now being studied by the authorities in England. No doubt the soaring rate of inflation has had an effect on the bids submitted but I do not expect to hear anything more definite about this question until later in the month.

Now I would like to turn to the subject of fuel supplies as all these problems are inter related with the general communications network. Even when we had a shipping link to Montevideo the cost of importing petrol and our AVGAS for the Beavers was beginning to escalate because handling charges for drums and freight costs absorbed far too great a proportion of the landed cost here. This applies equally now that our shipping links have been switched to the Argentine and obviously it makes economic sense where possible to receive our supplies in bulk. Generally, our pattern is that from time to time our stocks of diesel are topped up by an RFA tanker and these stocks can be drawn on by the Royal Navy, Government and the British Antarctic Survey. Additionally, the Falkland Islands Company can bring on its charter vessels stocks of diesel which it has managed to purchase at bunkering stations on the voyage on the way out. All these prices and the supply line are obviously important to the economy of the Islands as both petrol and diesel are required on our farms and AVGAS is vital for the operation of our internal air service. And so it was that when as a result of the air service agreement YPF established a tank farm for its JFI Government thought it made sound economic sense to explore with that Company the possibility of bringing in fuel of all types from the mainland at the same time. In fact originally Government had considered building bulk storage facilities of its own but the estimate of cost was indeed formidable as were the technical difficulties involved. No distributor here was prepared to put up money for a bulk storage installation and so it was that these negotiations, carried on in good faith and openly by both sides, led to the Draft Agreement under which YPF undertakes to provide our fuel needs providing it has a monopoly. This Government, quite frankly, does not like monopolies or economic dominance by any Company, but we do have to face the facts of life. Shipping wise we are at the end of the line as far as Europe is concerned and we have seen from what has happened recently that a diversified source of supply for fuel does not necessarily mean you cannot be placed under economic pressure by a country or group of countries. The current world fuel crisis may well affect the ability of the MOD to supply our needs (certainly it will affect the price) so that there may be an additional advantage in having our supplies secured by a country which after all produces 80 per cent of its oil needs. Further, on this subject, I would just like to make the point that it has been because of the drummed AVGAS brought in here in quantity on landing ships from the Argentine that we have been able to maintain FIGAS's flying operations at such a high peak during the past year.

In this fast moving situation it is difficult to always be certain about the prices to be paid for oil products but at the present time the pattern looks like the following:

Petrol - now selling at 82 pence in the Falklands will drop to nearer 36 pence, the selling price on the mainland; and Diesel - now likely to be selling at 32 pence in Fuel Stanley in the future will be available at the mainland price of 23 pence.

In fact with the pressure on world fuel supplies generally we can expect the gap between the mainland prices and those which would have had to be payable here widening.

On our general relations with the Argentine, I think most of you know that once again "the problem" came up for discussion in the Fourth Committee (the de-colonisation Committee of the United Nations) in November and later at the plenary session of the United Nations. At these meetings our case as usual was presented extremely ably by our representatives in the United Kingdom Mission to the United Nations and it was made clear once again that HMG has no doubt as to its sovereignty over the Falkland Islands and could not accept any assertions contrary to this view, whoever they may be made by. Also, our representatives stressed that HMG has an obligation placed on her by the Charter of the world body of protecting the interests and respecting the wishes of the inhabitants of the Islands. But we have to live with the fact that we are under claim and that we have nothing to lose - and possibly something to gain - by further talks with the Argentines providing that these are on a basis acceptable to all parties concerned. There is little doubt that much of the understanding and support we have received in the United Nations has come because, in addition to asserting our legal rights, we have been seen by other countries as reasonable people willing to talk. The results of the Communications Agreement have been impressive and this progress represents common ground between our two Governments on which it should be possible to build.

I would like for a moment to turn away from politics and economics to something very different. Last month my wife and I had the pleasure of paying our first visit to South Georgia, travelling in HMS Endurance under the command of Captain C. J. Isacke, R.N. and this was a most interesting and rewarding voyage. It is a beautiful island, steeped in history, and in addition to visiting now abandoned whaling stations I had the privilege at Grytviken of laying a wreath on the grave of that great Antarctic leader, Sir Ernest Shackleton. As you know, just before leaving for South Georgia, in another historical context we had a Battle Day ceremony in December which was quite memorable and I consider that the handing over of the Patent of Baronetcy "Sturdee of the Falkland Islands" was done with considerable flair and a sense of occasion which I know has given great pleasure to Lady Ashmore, the grand daughter of the victor of the Battle of the Falklands.

Your Government continues to be very much aware of its responsibility in regard to the environment and the conservation of our wild life. Legislation is being tightened up and I hope that new proposals in respect of both Colony and of South Georgia will be received from London in due course. Some of the criticism levelled against the Colony at the present time is ill directed and refers to the past and is sometimes made for purely personal or political reasons but we hold these Islands in trust for future generations and it is up to us to see that the wild life and the beauty we have inherited is maintained.

Sometimes I hear people saying - "oh, where does the Governor stand?". I would have thought I have been with you long enough for most people to know my general philosophy on our problems but in case there is any doubt, I will repeat it.

1. I stand for a prosperous, self reliant, enlightened community prepared to face up to the difficulties of the present day.
2. I stand for an outward looking community, proud of its past history, but not always looking back nostalgically to the old days which will never return.
3. I stand for a community where equal educational facilities are available to all our children, whether in camp or in Stanley, and where a child who has the ability has every encouragement to go on to higher fields.

4. I stand for a community, which, while safeguarding its sovereignty, is prepared to play its part in the world, particularly with our closest neighbour, Argentina and with other countries in the great Latin American continent.
5. I stand for a community prepared to discuss outstanding problems in a civilised, diplomatic manner so that men of good will, whether here or on the mainland, are strengthened in their resolve to solve our dispute peacefully.
6. I stand for a community which proud of its British history and its loyalty to the throne is also understanding of the problems facing Her Majesty's Government in her relations with the Community of Nations.
7. I stand for a community which, while coping with all the day to day affairs, does not lack the compassion and the will to look after the old and the less fortunate in our midst.
8. I stand for a community where individual freedom and rights are safeguarded including the right, under most circumstances, to dispose of one's property, including land, and, finally, I stand for a community that lifts its eyes beyond the first ridge to the horizon beyond.

MOTION OF THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY

Mr. Miller

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, at the Budget Session I remarked when I introduced the Motion of Thanks - that it was an innovation of which we had known nothing before but we welcomed it and I thought that it could be very useful. I do remember saying in that Motion of Thanks at the time of the 1973 Budget that with the rising prices of wool we might have a surplus at the next budget and we might even be able to consider reducing fees. I realise now that it was rather nonsense to have said that because while the price of wool has gone up and is likely to stay up unfortunately the other side of the balance sheet works as well and as you have already told us, it is about seventy thousand now. The Savings Bank brought an unexpected reasonable windfall as well and all these things help, but any idea of reducing the burdens we have put on the citizens is just obviously not on, because apart from balancing our budget we have just got to build up a reserve against the day when wool might go down again. We cannot do anything about rising costs. The prices for fuel that you mentioned had rather pleasant sounding figures compared with what we pay now, but might not stay at that price very long. As the world prices rocket, there is no particular reason why the people across the way should keep their prices very low, and of course if we fall out over the same old inevitable subject that is coming up all the time there could be a crunch in which we have got to switch right back to Britain. Rather anticipating the Questions for Oral Reply you did refer to the ship connection with South America and I would agree with you entirely that the 'Darwin' was withdrawn for the normal economical reasons and it is quite impossible to see any other ship doing anything except to be run at a dead loss whoever does it and we would probably, as you said, Sir, be called upon to pay a large subsidy.

The airfield project, which is also subject of a Question, I regard as very far from satisfactory. Presumably we will get one some day but unfortunately at the other end no-one seems to be in any particular hurry, and there again we cannot do anything about it except to be unfortunately and not altogether entirely pleasantly dependent on our large neighbour.

With regard to remarks about YFF and the oil, I would agree entirely that we had no option, I agree with the sentiments of an Honourable Member's speech in October but I do think that we have got to keep our feet on the ground in this thing. The Chief Secretary told us then that the cost to the people who were proposing to put in this installation would be a million (I presume he meant a million dollars). If a British consortium or company was to put it in it would probably be a million pounds and of course these sort of people are hard-headed business men; they would not spend a million pounds here and just get a few hundreds back. In this type of community, unless the project was entirely subsidised by the British Government I do not think we could even begin to expect it.

We are a little apprehensive about these gifts from over the water but at the moment we have no option; we do of course still have the final option if any crunch comes - we would have to go back to Britain.

The last thing you said, Sir, I think is rather an important one. You were talking about conservationists. I, and I think a few other members of Council, regard them as something of a menace to this Colony and, I think they are so in a good many parts of the world. As you are aware we threw out their latest effort yesterday in connection with albatrosses' (as they call them, but Falkland Islanders know them as mollynauks) eggs. We cried that one out. We still want to have a few mollynauk eggs, there are so many. One of these days I suppose we will get an expert who will be able to come to talk to us about the geese. Of course if he comes from a conservationist lobby he won't be much use to us. If we could only do something about our geese population here, I think the export of wool could well go up by the best part of a million pounds in weight, if we could reduce geese by about seventy five per cent on top of grassland work.

I think Sir that is all I can usefully say, in connection with your Address. I would like to move the Vote of Thanks for your Address."

The President

"Thank you very much, Honourable Sydney Miller".

Mr. Pitaluga:

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members I am rising to second this Motion. I refer in particular, Your Excellency to that part of your speech regarding budgetary matters. When we made speeches at this point during the meeting of Legislative Council in May last year Honourable Members warned of the dangers of balancing a budget by harsh measures which were the result of reports made by an economist and two O. and M. experts. The budget when agreed certainly balanced and we had a satisfactory surplus, but it was still harsh in places, and we did not put through all the legislation even then. I refer to the Income Tax and Estate Duty Bills which are on the Order Paper for today. The measures we approved were necessary but perhaps not always agreeable in the form adopted. The public has shown its disapproval in some cases such as by cancelling telephone subscriptions, amateur radio licences; the bulking of letters by business concerns before posting; avoiding air travel when possible, and others. These things are significant but not immediately serious to our economy, and I don't believe anyone has left the Islands because of them, but we must be careful about future financial burdens which might result in industry and the general public taking action to protect themselves with counter-productive results for the legislation concerned.

I will now turn briefly to our ever present political problem about which more will be heard during Questions and Motions. I was shocked and dismayed to learn yesterday that Australia and New Zealand, two former colonies which have independence within the Commonwealth, have voted against us in the United Nations Committees. This is even more appalling when one considers the number of Islanders who have made their homes in these two countries and have taken with them a lot of money earned in these Islands.

Finally a word on the subject of our main airfield which my Honourable friend Mr. Miller has also mentioned. Having voted funds for its construction the United Kingdom Government is dragging over the start of this job, it is to be deplored whatever the excuse, and if they made airfields as easy as they made excuses we would have had one long ago.

Now Sir in spite of your being a New Zealander I beg to second the Motion of Thanks! "

The President:

"Thank you very much, Honourable Mr. Pitaluga".

Mr. Blake

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to join in the Vote of Thanks to Your Excellency for your speech in which you, like the preceding two speakers, seem to have adopted the budget as one of your themes. The previous two speakers and you Sir, seem far happier about the state of these Islands than I personally feel. I feel that this Council has done absolutely nothing in the two years it has been in office, other than increase the burden on the members of the community and reducing the services provided for them, in medical, education, postal and the civil offices. We have agreed to OSAS under pressure, to get much needed overseas officers, none have arrived. We have had the promised visits of a salaries commissioner, the tax expert and efficiency experts, and as a result of these we have increased the tax burden splendidly and pushed up expenditure. The efficiency part seems to have been forgotten and we have ended up with a Civil Service which is disgruntled because they did not get as much as they expected. Under these circumstances, Sir, I feel that I, and I hope possibly other members of this Council will oppose the Motion for Adjournment today as a mark of lack of confidence in our ability to face the domestic problems these Islands have; though I would like to thank you Sir for your excellent work."

The President

"Thank you very much."

Mr. Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, after Your Excellency's very eloquent and far ranging address I find it rather difficult to make many points, and after the last gloomy address in which we all seem to have achieved nothing according to the Honourable Member (and of course he was a member of the Council that did nothing), it is rather difficult to know what to talk about; but I would like to talk about advisers and experts. I always thought before that these advisers and experts came out here for one reason, to advise us on the way we should improve this and that. I suppose I was a bit gullible and I did not see any reason why they should not flow out in their hundreds, providing somebody else paid for them. I am sure they are very expert people but it is becoming increasingly obvious that they are not only out here to advise us. They take their findings home to HMG and advise HMG and it has also become increasingly obvious that unless we adopt the advice they proffer we come under pressure from LMG in a variety of ways; we find that, for instance, we have difficulty in recruiting staff, and I don't like that aspect of the advisory service at all. I think no-one doubts that we must have advice from the outside world; it is no good shutting yourself up in a clam shell; we have got to look over the fence; everybody should, but I don't like this aspect of the advisers coming and influencing HMG and HMG deciding then that unless we adopt the policies we are going to suffer. With regard to aid, it seems to be relatively easy to get development aid for capital projects, and for a long while I thought that budgetary aid or subsidy or aid of that sort was probably a bad thing because we would be told how to organise our own revenue raising activities, if we started asking for that sort of aid. I am not so certain that the tremendous amount of development aid that we get for capital projects is altogether a good thing and I don't know that we would not do better with less development aid and some budgetary aid. Development aid means that you have some nice new project built, installed, but the trouble is that new projects become old works and you have got to maintain them, and we don't get aid for maintaining them. We are beginning to see this in the case of our Stanley roads which were largely built under development aid but we are having an awful lot of trouble and difficulty in maintaining them. I am beginning to wonder what will happen when we get, if we get, the £2 million airfield down, whether it is not going to just fall to bits in a few years because we cannot maintain it. I am not at all happy with the present aid aspect. A lot of development aid is being spent on projects which are in my opinion quite unnecessary and in some cases commercial concerns could have done them for themselves anyway. The Honourable Member on my right spoke about the tremendous burden that we have placed on the citizens as all we have done is tax them more and give them less. I don't think he is entirely right in that. I know the Civil Service have been disgruntled, some of them anyway, but everyone is getting paid a lot better out here now; there is a lot more money being earned. I expect we have been unfair to certain classes of people - it is very difficult when you make tax legislation and that sort of thing; it is almost impossible to be absolutely fair to everybody. I don't consider at all that we have made a total failure of everything. We have made mistakes I quite agree, but I don't consider that we have made a total failure and if the Honourable Member is going to oppose the Motion for Adjournment I am afraid I am not going to support him - I don't want to sit in here for ever! "

The President

"Thank you very much".

Mr. Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am afraid I am not as gifted as my Honourable friend on my right to speak as long as he can, but I was very delighted to hear of the good report on our air service and this is encouraging. I am sure that it will continue to do good work as it has always done, and I am also very pleased to learn that both the coastal and the inland rubbish dump are going to be tidied up. They are both in a bad way I believe. I have not visited the inland one for some time but I did see the other one the other day and although it has already grown over I doubt if it would be a very difficult job, except for bull-dozing perhaps, to clean it up. As to the inland one, one hears of beer cans and all sorts of rubbish scattered all over the Common and this I think should be put back inside the fence and perhaps the fence made a little stronger so that rubbish won't come outside the fence.

The other point you made, Sir, respecting the recruitment of our third doctor, I think is important. This is encouraging and I sincerely hope it won't be long before he arrives. This, together with Mr. Crook's good work, I think should mean a much improved medical service which I am sure will be appreciated especially by our friends on the West Falklands, who we know are anxious to see an improved medical service. I have one little grumble to make; with the increased postal rates, both internally and externally, I feel that Stanley, whom I am supposed to represent mainly anyhow, does deserve a delivery system. It is all very well everybody milling down to the Post Office on a Monday morning or Monday afternoon when the mail is open, rain or shine, if you have got a car it is so much more comfortable, but I think that even if Stanley had one postman it would ease the burden and an awful lot of discontent amongst elderly, business and good living people who, no doubt, pay their taxes equally as quickly as I do. I wish to support the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency."

The President

"Thank you very much Honourable Willie Bowles".

Mr. Luxton

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am afraid I join with my fellow Member from the West Falkland in being rather a purveyor of gloom. I am not at all happy with the way this Administration is handling our problems at the moment, with particular reference to the Medical situation, and particularly that on the West Falkland. The Administration, in particular the Chief Secretary, in a fairly short time seems to have reduced the Medical Department to a complete shambles. At the moment it is struggling along with one doctor, for a short time only I presume. The Evans Report which Your Excellency mentioned - I understand one of the quotations from a letter from Dr. Evans is that "we shall now do all we can to recruit your third medical officer". The unspoken implication there is that until you fellows out there toed the line according to my report, you didn't stand a hope of getting a new doctor.' The same sort of tactics were pursued by the Administration over Darwin School, despite a considerable amount of opposition. I feel to a certain extent that life in the Camp at any rate is gradually being eroded and made somewhat more untenable. I think there is a danger that if this sort of tactic continues, that life in the whole Colony will be made untenable.

Our new airfield seems to have become completely stuck on the rocks. Frankly, I am getting to the stage when I shall believe it is going to be built when I see it. I am afraid that despite the protestations from the British Government that our wishes will be respected, I have a nasty, sneaking suspicion in the back of my mind that while our wishes will be respected, we are at the present moment being subjected to an insidious type of pressure to possibly change our wishes. All in all I am afraid I am not happy with the way things are going at the moment and I intend to support the Honourable Mr. Blake in opposing the Motion for Adjournment as a form of protest.

Other than that, for the immediate future we are faced with increasing problems with the increased oil prices and I myself was not too happy about the agreement, or the legislation, that we passed last meeting, but I don't think we have any alternative at the moment. Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion".

The President

"Thanks very much Honourable W. R. Luxton. Good critique. Honourable Chief Secretary?"

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this is traditionally a Motion for the Unofficial Members and it is not a normal time I think for Official Members to take up the points made or start any dog fights. We shall be returning to most of the topics mentioned, most of the matters raised, during our Question and Answer sessions and our debates later on, and I fear that I shall find myself on my feet for a considerable amount of that time. I would however just like to make two points, firstly I was somewhat surprised, I think it is the first time I have ever heard an elected unofficial member of a legislature complain about development aid and I would just like to make the point that development aid, the whole reason, the whole raison d'etre for it is to assist the territory to develop. HMG insists that a varying percentage of capital aid is spent on projects which develop the territory and themselves generate revenue and so help to increase the prosperity of the territory. HMG will not permit too large a proportion of development aid to be spent on capital projects which in their turn require budgetary finance to keep them running. This is why in our development programme the main emphasis has been on giving a shot in the arm to the wool industry in the way of fencing subsidies, grassland investigations, fertiliser subsidies, and so on, which our experts and most, I think, of our farmers consider will increase the yield of wool, will increase the money coming into the Colony and will increase our prosperity. The second point I wanted to make was that I listened with some surprise to the self-criticism of our two western members, who are after all Members of the Administration, Members of the Government and indeed represent twenty five per cent of the Government. I would just like to make the point - we are aware that a number of the decisions made have been controversial. They have however been argued out in various Councils, various bodies, over the air and when finally the decisions were made they have all either been unanimous or having no more than one Member in opposition or abstaining. In none of these controversial decisions has there been more than one Council Member who has opposed them. With these brief remarks Your Excellency, I would like to associate myself with the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency for your address".

The President

"Thank you very much Honourable Members".

PAPERS LAID ON THE TABLE BY THE CHIEF SECRETARY:

Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor-in-Council since May 1973.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

The Clerk

"Question No. 1/74 by the Honourable W. E. Bowles".

Mr. Bowles

"After having brought the urgency of the review of the Old Age Pensions to the attention of Government for the last two years without any positive result I now ask will the administration consider introducing legislation to increase Old Age Pensions by either increasing contributions or through general taxation?"

Financial Secretary

"Yes. Government has recently received the report of the United Kingdom Government Actuary. His assessment of the Fund is that it cannot support any greater benefits without corresponding increases in contributions.

Following the recent receipt of the Actuary's report the Old Age Pensions Board of Management has made recommendations to Government for increasing pensions and proposals to finance such increases. These proposals are now being studied by Government".

Mr. Bowles

"Will my Honourable friend the Financial Secretary tell us whether, if these proposals were adopted, pensions would increase at the same time as the financial proposals to support them were implemented?"

Financial Secretary

"Yes Sir, it is the intention that the proposal to increase pensions will be put before this Council and a corresponding proposal to find the income".

Mr. Bowles

"Approximately how long will it take the Administration to study this proposal?"

Financial Secretary

"This is a difficult question. I cannot give the Honourable Member any assurance on a deadline. The matter is being treated by Government as extremely urgent. Besides Honourable Members bringing this matter to the attention of Government, other bodies in the Colony, for instance, the General Employees Union have also referred this matter to Government to be looked at as quickly as possible. We are doing all we possibly can to bring the matter before Council and we hope that something will be on the Table at the next meeting".

Mr. Bowles

"Sir, I would like to thank the Financial Secretary for his answer".

The President

I think you can have my assurance as well that this will be pursued with urgency".

The Clerk

"Question No. 2/74 from Hon. W. E. Bowles".

Mr. Bowles

"Has our Government any plans concerning the upkeep and maintenance of the tarmacadam roads in Stanley, with special reference to Brandon Road and many others deteriorating rapidly?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir Honourable Members of this Council voted in Committee of Supply in May last year to allocate the sum of £6000 for the maintenance and upkeep of the Colony's roads, bridges and drains, most of which are located in Stanley. On account of the difficulty in obtaining the services of a private contractor to undertake the repairs to the Hebe Street drain, a disproportionate amount of Public Works Department effort has had to be directed towards this job. The result has been that government has lacked the works capacity to undertake other routine maintenance on Stanley roads. A tender notice has recently issued in an effort to interest private enterprise in this work, and it is hoped that a suitable contractor will come forward. If one does not the repair of Stanley's roads will have to wait until other jobs with a higher priority rating are completed."

Mr. Bowles

"If a suitable contractor is engaged for this work, will the large amount of, I understand, useable tar be spread in the approved manner?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, that is a technical question. I must confess I don't know what the approved manner of spreading tar is. I can assure the Honourable Member that our Works Superintendent will, as in all works contracts, supervise the contractor to the best of his ability and will no doubt ensure that the job is done as well as our local resources permit".

Mr. Bowles

"Can the Chief Secretary tell us if the remaining streets will receive a final dressing of tar, which they also rightfully deserve?"

Chief Secretary

"I take it to mean that you are enquiring whether we are proposing to resurface all the streets in Stanley and the answer I think must inevitably be no. We have not the funds or the capacity available for doing that; but maybe I have misunderstood your question".

Mr. Bowles

"Tarmacadam roads. Your Excellency, one other question, will the concrete islands which at the moment are surrounded in tar, mainly on Brandon Road, finally be joined to one another permanently?"

Chief Secretary

"I can only repeat I am afraid that our budget on this matter is limited to six thousand pounds for maintenance of all roads, bridges, and drains, and Public Works Department is in fact now, following the unfortunate fact that no contractor has come forward, it is now making a start on some of the worst of these holes, but I am afraid it is unlikely that everything that we would all wish to be done will in fact be done before the winter is upon us".

Mr. Bowles

"I would like to thank the Chief Secretary for his replies".

The President

"Well we will have to do something shortly Honourable Willie Bowles, because I was in my mini the other night and I went into one of those pot-holes and it hardly came out. I thought I was going to be there all night".

The Clerk

"Question No. 3/74 by the Honourable W. E. Bowles".

Mr. Bowles

"In a recent letter from Mr. Ian Hemmin of Costains, he mentions that both Costains tender and that of their competitor for the construction of the Permanent Airfield are in doubt - which it is understood is because the costs are in excess of the estimates prepared for Her Majesty's Government. Will Government therefore confirm that there will be no delay in constructing the airfield at Cape Pembroke, and state precisely what arrangements have now been made?"

Chief Secretary

"A number of members asked questions on the airfield, very similar questions, so I am taking this opportunity to make one answer to the whole lot instead of having to repeat myself. So this is a reply also to Mr. Pitaluga's Question No. 12. The position with regard to the construction of the permanent airfield is, as His Excellency has already mentioned in his Address, that three firms of contractors have submitted tenders and these are currently being studied in London by our consulting engineers. Their report is expected in mid January and until this is received we cannot assess how the rapid inflation over the past year has affected original estimates of the cost of the airfield".

Mr. Bowles

"Sir, is the assessing of this report from the consulting engineers a precise arrangement earmarked for the future?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, I don't know whether Honourable Members have seen the tender documents that contractors have to study. They are in fact four volumes slightly bigger than this. It is a pile of paper of that kind of size and the tenders that are put in are no doubt as large as the tender documents. Our Consulting Engineers have to study these very substantial papers and these do I am afraid take a long time to be assessed and to be judged and to be compared with each other."

