SCHEDULE

SUPPLEMENTARY ARRANGEMENT BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS AND HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED KINGDOM TO AMEND THE EXISTING ARRANGEMENTS MADE IN 1949 FOR THE AVOIDANCE OF DOUBLE TAXATION AND THE PREVENTION OF FISCAL EVASION WITH RESPECT TO TAXES ON INCOME, AS MODIFIED BY THE ARRANGEMENT MADE IN 1968.

1. The Arrangement made in 1949 between His Majesty's Government and the Government of the Falkland Islands for the avoidance of double taxation and the prevention of fiscal evasion with respect to taxes on income as modified by the Arrangement made in 1968 shall be amended —

(a) by the addition in the first sub-paragraph of Paragraph 2 (1) (K), immediately following the word "business", of the phrase —

"including a building site or construction or assembly project which exists for more than twelve months";

(b) by the substitution for Paragraph 6 of the following new Paragraph —

"6. (1) (a) Dividends paid by a company which is a resident of the United Kingdom to a resident of the Colony may be taxed in the Colony.

(b) Where a resident of the Colony is entitled to a tax credit in respect of such a dividend under sub-paragraph (2) of this Paragraph tax may also be charged in the United Kingdom, and according to the laws of the United Kingdom, on the aggregate of the amount or value of that dividend and the amount of that tax credit at a rate not exceeding 15 per cent.

- (c) Except as aforesaid, dividends paid by a company which is a resident of the United Kingdom to a resident of the Colony who is subject to tax in the Colony on them shall be exempt from any tax in the United Kingdom which is chargeable on dividends.
- (2) A resident of the Colony who receives dividends from a company which is a resident of the United Kingdom shall, subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (3) of this Paragraph and provided he is subject to tax in the Colony on those dividends, be entitled to the tax credit in respect thereof to which an individual resident in the United Kingdom would have been entitled had he received those dividends, and to the payment of any excess of such credit over his liability to United Kingdom tax.
- (3) Sub-paragraph (2) of this Paragraph shall not apply where the recipient of the dividend is a company which, either alone or together with one or more associated companies, controls directly or indirectly at least 10 per cent of the voting power in the company paying the dividend. For the purposes of this sub-paragraph two companies shall be deemed to be associated if one is controlled directly or indirectly by the other, or both are controlled directly or indirectly by a third company.
- (4) Dividends paid by a company which is a resident of the Colony to a resident of the United Kingdom who is subject to tax in the United Kingdom in respect thereof shall be exempt from any tax in the Colony which is chargeable on dividends in addition to the tax chargeable in respect of the profits or income of the company.
- (5) The term "dividends" as used in this Paragraph means income from shares, or any other item which under the law of the territory of which the company paying the dividend is a resident, is treated as a dividend or distribution of the company.
- (6) If the recipient of a dividend is a company which owns 10 per cent or more of the class of shares in respect of which the dividend is paid then sub-paragraphs (1) and (2) or, as the case may be, sub-paragraph (4) of this Paragraph shall not apply to the dividend to the extent that it can have been paid only out of profits which the company paying the dividend earned or other income which it received in a period ending twelve months or more before the relevant date. For the purposes of this sub-paragraph the term "relevant date" means the date on which the beneficial owner of the dividend became the owner of 10 per cent or more of the class of shares in question.

Provided that this sub-paragraph shall not apply if the beneficial owner of the dividend shows that the shares were acquired for bonafide commercial reasons and not primarily for the purpose of securing the benefit of this Paragraph.

- (7) The provisions of sub-paragraphs (1) and (2) or as the case may be, sub-paragraph (4) of this Paragraph shall not apply where a resident of one of the Territories has in the other territory a permanent establishment and the holding by virtue of which the dividends are paid is effectively connected with a business carried on through that permanent establishment. In such a case the provisions of Paragraph 3 shall apply.
- (8) Where a company which is a resident of one of the territories derives profits or income from sources within the other territory, the Government of that other territory, shall not impose any form of taxation on dividends paid by the company to persons not resident in that other territory, or any tax in the nature of an undistributed profits tax on undistributed profits of the company, by reason of the fact that those dividends or undistributed profits represent, in whole or in part, profits or income so derived."

2. This Supplementary Arrangement shall enter into force when the last of all such things shall have been done in the United Kingdom and the Colony as are necessary to give the Supplementary Arrangement the force of law in the United Kingdom and the Colony respectively and shall thereupon have effect —

- (a) as respects Paragraph 1 (a) from the date of entry into force; and
 (b) as respects Paragraph 1 (b) in relation to dividends paid on or after 6 April 1973.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order)

1. This supplementary arrangement provides for —
- (i) Extension to the definition of 'permanent establishment'.
 - (ii) Amendment to paragraph 6 of the Double Taxation Arrangement to take into account the new code of taxation introduced in the United Kingdom to take effect from April 1973.
2. This Order re-enacts with a minor drafting amendment and replaces the Double Taxation Relief (United Kingdom) (Amendment) Order 1973.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on Tuesday 4th June, 1974, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen -

This is the last meeting of the Legislative Council which I will attend. It has been my privilege to preside over your meetings during the past four years so, perhaps, you will allow me to look back further than the last meeting of the Council and to make a few personal observations.

When I arrived in January 1971, our main industry, the production of wool, was in a depressed state, with the prospects for the future gloomy. How good it was for the Colony that all the economic forecasts proved false and, during the past two seasons, prices received for our wool clip reached a reasonable level of profitability, thus giving a much needed boost to the economy of the Colony and, in addition, giving us all hope for the future.

For this dominant industry, Government can only do so much in the way of development grants and the provision of professional expertise, but the main burden must rest on the shoulders of management and labour. And I would like to pay tribute to all the men, and, indeed, the Camp community as a whole, for the way they have adapted themselves to changing conditions, thus ensuring that the efficiency of the industry is maintained.

It is always difficult to predict the future pattern of commodity prices and, it appears that, once again, our cyclical industry is on the down-turn, but I have no doubt that in the medium and long term prices will rise again.

Also, soon after I arrived in 1971, following the withdrawal of the RMS "Darwin", the pattern of our external communications changed and we now rely for our passenger movements, airmail and some freight on the splendid service provided by LADE. The build up in traffic to and from the mainland has been impressive and I can foresee that in the near future, particularly during the summer months, we will need, perhaps, two flights a week on a regular basis to cope with the demand. It is good to see that after so many feasibility studies and other surveys, that Johnston Construction Company is now in Stanley busily mobilising for the work to be done on the main airfield at Cape Pembroke. I am certain that the field, when completed, together with the access road to Cape Pembroke, will enable the Colony to cope with the economic growth of the future. I know that some people, perhaps, taking a rather churlish attitude, say, "What good is this airfield going to do". I would like to make two points. Firstly, HMG has an obligation, under the Communications Agreement with the Argentine of 1971, to provide a permanent airfield and this we are doing. Secondly, this airfield will be our own and under our control as distinct from the temporary strip at Hookers Point which is under the control of the Argentine Air Force. Also, I have heard suggestions that the strip should be longer so that it could take 'planes flying from Brazil, Montevideo, South Africa or some other place. What such services would provide I fail to see, as the 'planes would be flying petrol rather than passengers'. If all goes well, as we hope, it will be difficult to provide a regular communications link with the mainland which will surpass the service being provided to-day by LADE.

With the increase in 'plane movements and more ships calling at our Islands, it is inevitable that more and more tourists will be coming to the Falklands. In my view this is good and a healthy development and we should be proud to show visitors the beauty which these Islands have to offer. Sometimes complaints are made that the visitors buy up all the much needed goods in our shops and that we, as local people, suffer. Surely, the answer to this problem is that our importers should carry sufficient stocks to meet the increased demand.

Having touched on tourism it may be relevant to look at other prospects for economic development.

Firstly, it is refreshing that at long last interest is being shown in our fishing resources. This month we will have two trawlers from Taiyo Maru working in our waters for up to three months and, on the completion of these trials, the Company should be in a position to decide whether it is possible to set up a viable industry. Enquiries have also come in from a British Company about the possibilities of setting up a base here so that they can look for crab.

I do not want to go into details about the prospects for Alginate Industries Limited as this is the subject of a question later in these proceedings but, as I mentioned at the last meeting, AIL have now reverted to the more modest proposal of producing dried milled kelp rather than the finished product of calcium alginates.

And then there is oil which, these days, seems to excite everybody whatever might be the prospects and on this subject I would like to make a few comments. This matter will be discussed in more detail later in the meeting but it is important that we have, in due course, a sound licensing policy which will take into account our long term interests. Experience in other parts of the world has shown how easy it is to make expensive mistakes in this complex area and we will need all the advice and guidance on this question which HMG can provide. It is not a subject for instant solutions and, in due course, when all the information is available, that will be the time to consider the ways in which licences can be issued.

Before turning to the work of the various Departments, I would like to pay tribute to the members of the Civil Service who worked so hard during the winter when many of our staff were on leave. The available talent was spread rather thin and many of our officers had to work long hours and carry greatly increased responsibility. Also, I would like to take this opportunity of welcoming Mr. Arthur Monk as our new Chief Secretary at this, his first, meeting of the Legislative Council.

As finance plays such a big part in everything we do, it might be appropriate that I look at the Treasury and the Financial Secretary's domain.

At the time of presenting this year's budget it was expected that the Colony would start the new financial year, 1st July 1974, with Ordinary Reserves of £158,000 and a surplus of £64,000 for the year. The actual surplus was £116,000, £52,000 more than expected. Thus, the Reserves amounted to over £200,000. At the present time it is too early in the new financial year to know whether the 1974/75 estimated surplus of £71,000 will be realised. The bulk of revenue from the 1973/74 wool clip will accrue to the Government in the year 1975/76 and with the record wool prices for that clip a handsome surplus should be achieved thus helping our reserves. However, if the downward trend of wool prices continues the Colony may be faced with difficulty in balancing the budget in 1976/77. We are not immune from the world-wide inflationary tendencies and, in addition, we will have to provide £80,000 so as to build up our oil stocks. We have done everything possible to increase revenue and, despite all the criticism about our stamp issuing policy, I think members will be gratified when they see the amount of money which comes into our revenue this year. Also, we hope that our new coinage issue will be an additional source of revenue.

On the general subject of our Civil Service, there are a couple of points I would like to mention. I was instrumental in bringing out Mr Sedgwick to carry out a much needed salaries review and also in ensuring that OSAS benefits were made available to our expatriate staff in designated posts. I know there has been criticism on the grounds that this has made for two services but I think, in due course, both groups will see the importance of acting together as a team. I hope, that on the question of passages to the United Kingdom for those Civil Servants which previously had this privilege, to present some good news in the near future.

The other point is that it is important to provide reasonable standards of accommodation for our Civil Servants and I am afraid the days when a Rayburn and a supply of peat was adequate are fast passing. It is essential that the furnishings and equipment and the basic facilities of Government housing are equivalent to those provided in other Colonies.

In regard to the Medical Department (about which this year I have first hand experience) we are still experiencing difficulty in obtaining medical officers but this is a subject which will be discussed in detail later in the Meeting. Dr Ashmore retires on pension on the 10th March next year after 21 years service in the Colony and I would like to take this opportunity of thanking him, on behalf of you all, for the devoted service he has given to the Colony, not only in his official capacity but in many other fields.

Education is an important subject for all of us and this year we have seen the arrival of our new Superintendent of Education, Mr Stocks, and I am certain that he will bring a fresh mind to bear on many of our problems. There is certainly a need to rationalise the system, both at home and overseas, and we hope it should be possible in the Stanley re-organisation to provide a curriculum which will increase the options open to Islanders wishing to take GCE 'C' levels and also to provide a wider, cultural basis for all pupils.

Now I turn to the Posts and Telecommunications Department - the major development has been the transfer to Cable and Wireless Limited of the Colony's external communications service and this has proceeded very smoothly and I am certain that, in this area of rapidly changing technology, it will be in the Colony's interests to have the skill, know-how and back up of a world wide organisation such as Cable and Wireless.

Possibly insufficient attention is given to the services provided by our Meteorological Department under the devoted care of Mr Danny Borland. We have accepted his forecasts and advice for so long now that, sometimes, we overlook the fact of how important this work is - particularly vital now that we have so many 'planes coming in from the mainland and when Mr Borland is responsible for providing forecasts for the various operations.

/provided by our

As far as FIGAS is concerned, it is good to report that both 'planes are running well and that there has been no recurrence of the corrosion problems which plagued us earlier in the year. In addition, we have a good supply of spare parts (some of which were very generously made available to us from the Argentine Air Force) and I have personally checked to ensure that you are left with a good supply of cherry headed rivets! With the infrequent shipping services to the Colony, receipt of component spare parts has sometimes been a headache as it is not always easy to get these down by air. Also, the supply of fuel has been a constant worry.

The Public Works Department has carried out, very efficiently, its general maintenance task and also some work involving major alterations in building. This has been done despite the fact that it is not easy these days to obtain or, in fact, to retain, labour.

A heavy burden has been placed on our Police Force now that there are so many visitors in Stanley and the Chief Police Officer and his staff have coped with this extremely well. It is a pleasant change to see that, at long last, as a matter of course, routine visits are paid to the Camp.

I would like to say a few words about the Falkland Islands Defence Force with which I have been so closely associated during the time I have been in the Colony. I was pleased to see that their Club has been extensively renovated so that it provides valuable social amenities to the members of the Force. I know that under the guidance of the Staff Officer, Major Goss, efforts are being made to further improve the general efficiency of the Force and it is pleasing to note that more of our young men have joined up this year. I think it is an excellent organisation providing a young man with the chance to receive disciplined training with also a general broadening of outlook and good comradeship.

I would also like to thank Naval Party 6901 for the part they have played in the Colony's affairs during the past year and for the way they have trained and encouraged the local force. It was reassuring to hear that following the Defence Review we can look forward to a continuance of a Marine Detachment in the Falklands.

During the past few months the Select Committee on the Constitution has completed its various meetings out in Camp and a report on its findings will be available for debate at the next meeting of Legislative Council. I think it is important that this matter was not rushed and that everyone has had an opportunity to say what they thought about what should be the future pattern of our Constitution and it has been interesting to see, on the whole, a general consensus of opinion on most of the important matters.

/And then to our.....

And then to our relations with Argentina. Perhaps I can do no better than to give you the substance of the UK statement made recently in the Fourth Committee of the United Nations in reply to a moderate statement by the Argentine representative. In the Fourth Committee the United Kingdom representative said, inter alia -

"My Government Mr Chairman has no doubt about its sovereignty over the Falkland Islands. The historical arguments are long and complicated, and have been frequently rehearsed. This is not the place in which to rehearse them yet again. This Committee will be well aware already that for us the problem is essentially one of self-determination, and not of territorial integrity. The Committee will also be aware that in all our dependent territories we stand firmly behind the inalienable right of self-determination for the peoples concerned. The Islanders' wishes - I repeat their wishes, not only their interests - are therefore of paramount importance. At present they have expressed no wish to come under Argentine sovereignty. It is my Government's duty to respect these wishes. We believe this Committee must also take them into account, in full accordance with the United Nations Charter. The distinguished representative of Argentina has spoken of General Assembly Resolution 3160 in which the Governments of Argentina and the United Kingdom were urged to proceed to negotiations without delay. He informed the Secretary-General in his letter dated 22nd August that contacts had been established between our two Governments. Mr. Chairman, my Government has indeed held talks with the Government of the Argentine during the last year. In fact there have been Ministerial contacts during this Assembly. We shall continue these contacts. My Government reiterates its genuine desire to arrive at a just and peaceful solution to the problem. But I must emphasise that any such solution must be consonant with the freely expressed wishes of the Falkland Islanders themselves. Having said that, Mr Chairman, I would add that we welcome the constructive and enlightened policy of the Government of the Argentine in seeking to demonstrate to the people of the Falklands the merits of its case and of its way of life. In this context I should like to say that the Air Services Agreement is working well and represents a welcome step forward in the forging of closer and more friendly links between the Falklands and the Argentine. Construction of the permanent air field will accentuate this trend. Two further important Agreements have been signed with the Argentine; one to facilitate trade and the carriage of goods and the other to allow the Argentine state petroleum company to supply the Islands with petroleum fuels and derivatives. As the United Kingdom permanent representative said in his letter of 24th October to the Secretary-General, circulated as document A/9814, my Government believes that these measures will contribute towards a greater mutual understanding between the inhabitants of the Falkland Islands and those of the Argentine Republic, a process which my Government has consistently stated that it wishes to encourage, Mr. Chairman, the Government of the United Kingdom and I feel convinced, the Government of Argentina, will continue in their attempts to find a solution to the problem that is acceptable to all parties. I believe that such a solution is what both our Governments desire. I can assure the Committee that the United Kingdom will do what it can to continue its contacts and discussions with the Argentine in this sense."

And so it is our hope that with the signing of the YPF and the Commercial Agreements and in the spirit of the Communications Agreement of 1971 that the links between our Islands and the mainland will be maintained and strengthened. Already, trade between us has increased and this without interfering unduly with our traditional markets in the United Kingdom. With the greater prosperity which should lie ahead, we hope the trade between us will increase to our mutual benefit. Of course more contact produces more problems such as the difficulty of handling ships coming into the port but with goodwill and determination on both sides it should be possible to overcome these hurdles.

Personally I have always thought that nothing was to be achieved by not discussing the problem, having no contact with Argentina and hoping that something would turn up or that the problem would disappear into thin air. There are some people on both sides of the field (no doubt acting from the best of motives) who would like to revert to the old postures but, in my opinion, this would achieve nothing. I look forward to the day when by mutual trust and co-operation our difficulties with Argentina will not be seen as a breach in our relations but as a bridge bringing with it increased development of the resources of the South West Atlantic and creating increased understanding between our peoples.

I wish you well and I would like to take this opportunity of thanking, on behalf of my wife and myself, all Members of the Council and our other friends in the Colony for the various courtesies extended to us during our period in the Falklands.

BF

MOTION OF THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY.

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I expect most of the Honourable Members are going to have something to say afterwards, but to me this seems to be a meeting where I at any rate have more subjects to bring up than I ever had before, and some of these have to do with your very excellent address this morning, Sir. To get right down to the meat, you referred this morning to fishing - crabs and the like - and how welcome they would be here. But if they are going to be like ALL and, I might also add, the Duen Sucesso, they are always arriving and they never get here.

The one thing that is important - as you will find, I think Sir, during to-day - is the question of oil exploration. I know, as a Member of Council over a number of years, that we have had requests for exploration of oil going back, I would say, about 10 years, and of course in our position we have not been able to deal with them and so we passed them over to HMG. HMG just hasn't done anything and that appears to have been the situation for about 10 years. Well, now we understand something very much more definite is coming up and, as we will learn later today, this Council has rather strong views on seeing that we take this up, it is about time something happened. As we see it, the price of wool - which you certainly said will go up again, and so we all hope, but we don't know when, or if - and if we could find this black gold which is underneath the sea - or someone could find it, rather - it would solve a great many of our problems. We don't know if it is there for sure, but the scientific observations carried out by the Shackleton, and investigations which have been done by the Birmingham University, indicate that it is almost certainly there, and we now have a consortium of companies who, at their own expense, want to come here and find out. If we don't, as a Council, hammer this thing, then we have no business to be sitting on this side of the table.

You also made reference, Sir, to making Civil Servants happy, and expatriate arrivals happy when they arrive here. You referred to peat, as being rather out-of-date and a bit of an anachronism, as though we should live on oil. Some of us have found, and still find, that peat is far and away the cheapest fuel. I know one person who used to work for BAS - and BAS looked after their personnel pretty well. - He now works for Cable & Wireless, and they look after them on the same kind of grounds as we look after our people. In other words they have to pay for their fuel themselves, and this fellow has told me that he now has to buy oil for the heating of his house, and it costs just over £500 a year. Well, I live in a fairly big house, as you know, Sir, and peat, up to this year, has cost me about £80 a year, and I have got a warm house as a lot of people know. It will probably cost over the hundred this year because of the cost of fuel for getting it home, but it is unfortunate if Government is going to take the attitude that peat is out because it's something we burned 100 years ago and have been burning for 100 years. I don't think that you will find that the Finance Committee will agree with that theory either. The main trouble with those people who arrive and have trouble with peat is because in the first place obviously they know nothing about it, and secondly that FWD probably put a lot of wet rubbish in their peat sheds anyway, in which case my sympathies would be with the householder.

However, Sir, I don't want to dwell on peat and Raburns because it is fairly unimportant at this meeting. We have Motions - Bills rather - before us later today, and to me there are two notable absences on the table there. And regrettably notable absences. One is the Livestock Ordinance; the other is the Hydatid Ordinance. We had hoped and expected, some of us, that we would have both of these in front of us today, and in fact, Sir, you told me yourself that you hoped to get the Livestock one squared off before you went away. Obviously it is not now going to get squared off until next May/June. To me that's a tragedy, not just something that's unfortunate, and it rather dates back, if you will recall, to the Budget Meeting last June when I had a question for oral reply about the absence of senior civil servants. Well, the gist of the reply - and there were several Members round this table who had the same opinion about this absence of senior civil servants from the Secretariat - the gist of the CS, Mr. Tom Layng's reply was that things would go on just the same. But of course they haven't; they couldn't. The person who was promoted two grades to be Acting Chief Secretary was working late into the night for most of the winter. I do know that, and he needs a vote of thanks from us for the long hours he put in. But human beings can't do the impossible, and he just could not keep up. If we had had some senior person there to deal with those Ordinances early in the year, starting back in August or September, we should have had them on the table. These are important, because after all it is our life and blood, the sheep farming industry. We have got to have a proper Stock Ordinance. We have got a poor one at the moment, and now we've got to wait another six months and merely because whoever was responsible allowed those two senior members of the Secretariat to be away at the same time. The other Bill, the Hydatid one, is, in a sense, more important still. Here we have a foul disease which has already had some Falkland Islands victims. We were not happy - I am referring now to the Hydatid Committee - we were not happy with the way in which, in some places, the restrictions or the carrying out of the Orders in Council were being observed. The police did quite a lot of good work, and at meetings of the Hydatid Committee it was agreed all round the table that the Orders in Council should be incorporated into an Ordinance which could be debated in this House. That, of course, we've now got to wait for until next June. I think that handicaps the police and it handicaps the Medical Department.

Now we get on to the rather important one to the whole Colony and that is the YPF Agreement. This Agreement was first brought to Executive Council's notice at the Emergency Meeting in August 1973 because HMG wanted a quick answer so that they could sign the Agreement. Well, in actual fact of course, as with many Government prognostications, it didn't get signed for 13 months, but anyway we hurriedly assembled and we talked about it. Now since that copy of 1973 - No.33 of 1973 - none of us have seen anything to do with YPF. We have been told that it was signed in London on 13th September, and copies were on sale in BA on 20th September for 1 peso 60 each. The only copy I have been able to obtain is an Argentine one, and no Member of this Council has ever seen a copy yet. We are told now that they are laid on the table, but I think it is pretty disgraceful that we should not have copies. No doubt all Members of Council could have got them from BA if they'd tried, but that probably wouldn't have done our image much good. The Falkland Islands Company only obtained their copy from the LA DE office here in Stanley about a month ago. In that copy they were horrified to see that these pipe-lines carrying volatile fuel were going to go along the jetty and underneath their stores warehouse. They have turned it down flat - having those lines on the jetty. The latest information that I have had, right up-to-date from the FIC at breakfast time this morning, is that they are totally adamant about it - they are not changing their minds. I know Government is aware of it. The CS is aware of it. We now wonder, some of us, what is going to happen since all this equipment has been landed.

In the Agreement there was a clause in which they could have had their own jetty, and it looks as though they will have to build it. In addition to that, of course, the Bahia Buen Suceso is bringing the balance of the tanks - I believe most of them, about 15 out of 20. She, in her usual fashion, has been coming for several weeks and not arriving, and I do know that the FIC have given a deadline that this vessel had to be here by the 4th, which is today, and that at the moment they are not going to work here if she turns up as she is scheduled to on Sunday. I have that officially from the FIC, because the Hercules Scan, with the Johnston Construction material, is due on the 11th, and if they have the Bahia Buen Suceso here - even if she arrives, which is doubtful with her - they would have her here and would have to keep the Hercules Scan waiting. The Hercules Scan is costing the FIC a charter of £1,700 a day, and she will probably be here over Christmas if she is delayed in that way. The Manager's estimate is that it will cost them £6,000 extra and someone will have to pay for it. The SFC certainly would not approve of the taxpayer paying for it. So we don't quite know what will happen about that.

I don't know how Government feels - how you feel Sir - in connection with this YPF Agreement. Why we have to wait to collect it from the table at the end of this meeting when it has been available elsewhere. Britain just hasn't bothered about it - the British Government, rather. It is to me a disgraceful situation. Further to that Sir, I would like to add - you have from time to time asked my opinion about local feeling about Argentina and about other matters. Well, I feel that now I should tell you that since the arrival of the Cabo San Gonzalo feeling has shot up here in Stanley. They have seen 2,000 tons of equipment come ashore. As one person said to me, "They have sent everything except the President's Palace". Most of us imagined before this Agreement was signed that in order to supply the Colony with petrol and a little bit of the other things, a little bit more gas oil, no doubt, it would be a fairly small matter of a few small tanks and not a vast amount of equipment; but it rather looks as if YPF are intending to dig in here forever. And that is the feeling in Stanley. I can assure you, Sir, and I think it might be as well that the British Government should know it, that the feeling in this town is red-hot as far as the Argentine is concerned, and I think it might be a good plan to let London know this. And if my saying this is reported over the water, or the feeling of the local inhabitants reached over the water, and it causes something so that we come to the crunch, myself, like most of the inhabitants of this town, would welcome the crunch, and cut our ties with the other side. I am sorry to talk in this manner, Sir, in a speech on a Motion of Thanks for your speech to the assembly, but to me this is one of the most serious Legislative Council Meetings - and I would hate to try to think how many I have attended here - but it is one of the most serious - if not the most serious, I have ever attended, and a lot of the things I have said I feel needed to be said.

I will try to change the note from what I have been saying to thanking you for your address Sir, and appreciating what you said in it."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Miller, and I wouldn't want it thought that I am an anti-peat man. I am in favour of peat, but I am regarded as rather old-fashioned by some of the new people coming into the Colony".

MR. PITALUGA.

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, when this idea was introduced of making a speech to the notion of thanks to His Excellency the Governor, I viewed it with some trepidation to begin with, not knowing what was expected, but I rather enjoy it now Sir, as a means of letting off steam about various things, with almost no holds barred. But I am not going to make this one like the one in June, which was literally a whole load of criticisms. Mainly they were justified, certainly, but let me make one or two points. First of all, the Minutes of these meetings: we propose they be signed, it is seconded and H.E. signs them, but they are signed as a correct record, and I think 99.9% they are. But when you read through them there are quite a number of spelling errors, and mis-quoted words which I think are probably the fault of the recording system. It must be very difficult when people are coughing, or there are other noises which all get recorded, but it is a point worth noting, and possibly Government should take steps to watch this. Mis-quoted words could be a problem sometimes.

I don my SOA hat for a moment and I make no excuse for doing this, for after all it is our biggest, - I nearly said our only - industry, but it is our biggest one, and our only really viable one at the moment. Like Mr. Miller I am extremely disappointed that the amendments to the Livestock Ordinance, and the amendments to the Hydatid Ordinance are not on the Order Paper. In the Minutes of the June meeting our former CS came back with comments on my speech in the Motion of Thanks and he rather laid the blame on the SOA for taking too long to produce the amendments to the Ordinance that we passed into law in 1973 - that we had therefore had time enough to get it right, and if we weren't satisfied it was our own fault. In fact, this was not the case, but in this speech you cannot come back on the one who has the final word. I would set the record straight now, though. SOA was asked by Government to make recommendations, and a sub-committee did so very quickly and the recommendations went back to Government and remained there for two or three years before anything came before this Council. I am worried that the same thing is going to happen this time. I hope not. It seems unfortunate that two such important Bills are not on the Order Paper as quickly as possible. We've got, I think, 8 Bills on the Paper; most of them are not terribly important ones. These two that are not there are important. We have two Bills for today which will save lives in the Islands. These two that are left off could cost lives. If dipping continues with modern dips for ever and a day, sooner or later someone is going to get seriously ill on the breathing of fumes or even swallowing the stuff. Hydatid disease needs no explanation of the risks there. However, we are meant to take another Bill which tidies up the administration of the cemetery, so perhaps we are working in the right direction, anyway.

I come to another thing, We have talked about oil and there are going to be questions about this later in the business. But there is another thing I think about in connection with oil - not necessarily the exploration for it, but in shipping the stuff - and that is pollution. Our tourist industry, which is building up, is made up of ordinary tourist and scientific visitors, but many of these people come for our extremely interesting bird life, and this would be seriously affected by any great degree of oil pollution. I don't know whether Honourable Members and members of the public have noticed, in the last three or four weeks, the increased amount of foaming of the sea. It is very marked, especially if there is any wind, and you can see it in the harbour this morning on the kelp. On the South coast there were acres of it yesterday, and this started during the last three or four weeks. A similar thing could be seen here, in greater concentration, in the Spring of 1972. In the late summer it seemed to cut off as if someone had turned off a tap. This year perhaps it is just building up now. What causes it I don't know, but it could be oil pollution. One would expect that we wouldn't be seriously affected by oil pollution unless a large tanker happened to be wrecked on our own shores, but I think this is not the case. I don't know whether there was any near stranding of tankers in 1972, but certainly in 1974 we had a near one. That was a very large crude carrier, the METULA, which stranded in the Magellan Straits, on the 9th August, 1974, and before she was pumped dry and salvaged she had lost over 50,000 tons of oil into the sea. A lot of wild life in the Straits of Magellan went under as a result of it, and could it not be that this increase of foaming of our seas might be some of that oil drifting this way. I don't know but perhaps Government could keep an eye on it.

And that, Sir, I think is all I want to speak about on this Motion of Thanks which I heartily support.

THE PRESIDENT

"Thanks very much Mr. Pitaluga".

MR. BLAKE

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to thank you, Sir, for your speech, the kind things you said about the Members of this Council. I hope you don't feel duty-bound to say all of them, and that you have enjoyed your stay here. In your speech early on you mentioned the benefits to the Islands of the construction of our airfield. These were all well, but I would like to draw attention to one of the disadvantages of this construction and this is the absorption by the construction unit of local labour. It is known that under their contract they are required to recruit the bulk of their labour overseas, but it is also known that in the last few weeks there has been a marked drain on the labour force in Stanley down the road. I don't blame the labour force in the least bit. Being offered better money they would be fools not to take it - a little short-sighted perhaps - but I hope Government will bear in mind the clause in that Contract which does require the Contractors to find their labour elsewhere, and ensure that when this airfield is finally completed we are not a community of tumbledown shacks, broken-up roads, and derelict sheep farms. If maintenance of Stanley ceases for a couple of years it will take very little time for the sewers to do the rest to these roads that the weather's already started, and we'll be a bankrupt lot if we cease to ship wool out of the Colony.

And shipping wool brings me on to the second point I would like to raise. You pointed out in your speech, Sir, that last year we had a surplus - I think you said £116,000, I didn't write it down immediately - and that we think we might have 72,000 this year, and in those 12 months the Colony average price has increased 18p, which means that Government expenditure has risen by 45,000 plus the added revenue that 18p increase in average would have brought. We have a bumper year coming, and we should have lolly to burn for 12 months, and then, like the Egyptians, we have our 7 years of famine - or one for certain: and I hope, Sir, that when consideration for the coming estimates begins, that we will remember that at least 30% of the revenue that we'll get this year will be needed in 12 months' time, and not go on a spending spree.

I thank you for your address, Your Excellency."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much, Mr. Blake."

MR. A. B. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency, though in fact I don't think it was ever formally made, in so many words. However, I support the intent if not the actual words. So many people have said so many learned things before me that I have rather run out of anything very useful to say. However, to go through Your Excellency's speech, some small points I did notice.

First, Your Excellency made reference to the fact that we were apt to complain that visitors took away all the goodies from Stanley stores and there was nothing left for us natives, and that that was a matter for the stores to sort out amongst themselves and import sufficient quantities: but of course our largest store here is controlled by a monopoly concern which is controlled by some obscure financial outfit called - I forget what they are called - Charrington Gardner I believe - and they are only interested in making a maximum amount of money from the minimum amount of outlay, and I believe the store policy is, in fact, that they are not allowed to carry large stocks for any long period of time. It might therefore pay us to consider at some stage how we can influence these gentlemen in that matter.

I am very pleased to hear that we might be getting a fishing industry, although I have always wondered slightly how we get much benefit from a pelagic fishing industry. I suppose they might sell us a little bit, but I'm rather ignorant on this subject. It always seems to me that they are rather a self-contained unit and that not much rubs off on the people who own the seas they fish in.

With regard to oil, which of course we are going to speak more about later on, suggestions have been made that we should have some sound advice, as to how licences and so forth should be granted, from HMG. Well, I think it is generally known that HMG made the most appalling mess of granting exploration licences in the North Sea and adjacent areas simply because they did not have the know-how anyway. It's possible they've achieved it now, but perhaps we should look elsewhere than HMG for this sort of advice. Oil companies are known to be particularly ruthless in their dealings, and not all the backlash from the Arabs is the fault of the Arabs. A lot of it is due to the fact that they were so very much exploited by the oil companies in the first place.

With regard to the reserves, which might total £200,000 according to your Excellency, that, of course, would be a help if we ever had to draw on it. One of the problems is that everybody knows that reserves and invested reserves have fallen tremendously in value and if you have to sell stocks and shares to get money you don't realise very much, and if one has to find money to balance the budget I am quite certain one should not use the reserves - not sell your stocks and shares - you should issue bonds and I am sure they would be taken up by the public who at the moment only get $3\frac{1}{2}\%$ in the Government Savings Bank.

I don't agree that peat is something we should phase out. It happens to be our natural fuel here. Maybe if we develop oil we can wash it out. We won't be worried then what sort of fuel we use - we will be in our Cadillacs up in New York or somewhere. But at the moment peat is our only viable fuel and I am afraid that I consider people coming out here to take jobs should just have to get used to it. It has kept all the rest of us warm, and cooked our lunches, for quite a long while.

With regard to our relations with the Argentine. Your Excellency said that the Argentine Government recently displayed an attitude of mutual understanding and so forth with regard to the Falkland Islands. I would like to refer to a letter which Ambassador Ortez de Rosas - I hope Spanish-speaking people will pardon my pronunciation - a letter that he wrote to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim in November, he stated in the letter that talks must take place exclusively between the governments of the Argentine Republic and the UK, and he further said, "There can be no presumption of claim that the settlers of the Islands should participate in the negotiations". Considering he was writing to the Secretary General of the United Nations, which organisation is supposed to support the wish of the people and their ideas on self-determination, I would say that Ambassador Ortez was not subscribing to that ideal.

One small point the Honourable Appointed Member for the East Falkland made about the foaming of the seas - I can assure the Honourable Member that if you spill oil into the sea it doesn't foam.

I would like to refer to the financial situation briefly. Just now we are living high, and as Harold McMillan once said, we never had it better. Those of us in the Camp are living off the effects of the very high wool prices; those in Stanley off the side effects of that, and the benefits of Johnston Construction millions. As Your Excellency pointed out, in 1976 the situation will not be the same. In 1975 the Government here will get a very large source of revenue from all this money. In 1976 this is not the case. It seems very unlikely that wool prices will rise. In fact the indications are that they might well fall further. Meanwhile as imports go up continually we get continual threshold increases - I think they call them threshold increases in the UK, we call them cost-of-living rises but it is exactly the same thing. I believe that every cost-of-living increase to Government employees costs Government something like about £5,000, and every cost-of-living increase to the private sector - hourly paid, Camp employees and all the rest - costs something like £8,000. The thing is: can we afford, in view of the fact that eventually we are going to have a financial crisis, can we afford continuously these automatic threshold increases? The items determining cost-of-living rises are mostly imported, and people say, "Well, we can't do anything about that: we can only pass on the cost from our charges overseas." Of course, that's not so. There are costs passed on to the consumer which are quite unnecessary - very inflated costs of goods imported from Argentina because of the very high freight rates charged on the vessel that calls there. There are unnecessarily large profits made by some stores and importers on items. I personally think that we have to reconsider our policy on automatic cost-of-living increases. Distasteful and, if you like, destructive though that might be in some respects, I don't think we shall be able to afford them. But I also think we should seriously consider setting up a Prices and Incomes policy, so that we can see just how much more we are paying for some of our essential goods than is necessary - how much our cost of living is being forced up because of other people's greed. I further think we must seriously reconsider the Government Savings Bank. I think we should pay a realistic market rate of interest which should be taxable. At first thought you might consider that if we tax interest from the Government Savings Bank that we are going to hit the ordinary small investor, but if you pay a realistic interest rate on deposits in the Government Savings Bank the small taxpayer is gaining and the large taxpayer is losing. The man who is paying 40% in tax will be paying 40% on his interest in the Savings Bank - the man who is paying 10% or whatever will be paying that. I think we should seriously consider doing that.

Your Excellency, I would like to say in ending that I am very sorry that this is your last meeting here. I have enjoyed working as a Member of the Council, and in meeting you privately, and I would like to support the Motion of Thanks."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much, Honourable Adrian Monk.

MR. DOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I'd like to talk for a few minutes in a slightly more optimistic view than my predecessors. Wool has a habit of dancing up and down through the years, anyway, and we have to live with it and we'll just have to adjust ourselves to it if necessary. But I am very pleased personally, and I think the rest of us are now, to see the Construction team here at work on the preliminaries of the permanent airfield at Cape Pembroke. I know you, Sir, have had a lot of faith in this ever since you came into contact with it, despite a lot of criticism from people who thought the airfield would never ever get here. But I am still optimistic about it. I am very pleased, and I think everybody else should be too, that this is going ahead. Whether it is deliberately or not deliberately extracting labour from essential services in Stanley and the Camp - I have yet to be convinced that this is an actual fact. I think we should look forward to seeing this job completed. We are pleased, too, to hear that there are more tourists coming and taking an interest in our Islands as visitors, bringing more money in and helping us out. The unfortunate thing with regard to our stores and supplies, I think, is that so many people have arrived here in the last few months that we were not quite geared up to it. They may have taken us by surprise to a certain extent, but I am fairly confident that most of the suppliers were warned of this about three or perhaps even six months ago to be wary of it. Not only have Johnston Construction team brought in about, I would imagine, 30 personnel by now from overseas, but Cable and Wireless have come in. They have brought in new ideas and this is something I think we should be optimistic about. They have brought in expertise. We shall have better communications, faster contacts, and I feel that this too was a correct decision.

The fishing sounds as if it may be successful and I think we should give every opportunity to people who are interested in this business to go ahead and give them every encouragement that we can. The world needs food - we've got the food - I think we should supply it. And the same principle in my view applied to oil. The world needs oil. If we've got oil, let's offer them oil. And let's get the best advice we can, from the best people who know about oil, to tell us, or to advise us, on what sort of direct principles we should use in issuing sound licensing policies to those people who are interested.

I don't think I am going to stoke up an argument between oil, peat and Raeburns. I prefer peat because I like peat, but the recruitment of Government staff has got a certain element which I think is worthy of mention. Naturally if you take someone from a large city in Britain to come out here to help us or advise us on a Contract, no matter what his capacity might be, he has to adapt himself to our ways of living, and it is not something he can do in two weeks. In some cases it takes a few months. However, there are many who came before and settled in and stayed here and accepted it. We hope that with patience our new arrivals will bear with us and we'll do all we can to assist them and give what advice we can with regard to their fuel or their housing. I am pleased to learn that the review of the condition of Government housing is going to be forthcoming. I am sure that the furniture in some of the Government houses must have come out of the Ark, if judging from what was offered at the recent auction was anything to go by.

I would also like to wish Dr. Ashmore Bon Voyage and good luck in his new appointment in the West Indies or where it was - I don't quite remember at the moment. I think this goes for a lot of people in the Islands who admired him, and I think especially the children.

I was pleased, Sir, to hear you mention the small department of the Meteorological service, of which I happen to be a close neighbour. I know that this little department does a lot of work which the public don't see, and only a few ever go to investigate exactly what sort of statistics are kept there through the years, and what sort of advice is given to many people round the Islands, people visiting the Islands, People coming here temporarily to work in the Islands, and so on.

With regard to the air service, I think the selection of our new aircraft must be made - in 1976 or 78 or whenever it is going to be - with caution, and every possible advice from our technicians, our pilots, and visiting experts should be sought in this matter.

Mr. Miller's seriousness on the Hydatid disease I want to support fully. I think this is something we should dig into very, very deeply. It's costing lives, it's causing problems, and I think the sooner we can get rid of it the better. I think a more intensified Hydatid control must continue, although I'm not connected directly with sheep, by any manner of means, and I don't even know what a Hydatid cyst looks like; but I have heard of the results and I for one would like to give the Hydatid Committee every support I can on this subject.

Referring to the 4th Committee on Argentine Affairs I am very pleased to hear the Islanders wishes are of paramount importance to the UN, from those people who have spoken there on our behalf. And also from the Argentine Republic, who apparently wish to continue friendly links and endeavour to find a just and peaceful solution. It all boils down, in my view, my own personal view, that neighbourliness is still the best answer.

I think that is all I have to say Sir. I have enjoyed being with you during your stay and I would like, on behalf of my constituents, to wish you Bon Voyage when you go in January; and I would like to support the Motion of thanks."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you, Mr. Bowles."

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I listened to Your Excellency's wide-ranging and comprehensive report on our current situation with much interest. My Honourable Friends have commented very fully on that and on various other subjects as well, and it doesn't really leave me much to say. Soon we shall be bidding you Bon Voyage and looking forward to the arrival of your successor. It is on the subject of your successor that I should like to talk. The question of the appointment of a new Governor perturbs me more than a little. I, and many others, felt that this time, in this day and age, HMG may have felt able to consult the people of this Colony in some way as to what sort of person they would like as their Head. These views were put strongly to HMG but were, as far as I know, totally ignored. We - or I - feel that in this day and age one might at least have been extended the courtesy of having our opinions asked for on this subject. It is inevitable that, with the current political situation, someone who is an employee of the Foreign Office may not be so well placed to stand up to them whenever our interests diverge, as they seem to on occasions.

One of the papers laid on the table at this meeting is a case in point. I have yet to be able to study a copy of the notorious YPF Agreement, and I was horrified to learn only this morning that one Honourable Member was able to buy one in Argentina. When I do see it I suspect I shall not particularly like it. I trust that on your return Your Excellency will convey these views to the Foreign Office.

On a different subject altogether, I understand that the ugly spectre of censorship has recently raised its head once more. I refer, of course, to the document which most people in the Colony will now have seen, circularised by the local Falkland Islands Committee. Your Excellency referred in your speech to the apparently fairly warm relations which are existing between ourselves and the Argentine at the moment. This is not borne out altogether by this document. I understand that broadcast was refused unless certain portions were censored. The local Falkland Islands Committee rightly objected to this on principle. The report is of a reception given by the UK Falkland Islands Committee and Commonwealth Parliamentary Association at which an Argentine Senator, in a long and rambling speech, made some ill-formed and injudicious statements which so annoyed people present that one MP, I understand, said afterwards, "How could we let this Colony and its British inhabitants go to these people?" I trust that the administration will lift the ban on this document as it stands, and also remember that the people of this Colony will not readily tolerate any restriction on their freedom to speak or to hear what they want.

The last subject which I want to mention is oil. If, as I hope, my motion on this subject is carried by the Council later in the day, I trust that immediate action will follow. Your Excellency remarked that we should be careful and tread cautiously. I understand we have been treading cautiously now for 10 years. Also, the time may be ripe to speed things up a bit. With our gloomy financial future, in the immediate future, it is a possible - and I repeat, possible - change that a ray of sunshine may emerge, even if it is a thick and black and an oily one, which I don't think causes the water to foam. Any delay by the Administration or its masters in the Foreign Office will not be forgiven easily by the people of this Colony, and I trust again, Sir, that you will convey this view to HMG.

I support the Motion of Thanks."

THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, it is normal procedure for officials not to take part in the Motion of Thanks, so therefore I will simply say I support the Motion of Thanks and wish to join in the warm welcome you extended to Mr. Arthur Monk. I wish also to add my good wishes to you and Mrs. Lewis for the future."

THE CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I join the Honourable Financial Secretary in the views expressed. I don't think this is the place to be disputatious and it would be ungracious to Your Excellency for officials to do this. In any event, most of the items which have been raised this morning will be taken issue with later on in the proceedings. There are one or two points on which I would be grateful for the indulgence of the Honourable Members - if I could, just for the record, put the matter straight. First of all, I identify entirely with the need for urgency of the livestock and Hydatid legislation. This is crucial. I think it only fair to point out, though, that the Livestock Ordinance is now 73 years old. It has been amended 12 times since it was first enacted; it has conflict within itself, and it has conflict with other legislation. If we were to have taken it to this Council we would have made confusion worse confounded and it was therefore that we have had to delay it. I regret this but I think delay to achieve a simple but workable bit of legislation in this instance is preferable to going ahead with something that might not have been enforceable.

An Honourable Member and Your Excellency referred to the problems of some expatriate Civil Servants. I just confine myself to saying that the expat civil servant, under my guidance and direction, will most certainly co-operate to the utmost with his local counterpart and with this Council and Government to ensure that these minor irritations, that they may not have been used to overseas, are quickly eradicated and overcome.

I was very pleased to hear a reference to the airfield and on this particular point might I just inform Honourable Members that there has been extended to them an invitation to visit the airfield this afternoon, or some time suitable to them, if they so wish, by Johnston Construction.

One other point, a rather serious point, Sir, I would like to reassure the Honourable Members about. I am glad to be able to give this reassurance. It refers to the broadcast. There was, in fact, no censorship. Guidance was asked, guidance was given, but there was no embargo, no censorship, and I am very pleased to be able to give this reassurance.

It just falls to me to wind up this short dissertation, Your Excellency, and to wish you and Mrs. Lewis a very happy holiday, at least, before you take up your new duties. I whole-heartedly associate myself with the Motion moved by the Honourable Sidney Miller. "

PAPERS LAID ON THE TABLE BY THE CHIEF SECRETARY:

The YPF Agreement between Britain and Argentina;
The Commercial Agreement between Britain and Argentina;
Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor in Council since June, 1974.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY.

THE CLERK

"Question No. 23/74 by the Honourable S. Miller J.P."

MR. MILLER

"In view of the purchase on a comparatively large scale on drawback of dutiable goods by vessels and aircraft of a foreign country, cannot our tariff system be amended so that this Government retains some part of the duty originally paid by the importer?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"A point of clarification, Your Excellency, I understand it has been the practice in Council for replies to all questions to be put as written answers. I also understand that it has been the practice for Honourable Members to ask supplementary questions to questions they have not put themselves. I, with some reluctance, draw Your Excellency's attention to paragraph 4, rule 10, of the Standing Rules and Orders, which requires a written answer to be given only to a written question. It further goes on to say that an answer to an oral question shall not be included in the Minutes. I also refer to rule 40 which, in the absence of anything to the contrary, requires this Council to be guided by practice in the House of Commons.

The practice there, Sir, is that a question stands in the name of one questioner alone, and this applied also to supplementaries. I would propose, Sir, that we do not depart from practice at this Council meeting, and we have accordingly circulated all written replies to oral questions. I think it worth pointing out that the correct procedure is as I think I have outlined. I can give authority on these rulings if Honourable Members do require them. I think it only fair to point out, too, that as an oral answer is usually couched in phraseology suitable for addressing to Council, it is only fair that occasionally the Honourable Financial Secretary and myself should be able to depart from the written text to make the thing sound like an oral reply rather than something that has been forced into a straitjacket."

"Your Excellency, is it permissible for a Member to rise on a point of clarification?"

THE PRESIDENT

"Certainly".

MR. BLAKE

"I would suggest that under Rule 40 we have something other than the House of Commons to go on, which is a case of precedence. Honourable Members have in the past been allowed to address questions - supplementaries - which they have not themselves initiated, and I would suggest, under the circumstances, that precedence in this case should stand."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, I am rather at a bit of a loss. This question - or these questions - which have been invited for oral reply have been passed in by all of us; written questions, and we were expecting a reply of some sort. Now my question No. 23/74 has just been delivered, and do I get an answer, or do I not?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Yes Sir, you do get an answer! It is possible that a scheme could be devised for introducing an excise duty which would not be repayable when vessels replenish their stocks of dutiable goods at Stanley.

You will probably recall that a member of SFC recently suggested that refunds should be limited to 75% of the import duty levied on dutiable goods for export. The matter was studied but Government considered that such a step would be undesirable.

It is normal world-wide practice to refund import duty, in full, on goods taken on board vessels for consumption outside the territorial waters.

By ships and aircraft stocking up at Stanley the importers and shipping lines benefit from the importation and sale of goods. The Government in turn derives some benefit through Income Tax.

It is not international practice to levy duties on dutiable goods included in visiting ships' stores for consumption outside territorial waters and on stores in transit for other territories, and for obvious reasons a duty would be unjustified.

It would seem therefore to follow and be logical that any dutiable stores taken on a ships' or aircraft stores for consumption outside territorial waters should not be subject to any form of customs or excise duty.

There does not seem to be any good reason for the Falkland Islands to depart from current international practice. Should we not now look to the future with the hope that there will be more and bigger refunds, which in turn would mean more imports for export, more sales for the traders, and more Income Tax for Government?

To be helpful to you, Sir, and illustrate the official Government thinking on the subject, I take the opportunity of mentioning that at this very moment Government is obtaining information on the introduction to the Colony of duty-free shops.

Government very much appreciates your question on the exportation of duty-free goods as it has provided Government with an ideal opportunity to make public its view."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, having apparently drawn an innocent cat among some voracious pigeons at the beginning of this session of the House I rather hesitate to produce a supplementary question. However, my head is not yet bloody, and it is unbowed. I notice at the end of that long peroration, of which I had a copy, fortunately, that Government appreciate the question and they are obtaining information on the introduction to the Colony of duty-free shops. Does Government think, as a supplementary question, that the duty-free shops so obtained will compare with the one that I have met at Heath Row where you pay almost the same price as you do in the street?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"It is possible that it will be exactly the same, but at least we are interested in getting some money".

MR. MILLER

"Thank you."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 24/74 by the Honourable S. Miller J.P."

MR. MILLER

"When the major Colony Development Plan was introduced to this Council in May, 1973 we were led to understand that this apparently generous scheme was an actual grant from the British Government. We are now told that all this money has to be repaid over the years. Will the Chief Secretary explain to us this apparent change of heart on the part of the British Government?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Sir, I think it more appropriate that the Honourable Financial Secretary should reply to this question, and if you agree I will ask him to do so. Before doing so may I just put the record straight about the matter I referred to a moment ago. For this meeting I did not question the propriety of continuing on the lines as hitherto. I just wanted to draw attention to the rules as I understand them. If you agree, Sir, I will ask the Honourable Financial Secretary to reply to this question."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Sir, the apparent change of heart on the part of the British Government is not a change of heart but is an apparent misunderstanding of the Foreign and Commonwealth communications on future Government Development Aid.

The Secretary of State advised the Falkland Islands Government on the 14th February, 1973, that all aid from the UK to the Falkland Islands would consist of soft loans (no interest, maturing over 25 years, with a grace period of 7 years and a grant element of 76.6%) The despatch presumably was read locally to the effect that 76.6% of aid from Britain would be an outright grant.

element'

It was the words 'grant' which appears to have caused the misunderstanding. It has now been made clear that they were not intended to imply that 76.6% of monies was in grant form, but represented an economic assessment of the expected depreciation in the value of money due to inflation etc., and taking into account the favourable terms of the loan. For example, £100 now is expected to equal £176.6 in flat terms in 25 years' time but only £100 will be repayable. This fact was confirmed by a telegram from the FCO on the 11th June, 1974.

As from 1st April 1973 the British Government revised the terms of new development aid commitments to the dependent territories. It was stated that the terms would be determined as in the case of independent territories in the light of the overall economic circumstances of each territory and not according to the revenue-earning nature of the individual projects for which the development aid will be provided.

I hastily add that confirmation has also been received from the British Government that the aid granted for the permanent airfield is an exception, and is in fact a special grant, and all or part of it will not have to be repaid by the Falkland Islands Government."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, I thank the Honourable Financial Secretary for his reply. I wonder whether he can tell me whether this thing which was passed to us 18 months' ago - whether that contains any paragraph, line sentence, anywhere, saying that we would have to repay one penny of it?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I confirm that there was no line, sentence or paragraph contained in the Development Plan."

MR. BLAKE

" I listened with interest to the Financial Secretary's answer (and I may say in passing that it has been taken down and may be used in evidence against him later). But what I would like clarifying now is that should the inflation rate of 76.6% be exceeded, are we liable? In his example he said it is estimated that £100 now will be worth £176 in the future - in 25 years. Now their estimate of inflation I would say is low - well, mine anyway differs - and should the inflation on that £100 be 276% are we liable for a further £100?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"No, Sir. You are not liable for a further £100. The fact is you will only be required to pay back the actual loan."

MR. BOMLES

"Appreciating the very generous amount for the Cape Pembroke Airfield, and the grant element of this development aid, will the Financial Secretary not consider it worth while to apply for this annual development aid to be an outright grant?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"If the Council would wish the Falkland Islands Government to ask the Secretary of State for it to be changed to a grant I can see no objection to asking, and if Honourable Members agree we could refer this back to the UK; but I trust you appreciate the generous terms of the loan."

MR. MONK

"As I understand it, do we pay the loan back in 18 instalments starting after 7 years? It seems to be how this thing reads - that there is 7 years grace period, 25 years loan period. And who pays it? Does the Government pay it or the person or firm who got the loan?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"The Government will be required to repay the British Government. It is not only loans such as tourism loans and suchlike. It is also the grants that we have received for trials units and other projects in the Development Plan. We do not know the exact details of the instalments required. We have not yet agreed to the terms of the aid and the draft agreement has not been received from the Foreign & Commonwealth Office."