Mr. Bowles

"Thank you Sir and I would like to thank the Chief Secretary for his answer".

The President

"Thank you very much".

Mr. Blake

"May I ask the Chief Secretary if the prevailing winter conditions in Britain where it seems the airfield is bogged in bumph will not prevail in Stanley when the construction team gets here and find they are bogged in either peat or more bumph, so that this project will be further delayed once the tender documents are completed?"

Chief Secretary

"We have pointed out to our consulting engineers and to the tenderers that the first of May is not an auspicious sod-turning day to decide on. They are aware that this is the start of our winter and we did discuss this with the various firms that came out and their reply was that whereas there might be a ceremonial sod turned, in fact most of the winter would be spent in access roads, building of houses, settling the labour in, etc. These are all the normal initial preparations that would be required whether they were starting in summer or in winter, and the engineers I talked to seemed reasonably confident that they would be able to get under way without any loss of time, even in our worst winter conditions. This is because they would be engaged in these sort of peripheral but none the less necessary initial tasks".

The Clerk

"Question No. 4/74 by the Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P."

Mr. Monk

"I understand that the United Kingdom Government guaranteed the value of the Reserves of the Colony of Hong Kong which were held in Great Britain at the time of the 1972 Exchange Control Act against depreciation of the pounds value - are our Reserves similarly guaranteed?"

Financial Secretary

"Yes. Our reserves are guaranteed under a Sterling Agreement with the United Kingdom Government".

Mr. Monk

"Sir, is that why they keep quite a tight control over our investment policy?"

Financial Secretary

"No Sir. The question of the tight control over our investments is because they are finally responsible for the Colony's finances and this has been so for as long as the Falkland Islands have been a Colony. The Sterling Agreement is relatively new; it is an international currency matter and is therefore to a certain extent secret but it was introduced about 1968".

Mr. Monk

"Thank you".

The President

"Thank you Honourable Financial Secretary".

The Clerk

"Question No. 5/74 by the Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P."

Mr. Monk

"Under the 1972 United Kingdom Exchange Control Regulations we are placed in the Overseas Sterling Area, are we at any disadvantage financially because of this vis-a-vis countries like the Republic of Ireland who are still included in the Scheduled Territories?"

Financial Secretary

"In the present circumstances of the Colony we are not at any financial disadvantage."

Mr. Monk

"Sir, do I understand from the Financial Secretary then that we might be at a disadvantage in the future if some change takes place in our circumstances such as if we exhaust our reserves for instance?"

Financial Secretary

"No I would say that we would not be in any financial disadvantage if we exhausted our reserves but I safe-guarded the reply to the question purely because of the fact that the future of the financial dealings in the Colony could change. I cannot foresee that there will be any change but it may be that one day perhaps we may have some banks or offshore funds here."

Mr. Monk

"Thank you".

The Clerk

"Question No. 6/74 by the Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P."

Mr. Monk

"Sir, I very nearly withdrew this question in view of information but, however, the UK/Argentine Communications Agreement specifies that the UK Government will provide a Shipping Service to this Colony. In the case of St. Helena this is achieved by the UK Government paying a Subsidy to a Shipping Company whose ships pass by and now call monthly. Why was this not done for us thus properly implementing the Agreement and providing us with a decent service".

Chief Secretary

"Sir, you will appreciate I am sure that the arrangements Her Majesty's Government makes with respect to its various Colonies depend entirely on differing local circumstances. While I am not aware whether or not the statement you have made concerning St. Helena is correct, I would point out that the grant of £1 $\frac{3}{4}$ million made recently by Her Majesty's Government for the construction of a permanent airfield at Cape Pembroke is, taking into account the population of this Colony, one of the largest grants of this kind ever made. With regular annual development aid allocations being made in addition to this grant, I am sure you will appreciate that this Colony is being treated with extreme generosity.

The question of shipping services to the Falklands is being kept continuously under review. While it would be pleasant to have more frequent shipping opportunities, the fact must be faced that at present the four sailings a year operated by the Falkland Islands Company from London with calls at Mar del Plata provide all the cargo space needed for our small community. Indeed I am informed by the agents that the vessel normally arrives only 60-70% full. With the weekly air service operating extremely regularly and reliably, there is virtually no demand by passengers for a sea link.

Since the signing of a Communications Agreement in 1971, there have in addition been on average some 5 or 6 extra shipping opportunities operated on an ad hoc basis by Argentine vessels each year. These taken together with the quarterly FIC charter vessel and the calls made by Royal Naval and British Antarctic Survey vessels which carry mail and any priority items, provide the Colony with a service which may not be perfect but which does at anyrate make it difficult to put forward a convincing case for yet more aid from Great Britain.

I would add to this since writing this answer early in December that we now have some information about the St. Helena subsidy and this is a subsidy but it is paid by the St. Helena Government, not by the UK Government".

Mr. Monk

"I thank the Chief Secretary for his answer. What I want to know though was such a plan ever envisaged? The Honourable Chief Secretary has spoken at considerable length and very eloquently and he has dragged all the familiar red herrings about, but the trouble is he and I are not talking about the same subject. I am talking about a shipping service; he is talking about occasional visits of ships; I am talking about a monthly subsidy; he is talking about proposed millions of capital expenditure for our elusive airfield, if we ever get it. Whatever has the fact that the ship can carry all our requirements in any four voyages a year and take all our produce out in four voyages a year got to do with it? If Mr. Buckley.....

Chief Secretary

"I have I am afraid failed to catch your supplementary question".

Mr. Monk

"I want to know, was it ever envisaged? If a ten thousand ton ship was chartered it could do it if it only made a voyage every two years, but it is not a service. Was a subsidy of that sort ever envisaged?"

Chief Secretary

"There has never been any intention that the UK Government should pay the subsidy. The subsidy would always have fallen on this Government".

Mr. Monk

Does not the Honourable Chief Secretary think then that the UK

Government is not complying with the agreement on the communications?"

Chief Secretary

"No, Sir, the UK communications agreement was between the United Kingdom and the Argentine Republic. The Falkland Island Government was not a party to it and as we all know the Argentine Government does not accept the existence of the Falkland Island Government and therefore throughout the communications agreement when the UK Government is specified, this means in most cases the Falkland Islands Government.

Mr. Blake

"Can the Chief Secretary explain why when we are not a party to the communications agreement, yet we are to be saddled with any bills that may arise out of it?"

Chief Secretary

"This, I am afraid is one of the unfortunate facts of life when we belong to a territory under claim, the existence of whose Government is not accepted by one of the parties to the agreement".

Mr. Bowles

"Sir, bearing in mind HMG's extreme generosity for the one and a quarter million pounds airfield, which I feel has yet to be more generous, the joint statement on communications stated that HMG would provide a sailing for cargo and passengers. If this is the present charter vessel, where now is the passenger accommodation?"

Chief Secretary

"The point here is that passengers simply do not want to go by sea. We discovered this very early on in the operation of the service when we had opportunities for passengers to go out by sea. We advertised and got no takers. Subsequent experience with the weekly Fokker Friendship plane has shown that it seems to take out one hundred per cent of those wishing to travel, maybe I should say ninety-nine per cent, and it is simply quite out of the question to provide a sea passenger service for the odd person who does not wish to fly. When there have been shipping passages available they simply have not been taken up".

Mr. Bowles

"Can I assume then that the word 'passengers' is now no longer applicable to the communications agreement?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, I think it possible that if it was considered necessary to amend the communications agreement, up-date it, that the word passenger might well disappear from a new agreement".

The President

"I think that is the position Honourable Willie Bowles. I don't think the word 'passenger' should have been in the original agreement myself, in view of what has happened".

The Clerk

"Question No. 7/74 by the Honourable S. Miller, J.P."

Mr. Miller

"Following upon an urgent meeting of Executive Council in August as our agreement was rapidly required in London, can the Chief Secretary advise whether any oil company at all is interested in building, filling and operating by retail sale fuel supplies for this Colony?"

Chief Secretary

"Yes Sir, the Argentine State Fuel Organisation, YPF, has expressed interest in supplying and marketing the Colony's petroleum requirements."

Mr. Miller

"Thank you. That is the answer to that question but we shall require a little bit more than that - can you tell us to what stage this YPF outfit has got in signing the agreement; to save a further supplementary question can you give us any possible, likely date when they are even going to start work here?"

Chief Secretary

"The agreement could have been signed in the first week in December but for objections which I understand were raised by Council Members at about that time and I was on leave but I understand that you requested that the agreement be held and this was done at the request of the Executive Council of this Colony. As I say, all the drafting was completed and the British Government and the Argentines, were ready to sign in December. It is now I think probably no secret that Executive Council met again yesterday and gave the go-ahead for the agreement to be signed as far as this Colony is concerned. I understand that it is possible that there may be some concern in London from the commercial angle, about the agreement. Certain companies are having second thoughts and possibly delay it. But as far as we are concerned now, as I think you are aware from yesterday, the agreement is ready for signature."

Mr. Miller

"Yes I was aware of that but I did think it might be just as well that everybody else in the Colony should be made aware of it also".

Mr. Blake

"Would the Chief Secretary confirm that as the Argentine Government does not recognise the Falkland Islands, that the oil they are shipping will not be sent to the Falkland in Scotland?"

Chief Secretary

"I think I can certainly confirm that the oil will be consigned to the Islas Malvinas, which are here and not in Scotland".

Mr. Monk

"Can the Chief Secretary tell me what the price policy of YPF is? Do they follow world price increases? Do they automatically increase theirs if world price or prices increase or do they maintain some different policy?"

Chief Secretary

"I think the short answer to that is no I can't, I am not responsible for YFF and I do not know what their price policy is. However, I would make the point that the Argentine produces eighty per cent of its consumption of petroleum products, it only needs to import twenty per cent; this means it has more control over its own petroleum destinies than most other countries; it is not affected by any means so much as Britain, Western Europe, and so on, by the increases which have been imposed by the Arab States recently. It is also a state concern that follows a policy of keeping prices stable as far as it possibly can. Each market fluctuation is not automatically reflected in its sale prices. We should also note I think that the Argentine has been extremely successful in combatting inflation recently; Peron has introduced some extremely firm measures to keep prices firm, and inflation in the Argentine has been running at a lower level I think than virtually anywhere else during the second half of this year. The price of petroleum products was increased early in the year to its present level; it was virtually doubled. For instance when we were first offered diesel oil the price we were offered was 10.4 pence, it is now 22.7 pence, so it has doubled during the year. So I think that we can be reasonably sure, that taking the firm policies of the Peron Government coupled with the fact that there have been steep rises before these prices came in that the prices will remain pretty stable for a reasonable length of time".

Mr. Monk

"Thank you Honourable Chief Secretary, it was more their policy rather than the actual prices; I really wanted to know whether they subsidised the thing or whether they just followed world policy".

Chief Secretary

"Well I don't know the answer to that but in view of the level of prices and the fact that it is home produce, one would guess that any element of subsidisation is very small indeed".

The Clerk

"Question No. 8/74 by Hon. S. Miller, J.P."

Mr. Miller

"Will the Chief Secretary give us an absolute assurance that some pressure is being maintained upon the Overseas Development Administration in regard to the immediate engagement of a third medical officer".

Chief Secretary

"Yes Sir, I can give you that assurance. Following the decision in October by Executive Council, in consultation with members of Legislative Council, that all the Colony's doctors should be stationed in Stanley, a new indent for a third doctor was prepared and despatched to London. In reply to a personal approach from His Excellency the Governor, Doctor Evans, the Overseas Development Administration's Medical Adviser has written in a letter dated 15th November, "We shall now do all we can to recruit your third medical officer".

It is thus hoped that another doctor will be at post before the middle of this year.

Mr. Miller

"Thank you Sir. I note your alteration to the middle of this year - my Order Paper is dated 4th January and on it you say the middle of next year, but I presume you mean this year as you probably wrote this answer in 1973".

Chief Secretary

"That is correct Sir, the date is the date of the meeting of Legislative Council, 4th January, and I did have to write the reply to this question in early December".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Sir I have been rather lucky, I have had three of my supplementaries asked for me but I will get in this one first. Is Government satisfied that this and other advertising is done to our best possible advantage".

Chief Secretary

"Well Sir, it is expensive enough as we know from SFC yesterday when we had to vote another eight hundred pounds to the thousand we have already had to pay for advertising in the current year. All I can say is that it is done through experts in the Ministry in London; it is done with the same machinery as is done in all other territories of which I am aware. The advertisements for technical specialist officers are put primarily in technical specialist magazines so that they come to the attention of the kind of people that we are after and I have no reason to suspect that anything is being done other than in the best possible way".

Mr. Monk

"Sir, with regard to your reply to the first question, don't you think that Dr. Evans' letter infers that before we decided that all three doctors should be in Stanley that they did damn all about trying to get a doctor?"

Chief Secretary

"I think it is no secret that Dr. Evans did not believe that a doctor stationed at Fox Bay would be in our best interests, and the previous indent that had been despatched was as a result of decisions made in this Council, stated quite clearly the doctor will be stationed at Fox Bay. The new indent stated that the doctor will be stationed in Stanley and this is what Dr. Evans and therefore the Secretary of State believe to be the best policy for all the people in this Colony".

Mr. Monk

"Would not the Honourable Chief Secretary agree that until we altered our medical policy they did nothing about trying to recruit a doctor. Don't you think we ought to get a refund of some of that money we voted to pay for their services?"

Chief Secretary

"We can certainly try; if you would like to write the letter for us. I think the point here is that the British Government is paying probably more than half of the cost of our doctors, in the passages, the OSAS element of their salary, and so on, and therefore they must have a very considerable say on these things. They are paying for half our doctor, so they have a considerable say in how we use him".

Mr. Blake

"Sir, will the Chief Secretary please correct his statement in reply to Your Excellency, in his speech of thanks to Your Excellency, and confirm that there were at least two members of this Council who were against the removal of the doctor from Fox Bay?"

Chief Secretary

"The decision to remove the doctor from Fox Bay was made in Executive Council in which I think you were the only member who did not vote in favour of the decision".

Mr. Blake

"This decision was taken in the light of replies from other members of this Council also and the inference in your statement was that only one of the members of this Council, not Executive Council but this Council, opposed any motion of change".

Chief Secretary

"I apologise if I spoke loosely".

The Clerk

"Question No. 9/74 by the Honourable W. R. Luxton".

Mr. Luxton

"Your Excellency, my question was - Has Government taken any further steps towards signing an agreement with a Foreign Oil Company? - I should like to withdraw this question now as it has been answered and all the supplementaries I had have also been answered".

Chief Secretary

"Thank you very much".

The Clerk

"Question No. 10/74 by Hon. R. M. Pitaluga".

Mr. Pitaluga

"What steps are Government taking to implement the recommendations of the Crown Agents Report on inter-island telephone communications?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, this report has been distributed to all Council members and is under study by the government's technical officers. It is intended that it should be discussed both by Executive Council and the development committee of this Council during the coming month. You will be aware that an allocation of some £105,000 has been placed in the Development Plan for expenditure on Telecommunications over the period 1974-1978. You will also be aware that expenditure of the magnitude recommended in the report is a somewhat controversial matter and that certain of your colleagues have expressed themselves as being opposed to the report's implementation".

Mr. Pitaluga

"May I ask what are the present appointments of the technical officers to whom you refer?"

Chief Secretary

"The technical officers we have asked to study the report are the Supervisor of the W/T Station, the Officer-in-Charge of the Posts and Telecommunications Department and the Radio Engineer".

Mr. Pitaluga

"The amounts of one hundred and five thousand pounds stated in paragraph 4(15) of the Development Plan does not agree with the total in the table on page eight, which is the correct figure please? There is a difference of ten thousand five hundred".

Chief Secretary

"I am sorry I have not got page eight whatever that is, with me. The Development Plan of course is the correct one, if by any chance there is a mis-typing, or a miss-addition I am sorry. You are perfectly right, yes, there has been a miss-addition and the figure in the Development Plan is the correct one".

Mr. Pitaluga

"That is one hundred and fifteen thousand five hundred pounds, thank you. Would you agree that an improved camp telephone system is an essential for the new staffing plan for the Medical Department?"

Chief Secretary

"This is some way away from the original question and I would have preferred more time to think about it. Most of the flying doctor requests I would have thought came over the tele-radios but I would certainly agree that improvements to telephones in the Camp are of considerable importance".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Sir, I would just like to thank the Chief Secretary for his replies to my question and supplementaries and to say that I will be referring to this matter again in the Motion for Adjournment".

Mr. Miller

"Yesterday I received another report and I understand it was also passed to yourself and Government Departments. Is it too soon - I am talking about one drawn up locally, to produce some sort of inter-island communications and telecommunications - is it too soon to ask you whether Government are likely to consider, or start to consider it?"

Chief Secretary

"I am afraid I spent all day in various Councils yesterday. I have not seen any report, it no doubt has been delivered to my office, but I am not with you on this one".

Mr. Miller

"Thank you. Well I only received mine yesterday afternoon so there is time enough".

Mr. Bowles

"I might be able to put that slightly differently. Will Government consider suggestions or proposals put forward from technically qualified parties who may be interested in the project?"

Chief Secretary

"Some of our technical friends working in different organisations in the Colony offered to put forward or said they were going to put forward some ideas and I certainly wrote back when this was suggested, I think some six months ago, saying that Government would be delighted to hear of any bright ideas from any interested or disinterested parties. I said that we are well aware that our technical departments are small and perhaps not very much experienced in some of these newer fields, and we shall certainly be most willing to study any reports or proposals put forward from any angles. They will all be fed into the Development Committee who have to make the decisions on this".

Mr. Bowles

"Thank you very much".

The Clerk

"Question No. 11/74 by the Honourable R. M. Pitaluga".

Mr. Pitaluga

"What effect does Government expect the present serious energy shortage to have on these islands, with particular regard to our fuel supplies?"

Chief Secretary

"It is inevitable that the current world fuel crisis will make its effect felt in the Colony. The situation changes from day to day, but it is at present envisaged that the Colony's petrol supplies will be replenished when the 'Annette Danielsen' arrives in late January, and the Colony's diesel oil supplies when a Royal Fleet Auxiliary arrives in late February. Any delay in the arrival of these vessels, or cancellation of their visits, could place us in a very difficult position. The situation is being watched very closely".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Thank you. In the event of either or any of these vessels not getting here, can you give us any indication of how long the present stocks of petrol, gas oil, and avgas will last?"

Chief Secretary

"Yes Sir, from the Government side of things diesel oil supplies will last for some fourteen months, our petrol supplies will last for some five months. On the commercial side I understand the position is very much gloomier, petrol will be exhausted in Stanley in some three or four weeks. However the 'Danielsen' will be here before that time. Diesel oil supplies I understand will last up to about the end of February or early March unless replenished. These refer of course to the commercial stocks in Stanley; I have no idea how much is held in farms in bulk storage installations and in fact how long the farms could last if there was any delay in the arrival of the Fleet Auxiliary".

Mr. Bowles

"Sir, has the Chief Secretary any idea what percentage increase is expected on the present price of gasoil when the new stock arrives?"

Chief Secretary

"Sir, this is a commercial matter. We know that the Arabs have doubled their prices recently; we don't know what the price of the new oil due to arrive on the Royal Fleet Auxiliary will be. We have asked for it; we have not been given any indication. The price has recently gone up from fifteen to thirty-two pence; I have heard mention that it could go up beyond this when the new supply arrives but I have no firm information".

The Clerk

"Question No. 12/74 by the Honourable R. M. Pitaluga".

Mr. Pitaluga

"In view of a Minister's recent ambiguous reply to a similar question in the House of Commons would Government please state exactly what progress and where, has been made towards the construction of the main airfield?"

(This question was answered together with Question No. 3/74)

The Clerk

"Question No. 13/74 by the Honourable L. G. Blake, J.P."

Mr. Blake

"Would the Financial Secretary tell Council of the findings of the Actuarial survey of the OAF fund".

Financial Secretary

"The survey of the Old Age Pensions Fund by the Actuary indicates that any increase in benefits would require a further increase in contributions".

Mr. Blake

"Having received the Actuary's Report since drafting this initial question, I thank the Financial Secretary for his reply, but can he explain why the Actuary paints such a gloomy picture in that, with regard to refunds his figures are very low whereas in 1971/72 three thousand six hundred and eighteen pounds were refunded, which means that the OAF fund itself received approximately four thousand seven hundred pounds in non committed revenue, in other words the corresponding employers' contributions?"

Financial Secretary

"No Sir, not without studying the report further. The point raised by the Honourable Member is very interesting and I will certainly look into this matter and give the Honourable Member a reply in writing".

Mr. Blake

"I thank the Financial Secretary for that reply. Further the Actuary stated in his report that he was discounting any interest levels of over three and a half per cent, would the Financial Secretary not agree with me that the profit on sale of investments might also be included as interest or dividend and that the figure of forty-two thousand which is approximately a fifteen per cent return on investment is rather better than three and a half per cent?"

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, there has been considerable criticism of the Actuary's Report for a number of years now. The Actuary is a highly qualified person; I understand it takes about twelve years to become an Actuary and as far as the details of the Report go I would not like to comment on the technical aspects of the Actuary's Report. However, all the points raised by the Honourable Member are very interesting and we can certainly have a look at them. We will check as far as we possibly can locally, but the Actuary is giving full details of the Fund; he also has the details of investment income at his fingertips and I would say he is in a better position to say than any of us here".

Mr. Blake

"I thank the Financial Secretary for his reply; it is the reply I have received from his predecessor almost word for word. However it is difficult on this Council on a Question and Answer basis to debate the figures and normally we have to do it in Select Committee. There is a further one question that I have for him - would he not agree with me that the figure of ten per cent of the females of this population remaining spinsters is rather high?"

The President

"A good one for the Financial Secretary! "

Financial Secretary

"I am not certain that is a good question for the Financial Secretary! However I must confess that the figure does appear high".

Mr. Blake

"Your Excellency, I have been aining in these questions at the final one - in view of the position and, I still consider, gloomy report of the Actuary, will the Financial Secretary not consider an interim award to the pensioners of these islands on local knowledge because I do not believe the Actuary takes into account all the local figures in that the Fund is moderately healthy despite what he says and the cost to the Fund would be small whereas the alleviation to the pensioners would be exceedingly welcome if it came six months earlier?"

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, as I mentioned in reply to the question raised by the Honourable W. E. Bowles, Government has the matter of a pensions increase on the schedule to be considered very quickly. The fact of not taking the Actuary's advice is something we should be very careful about. We must be absolutely certain of our grounds and I think the best way to resolve this problem is for the West Falkland Actuary to visit me and we could then discuss the technical details".

The President

"He has not had twelve years training".

Mr. Blake

"I thank the Financial Secretary for his reply".

Mr. Bowles

"I have one more question for the Financial Secretary on Old Age Pensions. Would he believe that the Actuary should be consulted if we were to introduce pensions to those few people who have not had any benefit from pensions; who were at the time that they were introduced (I think in 1962) non-contributory pensioners who either did not fully understand at the time when pensions were introduced what the benefits were and refused to take part in it, or refused to accept them, but who now I believe would appreciate them. Would this have to go to the Actuary as well?"

Financial Secretary

"No Sir, this is not a matter for the Actuary because the people to whom the Honourable W. E. Bowles refers have never been in this scheme and therefore we could not pay them from the fund. This would be a matter to come under the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance and it would mean extending the provisions of it. I think it is a very good point; it is a point that has been raised fairly recently by members of the public and I think we should study this very soon in Council. So it is a matter which we will bring to a meeting of the Standing Finance Committee for discussion, probably the next session".

Mr. Bowles

"I would like to thank the Financial Secretary for his reply".

The Clerk

"Question No. 14/74 by the Honourable L. G. Blake, J.P."

Mr. Blake

"Has the Financial Secretary any plans for the revision of Medical fees?"

Financial Secretary

"No Sir. A revision of medical fees was made during the course of the last Budget session. The new fees took effect from 1st July, 1973 and the details were published in the August, 1973 Gazette.

I feel certain that the Honourable Members will appreciate that although frequent reviews of all fees are desirable a further exercise on medical fees so soon after a new scale has been brought into use would not appear justified".

Mr. Blake

"In view of the fact that there is now no medical service in Camp whatsoever except for a quarter of an hour a morning and one six monthly visit, would the Financial Secretary not agree with me that there are strong grounds for abolishing Camp medical fees altogether?"

Financial Secretary

"No Sir, as far as I know there is still a medical service in the Camp and what is more I have heard the medical staff names mentioned on the flight schedules practically every night".

Mr. Blake

"It's alright Sir, the rest can't come as a question".

The President

"You have made your point".

The Clerk

"Question No. 15/74 by the Honourable L. G. Blake, J.P."

Mr. Blake

"Will the Chief Secretary inform council of the Air Service Revenues for the first half of this year, and state whether this shows an increase over the same period last year".

Chief Secretary

"Yes Sir. Air Service revenue for the first 24 weeks of the current financial year, that is to say from June to December, has been £12,554.57.

For the corresponding period last financial year revenue was £10,435.59.

Revenue for the current year thus shows an increase of some £2119 over last year's figure.

Mr. Blake

"In view of the rising costs of maintaining the Air Service and the added load upon the members of the staff, will the Chief Secretary tell the Council whether he considers that the seven day weekly service is still justified in view of the rather small increase in revenue?"

Chief Secretary

"The seven day service I think came in on the 1st of November and therefore the figures produced have little relevance to it".

Mr. Monk

"I understood that the expenditure had increased by twelve thousand pounds. What sort of proportion of that increase is due to November and December?"

Chief Secretary

"We have not yet received the Superintendent of Aviation's application for additional funds; there has been a reference to a figure of twelve thousand but this has not yet been submitted and I am afraid we have not yet had the figures from the department; we have not yet had his revised estimates and I am in no position I am afraid to answer that question".

Mr. Monk

"Thank you".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Sir, taking the increase of two thousand one hundred and nineteen pounds to be the result of the double boarding charge and the double mileage charge for non-residents, the number of passengers carried over this period would appear to be less, is that correct?"

Chief Secretary

"I regret I have not got the figures for these with me; I simply do not know".

MOTIONS

MOTION by the Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P. - "That this House objects strongly to any negotiations or Talks being held with the Argentine Government which are concerned in any way with the transfer of sovereignty of this Colony".

Mr. Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, my reason for introducing this Motion is to clarify the position of this Council with regard to this very important matter. So far this Council has never collectively and publicly gone on record on the subject of sovereignty. I think it is time we did so, in order that the British Government, the Argentine Government and the United Nations should have no doubts whatsoever about our views. Recently there have been strong words spoken in various committees about this matter of the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands and our position has been very ably defended, the British Government's position has been very ably put, in particular by Mr. Jamieson. I thought his speech on the subject was quite extraordinarily good and I think it should have wide publicity so that people can see how well our interests are being looked after. At the same time it has been put to me that by proposing this Motion I might be embarrassing the British Government. I cannot see how, by proposing a Motion which, if it is accepted, would merely confirm this Council's opinion, which is exactly the same as the expressed opinion of the British Government. How by expressing our opinion we can embarrass the British Government in this matter I don't know. I would have thought that we were merely buttressing their attempts on our behalf. In proposing the Motion I do not wish it to be thought that we are opposed to friendly relations with our great neighbour, Argentina, or that we are unmindful of their great generosity and assistance, but surely it should not be necessary to hand over the title deeds of one's house in order to be friendly with one's neighbour. It has also been said that we should talk with Argentina anyway; that by talking we are not committing ourselves in any manner. I fully agree that we should be prepared to talk with Argentina at any time on matters of trade or communications, something like that which does not infringe on our sovereignty in any way. After all, all countries do that sort of thing, but I maintain that if we enter into any talks with Argentina which are concerned in any way with sovereignty; if we start discussing anything connected with sovereignty in Argentina, we are automatically implying that we could be interested in the future in a transfer of sovereignty. Your Excellency, Honourable Members I don't really think I can say very much more in defence of this Motion and I would like to propose to the Council that it be adopted".

The President

"Thank you very much. A seconder of the Motion?"

Mr. Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, when my Honourable friend on my right sent me a note concerning this Motion I wrote back asking him if I could be his seconder. This he agreed to. I feel it is time this matter was discussed publicly. Argentina is our neighbour and is treated as such. If talks must continue to take place then they must be on a neighbourly basis concerning communications. Your neighbour does not have authority over you, nor does he live in your house. At various meetings and in documents I have sighted I am perturbed over emphasis being placed on the interests of the people of the Falkland Islands, rather than the wishes of the people of the Falkland Islands. This is alarming to say the least. The only persons competent to decide on what are the interests of the people of the Falkland Islands are we, the people of the Falkland Islands, ourselves. And therefore it is the wishes of the people of the Falkland Islands which are paramount. Any discussion on sovereignty as far as I am concerned must only take place after a majority vote of the population in the form of a referendum. Sir I beg to second the Motion".

Mr. Blake

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am sure that the feelings of most members of this Council, if not all members of this Council, are with the proposer and seconder of this Motion; basically that we are a British Colony and for the foreseeable future we wish to remain so. I agree that the interests and wishes of the Colony should be taken into account at all times but I feel perhaps that the wording as on the Order Paper of the Motion is perhaps a little limiting and for this reason I would beg leave to introduce an amendment of the Motion for consideration of the House. I feel that talking with the Argentine is important because if you wish to be friends with your neighbour, be he over the fence or staying in your house with you as your guest, if you don't talk to him you won't remain friends very long. I therefore beg to move that the Motion be amended and should read "That this House objects strongly to any negotiations or Talks being held with the Argentine Government without prior full knowledge of the Falkland Islands people, which would involve the transfer of sovereignty of this Colony against the wishes of the inhabitants". I beg to move the amendment".

Mr. Miller

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am pleased to be able to second the Honourable Mr. Blake's amendment. Actually as far as the Motion and the amendment go there is very little difference except that we do bring the people into the amendment. As far as the actual contents are concerned, as he has quite rightly said, the whole of this Council has the same feelings about sovereignty and are not prepared to discuss it in any manner whatsoever. That is the only inhibition I have against talks with the Argentine; talks yes, let us have them if it is about anything but we not only are not prepared or want to talk about sovereignty, it is, as I have said in another place, entirely dishonest because we have our view and they have theirs. I think this amendment goes a little further than the original Motion as it does bring the people of the Falklands into it which they have not been so hitherto and so I am glad to be able to second the amendment".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am on my feet to support the Motion of the Honourable Mr. Monk as it stands. I take no pleasure in doing this and by this I mean that I deplore not the Motion but the necessity for it. When one views our present good and friendly relationship with Argentina and the many benefits it brings these Islands, it is a sad and depressing thing that we who want to maintain our birthright of British Sovereignty have to make public statements of this nature. Thank you. My support is for Mr. Monk".

Mr. Luxton

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I listened with interest to the original motion and the amended version. Of course I knew that this amendment was being proposed beforehand and I have been thinking about it considerably since, but I have decided that I will support the original Motion as it stands. I said earlier today that I was not happy with the way things were going in this Colony and that I thought pressure was being put on us in a behind the scenes sort of fashion, in one way or another. I am sure we are all familiar with this sort of thing and so the amended motion would allow talks to continue on the subject of sovereignty provided the people were told about it. At the present time I don't think we should be talking about sovereignty. In my opinion things are starting to slip a little and I hope that this House can do something to prevent that. So Your Excellency I wish to support the Motion as it stands".

The President

"Thank you very much".

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, it is with great pleasure I think that we have all noticed that all members of the Council are in agreement and of one accord on this most important matter. I am quite sure there is nobody around this table who disagrees with virtually anything that has been said this afternoon. All we are discussing is the most appropriate form of words in which to put down our views as a formal Motion of the Council. I would like to congratulate the proposer of the Motion who has noted something that we should perhaps have noted before, that this Council's formal position on sovereignty had in fact never been tabled and I think that the motives of everyone who has spoken this afternoon are impeccable. I think probably the original Motion is not entirely the same as Her Majesty's Government's oft repeated position on the sovereignty issue, which is simply that Her Majesty's Government would never contemplate the transfer of sovereignty of this Colony against the wishes of its inhabitants. The point that Mr. Blake and Mr. Miller have noted is that the adoption of the Motion would slightly restrict the elbow room which Her Majesty's ministers would have in order to find a solution to this most difficult problem. In politics it is always essential to have as much room for manoeuvre as possible and any unnecessary restricting of this room for manoeuvre is perhaps undesirable. For this reason I rise to support the amended Motion. We have to live with the facts of life as Mr. Miller has said, we have our views and our neighbours across the water have theirs. As civilised people, I think there is probably no reason really why we should not sit down and simply discuss these two views without commitment in any way. We must appreciate that the Argentines have their public opinion problem just as we have to take full note of the views of everyone in this Colony. Your Excellency, I rise to support the Amended Motion".

The Clerk then read to the House the Amended Motion before it, which was afterwards put to the meeting. The Chief Secretary, the Financial Secretary, Mr. Miller and Mr. Blake voted in favour; Mr. Pitaluga, Mr. Monk, Mr. Bowles and Mr. Luxton voted against it.

The Motion in the revised form, which read -

"That this House objects strongly to any negotiations or Talks being held with the Argentine Government without the prior full knowledge of the Falkland Islands people which would involve the transfer of sovereignty of this Colony against the wishes of its inhabitants" was then put formally to Council.

Voting was -

Ayes:

The Chief Secretary
The Financial Secretary
Mr. Miller
Mr. Blake

Noes:

Mr. Pitaluga
Mr. Monk
Mr. Bowles
Mr. Luxton

The President

"The casting vote is cast in favour, the Motion is carried, and I would like to congratulate all Members on the tone of the debate and the lack of heat engendered and the fact that both Motion and Amendment were introduced with the best possible motives and I think it was of a very high standard indeed".

The Motion in the revised form was thus adopted by Council.

MOTION by the Chief Secretary - "That this House recommends that a Select Committee of Elected Members of the Legislative Council shall be appointed by His Excellency the Governor to ascertain the views of the Electorate on the subject of a Change in the Constitution and thereafter to make recommendations to the Legislative Council on the form such constitutional change should take".

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, it is approximately one year since an elected and unofficial member proposed in this House that the time had come for us to consider changes in the constitution and take some steps forward along the normal democratic line of government, which is the British tradition. Since that time officials have been discussing what kind of changes would be acceptable to Her Majesty's Government and to the people of the Colony and this subject has been discussed a number of times in Executive Council. We have now reached the stage when it has been agreed that it would be appropriate for a select committee of Legislative Council Members to be appointed to ascertain the views of the people of this Colony on this most important subject.

It is envisaged that this committee would act like the Constitutional Commissions which are a continuing feature of our Colonial Empire. During my leave I met two - one in the Virgin Islands and one in Montserrat - and that the committee would travel around the Falklands and hold public meetings in all the important centres. The Committee would call for members of the public to give their views on how we should proceed in this matter of constitutional change. The Committee would also encourage people to make written proposals. The Committee would then, all being well, time its meetings and its programme so as to report back to the next meeting of this Council in June, to give the full Council and the public the findings of its discussions and meetings around the Colony. The procedure would then be that these findings would be sent back to the Secretary of State together with the views of His Excellency the Governor and it might be expected that constitutional changes would then take place in time for the next elections which are due in eighteen months time.

I would like to emphasise from the beginning that the purpose of the Committee is to ascertain the views of the people, not to try and impose on the electorate any preconceived views that the Committee may have of its own. It is a trawling exercise to find out what Falkland Islanders want. However, in matters of this kind it is probably necessary and certainly I think useful, to put forward some of the matters that we have been turning over both in correspondence and in Council, so that the Committee and the public meetings which are called can have something to bite on.

One of the first proposals put forward, and I think I am correct in saying that this was where the whole thing started in this Council a year ago, was the proposal that we should proceed along normal democratic lines and abolish nominated members - that all councillors should be elected in the same way as happens in all fully democratic countries. The arguments in favour of this move I think are that nomination is out of date; it smacks of paternalism, smacks of "Big Brother knows best" and I think it could be said there are no special interests here which need special representation achieved by nomination. Against the abolition of nominated members perhaps the foremost argument is that nomination can bring on to the Councils valuable experience, expertise, counsel, advice from men who would not otherwise have stood for election, or not been available or not possibly even been qualified for election, and that the process of nomination ensures that the services of a man of this kind, can be made use of.

The second proposal that has been tossed around is that Legislative Council and Executive Council should be amalgamated into one single Governing Council which would operate mainly in this Chamber, in public, but occasionally in matters in which confidentiality is essential it would operate in private. Arguments in favour of this:- we are a very small Colony, we have a small Civil Service to do all the work for two councils, Legislative Council and Executive Council and previously a Town Council, and this places a considerable burden on a small Secretariat. The production of all these papers, the writing of all the position papers takes up a great deal of time. To reduce labour, to streamline the bureaucracy it would help to have one single Governing Council instead of two councils. Then there is the argument that under the present system too much perhaps is done behind locked doors in Executive Council, much of which could perfectly reasonably and easily be done in public in this Chamber. Then there is the argument that the two councils tend sometimes to become rivals to one another and there are at the moment so many different categories of councillors - elected Legislative Council members and nominated Legislative Council members, elected Executive Council members and appointed Executive Council members, that we seem to have many different factions and categories of members, not always pulling together; sometimes acting in rivalry and when disagreement occurs sometimes the easy way out is taken. Nothing is done, when in fact something should have been done, and the matter could have been thrashed out in one single body and a final deciding vote taken with action then proceeding from that vote. We have noted in the past that when really important matters have come up, the practice has arisen for joint meetings of Executive and Legislative Council to be held and from these, recently at any rate, have stemmed all important decisions. The present system of Executive and Legislative Council of course is the American system of checks and balances and we all know from reading the papers that sometimes this system is very useful, very good, very democratic, but sometimes it means that stalemate is reached, the President cannot get the legislation through that he wants and the process of government is stymied. Against this proposal to amalgamate the two councils into one, comes the whole experience that has been gathered in a number of other territories where the kind of arguments that I have just been giving have been thought through and followed and a single Governing Council has been established. I have served in two of these territories and on each occasion this system has not been successful for a variety of different reasons and there has been a reversion later on to a system of two Councils. Therefore we would find considerable opposition in high places, from the Secretary of State, to a suggestion that we should revert to a single Council. It has been found that a single Council becomes liable to criticism that after a decision has been reached in confidential executive session then the open legislative session tends to be treated too much as a rubber stamp. It has been found that members sometimes speak from one side of their mouth on the same issue on one occasion and from the other side on another occasion and life becomes exceedingly difficult; and that the system does not tend to foster the essential principle of collective responsibility and proper regard for confidentiality.

Then there is the proposal that an upper age limit should be imposed for councillors. Sixty-five is an age that has been mentioned. The arguments in favour of this I think are that it would perhaps encourage younger people to come forward, to stand for Council. The arguments against are probably mainly that it would restrict unduly in a small community the choice of suitable candidates.

Then there is the proposal that Civil Servants should be permitted to seek election, to take a seat on the Councils or Council. This is permitted in some territories. The arguments in favour are again that it allows the best use to be made of available talent in a small community. The arguments against are that it inevitably imposes difficulties of discipline and confidentiality. It is not easy for a head of department to have a senior clerk who is a Legislative Council member. However it can and has been made to work in some territories.

Then there is the proposal that membership of the Council or Councils should be increased. The select committee will be asked to provide and produce detailed recommendations on what form of representation it feels is appropriate if the normal democratic principle of proportional representation is followed and we avoid of course having too large a Council. Then mathematically on a basis of population this would bring us to four Stanley members and three Camp members. The committee will therefore have to consider this very carefully; also the system of election, particularly for multiple member constituencies, whether Stanley is to be divided up into constituencies or the whole of Stanley is to return three, four, five members. These are the kind of matters on which the committee will have to put forward firm recommendations based on the views of the population, the views of the people as given to the committee at its public meetings, or through written representations.

Then finally a proposal has been made that deposits payable by candidates should be reduced or removed. The argument in favour of doing this is, I think, that deposit paying may have deterred some people from standing as a candidate and it might be said to favour the richer element in the population. The argument against this is that it might encourage non-serious candidates as a result of a heavy night at the "Glue Pot", and so perhaps split the vote!

It is always a favourite pastime to criticise the Government and possibly in the Falklands this is indulged in more than in some other places, so I would like to point out that here now is the opportunity for the public to tell the select committee what kind of government it wants. Here is the opportunity that many people have been waiting for I think. It is often said that there is too much political apathy in the Colony, that when elections are held very few candidates come forward, very few people bother to vote, very few people bother to attend meetings. The result of this is that things perhaps do not proceed as one would like to think that they should do. So now the public, the inhabitants of this Colony have a chance to tell the committee exactly how they think government should be constituted and what constitutional change is needed. I hope many will take this opportunity. Mr. Chairman, I beg to move the Motion."

Mr. Miller

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would first of all like to congratulate the Chief Secretary on his magnificent peroration and expertise in telling us all the details and it leaves me with virtually nothing to say at all except to make my own personal suggestion on the composition of this select committee. He at an early stage in his speech said that he thought preconceived views were not necessary when talking about the public. The firm recommendations which he made afterwards will be very necessary because people must see something on paper, as to the sort of ideas this committee is going to think about, so that they will not waste too much time. There is really nothing for me to add; I would merely suggest in my turn and I am willing to be shot down, that the committee could be comprised of the four elected members with an official chairman".

Mr. Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as the Honourable Mr. Miller has said the Honourable Chief Secretary has described in great detail what the duties of the committee are going to be, so I am not going to go into that. I am just merely going to say briefly what I consider should be; I think the Select Committee should consist of all elected members and be chaired by the Honourable Chief Secretary who should have a casting vote. I don't consider nominated members should be on the Committee. The reason I suggest that the Honourable Chief Secretary should be Chairman is that I think it fairly evident that the committee is going to need quite a lot of expertise when it comes to proposing a new constitution and rather than have to run back and forth to the Honourable Chief Secretary saying 'How do we do this chum?', it would be much easier to have him present. Since I consider that Legislative Council should be completely separate from Executive Council, and with no representation whatsoever on Executive Council, for the reason that I think that if you have Legislative Council Members on Executive Council you tend to get a decision behind closed doors and members are already committed in their views when they come to Legislative Council and it inhibits the debate in fact. I don't consider that any Member of Executive Council who is not presently a member of Legislative Council should be on the committee. I am really interested in the suggestion put forward that civil servants should be allowed to stand for election and I would like to see that happen. Some of our most able and patriotic citizens are amongst the civil service and with our small population I think we are losing a lot of talent by not having them on Legislative Council. There are obviously considerable difficulties in arranging this because it is obviously rather difficult for a serving civil servant to get up and strongly criticise some Government department but I am told that these sort of things can be arranged. So I would like to support the Motion and these are briefly my views on the subject".

The President

"Thank you very much".

Mr. Luxton

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am very glad to see this Motion coming forward. I have always felt that all Members of Council should be elected. I see the Motion is that we recommend that Your Excellency should appoint a select committee. The Honourable Mr. Monk has expressed his views on how the committee should be constituted and I entirely agree with him. With all the travelling that is to be done, it further occurs to me that that just makes a Beaver load! I wish to support the Motion".

Mr. Blake

"Your Excellency, I would like to rise to support the Motion. As the other Members were, I am delighted to see the first public moves towards our new constitution and as the other fellows have had a go at sticking their necks out and saying what they would like to see, I would like the chance also. I don't agree with the Honourable Member on my left-hand side; I think it would be a pity if this Colony was subject to two completely separate Councils. I think the one Council idea is a far preferable one, where all work is carried out in public except in matters of state security or where there are problems dealing with individual persons which could not be discussed publicly, and I feel that this system would remove much of the bias in this Colony which feels that so much of our business is carried on behind closed doors. Your Excellency, I would like to support the Motion".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I won't take Council's time by going through the pros and cons of the advantages of one type of Council against another but I would like to say that I support the Honourable Chief Secretary's Motion and I am fully in favour as a Nominated Member of Legislative Council, of this Committee consisting of elected members only. Your Excellency I support the Chief Secretary's Motion".

The President

"Thank you".

Mr. Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am the last one to stand up; I too am in favour of this. I dare say obtaining sufficient candidates to stand for election may prove difficult, but we had four when we wanted two members, so if we need four members we may get eight standing, I hope so. I think now the public interest is at its peak and I think that by the time the next public elections are due you will get the people to stand. I am much in favour of the Motion".

The President

"Well like our other Motions there seems to be general agreement on this Motion and the Motion is 'That the House recommends that a Select Committee of elected members of the Legislative Council shall be appointed by His Excellency the Governor to ascertain the views of the electorate on the subject of the change in the constitution, etc.' And as was suggested by the Honourable Adrian Monk, that the Honourable Chief Secretary should be the Chairman. I think that would be wise; there is a certain degree of expertise required and at all times we will be able to get the assistance of the office back home. They have had experience of framing constitutions and changing constitutions for hundreds of years and they are still at it. So there is a vast amount of material available. I have a completely open mind, I have seen the single Council system work, I have seen the double council system work and a lot depends on individual territories and on the individuals concerned, and whatever constitution finally comes out of the wash, ultimately it depends on the members and the quality of the members to make it work. And I have great pleasure in nominating the Chief Secretary, who so ably introduced this Motion, to be Chairman of the committee, with the four elected members; and I would suggest that there will be quite a lot of secretarial work involved in this, organising meetings and travelling, and I think that Mr. Browning the Clerk should be the Clerk to the Committee. Thank you very much".

A MOTION for the adoption of the Standing Finance Committee Report for the period May 1973 to December 1973 was put by the Financial Secretary. The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and carried.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

THE INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members will recall that the Bill to implement certain proposals made by Messrs. Comben and Waller for amending the Income Tax Ordinance was taken only to the first reading in May as Honourable Members wished to have time to consider the proposals further. Following the meeting the Unofficial Members of Legislative Council reported to the Government that they had met informally and agreed to the Comben and Waller proposals unanimously, but made representations for the following additional adjustments to be made -

That the maximum of £400 for earned income relief should be raised to £500;

That the deduction for a female relative taking charge of children should be raised from £50 to £100;

That the deduction for maintenance of a dependent relative should be raised from £50 to £100, and that the income limit of this person, for the deduction to apply, should be raised from £100 to £200;

That the deduction for children resident in the Colony should be raised from £100 to £130 and for children educated overseas raised from £125 to £150.

The Bill now before Council includes provision for these adjustments besides incorporating the Comben and Waller proposals included in the original Bill, which are -

Increasing the personal allowance of £150, to which everybody is entitled, to £230 and the allowance of £130 for a wife to £180;

Increasing the income limit up to which old age relief applies from £500 to £600;

Replacing the existing tax scale with the following new scale for the purpose of replacing from higher incomes the loss of tax from increases in the allowances and also to raise further revenue -

On the first £500 of chargeable income	15%
On the next £500 " " "	20%
" " " £500 " " "	25%
" " " £1000 " " "	30%
" " " £1000 " " "	35%
" " " £1000 " " "	40%

and on the excess over £4500 45%.

Besides these amendments to the Income Tax Ordinance the Bill also seeks to increase the rate of company's tax from thirty to forty per cent and for the abolition of profits tax.

The Bill also proposes an amendment to Section 19 of the Ordinance for the removal of the limitation of remuneration of directors in the case of director-controlled companies, other than those directors resident abroad.

Before moving the first reading of the Bill, I would just like to illustrate the effect on sample individual earned incomes, applying the new allowances and rates as compared with the corresponding tax under present law -

For instance a person with an earned income of £500, a single person, who is now paying £18.60 will be paying slightly more - £23.40;

For a married person who is paying £5.60 will not be paying any tax;

For a person with an income of £800, a single person, will be paying £59.40 as opposed to £48.90;

A married man without children will be paying 40p more;

A married person with one child will be paying £12.90 instead of £19.60; and a married person with two children who was paying £9.60 under the old scale will not be paying any tax;

A person on £1000, a single person, will be paying £86.20 instead of £72.90;

A married person will be paying £3 additional tax;

A married person with one child will be paying less tax, previously they would have paid £39.50, now they are paying £36.90;

And a married person with two children will be paying £17.40 as opposed to £27;

And a married person with three children would have been paying £15.60 but will not be paying any tax under the new proposals.

I think that illustrates the taxes on lower incomes and I do not think there is anything that tax-payers in the higher brackets would have missed working out in their own cases. I will, when it comes to the committee stage, propose a minor amendment for the purpose of clarification and I now beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Chief Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The following Members addressed Council, namely -

Mr. Blake

"Your Excellency, before we start the debate on the finer points of the Motion, I would like to clarify one point that may have been missed by people who will listen to this session at a later date - to reiterate the phrase of the Financial Secretary when he said in quoting the tax payable on various incomes that these were chargeable incomes which is the income after deductions allowed. It is not the total wage packet. Thank you Sir".