MR. PITALUGA

"I will agree with the Honourable Financial Secretary that the terms of the loan are exceedingly soft. The fact remains that they have to be paid back. Does Government have the machinery to accept the money back now if anyone who is frightened off by this decides to return it?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Sir, I'm not quite sure to what grants you are referring. Are you thinking of tourism loans, where we loan the money to various people?"

MR. PITALUGA

"Yes, tourism loans and so on."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Well, as far as tourist loans are concerned, the people are required to pay them back. These are loans, they are not grants. In the case of the fencing projects, they were actual grants to the farmers concerned and not loans."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think it worth drawing attention to the fact - though I stand to be corrected by the Honourable Financial Secretary if I am wrong - that the amount of the loan repayable, I think, is in the region of £50,000 a year, with a moratorium of 7 years and then repayable at 7%, so that if inflation increases we should gain; and I also think it is worth repeating, as the Financial Secretary has already stated, that the £4.2 million of Development Aid for the airfield is a grant and not a loan."

THE CLERK

"Question 25/74 by the Honourable W.R. Luxton."

MR. LUXTON

"Has Government abandoned all hope of providing a reasonable surface mail service from the United Kingdom?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"No Sir, Government continues to give a high priority to the need for speedy and regular surface mail service. It realises that people, particularly in the Camp, put a great store by this service. They are isolated and they do need mail as frequently as we can let them have it. In fact, for some time Government has been trying to reach agreement that important surface mail may be conveyed to and from EA by air. Negotiations to this end looked to be proceeding favourably about a year ago, when it was hoped that all of what I am told by the Postmaster is called LC and AO mail, that is, letters, cards and printed papers and small packets, could be brought in every week on the LIDE flights. To make this work the British Post Office would have to control the flow from the UK and this they were prepared to do.

That was a year ago and it has not proved possible since to reach approval of all concerned to this arrangement although it is probable that the limited aircraft space, coupled to the increased volume of mail - especially at this time of the year - may prove to be an insurmountable constraint.

Government is still looking for a solution to the problem. It has not given up hope of obtaining agreement to bringing first-class surface mail in by air, but it is also looking into other ways of improving the service, including the carriage of mails on ships plying between the Falkland Islands and the mainland."

MR. BOWLES

"With the influx of people from the UK during the past few months, will the Chief Secretary not agree that this matter has become even more acute?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, indeed it has become very acute. So acute that with the Fokker aircraft having a payload of 5,000 Kgs it has now reached the stage where it will require 1/5th at least of the payload to be taken up for mail alone."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary confirm that no surface mail was brought in on recent BAS ships?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I cannot confirm as you request Sir, My understanding was that some mail did come in on the BAS ships."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 26/74 by the Honourable W.R. Luxton."

MR. LUXTON

"What steps are Government taking to prevent applicants for posts in the Falklands being persuaded to go elsewhere at their interviews in London; or to look for a more satisfactory method of engaging staff?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I would like to thank the Honourable Member for his question as this is a matter of considerable concern to Government, and is, of course, to the whole community. The recruitment of suitable persons to the Falkland Islands public service is, as we all know, of the very greatest importance. I emphasise the word 'suitable' in which connection Government has no evidence that applicants are being purposely dissuaded from accepting posts here. The second part of the question, I submit, does not therefore arise.

I would like to explain and reassure the Honourable Member that Government keeps its recruitment programme continuously in view and we give ODM very little respite if we think there may be a hold-up. We have - on occasion - to draw attention to the need for better and more frequent advertising, but generally Government is satisfied that ODM, with its numerous interlocking departments, dealing with manpower, development, aid, economics and several other activities, and with access to all centres of learning and professional and technical bodies in the United Kingdom, provides us with a service that no other agency can match.

Any agency would fail in their duty if they recruited all applicants, or painted an unduly rosy picture in recruiting them. Sometimes it is better to emphasise the difficulties applicants have to encounter, so as to avoid attracting employees who, once they are here, become malcontents, aggrieved, and perhaps dissatisfied with some of the matters we have heard referred to today."

"Has the Chief Secretary, in the short time he has been here, discussed this question with any of the people who have been recruited, because I have, and in my experience in the past this is in fact true. They have been dissuaded at the other end."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I have discussed this with other members of staff. They have explained to me that they were apprised of the difficulties of the situation and they were told, and examined to see if they were suitable. I think it goes without saying that there are certain people who prefer perhaps a better climate, a higher standard of life, but I have no evidence, as I said, to show that ODM have actively dissuaded anyone. It is impossible to say, because the only way one would find this out, I suppose, is to get hold of people who have gone elsewhere and ask them if they had been sent there. But the people who are here were certainly not dissuaded."

MR. MILLER

"Is the Chief Secretary aware of the fact that - now I am giving a name because we want to get to the bottom of this thing - that Dr. Cox was actively dissuaded by Dr. Evans who was the interviewer. Dr Cox told us this when he came here 2 years ago, and Dr. Evans, when he was here 18 months ago, admitted it."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I feel like Taylor being sent in to open the innings! I rather feel that I am debarred from answering that question because it relates to a personality which our rules do preclude us from referring to. As you know Sir, Dr. Cox is coming back here as SMO, and when he is at home we have asked him to see ODM to make his points plain to them. I don't think there can be any question that he was dissuaded. He may have got the impression, as perhaps other people may have done, that obstacles were being put in his way, but this is often a technique used, I think, to ensure that we do get the suitable people here. I hope that answers your question."

MR. MILLER

"Thank you for your reply, Honourable Chief Secretary, it doesn't entirely answer it because I do know the full story and you weren't here at the time."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 27/74 by the Honourable L.G. Blane J.P."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary undertake to make certain and inform Council of the Admiralty's willingness to supply gas oil to those sections of the community which do not have exemption under the YPF Agreement in the event of the Argentine oil prices rising above world levels?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I think you have achieved to compress several questions into one question. I will attempt to identify each and, in sum, answer your questions as a whole. As we go on to that section of the community not exempted from the Agreement purchase, I shall have to turn to a section of the Agreement which excludes from it so far as diesel is concerned: the Falkland Islands Government, H.M. Forces, BAS, Alginate Industries, Johnston Construction (for their construction purposes), and the Falkland Islands Company for ship bunkering. Thus all but these are not exempt.

Turning to the question of prices, Government was satisfied when it entered into the Agreement that YPF prices were expected to be below those prevailing and this is still expected to be the case. I believe, therefore, that the question is hypothetical. The Agreement, (which is a package one for all types of fuel) was implemented on economic grounds. If these sound reasons fall away Government, I think, should seek to re-negotiate it on favourable conditions. If this is not possible Government should then consider what other action may be required within the terms of the Agreement. I cannot advise any unilateral or hasty action that may undermine the confidence of other countries in the Falkland Island Government. This Government is highly regarded as one which is responsible and one which honours Agreements formally entered. Any other course could have serious economic consequences.

Government similarly looks to other Governments with which it has entered into agreements to honour their obligations. Government will be vigilant to see that these requirements are fulfilled or that alternative arrangements are made. I trust the Honourable Member will find it sensible and adequate to leave the matter there for the reasons I have stated, that it is largely a hypothetical case and that it is an Agreement which we have formally entered into and there is mechanism in the Agreement which safeguards our interests."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary confirm that the sections of the Agreement he referred to are sections B1 and B2 of the Oil Agreement?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"That is correct Sir."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary further confirm that the only organisation on the exempted list specified in that Agreement are the Armed Forces?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"That is correct Sir. There is an Aide Memoire which amplifies 1(b)(ii) which lists the other organisations to which I have referred and which is a substantive part of the Agreement."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary confirm that there is also an Aide Memoire to the Communications Agreement which covers white cards. We have not been so fortunate to get the Aide Memoire attitude adopted."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I can confirm, Sir, that the Aide Memoire to this Agreement will be implemented."

MR. BLAKE

"I thank the Chief Secretary for his assurance."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 28/74 by the Honourable L.G. Blake J.P."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary please inform Council as to why no notice was taken in 1973 or in 1974 of an invitation by the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association to send a delegation to London and Srilanka?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I go along with the Honourable Member and regret that the Council and the local representative of the CPA have, so far as I know, no knowledge of any invitation to attend the CPA meetings in 1973 and 1974 or, in fact, the previous year. It is a fact that negotiations were entered into some time ago about our membership as an auxiliary branch of the CPA, by which we shall have the right to send delegates to the annual Plenary Conference provided our annual subscription is agreed with the CPA's General Council. At the moment I am in touch with the CPA in London and will discuss further with Members of the Council their wishes in this respect."

MR. PITALUGA

"May I ask who is the representative of the CPA in the Falklands?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think it would be invidious Sir, to answer that question. I am prepared to disclose it privately to Members but I think it would put the person in an invidious position. If you will accept the assurance."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 29/74 by the Honourable L.G. Blake J.P."

MR. BLAKE

"In view of the hostile attitude of some sections of the Argentine political scene, will the Chief Secretary give an assurance that Government has plans in the case of a complete breakdown in relations with the Government of the Argentine Republic."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, Government has plans to meet any situation which might arise but has no reason to anticipate a breakdown in its relations with the Argentine Government. The hostile attitude referred to in your question is certainly not reflected in the official attitude of the Government of the Argentine."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary confirm that it is Government's belief that should there be a change in the Government of the Argentine that a similar policy will be followed."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I can only repeat my assurance to the Honourable Member that we have provision for any situation that might arise."

THE CLERK

"Question 30/74 by the Honourable R.M. Pitaluga."

MR. PITALUGA

"It was announced some time ago that the YPF Agreement has been signed. When will this Agreement be made public, or at least shown to members of Legislative Council?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, The Agreement, which was signed on 13th September this year, has not yet been printed as an official paper by HMSO. For the convenience of Members Government has had copies duplicated and these have been laid on the table today together with the AIDE Memoire which amplifies paragraph 1(b) (ii) of the Agreement."

MR. PITALUGA

"Will the Chief Secretary please tell me if it is correct that the YPF Agreement has been on sale in Argentina since September of this year?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I have been informed on very reliable evidence today that this is the case."

MR. PITALUGA

"Am I correct in assuming from the first answer you gave to my question, for which I thank you, that when this has been printed by HMSO it will freely be on sale to the public?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Certainly Sir, that is the intention."

THE CLERK

"Question 31/74 by the Honourable R.M. Pitaluga."

MR. PITALUGA

"Why is Government still operating its unreasonable policy of airdropping mail only when it contains UK postal matter?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I and the rest of Government know how distressing it is for people in remote areas when they do not get letters and parcels regularly and frequently from their friends and relations. It is most important, as you, Sir, have indicated, that everything possible is done to ensure that these communities do not go without.

Some time ago, when a similar question was asked, it was decided that the use of the scarce flying time available for mail dropping could be best utilised if these drops were timed to coincide with receipts of mail from overseas (not just from the UK). It was also decided that if any settlement had not had a drop for 30 days a special journey should be made.

Although this arrangement causes some hardship I am not sure that I would go so far as to join the Honourable Member in calling it unreasonable, and certainly the Postmaster and the Superintendent of Civil Aviation have faithfully carried out the policy laid down, and discharged their responsibilities to the community to the utmost of their abilities within this policy. If there is any fault it certainly isn't theirs.

I should welcome a discussion with the Honourable Member and with other Honourable Members - as well as the departments concerned - to see if any improvement can be made. I shall treat this with some urgency."

MR. PITALUGA

"Thank you for that reply. In view of the suggestion, which I welcome, in paragraph 4 of that reply, I will not trouble you with a supplementary, but will look forward to such a discussion at a time convenient to all concerned."

THE CLERK

"Question 32/74 - by the Honourable A.B. Monk J.P."

MR. A.B. MONK

"Is there any evidence to show that Alginate Industries are intending to start operations in the near future, or does the evidence indicate that they are merely sitting on the concession so that no-one else can start."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think it is a very important question Sir. The present position is that the Consultants to Alginates have advised that the cost of a full plant producing calcium alginate would cost in the region of £7 million. They are unable to raise that capital at the present time, and have therefore fallen back on their more modest proposal that they envisaged originally, which will involve an investment of approximately £2 million.

Alginates will continue meantime to process the seaweed in the northern hemisphere which they process in Scotland. I understand that AIL plans to exhaust its seaweed resources in the north before they start on Falkland Islands seaweed, utilising its plant in the United Kingdom. Alginates' planned increase in the United Kingdom has fallen short of what they expected, and production from the Scottish plant has in fact been delayed. Had ALL been able to keep to their proposed programme they would have exhausted the last available northern hemisphere supplies, in Iceland, during 1975, but a new estimate puts a term of 3 years to this work. Thus it is unlikely that ALL will start any substantial work in the Falklands before 1978, although they plan to continue their essential pilot work during this time.

It may be too much to infer from what I have said that they are - to quote the Honourable Member - "merely sitting on the concession so that no-one else may start." In present conditions it isn't easy for any company to raise capital. Government however is most anxious for this industry to get under way, and will enforce the terms of its Agreement with Alginates. The situation in this regard is that the licence granted to ALL on 20th September 1972 provides, in clause 5 of the Agreement, that the Company shall pay £2,500 in respect of any year in which their production of dried nilled kelp exceeds 1,000 tons, or 1974, whichever is the earlier. Thus the sum of £2,500 is due from the Company this year and under the terms of the Agreement is payable before February 1975."

MR. A.B. MONK

"I am absolutely appalled at what you have to say in some respects. Can you please confirm that our Agreement with Alginate Industries does not allow them to rapidly use all our kelp, exhaust our supplies of kelp, and then go somewhere else?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I am not sure that I understand the Honourable Members purport. Alginates have a concession, terminable in certain conditions, for a section of our sea, and I understand that this contains the larger deposits of our kelp; but I don't know any covenant in the Agreement which requires them to exhaust our kelp before they go elsewhere."

MR. A.B. MONK

"The question I asked was 'is there anything to stop then exhausting the kelp?' "

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think the answer to that, Sir, is No."

MR. PITALUGA

"Does the Chief Secretary know whether in the last few years Government has been approached by any other company interested in harvesting and processing kelp?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Yes. Sir, There have been at least one or two. I cannot give facts and figures at the present time but I can let the Honourable Member have these if required."

THE CLERK

"Question 33/74 - by the Honourable A.B. Monk. J.P."

MR. A.E. MONK

"Was the Vibeke Lonborg on her arrival in Stanley loaded so that the appropriate load-line applicable to these latitudes was submerged?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I confess to being rather out of my depth in trying to answer this question. I hope, however, that my Honourable namesake will be able to make sense of my amateurish reading of the information supplied to me.

When the Vibeke Lonborg arrived in Stanley on 28th October the Harbourmaster noticed that her loadline was submerged. He pointed this out to the Master and expressed surprise to him that the ship had been allowed to leave Mar del Plata in this condition. The master answered that he considered that the ship was well within its limits on leaving UK but had taken on so much cargo at Mar del Plata that the summer marks were just submerged. Even so, he had to leave some cargo at Mar del Plata."

MR. A.E. MONK

"We heard previously that we are a responsible colony signing agreements which we honour. Do we honour the International loadline Agreement?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, the International Loadline Agreement of 1966 has been applied to only one colony and that is Hong Kong."

MOTIONS

A MOTION for the adoption of the Standing Finance Committee Report for the period June 1974 to November 1974 was put by the Financial Secretary. The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and carried.

MOTION - By the Honourable A.E. Monk J.P.

In view of the difficulty we experience in recruiting medical staff despite the fact that we are told that the terms of employment we offer are competitive with those offered by other territories, that this Council requires the Administration to ascertain all the relevant facts and report in detail to members of the Council.

MR. A.E. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I had thought of withdrawing the motion which has been virtually covered under the Questions and Answers session. However, I would prefer to put the Motion forward as well because it seems that we still have a serious problem recruiting medical staff, and I think this might be one way to keep this in the forefront of everybody's thoughts so I therefore beg to propose the Motion."

MR. LULTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I certainly support my Honourable Friend in this Motion. With all respect to the Chief Secretary I wasn't really satisfied with the answers we heard to the question on this same subject, and I think that a full report on all the facts might put us somewhat more in the picture. I support the Motion."

MR. MILLER

"I would like to support this Motion as well, Sir, because though it has been lightly aired, as my Honourable Friends have said, in the Questions and Answers, the case I quoted I know to be a fact, and there is a more recent case - arrival here - also I know to be a fact. A Nursing Sister had an interviewer who tried to put her off. What it boils down to is that we here just have no faith in London, and we can't believe what they tell us."

MR. PITALUGA

Your Excellency, I rise to support this Motion as well because the place is full of rumour and speculation. Two things are certain; that Dr. Ashmore leaves early next year, and he does so before Dr. Cox returns to the Islands. So what do we do in the meantime? Rumour has it that there are two temporary doctors coming but this is not yet confirmed officially, so the Honourable Mr. Monk has my full support on this Motion."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I cannot but express my great gloom of sympathy with the purport and terms of this Motion. I think it is absolutely essential that we do all we can to light the fuse under ODM whenever necessary. I won't be so categorical as to say that we get all we want from our recruitment agency. I won't go so far as to say that we always get instant replies to our requests; but I am afraid that it is rather a case of "If you know a better 'ole go to it", and frankly I don't know of a "Better 'ole". As I pointed out in answer to a question, ODM is a very large organisation it has a tremendous amount of expertise; it has access to practically every source of training and learning in the United Kingdom; it has a staff who are skilled in recruitment; its overheads bear on us not at all. Also attached to the people recruited by ODM are the OS&S terms which may not be attached to any other Agency. So as I pointed out earlier, it is possible that we might improve our recruitment by going it alone but I doubt this very much. I would prefer that we follow Your Excellency's earlier suggestion, coupled to my own, that any senior officer who goes home sees ODM and in liaison with them arranges for them to deal with our applications in a sympathetic and expeditious way. There is another side to this question, too. I think if we enquire and require an examination into the ODM methods of recruitment, we could antagonise them as distinct from jockeying them along, and I see no merit in that. I see a lot of merit in making our case known and in putting our case very strongly as circumstances warrant; but to cause an investigation to be made in the terms of the Motion I think perhaps would be to irritate beyond reasonable measures. Perhaps an amendment to this Motion Sir, to exclude the words after 'that' in the 4th line, so that the Motion will then read:

"In view of the difficulty we experience in recruiting medical staff despite the fact that we are told that the terms of employment we offer are competitive with those offered by other territories, that this Council requires the Administration to do all in its power to ensure that its recruitment procedures are as effective as can be."

MR. BLAKE

"In rising to speak to the Amendment, Sir, I would be interested to know if the Chief Secretary can give us any assurance as to how effective for taxpayers efforts on our behalf have been. Are we to be doctorless in a few months' time?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I wish I could be more helpful but I am going to be frank with you. There are problems in recruiting doctors. We have done our utmost and I am satisfied that we cannot do any more at the moment to ensure that our situation is looked after to the best ability of ODM. As I say, I don't wish to be categorical, and I would not wish to conceal from the Honourable Member that we are having problems; but I can give him an assurance that we will do all we can to get rid of these problems and to get the staff here in time, and suitable staff at that."

MR. A.D. MONK

"I am prepared to withdraw the words in the original Motion and support the amendment proposed by the Honourable Chief Secretary. At the same time I'm not entirely happy about this, but I accept his argument that possibly the original Motion might, by antagonising ODM, do more harm than good. However, it does seem that in the medical field, whoever is responsible for recruiting doctors in that department is the cause of our trouble. Quite recently we were told that as a result of advertisements we had six applications. We were told that in this House some months ago, but it seems that once they pass through the portals of whatever the building concerned is called, they never seem to want to come here any more. So I am unhappy about the situation, but if the Honourable Chief Secretary thinks we will do more harm than good with the original wording I am prepared to support the amendment."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I am obliged to my Honourable Friend and I undertake to ensure that every application is dealt with as expeditiously and as efficiently as can possibly be."

The Amended Motion was then formally put to Council and carried.

MOTION - by the Honourable W.R. Luxton.

It is the wish of this House that His Excellency the Governor should, on behalf of the people of the Falkland Islands, extend to Her Majesty The Queen, an invitation to visit the Falkland Islands as soon as is convenient with Her Majesty.

MR. LUXTON

"I don't feel that a long introduction to this Motion is really required. It's hardly a debating matter. I've heard it said on this subject that we couldn't afford such a visit, because we would have to build roads and polish up the place and so on. But what a miserable attitude. And what a load of rubbish. I'm quite certain that H.M. the Queen is very aware of our financial circumstances and will be far more impressed by the warmth of the welcome she would surely receive from the people of these islands than by a lot of expensive preparations we could not really afford.

We in this Colony have never had a visit from a reigning monarch and I think at this time we badly need one. I hope that Honourable Members of this Council will support the Motion unanimously and that we may all hope for that event that we should all remember, I think, for the rest of our lives."

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to second this Motion, primarily because to extend an invitation to Her Majesty to come to these Islands is, I think, a step in the right direction. We will have an opportunity in the future for her to come here for a very good reason, even if it is only to open the new airport at Cape Pembroke. But whether there is a reason or not is really irrelevant. I am sure the people of these Islands would like to see Her Majesty the Queen on our shores."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I identify with the Motion entirely, Your Excellency, and I am sure Her Majesty will be pleased to receive this formal invitation which I believe repeats several which were made to her verbally by yourself and your predecessors."

MR. A.D. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support the Motion, for very obvious reasons. I am a loyal subject of Her Majesty and one who would like to remain a subject, too. I think, in fact, that it is probably pie in the sky, but it would be extremely nice pie if it fell!"

MR. PITLUGA

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support this Motion as well. I think that possibly apart from a 100% increase in the offers for wool at the moment, nothing better could happen to these Islands than a visit by the Queen, and I'd be delighted if she could come. I hope every effort will be made to persuade her, somehow, to do so. I agree with the Honourable Mr. Luxton that we shouldn't rush around with the varnish and paint box and try to gloss up the place. This was done, at considerable expense, for Prince Philip when he came, and the first free moment that he got outside his programme - which kept him around all the paint and varnish - he was into the Agricultural Department's landrover and round the back of the town where he saw everything. Afterwards we heard that he enjoyed himself most when he was doing things off the beaten track, as it were. So the Honourable Member's Motion has my full support."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would, of course, like to associate myself with this Motion, and I would rather be inclined to regard it as the Honourable Member for the East Falklands put it - as pie in the sky- but we would be delighted if she could come. But at the present moment, of course, it would be rather difficult. She would have to travel through DA and get a white card! With regard to dishing the place up, as my Honourable Friends called it, I can well remember, as my Honourable Friend on my left has just said, that when the Duke of Edinburgh came here the town was decorated a bit - they painted all the fronts of the battens down Ross Road - and a few years after that - 4 or 5 years after - I was in the Shetlands, and they were expecting the Queen there on a visit, and I was highly delighted to see, when walking down the front road and peering over the fence, that they had done exactly the same. They had just painted the front!"

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I would like to join in support for this Motion, and I feel that at no time in the history of this Colony could Her Majesty do the people of this Colony more good than by coming to visit us at the moment, when we could assure her of our loyalty."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, as you are aware, during my last leave to Britain I had the privilege and honour of meeting Her Majesty and Prince Philip, and I endorse the views so well put by the Honourable W.R. Luxton because Prince Philip mentioned many things about the Islands, in particular participating in the Sailors' race - he did not recall insignificant matters such as decorations. I would like strongly to support the Motion put forward by Mr. Luxton."

The Motion was carried unanimously.

THE PRESIDENT

"This is one of the rare occasions when, happily, we are all unanimous."

MOTION - By the Honourable W.R. Luxton.

This Council considers that the Colonial Government should take immediate steps to invite interested parties to apply for licences to examine the possibilities of drilling for oil both on shore and within territorial waters.

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, again in introducing the Motion I can say it is entirely self-explanatory. You have already heard a great deal on the subject this morning. I think all Honourable Members anyway, and a great many people in the Colony at the moment, know as many of the facts as I do myself. Interest in oil here has been expressed for 10 years or so. I know Your Excellency suggested that we should tread cautiously, but with our present economic circumstances I think this is a little bit too cautious. So far the Foreign Office has done nothing but sit on its backside and swallow the various applications. I believe there may have been as many as 20 of these applications. I know for a fact that there have been four, and with one of these all Members of this Council, and some members of the general public are very familiar. I gather that there is much better than an even chance that oil exists in and around these Islands - or in or around - and it doesn't need a vivid imagination to see what it might do for our economy. However, the only way to find out for certain is to survey, and then to dig holes. When the stuff squirts out of the ground, only then do you know for sure. So for goodness sake let us get on with it immediately. We must allow people to start looking. That will take time, and during that time all concerned with this matter can decide how the next stage should be handled. The facts are that the oil industry seems to believe there may be oil here, and is prepared to put its money where its mouth is. We have a concrete and attractive proposal which we can consider at this very moment. A small quantity of exploitable oil would solve all the Colony's precarious finance very quickly. We have to face the fact that larger amounts could trigger off rapid and extensive changes in the Colony as we know it now. But I think that we must get cracking right away and start the ball rolling; and I ask all Honourable Members to support this Motion."

MR. HOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, once again I rise to support Mr. Luxton in yet another one of his Motions. As I said earlier, if we've got oil to offer to the world, and the world wants oil, then I think we should offer it. The immediate course to this Motion is for Members round this table to decide what they must do. I would suggest that it be referred to a Select Committee of the House for intensive investigation so that we can get a really good look and select the best possible method for this purpose. It's early days yet, but I think we should make jolly good use of them. Thank you Sir."

MR. A.B. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support the Motion. I think that all the relevant facts have been sorted out already. I utterly oppose the suggestion that a Select Committee of this House should decide the best way to go about it. We haven't the faintest idea how to go about it, and I think that's absolute nonsense. The only thing we've got to decide is whether we want to grant oil licences or not. Having made decision, we make it known. We engage the very best legal assistance available who deal in these matters - and we need the very best assistance, for oil companies are particularly noted for their ruthlessness and high-handed ways of dealing with people such as ourselves who are just Babes in the Wood in that sort of thing. If the UK Government, which has 55 million people, couldn't deal with them properly, how can we with 2,000 without very great assistance? I suggest we make up our minds, as soon as possible, that we are going to grant licences 'to continue the seismic surveys which are required and to ascertain definitely whether the probability of a large amount of oil is a certainty' and, as I say, consult with the very best legal experts as to the sort of concessions we would be prepared to offer."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I would like to rise in support of this Motion. As you will know Sir, I have a further Motion on the subject which is virtually the same as this. It was suggested earlier that we might combine them. I said I preferred that the two motions stayed on the Order Paper and I would explain myself later."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I of course support this Motion strongly, and I notice that all it says is to invite, to take steps to invite interested parties to apply for licences, which, of course, is as far as we can go at the moment in this room, in this House; but some pressure has to be brought to bear somehow on the UK to do something about it. These applications, as I said earlier today, have been coming in for a number of years - 8 or 10 years - and although they do not admit it, some of us are fairly sure that the reason that HMG have not done anything about it is that they are frightened of offending the Argentine Government. And if we are to go on like that all through life it's a pretty poor lookout. It's high time that the British Government decided to stand on its own feet with respect to the Argentine Government, and in particular with allowing licences, or a licence to examine the possibilities of drilling for oil offshore. "

THE PRESIDENT

"Don't blame me - I haven't been here 10 years, you know!"

MR. MILLER

"Yes, well we have had applications and as far as I am aware, had to pass them on to London, but we are also well aware that nothing has happened, and if we don't keep the pressure on nothing will happen."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't think anyone would quarrel with the intention of a Motion to diversify the economy. As a newcomer I suppose, like most, one thinks back and wonders why it wasn't done before. We need a new industry, and nobody could gainsay that; if there is oil then the Falkland Islanders should have their share of it. I don't think anyone would quarrel with that. As so many Honourable Members have already pointed out, this is not a new matter, it has been going on at least since 1968. The Honourable Mr. Luxton referred to 20 applications. I think probably that's a conservative figure. Another Honourable Member would wish to have it referred to a Select Committee. Another one referred to the legal problem involved, and to the political problem involved, and it seems to me, however, that the granting of a licence is not going to remove these problems.

It often falls to the lot of the Chief Secretary, I think, to say the unpopular thing, to state the facts, to put them before Council. And the facts are these: that a Geneva Convention in 1958 laid down that countries had the claim to the waters and minerals below its continental shelf. This wasn't universally accepted, although it was applied to the North Sea case by the International Court at the Hague. Since then we have had the UN Law of the Sea Conference which concluded its second session this summer at Caracas. Nothing firm has yet come out of this but it does look as if they will settle for 200 miles and, it is possible including 200m depth limit, one can't be sure. There is also at this moment, going on in New York, the UN Conference on Maritime Law, in which West Germany has tabled a Motion that all countries should have access to the reserves of the sea bed. I mention these things because they do highlight the legal problem, and I cannot imagine any oil company entering on an enterprise where such vast sums of money are involved without first asking themselves: "What is the legal position? What is the political position?" You can't sweep these under the carpet. The Argentine mainland is 400 miles away. The legal problems have not yet been resolved. We have not yet carried out the survey with sufficient intensity for us to decide which is our territorial waters. Our territorial Order in Council, 1917, is very difficult to interpret. One wonders at times why the oil companies have not already explored these waters if we don't lay claim to them, or if no-one else lays claim to them. I submit that the answer is the very reason that I have put forward - that they have asked themselves "What is the legal position? What is the political position?" and they have come up with the answer that it is not yet resolved.

Government hasn't in fact dragged its feet entirely on this. There has been criticism of this Government and criticism of HMG. On this I am not sure that this is entirely valid. In 1970 this Government and HMG arranged a survey to be carried out by the world authority on submarine structures, Professor Griffiths of Birmingham University. Since then two surveys have been carried out and the results are being evaluated by the National Geographical Institute. This result, this analysis, is expected in early 1975. It seems to me that we might be wiser to wait until that is available, and I say this in the full mind that I will be accused of procrastinating once again. But in all honesty, someone has referred to the North Sea, and the chaos that has arisen and the arguments that have arisen there - if they can't sort it out in the North Sea where they have numerous surveys, numerous legal experts, as someone said, how can we do it? There is also this important aspect. In the North Sea I believe it is true that some blocks were found to be far more important and valuable than others. If this is so, shouldn't we reserve our position until we know just what these blocks might be? We don't yet even know there is oil there. If there is, shouldn't we reserve our position, hold our hand close to our chest, so that we can bargain for the best advantage of the Islanders, not give an open-ended licence. I think we should go against open-ended licences. I think it would be most unwise to grant concessions which might seem attractive in the short term but in the long term would mean that we do not get the best of the bargain. I think this would not be in the interest of the Falkland Islands or the Islanders.

My view therefore, Honourable Members, is that I have great sympathy and identification with this Motion. Everyone must, who has an interest in the Falkland Islands. If we can get a second industry we must do all we can to ensure that we get the best bargain that we can.

I would like to propose, therefore, that we proceed on these lines. We update our survey, as much as we can. We can, at the same time, look into the question of the procedure for issuing licences, and in this connection I think it is worth mentioning that our Mining Ordinance enables Government to issue licences for purposes approved by the Secretary of State. So we haven't got a completely free hand in it.

We should, I think, also think about the climate that we've got to create for anyone who's going to be genuinely interested in taking out a licence to explore and exploit oil. And in this discussion it is no use ignoring the legal and political implications, because the oil companies most certainly won't. That is my view. It seems, therefore, that although it could be construed as bowing once again to the Argentine claim to sovereignty, as one Honourable Member put it, we've got to talk to someone about it. We've got to create a climate where fruitful discussions can go ahead to explore for oil. If we don't, which company is going to risk its very expensive equipment, particularly in these waters of ours, which I gather are not the easiest to explore? Which company is going to risk very heavy commitments in millions of pounds where they might be vulnerable? Added to this is the risk I have already referred to. It may well prove that there will be blocks of our seas which are more profitable than others. It might be that it is better for us to reserve our position, and hold on to what we have got until we have an inkling, at least, of what we've got. There is another thing which I haven't heard referred to this afternoon but I think it is quite important because it has already reared its ugly head in Europe, and that is the environmental conditions of exploring for oil. In the North of Scotland, an area which I know reasonably well, there was a fair body of opinion which regretted that they found gas and oil under the North Sea, and this is, I think, because they did not put sufficient planning into it at the outset. They went ahead, perhaps hoping for a bonanza, only to find that they had sown the wind and reaped the whirlwind, and I would therefore like to impress on this Council that it approaches this matter with the greatest caution and the greatest care to see that its interests are properly safeguarded. It is not a great time to wait until we get the results of Professor Griffiths' study, and I think it is worth waiting for.

I would therefore propose to Council that the Motion be amended so as to delete all words after 'that' which, in fact, does not appear in the Motion although it ought to, and substitute for it: "Government makes every endeavour to expedite the survey commissioned by the FCO and undertaken by Professor Griffiths in the hope that this reveals oil-bearing structures beneath our waters or under our land. Government should take all necessary steps to frame comprehensive licensing policies with a view to granting licences on terms most favourable to the Colony." "

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, frankly, if the Chief Secretary had wished to introduce a completely different, and another Motion on this subject, I think it should have been on the Order Paper. This isn't an amendment to my Motion. I couldn't quite take all that in, but I think basically I support what he said, but as far as my Motion is concerned, I will not agree to any amendment to it. It is carefully worded, I am suggesting that we should invite people to apply for licences to examine the possibilities, and I have stated "onshore and within territorial waters".

I cannot see that there are any complex international matters arising from anything that is discovered 'onshore or within our territorial waters.' The amendment that the Chief Secretary has produced is not an amendment. It is another Motion altogether, and by all means let us debate that one; but as far as this is concerned, it is not amending my Motion.

No, Your Excellency, and Honourable Members. I stand by the Motion as originally introduced and I ask that it stays that way."

MOTION - By the Honourable W.R. Luxton.

This Council considers that we should become fully participating members of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association as soon as possible.

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the CPA is an association of Commonwealth parliamentarians. They hold an annual conference in different countries each year all over the Commonwealth. At the moment we are non-contributing members, and it seems non-participating. You will have already gathered that despite two generous proposals - invitations - which were made recently, nothing appears to have been done as far as the Falklands are concerned. We have therefore missed two excellent opportunities to put the Falklands' case at meetings of some of the most influential - in these times - members of the United Nations. This is something of a tragedy for us, and I am not really satisfied with the explanation given earlier. The cost of full membership of the CPA would be something in the region of £800 to the Colony per year, though I understand, however, this would entitle us to send a delegate to every conference, and I feel that it would be money well spent to have an opportunity to put our case in this form every year."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I rise to second the Motion of the Honourable Member, and to add my feelings, which he has already expressed, that we are part of the wide and wicked world. We have no voice in this world at the moment, and on two occasions when we had a chance to speak on an item on the Agenda - an item was already tailor-made for us (the problems of the small community within the Commonwealth) - we didn't make use of it. This, as my Honourable Colleague has said, was a tragedy. A major advantage of full membership would be that such a tragedy would not occur again because mail and telegraph services would be ensured. We must make our feelings known to the world. The British Government does a very good job for us but not everybody, unfortunately, in this day and age believes what Britain says; and unless we therefore say it ourselves - Falkland Islanders - then they will all continue to disbelieve us, and this seems to be one of the ways of ensuring that we get our chance."

Mr. A.D. MONK

"Your Excellency, I am in full agreement with the Motion as proposed, but I would like to add an amendment to it. The amendment that I would like to propose is "that the administration is required to ascertain the full facts regarding the alleged non-receipt of two letters and a telegram inviting us to attend the London Conference, and report to this House in full."

I really haven't got anything more constructive to say on the matter. We are entitled to know what happened to these invitations, and I think it would be useful to us if we could occasionally attend one of these Commonwealth meetings, and hear outside opinion."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I fully support this, Sir. The only thing to jeopardise it is that the CPA is not a governmental body - perhaps a quasi-governmental body where the branch elects its own representative - and I shall be in some difficulty in eliciting facts because they may not have come into Government hands at all."

MR. LUMFON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, perhaps I could advise the Chief Secretary. The CPA themselves have put it in writing. I have a copy here. Perhaps you would permit me to read this :

"Last year, however, the Conference took place in London, the 1st time for 12 years, and knowing it was to be opened by HM the Queen as Head of the Commonwealth, an offer was made to the Falkland Islands Branch, and other branches not entitled to receive an invitation to the conference, to pay half the fare of their delegates should they choose to send them. The offer was made by what is known as the CPA Associated Purposes Trust in the form of two letters and finally a cable, but our files show no record of a reply."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I still foresee difficulties because unless the letter shows that it was addressed to Government I shall be somewhat difficultly placed in ascertaining the course of the correspondence. But I shall certainly do my best."

The Motion was carried.

MOTION - By the Honourable L.C. Blake J.P.

This House wishes to make known to Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom its distress at not being informed at the time of offer that the Development Aid was to be on a loan basis.

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I was interested in the reply to the Honourable Member's question earlier in the day on this same subject, but I am still somewhat puzzled by the actions of our official Members, because even if their understanding of the original offer was that 76% of the Aid was grant, and 25%, near enough, was loan, I fail to see why we were not told that at least part was loan. At the end of January last year, 1973, we had the honour to receive an economist from the FCO, one Mr. Armstrong, who in a short report complained about just about everything in the Colony, explained to us how to spend our Development Aid, and said that if we were good and spent an extra £50,000 we could have last year's money this year on fencing. Yet he never explained that this was loan. Whether Members felt they couldn't stop it, or what, I don't know, but the only thing we were told at the time was that we would have to match every 50,000 quid of British capital with 50,000 of our own. The attitude at the time was "well we'll try, but we've got to spend this money - it's been given to us." How Dr. Armstrong could think that on top of our 50,00 in probably 25 years' time we should be spending another 50,000 in covering loans, I have no idea.

I beg to move the Motion."

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I beg to second this Motion. I, too, was horrified to return from leave and find that this money that we've taken in the full belief that it was a grant turns out to be a loan. I am not particularly happy about the answers we heard on this subject today because, even if the telegrams were misunderstood, - as we have been told they were misunderstood - there was still a question of approximately a quarter of this money being a loan and not a grant. I believed this money was a grant with no question of repayment, until such time as I returned from England. I beg to second the Motion."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, because of what went before this Motion in answer to my question, the mover of this Motion, the Honourable Mr. Blake, has asked me to move an amendment. The amendment he has asked me to move is "That in view of what has gone before us today, the House asks that future aid be direct grant and not soft loans."

MR. PETALUGA

"I beg to second the amendment."

THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, as you are well aware, I was even more horrified than any other Member to find out that it was a grant and not a loan - sorry, a loan and not a grant. However, I can't see any point in holding a post mortem on it. The information that came in our memorandum schemes which are approved by the Secretary of State stated at the end that it was a grant, and as far as Treasury records go that is certainly where we got the information that the money was to be a grant. Later other papers became available and we immediately got off a letter to the Secretary of State. There can be no objection to referring the matter back to the Secretary of State. We welcome the proposal and although showing our appreciation of the aid given by Britain, we will pass on the recommendations which have now been tabled."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think it is very important too, Sir, that in making any representations to HMG we do at least acknowledge the very generous aid that we have already received from that Government. I referred this morning to the £4.2 million for the airfield. There is other aid that we should not be unkindful of. Certain Members have spoken of their attachment to Britain; the shelter that has been provided. I wouldn't like any Motion to go from this Council to the British Government that did not take into account the very important attachment we have for Britain, and for the money she provides - money and aid in other forms as well."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I believe I have the right to talk a second time on this one, haven't I? I appreciate the Honourable Chief Secretary's and the Honourable Financial Secretary's remarks. I am sure we all do appreciate the shelter and kindness Britain has shown us and we appreciate her airfield, but let's get the record straight. I have never yet seen an appreciation by the British Government for all the donations and taxes put into the Exchequer. It is not all one way - this cash - and in fact I would think that probably the balance is just about even."

The amended Motion, namely, "That in view of what has gone before us today, the House asks that future aid be direct grant and not soft loans," was then put formally to Council and carried.

MOTION - By the Honourable L.G. Blake J.P.

This House considers now is the time to examine applications for oil exploration licences in view of the Colony's almost certain future economic difficulties, in order to take advantage of any oil available in the Colony or its waters as soon as possible.

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as I said at the introduction of the previous Motion by the Honourable Mr. Luxton, it has been suggested that we might combine the Motions and just have the one. I had made known my feelings, but I would like the second Motion to remain on the Order Paper. The main reason for this is that I thought it probably a good thing that two Motions, quite apart, from this Council on the same subject, should be recorded. It occurs to me that it may be thought that we got together on this one and hatched it up between us. It would be a good idea, I think, to say at least that this is not the case. There is a further advantage which I didn't realise, for it gives me the chance of using the Chief Secretary's earlier remarks in this Motion. This is not of great advantage, but it is a help. When I first went on the Council - in 64 or not long after - we put through a Bill fairly quickly because everyone wanted oil. This has been said time and again today. It seems to me that the Object of that Bill was not the granting of exploration licences but possibly the blocking of them.

We have heard the Chief Secretary in the last Motion say that there have been two conferences, 16 years apart, on the laws of mineral rights within the sea. The answer isn't over-clear yet, particularly as Argentina said with regard to the Falkland Islands she did not propose to recognise this anyway. So even if they do reach agreement there is little hope of our good friends and neighbours accepting that agreement.

This is important to these Islands in that we cannot hope to support a 1980 community with our one staple industry. We have been watching now since 1972, when the Alginates Agreement was signed, the steady progress towards calcium alginate production which was, we hoped, to help us balance our budget. It is steady. I hope that perhaps work on oil may be a little less steady. The proposition - or the thought - that maybe the uncertain political state of the sea bed and the Falklands/Argentine question and half a dozen other things will mean that oil companies won't risk millions - well, it seems from the proposals I have seen from such people that they are willing to do just that, and my personal feeling is that there isn't a surer way of guaranteeing the future of these Islands than getting a few millions invested here. There is one sure way of making friends and influencing people, and that is having their money in your pocket. They will see you are looked after, and I therefore propose this Motion go forward."

MR. A.B. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to second the Motion. I listened to the Honourable Chief Secretary when he spoke at length about the other Motion concerning this. Unfortunately I didn't have a chance to reply then. I have got a very strong impression that in fact Administration policy in this matter is just exactly what he thought we might say it was - in other words, to drag their heels for some reason or other. This next year we will be riding high. The people in Camp will have plenty of money; the people in Stanley will have plenty of money. The year after they might not have so much and I think there is urgent need to press forward with this oil exploration business. The Council - we - are not asking that licences - concessions - be granted. We are asking that licences to substantiate the probability that there is oil; to turn that probability into a certainty so that we know exactly where we are. A very firm proposition has been put to do just that by a consortium of oil companies, and if we make up our minds that we are going to grant licences to complete these surveys we will start the ball rolling; and the quicker we start that - get over that particular hurdle - the sooner we will know whether there is oil there or not. We realise full well that we might exacerbate the sovereignty issue. I think that is something that will just have to be accepted, and dealt with as and when it happens. If we don't get another industry into this Colony - and fairly quickly - the chances are that we will not be able to maintain our standard of living, or live at all; in which case no-one is going to be the slightest bit interested in this sovereignty issue. I beg to second the Motion."

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, when the Honourable Mr. Luxton put his similar Motion some time ago, I didn't get to my feet because I felt that I could not add anything to what my Honourable Friends had said.

I think that the Honourable Chief Secretary was perfectly correct in advocating caution, but I feel too, that the time for too much caution - at least foot-dragging caution - has passed. We are facing a pretty serious recession in wool prices, a time of galloping inflation, rising cost of living; and these are something we haven't had in recent past recessions in wool prices. The cost of living inflations have been fairly slow and fairly stable and have not affected us as seriously as they are going to this time.

Therefore, Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Motion before this House has my full support."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, this Motion has my support as well, of course, and in addition to what the two Honourable Members have said in connection with foot-dragging on the part of Britain, we have also had it intimated to us that this consortium which is interested in examining the seabed for oil and getting on with the job at no cost to us - they have also intimated to us that if Britain does not make up her mind - and soon - they may go to the other people across the water and in that event we will look pretty stupid if the Argentine sanction drilling 20 miles off the West Falkland."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I do hope that the last Honourable Speaker was not indicating that the people whose proposal has not yet come before this Council are likely to change their allegiance overnight. Another Honourable Member referred to Alginate Industries. Surely this is the classic example of where we ought to do our home-work in advance. They have a concession - they have had it for two years and they are going to have it for another three. - and what are we going to get out of it? I think in essence the Mover and Secnder of this Motion push against the same door. I want to get this industry moving on the right lines and correctly on a firm basis. I don't want us to get involved in granting licences to commit us to something we don't know anything about. This is my point. I won't carry it further."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I would like to point out to the Honourable Member that we've spent a minimum of three or probably more years in perusing and going over the Alginate Industries Agreement and it didn't seem to do a lot of good. If you want to tame a colt the first thing you do is to catch it, and it's long past time we started looking at which colt we are going to catch."

The Motion was carried.

THE PRESIDENT

"I hoped at one stage I might have heard the voice of cold realism coming through, but I didn't."

MOTION - By the Honourable W.E. Bowles.

That this Council views with grave concern Government's policy to introduce water meters to private property in Stanley; and considering the consequences involved, advise withdrawing this policy accordingly.

THE CLERK

"Under Rule 9A of the Legislative Council Standing Rules and Orders, The consent of the Governor is required before a Motion which would alter any disposition of public funds may be presented to Council. In this case the consent of His Excellency the Governor has been sought and obtained."

MR. BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, first of all I would like to thank you Sir for signifying consent to this Motion. The metering of the Stanley water supply is considered, and was considered, a fair means of distribution. But is this fair when we consider the householder? Water, to my mind, should be treated the same way as air, something the public have the right to use according to need. It is not a manufactured article. The proposed introduction of meters is really a tax on cleanliness, a tax on public health. The large family has to use more water than the small family. Does this seem fair? Our filtrated water is a nominal fixed cost. How can added expenditure on the installation and maintenance of meters affect any savings?

The general public has presented the administration with a petition of 442 signatories. Sir, it is my humble duty to respect the wishes of these loyal constituents who are convinced that the metering of water domestically is uneconomical and a policy we can well do without. At present the water cost is borne by the Stanley ratepayer; or if a camper has a house in Stanley, is also borne by the Camp ratepayer. I am sure that he or she is satisfied with this arrangement. This is surely a matter for the ratepayer. I would therefore urge Honourable Members to consider this Motion as a matter of which the public are acutely aware, and bear in mind the urgent need to replace the high level storage tank which is on its way out - or at least due for a major overhaul. Thank you Sir, and I wish to put the Motion."

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to second this Motion I expect some of the Honourable friends round this table are looking sideways at me, because I was one of the people who promoted, or rather supported this scheme when the previous Superintendent of Public Works, Mr. Royans, advised us that it would be a good method to cut down the cost of the Filtration Plant. I was as strong a supporter of Mr. Royans as all of us round this table with the exception of Mr. Bowles. I am afraid, although I am seconding this Motion, I don't agree with all he says. The reason I am seconding this Motion is that at the present moment this Colony cannot afford it anyway, and because of our economic position I would like to see this policy withdrawn, as he says in the last sentence of his Motion, and possibly wait for another day - possibly not. However, at the moment I support it because we can't afford it."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I rise to support this Motion of Mr. Bowles. As I understand it, the meters are already here, but lacking some essential parts for installation. I think when Mr. Miller refers to the Colony not being able to afford it he means the installation and maintenance of the meters, and I agree with that. I am a Camp dweller really, but I seem to spend almost an equal amount of time in Stanley now, and frankly I can sympathise with the people, the regular dwellers in Stanley, particularly the high gallonage users of water - the cost it is going to be to them, and what effect this is going to have on them - knowing that every time they turn on a tap they are going to pay for it. I very strongly support this Motion."

MR. LUXTON

I am going to abstain on this Motion because if I lived in Stanley I think I would probably oppose it. I was one of the people - in fact Mr. Bowles was the only person who opposed this in the first place. I still feel that if I lived in here I would prefer to pay for what I use. This means that you are, in fact, paying for the quantities which, according to the figures, somebody must be wasting. Water is disappearing somewhere. I understand that we have the heaviest consumption - rate of consumption - in the world. But it would seem to me to be something which the people of Stanley should decide. I have never before heard of a petition of 400, maybe 500, signatures. That seems like a very large proportion of the population in Stanley, but in view of the fact that the meters are here I can't really see how it would be expensive to put them in if the money is already spent.

As I said, in the circumstances I feel it is something that the people in Stanley should really be allowed to decide if there is some way in which they could be allowed to do so. So I will abstain from voting."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the wind has rather been taken out of my sails by the Honourable Member at the head of the table, in that his argument is much as mine. I feel it is a mistake to abandon the idea of metering water supplies and I would like to emphasise the fact that the aim is not to charge more for water, but so that the same amount is raised with those people who use water paying for it. One would feel that it would be sensible under the arguments put forward to urge that it would be better to have a flat rate for electricity so that everybody can use what electricity they need, and not bother to meter that either. I think it is wiser always to allow the user to pay for what he is using, rather than expect the small house next door to pay for half of it. This is why I oppose the Motion."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I will confine myself, Sir, to the facts I know about this matter, in the hope that it may help Honourable Members to decide in the ultimate what they should do. I think the grounds for the meters rested on the argument that it was an equitable way of dealing with a scarce resource, and if that had been so I think the Honourable Mr. Blake's point is well taken. But I think it is equally true to say that the water in Stanley is not as scarce a resource as we were led to believe at one time. The Board of Trade Report, known as the 'Casserley Report', when it proposed that meters be installed, referred to a consumption per head of something like between 55 and 65 gallons per capita per day. This is now down to under 50. It also made the recommendation that meters should be installed provided that the necessary measures had been taken to assess and deal with any waste that might occur in the distributive system. I am not satisfied that all these measures have yet been carried out, and I would think that by and large the arguments in favour of this Motion on economic grounds outweigh the arguments against it. I think, though, it would be only proper that I abstain in this matter."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I think there is very little left to be said on water meters, but I feel that it is a matter for the rate-payer. If the ratepayer wishes to have his water metered and pay for the full amount he uses, that is all right as far as Government goes; otherwise the charges are incorporated in flat rate as it is at present. I cannot see any objection from the official side, and will abstain like my colleague."

The Motion was carried.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

Stanley Town Public Services (Amendment) Ordinance 1974

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, as the law stands at present the control of Stanley Cemetery is vested in a Board of Visitors. It has been found that the system would prove most difficult, if not impossible to operate.

A short Bill amending the Ordinance has therefore been drawn up to provide that some suitable person should be appointed to superintend and manage the Cemetery and that the Board of Visitors should act only in an advisory capacity.

If the Bill becomes law we shall need to pass subsidiary legislation in Executive Council at a later date.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR. MILLER - seconded

The Motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I seem to rise regularly on this one. I should prefer that the Bill is published to read 'the Governor in Council shall." I rise regularly on this. I beg to move that for the words 'the Governor shall,' the words 'the Governor in Council shall' be substituted."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I cannot see that there is any policy matter involved and I would not think that it would need to have the Governor in Council to become involved in all the various duties provided for under the Ordinance. I would therefore suggest that the Bill be left as it is."

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I agree with the Honourable Financial Secretary in this exceptional case. Normally I agree with my other Honourable Friend from the West Falkland on this subject, but I really think that in this particular case we can leave it to the Governor. I mean I shall be quite happy for the Governor to appoint a Superintendent without referring it to the Executive Council!"

Council went into Committee and the Bill passed through without amendment.

Council resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

NON-CONTRIBUTORY OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) NO.2) BILL

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, the Secretary of State has advised the non-disallowance of the Non-contributory Old Age Pensions (Amendment) Ordinance 1974, but has pointed out that Section 2(ii) should be re-worded to make it consistent with the principal Ordinance.

The Bill before Council will give effect to this without in any way changing the sense of the earlier enactment which extended the provisions of the principal Ordinance to persons who had not bought themselves into the contributory pensions scheme increased the qualifying annual income, and increased the pensions payable. It is just a tidying-up Bill. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR. MILLER - seconded

The Motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

ROAD TRAFFIC (AMENDMENT) BILL

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill, which relates to road traffic in Stanley, sets out to remedy serious defects which make traffic management difficult and leaves the legal situation unclear in the event of an accident.

Considerable thought has been given to the question whether the Road Traffic Ordinance should be completely revised. This would be an exceedingly protracted exercise and may require a large expenditure on road markings etc., to make it operable. It has therefore been decided to delay this exercise for very much more thorough investigation.

It is, however, thought worthwhile to mention the "code" in the legislation, and the attached Bill which provides for statutory recognition of a road code is for consideration by Honourable Members. Although the "code" has no legal force in its own right it may be invoked in deciding culpability in an accident. At present there is a road code in existence but it is not referred to in the law.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR. PITALUGA - seconded

The Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage and after Council had resumed, was read a third time and passed.

BANKING (AMENDMENT) BILL

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, the Colony's Legal Adviser has discussed the local banking law with the authorities at the Bank of England who suggested that section 6 of the Banking Ordinance 1972 should be amended so that companies registered before the Ordinance became law came within its jurisdiction.

In consequence there is a minor amendment and I should like to read out the new section 6.

"Any person other than a company licensed to carry on a banking business under the provisions of this Ordinance shall, without the consent of the Government use, or continue to use the word 'Bank' or 'Trust' or any derivative thereof in the name under which business is being carried on, or use any name implying that the business of banking is carried on."

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR. BOWLES - seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

After a further motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time.

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, these Ordinances, or Bills, are presented to Members of Council to vote on some 5 days, in this case, before we have to pass it into law. I object to this. I don't in this case, and in another case, feel that we are competent to know what we are talking about. There is a discrepancy here in that the introduction which we were presented with and which the Honourable Financial Secretary has just read out, says that the Bill is to apply a section of the Banking Ordinance to companies registered before the original Ordinance became law; and in the piece that is published in the Gazette it says the object of this Bill is to remedy a small omission. Well, to my mind they don't quite tally. I should like to know what are going to be the further effects of this amendment and I should like to find out from the persons who are going to be affected. Once again, there hasn't been sufficient time for us to do this, and so I ask that this Bill be withdrawn until people have had time to consider it - the implications of it - because at this time I don't know what the implications are."