Mr. Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the Bill; I would like to draw attention to the matter of Section 8 Subsection b(ii) and Subsection c concerning the biannual valuation of things like houses and light and all that sort of thing where the occupant gets such free and I was going to propose an amendment which I thought would provide a safeguard in this respect so that these could not be arbitrarily increased, but the Honourable Financial Secretary pointed out to me that a safeguard was always there. I had not brought my copy of the ordinance up to date obviously. But with regard to this, the valuations of these sort of things, in the United Kingdom they adopt rather a different standard from us and if it is common practice to provide accommodation for many years to an employee for a certain job, there is virtually no tax payable, the valuation is virtually nil and also if it is necessary in a certain class of trade for the employee to live in a certain house or place the same applies. In the United Kingdom they do tax the valuation for your heat, light and that sort of thing, but they make very large reductions for old houses and places of that nature which require far more heating than the occupant would use if he could live in the house of his choice. I think these sort of things should be taken into account when valuing these items out here. They are very often not so much perks, but in order to get a particular job you have jolly well got to go and live there. I beg to support the Motion".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I will confine my remarks to the Bill as it stands before the House. I am mainly in favour of the Bill but opposed to paragraph 7 sub-paragraph a. of this Bill; it seeks to amend Section 21 of the principal ordinance. My particular objection is to the upper limit of personal income being as high as 45 per cent (a) because I believe that level of taxation to be unnecessarily high for these islands and (b) because it is 5 per cent more than the new rate of company tax. To me it seems wrong. I beg to move that lines 6 and 7 of Sub-paragraph a. be deleted and the words 'and the remainder of chargeable income: 40 percent' might be substituted for line 6. Sub-paragraph (b) of this same paragraph 7 seems to me to put a heavy burden on small companies, under the amendment which abolishes profits tax a company with a chargeable income of £2000 will now pay £800 tax instead of £600. Thank you Sir".

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, the point raised if I did hear the Honourable Elected Member for the West Falkland correctly, I believe he did say that I had quoted 'chargeable income'. This is not so, this is the full income. To get the position straight, and look into the matter raised by the Honourable Mr. Pitaluga, I would like to suggest that this Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House, purely for details before we go any further."

This was seconded by the Chief Secretary.

The President then appointed the Chief Secretary, the Financial Secretary, and all Unofficial Members to be Members of the Select Committee, with Mr. J. P. Jones, the Acting Registrar Supreme Court to assist with legal advice and any necessary legal drafting.

On reporting back from Select Committee the Financial Secretary said:

"Your Excellency, the Select Committee appointed by you to consider the details of this Bill have met and consider that the Bill is now suitable for further progress through the Council, but they have requested a study of the possibilities of introducing a scale for companies with small profits. This will be undertaken shortly and I will report back at a future meeting regarding this matter."

The Bill was then considered in Committee. During the Committee stage, Clause 7(a) of the Bill was amended to read -

(a) in subsection (1) by deleting the words and figures from "On every £" to the figure "30p" and substituting the following -

"On every pound of the first £500 of chargeable income	15%
" " " " " next £300 " " "	20%
" " " " " " £500 " " "	25%
" " " " " " £1000 " " "	30%
" " " " " " £1000 " " "	35%
" " " " " " £1000 " " "	40%
" " " " " remainder " " "	45%

The Council then resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH (AMENDMENT) BILL

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this is a very brief amending ordinance which it is intended should bring up to date our Public Health Ordinance on two small but quite important matters. First of all it is proposed to repeal Part 2 and this provides for the compulsory vaccination of children. I am advised that it is now no longer normal medical practice for mass compulsory vaccination of children to be undertaken. There have always been a very small percentage of deaths as a result of small-pox vaccination of children. This was an acceptable risk when small-pox itself was the scourge that it used to be. I am advised now that the slight death rate from the vaccination in fact is a higher risk than the disease itself, and that therefore compulsory small-pox vaccination for children has been discontinued in most countries. That is the first effect of this amending ordinance. The second effect is the repeal of Part 4 (a) and the First Schedule and this deals with tuberculosis particularly tuberculosis certificates. Again this previous enactment harped back to the days when tuberculosis was widespread and serious. The provision for requiring a certificate, X-ray certificate, of course referred to the prevalence of tuberculosis outside the Colony, in the country from which the visitor was coming, and I am advised that nowadays this is not necessary. Tuberculosis both in Europe and in South America where the vast majority of our visitors come here from, has now only a very small incidence and the possession of a certificate of clearance, X-ray certificate, is now no longer necessary. Your Excellency, I beg to move the first reading of the Bill".

The Financial Secretary seconded, and the Bill was read for the first time.

On further Motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time. The Bill then passed through the Committee stage. After Council had resumed, the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE MARRIAGE (AMENDMENT) BILL

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this is again a very small, tidying up ordinance following on our budgetary policy. It is simply making it more expensive to get married. A new schedule is put in with a new table of fees. The previous table of fees goes back many years and made a mockery of marriage; now it is slightly more expensive, not excessively so. The point has been made, I understand; it was made to me as I walked into Council, that there may be some objection on the part of the ministers to receiving fees. I was slightly surprised to hear this but of course there is no reason why the minister should have to pocket the money; it is not mandatory that he should have to take his fee if he does not want to. The public purse can be sixty or fifty pence the richer! Your Excellency, I beg to move the Motion".

Mr. Monk seconded, and the Bill was read for the first time. After a further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The following Members then addressed Council:

Mr. Luxton

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish to oppose this Motion. I can't see any reason whatsoever for making marriage more expensive; it is expensive enough as it is! If by some chance both halves of the married couple are working our present income tax law discriminates viciously against them. They are taxed on the joint income, not on their separate incomes. I really cannot see any reason at all for these exorbitant charges which are being proposed under this Ordinance, so I intend to oppose it".

Mr. Blake

"Your Excellency, I cannot honestly support my Honourable friend from the West Falklands. I think it is good value for money, but would like to suggest that perhaps at a future date, we might consider an amendment to this Ordinance whereby an abatement would be allowable where you Sir, or your successor, should deem it advisable that senior government servants have wives! "

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage. Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and was passed by a majority vote.

THE LAND (AMENDMENT) BILL

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this is I think and hope the last of our small tidying up little Bills following on the budget and our new budgetary policy. It is simply a new schedule to the Land Ordinance putting forward increases in the various fees, charges, made under the Land Ordinance for registration, conveyances, searches, Crown Grants etc. As we have said so many times before the previous schedule of charges was grossly out of date; dating back many years and was scarcely covering the cost of the piece of paper which was being issued in the form of a licence. The new schedule is making quite considerable increases; brings the charges up to £2, £5 and so on and brings it more into the twentieth century and more realistic and does at least cover administrative costs. Your Excellency I beg to move the Motion".

Mr. Pitaluga seconded, and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage.

After Council resumed, the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE ESTATE DUTY (AMENDMENT) BILL

Financial Secretary

"Your Excellency, in the report on the public finances, Messrs. Comben and Waller drew attention to the low rates of Estate Duty in the Colony and considered that the rates should be considerably increased and that the opportunity should be taken of changing from the present system by which rates apply for the whole estate, apart from the first five thousand pounds, to the United Kingdom system of charging increasing rates on successive slices of the estate, on the same lines as the income tax system. The Bill to amend the Estate Duty Ordinance now being introduced includes this system of charging and a slightly amended version of the Comben Waller Estate Duty schedule of rates. The following rates are proposed -

On the first £10,000	Nil
On the next £5,000	15 per cent
On the next £5,000	20 per cent
On the next £5,000	30 per cent
On the next £5,000	40 per cent
and on the excess over £30,000	50 per cent

Provided there is no agricultural property the amounts payable on sample estates, at the rates proposed in the Bill, compared with the duty payable at the present rates are as follows -

An estate of £15,000 would attract duty of £750 compared with £500 at the rates under present law;

An estate of £30,000 will attract £5,250 compared with £2,000;

And £40,250 will be paid if the estate reaches £100,000 compared with £9,500 under current law.

The Bill also takes into account the proposal to increase the period prior to death during which certain gifts inter vivos are included in the estate, from three to five years. I have observed that the published bill includes the repeal of Section 6 b, which of course is not the intention, as can be seen under the Objects and Reasons, and I will propose an amendment in the committee stage. I beg to move the first reading of the Estate Duty Bill".

The Chief Secretary seconded, and the Bill was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time. Mr. Bowles then addressed Council, saying -

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, Estate Duty is not a familiar study to me and I find it difficult to grasp the working principles behind the fixing of the values of land and quite naturally farm land, which I am quite unfamiliar with. The proposed duty ratio climbs slower than that used by the United Kingdom but the starting point is higher. In all fairness to justice I would like to propose that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House for collective study".

The Financial Secretary formally moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House. The Chief Secretary seconded.

The President appointed the Chief Secretary, the Financial Secretary, and all Unofficial Members of the House to be Members of the Select Committee, with Mr. J. P. Jones, the Acting Registrar Supreme Court, to assist with legal advice and any necessary legal drafting.

On reporting back from Select Committee, the Financial Secretary said:-

"Your Excellency, the Estate Duty Bill we find is very comprehensive and it has in its present form, we feel, possible far-reaching effects on the local companies and other owners resident in the Colony and Honourable Members have agreed that they would wish this Bill to be withdrawn until a further study can be made of the implications. I beg to move that the Bill be withdrawn".

Leave to withdraw the Bill was given.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die".

Financial Secretary

"I beg to second the Motion".

Mr. Pitaluga

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, following on my Question No. 10/74 of this morning I wish to draw the attention of Your Excellency and Honourable Members to the urgent need for improvement and extension of our telecommunications and broadcasting services in a scheme which will embrace the Camp and Stanley alike. It is understandable that anyone who has read the Crown Agents report would be horrified at the estimated total cost of their scheme and we can be sure that if we embarked on its implementation immediately it would cost double the estimated total by completion date, some five years hence. What would we have for the money? - a more extensive communications network set up with new equipment certainly, but one which would offer little improvement to the services provided; virtually no privacy for subscribers; an extensive set up which would be costly and cumbersome to maintain; in all a scheme which was out of date when the report was written. Our existing equipment in Stanley and the Camp is old in years and fashion and long overdue for replacement, but it works thanks to the maintenance skill of our engineers. The age of this equipment and the requirements of international law dictate that it must be replaced very soon but with what? Something which is new and satisfies the law but is old fashioned and inadequate - I hope not. A thoroughly modern and efficient scheme has been shown and explained to me and I understand to all Members of Council; this scheme which provides everything the other lacks, plus more in the way of built-in provision for additional services, could be constructed, installed and maintained by people who are already in these islands and who were overlooked in the Crown Agents report which stresses the lack of a suitable maintenance crew. I refer to the ESRO communications experts who have designed this new scheme and who would be available to us here on the spot if we for once moved quickly. The scheme as proposed could in the main be completed in four years instead of the five estimated in the Crown Agents plan and the total cost is estimated at two hundred thousand pounds, or slightly less than two-thirds of the Crown Agents estimate when their report was prepared. The capital expenditure budget for 1973-78 allocated one hundred and fifteen thousand five hundred pounds for telecommunications development, plus another eight thousand for broadcasting equipment. These combined figures would hardly mark the surface of the Crown Agents proposals even if we started them tomorrow, but it is more than sixty per cent of the amount required for the scheme submitted by Mr. Eric Ward and Mr. David Hardy. The Crown Agents plan dated December 1972 called for a total expenditure of nearly three hundred and twenty six thousand pounds which is entirely for internal telecommunications, in other words Camp telephone lines and excluding broadcasting. The Ward/Hardy plan calls for only a hundred and forty thousand pounds for that part of the programme. Your Excellency, Honourable Members, we have here the means to do something quickly and positively about our internal communications and broadcasting with built in provision for the link-up with outside houses and vision broadcasting in the fifth year. We also have in the Islands the experts to do the job and maintain it when complete. Unfortunately, thanks to our customary tardiness and our penchant for not giving much encouragement or anything to anyone, we are soon to lose one of the designers of this new scheme along with his large family, a fact which is much more to be regretted in view of the gloomy but nevertheless true remarks which have been made about our dwindling population. In addition we stand to lose an excellent basis for a communications centre, the ESRO building, tower and stand-by generator all I believe on Government ground which must be cleared under the closing down clause of the contract. Surely we have here an excellent opportunity to make life in these Islands easier and more attractive for people who may be considering the move and at the same time prevent the departure of a large group of experts with their families who otherwise will be gone in six months. These people like the life here and would like to stay and concentrate their expertise on our problems. They have already done the Colony a great service though this is yet to be appreciated. I implore this Government to act now and have this new scheme examined without unnecessary delay, with a view to implementing its exciting proposals at the earliest possible opportunity. Your Excellency I beg to support the Motion for Adjournment".

The President

"Thank you very much. Mr. Blake, I don't know whether we should allow you to speak!"

Mr. Blake

"Perhaps Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I should speak now. I would like to support the plea of the Honourable Member on my right for quick action on this proposal regarding a telecommunications service, in that here anyway we have got a little bit of new thinking. There has been a certain amount of amusement during the day at the thought of this Council sitting for evermore, or at least two more years, but if a day or two in continuous session would bring thoughts to bear and some new light on the problems which we are having such great difficulty in getting to grips with, I think it is time well spent. I wish to oppose the Motion for Adjournment".

Mr. Bowles

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too wish to support Mr. Pitaluga in his presentation of this new venture which is on our door step, I don't think we should let it slip by unnoticed. If I may have my final say on the Argentine issue, what my Honourable friend the Chief Secretary said in his speech to the amendment did sound very convincing indeed and one can admire his skill and vocabulary, but I feel no matter how much smooth talk is used on the subject, it still remains a matter for the people for whom we are responsible to give their full consent before talks on sovereignty or transfer of sovereignty can take place. No constituent of mine has openly declared that we should talk, hence my reason for seconding my good friend's Motion in its original text. As an elected Member it is my humble duty first to obtain an assurance from my constituents before full democratic justice can take its course. Thank you Sir".

Mr. Luxton

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have been most impressed by the report which the Honourable Mr. Pitaluga referred to. I don't know enough about it to pass an opinion but I would certainly second his plea for as rapid action as possible to look into it and see whether it has any real possibilities. It is certainly an improvement on many of the recent actions of this Government, which seems to be devoted towards chopping Camp services as far as possible. I am harping on once more about the medical and the education service and the so called flying doctor service. As a protest at the abysmal way in which the Camp is being treated in these two particular fields I too wish to oppose the Motion for Adjournment. Thank you Sir".

The President

"Thank you very much".

Mr. Miller

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, first of all I am very glad that the Honourable Mr. Pitaluga brought up this matter of this new scheme for telecommunications. The only thing I am a bit disturbed about is that one of the authors of this scheme will be away from the Colony in seventy-two hours. I don't know how that affects it or whether Mr. Pitaluga knows any more about it. Anyway we can't study it and most of us have only just got it and just read it; in fact some of us have not read it, but so far for that one. Where I am now is I see that some people want to oppose the Motion for Adjournment and I want to go home! Will somebody tell me what I can do?"

Mr. Monk

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have not got anything really constructive to say at all except that I would like to support Mr. Pitaluga's suggestion that the scheme that has been put forward be examined urgently so that we know whether it is something we should go ahead with. On the face of it, it seems a very worthwhile proposal but I don't know if any of us have had sufficient time really to study it and I think probably if I studied it for the next month I would not be much wiser. Anyway, I would, I am afraid, like to oppose the suggestion by the Honourable Member on my right that we should not adjourn. I really cannot see that this useless Council, which we were considered earlier, would do anything by just sitting here for the next two years! Thank you".

The President

"Thank you very much".

Chief Secretary

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, it falls to me to wind up my Motion for the Adjournment which I sincerely hope will be accepted. I must say I feel rather left out of things, I seem to be the only one who has not got a sight of this new Ward/Hardy proposal. I shall try very hard to lay my hands on a copy first thing on Monday morning and read it, and I can assure Honourable Members that it certainly will be studied as soon as possible. We are always in difficulties with reports, and I understand this is a technical, comprehensive, thorough going report; we are here always in difficulties in that we have not got technical advisers and expertise on the ground to give us second thoughts, advice, on these matters. However we will certainly do our best to move things along as quickly as possible. In reply to Mr. Pitaluga's question on the Lefevre report, I did say that the Development Committee would meet during this month in order to consider the subject of telecommunications and I certainly have every intention of fulfilling that undertaking and trying to get Members of the Development Committee in to do this. So I certainly hope that we shall be able to go ahead as quickly as Members hoped, but we must realise that sometimes it is true to say more haste less speed on something that is to cost two hundred thousand pounds; we don't want to go rushing into it in case there may be snags. We do want to get it thoroughly looked over by other experts because as we well know experts quite often disagree amongst themselves. So we will certainly process this as thoroughly and quickly as we can.

Finally I am afraid we must end on a rather sad note. We have talked in this Council and elsewhere a number of times, on a number of occasions about our difficulties over recruitment. We have heard that we unfortunately have a rather bad reputation back in England and that some of our Civil Servants seem to feel they have been treated somewhat less than generously. They also often suffer from the local sport which is to criticise the Government. I am therefore sorry to have to say that as a result I believe of remarks made this morning, which have turned out to be the last straw that has broken the camel's back, that Dr. Cox has resigned and will be leaving the Colony on the 22nd January. He will be leaving us with one doctor. In the final paragraph of his letter of resignation which was handed to me at lunch time, he says: "this decision has had to be made because it would not be possible to effectively carry out my duties in the Colony in the present climate of distrust in the Camp medical services. I feel that perhaps a doctor appointed in my place may find it possible to provide a service more pleasing to some of the elected representatives and people in the Colony".

Your Excellency, I propose the adjournment of this Council sine die".

The President

"Thank you, Honourable Members I have told the doctor concerned that nothing that was said this morning was said in a personal way; that it was a general comment; more of an attack on myself and the Chief Secretary than on the medical services as such; and like Sam Rainbow that famous speaker of the American Senate:

The meeting is adjourned. All those in favour? Carried unanimously. Thank you".

The House then adjourned sine die.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Further to amend the Immigration Ordinance
1965. Title.

(19) Date of commencement.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows — Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Immigration (Amendment) Ordinance 1974, and shall be read as one with the Immigration Ordinance 1965, hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance. Short title.
(10 of 1965)

2. The principal Ordinance is amended by the insertion after section 21 of the following new section — Insertion of new section
21A.

“Clearance certificates.

21A. (1) Upon the application of any person about to leave the Colony, if the Commissioner of Income Tax is satisfied —

- (a) that he is not liable to pay any tax; or
- (b) that all tax payable by him has been paid; or
- (c) that satisfactory arrangements have been or will be made for the payment of all tax that is or may become payable by him;

the Commissioner of Income Tax shall furnish such person with a certificate that he is not under any liability to pay, or to supply security for the payment of any tax and every such certificate shall remain in force until such date as shall be specified therein.

(2) No person shall be permitted to board any ship or aircraft leaving the Colony unless he produces to the Immigration Officer a certificate issued to him by the Commissioner of Income Tax under this section and still in force at the date of departure of such ship or aircraft.

(3) This section shall not apply to any person under the age of fifteen years or whose stay in the Colony has not been longer than three months.”

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to prevent persons leaving the Colony without having discharged their obligations under the Income Tax Ordinance (Chapter 32).

Ref. IMM/10/1.

A Bill for
An Ordinance

Title. Further to amend the Income Tax Ordinance
(Chapter 32).

Date of commencement. (19)

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 3) Ordinance 1974 and shall be read as one with the Income Tax Ordinance (Chapter 32) hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance.

Repeal and replacement of section 13. 2. Section 13 of the principal Ordinance is repealed and replaced by the following —

"Allowance of trade losses.

13. Where the amount of a loss incurred in the year preceding any year of assessment in any trade, business, profession or vocation carried on by a person either solely or in partnership is such that it cannot be wholly set-off against his income from other sources for the same year, the amount of such loss shall to the extent to which it is not allowed against his income from other sources for the same year be carried forward and set-off against what would otherwise have been his chargeable income for subsequent years in succession until the amount of such loss is exhausted."

OBJECTS AND REASONS

To abolish limitations applicable to trade losses. The proposed section permits a business loss which cannot be set-off against income from other sources to be carried forward and set-off in subsequent years in succession until the loss is exhausted. It is considered that a business should be taxed on its net profits over a period of years without any artificial restrictions.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Enacting clause.
Falkland Islands, as follows —

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Income Tax (Amend- Short title.
ment) (No. 4) Ordinance 1974 and shall be read as one with the Income Tax Ordinance (Chapter 32) hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance.

2. Section 2 of the principal Ordinance is amended by Amendment of section 2. deleting the definitions of "The Commonwealth" and "Commonwealth income-tax".

3. Subsection (3) of section 22 of the principal Ordinance is Repeal and replacement of section 22 subsection (3).
repealed and replaced by the following —

"Double taxation relief:
definition.

(3) In this section the expression 'double taxation relief' means any credit which is allowed against income tax chargeable under this Ordinance by virtue of arrangements having effect under section 49 or by virtue of section 50A, including any credit which is taken into account in determining the net Colonial rate applicable to any dividends received by the company."

4. Sections 46, 47 and 48 of the principal Ordinance are Repeal of sections 46, 47
and 48.
repealed.

Amendment of section 49.

5. Section 49 of the principal Ordinance is amended by repealing subsections (2) and (3).

Insertion of new section 50A.

6. The principal Ordinance is amended by the insertion after section 50 of the following new section —

"Unilateral tax credit.

50A. (1) Where any person resident in the Colony proves that he had paid, by deduction or otherwise, overseas tax on any part of his income which is also chargeable to Colony tax, he shall be entitled to a credit against such Colony tax equal to the overseas tax or the Colony tax on that part of his income, whichever is the less.

(2) For the purpose of this section 'overseas tax' means an income tax or tax of a similar character imposed by the laws of any territory outside the Colony other than a territory with the Government of which arrangements have been made which have effect under section 49.

(3) For the purpose of calculating the amount of any credit under this section the provisions of subsections (2) to (10) of section 50 shall apply as if references therein to arrangements having effect under section 49 were references to this section and as if references to foreign tax were references to overseas tax."

Repeal of Fifth Schedule.

7. The Fifth Schedule to the principal Ordinance is repealed.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill is designed to bring the provisions of the Income Tax Ordinance relating to double taxation relief up to date by the —

- (a) Repeal of section 46, as relief for United Kingdom tax is displaced by the United Kingdom/Falkland Islands Double Taxation Agreement.
- (b) Replacement of the provisions relating to relief for Commonwealth tax, which is now outmoded with the modern system of providing for unilateral tax credit.

Colonial Air Navigation Order 1961

Falkland Islands Air Navigation Regulations 1974

(Regulations for Private Owner/Pilots)

No. 1 of 1974

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

IN EXERCISE of the powers conferred by Article 57 of the Colonial Air Navigation Order 1961, the Governor in Council has made the following regulations—

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Falkland Islands Air Navigation Regulations 1974.

2. All aircraft operating in the Colony must be registered, either—

(a) in the country of origin, or

(b) in the Colony in accordance with the Colonial Air Navigation Order 1961 as amended.

3. No aircraft will be flown in the Colony unless there is a valid Certificate of Airworthiness or permit to fly in force, except that an aircraft may be flown, that is test flown, for the purpose of granting or renewing a Certificate of Airworthiness.

Private Owners will be granted a Certificate of Airworthiness in the private category only. Aircraft in this category must not carry passengers or cargo for hire or reward.

4. A pilot may not fly in the Colony unless—

(a) he is in possession of a current flying licence issued in accordance with the Colonial Air Navigation Order 1961 as amended, or

(b) is in possession of a current licence issued by the competent authority of the country of registration of the aircraft.

5. Private pilots are restricted to flying during daylight hours and in Visual Meteorological Conditions only, irrespective of any ratings his/her licence may contain.

Visual Meteorological Conditions means, when flying above 3,000 feet above mean sea level, at least one nautical mile horizontally and 1,000 feet vertically away from cloud and flight visibility of at least five nautical miles, below 3,000 feet, clear of cloud and in sight of the ground.

6. The minimum heights at which an aircraft may be flown in the Colony are those stated in Rule 5 of the 12th Schedule to the Colonial Air Navigation Order 1961.

7. All private pilots will, before commencing a flight which entails landing away from the home field, obtain the latest weather information for his intended route and destination. Should the conditions be less than Visual Meteorological Conditions or the wind speed at the intended landing ground be in excess of 20 knots, then the flight shall not commence.

8. All intended flights must be reported by radio to Stanley at least one hour before commencement, advising point and estimated time of departure, route to be flown, destination and estimated time of arrival.

Any flights which conflict with internal or international air movements are prohibited.

9. All private aircraft must be equipped with HF air/ground radio apparatus capable of receiving and transmitting on 4500 and 5580 khz.

A continuous listening watch must be maintained throughout the flight and position reports passed to Stanley at time intervals not exceeding 30 minutes.

Made by the Governor in Council this 10th day of May 1974.

Clerk of the Executive Council.

Customs Ordinance (Cap. 16)

Resolution of the Legislative Council

No. 1 of 1974.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

RESOLUTION made and passed by the Legislative Council on the 10th day of June 1974.

RESOLVED, pursuant to section 5 of the Customs Ordinance, Chapter 16, as follows —

1. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution 1974, and shall come into operation on the 10th day of June 1974.

2. Paragraph 2 of the Customs Order is hereby amended in Item 3 by the deletion from the third column of the amounts “£2.00”, “£1.20”, “95p”, “£2.10”, “£1.25”, and “£1.00”, and the substitution therefor of the amounts “£3.20”, “£1.92”, “£1.52”, “£3.36”, “£2.00”, and “£1.60” respectively. CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on Friday 4th January, 1974, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen -

This is my fourth and last Budget Address and I intend to keep it short and reasonably sweet, at least not as sour as last year.

Although we still have many problems facing us I see no reason to be disheartened and considering all the economic upheavals which have beset the world during the past twelve months, particularly the plague of inflation, I consider we can be reasonably confident of our future prospects. In our situation we are particularly susceptible to outside economic influences, both in respect of our imported goods and for the prices received for the only export - wool.

However, all in all, I think there is some truth in the comment by Mr. Stuart McDowall, the distinguished economist from St. Andrews University, that the standard of living here is higher than that in the United Kingdom and I am glad to see that in his Address this year the Financial Secretary will introduce proposals for improving the lot of our old age pensioners, as it is this class which is the hardest hit by the fall in the purchasing value of money.

Also, as will become clear during the next few days, it has not been easy to produce a balanced budget plus setting aside a modest surplus for our reserves and I hope that our Members will not be diverted from the necessity of having to maintain perhaps unpopular but necessary taxes, and where necessary cutting expenditure. Sometimes the financial facts of life are hard, but I think there is nothing to be gained by putting off unpopular decisions, which should be taken now. There can, I realise, be as many different ways of framing a budget as there are people in this hall, but, in the ultimate, there is only so much money coming in and so many ways in which the money can be spent.

As it has been in the past, the price received for wool remains the basis of our major source of revenue. At the moment in an era of high commodity prices there has been a fall in the price of most fibres and this has also affected the wool market - prices on the whole being down about one third of the high level reached last season. However, ours is a cyclical industry and with the high fuel prices making synthetic fibres more expensive, and the fashion demand for the "natural" look, I consider the wool industry here still has a good future.

For years we have been looking for some sort of diversification to lessen our dependence on wool and it is unfortunate that the ambitious plans of Alginate Industries Limited to produce calcium alginates in the Islands have had to be shelved for the meantime and that this Company has had to revert to the more modest programme of producing dried milled kelp.

With ESRO closing down and the British Antarctic Survey reducing its presence in Stanley it is even more important that new enterprises are attracted into the Colony. In this respect, tourism has continued to provide useful money in circulation and produced part time additional earnings for a number of Colony residents: one vessel spent £12,000 in a day in Stanley shops and almost two hundred tourists visited the Camp during the year. This is only the beginning, and although we do not want to see the attractions of these Islands ruined by mass tourism, there is no doubt that we can benefit by the specialist tours that are likely to be attracted to the Islands.

Another ray of light on the horizon is the possibility of a fishing industry being established in the Falklands. As you will recall, the Taiyo Company from Tokyo in association with British United Trawlers Limited, carried out initial trials in our waters last season and the results have been reasonably satisfactory. The Taiyo Maru No. 82 which carried out the trials did much better than previous research voyages and it seems that at least some of the varieties of fish found will be marketable in the main consuming countries. The Taiyo Maru No. 82 is preparing to come back again to the Islands and will carry out a further series of trials as, obviously, much more information is required before it will become clear whether or not it is possible to establish a viable fishing industry.

And then, looking further into the future, there is always the possibility of oil, but, as I have mentioned before, much work remains to be done before it can be established whether oil is likely to be found off shore. Our knowledge of the probable areas is being built up by means of various surveys and, in due course, decisions will have to be taken whether to lease out areas for exploration.

Now to more immediate affairs -

The Financial Secretary will be dealing in detail with the Draft Estimates for 1974/75 and I will just touch on some of the salient features of these proposals.

At the last meeting of the Legislative Council it was anticipated there would be a surplus of £17,000 for 1973/74 but now it is expected that the surplus will rise to £64,000. The Draft Estimates for 1974/75 show a surplus of revenue over expenditure of over £57,000 and this shows that in spite of buoyant revenues our expenditure is also at a very high level. Inflation and the cost of living allowances has added to the expenditure and, in addition, the cost of fuel has become a major factor and will influence the cost of all our production, including the production of electricity. So, we are in no position to be complacent and if by any chance the price of wool was to drop drastically we would, once again, find ourselves in the position of having to live on our reserves which are still not at a very high level.

So this is the reason why we must resist the temptation to reduce taxes and why it is so necessary for the most part that services should pay their own way. We realise that certain services such as the Air Service in an economy like ours must be subsidised, but there is a limit to how much money we can pump into subsidies.

And now I would like to turn to a review of the various departments making up the machinery of Government.

Before doing so, I would like to pay tribute to the work of the Honourable Mr. Tom Layng who has been Chief Secretary here for the past two years and who has done so much to streamline the administration of the Government machine and to improve its efficiency. His energy and skill have had a marked effect and if, at times, his methods have ruffled a few feathers, this is not a bad thing when people and departments have become fixed in their ways.

I am starting with the Education Department, the work of which is so important to the future of these Islands. As you will see from the Budget proposals the cost of maintaining the education of our children is increasing every year and this is reasonable and acceptable, providing our children are receiving an education which will fit them for the life that lies ahead. The school population figures show a further decline on last year as more children leave to complete their education in South America, the distribution being as follows:

Stanley - 156. Darwin Boarders - 36. Day Pupils - 13 and the Camp 85, making a total of 290.

Forty-seven children of secondary school age are now being educated in South America and this is certainly a very healthy figure considering the overall size of our population.

Although during the year staffing has been difficult the establishment is now coming up to strength and we can expect the arrival shortly of the new Superintendent of Education, Mr. Stocks, who, apart from his other qualifications, has a degree in Spanish and other foreign languages and is certain to be a great asset to the Department.

After many years service, Mr. Draycott, the Superintendent of Education, retired and I would like to pay tribute to him and to Mr. Booth who has filled the post since Mr. Draycott left the Colony.

Yesterday there arrived in Stanley two young girls from the Argentine, sponsored by the Government there, who are going to teach Spanish in our schools and this is going to be valuable preparation for our children who go to Latin America to further their education or for other reasons.

There is one aspect of the education scene with which I am not particularly happy and that is the question of education allowances. I think the pattern has become distorted in the past few years following the number of children going to the Argentine under various types of schemes and the changes that have taken place in Montevideo: I think our allowances should be so framed as to be flexible enough to meet these changing circumstances. This is a matter which is being looked at on instructions of the Executive Council by the Acting Superintendent of Education.

The Supreme Court, in addition to its judicial function, has continued to provide valuable legal assistance to members of the public and one aspect of the statistics which the department produced which is disturbing, is the slow, but steady, drift of people away from the Colony. During the period 7th January to 21st May of this year 41 people emigrated and this is worrying, particularly when it is at a time when the Colony is so prosperous.

Staffing of the Medical Department still gives reason for concern as we have not been able to recruit the third doctor so necessary to our scheme of centralisation and of providing a flying doctor service to the Camp and I would like to congratulate Dr. Ashmore, the Senior Medical Officer, Dr. Cox and the nursing staff on the way they have managed to cope on their own during a very busy season. The post for a third doctor has been re-advertised in what we consider to be a more attractive form and we hope that this will help to fill the post. There is tremendous demand for doctors all over the world and it is a highly competitive market but, with the salaries now being offered here, plus other inducements, we should be able to compete.

The Air Service has continued to operate at a very high level but it is unfortunate that in January one of the Beavers had to be withdrawn from service as corrosion was found at the main pick up points of the front frame, the rudder bar and the control column. The corrosion was bad enough to make it imperative that all three units would have to be replaced. This was a major piece of work to be undertaken and, as many of you will have seen, when the plane was stripped down there seemed to be nothing left except the cabin. After all the trials and tribulations of obtaining the necessary spare parts I would like to pay tribute to Chief Technician Fowler for the way he and Chief Technician Barber have managed to re-build the plane. It is now in first class condition and should give us excellent service before another major overhaul is required after 800 hours. The second Beaver has been checked over and this aircraft has not been affected by corrosion in the same way. However, the second aircraft is also due for its 800 hour overhaul and it will take some time before, once again, we have two machines in the air, but we should be going into the summer months with both machines in excellent condition.

Once again, I would like to pay tribute to our pilots who do a magnificent job and we welcome back Flt. Lt. Bert Conchie who, once again, is filling in while Mr. Kerr is on leave.

There has been a marked increase in the number of tourists carried by our air service and this traffic should continue to increase and I see no reason why this should interfere with providing a normal service to the residents of the Islands. This season, at the height of the demand, we were unfortunate to have one plane out of action and this is unlikely to recur. If we are going to continue to attract tourists to these Islands we must be able to fly them out to the Camp to such places as West Point Island, Carcass Island and New Island where the visitors can see the wild life and other attractions.

We are still awaiting the report by the Civil Aviation Authorities on FIGAS and this is expected to arrive at the end of June.

The following information about the Air Service may be of interest:-

During the period 1st July 1972 to 30th April 1973 a total of 3,750 passengers were transported and the total ledger revenue recorded for the period is £17,852.73. For the same period of 1973/74 financial year passenger total dropped to 3,439, that is an 8.29% drop. However, ledger revenue increased to £25,770.88 - an increase of 33.15%.

Tourists during the 1973/74 season made up only 5.64% of the total passengers carried but they contributed 9.01% of the revenue.

The last fuel consignment received from YPF was charged at 536 Argentine pesos per drum; advice has now been received that the fuel at present on order will be 836.50 pesos per drum, an increase of 56.1%

And now I turn to the small, but important, Financial Secretary's Department which, oddly enough, in the rush of the budget material sometimes is inclined to be forgotten. A notable landmark in the Department occurred during the year when Mr. Wally Hirtle, Income Tax Officer, retired after thirty eight years of service to the Colony and it is good to know that he has agreed to come back to work for the Government on a part time basis.

The Department has, in conjunction with the Chief Secretary's Office, been looking at other ways of raising revenue and later this year we hope that the first issue will be made of Falkland Islands coins: this issue will be linked to a special issue of commemorative stamps and both should provide valuable revenue for the Colony.

The Posts and Telegraphs Department has continued to provide the public with good service and, apart from one or two exceptions, the weekly overseas mail has arrived on schedule and there has been only one recorded delay in outgoing airmail. Normally the mail which leaves the Colony on Monday is delivered in the London area on Thursday and I myself have received a letter posted in Kent which took only five days to reach me: this is good going by any standards.

Staffing has proved difficult during the year but the Post Office is now fully staffed.

At the Wireless Station staff shortages, coupled with additional duties, have created a number of problems and I would like to pay a tribute to Mr. Roberts for the way in which he has coped with this.

While on the subject of Posts and Telegraphs, I would just like to refer to the decision taken by the Executive Council recently that, subject to satisfactory financial arrangements being negotiated, the Colony should enter into an agreement with Cable and Wireless for the provision of our external communications. It is clear that services of a reasonable standard cannot be provided economically without expert advice from the outside and it is particularly vital to a Colony such as the Falklands - isolated as we are - that our communications are always secure. There is much to be said for having ready access to the expertise and resources of an organisation such as Cable and Wireless and we are not alone in thinking this way, as many independent and dependent countries feel the need for this type of back up. The telecommunications world is a very sophisticated one which is evolving rapidly, and the cost of making mistakes can be high.

There has been a tendency here for many of us to seek quick and cheap answers to our telecommunications problems and to do this could lead to disaster. If we are going to ask outside business interests to come to the Falklands they must be assured that their external communications are up to world standards and, equally, when the main airfield is built at Cape Pembroke, our air traffic control systems will need to meet world standards.

Following the visit of Mr. Macoun the Inspector General of Colonial Police who visited the Islands in November, certain changes have taken place in the Force which should lead to increased efficiency and, in due course, some of our officers will be going to England for training courses.

The Public Works Department has now taken overall charge of the Power and Electrical Department and with the re-organisation has continued to carry out extremely well the various tasks required. Maintenance of Government buildings and houses has been maintained at a high level and, generally, Stanley is now looking a cleaner and better town. A great deal remains to be done, particularly on the roads, but at least a start has been made here.

Implementation of the Development Plan has gone well and some £48,000 has been paid out in fencing subsidies. The peat cutting machine has arrived, a loan to the Spinners and Weavers has been made and the cement for the Camp tracks programme has been received. An engineer/architect has paid a visit to the Colony and is producing a plan for the School Hostel at Moody Brook, the swimming pool and for the alterations to the prison. Three tourist loans have been made and one Camp guest house has got off the ground and has made a modest, but useful, contribution to revenue. The programme for the second year of the Plan will be discussed at this present meeting and some changes, as always, will be necessary.

The stream of experts coming to the Islands has continued and, to mention only a few - Mr. Powell on the pollution hazards likely to follow the establishment of an alginates industry, Mr. Brown on Stanley dairies, Mr. Gunn on tussac disease, Mr. Harradine on the Upland Goose, Mr. Bostelmann on animal diseases and Mr. McDowall on labour relations. Members of the public may be relieved to know that there are no more experts in the pipe-line.

However, in a more serious note - it is extremely valuable that we can have the help of scientists like Mr. Gunn, Mr. Harradine and Mr. Bostelmann and their contribution to what is, after all, the major industry in the Colony, will be invaluable. I know there are people, for example, who say - "Why is it necessary to take two years to study Upland Geese?" But, when you consider what is involved, two years is a short time. The problem of Upland Geese and the amount of pasture they eat up is of crucial importance to the sheep farming industry and I hope that all farmers here will give Mr. Harradine their full support so that he can come up with a worthwhile and definitive report on this problem. Only then will it be possible for us to take the necessary decisions.

Also, I would just like to make a short comment on a visit to the Islands of Mr. Sturart McDowall, the arbitrator who investigated the dispute in connection with the Stanley daily paid labour. Mr. McDowall said that labour relations here, on the whole, were good and that our cost of living allowance schemes for example would be the envy of much more sophisticated countries and economies. We hope to receive the second part of his report shortly which will cover such items as our negotiating machinery and labour laws generally.

One aspect which concerns me is that so much attention is paid to labour without the equivalent attention being paid to management. The efficiency of our farming industry depends to a great extent on our Managers, and I have been pleased to see, during the past few years, that we are attracting a younger and more qualified type of Manager. If we are going to continue this policy and to retain the Managers we have here, I consider that their conditions, particularly their remuneration, will have to be improved.

At the last meeting of the Council, I mentioned that Government was very aware of its responsibilities in connection with conservation and the preservation of wild life and we have now received draft legislation from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in regard to the conservation of wild animals and birds in our Dependencies. This draft legislation may well be a model to be adopted by other Colonies with problems similar to our own, and I hope that this legislation will be brought before Council at our next meeting. Certainly, the proposed legislation will ensure that South Georgia for example, an Island of surpassing beauty and scientific interest, will be well protected from such problems as uncontrolled tourism. This does not mean that tourists will not be welcome or that economic development of the resources will not be welcomed, but only that Government will be able to retain control to ensure that certain areas shall only be open to people who require to enter those areas for compelling scientific reasons.

In our case, there has been controversy about Beauchene Island as many of the tourist ships now sailing down here want to add Beauchene to their itineraries and on the best possible advice this has been refused. Beauchene, like Bird Island in South Georgia, under the new legislation would be termed a specially protected area only to be entered by people having a compelling scientific purpose.

I expect our relations with Argentina to be strengthened by the signing of the YPF Agreement and a Commercial Agreement this month. The air service provided by LADE has continued to operate at a very high level of efficiency and there should be still further improvement by the installation of a VOR approach system. This added navigational aid is being put in with our full support as, in my opinion, the safety of our flying operations must be regarded as paramount and at the moment it is far from easy for the pilots coming in on to the strip at Hookers Point: their skill has been admired by all of us. We are also expecting our talks with the Argentine Government to be resumed in the near future.

And so it is probably fitting that I end my Budget Address on the same note as I began my first address three years ago - on Communications.

It seems a long time since I first walked out to Cape Pembroke and looked at the possible site of a main airfield. Since then we have had many consultants and had much advice as to what is required, culminating in the feasibility survey by Messrs. Rendel, Palmer and Tritton. Since the report was received costs have spiralled and there has been criticism that Her Majesty's Government was not firm in its resolve to have this field built. And time and time again I have had to sit in Council and listen to those continuing criticisms - "Her Majesty's Government does not want us. Her Majesty's Government is prepared to write us off" - and so on....

It is therefore with pleasure that I announce that Her Majesty's Ministers have approved a grant of 4.2 million pounds sterling (approximately) for the construction of a Permanent airfield at Cape Pembroke by Johnston Construction Limited. I hope this announcement will put an end to any doubts that Her Majesty's Government is not playing her part in looking after the interests of the Islanders. At a time of economic stress in the United Kingdom an allocation of aid of over £2,000 for every inhabitant of these Islands is indeed a gesture of faith in us and the future. Thank you.

MOTION OF THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency. Honourable Members, it generally falls to me to be the first speaker and I think our plan at the moment is to speak down the table. I would like first of all to say how much I appreciated your address. I would like to get that in first because while in the next few minutes I shan't be attacking your address, I am certainly going to attack the Appropriations Bill.

You did mention when you were speaking to us, talking about diversification - tourism. For some time, as I see it, it has not got a very good future here because we have no communications. Tourists can certainly get to Stanley but they can't get very far beyond it, except the few who can afford the money to fly and there is virtually only one place they can fly to where they can stop. I think it is probably a long time before any firms are likely to arrange accommodation for tourists; in fact there is a fair amount of opposition in that respect because they are pretty sure that gates would be left open and there would be various other restrictions. However that is something which may develop later.

Alginates is rather like your further references to deep sea fishing. No doubt they are coming some day but they are both a long way ahead yet and they are hardly worthwhile considering economically. You mentioned emigration from the beginning of this year and you quoted the figure of forty-one. That astonished me. I had never attempted to find out from the authorities how these things go. What would be interesting and I think is important for us to know is how many Falkland Islanders are in that forty-one. Your figure may include ESRO people who are unable to be absorbed in jobs here because most of them have technical qualifications which in this small community cannot be accommodated. Possibly later on we will be able to find out how many Falkland Islanders are in that forty-one, but to me it is important to know. And now the main thing I want to speak about and I won't be very long, is the Appropriations Bill. What horrifies me mostly, there is not the slightest attempt at any economy anywhere, nowhere at all, nothing is cut down and expenditure has got to be cut back. Some of us have said this before but we have not done a great deal about it. This is my fifteenth budget in this House and of course in the early days we had a nice fat reserve behind us and we used to talk vaguely about cutting this down and cutting that down and in the course of our Select Committee we probably knocked off about five hundred or even a thousand pounds or sometimes we put on five hundred pounds, but this time we have got to do something about it. I am going to anyway.

I would like to remind the House of the Public Accounts Committee which sat two years ago under my Chairmanship. We produced a report on heat, light and power because we were appalled at the figures for those three things in the various departments. Two years have gone past since then, my report went in during August 1972. We were told in another place that some expert somewhere at the other end of the world is examining it, which means it is eventually going to be pigeon-holed and we will probably hear no more about it, but there are two or three sections in that report which could have been quite easily dealt with here. I won't mention the departments or the areas but only a matter of cutting things off or altering methods, but nothing happened. That was one economy that was, well I won't say deliberately discarded, but just let go. According to our documentation here at June the 30th 1974 the end of this month, the reserve will be a hundred and fifty thousand pounds, the 74/75 estimated surplus is fifty seven thousand pounds, making a possible reserve about this time next year of two hundred thousand pounds.

I think if those figures turn out as estimated then we have got a bit of room, apart from slashing the budget, to help operating the revenue side of the budget this time. In other words government has got to do a little bit of subsidisation. When we discuss some of the proposals for this budget, which are not likely to be at all pleasant to anyone. The last thing that this Council has got to do is to start to drive fed up Falkland Islanders away. I absolutely disassociate myself from having anything to do with that and while we have got some funds to subsidise some of the proposed requirements in the budget which we shall be discussing later this week, then we have got to use these funds and that reserve can shrink a bit, plus of course what I am quite sure we can knock out of the budget, which at my estimate is at least ten thousand pounds. I would not like to go so far as to say that we want to cut any staff down but in the proposals to be discussed in the next two or three days I shall certainly say that if one or two people leave they do not need to be replaced because we seem to have quite a lot on the ground at the moment. But it is important in our budget operations not to drive Falkland Islanders away. To me that is a most important consideration. Anything that is slashable we have got to slash. Of course the PWD is always the first target in these cases because it is the easiest one in every British territory, and I suppose foreign countries. I suppose it is the fairly obvious one because their figures stick out and they are not necessarily absolutely definitely wanted; but the other one that horrifies me is the Education Department which has increased in one year in its estimates by thirty thousand pounds and one of the biggest things contributing towards that is this overseas scholarship business which has suddenly shot up to fifteen thousand pounds. It is as I know, I sent my boys overseas to school (not South America certainly, there wasn't a chance and they did not want to in those days) and if there is a chance of better education overseas, it is wrong to prevent in any way parents from making use of it but when we can see or think we can see a deliberate use being made of some of those children which has nothing to do with education then we have got to think again. Your Excellency also tells us that the two teachers who are coming to teach Spanish were sponsored by the Argentines - well, if sponsored means Argentines are paying for them then I think we have got to alter that pretty quickly. We have got to pay for them; we don't want them as a gift. I don't think there is very much more to say. Sir. I really outlined the fact that I am going to do something about this budget this time and I think you will find that other Honourable Members will do so also. There is plenty of room for a bit of slashing; and there is plenty of room according to the figures in the reserve or expected reserve for a little bit of subsidy where required. I think that is about all Sir, and I end as I began by appreciating your address and I am glad to commence the Motion of Thanks to you."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Honourable Sidney Miller. Honourable Robin Pitaluga?"

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, I was prepared not to start my speech to the Motion of Thanks with a complaint but looking through my speech I find it is virtually full of complaints so I can't do much else. This Motion of Thanks, which was something new introduced by Mr. Layng soon after he came here, is a most welcome way of airing grievances in public and I am glad of this opportunity. The one I want to start with is an old one; if has been aired in this Council, in committees, at different times in my experience and it is one concerning papers for these meetings. I was in Stanley last Tuesday and while the papers were nearly ready, no attempt was made to deliver them during the remainder of the week and on the off chance that they might be in the post office I arranged for the mail to be taken from the post office by the telegram clerk and moved to a private residence on Saturday morning and brought to Hookers Point for me. The papers were there but it was a busy weekend and my preparations for this meeting have been mainly done in the cold early hours of this morning. In the circumstances I make no apology for their shortcomings.

Recently we have had the broadcast account of the Constitutional Talks. I did not hear all of them but those I did hear I found most interesting. However, in none of them can I remember hearing any reference to three of the standing committees of this Council. This I feel must be that the public considers them as defunct as they appear to those of us who are on them. These are the Development, Education and Public Accounts Committees. The last mentioned committee never really got off the ground in this or the previous council, but the other two did some very useful work in the previous council and met fairly regularly. In this council apart from one or two meetings at the beginning they have been completely idle. A great pity because there was a useful role for these committees and I hope they will be revived.

We are fortunate in these Islands that scandals such as are seen and heard in government and industries in other territories are non-existent. Yet if I may use the term scandal rather loosely I feel that we have had two near misses in recent months. I refer to government handling of the north camp dipping exemption applications and the Edwards coffee bar application. Both on reflection appear to be catalogues of avoidance by officials of the main issues involved, procrastination and 'bush passing'. The coffee bar instance is probably settled definitely but dipping exemption problems will be with us again in a few months. There is no doubt in my mind that last May we passed into law a bill of amendments to the livestock ordinance which in some cases has made the ordinance worse that it was before. I make no excuse for my part in this, nor is there any excuse for the behaviour of people who have used the inadequacies of the ordinance to thwart progress of the sheep farming industry towards that happy and desirable state of complete freedom from keds. The problem I have just referred to brings me to my next point which is the need for a qualified veterinary surgeon in these Islands. The timely arrival of Mr. Bostelmann on a six months visit has confirmed that we have a significant incidence of epididymitis in the ram flocks of some farms, and as yet not all farms have been examined. Since this disease causes infertility its seriousness cannot be exaggerated. This and the dipping argument, hydatid disease and other problems in our own industry would more than justify the employment of a qualified vet. as the Agricultural Officer.