THE PRESIDENT

"I don't want to interpose myself in this debate, but I think that, although this is a very minor amendment, it is a very important one. We have been swamped out with registrations by all sorts of companies, which we couldn't stop under our present laws, using the terms like 'bank', 'trust' in their titles which makes them look as if they had a strong financial capacity. After registration they get back to England and promptly sell their names off to someone else, and so on. It is on the advice of the Bank of England that we initiated it ourselves, because we were concerned about what was going on, and this was bad for the Colony, and possibly a leak of sterling funds."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Sir, You have explained the background to it but I must stress the importance of getting it through quickly. I visited the Bank of England when I was in the UK recently and they said there that our Ordinance was not comprehensive enough to give the Legislature and the Government enough control. It is on their recommendation that this was done and we could get a very bad name in the world if we do not here have sufficient safeguards in our Ordinance. I think it is important that this Bill goes through and I would suggest that we now move forward with it."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"May I make another Motion, Sir? I wonder if the Honourable Members objection would be removed if we undertake to send to all Members of Legislative Council who are not members of Executive Council copies of Executive memoranda and draft Bills as they come up."

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I very much appreciate the Chief Secretary's offer. I'm still not quite clear on this - perhaps I'm a little thick - but the words we are proposing to introduce are "or continue to use". Now I would assume that this is, in fact, designed to apply to companies registered before the Banking Ordinance was passed but I think the Ordinance does not apply to companies who are registered from now on. It would seem to me that it is aimed at existing organisations and I would like to know what the implications are because I would like to know what they feel about it. I repeat that the length of time we've had these things does not give people like me time to study them or get alternative advice. I much appreciate the Chief Secretary's offer and perhaps we may have a little more information so that we know what we are talking about when we pass Bills into law."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I think I may remove the doubt in the Honourable Member's mind by quoting from the section. It does say "shall use or continue to use" which I think implies that the Ordinance as now drafted will apply to new firms as well as old ones."

Council went into Committee and the Bill passed through the Committee without amendment.

Council then resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

COMPANIES AND PRIVATE PARTNERSHIP (AMENDMENT) BILL

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, a need has emerged for some legislation which will permit the Government to refuse to register a company on the grounds that its name is undesirable. The legislation before Council is designed to achieve the necessary control to prevent the registration of a company with a name which might lead the public into believing that it is trading on a considerable scale or over a wide field of activity or that it is an official monetary institution.

The proposed legislation also includes provision to compel an existing company to change its name if it is considered to be undesirable.

Finally the fees we currently charge for registration of companies are on the low side. It is proposed that they be increased to £250. At present fees are charged at the rate of £5 for the first £5,000 nominal share capital and 25p per £1,000 thereafter with a ceiling of £30.

I beg to move that the Bill be read for the first time."

MR. BLAKE seconded.

On a further motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time.

In the Committee stage Mr. Monk said :

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am in full agreement with the Bill with regard to clauses 1 and 2. However, I consider that, with regard to clause 3 and the registration fee, the sum proposed of £250 for the registration of a company is unnecessarily large. It would discourage small local companies - people forming small local companies - and therefore I would like to propose an amendment to the Bill, that the Registration fee should not exceed £50."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I find it very strange that our Legislative Council have taken this view on raising fees, the majority of which will come from outside the Falkland Islands. There are very few local companies registered - or likely to be registered - in the Falkland Islands. I think the majority for which applications are coming in seem to be over-seas companies wanting to use the Falkland Islands as a convenient place to register. £250 for any company starting does not seem to be a large sum these days. It is a once-only figure, it is not £250 per annum, and I would like to suggest that the registration fee remains at £250."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I support the Honourable Financial Secretary. Our fees are, I am told, considerably low to those current in other countries."

MR. A.B. MONK

"Your Excellency, I think with what the Financial Secretary has said - that the majority of registration are in fact overseas companies - that I would like to withdraw my proposed amendment. In fact, I'd almost like to make another one to make it £500!"

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, in seconding this I would like to suggest, as always, that where it says 'the Governor has powers' the words 'In Council' be added."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I feel again that there is really no policy matter involved for the Governor to refer for advice to his Executive Council. I think it is fairly straightforward. The fact is that, if there is an objectionable name, Your Excellency, with your advisers, would be sufficient to consider whether or not the name should be accepted. I cannot agree that there is any point in deferring the Bill, or at least amending it, to read 'the Governor in Council'."

THE PRESIDENT

"Do you wish to withdraw this, or put it to the vote?"

MR. BLAKE

"I should prefer that it is voted on Sir."

The motion was defeated and the Bill passed through the Committee stage unamended.

Council resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

PASSENGER BOATS BILL

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, the object of this Bill is to oblige the owners of small craft plying for hire, taking tourists for fee, to comply with a set of safety standards. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

The Bill was then read a second time on a motion moved and duly seconded.

MR. A.B. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am entirely in sympathy with the aims and purpose of this Bill. However, in its present form I oppose it. I oppose it for the reason that I think insufficient study and thought has gone into the composition of the Bill.

To take but one example - the main body of the Bill, in my opinion, should designate areas - zones, if you like to call them - of operation, within which certain classes of boat can operate, and that should not be part of the schedule, in my view. My reason for saying that is that anybody wishing to set up a business - myself, for instance, might get fed up with heaps of wool we can't sell, and so forth, and decide I want to engage in carrying tourists - I should be able to look at this Bill and say to myself "If I want to carry tourists to Kidney Island that's the sort of boat I've got to have; that's what it's got to contain." As the Bill is presently framed there is absolutely no indication of what sort of boat you have to buy or build if you wanted to engage in that sort of activity. You should be able to look at the Ordinance and decide that. As it is you'd have to go to somebody that's called 'the competent authority' or something, and you might easily be told that whatever you had wasn't good enough. Therefore I think that sort of information should be embodied in the Bill before it is published; and the requirements under the Schedule - well, I know they are subject to variation as circumstances and conditions change, but in the first instance, in my opinion, they should be defined here.

I think there are all sorts of other things which perhaps should have to be included in the Bill as firm requirements - such things as insurance - so I consider the Bill has not been prepared fully to cover the matter concerned.

I suggest that the Administration consults with people who are doing this sort of thing: get some advice from people like the Falmouth Harbour Board or whatever they might call themselves, who no doubt license lots of small boats to carry passengers round about the place - or the Thames River Authority who must have very detailed knowledge about the type and sort of conditions that should be applied.

Therefore, as I say, although I sympathise with, and appreciate the reasons for the Bill, I wish to oppose it."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I, too, am in sympathy with this Bill but I support Mr. Monk's opposition to it for the reasons he has very clearly stated. I think the possible requirements in the Schedule are much too airy-fairy. As he says, if he, for example, were to decide to take up a boat to take people around, he might find a suitable boat and find he couldn't get a licence to use it because a certain piece of equipment wasn't on board. And if that piece of equipment wasn't available here, if he didn't know before - hand that he would need it, then he's going to be subject to some long delays. I feel the Bill should be taken back and made much more specific on this point. I fully support Mr. Monk in his opposition."

THE PRESIDENT

"Would you like us to go back to the drawing board on this?"

MR. PITALUGA

"Exactly."

CHIEF SECRETARY

I defer to the Honourable expert Member. I would just merely draw attention to the fact that the law is consistent. Legally it has been cleared by the Legal Adviser, and it may be advisable to have something on the stocks that could be amended at a later date, rather than proceed without anything at all. I have no strong feelings either way."

MR. LUKTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I join with the Honourable Mr. Monk and Pitaluga - not in opposing the objects of this Bill. But I do ask the Administration to withdraw it and bring it back in somewhat more researched form, if that be possible."

THE PRESIDENT

"I think we'll withdraw this and have another look at it."

The Bill was accordingly withdrawn.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE (AMENDMENT) BILL

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill provides for two things; to bring the grounds for an appeal from the Summary Courts into line with those from the Magistrate's Court, and secondly, to provide for the review of proceedings before the Summary Courts and the Magistrate's Court.

There is some urgency about this Bill because it does give power to the Judge of the Supreme Court, whose appointment is expected early in the New Year - and without it he would have no powers to review or to take cases on appeal.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR. LUKTON seconded. The motion was put and carried.

The Bill was then read a second time.

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I rise to speak to this Motion in the spirit of welcome, our courts have done an excellent job, but as life becomes more complicated, so do legal proceedings and I think it is a great step in this Colony's life that we are at last to receive excellent legal instruction."

The Bill passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

DANGEROUS DRUGS BILL

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill is intended to declare 'paraquat' to be a dangerous drug within the meaning of the Dangerous Drugs Ordinance.

It is now considered appropriate that the sale of this preparation, which is contained in various proprietary brands of weedkiller, should be controlled in the Colony and should be sold only to persons involved in agriculture or horticulture and I am sure that this is the case.

The attached Bill seeks to amend the Ordinance by adding 'paraquat' to the Schedule thereto, thus providing that every sale of the poison shall be entered in a Poisons Book and that the entry shall be signed and dated by the purchaser and the seller.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR. PITLUGA seconded.

The second reading of the Bill was noted the motion was seconded and carried.

The Bill was read a second time.

MR. LUTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I wish to oppose this Bill because it is either a nonsense or it is totally incomplete. Paraquat is just one of many agricultural pesticides, insecticides, and other poisonous substances, some of which are very much more poisonous than paraquat. It is an absolute nonsense to put through a Bill declaring paraquat to be a dangerous drug when there are dozens, at least, of more poisonous things freely available in the Colony in the form of insecticides and pesticides if it comes to that. And if we're going to have this sort of thing on the dangerous drugs list, well, let's have all of them, but if we're not going to have all of them, don't let's bother about paraquat. It is probably one of the most innocuous and least harmful of weedkillers in that it is extremely effective for the home gardener and is destroyed completely as soon as it reaches contact with the soil. Most of the other weedkillers have a certain residual effect. Paraquat can be used to kill weeds, and your crops can be planted into it without ill effect to the crops or to human beings. This is not true of other poisons, so I suggest it would be as well to withdraw it. In any case I oppose it."

MR. PITLUGA

"Your Excellency, I cannot agree with my Honourable Friend at the head of the table there. I believe it is a highly dangerous drug and probably one of the most lethal ones that are available in the Islands, whether it is freely available or not. The reason that the Home Office took this decision was that it was proved that a teaspoonful of this preparation in a person's cup of tea would not be noticed by the person drinking the tea but it would kill him; and I think there is every reason for putting it on the dangerous drugs list. If we have to have another Bill next time for putting other things on, that's no reason for throwing this out. I say let's have this now and add the others as they arise."

THE PRESIDENT

"Well, let's review this Bill. From a number of fatal accidents in the UK and one here, many cases of suicide in the UK and some awful cases of murder; making parquat a dangerous drug for the purposes of the Ordinance has been done in England (or the UK) - with large agricultural communities - and it does at least give some check and control over the sale of these insecticides that contain this drug and related products. This is the background of it."

Council went into Committee. The Bill was considered and passed without amendment.

Council resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that the Council be adjourned sine die."

MR. MILLER

"I would like to take this opportunity, Sir, on supporting this motion for Adjournment, of thanking you for your services to this Colony over the four years you have been here, and to wish you and Mrs. Lewis the best of good fortune when you finally depart in January. Throughout these four years I have had very close connection with you in both Legislative and Executive Councils, and although we haven't always seen eye to eye, I think we've understood each other fairly well."

At least you will be able to say that you've had, during your four years, three different Chief Secretaries, who would appear to be more expendable than Governors. I hope that the present incumbent is here for a longer time than the last two.

As we've all said several times this morning, wool goes up and wool goes down, and the Colony's fortunes go up and then go down, but somehow or other we shall keep going.

I trust, Sir, that you and Mrs. Lewis have many happy years ahead of you, and that you'll remember some of us not too badly in future years."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much, Honourable Sidney Miller, for your very kind remarks."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like, in rising to support the adjournment, to associate myself fully and heartily with the remarks Mr. Miller has made, expressing appreciation of your time as Governor here and wishing you and Mrs. Lewis success in the future."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I, too, would like to rise and support this Motion and associate myself with the remarks of the Honourable Members on my right. It has always been a pleasure to know that be it something I wanted to talk about with regard to the Council, or even the occasion when personal problems intervened, you have always found time to listen, and I think that goes for all the Colony.

I wish you and Mrs. Lewis all good fortune in the future, Sir, and hope that whenever you put on a woollen sweater you'll wonder whether it has come from the Falklands."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much, Honourable Mr. Blake."

MR. A.B. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support what has been said before in the Motion, and wish Your Excellency and Mrs. Lewis happiness and prosperity in the future. You will, of course, when you put on your woollen sweater, be able to put on a Bronte one and know that it is going to help our production!"

MR. BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I, too, wish to support the Motion of Adjournment and endorse everything Mr. Miller has said, and also my colleagues on my right. I for one will remember you, Sir, for the work you have done. You have certainly worked hard on our airfield, together with Rendel, Palmer & Tritton, and we have much to thank you for in the future.

I take this opportunity on behalf of all my constituents of wishing you and Mrs. Lewis all the best and good luck."

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I, too, would like to associate myself with all my Honourable Friends have said, and wish you and Mrs. Lewis every happiness in the future; and I trust that wherever you finally finish up that the fishing may be almost as good as it is here."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much, Honourable Members. We'll miss the Falklands, like everyone else who has been here for some time and left. We'll miss the friendship, the colour, the wild life - and the problems. But we will have very many happy memories of the Colony and we'll certainly be taking a deep interest in your affairs in the future."

The House then adjourned sine die.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government, the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd., and the General Employees Union. The agreement shall be effective for a period of one year from the 1st January 1975 and shall apply to hourly paid employees in Stanley.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used. If however in any quarter the Index should exceed the average figure for the last four quarters by six points then the excess points will be taken into immediate account for the cost of living award. The payment in respect of the excess points will be adjusted as necessary, in future quarterly reviews of the cost of living.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class		Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	...	65p
2. *Apprentices	1st year	38p
	2nd year	39.5p
	3rd year	42p
	4th year	45p
	5th year	52p
3. Handymen	...	49.5p to 57p according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	...	48.5p
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers		49.5p
6. Labourers	Age	Hourly Rate.
	14-15	31p
	15-16	34p
	16-17	38.5p
	17-18	42.5p
	18 and over	48p

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 4p per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 4p to 7½p per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 15p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 1½p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 1½p per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 2½p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 40 hours per week made up as follows –

Monday to Friday – 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 40 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows –

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
 (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
 (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.
 (iii) On Sundays and recognised Public Holidays.
 (iv) For meal hours or parts thereof, if work continues through the normal working day without a full meal-hour break.
 (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.
- (b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.
- (c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 40-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Public Holidays.

In addition to receiving double time for working on a public holiday employees shall be entitled to 8 hours holiday.

7. Holidays.

(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to a paid holiday of 40 hours after the completion of the first six months of continuous service and thereafter at the rate of 8 hours for each month of continuous service. Paid holidays may be accumulated without limit and taken at a time to be mutually agreed upon.

(b) PUBLIC HOLIDAYS.

These are days on which Government Offices are closed by notification in the Gazette and the following eight days shall be paid holidays for all employees :-

New Year's Day, Good Friday, The Queen's Birthday and Commonwealth Day, October Bank Holiday, Anniversary of Battle of Falkland Islands, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and one other day to coincide with the Annual Stanley Sports Meeting.

- (c) Any allowance or special rates earned on both the working day preceding and the working day following the holiday shall be paid for the holiday.
- (d) When a dated holiday falls on a Saturday or a Sunday the next working day shall be the holiday.

8. Sick Pay.

- (a) Employees who have not completed three months service with their employer shall not be entitled to sick pay.
- (b) If sickness lasts for more than two working days an employee shall be entitled to the following sick pay commencing on the first day of sickness on the production of a medical certificate -
- (i) Employees who have completed three months service with their employer -
Full pay for the first week.
Half pay for the second and third weeks.
- (ii) Employees who have completed three year's service with their employer -
Full pay for the first two weeks.
Half pay for the third and fourth weeks.
- (c) Full pay shall be paid for any Public Holiday which falls during the first four weeks of sickness, provided that the employee, when he has recovered, returns to work for the same employer.
- (d) An employer may demand a medical certificate before making any payment in respect of sick pay.
- (e) The Workmen's Compensation Ordinance shall apply in cases of sickness resulting from accidents at work. The Foreman and the Union Delegate must confirm in writing any accident at work.

9. Termination of Employment.

Except in the case of misdemeanour, when an employee may be summarily dismissed, the following notice of termination of employment shall be given -

- (i) Employees who have completed ten years' service with their employer -
One months notice.
- (ii) Employees who have completed five years' service with their employer -
Two weeks' notice.
- (iii) All other employees -
One week's notice.

If desired employers may pay wages in (i), (ii) or (iii), as appropriate, in lieu of giving notice.

10. General.

- (a) When a party of employees are required to carry meals to their work, one employee shall be allowed reasonable time to heat meals for the rest of the party.
- (b) Individual employers may lay down the times when employees shall appear for their wages, provided that the payment is completed within ten minutes of the end of the normal working day.
- (c) An official or delegation of a recognised union may, with the employer's consent, attend at a job or shop at any time to interview workmen, but no meeting shall take place in working hours without the express permission of the employer. If a dispute arises, the employer or his nominee shall interview, by appointment, any official representative of his employees.
- (d) All employers shall display for the benefit of their employees copies of Regulations and Rules pertaining to wages and conditions of service of workers.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of the Legislative Council held on Wednesday, 4th December 1974, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen,

I am honoured to address you at this the first meeting of Legislative Council over which I am to preside.

Although only a few months have passed since I arrived in the Falklands, everything I have experienced has confirmed my concept of the Colony as a genuinely unique achievement. Inevitably familiarity dulls perception, but I still marvel that so civilised a community should have been created in so remote a corner of the World. Without chauvinism I believe that the phenomenon is largely, if not only, explicable in terms of the British genius.

But though we can, and should, take a legitimate pride in the enterprise, skills and stamina of the founders and developers of the Colony, it is also prudent to be sharply aware that to-day we live on an earth of rapid change. This is something of a platitude: of course there has always been change in human affairs, but never has the sheer speed of change been so bewilderingly fast. At times it even seems that perhaps the accelerator has gone down too far, and that things are lurching out of control.

Despite the Islands' blessed insulation from so much of the pollution and stress that beset most of the developed world, we cannot ignore the hard fact that with improved communications our contacts with that world have multiplied and changed their nature radically within a few short years. While it would be unprofitable to look back nostalgically to a past that cannot be restored, I share what I believe is the view of the great majority, that there is much in the Colony's way of life that deserves to survive and must be cherished. Pride in the past, combined with flexibility, imaginative and statesmanlike acceptance of the need for change is possibly the basic design for good living for the foreseeable future.

Major social and economic issues which I know are being studied by some Councillors include property ownership, land tenure, and fiscal reform. I am well aware that many thoughtful people are concerned about the decline in population and they are engaged in seeking ways of arresting and reversing this. In doing so you do not need me to tell you that quality can be more important than quantity.

I gather that this address often carries plaudits of the work of prominent individuals and concerns. This can be invidious because it neglects most of the quietly competent, dedicated workers who are the mainstay of any economy. To-day, therefore, I should first like to pay tribute to those unobtrusive members of our society; if you like, the man in the street in Stanley and the chap in the Camp who do not have glamorous jobs and are not in the public eye. After some personal observation of the qualities of the Lady Kelper, I hasten to add that "man" and "chap" for this purpose subsume their female counterparts! But they all provide the sound ballast on which ultimately our stability depends.

This said, I think a few other bouquets are merited. The roll of honour is by no means exhaustive but I feel I must mention the heartening upsurge in spirit in our Defence Force. I might just interject that the recent promotion of my A.D.C., the Major Goss, to the rank of Lt. Col., is not only a tribute to him personally but to the Force as a whole. He has, as you know, an impressive record. Volunteers under dedicated leadership have continued to give of their best and I would beg you to support them wholeheartedly and not to take them too much for granted. The Force's excellent relationships with the Royal Marines and the first class professional training provided from Moody Brook is invaluable.

I shall refer elsewhere to the fire hazards of the capital, now I should like to record a tribute to that other volunteer force - the Fire Brigade.

Unfortunately a convergence of adversities has led to a near standstill of the PWD's operations for anything much beyond make do and mend. But our gratitude goes to those local employees who continue to serve so well during this difficult period which I am sure will pass.

High marks too must be awarded to Johnstons and the Consultant Engineers, Rendell, Palmer & Tritton, for their courage and ingenuity in tackling their difficult task out at Cape Pembroke.

Cable and Wireless are to be congratulated on their forward looking policies and expertise. We have just acclaimed the telex link provided by them.

May I express my personal admiration, which I believe you share, for the superlatively high standards of our Government Printers Department. They would do credit to an administration with much greater resources than ours.

Government is constantly aware of the need to mount a training programme for the public service commensurate with our needs. It is also hoped to make greater use of the many volunteer and aid agencies to supply us with essential expatriates. If we succeed, this will have the twin advantage of giving us well qualified people at minimum local cost.

I must also record the appointment to the Supreme Court in February of a distinguished Judge, Sir Peter Watkin Williams. Although he will be able to visit us only occasionally (perhaps twice a year) he has already provided us with valuable professional advice, and made friendly acquaintance of many of you.

The Financial Secretary will be telling you in detail about his proposals for safeguarding the Colony's purse. He will have a few unpalatable things to say, and there will be criticism of some of his proposals. It is right at a budget session that the level and types of revenue required by Government should be questioned. But it is proper also to identify some of the items in Government's housekeeping which are either inescapable or rate a high priority.

First is the grave and universal problem of inflation which, in some cases uncomfortably relevant for us, borders already on unprecedented hyper-inflation. We in this Colony are in the nasty situation that we have virtually no influence over the first cost of products and the only factor within our potential control is the margin at which goods are sold. It is sometimes advanced that the answer to this is price control. But of course we cannot control the prime cost, and there is no indication that retail margins are excessive.

/Thus

Thus although, in a phrase, we import inflation, the scope for offsetting this by higher prices for our exports is negligible. The commodities market, notoriously unstable at the best of times, has been abnormally so during the past few years and for any country that is dependent on one commodity, as we are, the vagaries of price can be very serious. The recent sharp fall in prices for our wool clip is well and painfully known to you. I wish therefore to underscore the point that for this reason alone it is imperative that Government budget wisely and ensure that windfall accretions to revenue are put to reserve wherever possible. It is obvious that the wages bill in the public and private sectors reflects directly our imported inflation. We shall, even in the fairly short term, have to face up to how best to balance a budget of which wages become the fastest growing ingredient while at the same time the basis for Government's revenue may well continue to contract. It is surely unnecessary to spell out the consequences if this process is allowed to go too far.

Here, on a more cheerful note, I interject that we must strive to preserve our happy labour relations. The responsible attitudes of employee and employer alike account in large measure for the Colony's past economic successes and present prosperity. The good, earthy common-sense displayed should stand us in good stead during the difficult times which may lie ahead.

I believe we all know why we should avoid falling into a grant in aid situation. We should delude ourselves, however, if we do not take account of the urgent need to do something about capital investment in the Colony: its infrastructure. With the generous assistance of Her Majesty's Government, by mid 1976 hopefully we shall have our own permanent airfield in operation but there are many other needs that require urgent attention. We shall have to provide services at the airfield.

New planes must be acquired for our superb internal air service. The embryo road system demands urgent examination and sound forward planning. Our jetty and harbour facilities are in a lamentable state. The water system in Stanley is obsolete and survives on borrowed time. It is such that were we to have a fire that got out of hand, it could easily grow into a conflagration of disaster proportions. On top of this there is the constant awareness that we need to match our medical, educational and other social services to the relatively high standard of living and expectations of the Islands.

Most countries when confronted with such problems have recourse to a variety of remedial devices. But with our small population our options are very limited and we do not possess a range of secondary industries to create employment and yield revenue. Opportunities for import substitution are thus virtually non-existent. These facts have been recognised for a long time and I suppose if one looked back to almost any year's official records, one would find fairly frequent mention of the word "diversification". While we certainly should not lose sight of the need to diversify, the example of Alginates and the obstacles encountered by them indicate that investment conditions are scarcely favourable - and that is an understatement. We should obviously welcome new enterprise here. There have been pilot schemes for fisheries, and some hope (I would not put it higher than that - Councillors are well aware of the complexities which surround the subject) that we shall in the medium term at least look to oil exploration and eventually exploitation. Tourism of the right sort is not without solid promise. But none of these fields can provide instant or easy answers to our essential dilemma. Moreover they require skilled deliberate planning, coupled in some cases with patient diplomacy, and the commitment of relatively huge resources. However, Government has them constantly in view and is currently engaged in examining some of them in consultation with Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom.

The Report of the Select Committee on the Constitution will come before Council at this meeting and the Order Paper contains a Motion that appropriate recommendations be sent to the Secretary of State in London.

As this session is drawing to a close the public-spirited motives of Honourable Members deserve special acknowledgment. Sometimes I believe there is insufficient appreciation of the responsibilities placed on those who voluntarily serve the public as Councillors.

The burden of affairs added to already busy lives is considerable and imposed on this is responsibility for decisions which frequently require Councillors to submerge their own interests and, possibly, popularity in the public cause.

You know, the difficult problem when drafting such an address is to select its contents (there is certainly no lack of material), if I am not to risk wearying you.

Omission does not, of course, mean unconcern: on the contrary it may point to special significance.

But to conclude I offer you a little pot-pourri:-

- (i) I believe that most of you will want to join me in expressing appreciation of the role played by Vice Comodoro Bloomer-Reeve and other officers of LADE, and Argentine concerns here, including the charming teachers, who do a not always easy job with efficiency combined with courtesy and friendliness.
- (ii) We have just restored our link through our local branch with the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association and we look forward to a visit in our Spring by delegates (Members of Parliament) from the U.K. Branch.
- (iii) As I have already indicated in a broadcast on 3rd June, my meeting, late last month, in company with three Councillors with the Right Honourable David Ennals who, as Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office is the Secretary of State's deputy, was thoroughly worthwhile and an encouraging fact-finding and mind-clearing exercise.

And, yes, to really end, my wife and I would like to tell all our generous hosts both actual and proffered in the Camp, how much we look forward to visiting them in their Island homes and meeting the settlement folk whenever we can detach ourselves from the capital. It is not for want of trying that we have failed to meet some of you: but we shall have to try harder.

MOTION OF THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, once again it falls to me to move this Motion of Thanks for your Excellency's address. We are glad of it of course and I will refer to it again when I have come to the end of what I have got to say.

You referred to the skills and stamina of the early settlers (which I presume referred to the way in which we have reached our present standard of living). Those early settlers certainly laid the foundations for this standard of living, and I have often thought since our recent return from Rio, when - and this is not letting any secrets out - Mr. Ennals referred to our high standard of living (when we were talking about money) although I didn't say so, that "Yes, that's our standard of living. We got there. Our ancestors fought for it and we've supplied money for it. We've got there without any help from Britain. The last - I think I am right in saying - the last grant-in-aid was in the 1880's. Naturally, the Colony needed it in its early days, but the last actual grant that this Colony received was in the 1880's, and since then - very nearly 100 years ago - we have stood on our own feet, and we've lived on our own feet". So much for that one.

This Budget, Sir, which we've got to explore later this week: I don't know whether it will take us very long or very short. There are two schools of thought about this one, and we will see what happens; but this budget - and it is actually my 16th and will be my last unless you have a supplementary one in Spring over something - this Budget has reached the appalling figure of over £1 million. That works out at £570 per head for each man, woman and child, including babies. To me that is horrible; it's terrifying. I can remember, going back to 1956/57 when the total was £301,000 we had a per capita expense of £140 and we thought that was bad enough. That has now increased 4 times. The sheep-farming industry is not self-sufficient and can never be self-sufficient to support that sort of expenditure, and unless we can develop our resources here with aid from Britain - and when I say aid from Britain I don't actually mean merely cash aid, but encouragement from Britain which will in turn encourage investment here - we are slowly going to stagnate and we will slowly peter out as a viable unit. The industry is not self-sufficient and will never be self-sufficient to provide funds for the administration, medical, education, technical and the other things on which we have to spend money. Her Majesty's Government must sponsor major development. I'm saying 'sponsor it' but again I'm not saying we've got to ask for cash. Britain is in a bad way as far as cash goes, but they can well sponsor this investment, and if they do sponsor it and make it possible to encourage outside money, it will come in fast enough. And as I see it the only way they are going to sponsor this is to tackle this sovereignty business once and for all. They have got to make us, our friends across the water, and the whole World realise that this Colony is part of the British Commonwealth and it is going to stay that way. Until they can grasp that bull by the horns and do something about it, we are slowly going to stagnate and of course all the time we are doing that, some of our better people are slowly fading away.

/When

When we spoke to Mr. Ennals two weeks ago I was impressed by him. He knew his job, but then, of course, a person in that sort of position has got to know his job otherwise he doesn't stay in it. I don't know whether he ever plays poker. I wondered, watching him, whether he did. I should think he would be a very successful poker player if he did because we couldn't get anything out of his expressions. But he is presumably - or we hope - taking home a lot of thoughts to chew over with Mr. Callaghan and Mr. Wilson in London, and we shall no doubt eventually hear of them. I am not giving any secrets away in saying that, because it is what we hope will happen.

Returning again to our Budget expenditure. As we all know the Civil Service here is such as would be geared to a large city and of course it is applied to a small village; and for the life of me I can't see how we can reduce it really as a Civil Service. In my time on Council I have heard one or two enthusiastic new members come on Council and say they are going to slash this and they are going to slash that, and they are going to chuck out this fellow and chuck out that fellow. But we just can't do it. We can dispense with the odd clerk or two but these various departments have got to function otherwise we don't function; with only 1,800 people, which we are down to now, it's a little bit expensive to make them function.

I have heard an expression, talking about stressing our sovereignty, that we mustn't rock the boat. Well, certainly we shouldn't rock the boat. It's slightly dangerous to rock the boat, but it is far more dangerous if the helmsman goes to sleep, and the helmsman in this case I would refer to as Great Britain - Her Majesty's Government. If the helmsman of a boat goes to sleep it is far more dangerous than somebody rocking it about a little bit. Our time is running out. We have got to keep up what pressure we can. Governments are deliberate, and our own is no exception. I can almost say they are ponderous, and they take a long time to do anything or to carry it out. We have a perfect example in our own case. In the course of the last 8 months with the Livestock Ordinance and the Hydatids Ordinance which we prepared and produced to the Secretariat last October. We were disappointed - and I said so in my speech then - that they were not on the table for us to deal with last December, and I went on to say that "Now we have got to wait for the Budget Session of this Council". We have now got to the Budget Session and we haven't got either of them, they are still not here. We can't successfully operate unless things are gingered up a bit.

I said a little earlier that our main obstacle to investment - without it we've no survival, or will have no survival - is that to the World we have no apparent political stability and the only person who can remedy that, the only body that can remedy that, is Her Majesty's Government. One of the things in particular in this connection is the possibility - and it is no more than that - of oil. They have got to get down to talking about this. We can't wait for ever. Nor can anybody else. If we can establish something that shows that there is oil here then things will start to happen fairly quickly and money will start to come in, but not as long as they just tell us that the Griffiths Report has been produced - and I tried to read it but as it was written by a technical geologist I had to give it up. I couldn't make head or tail of it and we are told that that Report is in the hands of oil experts.

How long it will stay with them we don't know, but knowing the ponderous nature of Government it could be there quite a long time. There are certain people who want to get on with the job of doing some exploration here, on boring for oil, or just taking seismic soundings. They, like us, are getting a little impatient and they won't stop here for ever waiting for it. I have said it already: we've got to take the bull by the horns, or rather the British Government has, and we have got to show the World and the Argentine and ourselves that the Falkland Islands have a stable future within the Commonwealth.

Our population, which has been reduced by, I suppose about 500 people in the last 30 years, and rather more quickly lately - is going to go on drifting away if we can't encourage them to stop. There is a certain amount we can do to encourage them to stop. Besides an action by the British Government to consolidate finally our British heritage we can attract good Camp people to invest here in land. Now I would like to quote from the Duke of Edinburgh's address which was made to Council in this room - it used to be pinned on the wall behind where your chair is (it has vanished now, I don't know where it is, I have not seen it for a long time). There are two very pertinent paragraphs in it. In reply to an address of welcome His Royal Highness said "I have just come from New Zealand" - this is in January 1957 - "I have just come from New Zealand and while there I had the chance to see what marvels agricultural science can perform in the way of increasing production. Pastures have been improved to such an extent that they can now carry four times the amount of sheep - 8 sheep where 2 were before, 8,000 where 2,000 were before". and finally His Royal Highness said - and this is the paragraph with the punch - he said, "I have no doubt that the sheep farmers of these Islands are well aware of the possibilities of well managed improvements, for without improvements prosperity does not last". I think these two paragraphs should be carved upon wood and screwed to the wall of Barton House, the Sheep-Owners Association's new headquarters, because the S.O.A., as a whole, has done very little about it. A few farms have - one or two pretty successfully in spite of the critics - but the Association as a whole has done practically nothing. We have had a suggestion from London that there should be a Grasslands Trials Unit come out but there has been very little interest shown on the part of the industry. We hope some interest will be shown if they do manage to turn up this year. I say that and I am prepared to take the brickbats which may be thrown at me later. I have had an awful lot thrown at me in my time and I'm still here! But the main object in my saying that, Sir, is that some years ago, I suppose about 15, when we were engaged in the major work on the farm I was then managing, I said to the then Chairman "I can foresee that if this succeeds as I think it should succeed, we will arrive at the stage where this farm, or any other doing the same thing, will find it such a complicated job for the manager that they will have to lease some of their land out to other people - at a profitable lease. Of course, for an ordinary stockman - and this industry has plenty of them, is bristling with them, perfectly good stockmen who would make a good job of it if they had the chance, there is nothing like owning your own land. Land is a priceless possession. If you can go up a hill and say "My God, this is my country: I am king of it" nothing can give anyone greater satisfaction than that: if we can develop our country. Of course we can't develop it as fast as all that if people don't start to improve now. If some of our young people can see what might be offering in the not too distant future, it should encourage some of them not to go away, and that is the reason for me referring to the Duke's statement and talking about grass-lands improvement. These schemes are all possible and that particular one is up to us. There are other ways of course of improving land besides turning it upside down. If we can get a bit of encouragement from Britain under the Development Scheme we could try to get some rock phosphate here from North Africa - I have tried in South America and I can't get it - because that was another scheme that was put forward to us by the senior agronomist of Tom Davies' team when he was here six years ago. Mr. Howard Meade, he said "You know you can improve your carrying capacity on white-grass farms which don't easily lend themselves to agricultural improvement". He said by spreading rock phosphate on the side of our green valleys, green valleys which carry most of our stock, we will increase that green valley up the sides of the ridges. In other words if you have a big green valley which carries 1,000 sheep and it is, say, 100 yards wide, if you can improve that land on the ridges of each side also 100 yards wide, you will then carry 3,000 sheep in that valley, this was his idea. If we could arrange through the Development grant to obtain rock phosphate like that it could be - and Howard Meade is a man who should know what he is talking about - of immense advantage to us. If we can do that sort of thing there is no reason, in 10 years' time - why we shouldn't go from 600,000 up to 700,000 sheep and better. The prospect of that, I am quite sure, will help some of the younger good stockmen to stop here; and as I have said before, we are not short of them. I know when a proposition came up about 18 months ago and we were talking about an agricultural officer, there was then a suggestion by the then Chief Secretary that we should import one from New Zealand. I said "What the devil for? There are as good stockmen in this country as ever came out of New Zealand. You'll find one here all right provided the salary is right". "Sir, these schemes are all possible, but Her Majesty's Government has got to keep a finger on the button and we've got to keep a finger on the button as far as Her Majesty's Government are concerned. We can't delay too long because time is running out and we must not leave the next Council without an obvious programme ahead. They will need something to get their teeth into. They don't want to be left helpless and in this connection, I would like to quote - and I expect you read it - from the Parliamentarian of April in which Benjamin Franklin said "It is hard for an empty sack to stand upright". Well, we don't want to get the next Council into that situation. I would also remark that the next Council might have one or two lady members and they are bound to be referred to as 'old bags'! However, Sir, I keep repeating, we must get a programme under way, and people must be able to see that it is getting under way to encourage them to stop here. And it is no good us talking platitudes, thinking about this, thinking about that. Something has got to happen fairly quickly and the only way it can happen fairly quickly is to get Her Majesty's Government to settle once and for all the issue that we all know about so that money will start coming into the country. Oil needs quick answers from oil experts, but as I have said repeatedly, time is running out. I would like to conclude by once again thanking you for your address."

/ THE PRESIDENT

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much, Mr. Miller, for a very stimulating - if I may say so - speech. Just to take you up on one very small point, perhaps too tiny for us, but right at the beginning you referred to my speech as having mentioned only the founders of this Colony, but I think, if the record is there, you will find that it referred to the founders and the developers. I did intend in that phrase to include both the founders, by whom I took people who were our forbears, the founders going back 130 or 140 years, and the people who are here today, the developers. The founders and the developers. I think - I hope - this is on record. The other thing is that while I very much look forward to lady members in the future, I hope they will be referred to as young miniskirters! Thank you again. I am most grateful."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I'm rising to support the Motion of thanks to Your Excellency for your address and I just mention that it is an unfortunate fact that our speeches on this Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency seem mainly to consist of complaints about various aspects of Government business. I suppose we have only ourselves to blame because of the way things are, what is done in Government, but if we were to bear this too much in mind there would be a marked reduction in the number and length of speeches.

Sovereignty has been mentioned by Mr. Miller and it is usual to do so in these speeches. This is a subject on which I've had many and varied thoughts and at one time I rather felt that things were on the downhill run so badly that the outlook was pretty grim for these Islands, but I think events in recent months have proved me wrong and I feel very much encouraged by the way things are going now and not nearly so worried as I was before; and the results which I have so far seen and heard of your recent visit to Brazil with Members of Council encourage this feeling. I am jolly glad of them as I am sure all Islanders and residents of these Islands will be when they are able to hear of them. Obviously not everything is as we would want it, nor can be immediately, but in the main it is going the right way.

Under another hat, for the Sheep Owner's Association, since Mr. Miller has somewhat taken us to task for our slackness, particularly on grassland development, I would just mention that, as he did, some farmers have tried various methods of improving grasslands, some with success, some without. Others have held back to see whether the results of these experiments by their fellow-farmers were successful, in order to decide whether to try the same things themselves, rather than spend the money trying, perhaps successfully or unsuccessfully, on a parallel course, which I think is wise. But in the main we are rather slack about letting each other know about results. We hope to correct that this Winter by holding what we at the moment refer to as a "Farmers' Forum" in which we plan to discuss all sorts of aspects of farming and matters relating to it. Again, on grassland, I would mention that last Winter we appointed a sub-committee, of which Mr. Miller is the Chairman, to liaise with Government on the matter of the Grasslands Trials Unit which is covered by the 1973/74 Development allocations. Government has been advised of the existence of this Committee and its availability for advice, but so far no use has been made of it. Possibly because the Grasslands Trials Unit is not here yet; but I have heard that it is coming and people have been appointed to it and so on, so perhaps we can look forward to Government and the S.O.A. getting together on this one.

Mr. Miller has made remarks on the absence of the Livestock and Hydatids Ordinance Amendment Bills and I support him here because it is difficult to take very seriously the trivial Bills we've got on today's Order Paper while such vital ones for our industry and public health are being endlessly delayed. It is worth remembering that any Ordinance which is found to be inadequate or unworkable for any reason, and which becomes known to be lacking in true effect, will soon be ignored and avoided by the public and authorities alike. The Livestock and Hydatids Ordinance, as they exist, are like quicksand to a prosecutor when and should a case arise.

I am concerned too, about the very poor showing of our development programme, as approved in 1973. This was a very lavish programme and very well worked out and well considered and approved by all the members sitting round this table. Yet the fact is that, the £100,000 which it was planned to spend in the 1973/74 period, plus the £50,000 to be used in the 1974/75 period, have produced very few notable monuments and some of those produced are more a source of embarrassment than of pride. I hope the result of our deliberations in Select Committee over the next few days will bring a breath of fresh air into our outlook on progress. There is a lot of money in that Development programme and we should be using it to good effect.

Oil is another major item these days. We don't quite know where we are going to go on that one but at the last meeting of Council when we discussed oil exploration in some detail, I agreed with the Chief Secretary that we should move with caution on this one and I still take this view. But I do most strongly feel that we must keep moving. Oil is not the answer to our political problems by any means. Properly developed and used it could be the answer to our financial problems. It would go a long way towards solving some of our political ones, so let's not drag our feet for too long if for any longer at all.

And that, Sir, is all that I have to say on the Motion of Thanks to your speech. I will just thank you for it."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Pitaluga. Very interesting, thoughtful and, if I may say so, very wide ranging and constructive. I am most grateful."

MR. L. G. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I feel rather like the boy playing Blind Man's Buff. I would like to apologise firstly to you Sir for being late, and perhaps crave Council's and your indulgence on the Motion of Adjournment, having by then had the chance to read your speech, to comment on it. All I would like to do now, Sir, is to welcome you at your first Session of our Council, and thank you in advance for your speech."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Blake. We missed you this morning but I quite understood that the circumstances to your late arrival were in the hands of God - and FIGAS. Thank you."

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I've been caught with my pants down slightly because I thought the Honourable Member on my right was going to talk for some while, while I collected my thoughts and all that! But I would like to support the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency. One point Your Excellency made in your speech was that British genius made the place. I think we can sum up our feelings on sovereignty quite concisely if we say that British genius should be allowed to continue to make the place.

I was beginning to wonder for a while when I listened to two other Honourable Members whether I hadn't mixed my dates up a bit as the S.O.A. General Meeting is scheduled to be taking place on July 14th, but apparently I am in Legislative Council and not S.O.A.!

One of the most important points I feel has not been sufficiently stressed. One of the most - the most - important of our problems, and I consider it an internal one, and that is the decline of our population. It has declined from 1936 to this date and probably is not greatly over 1,800 persons if one doesn't include transient workers, and if that decline is allowed to continue, obviously we must reach a point where it is impossible for the number of people left to maintain the services that a fairly sophisticated community requires. Once you cease providing the services of course the trickle will become a torrent, and it won't interest us or anybody else very much who the place belongs to. I think our most important problem is to arrest the decline and that matter is the subject of some debate later on, I hope. We must seriously go into the reasons for the decline. Fairly obviously political uncertainty plays some part in this so that it is very essential that we try to achieve a more stable situation here and encourage the United Kingdom Government to try and sort out that one. But I am certain that a very large reason also for the decline in population is the lack of opportunity for individuals to branch out on their own, form their own small businesses; lack of opportunity to invest; lack of opportunity to maybe get loans to start businesses. In the case of the Camp, as we like to call the rural part, there is complete lack of opportunity for individuals. The Camp is entirely filled with employees, and while the conditions may be adequate financially, not everybody wants to be an employee, and there is complete lack of security of tenure. I think that it is very important that the whole economic infrastructure, if you like, in the Colony be examined, to see if we don't have to upset, maybe, the existing land tenure system, alter things that have stood us well up to now but are obviously failing us.

I also think that the whole fiscal system should be looked at from the point of view of attracting outside investment, and also encouraging local people to invest, rather than send their money overseas. As it is now there is simply no attraction at all to invest here. I think we should look at the legislation in force in Colonies such as Gibraltar and others which have very successfully attracted investment from overseas. We know for a fact that some large overseas investors have said that if we would alter our fiscal arrangements they would have been prepared to come here. I think that is a matter of urgency. Those two things, the sovereignty issue and our general fiscal and financial land tenure set-up, are matters of urgency and that they should be reviewed, to arrest this population decline. It has been said that we expect services that are too sophisticated for a small island community but I'm quite certain in my own mind that if we cut down on our services, our medical, education, air service, we would only accelerate our population problem.

With regard to our development aid, though I was on Council when the Development Aid project plan was approved, I think with hindsight the policy we adopted was largely wrong. I think any future development aid should be funnelled almost exclusively into developing our communications, because I think that without communications we're not going to develop a proper rural infrastructure. We need small businesses in the country. It is, for instance, quite absurd that this colony imports something like 70 tons of dairy products a year which is worth many thousand pounds, possibly £20,000, when we could very easily do it for ourselves here if we had a proper system of internal communications. So that I think we must develop that system and we must devote the larger part of development aid to that end. Well, Your Excellency, I have a lot of other points I should like to make but I think I shall have ample opportunity later on in this meeting.

I would like to support the Motion of Thanks."

THE PRESIDENT

"Most creditable, Mr Monk, and if I may say so, I think you touched on one of the points I made quite specifically, but I hope succinctly. What I said owed something to conversation with you, to your own thinking, when I referred to some more thoughtful members applying themselves to some of the long term major problems of the colony, to wit, a declining population, land tenure, fiscal reform. I have owed it to you. Without attempting to debrief Councillors or most of the public on what went on in Rio, as you well know these things were touched on. I am very grateful."

MR BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, like the Honourable Mr Blake, I too on behalf of my constituents would like to welcome you here at this your first Legislative Council meeting. As this is the Motion of Thanks which gives everyone an opportunity to let off a bit of steam, I hope to make a slight contribution. I am in full agreement with many of the comments you made acknowledging the work of many of the smaller departments which we don't hear so much about: the Fire Brigade and the Printing Department, in addition to the other usual ones which are always mentioned for their services, and I was pleased to hear this.

It seems to me that it is a pity that this land tenure adjustment which has come to light on the Table today didn't happen many years ago. Those years have passed and maybe this is a new step, which I would certainly consider to be in the right direction.

I would like to mention too, before I go any further, our latest development with our Telex link which Cable & Wireless has recently introduced for us. I think this should help everyone here in the future.

Our decreasing population and increasing living costs continue to be a demoralising burden on us all. Inflation has no easy answer, and despite its wide infection world leaders are still seeking for satisfactory solutions. During the last four years our islands have become subject to rapid changes in all aspects. Air travel has allowed passengers faster access to and from the islands, enlightening inhabitants to seek further opportunities in other parts of the world where they may wish to settle. Since the withdrawal of the "Darwin" residents travelling to the United Kingdom and elsewhere for holidays are restricted by baggage weight and freight charges on goods purchased for their homes. This situation to my mind constitutes a certain drift element of local people who prefer to live elsewhere and pay less for their household effects. Following what we hope to be our improved education proposals, there will need to be opportunities if we are to encourage our bright scholars to remain. With opportunities we also need housing, financial assistance, and an undivided strength of unity in our people. We are living in a fast-moving age and the world will not wait. We are a small country with a large country's problems.

We now ask the million dollar question: What can we do? To cut our present expenditure within the colony's budget would mean decreasing staff, materials, and rendering most departments to a lower level than at present. This may not be desirable as we are accustomed to a very efficient service in comparison with our population. One answer might be to divert from all present methods of policy and adopt new ones. This is not always popular, nor is it always successful, but I do believe it may be worth considering. The Civil Service appears to be coming more and more intensified as days go by; this is fully justified. I feel more trust might well be placed on more employees than is at present, thus allowing for more rapid movement of business and work in order to speed up achievement. I venture to forecast that many of our government employees would willingly increase their production if the right approach to the situation can be implemented and encouraged.

In the political field I am still convinced that our affairs with Argentina should be on a neighbourly basis. Since the signing of the Communications and YPF Agreements we have little option. We are receiving a very efficient service rendered to us by LADE and I feel sure they would agree that as much help as possible has been reciprocated.

It was pleasing to note that a more substantial amount of money has been allocated for loans to the public for purchasing homes of their own. As houses become available at least the less affluent will be able to consider security for their future.

The policy to decrease this amount in the past was a big mistake which has now been rectified, subject to approval. It will be a vital stabilising factor to our future.

In conclusion, if we intend to keep our population in these islands and encourage desirable settlers we must act as soon as possible and attempt to obtain all the aid we can to achieve this end.

Sir, I would like to support the Motion of Thanks."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr Bowles, and that was very wide ranging indeed. I think, though, that you were very little out. I am most grateful - most thoughtful, stimulating. Thank you."

MR. LUKTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, at this end of the table it usually falls to me to say "He too" with as much enthusiasm as I can muster! However, along with other Members I would like to welcome you to this first Council meeting for you, and I listened with great interest to your Address. Quite rightly you painted a rather gloomy picture financially for the colony. However I do feel that perhaps you under-rated one of the possible solutions which lie open to us. It's obvious from what we've heard in this meeting - and previous ones - that the Unofficial Members of this Council are unanimously agreed on the urgent need to get the oil business at least started. It's equally obvious that the administration is plodding along slowly, sometimes apparently doing nothing - in the same way as it has been for ten years or more. As Your Excellency said, the outlook financially for this colony is somewhat bleak at the moment, but we do have this possibility which may solve all these problems: and some of the excuses we've heard in the past for the delay really don't hold water. The people of this colony are sick and tired of delay in this matter, and are demanding action. We should have pushed a little harder some years ago. All right, that was our fault, but you, Sir, are not likely to get very much rest until the people of the colony can see that something constructive's being done as far as oil exploration is concerned. I fully realise that our existing legislation can't cope with oil exploration as such. However, this is a long way off, as everyone, I think, appreciates. It's common knowledge that a proper seismic survey has to be done first, and this may take two years or more. During that time we have plenty of opportunity to get out our own revised legislation, and be ready if anything comes from the commercial survey. All these people want at the moment is permission to look. There won't be any holes bored for a very long time, if ever. The administration had a clear directive at the last meeting. This Council wanted action, and immediately. I bet my bottom dollar that very little constructive action has followed. I bet we're not very much nearer to allowing someone to start looking than we were six months ago. At that time we were waiting for Professor Griffiths. Now we're waiting for someone to evaluate Professor Griffiths, and then we shall have to wait until Civil Servants evaluate the evaluation, and so on. If only you, Sir, along with the backing of this Council, would apply the maximum possible pressure to the UK government to get a move on, then we shall know where we are. Despite the fact that actual production may be years away, if oil is located this colony would be highly credit-worthy, and it would only be following in the footsteps of what the UK government is doing at the moment. Equally, if there are no resources to be found, the sooner we know about it the better. Then we'll have to find other solutions to our financial difficulties, but overshadowing everything, as my Honourable Friend Mr Monk has said, regarding land tenure, fiscal reform, if there's oil in the waters surrounding this colony, virtually all our financial problems will be solved, and I have no doubt that a great many more problems would be created. I don't think anyone is blind to that. But if there's nothing there it's even more important that we find out, and find out soon, because, Your Excellency, that's when our problems are really going to start.

I don't think I really have much else to say, because I consider that this one point is incredibly important to these islands. I beg to support the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much indeed, Mr Luxton. If I may just take you up on one point. I am not debating, this is the Motion of Thanks, plus comment I have on what Members say regarding my Address. I certainly haven't intended to be gloomy. I hoped I was being realistic, and, as I said, this is not a debate. It is a matter for further discussion during the course of the session. Certainly there is no question that either Her Majesty's Government or the Falkland Islands Government are dragging their feet, or in any way delaying the investigation or otherwise exploration for oil, such as that to which you refer and I can give you full assurance. But I would beg of you, please, to look again when you can, I probably read my speech very badly or hurriedly, but do look again at it and my references to oil where I referred to long patient complicated diplomacy. I'm sure I need say no more than that. If I can just inject that thought with, again, renewed thanks to you."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this is the time when the Unofficials have the privilege of speaking quite strongly, so therefore I would just like to support the Motion of thanks and sit down."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much. Very well said, Sir. Thank you".

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, thank you for a realistic and stimulating address. Thank you, if I may, on behalf certainly, of the officials, and I hope also of the public sector of the community. I think this realism and stimulation has been reflected excellently in the incisive comments we've heard from Councillors this afternoon. It has included some criticism of the administration and I welcome this. If I can identify some of the points of criticism that have been mentioned: these are the speed with which the administration does or does not deal with things; the legislation which we do not enact; the very important question of the implementation of development. I assure Councillors, and Your Excellency, that the administration is not complacent about these. We have them very much in mind. It is a matter of drawing priorities as I am sure Councillors will appreciate. And I am sure that now the administration is bending its energies towards drawing out its priorities correctly and getting them implemented in the correct way. Certainly I look forward under your wise direction, Your Excellency, and the direction of this Council, to implement all those things which have been raised here this afternoon.

One particular point I should mention - the Hydatids Dogs Order has already been promulgated and is with the Government Printer. Thank you Your Excellency."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you Mr. Chief Secretary."

PAPERS LAID ON THE TABLE BY THE CHIEF SECRETARY:

Medical Report, 1974

Copies of subsidiary legislation made or approved by the Governor-in-Council since December, 1974.

Report of the Select Committee on the Constitution.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

THE CLERK

"Question No. 1/75 by the Honourable R.M. Pitaluga O.B.E."

MR. PITALUGA

"With reference to the Report of the Superintendent of Public Works, dated 19th May, 1975, would Government please make a statement indicating how much of the recommended work at Darwin Boarding School has been completed and further state if it will all be completed before the school re-opens."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I am pleased to inform my Honourable Friend that the recommendations for work at the Darwin Boarding School which arose out of its recent closure on health grounds, have been turned into firm proposals for work to be carried out. A large part of this work has been completed. Hot water basins have been provided in all bathrooms and toilet areas as recommended and the hot water capacity will be increased by restoring to use the special hot water system for the laundry which was taken out of use some years ago. In addition a great deal of decorating, cleaning-up and routine refurbishing is in hand. Subject to inspection by the Senior Medical Officer, that I have requested, the sanitary conditions and facilities are now adequate to allow the pupils to return to school. The kitchen still needs decorating and for this reason boarders will not be able to return until this work is complete. Hopefully this will not be too long. I am assured by the Superintendent of Education that any time lost can be made up by days added to the current term. I am sure the children will be delighted to hear this!"