There is another problem which may seem small to some people, but I think it is a very definite one and to those it does concern it is serious. Someone, many years ago, decided that a camp station would not get a mail drop if their mail did not include United Kingdom letters. This was effective even in the days of the monthly mail deliveries. I feel this policy is quite wrong and should be changed at once. Obviously most farms of several families will get some United Kingdom letters and so a drop, but a small island with one family might not, yet the letters they are anxiously waiting for could easily be from Stanley or another part of the Islands. Recently a large farm got no mail drop because there was no UK mail for it. But the considerable number of foreign residents did not qualify for a delivery although their letters were here. I have often wondered, but more seriously lately, who played God in the distant past and decided that the only letters of any importance to anyone was one with a UK stamp on it.

I, too, was alarmed by the figures you gave for emigration in your speech and I shall be interested in the figures that Mr. Miller has asked that we may see.

I was delighted to hear about the 4.2million pounds for the main airfield and that a contractor has been appointed. I am sure that everyone in the Falklands will be as pleased as I am at this news. I think that what we are waiting for now is news of when work is to start and how long it is expected to take.

I will make no comments on the budget of my own. We will be working hard at this in the next few days in Select Committee but I would support Mr. Miller's remarks that we must make strenuous efforts to cut down the cost of running this government, and that I think is all I have to say in this Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency and I would just confirm that I support it."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Honourable Robin Pitaluga".

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members the most obvious reason for this meeting of Council is to approve an estimate for the financial year 1974/75, not necessarily that presented by the administration but one which is in our collective opinion within our means and yet adequate for our needs. There is however, in my opinion, a very much more important cloud looming on the horizon, and a cloud that is growing faster now than ever before. You might think as I go on that His Excellency's information about the £4.2 million grant from Britain for our major airfield dissipates that cloud completely. I don't agree; I consider this very generous grant is merely fulfilling the obligations Britain made under the Treaty with Argentina some years ago and had they not been so tardy about it they would probably have got away with £2 million. What I am now referring to is the sovereignty issue. We have a lot of very good friends in all walks of life in the United Kingdom - Members of Parliament, rich people poor people, people born in the Falklands people born in the UK and elsewhere all dedicated to helping us keep our British sovereignty as long as we wish to do so. Since the change of government in the United Kingdom and since the accession to the presidency of General Peron in Argentina there has developed a very different climate with regard to the sovereignty issue. Our friends in the United Kingdom, some of whom are formed into the Falkland Islands Action Committee, tell me they have never been so worried about our future as they are now. This change of climate can be partly explained I think by the United Kingdom government's very adverse financial situation and their desire to make massive cuts in defence and other expenditure; cuts variously estimated at between five hundred and a thousand million pounds annually. They seem to expect to make part of these savings by reducing their overseas commitments. I think that we should bear in mind that we are an overseas commitment, even if only a small one. The change of climate is also due in part I consider to the hardening of the Argentine government's attitude on the question of sovereignty. And finally, I think the change of climate is in part caused by the increasingly isolated position of the United Kingdom government's representative in the United Nations vis-a-vis matters of our sovereignty. Only by making our wishes regarding sovereignty absolutely clear and loudly and often can our friends in the United Kingdom effectively work on our behalf. You might say we have already done so. I consider we must do so again and again, until the cloud on our horizon is finally dispersed. We have as everyone knows been having discussions about altering our constitution with a view to making it more democratic. No-one wants a democratic constitution more than I do. However it must be realised, I think, that a more democratic constitution means more control locally and a loosening of the ties with the United Kingdom. We must in my view be careful we do not end up with a beautifully democratic constitution, only to find we have so weakened our links with the United Kingdom that the sovereignty cloud has become much larger and the overcast sky of Argentine sovereignty much nearer. There have been suggestions put forward by our friends in the United Kingdom that a solution to the sovereignty problem might be total integration with the UK. This has

We are still awaiting the report by the Civil Aviation Authorities on FIGAS and this is expected to arrive at the end of June.

The following information about the Air Service may be of interest:-

During the period 1st July 1972 to 30th April 1973 a total of 3,750 passengers were transported and the total ledger revenue recorded for the period is £17,852.73. For the same period of 1973/74 financial year passenger total dropped to 3,439, that is an 8.29% drop. However, ledger revenue increased to £25,770.88 - an increase of 33.15%.

Tourists during the 1973/74 season made up only 5.64% of the total passengers carried but they contributed 9.01% of the revenue.

The last fuel consignment received from YPF was charged at 536 Argentine pesos per drum; advice has now been received that the fuel at present on order will be 836.50 pesos per drum, an increase of 56.1%

And now I turn to the small, but important, Financial Secretary's Department which, oddly enough, in the rush of the budget material sometimes is inclined to be forgotten. A notable landmark in the Department occurred during the year when Mr. Wally Hirtle, Income Tax Officer, retired after thirty eight years of service to the Colony and it is good to know that he has agreed to come back to work for the Government on a part time basis.

The Department has, in conjunction with the Chief Secretary's Office, been looking at other ways of raising revenue and later this year we hope that the first issue will be made of Falkland Islands coins: this issue will be linked to a special issue of commemorative stamps and both should provide valuable revenue for the Colony.

The Posts and Telegraphs Department has continued to provide the public with good service and, apart from one or two exceptions, the weekly overseas mail has arrived on schedule and there has been only one recorded delay in outgoing airmail. Normally the mail which leaves the Colony on Monday is delivered in the London area on Thursday and I myself have received a letter posted in Kent which took only five days to reach me: this is good going by any standards.

Staffing has proved difficult during the year but the Post Office is now fully staffed.

At the Wireless Station staff shortages, coupled with additional duties, have created a number of problems and I would like to pay a tribute to Mr. Roberts for the way in which he has coped with this.

While on the subject of Posts and Telegraphs, I would just like to refer to the decision taken by the Executive Council recently that, subject to satisfactory financial arrangements being negotiated, the Colony should enter into an agreement with Cable and Wireless for the provision of our external communications. It is clear that services of a reasonable standard cannot be provided economically without expert advice from the outside and it is particularly vital to a Colony such as the Falklands - isolated as we are - that our communications are always secure. There is much to be said for having ready access to the expertise and resources of an organisation such as Cable and Wireless and we are not alone in thinking this way, as many independent and dependent countries feel the need for this type of back up. The telecommunications world is a very sophisticated one which is evolving rapidly, and the cost of making mistakes can be high.

There has been a tendency here for many of us to seek quick and cheap answers to our telecommunications problems and to do this could lead to disaster. If we are going to ask outside business interests to come to the Falklands they must be assured that their external communications are up to world standards and, equally, when the main airfield is built at Cape Pembroke, our air traffic control systems will need to meet world standards.

Following the visit of Mr. Macoun the Inspector General of Colonial Police who visited the Islands in November, certain changes have taken place in the Force which should lead to increased efficiency and, in due course, some of our officers will be going to England for training courses.

The Public Works Department has now taken overall charge of the Power and Electrical Department and with the re-organisation has continued to carry out extremely well the various tasks required. Maintenance of Government buildings and houses has been maintained at a high level and, generally, Stanley is now looking a cleaner and better town. A great deal remains to be done, particularly on the roads, but at least a start has been made here.

Implementation of the Development Plan has gone well and some £48,000 has been paid out in fencing subsidies. The peat cutting machine has arrived, a loan to the Spinners and Weavers has been made and the cement for the Camp tracks programme has been received. An engineer/architect has paid a visit to the Colony and is producing a plan for the School Hostel at Moody Brook, the swimming pool and for the alterations to the prison. Three tourist loans have been made and one Camp guest house has got off the ground and has made a modest, but useful, contribution to revenue. The programme for the second year of the Plan will be discussed at this present meeting and some changes, as always, will be necessary.

The stream of experts coming to the Islands has continued and, to mention only a few - Mr. Powell on the pollution hazards likely to follow the establishment of an alginates industry, Mr. Brown on Stanley dairies, Mr. Gunn on tussac disease, Mr. Harradine on the Upland Goose, Mr. Bostelmann on animal diseases and Mr. McDowall on labour relations. Members of the public may be relieved to know that there are no more experts in the pipe-line.

However, in a more serious note - it is extremely valuable that we can have the help of scientists

His Excellency made references to the resumption of the dialogue with the Argentines, and the continuity between the thinking of the Labour Government with that of the previous Conservative Government is total as far as we are able to see. So I would like to reassure Honourable Members and those of the public on this matter and say that any question of a change of climate is indeed news to us.

Sir, I wish to associate myself with this Motion of Thanks to yourself for your speech".

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Layng".

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I await the lightening and thunder to burst when the budget is presented this afternoon. I can feel it already mounting on my left-hand side!

I would just like to support the Motion of Thanks".

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much. You are not exposing yourself to the firing line at the moment!"

PAPERS Laid ON THE TABLE BY THE CHIEF SECRETARY:

Pensions (Amendment) Regulations 1973.

Medical Report 1973.

Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Council since January 1974.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

THE CLERK

"Question No. 16/74 by the Honourable A.B. Monk JP".

MR. MONK

"Does the Falkland Islands Government Air Service refuse to carry liquid nitrogen containers of the type used to keep cattle semen?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, there are no local regulations in the Colony covering the carriage of liquid nitrogen, and IATA Restricted Articles Regulations are therefore followed. The one written and two verbal requests made to the Superintendent of Civil Aviation recently to carry semen have been insufficiently detailed to permit him to assess whether or not the containers would constitute a danger when carried in a passenger aircraft. They were accordingly very properly refused".

MR. MONK

"Has the Superintendent of Civil Aviation an up to date copy of the IATA rules"?

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I would say the answer to that is almost certainly yes. We receive amendments in almost every mail and I would think that he most certainly has".

MR. MONK

"In That case why could not the applicant have been told exactly what information he should provide the Superintendent of Civil Aviation?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I have no information to lead me to suspect that he was not in fact told."

MR. BOWLES

"Would FIGAS carry these containers if adequate information is supplied?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Yes indeed Sir, I have the full information here and there are two types of containers that are not acceptable, i.e. which would constitute a hazard to the aircraft and the passengers and there is one type which is, and if this type is of the fifty litre capacity and of the type specified in packing note regulation 808 and is ventilated in Dewar metal flask etc. without frangible discs and so on, then it would certainly be carried."

MR. PITAUGA

" I have not got a supplementary question, I would like to make a supplementary answer. We all know that Mr. Greenshields has this equipment and he very kindly showed it to me on a visit to Douglas Station and also gave me the handbook of instructions to read. At the end there is half a page of rules for the storage and handling of these containers and it mentions that liquid nitrogen exhausts into the atmosphere steadily and in so doing it displaces the oxygen in whatever room, or cabin, or whatever it may be stored in happens to be, and this is where a risk to aircraft comes in - that if it is exhausted for any length of time the oxygen is displaced and then the problems that are associated with lack of oxygen become effective and I believe that when people are flying extremely high in aircraft without supplementary oxygen they become rather intoxicated, not as with liquor, but without realising that this is happening to them and all sorts of horrible things can happen. I strongly suspect that this is one of the reasons why it must be in very special containers, but I have no idea whether the containers that Mr. Greenshields has comply with those that Mr. Layng mentioned. Thank you."

CHIEF SECRETARY

" I would like to thank the Honourable Member for his supplementary answer. It is quite clear that the departure of all these senior civil servants on leave shortly will not be the disaster that it is said to be!"

THE CLERK

"Question No.17/74 by the Honourable A.B. Monk JP."

MR. MONK

"What gross revenue was derived from tourists by the Falkland Islands Government Air Service?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Between the 1st July 1973 and 22nd May 1974, 184 tourists were transported by FIGAS. The total revenue derived from this source was £2,322.50."

MR. MONK

"Would the Honourable Member agree that in fact we carried them at a loss?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, we went into this at great length last year. Prices have of course risen throughout the year as we have heard in His Excellency's address; Avgas has increased steadily and whether or not that finally worked out at a loss by the end of the year would be an extremely complicated arithmetical calculation to which I am afraid I cannot give an answer. All I can say is that on the information which we started with at the beginning of the year and on which the fares were worked out, they were worked out to give us a reasonable operating profit. If by the end of the year this operating profit was reduced or indeed totally eroded away, it would as I say be an extremely complicated calculation that I am afraid, as a supplementary question without my electric calculator, I cannot produce!"

MR. MONK

"Thank you. I would like your electric calculator to see if it could arrive at the same figure as me - I consider it cost £2,759 to earn £2,322.50."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Thank you very much for your supplementary answer to my previous reply."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 18/74 by the Honourable A.B. Monk JP."

MR. MONK

"Is there any Colony legislation controlling locally established Unit Trusts?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"No Sir, there is no legislation in force in the Colony for controlling locally established Unit Trusts."

Trust Unit Schemes were originally controlled in the United Kingdom by the Prevention of Fraud (Investments) Act 1939 which has been superseded by the Prevention of Fraud (Investments) Act 1958. Neither of these Acts apply to the Colony."

MR. MONK

"Does not the Honourable Member consider we should have legislation to cover this sort of operation?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I am sure my Honourable friend will appreciate the amount of work involved in preparing and passing legislation and unless there is a definite need I would avoid arranging the preparation of any special legislation for this purpose. Therefore before I assess whether there is a need for legislation to control Unit Trusts in the Falkland Islands I would very much like to hear whether my Honourable friend knows of any definite proposal to establish a Unit Trust in the Colony and if so, has he any details that he is able to divulge? I trust my Honourable friend will not object to the question?"

MR. MONK

"Honourable Financial Secretary, I would prefer not to divulge my information here but I would like to ask a further supplementary question. Can a Unit Trust be set up by anyone here without having to obtain any form of licence or permission from the Governor?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"We do have our Banking Ordinance in force now, and under the Banking Ordinance before one can accept deposits it is necessary to arrange for government permission to be granted. However, it may be that this matter should be looked into a little further and I would like to discuss the matter with my Honourable friend as soon as possible so that if there is a need we can consider introducing suitable legislation for the control of it. Perhaps my Honourable friend would find it some help to know that the provisions of the Act, the 1958 Act, which applies to the United Kingdom includes the following, these are the more important provisions - that Trust Unit Schemes must be approved by Order of the Board of Trade, that the Trust Unit Scheme must be operated by a corporation incorporated under law and that the corporation has a capital in stock or shares for the time being issued of not less than five hundred thousand pounds. I think therefore we should consider this one a little further and I would like to obtain some information from my Honourable friend at the earliest possible opportunity."

MR. MONK

"Thank you Honourable Financial Secretary."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you Honourable Financial Secretary. I think, Honourable Adrian Monk, it is an important question. We have had difficulties with some people registering here as companies using the name 'Bank' 'Trust', words like that which so far with our legislation we can't balk. We have control over the registration of banks here but they register the names here or the firm, then they start operating outside, using the name 'Bank' and put up an office somewhere in Whitechapel, something like that. So this is another thing we are looking at at the moment."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 19/74 by the Honourable S. Miller, JP."

MR. MILLER

"In view of the fact that school children going to Argentina for school into a sub-tropical area from our own temperate climate are only vaccinated against smallpox, is Government satisfied that no other vaccinations are in any way necessary though there has been some incidental hospitalisation up there for some children?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Vaccination against smallpox which is given to school children going to Argentina is the only vaccination legally necessary. The children have however all in addition been given inoculations against tetanus, whooping cough, and diphtheria, and had poliomyelitis and tuberculosis vaccines. The Senior Medical Officer is satisfied that no other vaccinations are in any way necessary."

MR. MILLER

"I have to thank the Honourable Chief Secretary for his reply; in his second sentence he refers to the other inoculations, I am very glad to hear of those, I did not know that. But the first sentence, is it not a fact that vaccination for smallpox only applies one way? The Argentines don't require it, but you have got to have that certificate other wise you cannot get back in here. Is that not correct?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I have entered Argentina by air, I think a total of six times and each time I had to produce my smallpox vaccination certificate, so I would have said that, in company with most other countries in the world, the Argentine does demand a vaccination, but this is a matter beyond my responsibility."

MR. MILLER

"Thank you Honourable Chief Secretary for that reply. As a matter of fact my experience of this of course is only going across to Patagonia. Twice I have done it now, but then as we know, the Argentines regard that as an internal journey so they would not be looking for a certificate. Thank you."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 20/74 by the Honourable S. Miller, JP."

MR. MILLER

"In view of the fact that the Chief Secretary and the Deputy Chief Secretary and the Financial Secretary all go on leave shortly and therefore Government for some months will be deprived of their services, does it not appear that the Administration's staff numbers are a little top-heavy?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"The fortuitous and unfortunate fact that a number of senior officers are all due for overseas leave at the same time does not, I think, have any bearing on the composition of the public service. A similar argument, noting that one third of Council's unofficial members are currently on leave could be advanced for saying that Council is also unnecessarily large!

In most territories it is possible to stagger leave rosters in such a way that two senior men in the same department are not away at the same time. It was decided, however, in the current cases to which you refer, Sir, that taking into account the compelling need for leave to be enjoyed during the Colony's winter season, undue hardship would be occasioned by postponing the leave of the officers concerned.

It is unfortunate that the arrival of my successor has been delayed, but we are confident that the administration of Government will be maintained satisfactorily during the next three months."

MR. MILLER

"I have to thank the Chief Secretary for that reply, which I do not find very satisfactory. His reference to one third of Council's unofficial members currently on leave could be advanced for saying that Council is unnecessarily large - I would draw his attention to the fact that the unofficial members of this Council are not paid and they are not civil servants and it seems to me a little unusual that so many senior people can be spared at that time. Do you not think it might be unfortunate if referring back to the Unit Trust mentioned as a possibility, or suggested as a possibility, by my Honourable friend Mr. Monk, was suddenly to come up in the next few months that this would automatically have to wait till later on because so many star members of the Government banner were away?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think Government would be able to cope with an emergency of the nature which you mentioned. As far as Unit Trusts are concerned we could always apply the UK legislation just in a couple of sentences, in a very swift move, if need be. I don't think your fears are really very valid. There are for instance territories on the equator in which government virtually closes during the hot summer season, when almost all the important members of government go home during July and August and it is more or less the closed season for government."

MR. MILLER

"Thank you Sir."

MR. BOWLES

"May I have a quick supplementary on this one, Sir. Bearing in mind the absence of our two West Members, if the Chief Secretary is confident that the administration will be maintained satisfactorily during the absence of senior staff on leave, is Mr. Miller's suggestion of top-heaviness still to be ruled out?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I am not entirely sure I follow what you are driving at. The point I think that Mr. Miller was trying to put across is that if the senior officers could be spared altogether then there was no need to have them at all and Mr. Pitaluga's very able answers to some of the questions perhaps bear that out. But I am not entirely sure that I see what you are driving at in your supplementary. Perhaps you could re-phrase it?"

MR. BOWLES

"I think I was referring to the fact that Mr. Miller is a little doubtful whether the services of government will be maintained during the absence of the senior members and if they can go on leave all at once, would it not seem that the top-heaviness is still apparent?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think the answer is no Sir."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, I would just like to ask Mr. Layng a question on this one because I too have shared Mr. Miller's concern at the absence of so many of our senior staff and would like to ask him would not it have been better to, perhaps feasible, to have postponed some of these leaves for a year as was done in the case of the Registrar General, I think, when his leave became due some years ago and there was no-one to take his place."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"It could, of course, have been done but the matter was carefully gone into and it was considered that the officers concerned needed their leave. The period concerned in fact is not very long - last winter His Excellency himself was on leave for the entire winter, for a matter of five months or so. In fact the gaps between the Deputy Chief Secretary departing and my own departure and my successor's arrival, are only a matter of weeks. The total gap is not much larger, in fact no larger at all, than the normal leave vacancies that are carried. The Treasury is a separate department; it is a fully staffed department and the fact that the head of a department is going and the deputy will be acting is rather a separate issue."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 21/74 by the Honourable S. Miller, JP."

MR. MILLER

"Will the Chief Secretary tell the House what stage has Her Majesty's Government reached in respect of the proposed agreement for YPF to set up retail fuel supplies?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Yes Sir. Final approval for the signing of the agreement has now been given by the United Kingdom government, and it is expected that all formalities will be completed by the end of this month. The signing is in fact expected for the 24th June."

MR. MILLER

"Well I think we all have to thank the Honourable Chief Secretary for that reply, it is one that we have been expecting for a little time. Mixed feelings about it, no doubt, but paying possibly shortly more than a pound a gallon for petrol is nobody's joke. Thank you."

MR. PITALUGA

"It seems to be a well known fact that certain commercial interests in London had virtually succeeded in persuading the Conservative Government Secretary of State not to approve the signing of this agreement. Does your answer mean that these interests have withdrawn their objections?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think a formula has been arrived at which has allowed everyone to be reasonably happy in the final draft of the Agreement as it is now going forward."

MR. PITALUGA

"I am not sure if this question is admissable Sir, but I will ask it anyway. In your speech when you referred to this you mentioned a commercial agreement with Argentina in the same context as the oil agreement, but are they one and the same thing, or is this something different that we have not heard of?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"No, there are two agreements. There is a second agreement called a commercial agreement which is in fact regularising the status quo, that is to say, it is erecting a 'sovereignty umbrella' over a little chink in the sky which our legal advisers felt was possibly there and has always been there and they have only recently noticed, looking up at the weather, that it would be useful to have a further 'sovereignty umbrella' covering in generality all commercial agreements. This matter has been through Executive Council. It is, I think, a totally non-controversial matter which can be only to our advantage and it is covering this final little chink in our sovereignty defences."

MR. PITALUGA

"Thank you for those very comprehensive answers."

MR. BOWLES

"Would my Honourable friend the Chief Secretary tell us if he thinks there is still a guarantee that the purchase price of fuel will be reduced?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I take it you mean the selling price of fuel?"

MR. BOWLES

"The selling price, yes I am sorry - the retail price."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"The agreement stipulates that the price of fuel on sale in the Falklands will be the same as that on the mainland and I think there is no doubt at all that it will be substantially reduced."

MR. BOWLES

"Thank you."

THE PRESIDENT

"The commercial agreement, Honourable Robin Pitaluga is really an extension of Section 12 of the Joint Communications Agreement which says that Argentina and HMG will do everything possible to extend trade between the two countries and this is another 'umbrella' just to protect our sovereignty from any negotiations which may take place on the trading side, of which one of course, is the YPF agreement."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 22/74 by the Honourable R.H. Pitaluga."

MR. PITALUGA

"Will Government please state the result of its examination of the Ward Hardy report and indicate its current plans for the essential improvement of inter Islands telecommunications?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Yes Sir, Three outside and independent assessments of the Ward Hardy report have now been received and these all agree that the proposals in the report are technically impractical for implementation in the Colony and are in addition undercosted by some 200 - 300 per cent. It is therefore not intended to proceed along the lines recommended by Messrs. Ward and Hardy."

Examination of this report has proved a time consuming red herring and it is now intended that, subject to the views of the Cable and Wireless team expected in the Colony shortly and to Council's approval, a pilot scheme using six Model TR-M modern, powerful Single Side Band Transceivers should be tried to assess their suitability in local conditions."

MR. PITALUGA

"You have been kind enough to give me a copy of the Crown Agents comments. Do you agree that they have obviously been written by the author of the Crown Agents scheme and are therefore considerably biased?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I agree that they have been written by the author of the Crown Agents Scheme, but I do not agree that they are necessarily biased."

MR. PITALUGA

"One more question. You mentioned the Cable and Wireless team expected in the Colony shortly. Has Cable and Wireless shown any interest in getting involved in our internal telecommunications?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Cable and Wireless have discussed and thought about the matter, whether this could be said to be as far as taking an interest, I would not like to commit myself. It is certainly a matter, as I say, that we should take up carefully with them during the week when they are here later this month."

MR. PITALUGA

"I thank the Honourable Chief Secretary for his reply."

MOTIONS.

MOTION by the Honourable A.B. Monk, JP -

"That this House considers that a limited mail collection and delivery service be restored to the residents of Stanley."

THE CLERK

"The first Motion on the Order Paper by the Honourable A.B. Monk, JP, has been ruled out of order under Rule 9A of the Standing Rules and Orders for the Legislative Council, and the matter will be considered in the normal way in the course of the proceedings of the Select Committee on the Estimates."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I would just like to explain that the purpose of Rule 9A is to make sure that things do not get out of proportion and that all matters concerning the finances, the budget, the public service, and so on are all taken together and treated similarly. I think it is a rule that is common in all Legislative Councils and it ensures that everything is given its due weight and balanced together and it also removes the temptation from Members of Council of seeking popularity by introducing obviously popular budgetary matters, easy ones that can pass through quickly."

MOTION by the Honourable A.B. MONK, JP -

"That this House views with grave concern the recent severe curtailment of our internal air service and considers that a Public Enquiry should be held into the circumstances. The Public Enquiry should also consider the apparent lack of liaison between the Aviation Department and the Central Administration."

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in proposing this Motion, I don't wish it to appear that I am criticising the staff of the Air Service in their actual work, in repairing the particular aircraft. My reasons for proposing the Motion are that firstly the Air Department would seem to have been unable to get the grounded aircraft into the air because of a lack of some small but essential parts. I may be mistaken in that assumption but we were in fact given very little information about it. I consider therefore that in the first place the enquiry should consider why such small and relatively cheap parts were not held in stock. After all if you run a carpentry business you keep nails in stock and it would seem that it was a logical thing to do to keep small parts like this in stock. I know the Honourable Chief Secretary will undoubtedly get up and tell us to what considerable lengths they went to obtain these parts - telegrams and flying then around the world and all the various terrible adventures that befell them, but that is not the point. I consider that the parts should have been in stock and that the enquiry should review that aspect of the Air Department; what they keep as spare parts. In the second place the enquiry should I consider look into why the aircraft which was flying and which itself had only a very limited number of flying hours left, was apparently going to be allowed to fly non-priority flights until it also had to be grounded. It would seem to me and probably to other Honourable Members that it was only because we brought the attention of the administration to this matter that the flying hours of the other plane were restricted. The sudden termination of non-priority flights caused some inconvenience to the Colony residents and had the administration had good liaison with the Air Department they could have given warning beforehand so that that inconvenience did not result. In view of the importance of the Air Service from a medical and mail point of view I consider it essential that complete liaison should exist between the administration and the Air Department and the enquiry should establish what went wrong and put it right. I beg to move the Motion."

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to support my Honourable friend's Motion I am not quite sure what happens after this debate - whether we have a public enquiry, or how we have a public enquiry, but I would entirely agree with what my Honourable friend has said. In another place we have learned the full story whereby it seems that de Havilland, through their inefficiency, failed to supply us with the parts. I understand that a case, a large case, was flown here with all the major parts in it but contained no rivets although the invoice said that it did contain rivets. On an immediate telegram, I understand, from the Superintendent of Civil Aviation they then despatched the rivets which were apparently by accident sent via West Germany and when they arrived they were still the wrong rivets. The fault appears to have been entirely that of de Havilland but my support of Mr. Monk, who introduced this Motion, is that at this end the administration should have known about it; they should have found out about it; they should have been enquiring about it and to me it seems quite wrong that after all those wasted flying hours of the West Falkland tour for possible amendments to the Constitution, we should suddenly have been told that the plane can't fly any longer because it has got so few hours left and the other plane is not ready to fly yet, or in such many words. This did not affect the people in Stanley very much, but by jove it affected the people in the Camp. For one thing they never got their mail delivered for some weeks, I am not sure of the actual number, and to me it appears to be quite inefficient that the administration had not learned of this - either the Superintendent of Civil Aviation should have put the matter before the Chief Secretary or the Chief Secretary should have found out about it. That is the crux of the matter as far as I am concerned, the chap in charge is supposed to know what is going on. Anyway Sir, I fully support Mr. Monk's Motion and I think that there should be a public enquiry into these circumstances."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think it is very useful and timely that the Honourable Mr. Monk has mentioned this matter and raised it in Council, it is perhaps a very convenient way of putting across to the Colony residents exactly what did happen. I think that the Honourable Mr. Miller, has summarised to some extent the series of events which did lead up to the curtailment of services. It was as he says entirely the fault of the suppliers. There is a long, long, weary tale of woe which I will not read out to you, it covers two sides of foolscap, of the to-ing and fro-ing; the telegrams; the three lots of incorrect rivets which were sent at monthly intervals, and I will not as I say read it out and bore everyone by doing so. The fault was entirely, as Executive Council has learned and Mr. Miller has confirmed and I think is not disputed by the proposer of the Motion, the fault is entirely in the suppliers de Havilland who made a mistake, sent the wrong rivets, then again a second lot of rivets were procured which were again wrong. The third lot of rivets were found and were again wrong and it was entirely the fault of de Havilland. This, as the Honourable proposer has explained, is not the purpose of his Motion. He is suggesting that we should maintain in stock sufficient spare parts to cater for eventualities of this kind. I just wonder whether each farmer maintains all the little nuts and bolts on his tractors, on his combine harvesters, on his shearing clippers, on his generators, on all his other mechanical bits, little bits and pieces, split pins, the washers, the bolts and nuts, I just wonder. I have only been here a very short time but I have heard a number of tales; I have been around the camp a lot, I have seen a lot of farm machinery lying out of action because small parts were not held, or were not kept. Government is kept under very strict financial stringency, we ask for a lot more money than we are granted and given to run the affairs as we would perhaps like. We would very much like to run a Rolls Royce Air Service, we would very much like to maintain the kind of stock of spare parts that BOAC no doubt maintains at Heathrow to make quite sure that when a crucial nut or bolt is missing, that its replacement is immediately on hand. The rivets in question were particularly important, cherry-headed alloy rivets of a very particular special fire-resistant kind. They were rivets that I don't think could reasonably have been expected to be needed but for this very unusual and very extensive and very unexpected degree of corrosion which arose in the aircraft and which took everybody by surprise. I don't think indeed that it is fair comment to say that these admittedly small and cheap spare parts should have been in stock. We had an unusual occurrence to the plane, an unusual and major rebuilding was required and these particular parts were needed unexpectedly and unusually. The second point that the proposer has made is that the grounding of the second aircraft, the coming up of the second aircraft's eight hundred hours overhaul should have been anticipated and that priority flying should have been brought in earlier on - this may in fact be a perfectly valid point, I think it probably is. However, the situation was that the Air Service had these three separate lots of rivets and all our technical advice and expertise was about ninety-five per cent certain that the final lot of rivets, be they cherry-headed or not - I forget, were in fact the rivets which would do the job, and were capable of doing the job and could be placed in. Up until that fateful Saturday morning when the West tour of the Falkland Select Committee terminated the experts were still convinced that we had all the parts, we had sufficient hours and time in hand in order for the repairs to be done, and no curtailment at all need be effected; and then on that Saturday morning arrived the telegram finally saying "Sorry no, those rivets will not do", we had to start again from scratch for the fourth time. The decision had been made that we should carry on flying up to that period, banking on the ninety-five percent certainty that the parts were here, that there was time in hand and there need be no curtailment of flying at all. With hindsight it may have been better to have restricted slightly the flying for a longer period, starting perhaps in January when all this started. But then as we all know there would have been considerable complaints, considerable objections and it could well have all turned out unnecessary - so the considered decision was made to carry on in the firm belief that the parts were there, the aircraft could be re-assembled and all could be completed without any disruption. With hindsight this was the wrong decision but it was a decision made with full forethought by the Superintendent with discussion with his technicians and keeping everyone in the picture as far as he thought was necessary. As far as the disruption is concerned there were in fact only three weeks of restricted flying, initially it had been thought that there would be six and I think that this Motion in fact should pay tribute to the enormously long hours and the very hard work put in by the technicians to do six weeks work in three. During this three week period of restricted flying, of the bookings made 88.8 per cent were carried out, that is to say, 11.2 per cent of the bookings were not able to be met for adults. For children, in fact more children were carried than were booked! I don't quite understand that, but twenty-three children were booked and twenty-nine were carried - very odd. The only people who really suffered were Darwin School children and here our Marines very nobly stepped into the breach and very kindly carried the school children who could not be taken on the plane. There is of course the point that some bookings were not made because they thought they could not be carried, true, granted, but on the other hand I think everybody who had a priority, major reason to be carried was carried. So that in fact with 88.8 per cent of the bookings honoured during a three week restriction period, I think the degree of disruption, the degree of inconvenience, was very much less than one might perhaps have thought from reading the Motion put forward. As far as a public enquiry is concerned I am not very sure what would be achieved by this. The two officers concerned are both on leave; they would either have to be flown back or the enquiry held over for three months by which time events would be rather stale. We have got the Civil Aviation report coming, we don't know what is in it, the organisation of FIGAS will no doubt be examined very carefully in this report, which will be circulated to Members and it would seem that it would be in the context of the C.A. report when that is duly received that any scrutiny of FIGAS should be done. So your Excellency, I wish to oppose this Motion. I think it would not be in the public interest for a public enquiry to be held; it would be expensive, it would tie up FIGAS bringing in Members to the enquiry, it presumably would have to wait three months until those involved returned from leave and I think it would be more in the public interests if any scrutiny of FIGAS took place in the context of the arrival of the Civil Aviation report."

MR. BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, public enquiries to my mind always have reflections. This Motion has shocked me considerably and I had no idea that liaison between the Aviation Department and the administration lacked. My admiration for the Air Service stands paramount and I wish publicly to wash my hands completely of this Motion. Despite the corrosion problem of Alpha Lima the department in question maintained an efficient service with Alpha Kilo which to my mind was publicly admired. Any public enquiry will achieve little or nothing and will neither help the public confidence in the Air Service or assist the morale of our engineers and pilots who are devoted to their very responsible, humane duties. I therefore, Sir, cannot support the Motion."

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Honourable Chief Secretary has as usual drawn very skilfully a large number of red herrings across the trail. The point at issue in the first instance is why could not the Air Department have had in stock rivets - not a spare engine, not a spare set of wings, just plain rivets of a certain type which they must have known would be likely to corrode or whatever."

THE PRESIDENT

"Cherry-headed rivets I understand."

MR. MONK

"Cherry-headed rivets, that is all we are talking about in that first instance. Why were they not in stock. A small thing. The Chief Secretary has said that they are limited in the amount of money they are allowed to expend. I don't think that they are so limited by us that they could not have had some rivets in stock. In the second instance it is purely a matter of liaison, there is no question about it in my mind that no attempt was made to curtail the second aircraft's flying hours until certain Members got on to the administration about it, of which I was one. I am quite sure that the aircraft would have expended its hours flying non-priority flights and then they would simply have said "We have no aircraft, we are frightfully sorry." The aircraft is of paramount importance so far as the camp is concerned with regard to medical services and mail services and there should have been more liaison between the Air Department and the Administration so that ample warning could have been given that flying hours were reduced and people would not have been stranded and we would not have been even likely to have run out of flying hours. As I tried to make clear when I introduced the Motion, the point which one of the Honourable Elected Members for Stanley (I can't remember which end) has made, he seemed to think I criticised the technical ability and so forth of the Air Service. Well I tried to make it perfectly clear that that was not the object of the Motion; there was no question of criticising the ability of the fliers, of the mechanics, of the number of hours of work they did - nothing like that - simply why were not rivets in stock? Why was there not more liaison?"

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this Motion rather took me by surprise as well. I have had my papers only a short time before this meeting but I thought quite a lot about this problem long before I knew it was going to be an issue at this meeting and I decided that I could not support the Motion and I am still of the same opinion. It seems now to have resolved itself into two issues - one of whether certain rivets should have been in stock, and liaison between the Air Service Department and the central administration. Some of the arguments I had prepared for my speech when I thought I might get on my feet earlier were taken up by Mr. Layng and put far more precisely than I could have done so. In the case of these rivets, and I made my own enquiries about this business, I came to the conclusion that the Air Service was in no way at fault in their spares stocking, maintenance, or any other way. It would appear from what I have been told that these particular rivets are used in this part of the aircraft affected by the corrosion and in normal service should never have to be replaced in any aircraft. This is something quite exceptional and therefore it is understandable that they were never stocked here, because I imagine they expected to throw this aircraft in the Harbour long before they ever needed to replace rivets in that area and it is possible (I am not particularly concerned about making speeches about de Havilland) that they were so astonished about getting an order for these particular rivets that they assumed that someone else was making a mistake here and so they sent something else each time; eventually the message got through. So much for that. On the question of liaison, I think possibly this should be condemned, the lack of it that is, but I don't feel that it is necessary to have a public enquiry into it. It would seem to me to have been far better if Government had given the public far more warning at least once it became necessary to have this 80 hour extension on the life of the aircraft - that might have been the time to curtail all flying other than essential flying and tell the public that those of you who are on the books to be flown will be flown but from now on any bookings you have should only be priority ones; And I think the public with that much more warning would have been less shocked, less inconvenienced and probably happier about the whole thing. The actual curtailment of flying was quite short if I remember correctly, the Air Service aircraft Alpha Lima was back into service by the beginning of the May holiday period and I don't think too many people were upset, other than those who suddenly found that they were booked for a few days time and told that the aircraft would not carry them unless they could get a special priority. So with those words, Honourable Members, I would say I cannot support the Motion as it stands."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I cannot see that a public enquiry is necessary to find out whether there were no cherry-headed rivets in stock or whether there was sufficient liaison. This is a matter that could be settled in a few minutes and if necessary any public announcement made. But I think the answers have been given near enough in full by the Chief Secretary and also the explanation by the Honourable Mr. Pitaluga. I think the result of a public enquiry would be another museum piece for the archives of the Secretariat and Treasury which I understand is already commonly known as the 'Victoria and Albert' !"

THE PRESIDENT

"Well gentlemen, I think the subject has been well and truly discussed; I think that the Honourable Robin Pitaluga has made a good point about the supply of the rivets and we are now so swamped in rivets we will probably have enough carry-headed and steel-headed rivets to last the next twenty years - we hope so! Equally I think that the point about liaison leaving room for improvement and I hope that on the administrative lines that this will be improved in the future."

The Motion was then put formally to Council.

"And the Motion is lost, thank you very much gentlemen."

A MOTION for the adoption of the Standing Finance Committee Report for the period January 1974 to May 1975 was put by the Financial Secretary. The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and carried.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

THE APPROPRIATION (1974/75) BILL, 1974.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the last budget anticipated a surplus of £17,000 although there has been a significant increase in expenditure during the year, it is now estimated that a surplus of £64,000 will be achieved. The surplus which is substantially greater, is largely due to surplus income being available from the Savings Bank for transfer to Government revenue, increase in revenue from the sale of postage stamps and a considerable number of modest revenue increases under other subheads.

The Colony's reserves supporting the Ordinary Revenue and Expenditure part of the Estimates are predicted to total £158,000 at the commencement of the 1974/75 fiscal year.

The 1974/75 Budget introduces a few revenue changes and forecasts a £57,000 surplus.

Expenditure is estimated at £796,000 and the forecast for revenue is £853,000.

The Revenue Estimates show increased revenue from the sale of electrical energy. This arises from the need to increase the tariff by approximately 50% from 2.72p to 4.09p per unit principally because of the increase in the cost of oil from just over £20 per ton to £70 and the inevitable reduction in the consumption of electricity following the closure of the ESRO Telemetry Station. The financial arrangements relating to the supply of electricity are subject to the approval of the Overseas Development Administration under the terms of the loan of £100,000 from the United Kingdom accepted by this Government in 1971.

It is proposed that customs duties on cigarettes should be increased from £1.25 to £2.00 per lb, this will increase a packet of twenty cigarettes by approximately 3³/₄p.

Duty on tobacco will be increased from £1 to £1.60 per lb. and on cigars from £2.10 to £3.36 per lb.

On present consumption these three increases in customs duties will yield £10,000.

In the Post Office it is proposed that all postage rates should be brought into line with those in the United Kingdom.

Later in the year it is proposed that legislation should be introduced giving effect to a modest increase in the company rate of tax before the 1975 year of assessment. I would like to mention at this point that it is also intended to review the present Income Tax legislation relating to Capital Allowances.

It is intended, subject to Foreign and Commonwealth Office approval that the annual contribution from the Dependencies and British Antarctic Territory should be increased from £4,500 to £10,000. This matter is currently under discussion and awaits the approval of the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs.

Also because of inflation The Ministry of Defence has been notified that the charter rate of the 'Forrest' will be increased to £30,000 a year.

It is proposed to issue four sets of commemorative stamps during the 1974/75 financial year. The total gross revenue from postage stamps is expected to exceed £70,000.

Revenue from Company tax is estimated at £300,000 for 1974/75 which is considerably higher than the current financial year and this arises from the higher selling price obtained for the 1972/73 wool clip which averaged 73p per kilogram.

I expect the high prices obtained from wool have made a slight contribution to the most severe global inflation, and the Falkland Islands economy certainly did not escape. The costs of supplies and services have increased enormously, unfortunately we must be towards the top of the list for consumer price inflation as we are right on the end of the line. The growth in Government expenditure should not come as a surprise to the public as the private sector of the community must also be seriously affected by escalating costs.

We are disappointed at not being able to achieve the transfer to reserves that could be expected from a wool price of over 70p per kilogram in normal times, however, we are fortunate that the wool prices rose steeply offsetting the increase in expenditure.

Ordinary expenditure for 1974/75 which is at an all time high of £796,000 includes some provision for the replacement of machinery etc., and a few new items of expenditure of which the items of more general interest to the public are :-

Provision for the recruitment of a qualified and experienced Agricultural Officer.

Provision for a one week visit to the Colony by a Supreme Court Judge.

Funds to provide more opportunities for the training of youths in various trades.

Under the Development section of the Estimates provision has been made for the Colony to tender £25,000 for some of the Doran Bungalows currently offered for sale by the European Space Research Organisation. This proposal is made for the purpose of replacing older Government properties which will be offered for sale to the public. Also from the Colony's Development Fund provision has been included for the following items appearing in the 5 year Development Plan :-

Installation of Water Meters £6,000 Tourism Promotion £500 and £10,000 for Culverts for Minor Roads. The estimated loan repayments for 1974/75 which are expected to total £4,500 have been reallocated for housing loans. The estimated gross expenditure to be met from the Colony Development Fund during 1974/75 is £46,000.

Expenditure to be met from UK Aid totals £1,050,000. One million for the permanent airfield and £50,000 for items appearing in the Development Plan of which £17,540 has been earmarked for the first stage of the School Hostel, £17,000 for the grasslands trial unit, £9,460 for Hospital Equipment recommended by the Hospital Administration Advisor, Mr. Crook, and £4,000 for Broadcasting equipment. The uncommitted balance of the Colony Development Fund at the end of the 1974/75 Financial year is forecast at just over £100,000.

At the Budget session of Council last year we were aware that external inflationary pressures would become increasingly severe during the year, and it is now obvious that these pressures will continue, at least in the short term. It seems that all countries are suffering the inflation and as yet nobody has come up with the remedy for its control. Since the last Budget the enormous increase in the price of oil has aggravated the situation and the outlook of the world-wide inflation seems rather more gloomy with a recent statement from the Shah of Iran that there were 70,000 derivatives of, what he referred to as a noble product - oil!

It is said that the rise in food prices, which was caused to a certain extent by bad weather in 1972, causing crop failures, may slow down, because of imminent bumper crops in some of the larger countries, but I fear that this is not likely to have any immediate significant effect on the rapid growth of our expenditure. It is almost certain that the next few cargoes of the charter vessel will include some of the 70,000 oil derivatives.

In spite of the tremendous increases in expenditure our Budget for the next year should also be a balanced one. Company tax will be based on the 1973/74 wool clip which I understand has sold at a record average of 111 pence per kilogram. The Income Tax Officer's spot estimate for 1975/76 Revenue from this source is half a million pounds.

I trust that the last statement takes some of the gloom from the statements I mentioned regarding imported inflation.

There are also a number of brighter spots for the not too distant future one in particular we hope will be the seigniorage from the grand first ever issue of Falkland Islands coins. From the first assessment it appears this source could yield as much as £100,000 per annum for a few years. We are beginning to benefit from tourism and it is hoped that the kelp and fish which we are apparently, abundantly surrounded with, will soon make a contribution to our Revenue.

It is predicted that our reserves inclusive of the Colony's Development Fund will be in the region of £300,000 at the end of the fiscal 1974/75 but it must be borne in mind that if the need arises to top up all our oil containers in the near future the Oil Stocks Replacement Fund will require a further injection of approximately £80,000.

Although this Budget contains some provision for inflation the increases in prices could be steeper than anticipated. The automatic cost of living scheme which is linked to the Index of Retail prices, and which for all intents and purposes is our prices and incomes policy, may have to be revised if revenue does not keep pace with expenditure. It is appreciated that such a step, if needed would have far reaching consequences, nevertheless, it is my duty to remind us all of the obvious that we cannot live beyond our means. We therefore cannot afford to stagnate and must become accustomed to frequent unpleasant revenue proposals to avoid excessively severe budgets in the future. I remind you that the greatest criticism received after last years tough Budget was that there were too many harsh revenue raising proposals all at the one time and that Government should have introduced smaller frequent increases earlier.

It is appreciated that while the wage earner is largely protected from rising costs e.g. increased electricity costs, the old age pensioner is not, but it is reassuring that later at this budget session consideration will be given to legislation for substantial pension increases for persons in receipt of old age pensions and an extension of the non-contributory pension scheme.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Honourable Financial Secretary for that very clear exposition of the financial situation."

This was seconded by the Chief Secretary and the Bill was read a first time. On a further Motion put by the Financial Secretary and seconded by the Chief Secretary, the Bill was read a second time.

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I didn't know I would be the only one who was going to speak. We are being asked to approve an estimate of ordinary expenditure of £796,380 for the year 1974/75. This is an increase over the approved estimate, I repeat the approved estimate, for 1973/74 of £353,372 or 46.6 per cent. So far as I am aware inflation is running at about 22 per cent annually. One wonders why we need the rest. The Honourable Financial Secretary will quickly point out that though the approved estimate for 1973/74 was £543,008, the final revised estimate was £624,922 so it was the difference between supplementary expenditure voted during the year, that is to say money voted to cover underestimating due to a variety of causes, for that financial year. It has always been my experience while I have been on Council that a large amount of supplementary expenditure has to be voted and I see no reason why we shall not be asked to do the same again for the financial year 1974/75. The excess of the revised estimate for 1973/74 over the approved estimate amounts to approximately fifteen per cent of that year's approved estimate. If we apply fifteen per cent to the 1974/75 estimate we get a probable, I repeat probable, revised figure of about £916,000. Where are we supposed to get that amount of money? Does anybody imagine that if we spend around £900,000 in 1974/75 that we will spend less in 1975/76 when our main industry may not be so profitable, as it almost certainly won't be? Let us be quite clear Honourable Members on one point, 95 per cent of all revenue comes off the sheep's back. Alginite yields, and will yield for a number of years, a mere pittance, not nearly one half per cent of our revenue needs; tourism, that parasitic and nationally debilitating industry so beloved by our Honourable Chief Secretary - what does that yield to the government in tax - a mere pittance, literally a pittance. In fact we subsidise the travel by Beaver out of general revenue, the sheep produces it. Now there are about 575,000 sheep shorn in the Colony to produce the estimated expenditure we require or we are being asked to vote; every sheep shorn has to directly contribute £1.38 or 40p per kilo of every wool produced. If as usual we have to be asked for another fifteen per cent in supplementary expenditure, every sheep shorn in the Colony would have to contribute £1.59 or 45½ p per kilo of wool shorn. You may say the sheep do not pay all this; a lot comes from individual taxation, customs dues etc., The fact is the sheep do pay it all, every last penny of it. Without the sheep there would be no income and no-one to pay customs dues. It is fairly certain that wool prices will probably be in the 70 to 85 per cent pence kilo bracket next season and that is the season which pays for the 1975/76 estimates. If government then requires 45p for every kilo of wool produced and it costs the farmer 45p per kilo to produce it there is only one answer, it is obvious - we will be broke. I think it is extremely unlikely if we vote this sum of money in the estimates and we have hard times in our main industry next year that we shall be able to reduce it by a hundred thousand pounds to make ends meet. I therefore oppose the estimates of expenditure and I consider it should be reduced by at least one hundred thousand pounds."