MR. PITALUGA

"Sir, I would like to thank the Chief Secretary for that very satisfactory reply. You have probably seen this long report and list of work required at the school, and it is indeed very gratifying to know that all is going to be right even if it does mean delaying the opening of the school. Thank you."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 2/75 by the Honourable R.M. Pitaluga, O.B.E."

MR. PITALUGA

"What has been the result of the invitation to H.M. The Queen to visit these Islands, following the Honourable W.R. Luxton's successful Motion at the last meeting of this Council?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I regret to inform my Honourable Friend that while Her Majesty appreciates the loyalty that motivates this request, it has come at a time when the Queen has already a full programme for 1977 which is her Silver Jubilee Year. 1976 is also full as it has had to accommodate several items brought forward from 1977, and there are no visits planned to countries within reasonable distance of the Falkland Islands. In order that Her Majesty the Queen, or a member of her family, should be able to make the fullest use of limited time, a visit to the Falkland Islands would have to be fitted in to other reasonably close countries and Government is assured that when such a visit is being planned, the claims of the Islands will receive every consideration. Thank you".

MR. PITALUGA

"I thank the Chief Secretary for that reply. I have no supplementary question".

THE CLERK

"Question No. 3/75 by the Honourable R.M. Pitaluga, O.B.E."

MR. PITALUGA

"Since Mr. Bob Bostelmann has indicated his willingness to return to the Islands on contract, will Government please make a statement regarding his possible future appointment as Veterinary Officer."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, Government is still looking closely into the question of the appointment of a Veterinary Officer but no decision has yet been made."

MR. PITALUGA

"Can Government give us any encouragement to think that his appointment is likely."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Government recognises that it would be most desirable to have a veterinary officer here. I think that this must be looked at, Sir, in relation to what is available, what is being offered, and what the Colony can afford. That is what is exercising Government at the moment. It would be /wrong

wrong/

I think, to pre-empt this at the moment. We all recognise the need for a veterinary service but it is a service that we must have tailored to the demands of Government, and the Colony".

MR. PITALUGA

"Thank you very much".

MR. BLAKE

"Can the Chief Secretary tell Council whether, in the light of his latter reply, this is liable to lead to the setting up of a Veterinary Department".

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Thank you Sir, I am glad to reply to my Honourable Friend that this is one of the points under consideration. Formerly we had a veterinary expert-cum-veterinary surgeon. The more recent proposal is much more in the nature of a Veterinary Department with all the ancillary services and the support costs that this would involve. This is certainly one of the things perhaps causing Government to look very closely at the proposal".

MR. LUXTON

"Sir, may I ask the Chief Secretary whether, in the course of Government's deliberations, the people who will be most affected, in other words the sheep-farming industry, have been consulted regarding the employment of a veterinary officer".

CHIEF SECRETARY

"They haven't been immediately consulted, Sir, about the immediate problem. Their advice has been obtained in the past and they do, of course, have representatives in the Council where the appointment is being discussed".

THE CLERK

"Question No. 4/75 by the Honourable A.B. Monk J.P."

MR. MONK

"What precautions are being taken to ensure that travellers from overseas do not introduce foot-and-mouth disease into the Colony?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Thank you, Sir. I am glad to reply to my Honourable Friend. So far as we are able, we are complying with the requirements of our law, and a close watch is kept to prevent travellers or any other person importing any products likely to introduce foot-and-mouth disease into the Colony. I take it that the point of my Respected Friend's question is whether we have any means of controlling foot-and-mouth being introduced by travellers on foot. The answer to that is, no, but it will be looked at by the Aviation Committee in connection with the new airport".

MR. MONK

"Does not the Chief Secretary think, in view of the strong opinions expressed by Mr. Bob Bostelmann, or he was here as vet, on the inadequacy of our precautions here, that something needs doing urgently now?"

CHIEF SECRETARY/

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Thank you. I certainly agree that things do need doing now. In fact, since we had the advice of Mr. Bostelmann, the implementation of the law has been tightened up very considerably. Perhaps not so far as travellers are concerned, but I'm not sure whether this was covered in the expert advice we had, but certainly as regards the five proclamations that have been made over the years to control FMD, we certainly have tightened up. For instance, one example is that where we had open-ended licences for the importation of certain cooked meats, now we insist on a separate licence for each and every consignment".

MR. BOWLES

"Is the administration content with the precautions that are being taken at the present moment?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"No, I don't think we should ever be content, for, as we all recall, the pundits over the years have forecast that one day foot-and-mouth disease is a likelihood in the Colony. Therefore, I think we must never be content or complacent about this. We've got to continue to improve our law and the implementation of our law, and we've got continually to seek expert advice on how to refine our law."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 5/75 by the Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P."

MR. MONK

"Since wages and salaries in most cases automatically increase to compensate for inflation by means of cost-of-living awards, it follows that the Inland Revenue Authorities get tax from a larger and larger percentage of everyone's income, for tax-free deductions remain static. Will the administration take steps to link tax-free deductions to the cost-of-living allowance so that they automatically adjust?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Sir, while appreciating the interesting point raised by you, I cannot give you an assurance that the administration will take steps to adjust the tax-free deductions under the Income Tax Ordinance when wage awards are made on account of the rising cost of living. Any adjustment in personal allowances would have to be considered in the context of the Colony's limited means. I take the opportunity of mentioning for the information of the public that wage awards made by companies to their employees results in less tax to Government because the vast majority of taxpayers do not reach the 40% tax bracket. I reiterate that Government cannot give you any assurance in this matter, but I confirm that the question of personal allowances is to be studied by Government before the next tax year. It would be totally wrong for me to give any impression that tax assessments will be lower because of a new review of our taxation ordinance, as I feel certain that rising expenditure will require a rising yield from direct taxation. Thank you Sir for asking the question."

MR. MONK

"Having under legislation decided that a certain tax deduction should represent a certain amount, does not the Honourable Financial Secretary think that if, through the individual earning more money, that tax deduction ought to represent the same percentage?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"It would be very nice if we could afford such legislation, but every point relating to taxation legislation must be closely studied because we do have a very restricted financial situation. We do not have a large number of taxpayers, we do not have very many sources of revenue, but I can assure the Honourable Gentleman that we will look closely at personal allowances. I consider that personal allowances should be kept under close review, but it is a question of relating them to the amount that this Colony can afford."

MR. MONK

"Does not the Honourable Financial Secretary consider that unless we maintain the value of personal allowances we are likely to have even fewer taxpayers?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"No Sir, as long as the legislation is considered on each occasion and I am sure it will be considered sensibly. I do not think any of the taxpayers who have left the Colony have gone away to escape taxation because they have headed in particular to New Zealand and Great Britain, where taxation is much higher."

MR. LUKTON

"Would the Honourable Financial Secretary, when he's bearing this in mind, bear in mind the present appalling situation as far as working married couples are concerned. At the moment there is a strong disincentive in this Colony against a married couple earning because of the very high tax bracket that this puts them into. Would he consider relating the wife's allowance to her own earnings?"

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I am well aware of this situation and consideration is to be given to a measure of relief but I cannot guarantee any fixed amounts on this at the present moment because Honourable Members will want to study the matter very carefully. It may mean that we will give certain satisfaction, but I cannot assure that the Colony can afford to implement in full, the proposal you make."

Question No. 6/75 by the Honourable A.B. Monk, J.P. was withdrawn with permission.

THE CLERK

"Question No. 7/75 by the Honourable L.G. Blake, J.P."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary make a statement to Council on the fishing trials carried out by the Japanese trawler."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I'd dearly like to make the statement that our Honourable Friend has requested. Unfortunately, the trials that were carried out were carried out under an Agreement that was entered into by Government, in confidence, with the Trawling Associations, and I think it would be a breach of that confidence to reveal the contents of the Report to this Council. I believe all Councillors have had sight and study of the reports, and I know Your Excellency will certainly make them available as required."

MR. BLAKE

"Does the Chief Secretary not consider that such reports are virtually useless to this Colony and it isn't only the Honourable Members of Council who need to know the facts and figures, but also intending individuals who wish to act on such a report?"

/CHIEF SECRETARY

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Yes, I agree entirely. What the Honourable Member says is incontrovertible. These facts and figures will be useful to people we're hoping to attract here; and by agreement between the parties this information can be revealed by us, but the terms of the contract that we have do preclude us from revealing the information without their agreement. I'm sorry about this."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Chief Secretary give Council an assurance that in future such agreements for commercial trials will not be governed by a clause whereby the results thereof are - sort of bound up in red secrecy."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I am very happy to give the assurance insofar as I am able. I think if we are going to have people interested in investing money in the Colony and exploring, then I think a certain measure of confidentiality is going to be expected of us.

If people are going to come and make exploratory surveys for one thing or another knowing that everything they do, all the money they spend, is going to lead to open publication of this information, I think this may well deter them rather than encourage them. My view is that we should treat each one on its merits."

MR. BLAKE

"I thank the Chief Secretary for his replies. I realise that questions are not a subject for debate but I feel - it wasn't his pigeon anyway - that Council commissioned an enquiry into the fishing potential of these waters, and the outcome is unfortunate. This is my sole reason for the supplementary question, that such a report is so limited."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"I shall certainly be only too pleased to make the report available immediately to the Honourable Member or any other Honourable Member who I thought had already seen them."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 8/75 by the Honourable L.G. Blake J.P."

MR. BLAKE

"Will the Financial Secretary tell Council what reply has been received from Her Majesty's Government with regard to our development aid."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Sir, no reply has yet been received from Her Majesty's Government to our application that the loan funds be made available as a grant. The matters debated in Legislative Council have been put to Her Majesty's Government and Her Majesty's Government has been told that Government appreciates that the conditions of the loan are so soft as to be nearly a grant, but that the fact remains that Council had been put under the impression that the £50,000 per annum would be a grant and not a loan and asks if the situation could be remedied. Similar representations were made during the visit to the Colony of officials from the F.C.O. We wait & reply."

MR. BLAKE

"I thank the Financial Secretary for his reply, but I hope that he didn't say Government considered that conditions were so gentle that it was almost a grant, because Government didn't. The administration might have done, but Government did not."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I suggest the Honourable Member should see the application made to the British Government so that he can satisfy himself that it was a fair resume of Council's question."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 9/75 by the Honourable W.R. Luxton."

MR. LUXTON

"At the last meeting of Council Members were advised that no formal applications had been received for oil exploration licences. Is this still the case?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

Sir, an application in the form of a letter has been received from a North American Company. Thank you."

MR. LUXTON

"Thank you Mr. Chief Secretary. Could you elaborate on that slightly. Is it a licence for exploration which has been applied for or for doing a seismic survey?"

CHIEF SECRETARY

"It was an application by letter to secure exploration rights on and offshore of the Falkland Islands."

THE CLERK

"Question No. 10/75 dealing with the reply to the invitation to Her Majesty The Queen to visit the Colony was received from the Honourable Mr. Luxton. The question was subsumed in Question No. 2/75 and a reply has already been given."

QUESTION FOR WRITTEN REPLY

THE CLERK

"Question No. 1/75 by the Honourable L.G. Blake J.P."

Question: Will the Financial Secretary give consideration to the formation of a Prices and Incomes Board to control the inflationary tendency in the Colony?

Reply by the Financial Secretary:

Experiments with Prices and Incomes Boards have been tried in several countries. Their record of success does not seem to Government such as to commend its adoption here.

This has especially been the case as experiments elsewhere have been in countries where the first cost has been subject to far greater regulation than is the case with the Falkland Islands. Apart from meat and vegetables, practically all consumer goods are imported so that the first cost in the Colony is beyond anybody's control here. Price control would be restricted, in the main, to controlling the retailers' margin.

Government is not aware that retailers, generally, charge extra-ordinarily high mark-ups so that, on this score, price control would not seem to be necessary. Price control also requires an increase in the bureaucracy to ensure that it is implemented.

As regards Incomes, the Colony has long enjoyed a most amicable and sensible regulation of its salaries and wages, due entirely to the very responsible approach to this problem by the Employers, particularly the Sheep Owners' Association, and the General Employees' Union. I could not commend any interference in the existing arrangements which have worked so consistently to the benefit of all in the Colony.

Naturally I shall keep the matter under review and shall not adopt a rigid posture over this matter. Should the situation change, or if any evidence can be produced by Honourable Councillors, I shall be most glad to take another look at the matter.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your most Obedient Servant,

(Sgd) Financial Secretary

MOTIONS

A MOTION by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"That the Report of the Select Committee on the Constitution, which today was laid on the Table, be forwarded to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State with the recommendation that it be implemented as soon as possible".

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, the Report that I laid on the Table this morning - today - is the outcome of several months' work by the Select Committee composed of the four Elected Members of Legislative Council, under my chairmanship. It is the four Elected Members who have done all the legwork for this Report, who have listened and gleaned from the evidence given by the public, as they were required to do when the Legislative Council commissioned them in January 1974.

I came late to this Committee, and although I have signed it as Chairman, my responsibility for it is only for any omissions or errors. The constructive elements are attributable to the wise counsel of the Unofficial Members of the Committee.

The Committee recommends no spectacular or startling changes. This I believe I may take to indicate, not that the Committee has failed to plumb public opinion, but more that it has been identified with public opinion. It has not imposed its opinions on that public opinion, but it has reflected that opinion in its Report. It came, as I know to the problems without preconceptions and I hope has achieved a of the public opinion as to our Constitution.

The main recommendations are that the Legislative Council shall in future: first, have no nominated members; we consider too that Legislative Council should not be made too large as it is not necessarily a case that more numbers means a larger voice. Sometimes a Legislature is all the better for being compact. What we have done, though, is to try and bring about an accommodation between the divergent views: on whether the Legislature should be an electoral college for at least some Members of the Executive. A great deal of discussion centred around this topic, and there is a great deal of merit in both arguments. The compromise solution that we suggest is that the Legislature may rotate its representatives on to Executive Council at periodic intervals during its session life. We think this has much to commend it and will allay the criticism that has formerly surrounded this form of representation.

It is a fact that possibly the genesis of the Report was the situation in which Councillors found themselves in this Chamber when confronted with legislation for which they perhaps had no particular liking but which had been remitted to the Legislature by an Executive body in which they had participated. This situation of the Executive and the Legislature seemed to the Committee to be crucial. But it seemed equally important, as I think we have heard today, and I have read it certainly on many occasions in the past, that there should be some cross-fertilisation, shall we say, between the Executive and the Legislature, so that the Legislature does not come to enact for something that it knows nothing about.

Perhaps the only real innovation, if I can call it that, is to devise a method of electing three members each from Camp and three Members each from Stanley. And what we have done is propose that one member will represent the whole of Camp, and the other the whole of Stanley. The other four Elected Members will represent East Camp, West Camp, East Stanley and West Stanley. As the Report indicates, to facilitate this arrangement, two elections will probably need to be held at an interval, so as to avoid a situation where a much-preferred candidate fails by default. What we propose will give the electorate the opportunity of choosing the very best candidates.

We have looked forward to the time when the Legislature can evolve a ministerial system and we hope we have paved the way for this by proposing that Legislative Councillors should accept responsibility for particular matters. We have made other recommendations about which I will not go into in detail. They are by no means trivial but it would take an inordinate amount of time to spell them all out. Councillors have had a copy of the Report for some weeks and doubtless they are familiar with the recommendations. I hope they are amply covered in the Report which has now been before them, as I say for at least two or three weeks.

This, I believe, Sir, is the first occasion on which the Constitution of the Falkland Islands has been reviewed in this way, and I feel that I am on firm ground when I say that it is certainly the first time that the Constitution of the Falkland Islands has been reviewed in participation with the public. It is thus historic for us and I commend to this Council to recommend this Report to the Secretary of State in the terms of the Motion. I do so in the humble knowledge that it is the people's will that should, and I hope has prevailed.

Finally, I should like to thank those members of the Committee who compiled the Report, and from whom I had such ready and able assistance. I think too, it would not be amiss if I mention the lady secretary who endured so many redraftings of the Report. Thank you Sir."

MR. MILLER

"In rising to second this Motion by the Chief Secretary, there remains very little for me to say. I was, of course, one of the four members. I think our investigations were pretty exhaustive. We found on the whole a fairly large measure of agreement, not on every farm but in general in the Camp - the only difference which we noted was that Camp as a whole rather differed from Stanley as a whole. However, I think what we resolved in the end was a pretty fair basis and the Honourable Chief Secretary has described the thing so completely that there is very little for me to say. I'll just say that the listeners who have been listening to all the details, will have had a job to grasp them all and when it comes to the time for the next elections, they'll probably want to see them on a piece of paper so they'll know where they are. I beg to second the Motion."

MR. LUXTON

Your Excellency, Honourable Members in the first place I should like to compliment the four Elected Members on the whole Report. I think they've done a most excellent job. I haven't really been able to find anything in it with which I disagree. The proposed elimination of Nominated Members is something which has been of great interest to me ever since I first entered this Council. I accepted your predecessor's nomination with the expressed intention - with the hope - that this would be the last Council with Nominated Members. In view of that, I would like to propose an amendment which I hope the Honourable Chief Secretary will feel able to go along with. I should like to propose that the last four words, namely, "as soon as possible", be deleted and that in their place we insert "before the next general election". Therefore, the proposed amendment would read in full "that the Report of the Select Committee on the Constitution, which was today laid on the Table, be forwarded to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State with the recommendation that it be implemented before the next general election".

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I was one of the Committee and I feel honoured to have been on the Committee. It's quite a large responsibility to try and decide on a form of constitution. However, I think we accepted all the advice from people all round the Islands and managed a fairly happy compromise. Other Honourable Members have said all that it is necessary to say on the subject. The Honourable Chief Secretary has given a summary of the main points in the new Constitution. I, however, would like to support the amended motion by the Honourable W. Luxton because I think that by altering the four last words in the Motion as he requested, we shall add more urgency to the Motion. I support the amended Motion by the Honourable W. Luxton."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I wish to rise and support the Motion as amended and I would only like to add one or two things to what Members have already said. First of all I feel that my fellow-members of the Committee would like to thank particularly the Chief Secretary for all the work he put into the Report - we may have done the legwork, but he had to do the drafting, sorting our "ifs" and our "buts" and keeping us in line; and the other person who isn't with us now, but I'm sure the Members of the Committee would like to thank, was our travelling secretary, Mr. Ted Clapp who did a tremendous amount of work in preparing the Minutes. The Report, if accepted, the revised Constitution, will not have everything that everybody wants in it, but I hope there will be enough of what most people want in for them to look upon it with reasonable favour. I would remind them that this isn't the last Constitution: that it could be amended again next year and the other thing I would like to commend to everyone's attention is this bit I think we put in ourselves, whereby the Elected Members would interest themselves in particular spheres of Government so that instead of the departments having six critics they might have one supporter. I support the amended Motion."

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, since my views differ considerably from the other speakers around this table, I thought it appropriate to let the others have a go first. Some time ago I wrote the Chief Secretary a letter containing my views on the proposed Constitution changes. The letter was made public in the Falkland Islands Times. In that letter I was opposed to a change which would abolish Nominated Members and give us an all-elected Council. My views on this have not changed from those expressed in that letter. I am convinced that the Colony is too small to have an all-elected Council but if Nominated Members are to continue the method of selecting and appointing them must be changed to a more democratic one. In Legislative Council, Nominated Members tend largely to take a calmer and more dispassionate view of heated subjects as they do not feel they are under any obligation to make a big splash for their constituents. I do not intend to take the Report apart piece by piece: I would say that I think the recommendations too vast, too complex for these small Islands. We already have a pretty satisfactory Constitution which requires only minor changes to make it more acceptable. I'm gratified by the support I've had for this view within the Islands from the United Kingdom. But, Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to compliment the people responsible for holding the meetings and producing a very thorough Report which I now most thoroughly oppose, be it in amended or unamended form."

MR. BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I didn't really intend to speak on this, but as everybody else has, I don't see why I shouldn't also. I would rather like to endorse Mr. Luxton's proposal that we keep this moving. The public asked for it, this is what the public want, and I don't think we've got a right to say that they can't have it. The idea, I think, of getting this in before the next General Election is only being fair to the new Council which will be convened, I suppose, towards the end of the year, and I should like to support the Motion as amended."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"The question now, Sir, is the amendment. That the last four words of the Motion be replaced by "before the next general election". I have no cavil with this. I would point out that the term of Council at the latest expires on the 14th November this year, and it takes, even with the greatest despatch, 81 days between dissolution and reconstitution of the Council. 81 days is the very bare minimum: presumably then one ought to be prudent and allow 100 days. This is the only cavil that I would enter in this particular regard. Otherwise I have no objection and propose that the question be put."

The amended Motion, namely, "That the Report of the Select Committee on the Constitution, which was today laid on the Table, be forwarded to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State with the recommendation that it be implemented before the next general election", was then formally put to Council and carried.

A MOTION for the adoption of the Standing Finance Committee Report for the period December 1974 to May 1975 was put by the Financial Secretary. The Motion was seconded by the Chief Secretary and carried.

MOTION by the Honourable S. Miller J.P.

"That notwithstanding the application submitted to and approved by the United Kingdom Branch in 1952 for the formation of a Subsidiary Branch of the C.P.A., the Legislative Council hereby resolves to reconstitute the said Branch as an Auxiliary Branch of the Association."

MR. MILLER

"Sir, this, in my view is merely, I suppose, righting a wrong. I haven't really got very much to say because I have been rather like another Member said earlier in the day, rather caught with my trousers down, as although I have all the literature on this, I'm afraid I haven't looked it up. It is, however, pretty well embedded in my mind and I would welcome the fact that this Council - I think there was one Member absent when we earlier met in the Chief Secretary's Office because the auditors were in the Conference Room - were unanimous in approving the fact that we should reorganise our business so that we became members of the United Kingdom Branch of the C.P.A. We further resolved that a sum of money, which I can't exactly remember at the moment, would be payable, to cover the expenses of possibly being invited to attend meetings of the C.P.A. I think that's probably all that's necessary to be said. This thing has sort of dragged on for a long time and none of us really knew anything about it until London drew our attention to it. I think that is all I need to say, Sir."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, I fully support this Motion and I beg to second it."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Certainly, I think all Councillors round this Table, and those of Executive Council, Your Excellency, will support this Motion, and the important item in it, which I'm sure will not escape notice, that we will become an Auxiliary Branch of the United Kingdom Association. The sum of money to which my Honourable Friend referred is £480 per annum, but in joining as an Auxiliary Branch we shall have access also to the General Purposes Trust which will look favourably on applications for delegations from this Branch to visit other Branches elsewhere. I fully support the Motion."

/The

The Motion was carried unanimously.

MOTION by the Honourable S. Miller, J.P.

"That the Falklands Branch of the C.P.A. sends a formal invitation to the United Kingdom Branch of the C.P.A. for two M.P.s to visit the Colony in October or November this year".

MR. MILLER

"Sir, in introducing this Motion, I would say that we of course welcome the possibility and I suppose I should add probability of two M.P.s visiting the Colony in October or November this year. We have also been advised, I think I am right in saying by the Minister that he thinks two might not be enough, and possibly two more other M.P.s should also come - their expenses not being paid by the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association but by the British Government. Considering the associations we are seeking to press with the British Government to which some of us have referred in speeches today, I think this is a highly important chance for us to speak to at least two and possibly four Members of Parliament. We don't apparently have any choice in the individuals as I understand it. I think the United Kingdom Association picks its own men. I'm not quite certain that I'm right in saying that, but we certainly welcome the appearance of these gentlemen, or will welcome their appearance next October or November."

MR. BOWLES

"Sir, I want to support this Motion because I think that to keep in touch with the C.P.A. in Britain is vitally important. It's important in every aspect, and I shall welcome the arrival of these gentlemen when they come, even supposing there turned out to be four. I wish to support the Motion. "

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I most definitely support this Motion. Even more so the idea of having four instead of two. In past years I think we've had four visiting M.P.s, two at a time. They have, later on after having got to know us and seen something of our problems, been extremely good friends to the people of this Colony in times of trouble. The more friends we can make in the Parliament at Westminster, the better for us, and I look forward to seeing two or even better four M.P.s in this Colony later this year. I support the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"May I just - since the Honourable Sydney Miller referred to "said by the Minister" during our recent meeting with him, or my recent meeting accompanied by three Honourable Members in Rio de Janeiro - say that his recollections are actually accurate. The Minister did suggest that in addition to the two members who would be financed by the C.P.A., that there would be value in trying to add to their number, to reinforce them by one or two more members but the question of their expenses would be a matter for Her Majesty's Government and not for the C.P.A. Just to clarify that Mr. Miller was absolutely correct and for Honourable Members' information, I am following this up very vigorously through official channels because I feel this question of finance and who is to pay the expenses may cause a little difficulty. Two members are certain from the C.P.A. and the question of adding to the number hangs upon whether the Minister will in fact be able to obtain sanction, presumably from the Treasury, for the expenses of one or two additionally."

/vigorously

The Motion was carried unanimously.

MOTION by the Honourable A.B. Monk J.P.

"That this Council views with grave concern the continuous decline in our population from 1936 to the present date, and considers as a matter of urgency that a committee be formed of representatives of the Legislative Council, the business community, the Falkland Islands General Employees' Union and of the Administration to ascertain the reasons for this and to make recommendations to try and reverse the trend."

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I put forward the Motion because I think it is so very important to our survival to try and arrest this population drain. A lot has been said about it already today in other places so I won't go on too long now, but I suggest a Committee consisting of all these different cross-sections of the community - because I am quite certain that the reasons for the population drain are very diverse, and they affect the entire population. We can't put forward any single reason for the decline: there is an accumulation of reasons, and I think possibly that a Committee of this nature could perform a valuable duty in putting their finger on some of the factors affecting the population drain, if not all. I beg to propose the Motion."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I rise to second the Motion of the Honourable Member and support him fully in his sentiments. I would like to see this Government not only trying to stop the drain but also possibly help any Islander who has left the Colony and would like to return to do so. Perhaps during the consideration of our Estimates we can throw this one in as an odd fish. The people of the Colony who have left us have left probably to find amenities which we provide here but not to the sophisticated standard that you can find elsewhere. Therefore, it loads us very heavily when we consider the budget, in that to reduce our amenities will aggravate our problem. I support, whole-heartedly, the Honourable Member's Motion."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, The Administration of course supports entirely my Honourable Friend's Motion. Any enquiry into this Colony's population decline is obviously of value, and the Administration will do all it can to attempt to frame measures to remedy the trend. I am sure my Honourable Friends will be conscious that there may well be very many factors contributing to the steady decline in the Colony's population and the establishment of a Committee to identify these and to promote remedial measures will have to be fairly high-powered and it would have to be prepared to look at very many aspects and bring into question very many facts of life that perhaps at the moment we hold dear. If the Colony is to embark, for instance, on a conscious and deliberate programme of immigration, this could open up a completely new chapter in the Colony's life.

Old ideas and old affections may well have to be dropped, and much as it is pleasant to cling to the past and to have nostalgia for Arcadia, I think we must recognise that our survival depends on a completely different outlook in which we may well have to overturn very much of our philosophy that in the past we've held so dear. If we do have to seek radical measures we must do this in a purposeful and responsible manner, preserving much as we can from the past of what is good, while conceding to progress what is necessary. This I take it is the purpose of my Honourable Friend's Motion which has my full support.

There is one procedural point, Sir, and I should draw attention to it. Rule 40a of the Standing Rules and Orders states and - I may quote Sir? - "There may be constituted such Standing Committees for such purposes as may be provided by these Standing Rules and Orders, or as the Council may by Motion during any session appoint, and such Standing Committee shall continue in being and may continue to sit until dissolved by the Council or until the end of the session. At the first meeting of any session the Council may reconstitute such Standard Committee to hold office during the period of each such session. The membership and quorum shall be fixed by the Motion constituting such Standing Committee. The Governor may from time to time, in case of the death or unavoidable absence of a member, appoint another member of the Council to take the place of such member of the Standing Committee". I suggest, Your Excellency that this leaves two questions for decision; membership, in actual name, of this Committee, if it is agreed to; and secondly, whether members may in fact be appointed to a Committee of the Legislature. My reading is that they probably can but it may be worth debating I don't know."

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, may I suggest that Council go into Committee and discuss the Motion later on?"

THE PRESIDENT concurred and so directed.

MOTION by the Honourable L.G. BLAKE, J.P.

"That this House should ask Her Majesty's Government to consider the extension and strengthening of the present airfield to bring it up to International standards."

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members we have in the Colony at this time a construction team rolling us a temporary airfield, or the equivalent thereof. A very good temporary airfield, but temporary none-the-less in that its use and operation are to be controlled by our continued good relations with Argentina. It has been said that perhaps we couldn't justify an international airport here, economically. We couldn't justify a landing strip for my Honourable Friend's aircraft economically, but so many of our services have to be justified on social grounds that I think this House should give strong consideration to the expansion of this strip; or to asking Her Majesty's Government to extend this strip to give us the independence that one hopes may not be necessary but could become so. It would be unfortunate if it became necessary and we hadn't made the effort. To reconstitute another construction team later with equipment, full gang, housing, the lot, would more than double the cost of an extension now. Your Excellency, I beg to move the Motion."

/MR. LUXTON

MR. LUXTON

"I wish to second this Motion. I think we're all fully aware that representations have already been made to Her Majesty's Government in various ways. What this Motion seeks to do is to put this House formally behind those representations. In the face of what is already a magnificent gift from Her Majesty's Government, I feel somewhat embarrassed as a Falkland Islander, to appear to be asking for yet more. It is an enormous sum of money that we've already been given, but I think we have put up a case for more primarily to achieve, in the short term, independence from our neighbours. Perhaps the Motion is not all that wellworded. When one talks about an international airport we're not talking about something like Heathrow or Gatwick. Perhaps the international should be spelt with a small "i". In other words, an airfield to permit international flights. I emphasise the word 'permit' because of the logical set up of the communications is that, with the good relations of our neighbours permitting, it will remain as it is. The one point of course is that should there any major developments in the future in this area, then we may well need a longer strip. The cost of doubling the airfield in, say, 5 years' time, would be at least double what it is now: say £10 million to almost double the length of the airfield while now, at a guess, shall we say £1 million extra. Those figures should surely be borne in mind by Her Majesty's Government. I beg to second the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you Mr. Luxton. No doubt other Members also feel as Mr. Luxton that international might well be spelt with a small letter rather than a capital "I". May I also point out that the present airfield which is under construction will be a permanent construction.

I apologize if I got it wrong but I thought the Honourable Mr. Blake referred to the temporary airfield, because of course the whole point of the £4½ million airfield is that it should be a permanent airfield, accepting that you may feel that this should lead on to better things. But the whole point is permanent, as against temporary airstrip. I merely point this out for clarification so that we can get it right. The airfield at present under construction by Johnston Construction Ltd., is intended to be permanent. Whether it is extended is another matter, and if I may, with great respect, suggest that the wording of the Motion may be changed perhaps with reference to the 'present' because of course it doesn't yet exist. The present airstrip is the temporary - the very temporary - strip put down by the Argentine Government."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Thank you Sir. I do hope that, in playing Devil's Advocate as I must occasionally, I am not going to be taken to task for trying to kill something at the inception; but I do think it is necessary to try and talk in terms of facts and figures, if we can, about anything of this magnitude. We have a "temporary" airfield which is about to be constructed at a cost of £4.2 million, which is being donated by Her Majesty's Government: it will be 1,250 m. long. It is not entirely true to say that the length of the runway is dictated by political considerations in compliance to Argentina; as I think we know, and I don't want to rehearse the arguments that we have had before, the critical aircraft is the HS 748 which is in fact capable of flying to Uruguay or Chile and back. There is another element, I think, too, that realism makes us look at, and this is the traffic increase which presumably would justify an international runway. This could come presumably from several sources; one could be tourism, possibly oil. I say possibly oil, because I don't think there is any guarantee that this would automatically increase the traffic, but supposing there was a sudden and dramatic increase in the passenger or freight traffic at the airfield, where would it come from? If we use long haul aircraft where would they fly from? If they did fly from places that are far distant from the Colony would they not require diversionary facilities in case of bad weather? Would not international regulations require that we provide diversionary facilities? International regulations would doubtless also require that we provide full airport, navigational and air traffic control services which could well stretch the economy of this Colony. As I opened, I don't want to knock this before it gets off - before it gets on the ground, but I think we have got to talk in terms of facts and figures. If we are talking, for instance, of lengthening a runway, we must also think in terms of thickening the pavement, widening the runway; it wouldn't therefore perhaps be a straight extrapolation on the £4.2 million that we are spending now. The coefficient of expansion, I have no doubt, would be in the order of 1.5 perhaps even greater. I would like to make those two points. I don't want to attempt in any way to kill this. I think if it can be justified, if we can get the money let's have it. I would propose, however, that as a gesture of grace towards Her Majesty's Government, in recognition of the very substantial sum she has given to the Colony for the permanent airfield, that members might be prepared to accept a very minor amendment by taking out the four words after 'that' and inserting 'appreciating Her Majesty's Government's generosity, this House nevertheless asks'. The Motion would then read: "that, appreciating Her Majesty's Government's generosity, this House nevertheless asks Her Majesty's Government to consider the extension and strengthening of the permanent airfield to bring it up to international standards".

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, I will wholly support the Chief Secretary's amendment. I wouldn't support all his comments but I would support his amendment, and I thank you for your pointers with regard to the inaccuracies. I would like to take you up on one point in that I referred to the airfield as being 'little better than a temporary airfield'. I didn't mean that it was going to be any more than permanent, not temporary. But I would support the Chief Secretary's amendment."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you Mr. Blake. My point too, I didn't make myself clear about temporary as being permanent, was from the point of view of pilots and I'm sure that the Honourable Mr. Pitaluga will bear me out that from the point of view of a pilot there is a big difference between what we have at present as a temporary airstrip and a permanent airfield of the order of the £4 million permanent airstrip, however limited its boundaries."

The motion in amended form, namely "That, appreciating Her Majesty's Government's generosity, this House nevertheless asks Her Majesty's Government to consider the extension and strengthening of the permanent airfield to bring it up to international standards", was then formally put to Council and passed.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

THE APPROPRIATION (1975/76) BILL 1975

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, before announcing the Budget for the coming fiscal year, I will briefly review the past year.

At the time of presenting the 1974/75 Estimates it was expected that there would be a surplus of £71,000. This surplus will not now be achieved by the fact that £89,000 was required for transfer to the Oil Stocks Replacement Fund, for holding the standard stock of oil at a price approximately 250% more than the previous stock obtained before the World energy crisis. A forewarning of this transfer was given at the last Budget Session. However, despite this transfer the revised estimates of revenue and expenditure show a surplus of £31,000.

The net increase in expenditure, disregarding the transfer to the Oil Fund, is £29,000 due mainly to the increased costs of running F.I.G.A.S. unforeseen commuted pension gratuities, increased official telegraphic traffic between Stanley and London, and the higher cost of maintaining the standard stock of unallocated stores because of price increases.

The revised estimate of revenue is approximately £77,000 more than the original estimate, largely attributable to the higher yield from customs duties and investments, also miscellaneous receipts such as store charges on oil supplied to the Japanese Fishing vessel, reimbursement from the insurance company in respect of fire damage to the Senior School and Sullivan House outbuildings and late assessment of 1974 Stanley Rates.

At the 1st July, 1974, the Colony's Ordinary Reserves stood at £200,000 and with revenue for 1974/75 now estimated at £940,000 and expenditure at £908,000 the reserves should exceed £230,000 at the commencement of the new fiscal year on 1st July, 1975.

The Budget for the ensuing fiscal year 1975/76 is balanced with a surplus of £209,000. The total ordinary revenue estimate for 1975/76 is £1,192,000 and the estimate of expenditure is £983,000.

A surplus for 1975/76 comes as no surprise. This was forecast at the time the Colony's 1973/74 wool clip was sold forward at the record average price of 111p per kilo.

Revenue from taxation this year is considerably influenced by the 1973/74 wool clip. Tax on the income of companies alone, which are mainly sheep farming companies, is estimated at £470,000. A sum of £50,000 which can be described as 'windfall revenue' is included from the issue of coins which it is hoped will prove to be a conservative estimate. Because of rising costs and the fact that revenue from Company taxation will be considerably lower during the following financial year, further revenue proposals are now contemplated.

The estimates show increased revenue from the sale of electrical energy as it has been necessary to increase the tariff from 4.09p to 4.63p per unit, that is, an increase of just over 13% largely due to the higher cost of oil. During 1974/75 Government had sufficient stocks of oil, purchased at pre-oil crisis prices, to last until December, 1974. During fiscal 1975/76 all oil will be taken from stock bought at £71 per ton which is 2½ times more than the old price.

Aviation

It is proposed to increase the aircraft boarding fee by 50p.

Customs Duties

Duty on spirits which at present is £8.25 per gallon it is proposed to increase to £9 per gallon. This would increase the price of a bottle by 12½ pence.

It is proposed to increase the duty on beer from 11p to 20 p per gallon, this will increase the duty on a small can by .675 of one penny. It is also recommended that the duty on wines should be increased.

Tobacco to be increased from £1.60 to £2.00 per lb.

Cigarettes to be increased from £2 to £2.40 per lb which will increase the price of a packet of 20 by approximately 2p.

Duty on cigars is to be increased from £3.36 to £3.50 per lb. It is proposed to abolish the tax on matches.

The total additional revenue from the proposed increases in customs duties is estimated at £17,000.

Additional revenue of £300 is expected from proposed increases in the registration fees for trade-marks.

Under Harbour revenue it is proposed to increase Port Dues and it is estimated that a further £350 will accrue to Government from visiting ships.

It is planned to make considerable increases in the medical charges applicable to non-residents in particular ward and maternity fees and the charges for medical officer's visits to ships. Also under medical it is proposed to increase the in-patient fees for residents from 95 pence to £1.50 per day for a general ward and a similar increase for a private ward on account of rising costs. The amount accruing in respect of increases in medical fees is estimated at £3,200.

Darwin Boarding Schools fees which now stand at £30, it is proposed to increase to £36 per annum.

The charge for water supplied to ships is to be increased from 20p to £1 per ton.

Under the Posts and Telecommunications the annual charge for a telephone is to be increased from £10 to £12 and from £20 to £24 in respect of a business subscriber. This increase should achieve £1,000 in revenue and a further £800 is estimated from increasing the Stanley rediffusion fee from £3 to £5 per annum and increasing the advertising fees and charges for announcements both by 1p per word. The annual rental for a letter box which at present is 60p per annum is to be increased to £1 and the charge of 2p per word for local telegrams it is proposed to increase to 3p per word.

Certain postage rates are to be increased and the major increases in this category are the increases in air letter forms from 6p to 7½p and for air mail from 8p per ½ oz. to 10p. The yield from these increases is expected to exceed £1,300.

/forms

Again because of rising costs, it is proposed to increase the rent for Government quarters and £1,350 is expected from the proposed increase.

Before leaving revenue, I would like to mention that it is proposed to study the direct taxation allowances and other matters in connexion with income tax before the next tax year which commences on 1st January, 1976.

Under the 1975/76 Estimates of expenditure a token estimate of £1,000 has been inserted under the Aviation Department for the control services at the permanent airfield. Also under the Aviation Department provision of £1,500 is made for the replacement of life saving equipment.

Under the Customs and Harbour head of service provision is made for the purchase of a life raft for m.v. Forrest.

The Medical estimates include provision to upgrade the Laboratory Assistant and to provide for a part-time typist. In addition provision is made for a Social Worker and a District nurse from the Voluntary Service Overseas organisation.

£2,200 is also included under the Medical Department estimates for a new laboratory system the maintenance of a medical library, and certain other items of equipment for the modernisation of the Hospital.

Provision is made under the Meteorological Service for the recruitment of an additional forecaster.

Expenditure of £6,000 is proposed under the Military Head of Service for Defence Equipment.

A sum of £480 is provided under the Miscellaneous Head of Expenditure for the first payment of the annual subscription to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

Under the item of expenditure relating to United Kingdom Technical Assistance, which is confined to providing board, lodging and local travelling expenses, for professional personnel financed by the British Government, provision is made for a Grasslands Trials Unit, a Veterinary Officer, an Architect to redesign the school hostel, and a Cassette Teacher to prepare lessons and train staff for camp education through the medium of taperecorders. It is probable that an Archivist to reorganise the historical documents of the Colony may also be obtained under Technical Assistance.

A small item of Radio Equipment is provided for under the Police Department.

Honourable Members will note the reduction in both revenue and expenditure in the Posts & Telecommunications, in consequence of Cable and Wirelss Ltd., having taken over the external communications of the Colony. The Post's & Telecommunications establishment has been accordingly reduced by two clerks and eight technicians including two apprentices.

Under the Public Works Department provision is made for the creation of an established post namely Painter under Section 7 of the Salary Scale.

/Special

Special Expenditure relating to the Public Works Department provides £2,434 for a replacement car for Government House, a mini car for the Medical Department, and a replacement Landrover for the Falkland Islands Government Air Service, also two replacement Landrovers for the Public Works Department. These Landrovers are expected to cost £8,500. £8,000 is included for a replacement lorry, £3,300 is included for the conversion of selected Government quarters to oil fired central heating. Funds are also provided for replacing the Filtration Plant Tanks and a token sum has been inserted to help in providing accommodation for the teacher at Fox Bay East. The Public Works Department has also provided funds for converting a classroom into a library at the Senior School and £500 for improvements to the Secretariat Building. In addition to the normal passage entitlement provision has been included for two police officers to be sent to the United Kingdom for training.

The Secretariat estimates provide for an increase in the emoluments of the Falkland Islands Government Legal Adviser in the United Kingdom from £600 to £2,000 per annum.

To modernise the office with a view to increased efficiency provision is made for an electric-static copy machine and paper shredder. Provision is also made for additional stenographers to act as Private Secretary to the Chief Secretary and to assist with the preparation of Council papers, and for the Treasury £100 is included for a heavy duty calculator.

Provision is made in the Supreme Court Estimates for a further one week visit to the Colony by the Supreme Court Judge, Sir Peter Watkin-Williams.

The Development Estimates provide for £10,000 for housing loans. The increase of £5,000 in the allocation is for an element of encouragement for people to own their own houses in the Colony. £10,000 is also included from the Colony's Development funds for the purchase of one dwelling house for the Falkland Islands Government. Other items of development expenditure to be financed by the Colony is £5,000 for culverts for minor roads, £500 for Tourism Promotion and £7,000 for fencing subsidies to farmers.

Development expenditure from United Kingdom aid includes over one and a half million pounds for the permanent airfield. From U.K. development loans £5,000 for fencing subsidies to farmers, £10,000 for tourism loans, £10,000 for equipment for the Stanley/Estancia Road, £3,500 for a suitable tractor to operate the peat cutting machine, £4,000 for broadcasting equipment and £17,500 for the initial expenditure for the new school hostel.

It is estimated that the Colony's Development Fund will stand at £84,000 at the end of the 1975/76, Financial Year which is 30th June, 1976.

Honourable Members will note that I have missed one additional item of expenditure and that is the increase in Old Age Pensions. This I have intentionally left to the end as I consider it to be one of the most important additional items of expenditure for consideration at this meeting. The proposal is to increase Old Age Pensions by £1.00 per week all the way. Without any protection against inflation, the old age pensioner is hardest hit by price increases, and it is particularly important that consideration is given to this increase now. With the recent increases in Stanley Rates, electricity and soaring prices of essential commodities this increase is undoubtedly justified. The cost of this award will be in the region of £9,000. £1,600 will fall directly on the taxpayer in respect of non-contributory pensions and the balance of approximately £7,000 in respect of contributory pensions will fall on the income of the Old Age Pensions Equalisation Fund. It may be that after this matter has been reported to the Government Actuary, the fund will require an increased subvention from Government or increased contributions from employers and employees, but if this need arises neither contributors nor taxpayers should object.

To summarise, it is estimated that the ordinary reserves will be in the region of £430,000 at the end of June, 1976, and the Development reserves are likely to be slightly in excess of £80,000 at that date making a grand total of $\frac{1}{2}$ million pounds. Reserves of that order would have been regarded as satisfactory a few years ago but with the steep rise in expenditure during the last few years this sum today can only be described as a minimum.

This budget contains provision of 20% to cover inflation in imported prices, it contains an element to cover awards related to the rising cost of living and therefore can be regarded as realistic.

At this stage the outlook for the 1976/77 financial year appears bleak. Taxation from the sheep farming companies will be substantially less than in fiscal 1975/76 due to the lower price for the 1974/75 wool clip, and without any definite sign of any slower rate of price increases, that have been prevailing for sometime in the United Kingdom, which is the main source of inflation in the Falkland Islands, expenditure will almost certainly be considerably higher.

It now appears that revenue in the short term is unlikely from kelp or fish. We still hope to obtain useful revenue from tourism and the issue of coins, but our efforts to obtain further revenue from postage stamps have been in vain. We cannot now afford to overlook any new sources of revenue, it has been suggested that revenue from outside sources may accrue from the introduction of tax haven legislation, however, this seems extremely doubtful with the political problem, and other factors which we have no control over, for example, the climate. Despite these drawbacks the possibility is being investigated. The eminent economist from St. Andrews University, Mr. Stuart McDowell, in his report on the Falkland Islands Government finances, states "In the knowledge that almost all the predictions of economists turn out to be wrong, I hesitate to make any forecasts". This I think sums up the financial surveys of today, no one man or group of men, no matter how well qualified, can foresee how the various countries intend planning their finances which can affect the international markets. The world-wide financial situation is precarious and it has a terrific effect on the finances of the Falkland Islands, as I have mentioned at previous meetings we are right on the end of the line.

Our responsibility is to see that taking one year with another, expenditure is fully-covered by revenue. We cannot avoid unpalatable revenue measures, and it is regrettable that Honourable Members are saddled with such measures, with an election imminent, however, I can assure you of one thing, that the succeeding Council will also be unable to avoid the continuation of such measures, unless there is a gush of revenue from some new source.

I feel confident, that providing expenditure is regularly pruned and revenue is kept under constant review, and that the economy is not permitted to stagnate, the Falkland Islands will survive the World economic crisis just as well as the majority of other countries. We are in the fortunate position of being a dependent territory of Britain, and if in the event of the worst, providing we do all in our own power to balance our Budget, the British Government will not be unreasonable in assisting us, but for a number of reasons grant-in-aid is undesirable and must only be regarded as the last resort!

Let us, therefore, look forward to the future with confidence, and optimism.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

This was seconded by the CHIEF SECRETARY and the Bill was read a first time. The FINANCIAL SECRETARY put a further Motion, seconded by the CHIEF SECRETARY, that the Bill be read a second time.

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, the Financial Secretary has at great length told us of his proposals and bombarded us with a vast amount of statistics and, quite frankly, I am almost speechless. The reason that I don't criticise the Estimates item by item now is because I've got to clear my head first before we go into Committee and think about it more deeply. It doesn't mean that I approve anything in particular that the Financial Secretary says. There is one little remark I think which illustrates the wrong approach to our financial problems and that is that we must take measures to ensure that revenue keeps pace with expenditure, which seems to me to indicate the expenditure doesn't matter but you fellows just poke up the revenue to pay for it. I think that is entirely the wrong approach to our financial problems. We should decide quite cold-bloodedly the amount of money that we can afford to spend on anything and then expenditure should be tailored to fit in with the available means. I have said before that I think taxation and the unfair way that taxation is distributed is one of the reasons for the population drain. I say it again, I think in the case of all these small fees and fines and the continual little increases to produce a hundred pounds here and another hundred there, when in fact the administration of these little things probably costs more than they produce, is one of the elements of our taxation policy that annoys people so much. Little fiddling things that you have to pay which in the aggregate produce nothing but are damned annoying to pay. At least I find them so anyway. Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I won't say any more at the moment, but I certainly hope to have a considerable amount to say when we go into Committee."

"Your Excellency, I rise to congratulate the Financial Secretary on his very excellent speech. It has little comfort for us. Last year at about this time I told Council that I was going to vote against the Motion for Adjournment because we didn't seem to be able to cope with anything with our financial figures at all. For that reason I was rather pleased when the Financial Secretary announced the arrival of an Archivist."

I would suggest that the first paper that is given to him to file away should be the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period ending May, 1975. It horrifies me to see this in front of me. To think that I voted in five months to spend £156,122 but splendidly I've managed to save £292! That is the horrifying picture of our finances at the moment, but I was comforted by the words of Mr. McDowell. One way in which I feel we might help ourselves, and I intend to push this later in the week, is to see that taxpayers, not individual taxpayers but company taxpayers, are penalised very much more heavily than they are at present, where by not paying your tax you can contribute at the rate of 5% per annum extra, whereas if you put that money on the money market, you can eamdouble it in interest. This sort of thing we cannot afford and we've got to see that the penalty for non-payment of large tax bills just isn't on. The only other thing I would like to do is welcome the increase in old age pensions. This is the one cheery piece of news we have had today and yesterday, and draw the attention of Council and members of the public to the fact that even these new pensions are going to be inadequate in some instances, but that all pensioners, or anyone, finding themselves in extreme financial difficulties can approach their members of Council or members of the administration at any time. There is provision within our Government, thank goodness, for assistance and where you can't make ends meet yourself, there is nothing shameful about asking someone else to help you. Your Excellency, may I congratulate the Financial Secretary?"

THE PRESIDENT

"If I may just content myself with an observation or two. I took Mr. Monk's remarks to be an endorsement of the decision to adjourn early yesterday because I think we would have been faced with quite a long day which would be a little trying, but I am sure we all join in congratulating the Financial Secretary on his splendid speech. Very lucid if I may say so. It is always difficult to make so many figures sound interesting but he did. If I may also pick on another point that I thought the Honourable Mr. Blake's remark about the access that the public have to Councillors is terribly important. He mentioned earlier about pensioners in particular, that this seems to be the only ray of light in an all pervaded gloom, I don't think we could all go along with that! But this access to Councillors, that people should get their personal worries and questions over to Councillors, elected Councillors in particular, I think is terribly important.

I think the next formal stage. I don't think there was any objection: so the Bill will be read a second time."

The Bill was read a second time.

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Sir, I beg to move that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee of the House."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I beg to second the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"The Motion is that the Bill be referred to the Select Committee of the House. Any objections to the Motion. No Objection. The Bill to be considered in Select Committee of the whole House and may I just suggest that the venue of the sitting might be changed if Honourable Members think this convenient to conduct the business, but we now resolve to Select Committee of the House."

/Bill

Council resumed at 10.30 a.m. on Monday, 23rd June 1975.

PRESENT

The President (His Excellency Mr. N.A.I. French, M.V.O.)
The Honourable the Chief Secretary (Mr. A.J.P. Monk)
The Honourable the Financial Secretary (Mr. H.T. Rowlands)
The Honourable S. Miller, J.P.
The Honourable R.M. Pitaluga, O.B.E.,
The Honourable L.G. Blake J.P.
The Honourable A. B. Monk, J.P.

THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, the Select Committee appointed by you has reviewed the 1975/76 Estimates of the Colony in accordance with the Standing Rules and Orders of this Council.

Prior to introducing the Committee's proposed amendments to the Estimates, I will summarise the Committee's recommendations regarding the proposed revenue increases:

1. That the proposal to increase the aviation boarding fee for adults from £4 to £4.50 should be adopted.
2. That the proposal to increase the duty on beer should not be accepted.
3. That the duty on spirits should be increased further than the original proposal namely from £8.25 per gallon to £9.60 per gallon thereby increasing the duty on a bottle of spirits by 22½p.

5. There was unanimous agreement to abolish the tax levied on matches.

10. That the recommended increases in tonnage dues should be adopted.
11. The Committee recommended that the electricity tariff be referred back to the Governor in Council for reconsideration as it is proposed that the tariff should not include any contribution to revenue for overheads, etc., and therefore recommend that the proposed increase should be reduced accordingly, that is it should be fixed at 4.34p per unit which is an increase of .25p
12. The suggestion to increase the sale of water to ships to £1.00 per ton is agreed.
13. The proposal to increase telephone rentals was accepted.
14. The suggested increase in Rediffusion fees was accepted with it being agreed that announcements and advertising fees be levied at a single rate of 2½p per word with a minimum charge of 40p.

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Rowlands for I think a most comprehensive and accurate and helpful account of all that has happened during this very busy period which has gone on right through the week end and how hard Councillors have worked! I congratulate you, if I may, on the production of this so rapidly and so lucidly."

In the Committee stage, Clause 1 of the Bill was agreed and consideration of Clause 2 was deferred until after the Schedule had been considered.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed.

The FINANCIAL SECRETARY seconded by the CHIEF SECRETARY moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill, subject to the following amendments -

Council resumed.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTIONS

The Chief Secretary reported back on the Motion by the Honourable A.B. Monk J.P., relating to the decline in the population of the Colony.

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, the Committee appointed by Council to consider my Honourable Friend's Motion with regard to population has been considered in Committee and the recommendation is that a Committee should be formed under Rule 39 of our Standing Rules and Orders, and that it should be composed of the Chief Secretary and the Honourable Adrian Monk. In case Your Excellency may consider there is something strange about that, I assure you there must be something in our common forebears that must have enabled their normal celibacy to be overcome by the usual human attributes!"

THE PRESIDENT

"I am most grateful Mr. Chief Secretary. I thought it odd for a little while that two monks should be studying the population decline."

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think everybody knows

/my my reasons for proposing this Motion so I do not propose to say very much on the subject, but our idea is to get as much advice and as many opinions from all sections of the community, and from the advice and opinions we get, to try and reverse this most regrettable trend."

The Motion was thus carried.

Notice of Motion by the Honourable L.G. Blake, J.P., under rule 9 (2) of the Legislative Council Standing Rules and Orders

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, under Rule 9 (2) of our Standing Rules and Orders, I beg to lay before the Clerk a Motion which I would like debated at the next session of Council; the Motion being "that this House requests and requires the administration to examine the possibility of charging visitors arriving by sea a landing fee, and to prepare the necessary legislation." I beg permission to lay this before the Clerk."