"Sir, I am not going to dwell on those large figures which Mr. Monk has so ably put forward, possibly with the aid of his little calculator, but I am going back to my pet subject on the development plan, water meters, having during the past year looked into this fairly rigidly. I am now going to try to illustrate what may or may not be involved. The installation costs are about six thousand pounds for three hundred odd meters, I believe it is doubtful if that number is going to be sufficient to go around anyway. We are hoping the fittings and the valves and all the other rigmarole that goes with them to get them fitted in, will arrive on the "Lanette" but there is a possibility they may not. As far as I can gather each meter will have to be adequately protected against frost and other possible damages, which means that if the meter is installed close to the roadside concrete pits, steel covers and goodness knows what will have to be constructed possibly on quite a number of them. The cost of reading and servicing these meters will be recurrent which I suppose will be affected by inflation. The medical authorities were consulted but the general public have not yet been informed of their opinions. Installation automatically constitutes a tax against health and cleanliness and a family saving on water could well prove, to my mind, to be unhygienic. From various experts who have arrived in the Colony since January of 1974 I have found them all to be in agreement against the metering of water for Stanley householders. Even in Britain many authorities have regretted this move. I, Sir, have not found one constituent who is in full favour and therefore wish again to publicly object to this item of so called development. Thank you Sir."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have very little to say except that I whole-heartedly naturally agree with the Honourable Mr. Monk's figures. He said given certain circumstances that we will be broke; we most certainly will be broke if wool goes down a little bit and it makes it more realistic to realise that what I said this morning about having to slash this budget. We have got to; If necessary we have got to cut some man-power (not necessarily paying anybody off but if they go away we don't replace them) we have got to do something pretty drastic, if wool goes down to about 40p we are all cut, the whole lot of us, everybody in this Colony, we are all up Queer Street. We have got to be pretty serious in the next two days and use a pretty heavy red pencil and if it affects any human beings, well that is just too bad."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you Honourable Sidney Miller. I hope that you are not going to say that wool is down to 40p."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have only total admiration for Mr. Monk's speech and for the figures he has produced. I only wish I had the ability and the energy to produce something similar. I will define my remarks by saying that I support him entirely in what he said, unless someone can convince me in the next few days that his figures and his conclusions are wrong. Thank you Sir."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, we are going to be sitting around the table in another place arguing interminably for the next I don't know how many hours. I would just like to make two points. Last year in our expenditure estimates we did not allow any percentage for inflation. You will recall that I made a plea to put in a seven per cent inflation charge on all the estimates to bring them into the realms of reality. I was voted down I think unanimously and therefore we have had to vote this large amount of supplementary expenditure in order to keep up with inflation. This year in the estimates that you have before you this seven per cent of inflationary provision is incorporated. This is a normal step I think in most countries; possibly seven per cent is underestimating it in the galloping inflationary days now but none the less I would like to make the point that we have this year included a provision for inflation in all the figures before you so that one would hope, and of course I shall not be here this time next year to be proved wrong, I would hope that therefore the amount of supplementary expenditure which you will be called upon to vote will be substantially reduced. Secondly I would just like to underline the Honourable Financial Secretary's mention of our coinage issue which is now in its last stages of production. We are expecting it to come out in three or four months. We have been confidently told that it will bring us in a large amount of revenue; we are told a hundred thousand pounds a year and I think we should not forget it. And thirdly I would just emphasise what His Excellency mentioned too, we have the Taiyo Fishing Company very interested. They filled their ship very quickly, they sold it very well, they are now coming back for a round the year survey, having done a summer survey they are sending a ship to complete a round the year survey. They are making full enquiries about establishing a company here establishing facilities here and I speak from experience in another place where we signed an agreement with Taiyo it again brought in a flat one hundred thousand pounds a year guaranteed immediate income. So I think possibly we might lift our eyes just a little bit from the wool on the sheeps backs. On one of two other issues, I dare to mention tourism, but it is up and coming; we doubled this year; the money is coming in; it brings us a soupcon and a soupcon is worth cultivating, you never know it could grow into something a little bit more."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, we will have the opportunity of dealing in detail with the expenditure during the next day or two and I will be very pleased if we can reduce it by such figures as one hundred thousand pounds, provided we don't have to vote it half way through the year again, or it does not delay getting some of those things which are required now; such things are replacements. If they are necessary then I think we should go ahead, and even though it may be a little large this year I don't think there is much point in delaying expenditure. If there is any room for cutting back and cutting down permanently, fine, I look forward to discussing it in detail with Honourable Members and if we can trim, it would be excellent."

THE PRESIDENT

"I think that everybody has aired their views very adequately and although as the Honourable Adrian Monk says I think there is a reason to be careful and prudent, I don't think we want to be too pessimistic. When I first came here our best economists in the form of Peat Marwick and Mitchell were extrapolating, the prices of man-made fibres was going up and the price of wool was coming down, but in twelve months it was reversed, the other way, and I think in the next day, possibly two, you will have a good opportunity to study all the facts and figures and come back to the full Council (I said one or two not three) for a further debate. Do Members agree that the Bill now be read a second time? No objection. The Bill will be read a second time."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I beg to second the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"The Motion is that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House, any objection to the Motion? I had better get in quickly! No objection, the Bill will be considered in Select Committee of the House and I have pleasure in appointing all the official and elected, nominated Members to be Members of the Select Committee. Thank you Honourable Members, and the sooner I see you all again the better!"

Council resumed at 9.30 a.m. on Monday the 10th June. 1974.

PRESENT

The President

The Honourable the Chief Secretary (Mr. T.H. Layng)

The Honourable the Financial Secretary (Mr. H.T. Rowlands)

The Honourable S. Miller. JP.

The Honourable R.M. Pitaluga.

The Honourable A.B. Monk, JP.

The Honourable W.E. Bowles

Mr. R. Browning (Clerk to Council)

The meeting stood in silence for a minute as a mark of respect for His Royal Highness The Duke of Gloucester, K.G., P.C., K.T., K.P., etc., who had died earlier in the morning.

The Financial Secretary then reported back from Select Committee saying -

"Your Excellency, the Select Committee has reviewed the 1974/75 Estimates of the Colony in accordance with the Standing Rules and Orders of this Council.

With regard to the immediate revenue raising proposals included in this year's Budget it is recommended by the Committee -

That the proposal to bring postage rates into line with those in the United Kingdom should not be proceeded with.

That a resolution should be introduced for increasing import duties on cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, and I will introduce this resolution immediately after the Appropriations Bill has passed through Council.

The Committee also recommend that -

Darwin Boarding School Fees should be increased to £30 per annum per pupil.

Port dues, wharfage, pilot fees, customs officers and shipping masters fees should also be increased.

The result of the Select Committee's review of the Estimates is that the estimated surplus under the Ordinary Revenue and Expenditure Section is increased from £57,484 to £71,466.

And the Select Committee propose the following amendments to the Draft Estimates -

Revenue Estimates

Under Revenue Head IV Fees and Fines increase item 3 Customs Service and Shipping from £340 to £1,000; increase item 7 Boarding School Fees from £650 to £1,100.

Head XIX Supreme Court and Legal - under Special Expenditure delete Item 8 Law Books £1,000.

Development A. Expenditure to be met from Colony Funds, delete provision of £500 under Item 3 Tourism Promotion.

Under Development Revenue. Reduce the Transfer from the Development Fund from £35,305 to £34,805."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Honourable Financial Secretary for a very good survey. Obviously the Committee has been working very hard. I declare the Council to be in Committee."

In the Committee stage Clause 1 of the Bill was agreed and consideration of Clause 2 was deferred until after the Schedule had been considered.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed.

The Financial Secretary seconded by the Chief Secretary moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill, subject to the following amendments :-

	Head	Delete	Insert
JV	Customs and Harbour	25,177	24,039
V	Education	111,994	106,709

	Total Expenditure	1,898,185	1,892,015

It was agreed that the Schedule, as amended, should stand part of the Bill and that Clause 2 should also stand part of the Bill subject to the following amendment - That the words and figures "£1,898,185" be deleted and the words and figures "£1,892,015" be substituted.

Council resumed

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, earlier at this meeting a proposal was made to increase the import duty on tobacco, cigarettes and cigars. The proposal was considered in Select Committee on the Estimates and it was the general consensus of opinion that the increased duty should be introduced. I therefore beg to move the following Resolution -

Be it resolved in exercise of the powers conferred by Section 5 of the Customs Ordinance as follows. This Resolution may be cited as the Customs Amendment of Duties Resolution 1974 and shall come into operation on the 10th June 1974.

Paragraph 2 of the Customs Ordinance is hereby amended in item 3 by the deletion from the third column of the amounts £2, £1.20, 95p, £2.10, £1.25 and £1 and the substitution therefor of the amounts £3.20, £1.92, £1.52, £3.36, £2.00 and £1.60 respectively.

I also lay on the table the Certificate of Urgency."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you Honourable Financial Secretary."

The Chief Secretary seconded.

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, our Honourable friend the Financial Secretary pointed out that it was accepted by the majority. I was the opposing resolution. The main basis of my opposition to the Resolution is that it is simply not necessary. We don't need this year the revenue which this would produce and therefore it is not necessary. I therefore oppose the Resolution."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I was not expecting to speak at all on this, only as I differ so strongly from my Honourable friend on my left I just thought I would say a few words. I think he is quite wrong in saying we do not need this, it is ten thousand pounds and we need a lot more than that. Not do I imply more duties on tobacco cigars and things, I smoke cigars myself, but we need a lot more than ten thousand pounds in our Budget and any increase in duty whether it is on cigarettes or tobacco generally or even on spirits for that matter, is to me not terribly important. I mean if a fellow uses all those things he can cut down or he can stop it or he can pay. He has got three alternatives. I would merely submit, Sir, in opposition to my Honourable friend that we need that ten thousand pounds."

The Motion was then put and carried.

BILLS

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1972-3) BILL 1974.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill seeks formal covering approval for expenditure incurred in excess of that provided by the Appropriation Ordinance for 1972/73. All items of expenditure for 1972/73 appearing on this Bill have been approved by the Standing Finance Committee and by the Council at the time of adopting the various Standing Finance Committee Reports. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

Mr. Pitaluga seconded.

The Motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE OLD AGE PENSION (AMENDMENT) BILL 1974.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, you Sir have been particularly concerned over the affect of the phenomenal growth in prices on our senior citizens. The Board of Management of the Old Age Pensions Fund, the General Employees Union and Members of this Council have also made representations for increasing Old Age Pensions. I think this must be the first meeting of Council for some time that the Honourable W.E. Bowles has not tabled a question pressing for an increase in pensions. Earlier this year Mr. Stuart McDowall also added his strong support to these proposals to increase pensions. He advised that consideration should be given to awarding a proportionately larger increase to widows, widowers and single persons because of the basic needs, for example, heat and light and accommodation. After careful consideration his proposal has been accepted and it is now proposed to increase the pension of a married man who is supporting a wife from £4.65 per week to £7 per week and for an unmarried person, a widow, etc., from £2.32½ per week to £4 per week.

The question of financing the increases has been a matter of much discussion and consideration. On receipt of the Actuary's Report the question of financing the increases was referred back to the Actuary and he advised that a weekly contribution in the region of £1.60 would be required. During the consideration of the Estimates the Select Committee considered the proposed increase in the weekly contribution too high for both the employer and employee to finance and have recommended that government should make a contribution from public funds to cover part of the increase required. The sum of £12,750 has been inserted in the Estimates provisionally. Some Members have reservations on the amount to be injected and have requested further professional advice; the contribution has therefore been reserved. Honourable Members of this Council have recommended that the balance of the weekly contribution which is £1.30 should be shared between employer and employee, the employer to bear 80p per week and the employee to bear the remaining 50p. I shall be making proposals when the Bill reaches the Committee stage to take into account the suggestions made by the Select Committee on the estimates, I would therefore like to summarise what is now proposed - for the objects of the Bill are now to increase contributions by employed male and female contributors from 26p to 50p, by employers of male and female employees from 34p to 80p, by self-employed male and female contributors from 60p to £1.30 and to increase pensions for married men from £4.65 to £7.00 per week, for unmarried persons from £2.32½ to £4.00 per week. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

Mr. Bowles seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

After a further motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time.

MR. BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think we are all delighted that this Bill and the one to follow has reached this Table today. On behalf of the pensioners I think we should thank publicly yourself, the General Employees Union for helping us to push this along, and the Financial Secretary for his hard work in preparation and presentation of this Ordinance. Referring to payment, I am of the opinion that expenses should be assisted from general taxation in order to give fair coverage to everyone involved and we now have a subsidy in reserve for this purpose if it is necessary. I would imagine many tax payers would be contented to know that at least some of their money is going to be spent where it is needed and especially for those pensioners who have only this form of income to live on. Sir, I beg to second the Motion."

Council went into Committee.

In Committee, Clause 2 was amended by deleting "70p", "90p", and "£1.60" and substituting therefor "50p", "80p", and "£1.30" respectively and Clause 3 was amended by deleting "£1.60" and substituting "£1.30" therefor.

Council resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed as amended.

THE PRESIDENT

"I would like to congratulate Honourable Members on the way they have dealt with this problem and I think that it will give great satisfaction throughout the Colony to all of us who care for the welfare of the old people."

THE NON-CONTRIBUTORY OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1974.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, the Non-contributory Pensions Scheme was introduced into the Colony in 1961 as a measure of relief for most of the old people who were excluded from contributing to the Old Age Pensions Scheme, and consequently from deriving any benefits therefrom. A number of representations have been made from time to time from people who although eligible to have bought themselves into the contributory scheme some fifteen years ago, failed to do so. With soaring prices, the widows of some of these men have made representations for Non-contributory Pensions and it is now considered that there is some justification for extending the provisions of the Ordinance to allow these widows to benefit. It is also considered that those few men who are still living but failed to buy themselves into the Scheme should also be granted pensions despite the fact that they did not take advantage of benefiting from the Contributory Scheme. The Bill extends the provisions of the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions Ordinance to those persons I have just referred to. In addition it provides increases in Non-contributory Old Age Pensions for a married man from £3.20 to £5.00 per week, for a single person from £1.60 to £3.00 per week. At present Non-contributory Pensions are only payable in cases where the applicant, if a married man is in receipt of less than £300, and in the case of a single person in receipt of less than £150 per annum. These amounts were laid down in 1961 and with a fall in the purchasing power of the pound since then it is considered that there is justification for increasing the income limits to £500 in the case of a married man, and £300 per annum in the case of a single person. This Bill provides for increasing these income limits. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

This was seconded by Mr. Bowles and carried.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time."

MR. BOWLES seconded, and went on to say -

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, once again as I said earlier, I am pleased that this Bill which is the one to follow, has come before us and there is very little for me to say Sir, I think I covered it the first time but I am very pleased that some of these people, who did not take advantage some years ago will now receive benefits which I am sure they will appreciate."

The Bill was then read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE LOTTERIES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1974.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill is designed to remove three things - one word from the Lotteries Ordinance; some profanity; and a very cross section of humanity! This small but very controversial piece of legislation is necessary to empower the Governor to issue tax-free licences for lotteries conducted in aid of any purpose approved by him.

At present the Governor is able to grant tax-free licences for lotteries conducted in aid of any charitable purpose but is prevented from issuing tax-free licences for lotteries conducted in aid of social activities which are considered desirable, for example, youth organisations.

Up until two years ago tax-free licences were issued through a doubtful interpretation of the Ordinance; since a literal interpretation of the Ordinance has been strictly kept to the Colony revenue has benefited by approximately £700 per annum but apparently the finances of the various clubs have been adversely affected as there has been a fall in their sale of lottery tickets. Some consider that the imposition of the tax is the reason for the downward trend; it is with this in mind that Members of this Council have made a very strong appeal for the Ordinance to be amended to permit tax-free lotteries to be conducted for the purpose of financing desirable activities. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

Mr. Monk seconded.

The Motion was put and carried.

The Financial Secretary then moved the second reading of the Bill.

MR. MONK seconded, and then said -

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think the Honourable Financial Secretary has in fact summed the position up very concisely. My principal reason for seconding the Bill is that so many lotteries, run to support very desirable activities, have been having a very tough time indeed in raising the funds for these activities and in fact the various activities might tend to die out if we did not allow them to run these lotteries on a tax-free basis."

MR. BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to support my friend on my right on this issue. I have had quite a lot of representations made to me from various organisations in Stanley, not only youth organisations but very old organisations, and I too am very pleased that we have now withdrawn this from proposals we made earlier about two yyears ago I think it was. Thank you."

The Bill was read a second time.

After being taken through the Committee stage, the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE IMMIGRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL 1974.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, since the Colony's external communications have taken the form of air transportation there is a real need for the introduction of a system for the recovery of income tax from persons travelling overseas who may forget to settle their income tax liabilities before leaving the Colony. To overcome this problem it is suggested that a certificate should be issued by the Income Tax Officer to show that persons leaving the Colony have discharged their obligations under the Income Tax Ordinance and that failure to get this clearance will result in the Immigration Officer, in this case acting as Emigration Officer, stopping a person from boarding the aircraft or vessel until the required certificate has been produced. Similar systems are in operation in other parts of the world and the proposed system is simple and should achieve the object without causing undue inconvenience to anybody. It should be noted that this requirement is not necessary in the case of a person under the age of fifteen years, or whose stay in the Colony does not exceed three months. The reason for this is to avoid throwing unwarranted duties on the Immigration Officer and causing unnecessary paper work in the Income Tax Office, and unnecessary inconvenience to tourists, children and their parents. The income tax from persons in this group is likely to be negligible.

I would like to ask your permission to take the opportunity formally to thank the staff of Darwin Shipping Limited who have co-operated with the Income Tax Office for the recovery of income Tax from persons leaving the Colony on the Darwin and other FIC vessels over a very long period; their co-operation has been outstanding.

This Bill seeks to prevent persons leaving the Colony without having settled their income tax liabilities and I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time."

Mr. Pitaluga seconded.

The motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage, and after Council had resumed, was read a third time and passed.

THE INCOME TAX (NO 3) BILL 1974

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, under the Income Tax Ordinance, when a trade loss cannot be wholly set off against income from other sources for the same year it can be carried forward and set off against income for the next five years in succession, provided that the amount of tax payable for any of the five years is not reduced to less than half the amount which would have been payable had no loss been carried forward. Our income tax adviser in the United Kingdom states that it is modern practice to get rid of these limitations because reasons suggests that a business should be taxed on its net profit without any artificial restrictions. This Bill is intended to do away with these restrictions and provides for a business to set off a loss in succeeding years until the loss is exhausted. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

Mr. Miller seconded the notion and the Bill was read a first time.

After a further motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time and Council went into Committee. In Committee, the Short Title was amended to read: the Income Tax (No.2) Ordinance 1974; and the following words were added to Clause 1 namely -

"and shall come into force on 1st January 1975."

Council resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed as amended.

THE INCOME TAX (NO.4) BILL 1974.

THE PRESIDENT

"You are having a bad morning Honourable Financial Secretary!"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, we have at present provision under the Income Tax Ordinance for the following three types of double taxation relief - relief for UK tax relief for Commonwealth tax and agreement relief. In recent correspondence Mr. Comben writes "Of these three, relief for UK tax is displaced by the UK agreement and Section 46 is made inoperative by Section 49(2) so it might as well be repealed. Relief for Commonwealth tax is old-fashioned and I consider it ought to be removed and replaced by unilateral tax credit, this is the modern system by which the country in which the tax-payer is resident gives relief against its tax for the tax of the country in which the income arises, the amount of relief being the lower of the two taxes on the doubly taxed income." The result would be that where there is an agreement with the other country the relief would be determined by the terms of the agreement. Where there is no agreement we would have to give a measure of relief only where the tax-payer is resident in the Colony. The Bill before the House has many desirable features but this proposal has other implications in the fact that we have special relationships with South American countries and I am a little concerned over one or two of the words, whether it is absolutely suitable in our case and I feel that it may be possible to improve this Bill before it passes through Council. Therefore, with your permission Sir, I would like to discuss the matter further when I am in the United Kingdom with Mr. Burrows of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Mr. Comben. In the meantime I would like the Bill withdrawn from this session of Council."

Leave to withdraw the Bill was given.

THE MARRIAGE (AMENDMENT) BILL 1974

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, my sole contribution today as a mover of government bills, arises again, ironically perhaps, in proposing a further amendment to the Marriage Ordinance. At present under the provision of the existing Ordinance a marriage after banns can be solemnised by a Minister only in a place registered for the celebration of marriages which means at present only in one of the three churches in Stanley. This means therefore that when banns are called in a Stanley church for a wedding which will be solemnised in the Camp, the wedding can take place only after a special licence or a Registrar General's licence has been issued and this detracts to a certain extent from the prerogatives of a Minister. Representations have been made by all the three churches that this short amendment should be made to the Marriage Ordinance to allow marriages to take place in the camp in a building deemed suitable by the Minister. A second effect of the proposed amendment will allow a marriage to take place in Stanley in a building other than a church and this could of course be very appropriate in a case of sickness, either on the part of the Minister or on the part of the parties concerned. Your Excellency I wish to propose the Motion that the Bill be read a first time."

Mr. Miller seconded.

The Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill went through the Committee stage without amendment.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I beg to second the motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"The motion is that the House stands adjourned sine die. Does any Honourable Member wish to speak? Nobody wishes to speak. Well I would just like to close by congratulating all the Honourable Members and in particular the Honourable Financial Secretary who has had a very heavy load to carry, and I think that the amendments that Members produced several days later in Committee have been sensible, practicable, and I am quite certain of great assistance to the Colony in general. Thank you Honourable Members, ladies and gentlemen."

The House then adjourned sine die.

Falkland Islands Dependencies

IN THE TWENTY-THIRD YEAR OF THE REIGN OF
Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

ERNEST GORDON LEWIS, C.M.G., O.B.E.
Governor.

An Ordinance

Title.

To apply certain Laws of the Colony to the Dependencies.

Enacting clause.

ENACTED for the Dependencies of the Colony of the Falkland Islands by the Governor of the Colony of the Falkland Islands and the Dependencies thereof, as follows —

Short title.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Application of Colony Laws (No. 2) Ordinance 1974.

Application of Colony Ordinance.

2. The Ordinance of the Colony specified in the first and second columns of the Schedule to this Ordinance is applied to the Dependencies, and shall be deemed to be in force in the Dependencies with effect from the date set out opposite its short title in the third column of the Schedule to this Ordinance.

SCHEDULE

No.	Short title	Effective Date
10 of 1974	Immigration (Amendment) Ordinance 1974	12th June 1974.

Promulgated by the Governor on the 19th day of July 1974.

Fugitive Offenders Act 1967
(1967 c. 68)

ORDER

(under section 2(1) of the Act)

No. 2 of 1974.

E. G. LEWIS,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 2 (1) of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 and the Fugitive Offenders (Falkland Islands and Dependencies) Order 1968, the Governor with the approval of the Secretary of State, has made the following Order —

1967 c. 68.
S. I. 1968/113.

1. This Order may be cited as the Fugitive Offenders (Designated Commonwealth Countries) Order 1974 and shall come into operation on 19th July 1974.

2. The Commonwealth of the Bahamas is hereby designated for the purposes of section 1 of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967.

By Command,

R. BROWNING,
Acting Chief Secretary.

19th July 1974.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

Section 2(1) of the Fugitive Offenders Act 1967 enables any country within the Commonwealth to be designated by Order for the purposes of section 1 of the Act (so that the provisions of the Act relating to the return of offenders to the independent Commonwealth countries and not those relating to United Kingdom dependencies will apply). This Order designates the Bahamas for those purposes.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government, the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd., and the General Employees Union. The agreement shall be effective for the period from the 15th April 1974 to 31st December 1974, and shall apply to hourly paid employees in Stanley.

It should be noted that during the period 1st January 1974, to 14th April 1974, an industrial dispute existed between hourly paid employees and their employers. During this period automatic cost of living awards continued to be granted (awards of 2p on 1st January 1974 and 2p on 1st April 1974 were made). The dispute was settled through arbitration with a 10% increase in wages of hourly paid employees to take effect from 1st January 1974.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	52p
2. *Apprentices	1st year 35p 2nd year 36.5p 3rd year 39p 4th year 42p 5th year 45.5p
3. Handymen	46p to 50.5p according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	45.5p
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	46.5p
6. Labourers	<table style="width: 100%; border: none;"> <thead> <tr> <th style="text-align: left;">Age</th> <th style="text-align: right;">Hourly Rate.</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>14-15</td> <td style="text-align: right;">28p</td> </tr> <tr> <td>15-16</td> <td style="text-align: right;">31p</td> </tr> <tr> <td>16-17</td> <td style="text-align: right;">35.5p</td> </tr> <tr> <td>17-18</td> <td style="text-align: right;">39.5p</td> </tr> <tr> <td>18 and over</td> <td style="text-align: right;">45p</td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	Age	Hourly Rate.	14-15	28p	15-16	31p	16-17	35.5p	17-18	39.5p	18 and over	45p
Age	Hourly Rate.
14-15	28p
15-16	31p
16-17	35.5p
17-18	39.5p
18 and over	45p

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 2p per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 4p to 7½p per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 10p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 1½p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 1½p per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 2½p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 40 hours per week made up as follows –

Monday to Friday – 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 40 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows –

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 - (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 - (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 - (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 - (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 40-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Holidays.

(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following eight days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

New Year's Day, Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday and Commonwealth Day, October Bank Holiday, Anniversary of Battle of Falkland Islands, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Annual Stanley Sports Meeting.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Saturday or a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

7. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed one year's service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.
- (b) There shall be no entitlement to sick pay for the first three days of sickness.
- (c) If sickness lasts for more than three days an employee shall be entitled to the following sick pay commencing after the expiry of the first three days of sickness -
 - (i) Employees who have completed one year's service with their employer -
 - Full pay for the first week.
 - Half pay for the second and third weeks.
 - (ii) Employees who have completed three year's service with their employer -
 - Full pay for the first two weeks.
 - Half pay for the third and fourth weeks.
- (d) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (e) An employer may demand a medical certificate before making any payment in respect of sick pay.
- (f) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work.

8. General.

- (a) Employment is normally terminated, either by employer or employee, at the end of the working week, but employment may be terminated at the end of any working day. A minimum of two hours' notice shall be given, except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed.
- (b) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.
- (c) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.
- (d) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.
- (e) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.