BILLS

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1973-4) BILL 1975

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill is a very formal Bill. It simply legalises expenditure in excess of the Appropriation Ordinance for the year 1973/74. All items of expenditure have passed through S.F.C. and have come to this Council in the various S.F.C. Reports. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

THE CHIEF SECRETARY seconded.

The Motion was put and carried.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage without amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1975

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this is undoubtedly one of the most welcome and important Bills for consideration at this meeting. The proposal is to increase the single persons pension from £4 to £5, and in the case of a married person from £7 to £8. The immediate cost will be £7,000 per annum, gradually increasing until we reach the peak of the number of pensions who are paid from the old age pensioners' contributory scheme. I don't think there is very much I need to say; I think that Mr. Blake summed up the matter very well the other day when he said 'this is one little ray of sunshine that we have in this budget session' and I therefore would like to propose the first Reading of the Bill."

MR. BOWLES seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

After a further Motion moved and seconded, the Bill was read a second time.

/MR. BLAKE

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I heartily support the Bill of course. My reason for rising at this point is to clear up what might become a misunderstanding by the public in that Government has reserved the contribution of £12,500 to the Old Age Pensions Fund in its budget. The reason for this is that Council considered that with the growth rate of the fund, this £12,500 may not be needed. There was not and is not any intention or thought of perhaps having to reduce pensions at a future date due to our straitened circumstances. Thank you Sir."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Blake for clarification of that baseless assumption."

The Bill then passed through the Committee stage without amendment and after Council had resumed, was read a third time and passed.

THE NON-CONTRIBUTORY OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1975

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill, similar to the last one, proposes an increase of £1 per week to each pensioner paid under the non-contributory scheme. This is paid from the general revenues of the Colony. It is proposed that the increase in pension for a single pensioner shall be from £3 to £4 and that for a married pensioner from £6 to £7 per week. The cost to the Government will be £1,600. This figure will gradually be reduced because the non-contributory scheme covers largely those who were excluded from contributing under the contributory scheme. There is equal justification for this increase, and all Members are, I'm sure, unanimous that our old people should be well-cared for; and it has had one hundred per cent support in the Committee. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR MONK seconded.

The Motion was put and carried.

The Bill was read a first time.

On further motion made and seconded the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill went through the Committee stage without amendment.

Council resumed and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE STANLEY RATES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1975

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this is a very short Bill which proposes to sell water to ships at a realistic price. The increase is fairly large, the income is modest, but in view of the fact that we are dealing with a scarce resource, it is considered that this is a very realistic Bill. I beg to move the first reading."

MR MONK seconded.

The Motion was put and carried, and the Bill was read a first time.

After a further Motion moved and carried the Bill was read a second time.

The Bill was then taken through the Committee stage without amendment and after Council had resumed, was read a third time and passed.

THE CUSTOMS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1975

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, this Bill proposes to remove any preferential content in our external customs tariff. It is a mere consequential development out of the Colony's association with the European Economic Community. The effect now, and in the foreseeable future, is nil; and the preferences we have had in our tariff for the past years have in fact been of no significance. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill."

MR. PITALUGA seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

THE CHIEF SECRETARY then moved that the Bill be read a second time. MR. PITALUGA seconded and the Motion was carried.

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I know nothing about the workings and so forth of this sort of thing, but I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable Members to the fact that there is no date on this Bill."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"The purpose is that if the Bill is passed it shall be brought into force with immediate effect."

The Bill was then read a second time.

The Council went into Committee. The Bill was considered and passed without amendment.

Council resumed, and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, during the review of the Estimates, the Select Committee considered the customs import duty proposals incorporated in the Budget. The Committee did not agree on any increase in the duty on beer but the general consensus of opinion is that the duty on spirits should be increased from £8.25 per gallon to £9.60, which is an increase of 22½p per bottle. It was agreed that the proposed duty increases on wines of approximately 50% should be accepted; and also that the proposals to increase the duties on cigars, cigarettes and tobacco should be accepted. It was agreed that the tax on matches should be abolished. In consequence of this I beg to move the following Resolution; Be it resolved, in exercise of the powers conferred by Section 5 of the Customs Ordinance, that the Customs Order be amended by deleting paragraph 2 and substituting the following:-

/2. The following

2. The following import duties of customs shall be payable:-

On beer, ale, perry, porter, spruce, cider and stout of all kinds, per gallon 11p.

On spirits - whisky, gin, rum, brandy and other spirituous liquors and liqueurs, per gallon £9.60

On wines - still wines, sparkling wines, vermouth, champagne, sherry and port per gallon 60p., per dozen litres £1.80., per dozen quarts £1.32., per dozen pints or cans of 350 cc 66p.

On tobacco -
(a) Cigars, per lb £3.50; (b) Cigarettes, per lb £2.40;
(c) tobacco, per lb £2.00.

I also lay on the Table the Certificate of Urgency."

The Motion was seconded and carried.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

CHIEF SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"I beg to second the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"The Motion is that this House stands adjourned and here I must quarrel with the Latin pronunciation of the Chief Secretary I would prefer to say sine die. Does any Honourable Member wish to speak?"

MR. BLAKE

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I should like, in speaking to this Motion, to draw the Council's attention once again to the question I submitted for written reply, with regard to the introduction of a Prices and Incomes Board and policy. There was a certain amount of reluctance on the part of the Financial Secretary to accept that this might be a good thing. I think that perhaps it depends on the colour of one's politics how one reaches the opinion. But I still believe that if the Colony faces financial difficulties in the future, this could perhaps be a tool in our armoury for fighting inflation, and I would therefore urge Council to think again about the possibility of such a proposal. Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Blake."

MR. MONK

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I entirely agree with what the Honourable Member on my right has to say on that matter; but on other matters, as everyone knows, we have a considerable degree of difference in even maintaining our revenue, or will have next year, never mind increasing it.

/I

I would like to bring forward again an idea which I have spoken about several times for producing revenue. So far I have been talked out of court on this point on each occasion. However, I would like to suggest that we seriously examine the possibility of starting a state lottery. I know some people say that it is not the thing for upright and true Britishers to do, but lots of countries do it and lots of upright countries with Britishers such as Australia and other territories. I think we should give it very serious examination because if there is any revenue in that sort of thing for us, I think we shall need it. I'm very pleased that a serious study is going to be undertaken concerning our whole fiscal arrangements with a view to possibly altering our forms of taxation and personal allowances and adopting measures which may possibly encourage overseas investment, and encourage investment from residents here. I always feel it is a curious anomaly in our thinking that since we are outside the Scheduled Territories Area, and apparently under Her Majesty's Treasury regulations, not allowed to accept investment from the United Kingdom unless it conforms with extremely strict criteria. We are nevertheless free to accept investment from anywhere else in the World, and we have been refusing just that sort of investment. While I realise that there are, in certain cases, other considerations with regard to this sort of investment, I don't think that has applied in every case and we ought to regulate our thinking on the subject; and either endeavour to get into the Scheduled Territories Area or endeavour to make use of the fact that we are outside it properly. Your Excellency, I would like to support the Motion for adjournment."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Monk. Can I just refer to this interesting question of State Lotteries - that of course there is no State Lottery as such in Britain but the Premium Bond Scheme has many of the attributes of a state lottery, as I know to my profit."

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

"Your Excellency, there is just one small point that I would like to make here, and this is the point that Mr. Blake has referred to. I am not opposed to the Prices and Incomes Board at all. I considered that unless there was some real justification for it in the way of controlling prices and bringing inflation under control generally, it might just add to bureaucracy of Government. However, I am quite flexible on this and I'm sure that Government will take another look at this matter. The other point which I would like also to support is the Honourable A.B. Monk's proposal for a State Lottery and that we should investigate the matter. I will do all in my power to see whether this is possible."

MR. LUXTON

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, following the review we've gone through with the Budget, we cut a little out. It remains to be seen whether it is a realistic Budget. I sincerely hope it is; and that during the course of the next 12 months this Council, or the following Council, won't have to re-vote another £102,000 by then. I sincerely hope that we've done a good job. A few charges have been increased this time. One of the things I would like to draw the public's attention to is the provision which exists for the Financial Secretary to remit fees in the case of need. He mentioned in his speech when introducing the Old Age Pensions Amendment Bill that our old people should be well cared for. Quite obviously with the level of pensions as they are at the moment, people who are living solely on their pension cannot be said to be well cared for. Some of the fees which are charged can be partly remitted by the Financial Secretary. They can, I think, in most cases, be wholly remitted by yourself, Sir. I am talking about those for telephones, the Box, rates and things like that. I would like to stress, there is, in my opinion, no shame in anyone applying for assistance when they can't afford it themselves. If they are not satisfied I do urge them to contact their Councillor. That's what we're there for.

/Financial

As to the future fiscal policy of these Islands, it would seem that we are getting away from the old conservative policy (and I spell conservative with a small 'c' there for the benefit of some of our Honourable Friends!) In fact, those friends seem to be more conservative than socialist because generally in the past it has been considered that there was something indecent about holding lotteries, having tax havens and so on and so forth. I do support my Honourable Friend with his idea of a lottery, as I always have done, and I do urge the administration to explore every possibility.

One other point is what the Financial Secretary said in reply to the supplementary question I brought up about the taxation on married couples - joint taxation - I hadn't realised what a can of worms I was dipping into when I raised this! Since then I've been bombarded with facts and figures on this subject and I do urge the Financial Secretary to take a quick look at the provision for taxation of married couples. I beg to support the Motion."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Luxton. I may say, on a personal note, that I have on a number of occasions mentioned to Councillors that people in need, or elderly or disabled should certainly approach their Councillors for the remission of fees. This is entirely respectable and provision is made for it. I'm very much in sympathy with your views on the matter."

MR. MILLER

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I have very little to say, actually, but I hope the general public doesn't think from that last sentence of my Honourable Friend's remarks in connection with the taxation of married people, that he is encouraging them to live in sin, because I know he doesn't really mean that, although we know that that is cheaper! Apart from that, I'm a little disheartened at the way in which we have had to approach fiscal matters this year. This taxation thing, we've added some small amounts but they're big enough to annoy some people. The same thing is obviously going to happen again next year, except that those small amounts may have to be a little bit bigger. I'm a little worried as I was one who didn't like very much the fact that we have increased, for instance, the taxation on whisky but not on beer. The next Council might be forced to put on a big one on beer next time, which will be far from popular. These things are just sort of keeping the wolf away from the door if one looks ahead a few years and it is something we should bear in mind all the time. In the course of a speech a few days ago I drew attention to what could happen to us or what our better position would be if certain things happened from some other part of the World. I don't want to stress it again now, because I do accept the fact that as you have told some of us, things are happening. I accept that, but we've got to keep it firmly in mind that that is really our only final salvation. We're not going to keep the wolf always from the door just by sticking 2p on this and 4p on something else."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Miller."

MR. PITALUGA

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members, as one of the last to rise to support the Motion for Adjournment, I too would like to comment briefly on our budgetary work of the last few days. We spent many hours trying to cut expenditure, and not so many hours, but equally hard work while we were on them, trying to increase revenue. Our head is above water for the moment, but we're looking ahead to try to keep it there and, as I'm sure everyone will fully understand, discussions on these matters cover a very wide range of things, apart from the subject which immediately concerns Council at the time, and one hears things like - "well, this estimate is padded, this one looks o.k." and so on. I would say from my experience that our Heads of Departments don't pad their estimates any more. I think possibly they were padded some years ago because the money was there and it seemed to be coming in steadily without much fluctuation, but estimates generally are not now padded. Heads of Departments ask for what they feel their departments need, and I think they do so, in the main, quite conscientiously, and I compliment them on this. Therefore, we found it not easy to cut down estimates for expenditure and we've got to look to this in the future, because in order to save this Colony heavy expenditure when we cannot very much control our income, we may well have to think about cutting services. This is the alternative; and when we think about cutting services, we have to think in the context of the successful Motion of Mr. Monk which we've just passed - that we must take every step to find ways of encouraging people coming to these Islands, and, when they're here, keep them here. If we start cutting services people won't hang around for too long. They're obviously going to get fed up. There are many compensations in this place, but there are certain disadvantages. Once you cut services you add to the disadvantages and people will take off again. I don't share Mr. Miller's view that just cutting a few pennies here and adding a few there will not keep us going in the long run, because I have a great deal of confidence in the future of wool. I think it will come back. It may not be able to support us entirely, but I certainly look forward to a future when it will bail us out yet again, as it has done in the past financial year or in the one which is presently under review. It is a hand-to-mouth type of existence but it is better than nothing if we can keep this place British and stay a very British Colony as we are. Thank you Sir."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you Mr. Pitaluga. May I congratulate you on your pun - the 'bailing out by wool'? I think that's very good."

/MR. PITALUGA

MR. PITALUGA

"It wasn't intended Your Excellency."

MR. BOWLES

"Your Excellency, Honourable Members. Well, on being the last one to rise, I wish to support the Motion for Adjournment, and I would like to repeat what Mr. Luxton said concerning the rate remission facilities for those people who are on low incomes. I think the phrase 'low incomes' is far better than the present one which we have in our Ordinance which is 'poverty'. I think that the ensuing Council, during the next year, should remove that word from the Ordinance and insert the words 'low income', which I think is much better; more honest and more suitable to our small community. I wish to support the Motion of Adjournment."

THE PRESIDENT

"Thank you very much Mr. Bowles for that compassionate plea."

CHIEF SECRETARY

"In winding up the Motion for Adjournment, Your Excellency, I find myself, quite appropriately harking back to the note of realism that you struck in your address to this sitting of Council and which I think has been carried through the whole of our deliberations during the past week. And if I could put a finger on the main point you made in your address, and which has come out so clearly, particularly in the speeches of my Honourable Friends immediately preceding me, it is one of realism; one of a cautious optimism. Not running ahead because we've had a good year, but looking forward and planning for the future when things may not be quite so buoyant as they have been during recent times. I think, perhaps, if one would want to look at one particular indicator of this, it is my Honourable Friend's mention of a Prices and Incomes Board. Clearly, and as he said, what motivated him in proposing this is that there are going to be problems in maintaining prices, and prices includes prices for labour. It is obvious that his intention was that Government should do its utmost to ensure that prices do not run too far ahead of wages, and this is a most laudable and sensible provision. I'm quite sure that the administration will go every inch of the way in trying to ensure that that position is held. It is particularly important at this particular time, when there is an artificial shortage of labour, but which may not always be so, may not last much longer than a year to 18 months.

And so, Sir, I find with pleasure I add my thanks to my Honourable Friends in thanking Your Excellency for your direction of this House during its recent sitting.

THE PRESIDENT

"I would very deeply like to express very sincerely my personal gratitude for your forbearance. I hope I've presided with efficiency and done things correctly. It's been 15 years since I sat in a Colonial Legislature. I've been 15 years in the diplomatic wilderness and it's a great honour of course for me to return to my colonial role; and if I may say so, things

/have things have been conducted here, I think, with great dignity and enormous efficiency, and I would like again to thank the Honourable Members, who laboured right through to very late hours, and - I don't know about the midnight oil, but certainly very late, and right through the weekend.

My personal thanks to you all.

The House stands adjourned accordingly."

The House then adjourned sine die.

No. 1

*Her Majesty's Ambassador at Brussels to the 15 May 1975.

Your Excellency,

I have the honour to refer to the Treaty between the United Kingdom and Belgium for the Mutual Surrender of Fugitive Criminals signed at Brussels on 29 October 1901 as supplemented and amended by the Conventions signed at London on 5 March 1907 and 3 March 1911.

“30. Offences against the laws relating to dangerous drugs, including attempts to commit such offences where these attempts are punishable by the laws of both countries.”

If the foregoing proposal is acceptable to the Government of Belgium, I have the honour to suggest that the present Note, together with Your Excellency's reply to that effect, shall constitute an Agreement between the United Kingdom and Belgium, which shall enter into force two months after the date of your reply.

"J'ai l'honneur de me référer au Traité entre le Royaume-Uni et la Belgique pour l'extradition réciproque des criminels fugitifs, signé à Bruxelles le 29 octobre 1901, complété et modifié par les Conventions signées à Londres les 5 mars 1907 et 3 mars 1911.

'30. Infractions à la législation relative aux drogues nuisibles, y compris la tentative de commettre de telles infractions lorsqu'elle est punie par la législation des deux pays.'

Si le Gouvernement belge accepte la proposition que précède, j'ai également l'honneur de proposer que la présente note ainsi que la réponse de Votre Excellence à cet effet, constitueront un accord entre le Royaume-Uni et la Belgique, qui entrera en vigueur deux mois après la date de Sa réponse."

En réponse, J'ai l'honneur d'informer Votre Excellence que le Gouvernement belge accepte la proposition qui précède et que par conséquent il marque son accord pour que l'Office de Votre Excellence et la présente réponse constituent un accord entre la Belgique et le Royaume-Uni, qui entrera en vigueur le 15 juillet 1975.

The Commissioner of Income Tax Stanley, Falkland Islands

Made by the Governor in Council on the 10th day of December 1975.

R. BROWNING,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

Ref. INC/10/1.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government, the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd., and the General Employees Union. The agreement shall be effective for a period of one year from the 1st January 1976 and shall apply to hourly paid employees in Stanley.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used. If however in any quarter the Index should exceed the average figure for the last four quarters by six points then the excess points will be taken into immediate account for the cost of living award. The payment in respect of the excess points will be adjusted as necessary, in future quarterly reviews of the cost of living.

N.B. When calculating the advance payment in excess of the first six points, $\frac{1}{2}$ p advance will be made in any case where the excess not already taken into account reaches one point.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised :—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

2. Prevailing Rates.

Class	Hourly Rate.
1. Tradesmen	78p
2. *Apprentices	1st year 51p
	2nd year 52½p
	3rd year 55p
	4th year 58p
	5th year 65p
3. Handymen	62½p to 70p according to ability.
4. Slaughtermen and tradesmen's mates	61½p
5. Lorry Drivers, including men tending stationary engines or boilers	62½p
6. Labourers	Hourly Rate.

	16-17 51½p
	17-18 55½p
	18 and over 61p

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 4p per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 4p to 7½p per hour according to the risk involved. This does not apply to work on properly erected scaffolding or on roofs where the work can be carried out from a position where the workman's feet are on a secured ladder.

(c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 15p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 1½p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 1½p per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 2½p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 40 hours per week made up as follows -

Monday to Friday - 7.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with Dinner break from noon till 1 p.m.

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 40 per week.

5. Overtime.

- (a) Overtime shall be paid for all hours worked outside normal working hours and overtime rates shall be as follows -

TIME AND A HALF.

- (i) Between the end of the normal day and midnight.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, provided that work did not start before 6 a.m.

DOUBLE TIME.

- (i) Between midnight and 6 a.m.
- (ii) From 6 a.m. to the start of the normal working day, if work commenced before 6 a.m.

Penalty on fraudulent use of licence.
1913 c.31 s.37.

14. If any person not being a licensed pilot falsely represents himself to be a licensed pilot, either by means of using a licence which he is not entitled to use or by any other means, he shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding £20.

Penalty on ordinary boat displaying pilot flag.
1913 c.31 s.42.

15. A pilot flag, or a flag so nearly resembling a pilot flag as to be likely to deceive, shall not be displayed on any ship or boat not having a licensed pilot on board, and, if any such flag is displayed on any such ship or boat, the master of that vessel shall, unless in the case of the display of a flag likely to deceive he proves that he had no intention to deceive, be liable for each offence to a fine not exceeding £50.

Penalty on pilot endangering ship, life or limb.
1913 c.31 s.46.

16. If any pilot, when piloting a ship, by wilful breach of duty or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness —

- (a) does any act tending to the immediate loss, destruction or serious damage of the ship, or tending immediately to endanger the life or limb of any person on board the ship; or
- (b) refuses or omits to do any lawful act proper and requisite to be done by him for preserving the ship from loss, destruction, or serious damage, or for preserving any person belonging to or on board the ship from danger to life or limb; that pilot shall in respect of each offence be liable to a fine not exceeding £100.

Penalty on person obtaining charge of a ship by misrepresentation.
1913 c.31 s.47.

17. If any person, by wilful misrepresentation of circumstances upon which the safety of a ship may depend, obtains, or endeavours to obtain, the charge of that ship, that person and every person procuring, abetting, or conniving at the commission of the offence shall, in addition to any liability for damages, be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding £100.

Offences by pilots.
1913 c.31 s.48.

18. (1) If a licensed pilot —

- (a) himself keeps, or is interested in keeping by any agent, servant, or other person, any premises licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquors, or sells or is interested in selling any intoxicating liquors or tobacco;
- (b) is in any way directly or indirectly concerned in any corrupt practices relating to ships, their tackle, furniture, cargoes, crews, or passengers, or to persons in distress at sea or by shipwreck, or to their moneys, goods, or chattels;

- (d) acts as pilot whilst suspended;
- (e) acts as a pilot when in a state of intoxication;
- (f) employs, or causes to be employed, on board any ship which he is piloting any boat, anchor, cable, or other store, matter, or thing beyond what is necessary for the service of that ship, with intent to enhance the expenses of pilotage for his own gain or for the gain of any other person;
- (g) refuses or wilfully delays, when not prevented by illness or other reasonable cause, to pilot any ship within the limits for which he is licensed, upon the signal for a pilot being made by that ship, or upon being required to do so by the master, owner, agent, or consignee thereof, or by the Chief Secretary;

- (h) unnecessarily cuts or slips, or causes to be cut or slipped any cable belonging to any ship;
- (i) refuses, otherwise than on reasonable ground of danger to the ship, when requested by the master, to conduct the ship which he is piloting into any port or place within the limits for which he is licensed; or
- (j) quits the ship, which he is piloting, before the service for which he was engaged has been performed and without the consent of the master of the ship; that pilot shall, in addition to any liability for damages, be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding £100.

(2) If any person procures, aids, abets, or connives at the commission of any offence under this section, he shall, in addition to any liability for damages, be liable to a fine not exceeding £100.

19. (1) The following persons shall be liable to pay pilotage dues for any ship for which the services of a licensed pilot are obtained, namely —

Recovery of pilotage dues.
1913 c.31 s.49.

- (a) the owner or master;
- (b) as to pilotage inwards, such consignees or agents as have paid or made themselves liable to pay any other charge on account of the ship in the port of her arrival or discharge;
- (c) as to pilotage outwards, such consignees or agents as have paid or made themselves liable to pay any other charge on account of the ship in the port of her departure; and those dues may be recovered in the same manner as fines or like amount under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, but that recovery shall not take place until a previous demand has been made in writing.

(2) Any consignee or agent (not being the owner or master of the ship) who is hereby made liable for the payment of pilotage dues in respect of any ship may, out of any moneys received by him on account of that ship or belonging to the owner thereof, retain the amount of all dues paid by him, together with any reasonable expenses he may have incurred by reason of the payment of the dues or his liability to pay the dues.

20. A licensed pilot shall not demand or receive, and a master shall not offer or pay to any licensed pilot, dues in respect of pilotage services at any other rates, whether greater or less, than the rates which may be demanded by law, and, if a pilot or master acts in contravention of this Ordinance, he shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding £10.

Receiving or offering improper rates of pilotage.
1913 c.31 s.50.

21. If any boat or ship, having on board a licensed pilot, leads any ship which has not a licensed pilot on board when the last-mentioned ship cannot, from particular circumstances, be boarded, the pilot so leading the last-mentioned ship shall be entitled to the full pilotage rate for the distance run as if he had actually been on board and had charge of that ship.

Pilotage rate for leading ship.
1913 c.31 s.51.

22. (1) A licensed pilot shall, when an accident occurs while a ship is being piloted by him, report the accident to the Chief Secretary, orally forthwith and in writing within twenty-four hours.

Accidents to ships under pilotage to be reported.

(2) Any person who contravenes subsection (1) shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding £100.

23. Nothing in this Ordinance shall be deemed to make the employment of any pilot within the waters of the Colony compulsory.

Pilotage not compulsory.

Power of the Governor in Council to make rules.
1913 c.31 s.17.

24. The Governor in Council may make rules providing for all or any of the following matters —

- (a) determine the qualification in respect of age, physical fitness, time of service, local knowledge, skill, character, and otherwise to be required from persons applying to be licensed by the Chief Secretary as pilots, provide for the examination of such persons, and fix the term for which a licence is to be in force, and the conditions under which a licence may be renewed; and
- (b) fix the limit (if any) on the number of pilots to be licensed, and provide for the method in which and the conditions under which the list of pilots is to be filled up; and
- (c) provide generally for the good government of pilots licensed by the Chief Secretary, and in particular for ensuring their good conduct and constant attendance to and effectual performance of their duties, whether at sea or on shore; and
- (d) provide for the punishment of any breach of any rule made for the good government of licensed pilots by the infliction of fines not exceeding £20 (to be recoverable as fines are recoverable under the Merchant Shipping Acts), without prejudice to the powers under this Ordinance to revoke or suspend the licence in the case of any such breach of rules; and
- (e) fix the rates of payments to be made in respect of the services of a licensed pilot and provide for the collection of pilotage dues; and
- (f) provide, if and so far as it appears to the Governor in Council to be generally desired by the pilots, for bonds (the penalty of which shall not in any case exceed £100) being given by pilots for the purpose of the provisions of this Ordinance limiting pilots' liability; and
- (g) empowering the Chief Secretary to give directions to licensed pilots; and
- (h) provide for the better carrying out of this Ordinance.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

It has been found to be expedient to enact local legislation to provide for and regulate the employment of pilots rather than rely upon the provisions of the Pilotage Act 1913 which has proved cumbersome to apply locally in that they go far beyond the requirements of the Colony.

Falkland Islands Oil Pollution (Compulsory Insurance)
Regulations 1976

No. 1 of 1976.

N. A. I. FRENCH,
Governor.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 10 (1) and (4) and section 11 (3) of the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) Act 1971, as applied to the Falkland Islands by the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Falkland Islands) Order 1975, the Governor has made the following Regulations —

(1971 c. 59)
(S.I. 1975/2169)

1. (1) These Regulations may be cited as the Falkland Islands, Oil Pollution (Compulsory Insurance) Regulations 1976 and shall come into operation on the 1st day of April 1976.

Citation, commencement and interpretation.

(2) In these Regulations, unless the context otherwise requires —

“certificate” means a document showing that there is in force in respect of a ship to which section 10 (2) of the Act applies a contract of insurance or other security such as is mentioned in that subsection;

“Convention country” has the meaning assigned to it in section 19 (1) of the Act.

(3) The Interpretation Act 1889 with the necessary adaptations, shall apply, for the interpretation of these Regulations and otherwise in relation thereto as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

(1889 c. 63)

2. For the purposes of section 10 (1) of the Act (requirements as to compulsory insurance against liability for oil pollution) “persistent oil” means any of the following —

Definition of “persistent oil”.

(a) hydrocarbon mineral oils whether crude or distilled, including crude coal tar and the oily residue of tank cleaning operations necessitated by the carriage of any such oils, but excluding those oils which consist wholly of distillate fractions of which more than 50 per cent. by volume distil at 340° centigrade when tested by the “American Society for Testing and Materials Specification D86/67” in the case of oils derived from petroleum and at 350° centigrade in the case of oils derived from coal tar;

(b) residual oil, consisting of mineral hydrocarbons comprising the residues of the process of distilling and/or refining crude petroleum, and any mixture containing such residual oil;

(c) whale oil.

3. (1) Subject to paragraph (3) below, certificates for ships registered in any country which is not a Convention country shall be recognised for the purposes of section 10 (3) (c) of the Act (authorities by whom a certificate must be issued) if issued by or under the authority of the government of any of the following countries, namely —

Recognition of certificates.

Denmark
France
Netherlands
Norway
Spain
Sweden
United Kingdom.

(2) Subject to paragraph (3) below, a certificate for a ship registered in any of the following countries, namely —

Australia
Austria
Belgium
Canada
Finland
Federal Republic of Germany
Greece
Iceland
Republic of Ireland
Italy
Japan
Luxembourg
New Zealand
Portugal
Switzerland
Turkey
United States of America

shall be recognised for the purposes of the said section 10 (3) (c) if issued by or under the authority of the government of the country specified above in which that ship is registered.

(3) Where a ship such as is mentioned in paragraph (1) or (2) above is engaged on a Falkland Islands voyage, a certificate relating to that ship shall not, by virtue of either of those paragraphs, be recognised for the purposes of section 10 (3) (c) of the Act unless the certificate has, and is expressed to have, as the period of its validity a period ending not earlier than the completion of that Falkland Islands voyage.

For the purposes of this paragraph, "Falkland Islands voyage" means any voyage by a ship —

- (a) from a port in the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies or a terminal in the territorial sea of the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies to another such port or terminal; or
- (b) from a place outside the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies to a port in the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies or a terminal in the territorial sea of the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies; or
- (c) from a port in the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies or a terminal in the territorial sea of the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies to a place outside the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies and the reference to the duration of such a voyage shall be taken as comprising the whole of any period during which the ship is engaged in that voyage, including any time during which, in connection with the voyage, it is in a port in the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies or at a terminal in the territorial sea of the Falkland Islands or its Dependencies.

Fee for certificates.

4. The fee to be paid on application for a certificate to be issued by the Governor under section 11 of the Act shall be £12.

Cancellation and delivery up of certificates.

5. (1) Where at any time while a certificate under section 11 of the Act is in force the person to whom the certificate has been issued ceases to be the owner of the ship to which the certificate relates, he shall forthwith deliver up the certificate to the Governor and in such a case the certificate shall be cancelled by the Governor.

(2) Where at any time while a certificate under the said section 11 is in force it is established in any legal proceedings that the contract of insurance or other security in respect of which the certificate was issued is or may be treated as invalid, the certificate may be cancelled by the Governor and if so cancelled shall on demand forthwith be delivered up to him by the person to whom it was issued.

(3) Where at any time while a certificate under the said section 11 is in force circumstances arise in relation to the insurer or guarantor named in the certificate (or, where more than one is so named, to any of them) such that if the certificate were applied for at that time, the Governor would be entitled to refuse the application under subsection (2) of that section (power to refuse a certificate where there is a doubt whether an insurer will be able to meet his insurance obligations), the certificate may be cancelled by the Governor and if so cancelled shall on demand forthwith be delivered up to him by the person to whom it was issued.

By Command,

D. R. MORRISON,

Acting Chief Secretary.

30th March 1976.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

These Regulations make provision with respect to certificates of insurance against liability for oil pollution damage caused by ships, as provided for by the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) Act 1971 (which gives effect to the International Convention on Civil Liability for Oil Pollution Damage signed in Brussels in 1969). "Persistent oil" is defined for the purposes of section 10 (1) of the Act (Regulation 2). The Regulations provide for the recognition of certificates for ships registered in non-Convention countries (that is, countries in respect of which that Convention is not in force) where such certificates are issued by certain other countries (Regulation 3). Provision is made for the fee (£12) payable on an application for a certificate issued by the Governor under section 11 of the Act (that is, for ships registered in the Falkland Islands - Regulation 4) and for the circumstances in which certificates issued by the Governor may be cancelled by him and their delivery up required (Regulation 5).

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held 10th-23rd June 1975, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen,

My first, and agreeable words are to welcome alongside the experienced old hands on Council, the appearance of our new Honourable Members Smith, Bound and Hadden. Another new face in the House is Mr Slater, Deputy Governor Designate, who takes his seat as an Extraordinary, non-voting Member. I feel sure also that you would wish to join me in a tribute to members of the last Council who are no longer on this side of the Bar, and in particular the Honourable Sydney Miller, whose service to the Colony, not only on Executive and Legislative Councils but in many other spheres in both town and Camp, constitutes a truly remarkable record ranging over more than 40 years. Generous recognition of their hard work is also owed to Councillors, or rather former Councillors, Pitaluga and Luxton.

Unstinted thanks must go to Mr Hirtle's signal achievement as Chief Elections Officer in ensuring that the recent General Election was held almost without a hitch. His conduct of the whole operation was marked by a calm competence.

When the last Council adjourned sine die, its life finally ended on 28 February of this year, it was the general expectation that the Council now convened would be governed by the Constitutional amendments proposed by the Select Committee, which laboured so well and diligently, and submitted its Report, through me, to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs. However, for reasons which should now be well known, it was with understandable disappointment that the recent General Election was in fact held under the existing Constitution.

Without rehearsing the reasons for the delay in implementation, I would urge that the postponement should not be regarded as a serious set-back to the majority wish for a more representative legislature. As has already been announced publicly, the delay was caused partly by the need to ensure that all the Constitutional amendments, which involve a great deal of complicated legal drafting and legislation in the United Kingdom, should be combined in a single "package". Again, I think it is well understood that, apart from the Report of the Select Committee, it is likely that the recommendations of Lord Shackleton's Economic Survey may well necessitate some further changes to our Constitution, and they are better taken together than in two, or possibly more, amending Ordinances.

All this said, I should like to stress that the implementation of the Select Committee's recommendations will not in practice entail anything particularly startling or revolutionary, in the best sense of that term. By far the most important changes are the reduction in the voting age from 21 to 18, with its healthy expansion of the electorate, and the replacement of the two independent members, who are at present nominated by the Governor, by elected representatives. However, I cannot emphasise too strongly that the members nominated by the Governor are truly independent. I would NOT consider (and I believe this is true of my predecessors, at least those of recent years) ... I would NOT consider issuing directives, or otherwise bring pressure upon such independent members to vote, or conduct themselves in the transaction of the Colony's affairs in order to please me, or meet the wishes of Her Majesty's Government. I declare, therefore, with the utmost confidence, that the two independent members who sit here in Council today will, with wholehearted personal integrity, live up to the requirements of their role without fear of me, or favour by me or any other authority.

/by the

I will not attempt to predict exactly when the Constitutional amendments will be enacted here, since this must necessarily follow the passage of the appropriate measures by the British Government. But, since we know that the Report of the Select Committee has been approved by Her Majesty's Government, it would be reasonable to expect that another General Election will be held under the new Constitution during the next twelve months or so. Meanwhile the Council as at present constituted has plenty to keep it busy, including the all-important Budget. I hope, therefore, that you will go along with my view that we can most efficiently transact our business by putting Constitutional issues on one side, and addressing ourselves to the practical and pressing affairs on the agenda.

We are all keenly aware that overriding all else as we look towards the future is the Report of Lord Shackleton's Economic Survey, and, beyond that, the decisions of the British Government on the implementation of whatever may be the Report's recommendations. I cannot anticipate publication, but it is now general knowledge that the Report, after some delay, which reflects the complexity of the task and the immense effort and care which have gone into its preparation rather than any leisureliness, is in the hands of the printers and may, with some confidence, be expected to appear at the end of this month. Most thoughtful people will, I think, take the view that this Report, and the British Government's decisions on it, will almost certainly amount to a great watershed in the life of the Colony.

Before I leave the subject of the Shackleton Report and turn to review the events of the past year and the more conventional aspects of our economy and public affairs as we see them ahead, I have a duty to remind you firmly that the work of Lord Shackleton's Economic Survey was wholly independent of Her Majesty's Government and was in no way swayed by official policies. Clearly it is likely to have implications of the highest importance, both for the Colony's development programme and, bound up inextricably with this, for the workaday administration of Government. Because of this, the Budget Session of the Legislature, on which we are now embarked, will be beset by more than the usual quota of question marks until the contents of the Report are published and the British Government's response is made known.

Consciousness of the impending appearance of the Shackleton Report makes the Financial Secretary's carefully calculated prophecies even more than usually hazardous. You will be hearing from him later when he speaks about the salient features of the economy and outlines his proposals for the Colony's housekeeping during the coming financial year. It would not be right, therefore, for me to encroach too far on his pastures, but a few generalisations and underscoring of major aspects may be helpful.

First, some good news. The surplus for the current financial year which will soon end is estimated at £281,000, or some £52,000 more than was expected. This is despite a revised expenditure estimate of £58,000 higher than the original figure. However, the increase is largely attributable to an inescapable commitment. This was the emergency requirement during the year, brought home to us all too dramatically by the disastrous Davis Street fire, to completely re-equip the Fire Brigade with modern and efficient gear. Other costly items included spare parts for the Beaver aircraft and the essential build-up of our reserves of aviation fuel.

Against this, revenue is expected to yield over £110,000 more than the original estimate, largely through a windfall from the surplus income of the Savings Bank.

What all this adds up to in simple terms is that the ordinary reserves of the Colony should exceed half a million pounds at the start of the new fiscal year on 1 July. Revenue from the record price obtained for the 1973/74 wool clip accounts for most of this substantial improvement. However, new revenue raising measures introduced during the past four years have also contributed to the healthier state of our reserves.

I wish I could report so cheerfully about the coming year, but I am sorry to tell you that a deficit of £83,000 is forecast. In round figures, total expenditure is estimated at £1,126,000 and revenue at £1,043,000.

A major item on the expenditure side provides for the operational costs of the Cape Pembroke airport. And one which looms large in the Development Sector is £36,800 for the new Radio Telephone network. The full implementation of the project will of course depend upon the results of the pilot scheme.

Having touched on the broad aspects of the economy and our purse-strings, this would seem to be the right point at which to tack on a few snippets which have a bearing on our trade and income.

Sheep and wool remain paramount of course, and the industry has weathered a far from easy year of depressed prices and labour shortages with its traditional resilience and talent for improvisation. Many visitors have commented with admiration on the versatility of the typical Camp worker. All town residents will, I think, wish to join with me in acclaiming the efforts, of labour and management alike, in keeping our economy on a sound base.

At the end of the last financial year the Government Savings Bank had some 1,900 depositors with over £1,332,000 to their credit.

Tourism has been on a small scale but generally of a specialised and selective nature, attracting naturalists, photographers and artists from many countries. The "Lindblad Explorer's" high quality operation was particularly welcome.

Our stamp issues have preserved the universal high esteem in which they are held and about £45,000 is expected to accrue from the three recent commemorative issues of Heraldic Arms, New Coinage and Sheep Farming. The present definitive Flower issue is to be replaced later this year, or possibly early in 1977, by one depicting the whole fascinating range of ships, from the small sailers of 1842 up to RMS Darwin, which have carried the mails. We have high hopes that the designs will be a resounding success: the first proofs are superb.

Nor must we forget the harvest from our successful coinage issue. It brought in over £12,700 and there is more to come.

It is sometimes said, usually by those with little or no knowledge of the complexity and practicalities of the Colony's administration, that we have a swollen and cumbersome bureaucracy. Although it is clearly impossible to achieve a perfect and consistent equilibrium in the distribution of duties and responsibilities, I hold firmly to the view that, far from being inflated, the Secretariat, in particular, and most Government Departments labour under serious disadvantages of staff shortages and lack of continuity. It must not be forgotten that the Colony's services are relatively sophisticated for so small a community, and because the population is spread over a great expanse of land and sea much official business is thereby complicated and made costly in terms both of time and money. We are also having to face up now to paying the price for past neglect of maintenance of much essential plant, and timely replacement of equipment.

I turn now to a few highlights of Departmental activities.

Although the Police Force has been seriously depleted by resignations, illness, and overseas leave, the small strength, including the Colony's first Policewoman and the five Specials, have displayed a most heartening energy and dedication in performing their duties. I am happy to announce that two Police Officers, a Superintendent and a Sergeant, have been recruited from Scotland under Technical Assistance terms. After their arrival, soon we hope, it is intended that they should lead and instruct local members of the Force.

We always expect the best from the Air Service, and, once again, while it has put a lot of us down, it has certainly not let down anyone, or its own reputation which was enhanced by its remarkable performance during Lord Shackleton's survey when, in January alone, 180 flying hours were logged and over 680 passengers carried. The smooth conduct of the General Election in May also owed much to the Service's prowess. The replacement of the present Beavers is receiving urgent attention.

For the first time in several years the Medical Department had its full quota of three doctors. However, difficulty persists in the recruitment of nurses and ancillary staff. Camp medical visits have more than doubled compared with the two previous years. The Colony's first Social Worker arrived and has already proved the worth of the appointment.

The school population remains stable at something over 300, and on the whole the staffing position is satisfactory, but a teacher shortage is likely this winter, particularly in the Camp and possibly also at Darwin.

The Ministry of Overseas Development Book Presentation Programme has made the establishment of a library/resources centre in Stanley a practical proposition. If achieved, this should also facilitate future curriculum development, and help education in the Camp.

Mr Stuart Booth retired after 25 years of sterling service to education in the Colony, and, happily, as you know, has decided to live here. But not, I am sure, to rest on his laurels.

Because of the perennial staff shortage and tight finance, the upkeep of buildings and the repair of the Stanley roads continue to be major headaches, as do the maintenance of the aged official transport and the water filtration plant.

The Grassland Trials Unit continues to make good progress in its investigations of vegetation and livestock with the long term object of improving our farming systems. Two large scale experiments are being carried out at Darwin and Salvador to measure the effects in the Falklands of a two-pasture system developed in the UK. Work also continues on the eradication of live-stock diseases, the improvement of grass and vegetation and investigation into the effects of geese on sheep pastures.

Government is now giving every possible encouragement to Falkland Islanders, and other career makers who are now well identified with the Colony through long residence, by training courses both here and overseas. For example, it is planned to train two local candidates as pilots for the Air Service, and another two as Aircraft Mechanics. A local recruit is being sought for legal training. One Islander is at present being instructed in Airport Control in Britain to prepare him for his future key appointment at the Cape Pembroke airport. An officer who attended a course in Britain recently will be appointed to act as Deputy Financial Secretary.

The Fire Brigade has been greatly improved, largely through devoted and competent leadership, and you do not need me to tell you how vital a service it is in a gale swept town like Stanley. The Brigade's re-equipment includes not only a large quantity of high quality hoses, but breathing apparatus and pumps.

/re-equipment

The Defence Force has been re-equipped with modern hand weapons, and recently two senior NCCs were promoted to Second Lieutenants. The morale of the Force is markedly high and there has been a rewarding upsurge in recruitment. It is probably true to say that relations with the Royal Marines have never been better, and this also applies to the Marines' links with the people of the Islands as a whole.

That old friend, HMS "Endurance" was a most welcome visitor during the season, as was HMS "Chichester", who has just left us after a stay well filled with social and sporting activities.

One special project in which I have a close personal interest, and which I commend to the public for generous and full support, is the swimming pool. Funds for the building of the pool have been boosted by the splendid gift of £2,000 from the Great Britain Project in Bristol. We are also hopeful that a grant of £10,000 will be forthcoming from the European Community Development Fund. If all these hopes are fulfilled and further fund-raising projects which are envisaged are successful, it is realistic to suppose that a start will be made on the pool during the next 12 months.

We owe a special vote of thanks to Messrs Ashfield and Thompson of Rendell, Palmer and Tritton for volunteering their genial, and expert, honorary assistance in the task of preparing drawings and estimates of quantities for the project.

Government has enjoyed able and cordial support from the Falkland Islands Company, and altogether the relationship can fairly be described as friendly and mutually helpful.

I bestow a heartfelt accolade on the late Captain Thain of MV "Monsunen" for his remarkable display of cool, professional skill in replenishing our Avgas supplies when they had fallen to a dangerously low ebb.

Few duties have given me greater pleasure than the formal presentation of the insignia of CBE and MBE to the Deputy Chief Secretary, Mr Morrison, and the Head Government Printer, Mr King, respectively. These richly deserved awards were conferred upon them in the New Year Honours.

A significant, but possibly undervalued, development was the Colony's attainment of full membership of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association. You will recall the successful visit paid by two members of the UK branch, Sir John Gilmour and Dr Colin Phipps. But the Falklands' own emissary, in the person of the Honourable Mr Blake, most ably assisted (at their own expense) by a charming colleague, who also happened to be his wife, to the CPA conference in New Delhi last October, also performed a great diplomatic service, in the widest sense, for the Colony. It is envisaged that this success should be followed up by sending a representative to the next CPA conference in Mauritius towards the end of this year.

/I would

I would emphasise that these gatherings offer invaluable opportunities to put, and keep, the Falklands on the map, and generally to win friends and influence people. But they are not a joy-ride for any representative: a great deal of hard work is involved.

In the field of external affairs the past year has been an eventful, and at times almost too exciting, a chapter for the Colony. However, I should like to preface what I am about to say about them with a reminder that it is all too easy to forget that the British Government retains complete responsibility for the conduct of our external affairs and defence. Although we are justifiably proud that, as a Crown Colony, we are virtually self-governing in domestic matters, Her Majesty's Government carry an onerous burden in discharging its over-riding responsibility for our external affairs. This burden, I can say from personal experience, occupies a vastly disproportionate amount of Ministerial and official time in London, at the United Nations, and in other multinational bodies, precisely because, through no fault of ours, or H.M.G.'s, the status of the Falklands has become an issue to be debated and contested on the international stage. It is vital that we should never lose sight of this crucial truth, because, to a remarkable degree, almost all our domestic problems of any substance are permeated by considerations which stem from, or relate to, the conduct of our external affairs. Thus inevitably our own scope for initiative or manoeuvre is often circumscribed because a clear cut distinction between "domestic" and "external" is impossible.

We have shared during the past 12 months the stress and anxieties created by such occurrences as the unauthorised overflights which began last November, the opposition to the Economic Survey led by Lord Shackleton, and the denial of transit facilities to the Team, the withdrawal of the British Ambassador from Buenos Aires, the totally unjustifiable armed attack on the Royal Research Ship "Shackleton", and the dismaying increase in air fares between here and Argentina. You will all have heard during the last few hours of the substantial reduction in the fare between here and Buenos Aires, but nevertheless the increase is still, as I said, a dismaying one. You have been assured by me personally, through numerous Government announcements, and by the broadcasting of Parliamentary Questions and discussions about Falklands matters in Westminster, that these crises and incidents have been pursued or countered vigorously by the British Government through all the appropriate channels, including our Embassy in Buenos Aires.

You will, I hope, have grasped from this that I do not underestimate in any way the worries which these alarms and adversities have created. But I think it would be wrong not to offset them by recalling some of the more encouraging features of our relations with the Argentine people, especially with those who live and work alongside us. For us in Stanley, and I include everyone engaged in the construction of the airfield, the day to day contacts, notably with LADE and successively the work forces engaged on the construction of the YFF tank farm and the extension to the temporary airstrip, have demonstrated a high degree of mutual respect, tolerance and simple friendship. The STN ships have rendered a useful service in bringing in essential supplies, and relations with their personnel have been agreeably relaxed.

The Gas exhibition was successful in introducing propane gas and appliances to the Colony, but a more energetic follow-up is needed if this fuel is to compete seriously with peat.

I feel sure that we, for our part, would like to see such co-operation develop, particularly in the commercial sector, and we should not overlook the pleasing presence of the two lady Spanish teachers.

Against this highly compressed background, I would commend to you my own belief that in the foreseeable future the security and prosperity of this British Crown Colony will best be achieved by an evolving, harmonious and profitable relationship with our great neighbour on the South American continent. Ultimately success must spring from the hearts and minds of the human beings involved. But one of the keys to achieving this must lie in the efficient and imaginative conduct of British diplomacy and, as I remarked during my speech to Council a year ago, by its very nature much of what takes place in this sphere must be confidential or handled with great discretion. I would again urge you to be patient and place your trust in the integrity of the British Government and its will to implement, to the best of its ability, policies in the interests both of the people of these Islands and of its wider concerns in Latin America and indeed throughout much of the world. We can only hope and pray that the British Government's strivings for a stable, realistic understanding of the Colony's rights and aspirations will be matched by some comparable effort by Argentina to achieve a sound design for living with us as good friends and neighbours.

To finish, I should like to quote from my words of a year ago. I said then that the Colony required "Pride in the past, combined with flexibility, and imaginative and statesmanlike acceptance of the need for change".

Today I would add to this an urgent call for an end to the petty, outmoded divisions which still hamper our society. Never was the need greater for unity and a fresh breadth of vision.

The President then adjourned the meeting and directed that Council should resume when the Elected Member for West Falkland could be present - date and time to be announced.

Council re-assembled at 3.15 p.m. on Thursday 17 June 1976

PRESENT:

The Honourable the Chief Secretary (A J P Monk Esq)
The Honourable the Financial Secretary (H T Rowlands Esq)
The Honourable A B Monk JP (Elected Member for East Falkland)
The Honourable W E Bowles (First Elected Member for Stanley)
The Honourable John Smith (Second Elected Member for Stanley)
The Honourable H L Bound MBE JP (Nominated Independent Member)
The Honourable A B Hadden BEM (Nominated Independent Member)
G J A Slater Esq (Deputy Governor Designate - Extraordinary Member)

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH

After taking the prescribed oaths, Mr L G Blake JP duly took his seat as a Member of Council.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, Ladies and Gentlemen,

The Foreign and Commonwealth spokesman said at today's Press Conference that the Foreign and Commonwealth Secretary would receive a call this afternoon from Lord Shackleton, at which Lord Shackleton would present his Economic and Fiscal Report on the Falkland Islands. The spokesman added that Mr Crosland would first read the long and detailed Report carefully, and it would be published later. In reply to questions, the spokesman said that the Report had been commissioned by Her Majesty's Government at the request of the Executive Council of the Falkland Islands and it had been produced by a team of experts under the Chairmanship of Lord Shackleton. Though commissioned by Her Majesty's Government, the Report was that of Lord Shackleton and his team.

CHIEF SECRETARY

Following that most welcome announcement, Your Excellency, I had hoped at this point to be able to announce the election of the Executive Councillors by the Legislative Councillors. The inclement weather has unfortunately prevented this and, with your leave, I will announce this at the earliest convenient time.

The President

Thank you very much, Chief Secretary.

NOTION OF THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT
ON HIS ADDRESS TO COUNCIL

The Honourable L G Blake JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: In rising to speak to this Motion, Your Excellency, I would also like to take the opportunity to thank the electorate of the West Falkland for their support in the past and their confidence in my representing them for the future. And I would also like to join you in thanking a former member of Council who for twelve years represented a constituency I now represent - I mean Mr Sidney Miller - and also thank him and commend his vision in the pioneer work of land improvement. And while looking at the last Council, you may remember, Sir, that this is not the first time that I have delayed the proceedings. The same thing happened last year, and this rather highlights the remoteness under some conditions of the West Falkland and the outer islands. Many Members of Council, and perhaps the public, will be tired of hearing myself and others complaining about the lack of a doctor at Fox Bay, but it is only when you have flying conditions as we have had the last few days and several times this winter that one realises just how dangerous and what a risk we are running with our present communications system. On the last two occasions when a doctor's advice has been required late in the day, it has been next morning before anyone has been able to raise Stanley, and I can't urge sufficiently that the overhaul of our communications system should be given all impetus.

/I turn

I turn now to your comments on the budget, which reminds me that in actual fact this is the first session since our last budget meeting. We have only four or five fairly ordinary Bills, and that is our sum total of legislation for one year which, to my mind, looks rather like stagnation. But I was sorry to hear, Sir, you in your speech yesterday referred to the budget as the housekeeping of the Colony. I feel it isn't going to encourage anyone to stand for election as housekeepers, and our function, I believe, is more than looking after the purse-strings.

I welcome very much your comments on the new Constitution, and I hope as you do that before the next main budget session we will be a fully-elected Council under an enlarged suffrage, and I look forward to that day.

I would also like to echo your comments about the swimming pool and perhaps include in your congratulations the two local committee members, Mr Harold Rowlands and Mr Ray Clements, who managed to keep this scheme alive somehow and who are now bringing it back, we hope, to reasonable health and perhaps progress.

I must also thank you, Sir, for your comments and kind remarks about my wife and myself with regard to the New Delhi Conference. I can't stress enough how much I agree with you that explaining to members of our Commonwealth and other foreign governments our problems ourselves will, I feel, give us more support within the world. Her Majesty's Government has done a splendid job in putting our case, but she is the Colonial power and she isn't always viewed with much favour by some ex-colonial territories, but the importance of maintaining this link with the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association and attending whenever possible their conferences I feel is most important.

I welcomed also, Sir, your strong comments about Argentina's behaviour towards us and the British Government. The Military Government in Buenos Aires should realise that we are British and we want to remain so. It is the intention of our Colony to progress, with the aid of Her Majesty's Government and the guidance, we hope, of the Shackleton Report. If Argentina wishes to co-operate and join us in our progress, we would welcome it. But we will not be put off indefinitely by obstructionism, and if they won't join us, then we will go it alone with Britain, and to achieve this, our first step is to achieve a greater degree - a very much greater degree - of unity within the Colony.

Sir, I beg to support the Motion.

The Honourable A B Monk JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members; I am able to speak to the Motion, of course, because of the confidence the East Falkland people showed in me, and I thank them. I would like to associate myself with Your Excellency's views and compliments concerning Mr Sidney Miller. In speaking to this Motion I always find myself in somewhat of a dilemma. How, on the one hand, can one support a Motion of Thanks which implies acceptance of, and agreement with, what Your Excellency has said so eloquently and, on the other hand, criticise some of the statements.

/Regardless

Regardless of Your Excellency's opinions, I cannot agree that for the time being we forget about the Constitution. Sweeping things under the mat never cleaned the house. No thinking person can seriously accept that the delay in the implementation was due to the time needed to properly draft it; after all, we are told that Her Majesty's Government approved it; obviously they had a draft to approve. Similarly, I cannot accept that it was better delaying it until after the publication of the Shackleton Report. The Right Honourable Lord's brief in the first instance did not include consideration of the Constitution. However, bearing in mind the complexity and scope of the Right Honourable Lord's investigations, one would expect him to find that consideration of the Constitution was inevitable. The inescapable fact remains that a more democratic Council with an elected majority would have been a better body to consider the Shackleton Report's recommendations.

I accept Your Excellency's statement that nominated members will never be subject to pressure from the Administration designed to make them conform to Administration policy. Specially do I accept this in view of Your Excellency's choice. If we must have Nominated Members on Council, I cannot think of any two persons I would prefer to see than the Honourable A B Hadden and the Honourable H L Bound. From the one, I think we can expect valuable advice learned from his many years of association with all aspects of our rural life. We can expect, I think, from the other, the expertise that we have on occasions so sadly lacked in our deliberations with the Administration. Her Majesty's Government has seen fit to, as it were, award us with a Deputy Governor. It is rather difficult to tell a talented and likeable person sitting next to you that he is unnecessary. However, I would be dishonest if I said "Welcome to our undemocratic Council, Honourable British Government Nominated Member". We must hope the advice the Honourable Gordon Slater will give us will partially compensate for the disappointment in being given more officialdom instead of more democracy.

This leads me to the Administration, and Your Excellency's opinion that it is not top heavy. There is no statement made by Your Excellency with which I more profoundly disagree. If I may paraphrase a very famous English gentleman, never have so few been administered by so many and so expensively.

It is not my purpose to comment on the budget in detail until we debate that matter, but Your Excellency mentioned one or two figures: the taxation for the budget year 1975/76 derived from a year of record earnings by our industry and, as Your Excellency mentioned, we expect to have a surplus of somewhere around £280,000 which includes what Your Excellency termed "A windfall" of £140,000 coming from excess earnings of the Government Savings Bank. I cannot call it a windfall. It is a concealed tax on every depositor of the Government Savings Bank - a tax equal to approximately eight-tenths in the pound for every pound deposited. Why cannot the Government Savings Bank pay a going rate and tax it, which would be fair to all? I think it must be pointed out that if a private commercial bank were to set up here and pay a going rate of interest, the Government Savings Bank would be denuded of funds probably overnight. Without that piece of robbery, the surplus in the record year would only be about £140,000.

Without a similar piece of robbery next year, our estimated deficit would probably be £200,000.

In view of all the expenditure that we're going to be asked to approve, can we see anywhere any awareness of the need to curtail the Administration costs? Is there any attempt to do it in the next financial year? Not a bit of it. When 1,800 men, women and children are expected to produce £400,000 in wages, salaries, just to pay the salaries and wages of Government employees, then it is surely time to evaluate our needs. I hope Lord Shackleton has done his homework well. None of what I have said is intended as a criticism of individuals in Government departments. There are very able and dedicated people there. It is a criticism of the system: lack of control, if I may put it that way.

Your Excellency mentioned the Fire Brigade in connection with unexpected expenditure. Why wasn't the equipment there before? Why, because we have a fire, should someone look around to see if we have enough hoses or pumps or something? Surely our Administration is big enough to have seen that the Fire Brigade had the equipment and that it was shipped out in the ordinary way.

Your Excellency mentioned heavy and outmoded divisions in our society. As an elected Member for the East Falkland, the East Falkland electorate will always have my first consideration. Their interests will be paramount, but I've always tried to evaluate the interests of the Falklands as a whole with their particular interests. It is quite inevitable that certain things in Stanley have a priority in people's minds which they don't have to people in Camp, and vice versa. But there is one important division which has not been touched on, and that's the division between the Administration and the people, which I think is a growing division. If you're a tax-payer - none of us like paying tax, I don't - if you're a tax-payer, and you see your money being wasted on various projects; spent on vast staffs, you come to think "well, why should I bother about Government. They just spend the money - there's no control over it." I think unless Government - the Administration - is very careful, in the future there's going to be a wider gap, a wider division, between the people, the ordinary people, and the Administration - and that would be disastrous.

Your Excellency quite rightly commended the election and FIGAS for their great efforts. But it shouldn't be necessary - all that effort by FIGAS. All we want, surely, is a simple postal voting system for our outlying areas, and FIGAS's job would be far simpler. The pilots flew in the most dreadful weather to perform their task - long hours, a lot of money, and a lot of people's time was taken up by something that could be done through the post.

I am sorry if I seem to be unduly critical, but I think it's quite essential that one places on record one's opinions on these matters.

I would like to support the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency's Address.

The President

Thank you, Mr Monk. May I just, before going on to the next speech, without undue flippancy suggest that your use of the word 'robbery' was presumably placed within quotes? I hope so, otherwise charges would lie against various Honourable Members, and I'd be bound to take action on that. Thank you.

/otherwise

The Honourable W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: I would like to express, on behalf of my constituents, a very warm welcome to our new Members at this table, including the Honourable Gordon Slater on my right. It is equally pleasing to see two familiar previous Members opposite me, who I'm sure need no introduction.

It is a pleasure for me to express my gratitude - and indeed, that of this Council - to Mr Sid Miller for his long experience, his frank and open approach, and his firm attitude displayed during my first term on this Council.

Our new changes to the Constitution, although taking some time to be finally approved, I am sure will be welcomed by the public. We all trust its introduction will not take as long as its approval.

It is noted with interest the healthy sum of £140,000 surplus income from the Savings Bank, and I urge this Government to take every action to further increase the interest of depositors. A "Pay as You Earn" scheme has been suggested. I fully support this, both for the benefit of employees and that of the Administration.

I was very heartened to hear the commencement of the swimming pool may be due well within twelve months. I hope so.

The recruitment of staff to our Civil Service from locally-based applicants is a major contribution to our internal affairs and future stability. It would be good advice to any of our young people who want a good career to seriously consider the posts offered to applicants in our Civil Service.

We shall be considering at length the details of all departments concerning expenditure and revenue. As our population decreases, for some reason or other our expenditure increases. We continue to welcome specialised personnel who are recruited on Technical Assistance terms to help us out with our future planning, and I would personally like to mention the many VSO personnel, whose help does not go unnoticed.

To conclude, Sir, I applaud your plea for trust in Her Majesty's Government, coupled with administrative energy in all fields; and let us all remember that we are all Islanders; let us work together, as a unit, for the future welfare and stability of our people.

Sir, I would like to support the Motion.

The President

Thank you, Mr Bowles.

The Honourable J Smith

Your Excellency, Honourable Members; In rising to support the Motion of Thanks to your most comprehensive and informative address, I would like also to express my appreciation of the many years of service by Mr Miller; and I would also like to put forward the following observations on matters which I consider are matters of importance to all.

/Firstly

Firstly, the decline of our population by persons leaving the Colony must be slowed down. It is more than alarming to realise that during the past six months 32 Falkland Islanders have left the Colony for good. As far as I've been able to find out, the principal reasons for many of them leaving have been the lack of opportunity, no chance to own land or a smallholding which they could have built up and developed with their families. Take a lad in the Camp, for instance: usually the highest he can hope to attain in life is a "Shepherd boss". There are fortunately opportunities for cadetships, but naturally these are limited. For the young people in Stanley at present the better or top jobs are limited too. I was therefore especially pleased to hear Your Excellency remark on better local opportunities for our young people. There are, too, the smaller things in life which contribute in some cases to the final decision for people to pack up and leave the Colony. Just two, for example, which I have heard: to pay a road tax for roads which are little better than cart tracks; the payment of fees for a rediffusion radio system on which reception is so unreliable that, if one can afford it, it's better to buy a wireless set. These are, as I have said, small items, but nevertheless niggling contributory factors. Some twelve months ago a committee was formed to investigate the reasons and causes which make people leave the Colony. I hope that during this session we will have the opportunity to hear of the findings and the information which has so far been gathered. I hope also that the Development Committee will report on their activities during the last year, so that we all have better knowledge of how the money allocated to the Colony by Her Majesty's Government has been spent.

It will too, I hope, be possible to learn of the proposed Development Programme for the coming year. Could we not use money from the Development Funds for the Stanley roads? In their present state, any work done on them would be a development. The problem will soon change from a repairs and maintenance programme of roads into a major rebuilding scheme if something is not done on a large scale in the very near future.

Mention of roads, of course, brings us to the labour situation. This is a most serious problem indeed, even more so in the Camp than in Stanley. It is imperative that we should seriously consider without delay importing labour to overcome the present difficulties. Without sufficient labour, how can we possibly hope to maintain and continue farming and essential works and to expand and develop the resources we have. The labour problem in this Colony is serious and of paramount importance. In the development field we are fortunate to have a number of highly specialised professional people from the Overseas Development Administration to advise and to assist us. But we must ensure that never again must we have a repetition of the circumstances by which one member from the Overseas Development Administration was informed of the termination of work in this Colony. Surely Government could have afforded him the common courtesy of being told personally by the Government of the fact that he was to be recalled, instead of sending him a letter which, I understand, was delivered in the first place to the wrong house. Incidents of this nature reflect badly and do little to create a good image of the Colony to other members of the Overseas Development Administration who might be asked to come here in the future.

I would like too to see the various committees within Government restructured. By this I mean that it would seem logical, for example, that the Education Committee should have as its members a representative of the parents and of the teaching staff. How a body of persons can operate and advise efficiently on a specialised subject without knowing the full details and particular views and techniques on that subject without professional people on that committee is quite beyond my comprehension.

The shortage of teachers must somehow be overcome. Without a full complement of teachers we will be unable to continue the necessary flow of tuition, especially to our senior pupils in the all-important matter of intensive study for the GCE examinations. A break in the continuity of teaching at that level would collapse the programme completely and impede our hopes and plans for school leavers to stay in the Colony in the better jobs.

I share Your Excellency's views in that when the new Constitution is introduced, there will be the opportunity for more of our younger citizens to take an active part. I hope too that postal and proxy voting will be allowed. At the recent election a number of people missed being able to vote by as little as twelve hours, they being the persons who departed the previous day on the aircraft. It would also, I feel, be expedient to declare the hospital a polling station, in exactly the same manner as the settlements, thus enabling patients to participate.

I was very pleased to hear Your Excellency make quite clear the position of our Nominated Members. This, I am sure, has dispelled many doubts.

Finally, Sir, it seems usual to mention sovereignty in this Motion of Thanks. My views on this subject are, I hope, well known, and I will not dwell upon them at great length, other than to say, as I have done in the past, that we must never go into, or agree with, anything which would commit the Colony in such a way as the YPF Agreement has done. Let us trade with Argentina on a strictly commercial basis as we would with any other country. But that is as far as we must allow ourselves to go. Since 1971 many of us have made very good friends in Argentina, but never must we enter into any economic or binding agreements which would ultimately lead us into reliance or dependence for our future needs. We are British and proud to be so. This Colony has no indigenous inhabitants or natives, nor was it formed, as were some of the Colonies, by convicts or deportees from the British prisons. The Falkland Islands were populated and developed by honest, God-fearing, hard-working pensioners from the British Army who, with their families, overcame great difficulties and hardships to create and found the heritage which we know and which we must all preserve. We must ensure, too, that the Governments and the peoples of both Great Britain and Argentina fully appreciate and understand with absolute clarity the desire and right of the people of the Falkland Islands to remain British.

Your Excellency, I wish to support the Motion of Thanks.

The President

Thank you, Mr Smith, and may I congratulate you on an excellent maiden speech.

The Honourable H L Bound, MBE JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: Anyone would think that with my long association with Council affairs this sort of thing would come naturally and I should feel perfectly at home but I'm afraid that this is not quite the case and, quite frankly, I'm scared stiff.

As a Nominated Member I suppose almost by tradition I am already labelled the 'Government Yes Man' but, as Your Excellency made it so clear yesterday, these days have fortunately long since passed and the Nominated Member is indeed able to express himself as freely as the Elected Member.

I was particularly interested to hear Your Excellency's reference to Government's policy of training young people to fill the more senior posts in our Administration. I can think of all sorts of fields in which this scheme can and should be applied. Our nursing and secretarial staff come immediately to mind, and of course there are many others which our young people should aim at filling and, not least of all, there should be the various Heads of Departments.

As one of our citizens very ably put it in the local 'Times' quite recently, it is easy to criticise, but criticism can be most dangerous and destructive when it is loosely applied. On the other hand, it can be equally helpful and it can be constructive when it offers a solution to a particular problem. Fortunately I haven't too many criticisms to make. In fact, perhaps I will be criticising the critics.

How often we hear our Public Service criticised, and of course Government and FIC seem to provide the whipping post for most critics. The Post Office comes under the hammer fairly frequently, but I wonder how many of us really know what goes on behind this busy counter and appreciate the hundred-and-one jobs that beset these officers. In the rush to get the mail drop out to Camp, is it not understandable that the odd letter designed for Speedwell may find itself in, say, the Weddell bag; and likewise in Stanley it could so easily happen that my letter could be in your letter box. But where else in the world can you expect to receive your mail within an hour or two of its arrival at the sorting centre? I know personally in Britain that one has frequently to wait four, even five days, for a letter to cross the city. Here I think we could be a little more appreciative of the good service while we still have one. In the same department we have the Telephone Exchange, and we regularly curse the operator when we don't get an immediate response to our calls. But if we could see the position here when the switchboard turns red with a dozen or more calls coming in at once, someone obviously has to wait, and we might think again and have a kinder thought for the girl who is really doing a job as best she can, and is probably as frustrated as we are.

Public Works is another department which has a thankless task and is regularly exposed to public criticism. But here again, if one considers the endless tasks that they are expected to perform with a minimum of labour and equipment, we might be less critical and turn our thoughts to something more constructive.

Then, of course, there is the poor old FIC which, if one listens to the daily gossip, doesn't seem to do anything right.

/But

But if we stop for a moment and ask ourselves seriously, where would we all be today without this remarkable company, we may be just a little bit more tolerant and grateful. The FIC provides all the commercial services required by a much larger community, most of which, of course, are profitable, but many must be of just a nuisance value. If the West Store runs out of tin-tacks or Aspros, wallpaper or perhaps even a favourite colour of ladies' bikini briefs, it is at once a national disaster and everyone goes round bemoaning the fact. I feel it should be recognised that this company is performing a very important service to our tiny community and contributing a lot to the welfare of our Colony as a whole.

Your Excellency, the point I am trying to get across is that we would all be much better employed in looking for something positive and rewarding rather than merely sitting back and listening to someone else's view of the shortcomings of others. If ever we needed to be united amongst ourselves, it is now.

And now, having said all the nice things I could think of, it would be wrong not to look at the other side of the coin, and as I shall only be in this seat for a comparatively short time, perhaps I could be excused if I make the best of my opportunity, and dwell rather long on a subject which must be uppermost in our thoughts.

No-one sitting round this table could possibly turn a blind eye to our foreign politics. But it does seem to me that a surprisingly large number of people do prefer to live like the proverbial ostrich and take the view that if we don't look too closely at an unpleasant thing, it may, just possibly, go away. Over the past few months our relations with Argentina have suffered several setbacks, and we now find ourselves in a position which I am sure was never envisaged in 1971 when the Communications Agreement was implemented.

We are now totally dependent on our neighbours for so many vital things that it would be virtually impossible to exist without. This, I suppose, could be tolerated if good friendly relations existed and could be maintained, but unfortunately feelings continue to blow hot and cold and nobody really knows what's going to happen next. Like most people in the Islands, I particularly deplore the fact that our movements in and out of our own country are controlled by a foreign power; and I doubt if one can find a parallel situation in any other country in the world. The cost of air travel to and from the mainland has increased alarmingly and on top of that we find ourselves with totally inadequate external shipping link, which is slowly strangling our commerce. And no-one seems to be really able to offer a solution. I need hardly say that the continued uncertainty in our future has already created a crippling effect in our development, as can be seen by the lack of confidence in capital investment. If we accept this situation we can only expect a failing economy. I believe it's time we forgot our petty grievances and sat down quietly and asked ourselves where does the solution lie. Obviously we have to pull our heads out of the sand, and face the problem squarely, which may not be particularly pleasant. I may have painted a bleak picture but perhaps it need not be so despondent if we, the people of these Islands, all resolved to do something about it. I know that what I am about to say, Your Excellency, runs completely counter to the political picture drawn by you yesterday but, to my mind the only solution lies in meeting our adversaries in frank open discussion, with a firm will on both sides to accomplish something positive and lasting. It is quite useless and unproductive to approach the bargaining table if neither side is prepared to yield an inch. I believe, as a starting point, we should consider inviting a representative body from Argentina to come across to Stanley and discuss our problems with a truly representative body from the Islands. That is, let us study it from a human angle and see if this approach can offer at least a beginning to a long-term solution. The local team need not necessarily be drawn from members of Council; it should be composed of a true cross-section of the community and drawn largely from the indigenous section, for they are the people who truly count and have to live with the problem - that is we, the little people of the Islands. When I say indigenous I am not referring strictly to Islanders, for there are many valued members of our society who have lived and worked with us for many years and now have the same love and respect for the Islands as those of us who are locally-born. The main point is that such a group should be intelligent, clear-thinking people with the future welfare of these Islands and the people - and I stress, the people - at heart. Above all they must be prepared to listen to all sides of the argument and willing, if necessary, to concede a point if in doing so it could lead to a positive break-through which is likely to provide a palatable and lasting solution. Your Excellency, this may seem very unorthodox, if not ridiculous approach. But I feel if we do not face the reality and act quickly, we could easily wake up one morning to find ourselves in a far worse situation, one that has suddenly deteriorated beyond the point where discussion and common sense could prevail.

Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion.

The President

Mr Bound, May I congratulate you on not exactly a maiden speech, because of course you are vastly informed by your many years as an official - a senior official - of this government; may I take this opportunity - perhaps I should have done it earlier - just to take you up on one small point: the question of air fares. I announced yesterday - it was sprung on me at quite short notice - that they had been sharply reduced and - we live in a world that's full of surprises - I've heard before coming here that the fares to Comodoro have again been reduced to £37 and the onward fare from Comodoro to Buenos Aires by very little, to £19, giving us, I think, one way at £56 or £57. The return ticket will now cost £112 to £114 as against the situation of 48 hours ago when I think the return fare was £220. An announcement will be made on the radio tonight, but I thought I would just mention that as it was so relevant. Thank you very much indeed.

The Honourable A E Hadden BEM

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: I feel somewhat like the lady in the bread queue who was told when she got to the counter, "I'm sorry, there are only a couple of crusts left". I've been listening with great interest to what everyone has said and find from my frantic note-taking of the last 24 hours or so that they appear to be almost superfluous. All that really needs to be said at the moment appears to have been said and I have got the two small crusts I think.

I was very pleased to hear your address yesterday. I agree with almost everything you said; I was very interested. Being an absolute greenhorn, if you like, I appreciate I am very conscious of my shortcomings: I know I have much to learn and feel that I really would be of more service right now if I just sat down quietly and listened. Maybe then I could say something another day. However, that wouldn't be quite fair, and I'll try to say just one or two things, on very small matters. But they are, nevertheless, to a lot of people, very important matters although they appear to be niggling little things.

I was pleased to hear you say in your Address, Sir, that we had recruited two police officers from Scotland; that really cheered me up. It is well known that the quality of Scottish policemen is second-to-none, and I'm sure we'll all be the better for their coming.

I deal quite a bit with things which are government matters in my little job in the Camp, and one of the things which I often find a nuisance is the payment of licences at various times of the year. It's been suggested often enough that all licences should be made payable in January, or perhaps any other month; January would be the best time because then it's sort of natural at that time of the year for everyone to come along and pay their bills. Gun licences, for example, are payable any time of the year, and it seems to me that the Police Force must employ a clerk who must sit down and keep thumbing through records and sending out reminders - sometimes two or three reminders. I am sure that all these things could be paid with little bother if they were all due at the same time.

and now I come to Camp roads. I think in the Development Plan some allowances were made for repairing or trying to make something of the Camp tracks - minor roads I think they're called - and to us living out in the Camp they are really the main highway. The last few days, if these had been passable, would have seen most of the Council Members here on time, had we had a road which we could drive along in the winter. Nobody in the Camp really expects to get a paved highway; we still drive in a civilised way, and providing we can get from A to B without having to carry something like several hundredweights of de-bogging equipment - which equipment anyway is probably the cause of us bogging in the first place. But if we could just get the culverts in the ditches, and some sort of bridge put over these nasty ditches, it would go a long way to helping people to be just a little more willing to live in the Camp. As I said earlier, too, we could also, maybe, in circumstances like this take quite a bit of pressure off the Air Service. Maybe if the roads became really good and people could go to and fro without much trouble, maybe we could do without one aeroplane and maybe instead get a doctor for the West; the money would be well spent, I'm sure. But anything that would help to reduce isolation is always worth thinking about.

I was asked - and there are some people who think because you are a Member of Council you know all the answers - I was asked in connection with the new airstrip, "How are we going to maintain this new airstrip - the permanent airfield - if it's only going to be used for local flights". It's going to cost a lot of money every year to supply staff and maintenance materials, and they couldn't - and I don't know either - see how we're going to pay for this if nothing is coming in. But maybe there's a good answer to that somewhere else, Sir.

On the population decline, or drain, I think the population of this Colony isn't any more restless than that of any other country in the world. Young people want to get out and about and see what life is like in other parts of the world, and I don't think we should discourage them. If they want to get away, they have a right to, to see what it's like on the other side, and if they stay there for a wee while and find out that it's not all that it's been made out to be, there's a good chance that they'll turn round and come back if, of course, their pride will allow them to do so.

I've spoken to many kelpers who have gone away from the Colony and asked them why they left. Speaking generally, the answers were that they found the life here a bit quiet and dull, so they decided to go away and enjoy the good living, as portrayed to them by the many visitors to the Colony - because people come here and talk about what is their home. They talk about the bright lights, and the discos, the fast cars, the television and what-have-you, and that is great stuff for the young ones and they can't be blamed for wanting to go and see what it's like for themselves. And I've also met a lot of these people when I've been home, and I've asked them if they had the chance to return would they return, and they've said, most times, without thinking, yes, they would like to come back for several reasons, but mainly they would come back a bit sooner if they could afford to come back; and I've often thought that we should try and do something to encourage these people back. They've been away; they've seen that it's not all television sets and discos and what-have-you; that there are still slums and dirty back-streets, and there's not the freedom to go out for a walk of an evening because you don't know who's hiding behind the next tree. We don't have that problem in the Falklands anyway - there's never anyone behind the next tree. But they're never told these things before they go away. I'm sure they're not, or they just don't want to listen. They don't realise how difficult it is to get a decent job. With a million unemployed, that should be enough warning, but apparently it isn't.

I've also heard it said more than once, Sir, that not everybody wants to be an employee, but I don't know of anybody, thinking off-hand, who has gone from here and who isn't still an employee. But I don't think it's the principal reason for people leaving the Colony. I think we ought to try and get in touch with these people if we possibly can, and ask them in most cases merely to swallow their pride and say "Aye, I'll be coming back". The opportunities open to them at home in the UK are not a lot much more than they are here. As you said in your Address yesterday, Sir, sheep and wool are paramount, and I think we all agree that for the foreseeable future this will still be so. So the young people who left a wee while ago should be encouraged to return, to come back to the Camp, to come back to the jobs that they know. Maybe there aren't many opportunities, because the place is too small. We can't all be bosses; we can't all be owners. The people I've spoken to, going back to the Camp again; I've spoken to a few since this came up, and not many people seem to be interested in owning a piece of land themselves. I can't see really any great advantage in chopping it up and dishing it out: we have to lend them a whole lot of money to settle down in a place like that, and by the time they've made something of it and repaid their debts they would have children who would want to go away and we're back to square one. I can't see that there would be a great taking for that sort of thing.

One more small thing, Sir, the last crust if you like. On the bank interest, I think it was in the Comben and Waller Report that they recommended phasing out the dependence on this handout - if you like - from the Savings Bank, and I'm inclined to agree that it's perhaps a devious form of taxation, as my friend said.

Your Excellency, these are the crumbs. I wish to support the Motion of Thanks.

The President

Thank you very much, Mr Hadden, for an excellent maiden speech and, if I may say so, you are perhaps rather too modest. You started off with two crusts; you have reverted to crumbs, and I think you took more than a few slices. I think, with a little more experience, we will have to watch that you don't take the whole loaf. Anyhow, I'm sure that we needn't fear that. Thank you very much indeed.

Just one point - it's been raised twice, I think. The Financial Secretary, later in the proceedings, not now, may well wish to comment on this question of interest on the Savings Bank because this has in fact been raised - and I think it is no longer a matter of confidentiality that Government has it in mind to apply a considerable increase to the rate of interest - but I'll leave that for the Financial Secretary to deal with later on in the proceedings.

The Honourable Financial Secretary

As an ex-officio Member I obviously cannot join in the criticism, nor do I want to. However, I have a few things to say, and I must put the record straight on a couple of points which have been raised. The first point, I would like to join in the message of thanks to Mr S Miller, whom I've had the pleasure of serving with for a very long time, and on saying that I'm going to miss him very much at SFC and in particular the frank and forthcoming arguments that he's put forward: I can hardly imagine a meeting without him. However, I can see that I am going to have some quite strong opposition.

One point that you mentioned yesterday that I have been associated with for a long time - the swimming pool. I'm pleased that it's come to the point where the building is almost ready to proceed and it's time now that we require a new impetus into this scheme, and as a start in this direction I've suggested that our new Deputy Governor, Mr Gordon Slater, should take the reins. I think it is appropriate that he should take over, because I know that he is a diver as well.

I was also pleased to note the mention of training within Government. I think this is particularly important. The Service, without some new ideas, will stagnate, and it is absolutely essential at this time that we should push training overseas. It will also make the Service much more interesting for new people coming in.

/Regarding

Regarding the criticism of the Savings Bank interest, I still consider it a windfall revenue: we do not get it every year. However, there is a proposal to increase the interest by quite a substantial amount, but we cannot proceed without the Secretary of State's approval. This has been put forward to him for some time, but I know that the Shackleton team have also investigated this and presumably the approval is awaiting the outcome of the Shackleton Report. I do not agree altogether with the Honourable A B Monk when he said that we should tax it; I think there is a certain fascination in having it free of tax. It must be about the only thing - or any form of income - in the Colony that is free of tax, and I think we should be very careful before we do tax it otherwise we may lose it altogether. I'm sure that the people, if they wanted to, could invest it abroad now - there's nothing stopping them - so we're not robbers; but if we tax it we may lose it.

I wish to support the Motion of Thanks.

The President

Thank you very much, Mr Financial Secretary.

The Honourable Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I naturally and wholeheartedly associate myself with the tribute you so generously made to the retiring Members of Council and in particular to Mr Sidney Miller who, I am happy to know, will be at my door on many an occasion in the future. I shall welcome and look forward to his visits and the very stimulating and useful advice he has always given me. As my Honourable Friend the Financial Secretary has said, it is not usual for ex-officio Members to take issue with every point raised during this cross-country debate; we have heard this afternoon some quite new and quite stimulating views on old questions, and some suggestions that I think will give us considerable cause for thought. Additionally, several of my Honourable Friends have criticised the Administration and made proposals how it can be improved; how it is deficient in development. This of course is the purpose of this Council. I welcome this sort of criticism. As I have said many times before, it is the duty of every Councillor to fight dexterously with all the mental, philosophical and other armoury at his disposal. Usually out of these verbal clashes, of course, comes more light than heat - at least, this has been my experience. And it is very pleasing that I or anyone round this table can be criticised: Government can be criticised without any rancour, or any personal recrimination. I have noted the particular points made by the several Members, particularly those of criticism and particularly those relating to development. But I think it's fair to say that these are not new. If one looked back a year - two years or even three years - one would look around Stanley and find the water-reticulation plant, the roads, the tracks, the Air Service, the harbour works - practically anything you like to name - about to collapse round our ears, and one might well ask, Sir, why we have taken until now. And it was this very realisation, surely, that made this Council ask for the Shackleton Report; to give us a comprehensive and synoptic view; to tell us how to break into this development spiral. This is not an uncommon or unusual situation, I think, for a small country to find itself in. It has relatively few resources, particularly in a small country with 1800 population, as we've been told this afternoon, and with a fiscal base so narrow that it can't even generate enough to service its recurrent charges, let alone provide for any development at all: not even enough to provide for its own recurrent charges, because if we were to cost the contribution by the British Government to the salaries of the Civil Service, it would work out at about £100,000.

With regard to the Civil Service, which we've been told is top-heavy, it's very difficult for me to say it isn't. I would like to invite any Councillor to participate with me in the Secretariat to see just how top-heavy it might be - and I mean this in the best of humour. In this connection I was particularly delighted to note the Honourable Mr Bound's support for the Public Service and in particular, of course, that the occasional slip in the mail might result in a bill addressed to me landing up at San Carlos.

There was also reference, I think, this time, Sir, to the paucity of the legislation that will be dealt with by this Council. I don't regard that as anything for criticism. As a matter of fact, there has been far greater criticism in the British Parliament in the last year that they've been bogged down with too much legislation; and if we were to err I would suggest it's better to err on the side of too little legislation rather than too much, and put the emphasis on quality rather than quantity. But anyway, in this connection I am happy to assure Honourable Councillors that the law is being looked at professionally by Mr Cooke, who left the Colony this afternoon - a most able and likeable man who has already done a stalwart service in assisting Mr Bennett, and I am sure between the two of them we will have the sort of laws that Councillors want.

and finally, Sir, it was most heartening of all to discern the unity of purpose of this Council in its wholehearted support of Her Majesty's Government in striving on our behalf. Perhaps it might not be out of place to enjoin on the British Parliament the same unity of purpose in dealing with our problems. Perhaps if, instead of squabbling over us, they were to adopt a bi-partisan approach, this may give comfort to us and security for the future.

I beg to support the Motion.

The President

Thank you very much, Mr Chief Secretary.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

THE CLERK

Question No 1 of 1976 by the Honourable A B Monk JP

MR MONK

Will the expatriate civil servants sent here under Technical aid be allowed all the benefits that the British Government gives this type of appointee?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Sir, so far as the Colony's requirements can be made compatible with the needs of the officer recruited, Government will always endeavour to provide or obtain the maximum benefits for the officer to carry out his duties in the most effective way. In the final analysis control over the benefits that an officer receives rests with this Government which, of course, retains the ultimate power to accept or reject a nominee. This Government must also try and maintain a balance between the "benefits" that an expert receives and the benefits of a resident officer. My Honourable Friend has referred in this question to Technical aid; I can only interpret this in its narrow meaning of appointments of a purely technical nature, such as those to the Grasslands Trials Unit, or in the broader sense of all those posts which qualify for financial assistance from Her Majesty's Government under OJAS or any other terms, which eventually will be provided entirely under Britain's Technical Assistance Programme. As regards those officers who have been recruited as strictly Technical Assistance Advisers, the Falkland Islands Government has been fortunate in having to meet only the costs of housing and transport, although these are sometimes not inconsiderable. The reason for this is that these officers are classified broadly as filling advisory posts. In the future, and for other types of appointment it is probable that this Government may be asked to pay a nominal offsetting contribution towards salary, but on balance there should be no significant overall increase in the Colony's burden for all officers provided from Britain.

MR MONK

I would like to thank the Honourable Member for his reply. I am completely bemused and I will pursue it in private.

/Mr Blake

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, as a supplementary, we know that answers to questions are not included with the Order Paper, and I believe all questions are not included in the recorded proceedings....

(Here Mr Blake was informed that questions are included in the recorded proceedings)

So at a later date we will be able to study this long and carefully considered reply by the Chief Secretary?

CHIEF SECRETARY

I can certainly give that assurance. The question and the reply to all questions are recorded in the minutes; they are broadcast; and I would welcome the opportunity to discuss this matter further with any Councillor.

MR MONK

Is the Cape Pembroke airstrip going to be extended and, if necessary, strengthened to take larger aircraft?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Sir, I trust my Honourable Friend will be prepared to wait in this instance for an answer until we have received the Report of the Shackleton Survey. That Report, together with Her Majesty's/decisions on it, as we have /Government heard this afternoon, is expected shortly. My Honourable Friend will of course know that very many people in Government and outside put the case for a longer and stronger runway quite emphatically to the Shackleton team.

THE CLERK

MR MONK

Are we getting an oil jetty?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Sir, Government has every hope that an oil jetty or other suitable means of bringing bulk oils ashore will be provided in the reasonably near future. I apologise for having to refer again to the Shackleton Economic Survey but the question of financing any jetty, and the best means of bringing oil ashore generally, was one of the matters that the Team looked into most carefully. And I will ask that my Honourable Friend again would be prepared to await the publication of this Report and Her Majesty's Government's decisions on its recommendations. Obviously I am not entirely content to have repeatedly to refer my Honourable Friend to the Shackleton Report but the whole purpose of the Survey was for them to take a synoptic view of our economic needs and to set priorities amongst those requirements.

MR BLAKE

How does the Administration envisage staffing the proposed examination for Hydatidosis mentioned in the Budget?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Sir, the money bid for in the Estimates for the hydatidosis study has not yet, of course, been voted by this Council, and a detailed explanation of the method by which the study will be carried out, including its staffing requirements, will be given by the Senior Medical Officer when we go into Select Committee. In the meantime I am advised that if the survey is restricted to a serological study only, it may require one additional assistant to be trained, in which case it would be necessary to recruit and train a local person. I am further advised that if the survey is related to a full chest X-ray survey, a further person would have to be recruited and trained in X-ray techniques. This appointment would be for at least six months. The requirements given above are based on the assumption that local X-ray equipment was used. If X-ray equipment has to be purchased from an outside source and imported, then it would be necessary for an additional trained technician to be recruited from overseas. I would like to be able to assure my Honourable Friend that this study will not interfere with normal routine work carried out by the Medical Department, and this is indeed the view of the Senior Medical Officer. I believe, however, that further investigation is essential before I could make such a categorical statement.

MR BLAKE

I thank the Chief Secretary for his reply.

THE PRESIDENT

May I just suggest, Mr Chief Secretary, perhaps you could clarify the word "serological". I take it it refers to blood tests of the entire population, as against X-rays. I thought this might be confusing.

CHIEF SECRETARY

and referendum of course, Sir, I would assume that a serological study would involve a mere taking of a blood sample and testing it either on a slide

What steps are being taken to increase the Old Age Pensions?

/FINANCIAL SECRETARY

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Government is examining the possibility of increasing Old Age Pensions and linking them to the index of retail prices. Government appreciates the urgency of this matter. My Honourable Friend will appreciate that before approving any increases it must, however, obtain expert professional advice and it proposes to seek this advice under Technical Assistance terms and at no cost to this Government, to advise this Government on a suitable mechanism to provide a regular review of benefits related to the index of retail prices and also on the cost to Government of providing these increases.

MR BLAKE

Can the Financial Secretary in that case confirm that he does not foresee any increase in the contributory Old Age Pension in the near future?

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

This is being treated as a matter of urgency and we will take steps to investigate the possibility of an increase just as soon as we possibly can.

MR BLAKE

Has he any provision in his estimates to allow for greater use of - I think the term, which I don't like very much in the estimates is "Charitable Relief" for the pensioners who will, I am sure, with the rapid rise in the cost of living be suffering straitened circumstances?

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

There is no provision for additional charitable relief other than the normal programme. If this becomes a matter of urgency it will be looked at.

MR BLAKE

I thank the Financial Secretary for his reply.

THE CLERK

No 6 of 1976 by the Honourable W.E. Bowles.

MR BOWLES

If a shore-based fishing industry is not viable in these Islands, has the United Kingdom considered pelagic fishing in the South Atlantic?

CHIEF SECRETARY

I will read my Honourable Friend's question again: "If a shore-based fishing industry is not viable in these Islands, has the United Kingdom considered pelagic fishing in the South Atlantic?"

In fact

In fact, I hope that the first part of that question will not materialise, and certainly Government at present has no definitive information which leads it to believe that a shore-based industry is not viable in these Islands. To that extent the second part of the question may be hypothetical. I would like to tell my Honourable Friend that for many years now, ad hoc surveys of the pelagic fishing potential of our waters have been carried out. The results so far have not been sufficiently promising to encourage private British fishing enterprises in our waters and fishing trials carried out by agencies both official and commercial of other nationalities have usually had a British expert attached to them, so that the industry is aware of what has been going on. I am sure my Honourable Friend is also aware of a recent reply, broadcast locally, to a question asked in the House of Commons on the 28th May, which indicated that the possibilities of developing a British fishery in the South Atlantic had been examined extensively in recent years and kept under continuous review, but all the evidence is that this area is unlikely to provide the domestic British industry with viable fishing opportunities. That was the reply given to the question in the House of Commons. I am sorry I am unable to enlighten my Honourable Friend on the reasons for this pessimistic statement. He may well share my surprise that it was made without reservations referring to the opinions and recommendations on this subject which will undoubtedly be found in the Shackleton Report; but he will appreciate that decisions by British enterprise to undertake ventures of this sort must, in the final analysis rest with them and ultimately not governed by decisions of this Government.

MR BOWLES

Can the Chief Secretary, preferably without referring to the Shackleton Report, give us an assurance that a fishing industry will still be considered extensively by Her Majesty's Government?

CHIEF SECRETARY

I regret, Sir, that it would be inappropriate and impossible for me to commit any other Government or any firm with which this Government had not liaised and negotiated an agreement. To that extent I feel that the utmost we can do is, as we have done in the past, to do everything we can to encourage investigations which might lead people who are, after all, risk-takers, to carry out further trials in our waters and then carry out a fishing industry. Beyond that I think it would be virtually impossible to go, and I think it is worth bearing in mind that as recently as a few weeks ago "The Economist" referred to two rather important facts in this connection: they made the point that the British fishing industry would be very reluctant to undertake fishing in the South Atlantic while there were political risks - and I think this is a valid point. They also made the point that the South Atlantic is so far from their home bases at the moment, and the area is so vast, even if they were based here or on the mainland, that, as we know, only the most modern fishing trawlers can operate in these waters. This, of course, has been aggravated by the energy crisis which makes the old, out-of-date trawlers uneconomic and difficult to operate far from their home base.

MR BOWLES

I would like to thank the Chief Secretary for his reply.

MR BLAKE

Can the Chief Secretary give any assurance to Council that this Government has or will protest to the new Minister of Agriculture about this completely, I would say, unreferenced reply made in the House of Commons?

CHIEF SECRETARY

I would certainly consider that in conjunction with Your Excellency. That is the most suitable answer I can give to that, Sir.

THE PRESIDENT

May I just interrupt. I know how trying it is constantly to revert to the Shackleton Report but, as I am sure all Honourable Members are aware, a most important member of the Shackleton team was Mr Gordon Eddie, the fisheries expert, and I am quite certain that a major portion of the Report will be taken up with his findings and recommendations. And I may say that I have had several enquiries from commercial sources direct to Government House since the Shackleton survey and, in each case, I recommended that they buy a copy of the Report as soon as it appears and digest it thoroughly before, and I am quite certain, as the Chief Secretary has rightly pointed out, that they may find there less cause for pessimism than the reply to the Parliamentary question he has referred to would suggest.

THE CLERK

No 7 of 1976 by the Honourable W E Bowles.

MR BOWLES

Is the Administration convinced that the spread of hydatid disease is fully under control?

CHIEF SECRETARY

No Sir, certainly not. The Administration is not convinced that the spread of hydatid disease is fully under control. It is convinced, however, of the need to do everything possible to control it and, as my Honourable Friend will be aware, the Order made at the end of 1974 has already achieved some considerable improvement in this situation. The effectiveness of our present programme, including the education of all concerned in the registration, medication and inspection of dogs has been described by an international expert as remarkable. This is undoubtedly due to the very ready co-operation of all concerned, especially the farms. Government is never complacent about this problem, however, and the Hydatid Committee, the Medical Department, the GTU and Government generally, keep this matter under continuous review. It is hoped that shortly the Veterinary Officer will be able to start a dog inspection programme which will secure further improvement, but I cannot be definitive about that until the vet has been here a little longer and has looked into the economics and the practicality of it. Thank you.

MR BOWLES

Will the Chief Secretary not agree that we should - every one of us in this Colony - do all we can to help those people involved in the control of this disease to exterminate.

CHIEF SECRETARY

Certainly Sir, I don't think that anybody would quarrel with that. I am most grateful to my Honourable Friend for asking this question, as it does give me an opportunity, I think, to bring home the unanimous view of Government and the public generally that this terrible disease should be brought under control and eradicated as soon as possible and, as my Honourable Friend has implied, it can only be done with the fullest co-operation of all of those concerned, even to the extent, I would say, of regarding those who default as public enemies. How anybody can fail to take every precaution to prevent the spread of this disease is beyond comprehension. But Government is confident that the public will co-operate and that we should, within a foreseeable time, get rid of this disease.

MR BOWLES

I would like to thank the Chief Secretary for his reply.

MR BOWLES

Sir, has Government a definite plan for the development and improvement of Stanley roads and camp tracks?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Sir, several times today I and Your Excellency have referred to the Shackleton survey and I am afraid that this is the sort of question that must obviously come under the same sort of umbrella. One hates to talk of umbrellas in this Chamber - particularly in so windy an island - but nevertheless my Honourable Friend - who is probably far better placed technically than I to assess the extent of any deterioration in our roads and tracks, and also estimate the cost of bringing them up to an acceptable standard - will, I am sure, appreciate that any development plan that was made now, or has been made in past years, may well be overtaken by the recommendations in the Shackleton Report. On a couple of points of detail, I would like to let my Honourable Friend know that the deterioration in the Stanley roads is, in the view of Government's expert, so far advanced and has been allowed to go on for so long that it is doubtful if any short-term plan would achieve anything worth while. In this connection he says that complete re-surfacing and sealing of the concrete will be necessary and that any scheme that failed to achieve this would be throwing good money away. It would be misleading for me, therefore, to indicate that there is any immediate or real hope of imminent improvement in the Stanley roads. Similarly, an enormous effort, involving quite large numbers of workers and utilising fairly heavy machinery, will be required if the tracks are to stand up for any reasonable length of time. It would also be very costly. In this general connection perhaps I can refer to some remarks I made earlier - generally that Government could concentrate all its available resources on Stanley roads and might achieve something; but, as we all know, there are numerous other services and utilities in a similarly dilapidated state which would suffer further as a result, and it is this problem of trying to set down our priorities that besets us. It is, as I have said before, the problem of breaking into this development spiral, which is not unique to this Colony - many countries, particularly those with small incomes and outdated capital infrastructures, are beset by this worrying problem - and it is for this very reason that we asked for the Shackleton team to lay down priorities. With any luck they may come up with an answer that will at least go part of the way to satisfy some of our requirements. I am sorry I cannot be less gloomy.

/development

MR BOWLES

Sir, would the Chief Secretary agree that perhaps a "mini" repair job may be worth while on the roads as a temporary measure at this stage, or would he consider this not so?

CHIEF SECRETARY

It is very much a matter of priorities. As I have said, we can concentrate on some of the urgent attention to the pot-holes - these hideous pot-holes which we have got used to trying to avoid in Stanley - but at the moment I am satisfied that the Public Works Department is doing all it can with the available work-force they have, and that to do any more could only be at the expense of some other more urgent work. The Public Works Department, as we know, has things falling about its ears. There is urgent attention required to the filtration plant, the jetty, numerous things one could mention; so on balance I would rather refer to the expert opinion of the Superintendent of Public Works at present, and wait and see if the Shackleton survey can come up with anything better, and also with means of financing and perhaps providing the manpower as well.

/MR BOWLES

n

One further question, Sir. Would the Chief Secretary not agree that if we had to avoid some of our pot-holes we may well commit a street offence?

CHIEF SECRETARY

I suppose this is quite possible, Sir. I myself take every precaution to try and avoid the pot-holes and an offence, but I am sure it could result in the awful consequences that the Honourable Mr Bowles has referred to. However, I am sure that the Magistrate would take it fully into account in hearing the case.

MR BOWLES

I would like to thank the Chief Secretary for his replies - especially the last one.

MR SMITH

will Government examine the possibility of increasing the Old Age Pensions and the Children's Allowances, and to link them to a cost of living scale which will be increased when the cost-of-living bonuses are adjusted?

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

with regard to the question of the Old age Pension scheme, I trust that the answer I gave earlier in reply to a question from the Honourable Elected Member for West Falkland will suffice. The question of Family Allowances - I am afraid I must jump on the band waggon and state that I expect it to be in the Shackleton Report. The Team did discuss the question of family allowances with me; they did take details; and I have every hope that it will be studied and that family allowances will be considered before the beginning of the new family allowance year which starts next January. I regret that I must add today to what must be known as the "pre-Shackleton Blues" I would think.

MR SMITH

I thank the Honourable Financial Secretary for his reply.

MR MONK

Why do we have to refer to the small things as increasing family allowances to Lord Shackleton?

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

As a matter of fact, it wasn't referred to Lord Shackleton's team by Government. The question was brought up by members of the public and referred to Lord Shackleton's team, and

/Lord

Lord Shackleton's team wish to take into account the question of family allowances in consideration of the full tax structure of the Colony, including personal allowances.

THE PRESIDENT

May I just add after that - I'm sure it's in line with what the Financial Secretary said - the social services, of course, the whole broad spectrum of the social services and the financing of them: I think the all-embracing picture was what the Shackleton team decided they must examine, in the light of representations made to them by the public, not by Government.

MR SMITH

What has been the amount of money from the Colony Development funds expended on the YPF installation, and when is it expected that the installation will become operational?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Thank you Sir. The sum of $5,532 has been withdrawn from the Colony Development Fund to meet expenditure on the YPF installation. I am unfortunately unable to give a date when the installation will become operational, but it is not expected to come into operation until either a new jetty has been constructed to pipe the fuel ashore, or a guarantee is given that such a jetty will be built, and such guarantee accepted by the Argentine authorities.

MR SMITH

I thank the Honourable Chief Secretary for his reply, and I am staggered by the amount of money which has been spent on what one can describe at the moment as a "silver elephant".

THE CLERK

No 11 of 1976 by the Honourable J Smith.

MR SMITH

Does Government intend to draw up a contingency plan against the possible introduction of foot and mouth disease into the Colony and also to instal preventive measures at the air terminal and jetties as a safeguard against foot and mouth disease?

/CHIEF SECRETARY

CHIEF SECRETARY

Thank you Sir. As I am sure my Honourable Friend knows, for some years now Government has been alive to the possibility, if not the probability, of foot and mouth disease being brought into the Colony. Despite assurances we have had from some experts that this is unlikely, Government has always had reservations about this and does not share that view. It has already taken several steps to prevent the importation of the disease, notably by the banning of a list of suspect foodstuffs. It has also ordered disinfecting mats for eventual use at the airport and it has looked at the possibility of using them on tourist vessels - the "Lindblad Explorer" for instance uses one. It might be well worth while looking very much further into this question in collaboration with the Veterinary Officer, but as he has only just arrived it is a little early to give a definitive reply. Together with the Veterinary Officer, I and Mr Kerr will certainly look into this foot and mouth problem most closely in the very near future and, if anything further needs to be done I can assure my Honourable Friend that everything will be done that seems to be needed: but we are most certainly very much alive to the dangers and I doubt if there is anything we can do immediately.

MR SMITH

I thank the Honourable Chief Secretary for his reply.

MR MONK

If I may say so, this matter was raised by many others some while ago. Is it not a fact that Mr Bob Bostelmann, the most excellent vet we had here before, made detailed recommendations to Government with regard to precautions at the airstrip and the jetty?

CHIEF SECRETARY

It is a fact that Mr Bostelmann made some recommendations to Government about the possibility of foot and mouth disease and it is largely on that advice - which, in fact, was vicarious advice as I understand it, culled from the Veterinary Attache in Buenos Aires at the Embassy there - it is on that advice that we have largely acted. The major point in his recommendation was, of course, that we should control this specified list of foodstuffs, and this has been done, much to the annoyance of some of the traders, I might say, but we have had to do it. Whether this amounts to a contingency plan or not I don't know - or whether, in fact, the contingency plan would work or would be preferable, again I am not sure. I think contingency plans have got to be kept fluid. If we make a mould in the strict form that it is presented to us by the Vet, we do not really leave ourselves any room to manoeuvre in cases of changing circumstances. I think as far as I can gather Mr Bostelmann

MR MONK (interrupting)

Has there ever been any exemption made with regard to this list of foodstuffs which are not allowed to be imported - bacon, for instance?

/this

CHIEF SECRETARY

Yes Sir, there has been. I think on two occasions there was an exemption made; one was when a consignment of bacon was shipped from Buenos Aires on a vessel, and I was told belatedly that it could not be unloaded, and we queried the consignment as quickly as possible by telegram with the Attache in Buenos Aires and we were told that this did not fall within the list of the specified foodstuffs, although it did imply a risk of carrying infection, but it was the type of bacon that is not a real danger. So that consignment was allowed in; subsequently one similar consignment was allowed in - an application for a third consignment was refused.

MR BOWLES

Can the Chief Secretary assure us that the seriousness of this disease is taken with the utmost care by this Government?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Certainly Sir. As I have said, the belief has been, I know, and I am sure that most farmers know, that one day foot and mouth disease will almost certainly enter the Colony. That is at least the way in which we should work, and if we take that stance, well, then. I think we will do everything we possibly can. To ban these foodstuffs which are very much sought after is going a long way, and if there is anything further which requires to be done, we shall certainly do it. For instance, we ensured that the equipment which came in to extend the runway had been thoroughly cleaned before it arrived. There will obviously still remain a few loopholes, but if we can plug them, we shall.

MR SMITH

Could Government, in the immediate future, publish notices of the prohibited foodstuffs in both English and Spanish on vessels which are shortly to tie alongside our East Jetty, thus letting passengers and crew on board know which foodstuffs are permitted and which are not into the Colony?

CHIEF SECRETARY

Yes, I think that is an excellent suggestion, Sir. In fact, I have already given a list to the Argentine Vice Commodore here, so that he is aware that any of the crew on the aircraft or any of the crew on the vessels should not bring the stuff in; and to the best of my knowledge he has abided by this instruction - but I think the suggestion is an excellent one.

/MR SMITH

MR SMITH

I would like to follow up, Sir, with one more supplementary question, and that is the matter of the disposal of waste food and garbage from the ships which are likely to remain alongside in Stanley for perhaps four or five days. Foot and mouth disease can be transmitted in the bone of animals and this is obviously the part which is going to be dumped. Can we ensure that any refuse is dumped at sea and not into our harbour?

CHIEF SECRETARY

I have made a note of that Sir, and will discuss it with the Veterinary Officer and the Customs Officer and Harbour Master to see what can be done in the way of preventing this. It's an important point.

MR SMITH

I thank the Chief Secretary for his reply.

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

Question No 1/76 by the Honourable J Smith

"When does Government intend to resume work towards the completion of the storm drains and road surface repairs on Hebe Street?"

Answer by the Honourable Chief Secretary.

"The Government is anxious to improve the standard of all the roads in Stanley at the earliest opportunity and the urgency of this problem was presented emphatically to the Shackleton Economic Survey Team.

"Unfortunately, the constraint of manpower has so far obstructed any worthwhile progress on road works. Piece-meal repairs have been carried out occasionally but these are at best temporary measures for use only in the very worst locations.

"Government is advised that the danger of sub-soil and road movement in the lower regions of Hebe Street has been held, but that normal road repairs and construction of drains are required. No specific sum for this purpose has been allocated in next year's estimates for this particular work, although there is a sum of £1,500 entered for General Road Work. The Superintendent of Public Works has been directed to draw up priorities for use of this money and it is, therefore, probable that some attention will be given to Hebe Street. But I should emphasise that the Public Works Department have numerous works claiming priority and it would seem sensible to leave the ordering of these priorities in the capable hands of the Superintendent."

Question No 2/76 by the Honourable J Smith

" Will Government give details of the type of road and its construction which will link Cape Pembroke Airfield to Stanley"

Answer by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"Honourable Sir, the details of the road linking Cape Pembroke Airfield to Stanley are set out in the documents relating to the contract. Generally these provide for a surfaced pavement 11.5 ft wide with shoulders 1.5 metres wide on each side. The pavement will consist of surface dressing over six inches of crushed rock base on a sub base varying in thickness, depending on sub grade conditions. Side drains will be provided as necessary to accommodate the surface run off and to maintain local water table at a reduced level.

"A certain latitude is allowed to be exercised by the Consulting Engineers in collaboration with the Client and the Contractor. The specification and bills of quantities for the contract are, therefore, usually kept confidential between all concerned. It would, therefore, be inadvisable to give definitive answers and it might be prudent to restrict your reply to enquirers to the fact that it will be a paved road, approximately 11½ ft wide and will be approximately 4 miles in length.

"You may have access to the full specification as set out in the working documents at your convenience. They are held at my office."

Question No 3/76 by the Honourable J Smith

"How many airline companies has Government approached on the possibility of forming an external air link with the Colony."

Answer by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"Honourable Sir,

"Through Her Majesty's Government and Her Majesty's Embassies, the Falkland Islands Government has approached several countries on the Latin American mainland to enquire if their respective airlines would have any interest in operating between the mainland and the Falklands, it being understood that the normal criterion of economic feasibility would apply.

"I regret I am not able to be specific as to the exact number of airlines as the approach was made on a Government to Government basis. Governments in Latin America sometimes operate or participate in the operation of more than one airline.

"You should know that none of these approaches has resulted in any positive response and British Caledonian have intimated to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office that they do not contemplate a direct link with the Colony."

Question No 4/76 by the Honourable J Smith

"What interest has been shown during the last twelve months by companies in respect of oil exploration in the Colony and the surrounding waters?"

Answer by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"Honourable Sir,

"During the last twelve months, the following companies have expressed an interest in exploring for oil in the Colony or its surrounding waters.

1. Ashland Oil, Ontario, Canada.
2. Ranger Oil, U.K. Ltd., Glen House Stag Place
London

"Both companies have been informed that their interests will be noted, together with those of companies who have previously made approaches, until such time as this Government is able to enact new measures to replace the outmoded present legislation and to formulate a licensing policy. All this must be done in consultation and agreement with Her Majesty's Government."

The President then adjourned the meeting and directed that Council should meet again at 10.00 a.m. on Friday 18 June 1976

Council re-assembled at 10.00 a.m. on Friday 18 June 1976

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

To open today's proceedings, I have one announcement to make, which is that the unofficial Members of Legislative Council have elected the following to be Members of Executive Council: the Honourable John Smith, and the Honourable L G Blake. Thank you.

MOTIONS

A Motion for the adoption of the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period June 1975 to February 1976 was put by the Honourable Financial Secretary. The Motion was seconded by the Honourable Chief Secretary and carried without debate.

Motion by the Honourable L G Blake JP

"This House asks the Administration to prepare the necessary legislation and put it before Council, needed to give Government statutory powers to control prices and incomes."

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, in rising to introduce this Motion I commend to all Councillors the state of our budget. We are undergoing as high a rate of inflation, I would think, in this Colony as they are in Britain, and it seems that we can do little about it. It is said in many quarters that we import our inflation but, to a certain extent, of course, we manufacture it. I realise that all traders should have and deserve a reasonable living, but I contend that if a trader - and I am not pointing my finger at any particular group or trader - if a trader imposes a high profit margin on stores which are included in our cost-of-living calculations, then we, as a Government, plus all employers, have to cover part of that profit margin in an excessive rise in cost of living. Our budget grows at a fantastic rate and since I first joined Council it has gone from something like £230,000 to clear of a million; and when I joined Council we weren't in the horse and buggy days, we had the air service, the medical department - we even had a doctor at Fox Bay - we had all the services we have today excepting those provided by our neighbour, yet it now costs us five times as much. I admit that we can't stop inflation just like that, but we should have and must have some means of control. I believe that basically our cost-of-living basket, if you like, does to a certain degree require revision, but that the profit margin on these items should be subject to a control measure that would be decided by the Government of the Colony, and to do this, of course, we need statutory powers. The administrative burden shouldn't be greatly increased; all importers are required to make a return to Government of the cost, including freight, of their imports, and it wouldn't be difficult for the cost-of-living committee - if they find an undue rise in any item over a quarter at review - to check that the profit margin is being maintained at a sensible level. If things went from bad to worse it would not be only prices we would have to control but if we reach really difficult financial circumstances, then it would not be fair for this Government to say to the Administration "You can't have this; you can't have that, we can't afford it". It would have to be a Colony-wide decision, and it would have to be overall, there would have to be control of everybody's stipend. I therefore commend to Council the idea - it would take time to produce, but I ask that it be studied carefully by the Members, and I ask them to support the introduction - not the immediate use - the introduction of legislation to give us a tool that we may need in the future to control our inflation rate.

/studied

Sir, I beg to propose the Motion.

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: In rising to second the Motion I really don't know what I can usefully add to the excellent speech of the Honourable Elected Member for the West Falkland: he's virtually covered all the ground I was going to, and considerably more eloquently and, in fact, made such an extremely good case for the whole thing that there's not much for me to say. I'm not a recent convert to the idea - I've spoken about it publicly before, although I never got round to proposing a Motion. I am not blind to the complexities of the issue. So much of our inflation is imported, but I am quite convinced some isn't. I think a statutory Prices and Incomes Board would have to consider such aspects as the monopoly trading nature - the monopoly nature of our largest trading concern - which might have some bearing on this sort of thing. There is one point which I would like to make which I don't think the Honourable Member made, and that is that traders operating with a reasonable profit limit, trading fairly, in other words, would not have anything to fear from the establishment of such a Board, so that I cannot see why anybody that knows that his operations are fair to him and his public should object to such a Board being set up.

I beg to second the Motion.

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, I've thought a great deal about this; although I have no personal objections to this, I feel we should be a little cautious about it. The control of prices and incomes by statutory legislation in these Islands, to my way of thinking, especially prior to the famous Shackleton Report, could well present problems in such a small community. But we don't have long to wait, and I feel there will be something in the Shackleton Report referring to this very item. I've always understood that incomes are regulated with the cost-of-living index, and price control to a certain extent is virtually a board of inquiry into private enterprise. I've no objection to this either, but is Government going to get anything out of it; is the taxpayer going to benefit by it; is the mini-department that will have to be set up to run it going to pay its way? At this stage I have reasons to doubt it and at this stage I would feel I should not support the Motion - not because I'm completely against it but through lack of detailed information and lack of the Economic Survey Team's findings. I think we should be cautious about it and not try to jump the gun.

Thank you.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

In rising to oppose the Motion, I would like to mention just a few points. I am particularly concerned with the control of Government expenditure, and the proposal made by the Honourable Mr Blake does have some merit; but at this stage I don't think we require legislation for the control of prices. If there is any case where there is profiteering, I think legislation exists now for a commission of enquiry to be set up at any time, under Chapter 12 of our Ordinances. I cannot foresee that the fact of introducing legislation and setting up a Board under that would really have much effect: I do believe would really have much effect. I do believe that the greatest percentage of increase in prices is imported from abroad. However, I think the course proposed by the Honourable Mr Bowles is a sensible one to take - to study it a little further before setting out any legislation for this matter. As far as I know, overseas in some countries they find that they do set up a Board and normally they have a businessman on it, a representative from the Union, and a number of experts; and it is presided over by an independent chairman. This will mean another Board for the Colony to set up. We have a lot of committees now, and many of the same people serve on these committees, taking up an awful lot of their time. Unless we are sure that it's going to be of some benefit I cannot see any point in introducing legislation at this stage.

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I am very grateful to the Honourable Financial Secretary and to the Honourable Mr Bowles for some remarks which have put some ideas into my head about this matter, too. I am quite certain that I and my colleagues who have so far had second thoughts about this Motion, or the motives that have put it on to the Order Paper - the two things we are aiming to do are to contain our budget within reasonable balance and in the process restrain inflation and keep it from getting out of control, and no-one round this table, and certainly no-one in the Colony, would quarrel with that intention. I go along entirely with what the Honourable Financial Secretary has said, and the Honourable Mr Bowles too. I think the thing requires further study. It would also, as Mr Bowles has said, be premature in view of the advice we shall doubtless get from the Shackleton team, and I have no knowledge of what that advice may be. My own view is that a statutory Prices and Incomes Board not only requires a great wealth of statistics, not only would require additional staff to operate it, but is designed for perfect people in perfect situations, where everyone's exact income is known, and the exact amount each spends on each and every item is known. If we don't have this exact information we are liable to do more damage than good with a Prices and Incomes Board, and I think it is these problems of operating a mechanism of prices and incomes that has led to this sort of legislation coming to nought in almost every other country where it has been tried. I have said that we should do everything possible - certainly Government ought to do everything possible - to restrict inflation, and I have, I hope, a constructive element to contribute. I didn't wish to be entirely destructive or critical of this Motion, and I would suggest that at this stage it might well be worth while looking at something very similar to the United Kingdom's National Economic Development Council, the NEDC which is a non-statutory organisation; and all we would require here would be an occasional consultation between the major importers, representatives of the traders, and the retailers, and representatives of the consumers, and possibly, if it was required, someone from Government. I think this suggestion is worth while following up - at least as a preliminary to going into a statutory board, and I would commend this suggestion for further study and possible implementation. I don't think that my proposal can be incorporated as an amendment to the Motion as it now stands, and I am reluctantly, therefore, forced to propose that the Motion, as it stands, be rejected. Thank you.

/MR HADDEN

MR HADDEN

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I must admit that I've been listening to the implications of such a scheme. It seems to me that at the least it would be just too heavy for our Administration. I also agree in principle with most of what has been said; as far as I can figure out this is that we control prices, which obviously isn't going to please some section of the community, but little has been said about controlling incomes - unless it is the income of the supplier we are talking about. It is a tremendously complicated situation altogether, and I honestly cannot support it, Sir. Thank you.

MR BOUND

Your Excellency, perhaps as a trader I feel I should declare some sort of interest in this subject and although I would like to say quite a lot on it, basically the only comment I can make fairly, I think, is that the essential stores here - I don't really know if people are criticising prices too heavily - I am quite convinced that the essential stores, particularly foodstuffs, which I think hold a pretty power in our cost-of-living index - and, fortunately, is one of the things which I am not involved with - I really can't believe that any great profit is being made on such a competitive item. It sounds quite ridiculous to me that if a trader is trying to sell an item at 50p and making quite a profit on it, and if the small boy around the corner offers the same thing for 25p, well there is something wrong. I don't think he could do such a thing. So I think in fairness I should decline from voting on this Motion.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I would like to associate myself with the remarks of the Honourable Financial Secretary on this Motion. It has many commendable points to it and is worthy of further study, but as I presently see it the cost of administering the Government machine to drive it - or work it - would exceed the benefits which we might get from it at the present time. That's all I have to say.

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, may I, in winding up, perhaps read the Motion. The opinion around this table, from the comments I have heard, is that the Motion is: "requires Government to set up a Prices and Incomes Board". I read the Motion: "this House asks the Administration to prepare the necessary legislation and to put it before Council needed to give Government statutory powers to control prices and incomes". I am not asking for the immediate setting up of a Prices and Incomes Board. What I am asking, and I ask again; I am asking Council Members to look perhaps on the gloomy side, but to have ready, should it be needed, the necessary legislation. I have heard many Councillors, several Councillors, say that this is worthy of further study. Perhaps my opinions of the Administration are a little bit unkind, but I think the surest way of getting a little bit of further study done on the subject is to get them to produce a law on the subject. The production of a law doesn't make it law, but it will ensure that the maximum amount of thought is given to this idea. It may be that in that study they will find alternatives. These will be put forward with the legislation. It has been said that Shackleton's Report will, we hope, have something to say on this subject. Fine. I don't object to any of this advice. But I do think that to sit back and wait until the eleventh hour until we do anything is being foolish. All I ask this Council to do is to prepare the necessary legislation - not to set up a vast Prices and Incomes Board if we don't require it, but if we do require it, we first of all have to do our homework to set up such a board, then we will lose at least 12, and probably 24 months in the preparation.

Your Excellency, I commend again the Motion to this Council.

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you, Mr Blake. Just to clarify one point - I think it is merely a matter of the wording - when you said "production of a law would not make it a law", I think what you intended was, "in the presence of legislation this would involve an examination or study of the whole question which, in itself, in legislating" - was that your concept? - "it would be enabling legislation which might or-might not-be implemented".

MR BLAKE

This is my whole point Sir. In the preparation of the legislation it will encourage us all to think - not just the Administration - and having prepared the legislation we will continue to think. The legislation - the powers granted under any legislation - don't have to be implemented, but the powers would be there.

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you for your clarification. Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak?

CHIEF SECRETARY

I am very grateful to the Honourable Mr Blake for the clarification of the Motion but I am sure he will realise that it does include the words "and put before Council" this legislation which he has proposed should be devised. If it is put before Council, and presumably it would be put before Council with an intention that it be adopted, but leaving that on one side there is, I still think, the question that if we have enabling legislation to do something which we are unable to do - which I sense is the consensus - this is to carry out work which leads to no purpose. I am not being negative about this; I think that my suggestion of informal consultation would achieve what the Honourable Mr Blake hopes to achieve, but without the necessity of going into legislation. And there is the point, too, if we do go into legislation, we would have to look at an enormous amount of implications. We have virtually to establish a model Prices and Incomes Board before we could see if the legislation worked and, if, in view of the general opinion it is really worth while doing this, I do commend my alternative. Thank you.

Mr Blake called for a division and the Motion was lost by 5 votes to 2 with one abstention.

/MOTION

MOTION by the Honourable A B Monk JP

"That this House considers as a matter of urgency that our broadcasting system should be administered and run by an autonomous body free of Government control and financed by a yearly grant from Government and licence fees, on similar lines to the BBC. This, so that the citizens of this Colony can have the opportunity to freely discuss matters of interest to them without intervention from the Administration."

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I worded my Motion at such length that I really haven't got a great deal more to say about it, but in proposing the Motion I would have thought the need must be patently obvious to anybody interested in democracy. Free speech is essential in a democratic community, and I think we should have the right to freely discuss any matters - any internal matters, certainly - which concern us. I think Members, for instance, should be able to go up there and comment on their reasons for decisions in Council; explain things to their constituents; people should be able to go up there and put their points of view; discussion groups should be able to go and thrash things out, without any fear of intervention from the Administration. I think only by broadcasting being in the hands of an autonomous body - controlled by an autonomous body - could this be achieved. The financing of it would virtually be as it is now; Government largely supports the broadcasting, a small amount comes from licences. It would mean that Government would give an annual grant in place of the present arrangement, and licence fees would accrue to the body as they presently accrue to Government.

I beg to propose the Motion.

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, I rise to second this Motion and I think - like most people around this table basically - we are all against censorship. We are, as the Honourable Member has said, a free democracy: but no democracy can claim to be completely free when you have any degree of censorship. Even when - censorship is almost a harsh word - even when this filtering process is done for the best of motives and with kid gloves. There is one other point which I hope would commend the idea also to the Administration. One of our problems is that as it is a Government broadcasting station they feel that if any form of announcement goes out, it is the voice of Government. Freeing - making an independent broadcasting body - would mean that it would no longer be the voice of Government, and one would hope that the people who listen outside the Colony would no longer complain that Government was saying rude things. Of course, if you listen behind doors and keyholes you may not hear everything you like, but at least it wouldn't have official backing.

Sir, I beg to second the Motion.

MR BOWLES

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I can see I am going to be christened "the cautious Councillor" if I don't watch what I'm doing. I didn't realise that the FIBS had a "G" in the middle of it. I know the abbreviation spells "Fibs" but I don't think it altogether lives up to this reputation either. But I've never heard it announced as the Falkland Islands Government Broadcasting Station, and I thought to a certain extent there was a relative amount of free speech to anyone who wants to go up there and present a programme.. "Magazine": one can say what one likes to the interviewer as far as I am aware. "Visitors' Book" gives a fairly wide-ranging attitude. Special interviews and commentaries are not censored to my knowledge: even the Forums we had a few years ago, I don't remember anything being out out. I don't want to feel as though I am a Government "Yes-man" I am merely stating facts as I see them. The Newsletter is possibly the most to digest, but some of these have had some jolly good comments in them, too. I feel at times there is reason for Government intervention, if delicate matters which may - or the delicate nature of matters - which may be misconstrued by the outside world cause reason for censorship. But like Mr Blake, I don't like the word "censorship". I think in considering this Motion we've got to decide whether or not the present broadcasting system needs a little more freedom or it doesn't. I'm all for freedom of speech and democracy; as Mr Monk has said, I think this is right and I feel certain that in the future - I hope the not too distant future - we will again have some more comments on this very subject. At the present moment, Sir, I would like to abstain from this Motion - not because I am opposed to it but, once again, I feel cautiousness on this is still the right attitude.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support this Motion. If the BBC can run in an efficient manner, I see no reason why we can't adopt a similar manner. With so few people, so few listeners, so few staff involved, and I think it will give a new impetus to our broadcasting and re-vitalise it to some extent.

Thank you.

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I agree entirely with the mover of this Motion that he has made it an all-embracing one and one has to look very carefully at each and every word in it. If I can perhaps take the first part of it: "that this House considers as a matter of urgency that our broadcasting system should be administered and run by an autonomous body free of Government control; and financed by a yearly grant from Government and licence fees, on similar lines to the BBC". Well, there are so many implicit questions there, that I can only deal with some of them; but if we do look at the comparison which I think the Honourable Mover of this Motion is attempting to make, we are trying to compare the Falkland Islands Broadcasting Station with the BBC. The BBC is, of course, a very large body; it employs 20,000 people and a little bit of esoteric information about its constitution might not be out of place. It has 12 Governors, appointed by the Government; it has numerous committees to advise the Governors on social effects: religious broadcasting, music, agriculture, school broadcasts, further education, programme for immigrants, science, engineering, charity appeals, and others. The Governors appoint a person known as the Director General. The Director General is Chairman of the BBC's Board of Management: the Board of Management includes directors, for instance, for finance, public affairs, and engineering; and the Corporation disposes of something in the region of £45 million per annum, without the revenue it obtains from the sale of its publications and its programmes. It is established by Royal Charter under licence issued to it by the Home Secretary, who is responsible to Parliament for its overall policy, and has the power of veto over it. It is "independent" in its day-to-day affairs, insofar as it operates on a daily basis within the overall supervision of the Director General. But I think it's worth bearing in mind that with that wealth of committees and wealth of staff you get a fair cross-section of opinion through it. With 20,000 staff and a very large number of check committees, it is very easy for the BBC to be independent - or is it actually independent? There have been allegations, I believe, that it has misreported events in the Falkland Islands. And certainly it came under considerable fire in its handling broadcasts in Africa; and there has been a most recent allegation, for instance, that they dealt in a slanting fashion with Concorde. I think our broadcasting service is probably as autonomous as the BBC - if that is the correct word to use. An autonomous body - if this is what the Mover really means - is a bureaucratic body responsible only to itself. At the moment, if there is any editing - and I wouldn't put it higher than that - of programmes, the editor is directly responsible to the Legislative Council, and he can be removed by the Legislative Council if he oversteps the mark. He is responsible to the body that represents the people of these Islands. What the Honourable Mover of this Motion, I think, would achieve if his Motion was adopted, is that he would put the control of broadcasting in the hands of an autonomous person, whose - perhaps private - hunch, or brilliant idea, or pet theory, would be put over the air. But my view is that even the most brilliant of ideas should be subservient to the collective wisdom of the Legislative Council, to whom the Broadcasting service, through the Government Head of Department and through myself, is now responsible, is far superior to putting the control of this vital organ into the hands of, as it has rightly been said, a body which would have to be specially set up for itself, with additional staff, additional expenditure, and lacking the expertise that - unless of course we import someone specially for this - lacking the expertise to achieve the balance that the BBC must produce under its Constitution. It is this balance, I think, that is so important, both the BBC and the Independent Broadcasting authorities for that matter, have written into their Constitution that in controversial issues they must produce a balanced programme. And that is all that Government is hoping to do in its exercise of this editing of programmes. The Newsletter perhaps is the most vulnerable thing. As it goes back to 1947, the newsletter has a great affection amongst the Islanders, and rightly so. It also has, of course, a connotation with Government

I take the Honourable Seconder's point ~~that~~ an independent body would liberalise the Newsletter and may not have the informata of Government, and it would then be seen to be anyone's point of view. But is this really what we want? Is anyone's point of view - does it really mean an individual journalist's point of view, without any balance being achieved? I think this is what we would end up with. We would get the odd pet theory, lacking proper timing, lacking consultation with Government on delicate issues - and let us not forget that the BBC is advised almost daily by the Government on what goes out, so that it is not unduly embarrassed. So, all in all, I think all we should achieve if we were to accept this Motion is to take control out of the hands of persons who are directly responsible to the people, through this Legislature, to a body which is responsible to itself only. That is the sort of bureaucracy that we have heard criticised so strongly yesterday. I ask you to leave things as they are; I can't think of any instance where this power has been abused. I am sure that the very fact that this Motion can be put down today is an indication that if it is ever in danger of abuse, a check can be put on that. I therefore, Sir, would like to propose that so far as the BBC is concerned, we would not achieve either any greater degree of freedom of expression or liberalisation of the system by going over to an autonomous body. As for intervention from the Administration - which is the second part of the Motion, I have already dealt with this in part, but what does this really amount to? Each and every Honourable Member around this table has complete freedom of expression in his election address, so what restraint really is exercised? There is nothing to prevent Councillors going on the air and making statements. What slight control might be exercised is to ensure that the interests of these people are not put in jeopardy by some irresponsible statement which any reporter can do if his remarks are not co-ordinated with Government policy; and I think in our circumstances this is particularly so, where we are a small community in a vulnerable situation. I can give an assurance, certainly, to the Mover and Seconder of this Motion, that any editing will never be done in the way that perhaps might be read from the Motion. There is nothing devious about it, no true censorship, no profelytization or use of the system for propaganda purposes. As I believe the Seconder said himself, it is slight and with a kid glove, and that, I think, is the way it should be left.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

I would like to endorse what the Honourable the Chief Secretary has just said. I cannot see that there would be any great advantage in having it under an independent body and I think that the grant which has been referred to this morning would have a tendency to grow and perhaps even be refused by Standing Finance Committee Members in future; and we would probably go back to the same stage as we are now. There is sufficient freedom at present. I think it's only right that the Government has to have reserve powers and they would only be used in extreme cases.

I would like to oppose the Motion.

MR BOUND

I must admit that I wasn't really aware of any form of censorship on our media. I have heard it bandied at some time that this word has been used, but perhaps I've missed a few points along the line and couldn't understand what they were talking about. I'm afraid I'd like to associate myself with the Honourable Chief Secretary and also with my Honourable Friend on the right, Mr Bowles, who have made it clear, I think, that most people are able to express themselves if they have the will to go along to the Broadcasting Studio. There are several programmes there in which you can say, as far as I know, all that you like. I also was surprised to hear it said that Councillors themselves were unable to express their views and explain matters to their constituents. I didn't know that, either. I thought it was a standard arrangement that, if they wished to explain anything, I don't think there would ever be any problem in getting on the air. I think perhaps a useful point has been brought up in that if there is any form of withholding information that we believe should go out, then it's wise that we should all look at it and perhaps ask even the Broadcasting Committee to look closely at their programmes and maybe suggest new ideas which would give Councillors and other people ample scope to talk on subjects which they would like to. I should hate to see our Broadcasting Studio develop into a gutter-press sort of media. Perhaps it wouldn't under new ideas - I don't know, but I think I must in all honesty oppose the motion.

MR HADDEN

Your Excellency, I thought when this Motion was put that it would be a fairly simple thing. Now I am absolutely stumped; so much has been said, may I say, about so little. It is very difficult to really know what else to say. I am against any form of censorship unless there is a tremendous need - an emergency need, call it. But I am like my Honourable Friend on my right here, who didn't know exactly what it was. I'm sure I didn't know it was all that complicated. Having listened to the Honourable Chief Secretary telling us about the operation of the BBC, and looking again at the Motion, which asks that it be run on similar lines to the BBC - Gosh! it makes me shudder. That is obviously all as far as I am concerned. I have a feeling that an autonomous body anyway could well become anti-local. Could it not become a monopoly, which is something else we have been trying to get rid of? Some Members have mentioned these things before - it could just happen. And provided there are no snags; providing people are free to approach the Broadcasting Committee secretary with a request that they would like to say something - provided it is never refused, I see no reason why the present system shouldn't be allowed to continue.

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: Quite evidently the Motion has been talked out. I think the word used in America for the sort of verbal red herrings which we have listened to from the Honourable Chief Secretary is "filibuster" - one can't possibly call it anything else. I would like to make one little point: in the ITV tape His Excellency said, "Executive Council requires the Chief Secretary to exercise a degree of control", - if that's not censorship, what is?

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you, Mr Monk. I think this is well understood. I am sorry the ITV tape has been quoted in this House because, as I think all concerned know, it was heavily edited. That isn't all I said and, if you listen to the tape again, I think you'd find that the phrase is "has a clear mandate from Executive Council to look at material". I then went on at some length which, of course, has all been edited out of the tape. To explain; this was normally in the interests of accuracy, to determine that on certain occasions (incidentally it applies only to the weekly Newsletter to my knowledge) to ensure that it is accurate, that nothing goes out (again it's in the context of the Newsletter) nothing goes out which, in the words of my speech to you - I pointed out that nearly all our domestic problems of any substance are permeated by considerations which stem from, or relate to, the conduct of our external affairs. In my nearly 18 months in the Colony I've known only two occasions - one fairly important, one minor - where I have advised or been consulted by the Chief Secretary. We have agreed that it was in the interests of Government - I may say "Her Majesty's Government - who has the ultimate responsibility. But I would take Mr Monk up very robustly on this point quoting from the ITV tapes. My recording - which was completely spontaneous, ad hoc, it was not written. I had very little knowledge of what was going to be said to me - was heavily edited, selectively, and does not amount to censorship. I said - my precise words, the only phrase which was incorporated is "asked to look at material". Now may I be permitted to assure you that in my view, as I've seen it working over 18 months, that "looking at material" has done nothing but good, in the sense that, again and again, the Chief Secretary has said "the newsreaders are busy people - part-time, most of them, I think, have omitted items of interest which have been occurring in the Colony; instead they're going to read the following news extracts from the New Zealand Times on bee-keeping or what-have-you; why not let us get a good round-up of Colony affairs." And I think in this sense intervention has been wholly salutary. I myself went to take my leave of the Captain of Chichester last week; the Captain showed me very proudly 30 or 40 letters from children, which had been written to him by children who had visited the ship. When I saw the material for the weekly Newsletter - which, incidentally, is just shown to me for interest - I said, "No reference to Chichester's visit? What a shame! Here we've been visited by a great warship, it's been highly successful; why doesn't the Newsreader include an account of Chichester's visit; refer to the children's letters? As a result, the newsreader - I think the information must have been relayed, I certainly didn't do it - incorporated what I think was a very interesting and heartening item. But to return to my main point: in my experience, and I say this and I'm on record, I know of no case of what one could even begin to call censorship during my governorship. I can't speak for my predecessors' time naturally. I am well aware that many of you consider that the non-broadcasting of the tape of the Shackleton incident may have constituted censorship - it wasn't. I said the time to broadcast that tape was immediately; and with great respect to the broadcasting officials, it should have been broadcast on the following day, not when Her Majesty's Government, who have complete responsibility for external affairs, were engaged in very intricate and delicate negotiations to make sure that Shackleton could complete her programme - as she did finally - of research. That is the only occasion; and again, this wasn't censorship. It was merely to see that we didn't revive what by then was stale: and in any case, I'd hate to even take a guess at the number of tapes which were circulated in the Colony of this incident - it's been partially broadcast in the ITV programme. May I say, during the course of these proceedings, that I would plead with you not to quote from the ITV tape. I have a complete transcript of it from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and if any of you would like a copy I can have them made - those of you who haven't heard the tape. It's been very heavily edited, and I think many of the spokesmen would agree with me - those who did speak to the interviewers - that much of this could be highly misleading and even damaging to the Colony. I personally took very little pleasure in the programme. I thought it was shot through with almost a patronising element: but my main point is please don't quote from it as authoritative, because of course it was not comprehensive.

Thank you. Just to clear up that point.

The Motion was not carried.

MOTION by the Honourable J Smith

"That Government brings into effect a landing tax to be paid by all persons entering the Colony and its Dependencies, other than permanent residents - that is to say, persons who normally reside in the Colony and have done so for not less than one year; and persons engaged to work for the British Antarctic Survey in the Dependencies. It is proposed that the tax should be £5 per person."

/MR SMITH

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: There is very little that I can really say on this Motion because it's really self-explanatory. I should mention that a similar Motion was also put forward by the Honourable Member for West Falkland, and the main purpose - as I intend it - is that when we have our airfield, we have to support and maintain it. In other airfields in the world you have to pay a landing tax, and the time has come now when we should adopt that procedure. We also have tourists on vessels which go to South Georgia and the Antarctic. The passengers go ashore there quite freely, and I don't think a landing tax would be out of the question, and the sum of £5 I feel to be a reasonable figure. If a person can afford the fare to come to the Falklands or to go to the Antarctic or South Georgia, an extra £5 on the ticket or bill wouldn't come amiss. One can look at it in another way - that it's a small figure because we in the Colony have to pay £4 to get on our own aircraft before we go up in the air - that costs a bit extra. And that's really all that I have to say about the Motion Sir.

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you, Mr Smith. May I just mention - no doubt you had it in mind - that in fact I think the practice is possibly more widespread throughout the world to charge an embarkation tax - certainly in Europe, throughout the European Community countries. I just thought I'd mention that point to help subsequent discussion - it is embarkation or departure rather than on arrival in most countries. It doesn't mean that we shouldn't follow our own way, but I just thought I'd make the point that I think that practice is far commoner. Thank you.

MR SMITH

Thank you Sir. Then perhaps we could substitute "landing" for "embarkation" to follow other countries.

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, in rising to speak to this Motion and support it wholeheartedly, as the proposer says, it's pretty self-explanatory. However, I would resist making it an embarkation tax because I don't think this is wholly what we have set out to do. We already have proposals in our estimates for an embarkation tax. This is to ensure, surely, that the visitors help to contribute to the general running of the Colony. Whether we make it a landing tax or a tourist tax I don't think really matters, providing we get down and start raising the funds. We floated this idea, I think, perhaps last year, and it would seem to me the simplest way of doing it. Visitors require an entry permit - presumably they have to have a tourist visa - and all we do is we charge them £5. It separates it from the airfield, and it could not then be construed as being contrary to our Communications Agreement or anything else: and I think beyond that we would also require a per capita fee to catch the day-trippers, or part-day trippers. Admittedly there are not as many of them now as there were, but even so we get the odd boat in here, and they come and they wander around and drink tea and pick flowers, and pick up any curios they can - some of them - but I think we should try to make it simple and therefore to charge them a fee on their tourist visa; and for boats you would levy a per capita rate on the passengers whether they come ashore or not, because we can't have someone at the end of the jetty collecting 25 or 50p a head; we can require the Master to provide us with a passenger list and say, "Right, that will be £500, please".

I beg to support the Motion.

THE PRESIDENT

May I just point out that British passport holders do not require a visa and this would need looking into - it's a technical matter. It's quite possible that the Visa Abolition agreements to which the Falklands are a party by reason of the British Government having entered into mutual Visa Abolition Agreements - for instance, within the European Community - it's a technical point. I just mention it at this stage.

MR BLAKE

I'm sorry Sir. I understood that under the Immigration laws visitors do require some sort of entry permit - be it a tourist permit or work permit - but I understood they did require

THE PRESIDENT

Maybe a matter of definitions: simply a visa - in a strict sense, just a visa.

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I, too, would like to support this Motion; and I think landing tax as it is written is certainly still important because we do have a considerable amount of visitors by sea who would well assist us in our budget. The embarkation tax on the aircraft is fair enough, but a disembarkation one also could result in some handsome income. The airport - as Mr Smith has said - has got to pay for itself, or the jolly old tax-payer will get stung anyway. Although I understand it's been christened "the black ghost" I don't see why it can't come alive and do as well in the future; and every opportunity to raise cash to assist the maintenance of the airport - which we've discussed for a long time, and we know this is a problem that we have to get over, and this is one way in which the outside visitor can assist us. I don't think he will object to this; he pays it if he wants to go into any other country; I don't think he will object to paying it here.

I would like to support the Motion.

MR BOUND

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would just like to say, on rising to support this Motion, that this echoes my views expressed in one or two committees during the past year. I think it is only right that we should impose a tax. It should, of course, be extended not only to aircraft, but particularly to tour vessels, and it shouldn't present any problem at all.

Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion.

/MR HADDEN

MR HADDEN

Your Excellency, I, too, support the Motion. I think it is a very necessary one and I doubt if there would be any complications. I just wonder, Sir, whether born and bred Falkland Islanders returning from home for a holiday shouldn't be exempt - that is the only point.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Generally I am in sympathy with this proposal, but I would like to mention that I think it is rather an unusual tax. I don't think there are many places in the world where it is imposed. I have visited quite a number of countries, - probably 50 or 60 countries - and I've only paid on one occasion, and that was to Lt Commander Dorien Smith on the island of Tresco in the Scilly Islands - it was 20p; but I'm sure that I would have visited all the other countries even if there had been a tax. I support the Motion but would like to consider it again after Lord Shackleton's report is received; because this is a point which the team leader, Mr Mould, looked into with great care when he was here and he'd want to make a recommendation on this. So subject to recommendations in the Shackleton report I support the proposal.

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think this is a most useful proposal and, of course, if it was instituted and we were to get the sort of tourism which one might call the "locust" type tourists, that we've had in the last two or three years, it would yield something in the region of £37,000 which I am sure would be most welcome to the Treasury. I think it is certainly worth proceeding with; I have some doubts about the implementation of it in the terms of the Motion as it is put forward: I think there might well be some other exemptions necessary that perhaps the Mover might agree to; I can only refer to one or two at the moment - for instance, labour imported for farms; civil servants who come out from UK. Another difficulty may arise, in fact, in adopting the Honourable Seconder's suggestion of tying it to an entry permit, because normally tourists, as such, - the ones who would yield the greatest revenue from this tax - would not, to the best of my knowledge, require an entry permit. I have in mind the people who would come here perhaps on the Lindblad Explorer and similar vessels; they are genuine tourists and they don't, normally, here or anywhere else, require an entry permit. And I think a method of collecting total tax from ships might be devised. Subject to those reservations I think it is certainly worth investigating. But I take the Honourable Financial Secretary's point, which I think is very valid; that we do know that Lord Shackleton looked very closely at this matter and it might be worth while considering this very sensible and important Motion together with the recommendations in the Shackleton Report. It may be, for instance, that the economists who studied this will say that this is a short-term gain which would offset a long-term tourism industry. This is what we really want - we want revenue from tourism as an industry. If this is to have a deterrent effect on tourism in its early days and stifle tourism before it really gets going, then I would find difficulty in accepting this. I'm not saying it will have adverse effects - it could. But subject to those reservations I think the Motion should be supported.

/THE PRESIDENT

THE PRESIDENT

Just one point to clarify, Mr Chief Secretary: your use of the phrase "locust type tourism". I think that's my own - possibly borrowed from me - but I think that by that we understand vessels like the Enrico C, the Regina Prima and so on, that would come in with hundreds of so-called tourists who, in fact, had of course come essentially to buy the good things in our stores. I think that was what we had in mind. As I see it, the only way of collecting tax from people like that would be on the bulk system aboard the ship; we certainly wouldn't have the manpower ashore to collect it. But that is what was meant by the word "locust". Thank you.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, perhaps a few remarks on this. I welcome the Chief Secretary's recommendations or suggestions on possible exemptions; and also the Member for East Falkland on the exemption of native or Falkland Island born persons. I think it would be good to extend the exemption to their wives and families. An embarkation tax would present perhaps some difficulties rather than a landing tax, especially in the case of tourist vessels where a tourist would come ashore, and if he wished to go away he would have to pay the tax: we may find ourselves with a few more inhabitants - but other than that, Sir, I have no more to say.

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you very much indeed, Mr Smith.

The Motion was carried.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

APPROPRIATION 1976/77 BILL 1976

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Your Excellency, Honourable Members:

Before dealing with the 1976/77 Estimates I will refer to the revised estimates of revenue and expenditure for the current year 1975/76.

Ordinary expenditure is revised at £1,013,000; that is, £58,000 more than the original estimate. Fire fighting equipment, replacement parts and fuel for the Beaver aircraft were heavy expenditure items which had to be purchased during the current year and were unforeseen at the time of last year's budget. Other substantial increases in expenditure were on drugs for the medical department, and official telegrams.

On the revenue side the forecast for company tax proved over-optimistic and the drop in the revised estimate is largely due to the under-estimation of expenditure incurred by companies. The revenue forecast for import duties was also over-optimistic, and this appears to be partly due to lower demand for dutiable goods to be shipped out of the Colony. In spite of these decreases in revenue, the revised estimate of revenue is very much higher than forecast; in fact, the revenue rose by £110,000 net. This is very largely due to higher income from investments, in particular the transfer of £140,000 surplus income from the Savings Bank.

The revised surplus for 1975/76 is £281,000, compared with £229,000; that is, £52,000 more than was forecast last June.

The Ordinary Reserves of the Colony at the 30th June 1975 stood at £285,000, and with the substantial surplus from 1975/76 they should reach £566,000 at the beginning of our new financial year, 1st July, 1976.

This build-up in the reserves is encouraging but, as forecast last year, the prospects for the coming year are not so rosy. A deficit of £83,000 is forecast and this would have been much higher had it not been possible to include another windfall of £90,000 from the Government Savings Bank which it is forecast will be the surplus investment income available in July.

Company tax is expected to be very much lower in the coming year due to the budget being based on the 1974/75 wool clip which in fact averaged in the region of 52p per kilo. Revenue from the issue of coins has been slow in coming in but we should receive £25,000 before the end of June and at this stage it appears that a further £25,000 should be received during the next financial year.

The estimated net proceeds from the sale of postage stamps for the forthcoming year should amount to £70,000. The bulk of this revenue is expected to come from the new definitive issue which is being referred to as the "mail vessels" issue. The revenue estimate also includes the "Silver Jubilee" issue and an issue to commemorate the opening of the Cape Pembroke Airport.

A substantial increase in revenue is shown under the item referred to as transfer from the Currency Note Income Account and this investment income is generated through the increase in the number of Falkland Islands notes in circulation.

Before referring to the budget proposals for the coming year, I feel it would be wrong not to forewarn you of the need to consider increasing Stanley rates principally because of the increase in cost of pumping and treating the Stanley water supply, and of other increasing costs, for example, the Fire Brigade maintenance and garbage disposal. However, Stanley rates are not fixed by the Legislative Council, but by the Standing Finance Committee of this Council which will not meet until after the Select Committee meeting. I therefore am prevented from giving details at this stage.

This budget is not a tough one, but some modest proposals are made to increase revenue with the main increases imposed on voluntary spending:

It is proposed to increase the rate of duty on beer from 11p to 33p per gallon, approximately 2½p per can.

The rate of duty on spirits it is proposed to increase from £9.60 to £12 per gallon, 40p more per bottle.

/It is

It is proposed to increase wine duty by 30 per cent and to impose a higher percentage increase on fortified wines such as port wine and sherry.

It is proposed to increase the duty on tobacco from £2.00 to £2.40 per pound.

It is proposed that the rate of duty on cigarettes be increased from £2.40 to £2.88 per pound, that is, by approximately 2p per packet of 20 cigarettes.

It is also proposed to increase the duty on cigars by 20 per cent from £3.50 to £4.20 per pound.

It is proposed to increase the annual Wireless Licence fee from £2 to £3.

It is proposed to increase Darwin Boarding School fees from £36 per annum to £42 per annum and consider introducing a concessionary rate for the second and subsequent children of the same family attending Darwin School.

It is proposed that the rental for telephones be increased from £12 to £15 per annum. Business telephone rates to be increased from £24 to £30.

It is proposed that local postage rate be increased from 2p to 3p per letter and to increase the charge of 2p per word levied on internal telegrams to 3p per word.

It is proposed to adjust the rental of Government quarters to yield approximately 10 per cent more revenue.

Under Aviation head of revenue a token sum has been included in 1976/77 Estimates to denote revenue from the proposal to introduce an embarkation tax at Cape Pembroke Airport. This tax would be payable by everybody, travelling from Cape Pembroke airport. Legislation is required for imposing such a tax and it is hoped that consideration will be given to this matter later in the year. It is considered that the embarkation tax will need to be fairly high to help to defray some of the recurrent costs of the airport. A suggestion has been made that it should be in the region of £5 per passenger.

It is estimated that these proposals will yield approximately £40,000.

On the expenditure side of the estimate I will refer to a number of the major proposals included and some of the more interesting items:

Under Government House Estimates provision is made for an apprentice gardener.

The Aviation estimates include four new posts for the internal air service: two trainee pilots and two apprentice mechanics.

Also under the Aviation head of expenditure provision is made to cover recurrent expenditure at the new airport for part of 1976/77 financial year. Three new posts have been inserted in the Estimates, namely: Airport Superintendent; Assistant Airport Superintendent and Air Traffic Controller; and Secretary.

Besides normal maintenance some items of special expenditure have been included such as office furniture and furnishings for the Airport building; runway sweeper and painting machine for the air strip.

/The total

The total expenditure contemplated for 1976/77 on the Cape Pembroke Airport is slightly in excess of £12,000. It should be noted that this expenditure relates to approximately nine months of the financial year, and during this period it is expected that maintenance costs will be low. It should further be noted that this expenditure relates very closely to the manner in which current operations from the temporary strip are conducted and should there be any expansion in the number of flights, expenditure will almost certainly grow.

The Education estimates include the upgrading of one of the certificated teacher posts to Teacher-in-charge, Junior School.

The Education estimates also provide for an additional clerk.

Under the medical section of the estimates £11,800 is included for the proposed campaign against Hydatid disease. The Senior Medical Officer has also proposed further expenditure of between £6,000 and £7,000 on replacing and updating some of the professional equipment at the hospital and some items for improving the comfort of the patients.

Under the Miscellaneous Head of expenditure £7,600 is included in respect of the local expenses relating to the Grasslands Trials Unit.

In the Public Works Department it is proposed to increase the establishment by one carpenter. The Public Works estimates also contain provision of approximately £10,000 for replacement tanks and improvements at the Water Filtration Plant. £1,340 is included for the conversion of selected staff quarters and the Grasslands Trials Unit office to gas-heating. Provision of £550 is also included for a new office for the Headmaster at the Senior School.

Provision of £1,000 is made for retaining walls for the Government oil-storage tanks and £7,000 for two replacement landrovers, one for the Falkland Islands Government Air Service and one for the Police. A token sum has been inserted for the consideration of erecting a block of toilets in the vicinity of the Public jetty. Just over £8,000 is included for a new Theatre complex at the KEM Hospital including an emergency generator.

Under the Secretariat and Treasury a token estimate has been inserted for consideration of the recruitment of a Development Planner with assistance from the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation. The sum of £11,000 is included to cover the fees of the Auditors during their forthcoming visit to the Colony in January next to audit the 1974/75 and 1975/76 accounts.

To make the Estimates realistic 20 per cent is included to cover inflation, and provision has been made for adjustment in cost-of-living allowances.

The Development Estimates included the following items of special interest: £37,000 for the new R/T network; £10,000 for Tourism loans; and last, but not least £12,000 for the Swimming Pool. At this stage I would like to mention that an application has already gone forward to the European Economic Community for financial assistance towards the Swimming Pool Project. In addition a further substantial sum for this project is on deposit in the Government Savings Bank.

Of the Development expenditure envisaged in 1976/77 £50,000 will be available in the form of soft loans from H M Government and the remaining £30,000 is to be borne by the Colony's Development Fund.

/It is

It is estimated that the balance of the Colony's Development Fund at 30th June 1977 will be slightly more than £50,000.

To sum all these figures up it is predicted that the total reserves of the Colony, ie both the Ordinary Reserves and the amount in the Colony's Development Fund, will be in the region of £530,000 at the end of June 1977.

These reserves cannot be regarded as other than minimal.

It is customary to make some prediction at Budget time regarding the future financial situation of a Territory. However, this year I am reluctant to attempt this with the knowledge that our economic future has been assessed by a high-powered and eminent team of economists and that their report should be available to Honourable Members and the public by about the end of this month.

In spite of what I have just said I am prepared to mention that I feel confident that we will manage financially providing we face up to our responsibility to prune expenditure and make regular adjustments to revenue.

Finally I consider it appropriate to thank members of the last Legislative Council for their support in sharing the unpopular but essential task of keeping expenditure under control and introducing unpalatable revenue proposals. Without the action taken by the last Council the new Council would have inherited a much weaker financial structure.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

CHIEF SECRETARY

If I may say, Sir, I would like to congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary on his usual lucid speech and on his lucid memorandum, and in the competent way in which he has discharged the most complex task in circumstances which yearly become more and more difficult.

I beg to second the Motion.

The Bill was then given its first reading and Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading.

MR BAKE

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I, too, would like to congratulate the Financial Secretary on the production of these estimates. The saying is that only a juggler can squeeze a quart into a pint pot, but I think our Financial Secretary has managed to do the reverse - he's managed to get a quart out of a pint pot - and for this I must congratulate him. However, I must also say that this is to me a most disappointing budget. I would remind the Financial Secretary of a reply he made to a question in the budget session of 1975, when he was asked about family allowances, and I quote "I reiterate the Government cannot give any assurance in this matter, but I confirm that the question of personal allowances is to be studied before the next tax year." That tax year began on the 1st of January 1976. There is no proposal in this budget or on the Order Paper for any revision of our taxation system. Today, if you wish to avoid paying tax you can do it in one of two ways: first you can be a boy of 16, married with one child, working in camp, when your income would just allow you not to pay tax; and secondly, you could get the post of Secretariat messenger and have one child. Only those two people are in a position not to pay tax. Of the Secretariat messenger's splendid salary, $500 has been awarded to him since 1971 to cover the rise in his cost of living. I am extremely sad that as yet there are no proposals to readjust the distribution of taxation. I agree that we can't afford to reduce income tax overall, but I do believe that we have a moral duty to spread or re-adjust the burden by increasing the allowances for wife and children; by upgrading the bottom point and by taking a few fluid ounces extra off the ten-gallon hats. I earnestly urge the Financial Secretary to look closely at this matter.

/you

Secondly I note that there is no suggestion yet for a little bit of streamlining that I've personally been after for a long time, of converting the payment for our medical system - which is a dual system where in some sections you pay, and some you don't - into a free system, raising the revenue from the OAP stamps: in other words, when you pay your OAP stamp, a proportion of the money paid for the stamp would go to cover medical benefits. This, I have always felt, has a particular advantage in that, of course, your old-age pensioners have their medicine free, and people who can afford it pay a little for it. Last year, at this time, myself and another Honourable Member in Council complained about the slow payment of tax: still no proposals to encourage people - not people in actual fact, companies in particular - to pay their tax more quickly. And also last year, as we've debated today, we suggested the introduction of a tourist tax. Today perhaps we've taken one more step forward. It is sad, I feel, that the only way we can make our budget approach balance point is by screwing the funds of the lowest paid.

I thank you, Sir.

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: The Honourable Member for the West Falkland has spoken extremely ably about a lot of things I'd like to speak about - taxation levels in particular - I've been asking for a reform of our taxation system for a good while, it bears so heavily on the lowest paid - quite apart from that I think the upper limits could well afford to pay a larger share. The question of company tax, which in this coming financial year - in the 1975 financial year - did not yield very much: I consider that the level of company taxation should be increased. I think that if small firms can equip their employees with expensive aeroplanes they can well afford to divert some of their surplus money to Government revenue. The Honourable Member for the West Falkland covered so many of the points that all I'm going to say about that is that I agree with almost everything he has said. However, to take some proposed revenue increases - tiny little increases in amounts of actual money raised, but very annoying for the people having to pay. There's one here which is only going to raise £230 - and we're talking of raising a million. Proposing to raise the Darwin Boarding School fees from £36 to £42. Why not decide whether Darwin Boarding School is going to be free or whether one is going to have a proper fee for it, and institute a means test, so that those who can afford it least get some of the benefit. Wireless licences - proposed to increase them from £2 to £3. It's just going to annoy people - it's going to raise very little. I consider the quality generally of the transmission is so poor that certainly camp residents shouldn't be asked to pay that. I will oppose the increases to wireless licences. I will oppose the increase to Darwin Boarding School. I will oppose the increase on wine.

/I will

I will oppose the extent of the increase on beer. Stanley telephone rental: look what it's going to yield. Is that going to make any difference to our budget of one million pounds? I will oppose the increase. Local telegrams - another annoying thing - I will oppose that increase. And I will oppose the local postage increase. I've already said that I think company tax should be increased.

The reason I oppose all these things is that the amount of money they raise is very small, but the amount of annoyance they cause to people is very large. I am quite certain with the increases on company taxation in normal years we can raise far more money; we can cause far less hardship and far less annoyance, except to a few industrial owners. The Chief Financial Secretary has told us that he is budgeting for a deficit of £82,000. Every year since I've been connected with Council we're told that allowance is made for everything. I hope it is in this case. The last financial year I think SFC voted something like £130,000 extra. A lot of it was bad budgeting - not allowing enough for cost-of-living increases. Some of it was inevitable, but the difference shouldn't be that large. I only hope that we're not going to be asked to vote a similar sort of sum this year on top of the estimate here. It would be a deficit, of course, of £200,000, and if we didn't "rob" the Government Savings Bank of £90,000 it would be a deficit of £300,000. We could make our reserves of £500,000 look rather slim. However, I must congratulate the Honourable Chief Financial Secretary on the precise way in which he has presented his report, and I must honestly confess that I wouldn't like to be in his shoes.

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: I, too, would like to support the other two Members in thanking the Financial Secretary for displaying such a fine speech on our budget, and how he's managed to have a total reserve of £530,000 in a year of inflation I don't understand. Nevertheless he forecasts this at the end of 1977. I, too, am a little puzzled at these little increases. I know they are annoying, but if you have no increases this year, and a bigger one in two years time, they are equally annoying - but I don't think there is any necessity for too many of these small increases, because it only makes people discontented. I think the two previous speakers have got some good points in the Company taxation.

I would join the other two colleagues in trying to prune expenditure, as the Financial Secretary has said, and adjust the revenue by some other means which we consider to be fair to the public. We are living still in a world of inflation and we will be despite the fact that Great Britain thinks hers is coming under control, and let's hope it will. The aftermath of that will still be with us for another 18 months - I would estimate that anyway - and we're still going to face another tough year. But for some reason all budgets seem to be disappointing on the date they're introduced and I look forward to our Select Committee meetings to look at the expenditure and the revenue in more detail.

Thank you.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: I would like to say what a great impression has been made upon me by the way in which the Honourable Financial Secretary has presented the incredibly detailed and complex structure on our financial matters. We are fortunate indeed to have our financial affairs in such capable hands. I am in agreement with many of the things which the Honourable Member for West Falkland has put forward, and being a new Member to Council I don't feel qualified to speak at length at this stage, but I think that I should allow myself to be guided by the wisdom of some of the elder Members of Council.

/in agreement

Thank you.

MR BOUND

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I too would like to add my congratulations to the Honourable Financial Secretary for his presentation of the budget. The estimates are always a complex matter and I think if I spoke on all the subjects I have in mind we'd be here for a long time this morning. However, I would like to agree with the remarks made by the Honourable Member for the East Falkland about the niggling effect that small increases can have on such items as postage, telephones, and a hundred and one other small services. I know the argument against it is that if you don't increase now you'll have to double it next year, or sooner or later. But I really believe that there are many of these small services, if you like, should be an absolute death as a service in a community where we don't have too many luxuries.

What I would not agree with is - looking at the same Honourable Member - I would not put my neck out and say that I am going to oppose any item on these estimates. Obviously I shall oppose some and I shall agree with others - in Committee - but until one has heard all the arguments for and against these proposals I think it is wrong to say that you are going to shoot this one down - or the other one down - and I shall be content to listen to the views and considered opinions of those who have put these things up, perhaps to be shot down.

Thank you.

MR HADDEN

Your Excellency, as everyone knows the Chief Financial Secretary has to produce these estimates every year. It is up to us round this table and when we sit in Committee whether we accept or not what he has proposed. I am sure it's going to take some time for that. I congratulate the Chief Financial Secretary; he must have put in a lot of overtime on that job - I hope he'll be suitably recompensed. I agree also with John Smith that as time goes on the picture will probably emerge.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

First of all I would like to thank Honourable Members for the kind things they said - and I have a few comments on the other things. I find that presenting a budget and including all these small niggling little things is difficult, but is something which has got to be done or, as Mr Bound said quite rightly, that you do it in one big lump, which the public do not like. They do not accept a heavy increase all at one time. If you do it gradually it's more acceptable. This is understandable. Most of the small charges are simply adjustments to take account of inflation - perhaps a little more or less. Income tax personal allowances: the Honourable Elected Member for the West Falkland quite rightly referred to this. I did mention that - or gave an assurance that - it would be looked at. And it was looked at, and referred to the Shackleton Team, because the Honourable Member for the East Falkland stated that the whole tax structure of the Colony was wrong - he was one of the prime movers for having the Shackleton survey here. It would be folly to move at this stage, before we consider that Report. The whole tax structure must be considered overall - not small personal allowances taken out of it - and also what the Colony can afford. The medical fees were also referred to today. It is a fact that the Senior Medical Officer has put forward a very comprehensive proposal for a new system of collecting medical fees. This has also been referred to the Shackleton team, and quite rightly so; it is a major, important step.

With regard to the slow payment of companies tax I would like to say that a great deal of action has been taken in this matter. Not as far as legislation is concerned, for very little legislation is required in this connection. As a matter of fact, the Income Tax Officer of the Colony has worked hard in bringing companies to the point of payment, and also, our official representative in Britain has also attacked the UK companies, with success. A great deal of work has been done in this connection. With regard to making proposals for giving free services, such as a free boarding school, I don't think the tax-payer would ever agree to that - surely the people who have to be fed have got to pay for it no matter whether it is at home or at the school: the small increase takes account of the rising cost of food, etc. I don't think it's right to swing everything on to the tax-payer. I think the people who use the services should help to pay for this. As a matter of fact, it's rather strange that when government intends to increase revenue there is a great noise made; but I find that the whole thing is just a matter of sequence: for instance, if the freight rate goes up - if more freight charges go on a bottle of whisky - what does a person do? He buys it; he growls about it; he drinks it. In the case of Government, they growl about it, but I guess they'll all buy it - and drink it.

The Bill was then read a second time and, on the proposal of the Chief Secretary, seconded by the Financial Secretary, it was referred to a Select Committee of the House.

Council resumed at 12 noon on Friday 25th June 1976.

CHIEF SECRETARY

The Select Committee appointed by this Council has now sat and considered the Appropriation 1976/77 Bill together with the Estimates for 1976/77. Its report will be put to Council in a moment by the Financial Secretary. The task committed to the Committee was to examine the Bill and the Estimates and this it has done item by item but looking at the overall picture of the Colony's finances as well. It has agonised over many of the items; it has not achieved perhaps what it was set out to achieve - a balanced budget - but it has pruned where it found it necessary although it has also, in looking at the overall position of the Colony's fiscal position, met the Estimates realistically where this has needed to be done. In making this very brief introduction to the report which will be given by the Honourable Financial Secretary I should like to pay tribute to the extraordinary effort put into this report by the Honourable Financial Secretary and his staff. I should also like to pay tribute, Sir, to the onerous and responsible duties shouldered in this connection by Councillors who, at one and the same time, had to try and prune and regulate the Colony's finances, realising that by so doing they often become targets for criticism and often the most unpopular people in the Colony. But I am sure that I echo the feelings of all Councillors when I say that nobody round this table set out to achieve anything but the future good and prosperity of this Colony as far as he was able.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Your Excellency, before dealing with the adjustments to Revenue and Expenditure I wish to notify you of the Committee's recommendations regarding the proposed revenue increases:

1. That the proposal to increase the Customs Duties on beer, wine, spirits, cigarettes, cigars and tobacco be adopted.
2. That the proposed increase in Darwin Boarding School fees should not be implemented.
3. That the proposed increase in the annual wireless licence was not approved.
4. That the proposed increase in local postage was not approved.
5. That the proposed increase in local telegrams be implemented.
6. That the proposed increase in Government house rents be implemented.

In addition the Committee recommends that the following fees should be reviewed:

- a) Registration of Trade Marks and other registration fees;
- b) Port dues, pilotage and allied charges.

Also, before referring to the individual increases and decreases, I would like to mention that a new Head of Service under Expenditure has been introduced to cover all training expenses, in particular, overseas training; and some items included in the 1976/77 Estimates have been transferred from the Departmental Heads to the new item eg the trainee pilots and apprentice aircraft mechanics.

Another point of interest is the increase in provision for loans: to consider a policy of making loans available on reasonable terms to persons who have left the Colony after a substantial period of residence and who wish to return to take up employment here.

I now refer to the amendments made in Select Committee to the Estimates:

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you very much, Mr Financial Secretary. As always a most clear and comprehensive account of the mighty labours that you officials and, above all, Councillors, have put in during the last whatever it was - it seems an eternity, but it was about a week, I suppose. I'm very grateful; it's very clear, and I think we can now move on. I declare the Council to be in Committee.

In the Committee stage, Clause I of the Bill was agreed and consideration of Clause 2 was deferred until after the Schedule had been considered.

The Enacting Clause and Title were agreed.

The Financial Secretary, seconded by the Chief Secretary, moved that the Schedule should stand part of the Bill, subject to the following amendments -

Council resumed.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1974/75) BILL 1976

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, this Bill, the Supplementary Appropriation Bill 1974/75, is a necessary formality to legalise the expenditure incurred in excess of the amounts granted by the 1974/75 Appropriation Ordinance, Ordinance No 5 of 1974. All the amounts referred to in the Bill have been submitted to and considered in detail by the Standing Finance Committee and approved by that Committee. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then passed through all its stages without debate or amendment.

ADMINISTRATION OF ESTATES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1976

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, it might be appropriate to refer to the procedure for taking Bills which, in normal circumstances elsewhere, might be that the explanation is given at the second reading; here it has been customary, and I see no objection to it in Standing Orders, for the explanation for a Bill to be given at the first reading, and that we therefore follow the procedure as has been used in this House for many years.

Turning to this particular Bill, Sir, it refers to the duties that the Registrar of the Supreme Court has to undertake. As we all know, the RSC undertakes several, if not numerous, a variety of duties, and amongst these is a fair amount of work in administering unrepresented estates in his official capacity as Official Administrator. This is a statutory office created by legislation to which the RSC is appointed by law. These estates are often not large, but nevertheless the administration of them, and this position, involve a considerable amount of work and time by the Legal Office which, I think we all agree, is already under considerable strain, not to the extent that it shows, but certainly to the extent that it is observed by those who see the work of this office. At one time, Sir, the Official Administrator was remunerated at the rate of 5 per cent of the gross amount of the unrepresented estate, but this practice lapsed some time ago, although 7½ per cent of the gross amount of the estate is paid into general revenue to defray the cost of administering it, under Section 18 of the Administration of Estates Ordinance. Government believes that the Registrar should have this remuneration restored to him and should be remunerated in a modest way for this work, and accordingly has advised that he receive 5 per cent of the $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent collected under the law and that this 5 per cent be deducted from the $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent levied on the gross estate - there would therefore be no enhanced burden on the estate. Government has therefore, with the approval of the Executive Council, remitted this Bill to the Legislature. It may, in discussing this Bill, consider that the proposal doesn't go far enough, and that the 5 per cent charged by the Official Administrator should be added on top of the $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent, but the Bill does not make provision for this, although attention is drawn to it as a point to be debated, if need be, in discussion.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then passed through all its stages without debate or amendment.

DOGS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1975

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency: this is a very simple Bill and the Objects and Reasons, I think, adequately state its purpose, which is to authorise the Postmaster to issue Dog Licences and collect the licence fees instead of the Superintendent of Police as formerly. This is necessary as part of a progressive programme to relieve the Police of duties not directly related to police work. Unfortunately it cannot be done administratively but must be done by an Ordinance.

I beg to move the Bill be read a first time.

The Bill was then given its first and second readings and at the Committee stage the Chief Secretary proposed an amendment, which was agreed, to change all references to 1975 in the Bill to 1976. The Bill then passed through its remaining stages and was adopted.

Council adjourned at 1.45 pm

When Council resumed at 2.30 pm the Honourable A B Hadden BEM was absent with the permission of the President, as he found it necessary to return to Darwin that afternoon.

PILOTAGE BILL 1976

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency: this Bill, very briefly, has been found to be expedient to enact local legislation for the control of pilotage. At this first reading I wish to restrict my remarks to the bare Objects and Reasons. I contemplate there will be some debate on this and it would be unnecessary, I suggest, to repeat my words. I therefore beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

/CHIEF SECRETARY

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency: many years ago the Colony possessed legislation which regulated the licensing and placing of pilots on ships operating in the waters of the Colony. For some reason which I haven't been entirely successful in unearthing, these powers were allowed to lapse in 1950, at the time of the last revision of the laws. Since that time, although pilots have been put on vessels entering the waters of the Colony, the pilots themselves have not been licensed and it's been done ~~administra-~~ tively without any legal backing; so that not only have the pilots themselves been in a vulnerable position, but also those who have hired them. It therefore seems sensible that we should have some legislation which would give us control, should we ever require it, to licence pilots, both in the interests of the ports and in the interests of the vessels using these ports. The Bill we are now considering, I have no doubt, has some defects, and one I identify immediately is that it lacks any provision for a steersman to guide the official who has to try and pilot it through this Council. Honourable Members, and notably my Honourable nautical friend, have been kind enough to point out some of the shallows and wrecks that lie in the way of this Bill, but I am sure there are still a few just beneath the surface which they may not have pointed out. But if I can deal with those I know - it has been said that it's a Bill which operates almost entirely against the pilot in its penal sanctions, and that it's Victorian in this respect. I defer to experts on this; but we have done our best, I think, in trying to base it on what legislation is, to my knowledge, current in the UK, namely the United Kingdom Pilotage Act of 1913; and the penal sanctions which relate to the misoperation by a pilot, or the operation illegally of pilots are, I think, as much in the interests of the licensed pilot as they may act as a deterrent or a penal sanction against the pilot. In very much a similar way any professional person operates under a code of ethics - sometimes enshrined in the law, sometimes not - but however it's done the penal sanctions are just as much a protection for the properly licensed and properly operating pilot as they are against one who is acting illegally - and there are, of course, limits on the extent of a liability of a pilot written into the law expressly; pilots may limit their liability by the depositing of a bond so, although much can be made of this, to my mind it's really written in as a protection for those persons who are pilots.

The Bill has also been criticised on grounds that it might not be wide enough in scope. To this I would reply that it is largely an enabling Ordinance which does give in its last clause powers for subsidiary legislation to govern most of the aspects of pilotage, including the extent to which pilotage fees may be required of vessels - which I think is one of the important points raised with me privately. Obviously any Bill of this sort may have to be amended in the future as it operates and seems to be deficient, and I think it is nevertheless important that we get this on the Statute so that we can have some control over pilotage should we require. To give time for its provisions to become known, and for the Governor in Council to look at possible subsidiary legislation, I would propose that it be brought into effect - if it suits the convenience and meets the approval of this Council - on the first day of January 1977; that is giving it just over six months notice. This, I think, could cause no inconvenience to anyone.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

I beg to second the Motion.

/THE PRESIDENT

THE PRESIDENT

May I congratulate the Chief Secretary on his courageous attempt to pilot this. The Motion is that the Bill be read a second time. Does any Member wish to speak to the Motion?

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: in following the Honourable Chief Secretary I always feel at somewhat of a disadvantage because he manages to put his points - though I don't necessarily consider them valid - so well. I am not opposed to the Bill in principle, but I'm going to propose that it be referred to Select Committee. I am not opposed to the Objects of the Bill as such, but I think it has quite a few inherent problems, as it were, built into it.

If one takes the licensing of pilots, which it is proposed, I think in Clause 3, should be done by persons appointed by His Excellency the Governor: on the face of it that would seem a very reasonable provision but, at the same time, there are probably two, three, or possibly four persons in the whole Colony who are capable (I don't say 'qualified' - they may not necessarily have a piece of paper) who are capable of piloting ships anywhere in the Falklands and, as these would be the very people you would have to have as licensed pilots, it is rather difficult to see where the people who are to license them are to come from as, obviously they are going to have to have at least comparable skills in the field to be able to tell when a man is proficient or not. I think that's one aspect which should be considered by Select Committee. If one comes to the actual examination of applicants for licences; again you have the problem of who's to do it. I might apply for a pilot's licence. It so happens that I have a piece of paper which is supposed to indicate that I've got a certain amount of skill in nautical matters, and it so happens that nobody else in the Colony has it. I don't see, therefore, that anybody in the Colony is qualified to deny me a pilot's licence. But this doesn't mean that I am any better than somebody who hasn't got a piece of paper: in fact, I know perfectly well there are several people in the Colony far more qualified than I am to act as pilots. Examination of pilots would seem to me to present something of a headache. It would be no use asking masters, captains of visiting warships, to sit on a Board to examine and license these intending pilots. A pilot is basically someone who has practical knowledge of the area concerned, and no captain of a visiting ship - warship or otherwise - has any practical knowledge of the area concerned. I'm not saying there isn't a solution which can be pointed out if this Bill is referred to Select Committee, but it doesn't immediately occur to me what the solution is.

The Honourable Chief Secretary has dealt with the very numerous clauses concerning offences by pilots - and there is no doubt these clauses are extremely numerous. They seem to include such things as if he drops the anchor and somebody doesn't agree with it and he loses the thing, he is liable to lose his bond: but who is going to decide whether or not he dropped it in an inadvised manner? the Captain of the ship? He's got a vested interest: the Colonial Secretary? With due respect, he knows nothing about it.

There is, of course, a contradiction in clause 23, I think, which states pilotage is not compulsory and then goes on to say that the employment of pilots is not compulsory. Well, of course, these are two very different things. Many countries in the world don't necessarily require you to have a pilot, but nearly every country in the world, no matter where you go along their coastline, compels you to pay the pilotage. If you make the employment of pilots compulsory it means you have to have facilities to put them on ships; you have to determine where your entry ports are. In our case, quite obviously we could only undertake to put a pilot on a ship off Port Stanley, because we haven't got boating facilities anywhere else - Fox Bay, for instance, Government has no facilities for putting pilots on ships if they entered there. There is conflict anyway in the wording of this clause. I'm not opposed to the principle of the Bill, but I do suggest, Your Excellency, Honourable Members, that the Bill be referred to Select Committee for further consideration of the various matters.

/no matter

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you very much Mr Monk.

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, far be it from me to attempt to cross swords with the Honourable Member on this. I will wholly support him and suggest - or confirm - what he says that it would be to the advantage of the whole Bill and the Colony if this matter be considered by persons with intimate knowledge of the matter.

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I'm afraid I am puzzled at the difference between pilots and pilotage. I think we have to get these pilotage things correct, but if we want people with practical knowledge, and we have no-one who has this, it seems to me we'd need another expert. I hope there is a way round this, but at the moment I just can't foresee it and perhaps a Select Committee on the case might come up with an answer. At the moment I am still a bit puzzled.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I can say very little about this except that it's a very complex Bill altogether. It places a tremendous amount of responsibility on the pilot; as far as I can see it ties him up quite a lot, almost completely. I feel I should follow the Honourable Member for East Falkland in that it goes before a Select Committee.

At the Committee stage the Bill was referred to a Select Committee to sit while the Council is in recess and report back to the next meeting of Council. The Select Committee to consist of the Honourable A B Monk JP and the Honourable J Smith under the Chairmanship of the Honourable Chief Secretary, with the power to co-opt others with specialised knowledge as required.

LIVESTOCK (AMENDMENT) BILL 1976

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, in similar fashion to the way in which we dealt with the previous Bill, perhaps not with the same result, I would propose that I speak to this at the second reading and therefore beg at this stage merely to move that the Bill be read the first time.

THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

/CHIEF SECRETARY

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, if I was in deep water before

I have been in deep water twice: once over the Passenger Boats Bill and again on the Pilotage Bill, and I must confess that technically the Bill that now confronts us - although in an entirely different area of activity - is nonetheless complex and one on which I must confess not complete ignorance, because I've done a lot of work on it, talked to a lot of people about it, and studied the matter as a layman at quite considerable length, but nevertheless it is the inexpert view. With that reservation, Your Excellency, I still feel that Council would wish to take this Bill very carefully because what it contains has been framed by the Specialist Committee for Ked Eradication established by the Falkland Islands Sheep Owners' Association, and I have no doubt that they know what they are talking about. The question is whether what they've recommended has been properly translated into legal language. On that score I am reassured because we have recently had the benefit of our legal adviser, and he has had direct liaison with not only the Chairman of this committee which made the proposals in the first instance, but also with the members of the GIU. So I think we have done as much as we possibly can to ensure that what the farmers want, they have got. Whether all will like it, of course, is another matter; but it does reflect the balanced view, and that is that we should strive as hard as we can to rid the Colony of ked, which, if we achieve it, will result in universal acceptance of Falkland Islands wool as of a higher quality perhaps than any other in the world so far as ked stain is concerned.

The important parts of the Bill, I think, are those contained in Clauses 4, 7, 9 and 10, particularly those relating to a cumulative penalty on a person who makes no effort to clear ked from his sheep after having been given notice in accordance with section 17 of the Ordinance, if it is approved, in accordance with Clause 9 of the Bill. If this is acceptable, it will mean that next March or April notice will be given to farmers who have affected sheep to clear their flocks of ked, and if they do not achieve this within a period of one year, then the penal sanctions of that section - Section 17 - will apply, which gives discretionary powers to a Court to impose fines of between $\frac{1}{2}$ p and 2p per sheep on the entire station. If, in subsequent years this result is not achieved, then a further penalty of 2p for every sheep will be applied.

These are not recommendations which stem directly from the Administration; these are recommendations which stem from the farmers themselves, and they are therefore an indication of the seriousness with which they regard this question. There was a proposal over a year ago to institute this law this year, but it was deferred at the request of certain farmers because it was thought that insufficient notice might be given to enable them to achieve the complete eradication of ked, particularly in some areas which were difficult. Because of that, the law was deferred for a year, and we are still giving nine months notice or so. In addition, the Administration wrote to farmers several months ago advising them that Government intended to take powers to bring these recommendations into law at the first opportunity. There will, unfortunately Sir, be some amendments which I shall have to propose at the Committee stage of the Bill. They are rather extensive, in fact, but in effect all they do is tighten up the distinction which has caused trouble all through this legislation, in trying to make a clear definition of sheep which are infected by ked or similar diseases - and I'm on very tricky ground here - and those which are infected by other sorts of parasites or diseases. We have fortunately been able to consult Mr Whitley, the Veterinary Surgeon who has recently arrived and, although none of us are entirely happy with the outcome, the definitions which are now incorporated in Section 2 of the Ordinance,

Clause 2 of the Bill, and in Schedules 2 and 3, come as close as we can at the present time to a clear definition, which will enable the law to be effective. They can be added to from time to time in the light of the knowledge gained and, in addition to that, in discussion with our Legal Adviser, who has taken note of the need in future to make the distinction between the different type of infection - or affection - even clearer by separating the Ordinance into different parts, each of which would deal with a different type of infection.

I hope that this Bill can go through. It is the culmination of the work of a lot of dedicated people and even if it is imperfect I think it is worth getting it into our legislation in its revised form; if it doesn't work we can amend it again.

Sir, I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

I beg to second the Motion

THE PRESIDENT

The Motion is that the Bill be read a second time. Does any Honourable Member wish to speak?

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, having listened to the Chief Secretary introduce the previous Bill, it would have given me great pleasure in speaking to the second reading of the Livestock Bill to have accused him of wool-gathering; however, this I cannot do. I still manage to include the phrase. I commend basically the principle of this Bill. No Ordinance in this Colony really works without public co-operation and this one is not going to be an exception; but it is our wish generally to improve our product and this seems a good way of doing it. I have but one thing to add to the introduction by the Chief Secretary - purely in the matter of clarification - and this is to point out that, although the Bill is likely to become - if passed - effective in 1977, the penal clauses of the Bill will not become effective until 1978 and therefore no-one really could complain about insufficient notice, about being caught unawares. They have two more seasons in which to bring about the clearance of either affected or infected diseases.

Sir, I beg to support the Motion.

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I will support the Motion also. The Honourable Member for West Falkland really hasn't left me much to say. I do honestly admit, in fact, that in detail I am rather confused about the Bill, because I made a conscientious effort to relate all these amendments to the original Livestock Ordinance, and I must admit that in the end I wasn't too certain what we could do with the sheep and what we couldn't. But I am quite sure that the Bill is for the benefit of the Colony. I know a legal definition has been put in here to explain the words "affected" and "infected", and I suppose it's probably sufficient. However, I do wonder whether one couldn't have problems if an affected sheep infects a clean sheep, or an infected sheep is affected by an affected sheep - but I suppose the legal people will see to it if the case arises.

I beg to support the Bill.

/MR BOWLES

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to support this Bill. Any important legislation which will make improvements to our industry and as a net result give us better quality in our wool is surely on the right track. I would also emphasise that co-operation throughout the Islands is of vital importance, and I would like to support the Bill.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I know very little about keds, lice, and fleas or anything like that, but if the introduction of this Bill is to be for the betterment of our wool industry, then I most certainly would like to support it.

MR BOUND

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, looking across this table I feel sure that there would be one or two members here who would challenge my ability to speak on a Bill which is purely related to sheep farming; nevertheless there are one or two observations I would like to make. My first reaction to this Bill was that it was discriminating in that it sets out to penalise a few farms merely by accident - I suppose - of their geographical location. In other words, those farms who own land that extends into areas like the Wickham Heights, which one would suppose make it very difficult - if not impossible - to collect every sheep at dipping time. It also seems strange to me that, if it were possible to eradicate keds from these areas, any progressive farmer would not have done so many years ago, and it would not have been necessary for us to introduce legislation at this late stage. I would have thought it more to our credit if we set out to extend some help to the farms to eradicate ked rather than impose an ever-increasing fine on those who are unfortunate enough to be unable to cope. However, on looking at the argument of the Bill I see that it was brought about by the Sheep Owners' Association themselves, and that every farmer in the Colony had ample opportunity to contest it and little or no resistance has materialised. This being so I would not oppose the Bill; in fact I would support it. However, I do feel that maybe there is an element of discrimination but, of course, no law is final and there is always opportunity to amend it if it does not prove completely successful.

THE PRESIDENT

Thank you Mr Bound. May I congratulate you on very thoughtful observations.

CHIEF SECRETARY

I beg, please, to note the general consensus of support for this legislation. Your Excellency, I have taken note of the important points made by the Honourable Mr Monk and those by the Honourable Mr Bound, and will pass them on to the Legal Adviser so that when the law is revised, as I've said earlier, hopefully these points can be dealt with quite adequately. Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT

Council is now in Committee.

/CHIEF SECRETARY

THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY seconded the Motion which was carried.

Council then resumed and the Bill as amended was read a third time and passed.

OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1976

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Your Excellency, I will follow the new procedure adopted by the Honourable Chief Secretary at this meeting and introduce the Bill on the second reading.

I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

MR BOUND seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Your Excellency, the OAP Ordinance was introduced in 1952. Next year it will celebrate its 25th anniversary. Since that date the Ordinance has been amended on many occasions and during those amendments a very important factor was left out. It excluded a pension for a widow of a pensioner who had not attained the age of 60 years. This has caused some distress in certain quarters of the community and very strong representations have been made to introduce provision to cover these unfortunate people. There was no intention of leaving them out; it was an inadvertent omission, of this I am quite certain. The position must now be rectified and in doing so members of Executive Council have made representations for legislation to go a little further and permit all widows - of pensioners and contributors - to receive a pension on attaining the age of 60 years. Should they be under the age of 60 years they will be required to contribute to the Scheme until they attain that age. But it is considered fair and just that they should receive a pension at the age of 60, rather than waiting until 65.

If this Bill is introduced, the position will be that a male contributor will receive a pension on reaching the age of 65; a female contributor will also receive a pension on reaching 65 years of age. The widow of a contributor, or the widow of a pensioner, will receive a pension on reaching 60 years of age. The Bill at first sight looks rather simple, but I would just like to examine each provision under Section 5 of the Ordinance we are now amending, to make certain it's fully understood.

Section 5(1)a covers a male contributor;

Section 5(1)b covers a female contributor;

Section 5(1)c covers the widow of a pensioner who at the time of the pensioner's death had attained the age of 60 years;

Section 5(1)d includes the widow of a pensioner who has not attained that age but provides for her on attaining the age of 60 years; and

Section 5(1)e covers the widow of a contributor who was between the age of 60 and 65 years at the time of his death - ie a fully paid-up contributor.

Section 5(1)f covers the widow of a contributor who is under the age of 60 at the date of death.

The amendments in Section 2 and 4 of this amending Bill are consequential amendments but necessary for its implementation.

I beg to move the second reading of the Bill.

MR BOUND

I beg to second the Motion

/MR BLAKE

MR BLAKE

I rise to give the principle of this Bill my wholehearted support. The OAP Ordinance has been something in which I have taken interest and I have spoken on on many occasions in this Council. However, as the second reading is basically the only time a member may speak to this Bill, I feel it is incumbent upon me to notify Council that it is my intention to introduce some amendments to the Bill. The scope of the amendments, I think, will probably be opposed by the Financial Secretary as he is bound to do, in that these amendments are not advised by the Government Actuary. The scope of these amendments will be opposed by him under No 9a of our Standing Rules and Orders which, Sir, if I may, I will quote: "Except with the recommendation or consent of the Governor signified thereto, the Council shall not proceed upon any Bill, Amendment, Motion or Petition which, in the opinion of the Governor or other Presiding Member, would dispose of, or charge, any public revenue or public funds of this Colony, or revoke or alter any disposition thereof or charge thereon, or impose, alter or repeal any rate, tax or duty."

I submit first, Sir, that the OAP Fund is not part of the privy purse. However, should your ruling be contrary and assuming I have the support of the majority of members of this Council, I beg to draw Your Excellency's attention to Rule 47 of our Standing Rules and Orders - I will quote:

"Any of these Standing Rules and Orders may be suspended with the consent of the President and the majority of Members present."

I therefore, Sir, at a later date will seek to place before Council amendments which unfortunately will be confined to participants in the contributory scheme of our OAPs, whereby pensions would be increased from £8, £5, and £5; to £9, £6, and £6 - in other words, a pound over-all increase. I anticipate a certain amount of opposition in that we are having - or it is suggested that we have - a revision of the funds, and I would, therefore, in my amendments include provision for increasing subscriptions both by subscriber and employer by 12p respectively. In this way the fund would remain undamaged. However, I feel, with the rapid rise in the cost of living that to delay an increase in the contributory pensions would be a mistake. Should my amendments be successful I would urge the Administration to produce at the earliest possible date legislation to allow a similar increase in the non-contributory pensions.

I beg, Sir, to support the Bill as a whole.

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support the Honourable Member for the West Falkland in all he said and in his proposed amendment at some future time. I'm not going to attempt to go into the detail that he has. OAP, however, has always been something which I think we should have given a lot more thought to earlier. It's quite inadequate for people's needs now and the fund is in a very healthy position. I know we get gloomy opinions from actuaries that Government's revenue should make various large contributions; however, the fund continues to grow without us taking any notice of these things. It's quite evident that the fund itself pays all the pensions at the present level and still manages to grow, without the contribution paid into it. Now I know there are future contingencies - larger pensions; more people coming on it - but it's certainly high time that pensions were increased. I support the main provisions of the unamended Bill - would that be the right way to put it? - wholeheartedly. There have been one or two cases of hardship in the past and I know personally cases of widows suffering hardship. I support this section of the Bill wholeheartedly.

I am also rather interested in equal rights for men and women. I don't see widowers mentioned anywhere. I suppose they are taken care of and I haven't noticed; I suppose they are adequately provided for anyway.

I beg to support the Bill.

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members; I think every one of us at this table is acutely concerned with pensions for our senior citizens, and I think the Financial Secretary's adjustments are well worth while and equally I support the Member for West Falkland in his suggestions to increase the pensions. I know inflation continues and we've got to think perhaps 10, 20 years ahead of ourselves and not to forget that we, too, who are still paying a pension contribution will expect to receive a pension. I think this is possibly where the actuary gets us a bit muddled at times, not knowing how far ahead we can see. I'm not going to criticise the actuary but, at the same time, I think he should remember that our inflation seems to come later than other people's inflation, and we have to care for this.

I was very pleased to learn that the 25th - or Silver - Jubilee of the pensions will be celebrated next year, and even if they don't get a rise this year, I'm sure they're duty-bound to have one next year.

I would like to support the Motion.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members: This Bill, I am sure many people agree, is long overdue, and I would like to support it as it stands so that it can be got under way without delay. But as for any increases, before setting Government machinery into action - which may take some time - I feel that we should await once again the recommendations of the Shackleton Report which, I am sure, will give suggestions for the re-structuring of our whole pensions and allowances scheme.

I wish to support the Motion Sir.

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, Honourable Members; like all Honourable Members, I don't quarrel at all with the purport of the Bill. There are things, I think, however, I should draw attention to, that are contained in the law as it now stands, and that is that there is a statutory Board of Management which consists of the Financial Secretary and two other persons, whose advice perhaps should be sought. In addition there is the statutory obligation to consult with the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary at the end of every five years and receive a report - and the next quinquennial report is due in 1977. The Government Actuary's view - and I don't necessarily disagree with the opinions of at least one Honourable Member that Government actuaries tend to be extraordinarily conservative - their view is that if you increase pensions you cannot, of course, increase the contributions that the persons receiving these pensions have made in the past; and that those increased pensions can only come from the contributors who are going to contribute in the future - and it is an actuarial exercise to calculate this nicely so that the Equalisation Fund or Government does not have to bear the total cost beyond the means of the capacity of the Treasury to bear. If you do that any pension fund would collapse.

I make these points purely to inject a note of good-housekeeping into this discussion; not to object to the principle of the Bill. If we can pay more, by all means let's do so. If we can't, we will have to be frank, I think, and say we can only pay so much.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

I have a great deal of sympathy with other Councillors and I don't think there is anybody on the Legislative Council or in the Executive Council or in any official position who would argue on the fact of improving life for pensioners. But we also have a responsibility towards the contributors. Before proceeding any further with this I would suggest that we - or I - would propose that a Select Committee of the House be formed to sit immediately and report back in a short space of time, to make absolutely certain the commitments - I do not wish to hold it up if there is any opportunity of making some benefit for pensioners, but I think we should be careful to know exactly what we are doing, and the liabilities. Therefore I would propose that the matter be referred to a Select Committee to sit immediately.

Council then adjourned and resumed at 4.30 pm

Council agreed with the suggestion of the President that the Order Paper should be varied to enable Council to proceed with the Customs (Amendment of Duties) Resolution 1976.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Your Excellency, the general consensus of opinion expressed in the Select Committee on the review of the Estimates regarding the proposals included in the budget for increasing duties on liquor, tobacco and wines was that the proposals should be adopted. To implement these proposals I propose the following Resolution:

BE IT RESOLVED, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance, that the Customs Order be amended by deleting paragraph 2 and substituting the following:

"2. The following import duties of customs shall be payable -

Item	Article	Rate of Duty
1.	Beer, ale, perry, porter, spruce, cider and stouts of all kinds	per gallon	33p
2.	Spirits - Whisky, gin, rum, brandy, vodka and other spirituous liquors and liqueurs	per gallon	£12.00
3.	Wines - Still wines, sparkling wines and champagne	per gallon	78p
4.	Vermouth, sherry and port	per gallon	90p
5.	Tobacco -
	(a) Cigars	per lb	£4.20
	(b) Cigarettes	per lb	£2.88
	(c) Tobacco	per lb	£2.40'

I also lay on the table the Certificate of Urgency.

The Motion was seconded by the CHIEF SECRETARY and carried.

/THE PRESIDENT

THE PRESIDENT

As agreed formally before the adjournment, I will now appoint a Select Committee of the whole House, with the withdrawal of the President and his replacement in the Chair by the Senior Official Member, to consider the Old Age Pensions Bill, with the Amendments as proposed by Mr Blake.

Council adjourned.

Council resumed at 5.15 pm

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, the Select Committee appointed on the Motion of the Honourable the Financial Secretary to examine the Amendments proposed by Mr Blake has completed its deliberations and I have the honour to submit its report for adoption as follows:

1. We accept that the proposals made by the Honourable L G Blake should be taken at the Committee stage of the Bill.
2. We recommend the adoption and incorporation of these proposals into the Bill, which is the subject of the main question.
3. We recommend that the increased benefits should become effective on the 1st July 1976.
4. We recommend that the increased contributions should be introduced with effect from 1st January 1977.
5. We recognise that this will present considerable problems for the Treasury and Government Printer and accept that there will be inevitable delay in paying out the higher pensions. Every effort will be made to pay these as soon as possible but they are unlikely to be paid before September of this year. They should, however, be effective from 1st July 1976

A minority recommend that amendments of this nature, no matter how desirable, should be given more notice so that the Treasury and the Administration generally may study their implications fully, in the interests of contributors and pensioners.

The Council then went into Committee and the Bill was amended as follows at this stage:

Section 1. Amended by the deletion of the words "and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1976" and renumbered as subsection (1) of Section 1; and the addition of sub-section (2) as follows:

"2. The provisions of sections 2, 3, 6 and 7 of this Ordinance shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1976 and the provisions of sections 4 and 5 of this Ordinance shall come into operation on the 1st day of January 1977."

Section 4. Renumbered 6 and a new section 4 substituted as follows -

"4. Section 6 of the principal Ordinance is amended in sub-section (2) by -

- i. deleting in paragraph (a) "50p" and substituting "62p";
- ii. deleting in paragraph (b) "80p" and substituting "92p";
- iii. deleting in paragraph (c) "£1.30" and substituting "£1.54".

A new section, No 5, as follows -

"5. Section 6A of the principal Ordinance is amended in sub-section (2) by deleting "£1.30" and substituting "£1.54"."

A new section, No 7, as follows -

"7. The Schedule to the principal Ordinance is amended by deleting "£8.00", "£5.00", "£5.00", and "£5.00" and substituting "£9.00", "£6.00", "£6.00", and "£6.00" respectively."

Council then resumed and the Bill as amended was read a third time and passed.

MOTION

CHIEF SECRETARY

I beg to move that the Standing Committee on Education be reconstituted and that the membership consist of all elected Councillors except the Honourable L G Blake. I make this proposal after prior consultation with all Councillors.

The Motion was seconded by the FINANCIAL SECRETARY and carried.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

CHIEF SECRETARY

I now beg to move, Sir, that Council adjourn sine die.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

I beg to second the Motion.

MR BLAKE

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, In supporting this Motion may I first, Sir, thank you for your patience in dealing with me during the passage of the last Bill, and the kindness which I received. Perhaps I'm labouring a point which I made in my reply to the Motion of Thanks to Your Excellency, but I would like again to refer to the theme I had then, which is unity within the Colony and within the Council. We must at all times, particularly in this Council, appear - and not only appear but in fact be - united; united in our wish to see this Colony prosper, and united in our approach to our major political problem with our neighbours. Any fragmentation of the Council at all would weaken us and make us appear small - both overseas and in this Colony.

Your Excellency, I beg to support the Motion.

MR MONK

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I think it's rather unfortunate I always come behind the Honourable L G Blake and we often want to speak about the same things. I would like to thank Your Excellency for your patience in dealing with us, as our inexperience on occasions with procedure must be a great trial. You did mention, Your Excellency, the matter of trying to avoid divisions in our society, as it were. Of course we're all going to have differences of opinion about all sorts of things, but this does not necessarily mean we have to be divided. Certainly in the matter of our sovereignty I think the electorate has shown quite clearly that they want to remain British, since that point was one of the main planks of all elected Councillors here, and I think it is very regrettable if anybody who doesn't represent the majority of public opinion attempts to divide us in any way by diluting our attempts to remain British.

There are other divisions, of course. There are physical, geographical divisions in our society, but it doesn't follow that even though some of our priorities would appear to be different we should not form ourselves into West Falkland, East Falkland, Stanley cliques and battle between ourselves to try and obtain the most from Government - funds etc - to the detriment of some other part of the Colony. I think it is our duty to think of the overall effect of anything we do. There is another division, of course, which is regrettable but which is not always obvious, and that is the division between the Administration and the people as a whole. I think this often comes about because policy decisions taken by ExCo and executed by the Administration are not explained clearly enough to the general public - the need for them and so on - and I think a great deal more could be done in this field to keep people in the picture concerning everyday affairs so that they do not feel so outside of things. There is, unfortunately I think, a discernible division in the Administration itself sometimes. The Administration consists of older, more experienced people, who have had many years of experience and who have a lot of expertise in running Government departments: it also consists of a lot of bright young people with fresh ideas, who haven't always got that expertise; nor have they the ability to put their points of view over in the way that these older administration officials have been led to expect. Consequently, one can discern, in certain areas, a division between these younger people that are out here to try and run our services, bringing new thoughts into our departments - education, medical, you name it - and I think it behoves the older members of the Administration to sometimes bear those things in mind - that they haven't been trained by years of working in the Colonial Service or in the Commonwealth Office.

There is also, I think, occasionally an unfortunate division between expatriate people and Falkland Islands people born and bred - or those who are virtually adopted as Falkland Islanders because they have been here so long. These expatriate people in many cases come here to lend us their expertise, and it seems to me very unfortunate if the Executive Council or any other Administrative body seeks to lower their standards because the standards of local employees, local persons - whether they are working for Government or anybody else - might at that time not be what a very much larger country (which sends these people out) can afford. I think it would be much better if instead of trying to reduce the standards of these people, we tried instead to raise our own. Any division of any sort of nature I deplore.

I would like to second the Motion.

MR BOWLES

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, our younger officers in the Civil Service have, I think, been put to considerable test in our present constitution of our Police Force. I would like to commend these young chaps, Leon Berntsen and his boys down there, including our policewoman, who have lost their two senior officers overseas temporarily; and our two new constables have not yet arrived. They've had this responsibility virtually thrown at them for the last three or four months and, together with their 'specials' have dealt pretty well. There doesn't seem to have been any steep rise in crime noticeable to the public, and I think they should have a good pat on the back. It goes to show that some young people under strain are quite capable if they are given the chance.

I, too, would like to echo the two former speakers from the East and West Falklands in their plea for unity. We need it and we've got to keep it. British expertise has been coming here for a long time and we've learned to accept this with gratitude; and I think by encouraging the British in the Falklands, this will help us to keep the Falklands British.

Thank you Sir.

MR SMITH

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I would like to associate my thanks, too, with those of the Honourable Mr Bowles, in appreciation of our police force; and I wish now only to say that, having been, as it were, thrown in at the deep end, I will not at this stage go so far as to say that I can swim, but I am confident that I can now float, and I hope that in the future I'll be able to take a far more active part in our affairs during meetings. I would like to express my thanks to the older members of Council for their help, encouragement and support, and also their advice during this session.

MR BOUND

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I am afraid I haven't done my homework on this Motion for Adjournment. I must confess I rather hoped we'd still be here tomorrow. I must therefore confine my remarks to my appreciation to Your Excellency for inviting me to come back into the fray, as it were, and to say how much I have appreciated being associated with Government again after an absence of some three or four years. I hope that my views will not run too counter to the rest of our members. I do feel, like all other members here, that this is the time, if ever, that we should be unified and sort our problems out together rather than have a diverse effect.

CHIEF SECRETARY

Your Excellency, in winding up this Motion for the Adjournment I must, of course, immediately associate myself with the very generous sentiments that the Honourable Members have referred to in commenting on Your Excellency's conduct of our proceedings; and in particular for Your Excellency's outstanding address, which was received so well and which, I think, struck the correct note for our proceedings, which, even though this was a budget session, brought out the dominant element that we need and is so clearly shown in the debates in this Chamber during the past ten days or so. As I said in replying to Your Excellency's Address, there has been no holding back of punches, no holding back of views; there has been the experience of Members who have sat on Council for a long time combined with the invigorating and refreshing views of new members. It is true, I think, that our deliberations at this session have been somewhat inhibited by the fact that we are deliberating at the moment under the "mountain of Shackleton" and that to deliberate a budget with the mountain of paper that awaits us and has to be digested, which will go over the ground that we have traversed these past ten days or so, is exceedingly difficult; but I think Councillors in their labours have done an outstandingly worthwhile job, even if it does have to be looked at afresh later on.

The Senior Unofficial Member referred to the fact that Your Excellency called for, and achieved, unity of purpose, unity of effort; and I would like to echo these thoughts in my appreciation to Your Excellency, in adding my brief word to the Motion for the Adjournment and sincerely thanking Your Excellency and Councillors for the conduct and achievements of this session.

/THE PRESIDENT

THE PRESIDENT

Honourable Members, may I say what a privilege it is to preside over your proceedings, which I think were conducted with a wisdom and a dignity which would enhance many a much greater House - presiding over the affairs of much larger countries - and I think our proceedings were interesting and civilised in the best sense of the term. I've been delighted to hear in your speeches on this Motion the keynote of unity struck. I did think quite a lot about my address, about which you've been so complimentary, and I hope you've all received a personal copy. It came from the heart - I think this is well understood by all of you - I know you've laboured, as I've said earlier on, mightily; you've been here for long, long hours and despite what the Honourable Mr Bound said about tomorrow I know some of you at least will be glad to get away, so I won't detain you any longer. But again my very warm personal thanks and gratitude to you.

I will now declare the House to stand adjourned.

A Bill for An Ordinance

Title. To secure the protection of wrecks in territorial waters and sites of such wrecks, from interference by unauthorised persons; and for connected purposes.

Date of commencement. (19)

Enacting clause. BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Citation. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Protection of Wrecks Ordinance 1976.

Interpretation. 2. In this Ordinance —

1973 c. 33 s. 3(1).

“Colonial waters” means any part of the sea within the seaward limits of the territorial waters of the Colony and includes any part of a river within the ebb and flow of ordinary spring tides;

“the sea” includes any estuary or arm of the sea; and reference to the sea bed includes any area submerged at high water of ordinary spring tides.

Protection of sites of historic wrecks.

1973 c. 33 s. 1.

3. (1) If the Governor is satisfied with respect to any site in Colonial waters that —

- (a) it is, or may prove to be, the site of a vessel lying wrecked on or in the sea bed; and

- (b) on account of the historical, archaeological or artistic importance of the vessel, or of any objects contained or formerly contained in it which may be lying on the sea bed in or near the wreck, the site ought to be protected from unauthorised interference, he may by order designate an area round the site as a restricted area.

(2) An order under this section shall identify the site where the vessel lies or formerly lay, or is supposed to lie or have lain, and —

- (a) the restricted area shall be all within such distance of the site (so identified) as is specified in the order, but excluding any area above high water mark of ordinary spring tides; and
- (b) the distance specified for the purposes of paragraph (a) above shall be whatever the Governor thinks appropriate to ensure protection for the wreck.

(3) Subject to section 5 below, a person commits an offence if, in a restricted area, he does any of the following things otherwise than under the authority of a licence granted by the Governor —

- (a) he tampers with, damages or removes any part of a vessel lying wrecked on or in the sea bed, or any object formerly contained in such a vessel; or
- (b) he carries out diving or salvage operations directed to the exploration of any wreck or to removing objects from it or from the sea bed, or uses equipment constructed or adapted for any purpose of diving or salvage operations; or
- (c) he deposits, so as to fall and lie abandoned on the sea bed, anything which, if it were to fall on the site of a wreck (whether it so falls or not), would wholly or partly obliterate the site, or obstruct access to it, or damage any part of the wreck; and also commits an offence if he causes or permits any of these things to be done by others in a restricted area, otherwise than under the authority of such a licence.

(4) Before making an order under this section, the Governor shall consult with such persons as he considers appropriate having regard to the purposes of the order; but this consultation may be dispensed with if he is satisfied that the case is one in which an order should be made as a matter of immediate urgency.

(5) A licence granted by the Governor for the purposes of subsection (3) above shall be in writing and —

- (a) the Governor shall in respect of a restricted area grant licences only to persons who appear to him either —
 - (i) to be competent, and properly equipped, to carry out salvage operations in a manner appropriate to the historical, archaeological or artistic importance of any wreck which may be lying in the area, and of any objects contained or formerly contained in a wreck, or
 - (ii) to have any other legitimate reason for doing in the area that which can only be done under the authority of a licence;
- (b) a licence may be granted subject to conditions or restrictions, and may be varied or revoked by the Governor at any time after giving not less than one week's notice to the licensee; and

(c) anything done contrary to any condition or restriction of a licence shall be treated for purposes of subsection (3) above as done otherwise than under the authority of the licence.

(6) Where a person is authorised, by a licence of the Governor granted under this section, to carry out diving or salvage operations, it is an offence for any other person to obstruct him, or cause or permit him to be obstructed, in doing anything which is authorised by the licence, subject however to section 5 below.

Prohibition on approaching dangerous wrecks.
1973 c. 33 s. 2.

4. (1) If the Governor is satisfied with respect to a vessel lying wrecked in Colonial waters that —

- (a) because of anything contained in it, the vessel is in a condition which makes it a potential danger to life or property; and
- (b) on that account it ought to be protected from unauthorised interference, he may by order designate an area round the vessel as a prohibited area.

(2) An order under this section shall identify the vessel and the place where it is lying and —

- (a) the prohibited area shall be all within such distance of the vessel as is specified by the order, excluding any area above high water mark of ordinary spring tides; and
- (b) the distance specified for the purposes of paragraph (a) above shall be whatever the Governor thinks appropriate to ensure that unauthorised persons are kept away from the vessel.

(3) Subject to section 5 below, a person commits an offence if, without authority in writing granted by the Governor, he enters a prohibited area, whether on the surface or under water.

Saving.
1973 c. 33 s. 3(3).

5. Nothing is to be regarded as constituting an offence under this Ordinance where it is done by a person —

- (a) in the course of any action taken by him for the sole purpose of dealing with an emergency of any description; or
- (b) in exercising, or seeing to the exercise of functions conferred by or under an enactment on him; or
- (c) out of necessity due to stress of weather or navigational hazards.

Penalties.
1973 c. 33 s. 3(4).

6. A person guilty of an offence under section 3 or section 4 above shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine of not more than £400, or on conviction on indictment to a fine of not less than £400.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this Bill is to protect wrecks from unauthorised interference on account of their historic, archaeological or artistic importance or their potentially dangerous condition.

The Prince Philip:

Sir,

I am most grateful for your gracious message on the occasion of the Conferment on the Royal Marines of the Freedom of the City of Stanley. At a meeting of the Executive Council on 21st July 1976 the Governor in Council resolved, on the Motion of Councillor John Smith, to confer upon

THE
THE HONORARY FREEDOM OF

in recognition of the close association which has existed between the Falkland Islands and the Royal Marines for more than two centuries, to record appreciation of the zeal and warmheartedness with which the members of the Corps have carried out their duties and contributed towards the general well-being of the community, and with a view to fostering further the traditional friendly attachment between the Royal Marines and the people of the Falkland Islands.

This Scroll is to certify that the Royal Marines have been duly admitted to the Honorary Freedom of Stanley in pursuance of the above resolution this 8th day of December 1976.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

From: Commander-in-Chief Fleet

To: His Excellency the Governor,
Falkland Islands

I am honoured that a fleet unit should have conducted itself so well over the years as to merit the presentation of the Freedom of Port Stanley by Your Excellency.

It is particularly appropriate that the presentation should take place on Battle Day with its special memories to the Royal Navy and to the Falkland Islands.

May I wish Your Excellency and the people of Port Stanley and the Falkland Islands all good fortune on this historic occasion.

To: Commander-in-Chief Fleet

From: Acting Governor

Most grateful to you for your message on the occasion of the Conferment on the Royal Marines of the Freedom of the City of Stanley. We all enjoyed the very smart parade, which fell neatly between two southern summer snow showers.

Personal from the Commandant General Royal Marines to His Excellency the Governor

On behalf of the Royal Marines I wish to express our gratitude to you, the Executive Council and the people of the City of Stanley for the great honour which you are conferring on us today. Rabies (Importation of Dogs, Cats and Other Mammals) Order 1974

1. Under the Rabies (Importation of Dogs, Cats and Other Mammals) Order 1974, every dog and cat, and a wide range of other mammals, imported into Great Britain must be licensed prior to importation and must undergo detention and isolation in approved quarantine premises for 6 months (or such longer period as the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food or the Secretary of State for Scotland may direct) at the owner's expense. There are no exceptions allowed to this period of quarantine but quarantined animals may be re-exported at any time provided certain conditions are met. The requirements apply to all mammals brought to Great Britain from abroad, whether or not they originate from Great Britain and no matter how short their stay abroad has been.

2. ARRANGEMENTS NECESSARY BEFORE AN ANIMAL IS SENT TO GREAT BRITAIN —

Before importing an animal into Great Britain you must obtain an import licence from either —

- i. the Secretary, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, Hook Rise South, Tolworth, Surbiton, Surrey KT6 7NF (telephone: 01-337 6611; telex: 22203) if the animal is to be quarantined in England or Wales; or

- ii. the Secretary, Department of Agriculture and Fisheries for Scotland, Chesser House, 500 Georgia Road, Edinburgh EH11 3AW (telephone 031-443 4020/9; telex: 72162) if the animal is to be quarantined in Scotland.

NOTE. The Rabies (Importation of Dogs, Cats and other Mammals) Order 1974 gives powers to destroy animals landed without an import licence so it is important to ensure that the licensing requirements are met.

3. Licence application forms and lists of approved quarantine premises/authorised carrying agents for dogs and cats may be obtained from MAFF or DAFS at the addresses above. There is hardly any quarantine accommodation for small pets such as hamsters, monkeys, guinea-pigs, rabbits (only European species of rabbits are allowed to be imported) etc and anybody contemplating the import of this type of pet is strongly advised to seek advice from MAFF or DAFS as to the requirements and situation before making any import arrangements.

4. Further details about the taking of pets to Great Britain may be obtained from the Secretariat.

LS

GIVEN under my hand and the Public Seal of the Colony of the Falkland Islands at Government House, Stanley, this 12th day of January in the year of Our Lord One thousand Nine hundred and Seventy-seven.

J. R. W. PARKER.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Statement made in the House of Commons by the Rt. Hon. Anthony Crosland, M.P., Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, on Wednesday afternoon, 2nd February, 1977.

With permission, Mr Speaker, I will make a statement on the Falkland Islands and our relations with Argentina.

Since my Rt. Hon. Friend, now Prime Minister, made a statement on this subject on January 14 of last year, Lord Shackleton has presented his "Economic Survey of the Falkland Islands". The whole House will join me in warmly thanking him and his colleagues for this immensely thorough and wide-ranging report.

The survey paints a vivid picture of this small community of 1900 people, 7500 miles away, yet staunchly British and with rich potential in the seas around them. But currently they face an uncertain economic future. The economy, essentially a mono-culture based on wool, is stagnant: the resources do not exist to exploit the new potential in other fields: and emigration is increasing.

To remedy this situation, Lord Shackleton made a large number of recommendations, many of which will require further study and detailed consultation with the Islanders. Meanwhile H M G will proceed to implement those internal constitutional changes which have already been approved by the Falkland Islands Legislative Council.

The recommendations on development aid will fall to my Hon. Friend the Minister for Overseas Development to implement. But I can say now that the Government are ready to consider, after such pre-investment studies as may be required, agricultural diversification, mutton freezing, knitwear production, and improvements to education. We also propose to pay special and urgent attention to the Islands' internal communications, with particular reference to the availability and maintenance of an efficient local air service.

The Survey further recommended certain major capital projects, notably an enlargement of the airport and a pilot fishing project, which would bring the total recommended expenditure by the U K up to some pounds sterling 13-14 million. The Government, like Lord Shackleton and his colleagues, are in no doubt that the potential for development is there, and they will at the appropriate moment commission the essential preliminary studies to determine whether airport enlargement is likely to be practicable and cost effective.

But for the rest, we cannot at this time accept the more costly recommendations. The overseas aid budget, recently cut in the December public expenditure exercise, would not stand it. There are more urgent claims from much poorer communities. And the right political circumstances do not exist.

In Lord Shackleton's words, "In any major new developments of the Islands' economy, especially those relating to offshore resources, co-operation with Argentina — even participation — should, if possible, be secured". The Government agree. Such new developments require a framework of greater political and economic co-operation in the region as a whole. Without such a framework, the prospect of achieving a prosperous and durable future for the Islands is bleak.

The Government have therefore decided that the time has come to consider both with the Islanders and the Argentine Government whether a climate exists for discussing the broad issues which have a bearing on the future of the Falkland Islands and the possibilities of co-operation between Britain and Argentina in the region of the South West Atlantic.

I must make certain things absolutely clear. First, any such discussion, which would inevitably raise fundamental questions on the relationship between the Islands, Britain and Argentina, would take place under the sovereignty umbrella: that is, H M G would wholly reserve their position on the issue of sovereignty, which would in no way be prejudiced. Secondly, any changes which might be proposed must be acceptable to the Islanders, whose interests and well-being remain our prime concern. In consequence, there must be full consultation with the Islanders at every stage: nothing will be done behind their back.

To fulfil this pledge, I am sending my Rt. Hon. Friend the Minister of State to the Falkland Islands in mid February to hear from the Islanders at first hand how they view their future. He will also visit Buenos Aires. His object will be, in effect, to see whether terms of reference can be agreed for further more formal talks between the parties concerned.

Mr Speaker, my Rt. Hon. Friend the Prime Minister said this to the House last January. "Given good will on both sides, Britain and Argentina should be able to transform the area of dispute concerning the sovereignty over the Islands into a factor making for co-operation between the two countries which would be consonant with the wishes and interests of the Falkland Islanders". Today, as twelve months ago, the situation in the South West Atlantic is a source of potential confrontation of which there have been recent examples. It is co-operation not confrontation, both in the Islands and in the Dependencies, which we seek to achieve.

WAGES AGREEMENT

The following agreement has been reached between the Government, the Falkland Islands Company, Ltd., and the General Employees Union. The agreement shall be effective for a period of one year from the 1st January 1977 and shall apply to hourly paid employees in Stanley.

1. Basis of Wage Rates.

Wages shall be adjustable by negotiation except that any changes arising from fluctuations in the cost of living, except as provided below, shall be automatic and date from the first day of the month following the quarter to which a review relates.

In measuring the cost of living for the purpose of wage adjustments an average of the findings of the last four preceding quarters shall be used. If however in any quarter the Index should exceed the average figure for the last four quarters by six points then the excess points will be taken into immediate account for the cost of living award. The payment in respect of the excess points will be adjusted as necessary, in future quarterly reviews of the cost of living.

N.B. When calculating the advance payment in excess of the first six points, $\frac{1}{2}$ p advance will be made in any case where the excess not already taken into account reaches one point.

(a) CRAFTSMEN.

All Craftsmen shall be paid at the full basic rate and the following trades shall be recognised:—

Carpenters and Joiners	Masons
Blacksmiths	Plumbers
Painters	Electricians
Motor Mechanics

The normal entry to a trade shall be by a full term of apprenticeship, but special arrangements shall be made for the absorption of men already practising trades without previously serving apprenticeships. These arrangements are laid down in the apprenticeship regulations.

(b) HANDYMEN.

This term includes those employees doing skilled or semi-skilled work in one or more trades, but who have not served an apprenticeship nor have been recognised by the Apprenticeship Board.

(c) SLAUGHTERMEN AND LORRY DRIVERS.

Slaughtermen shall be provided with suitable protective clothing and footwear.

All drivers of petrol, steam or diesel engines, whether stationary or mobile, shall be paid for all working hours of the day on which the employee drives, irrespective of the period during which he is actually driving.

The above hourly rates are minimum and employers may, if they so wish, offer higher rates, incentive bonuses, etc.

Cost of living awards, when authorised, should be paid in full to apprentices and young labourers.

CASUAL LABOUR. There is now no work which justifies a casual labour rate.

* An apprenticeship should not commence before the 15th birthday.

3. Extra Payments.

(a) "DIRT" MONEY.

As a general guide, "Dirt" money should only be paid when the work in hand is substantially dirtier than the work which an employee is normally called upon to do. The normal rate is 4p per hour, but the precise rate for each job shall be agreed between Employer and Employees.

(b) HAZARDOUS WORK.

Employees working on isolated structures, such as masts, at heights over 20 feet from the ground or where the structure joins the main roof of a building, shall be paid from 4p to 7½p per hour according to the risk involved. (c) INCONVENIENCE PAY.

Employees required, by the employer, to carry their midday meal shall receive 15p per day. Employees required to sleep away from home in a recognised camp house or cook-house shall have their board and lodgings paid for by their employer.

(d) EXTRA SKILL OR RESPONSIBILITY.

(i) Any employee specifically detailed to supervise the work of three or more other employees shall receive 1½p per hour extra while taking this responsibility.

(ii) Any labourer employed on semi-skilled work which would normally fall to a Handyman (e.g. painting, fencing, concrete laying) shall receive pay as a Handyman (i.e. a minimum of 2p per hour extra) while engaged on this work. The precise rate shall be fixed by the employer according to the nature of the work and the skill of the particular labourer so employed.

(e) PAINT SPRAYING.

Employees engaged on paint spraying shall be paid 2½p per hour extra and no other allowance.

4. Working Hours.

The normal working hours shall be 40 hours per week made up as follows -

A refreshment break of fifteen minutes shall be allowed between 08.30 and 09.30 a.m., the precise time being laid down by the employer.

Other hours of work may be laid down by mutual agreement between employers and employees, provided that the total number of hours does not exceed 40 per week.

- (v) Double time rates shall also be paid during normal working hours if, exceptionally, an employee starts work before midnight and continues without a break into normal working hours. Double time rates shall then continue to apply until there is an (unpaid) break from work exceeding four hours, after which the normal rates will again apply.

(b) An unpaid meal hour shall be allowed at a reasonable time if overtime is expected to continue for more than two hours beyond normal finishing time, and a paid refreshment break of not more than fifteen minutes shall be allowed in each subsequent 4-hour period.

(c) Overtime is voluntary and an employee shall not be dismissed if he objects to working outside normal working hours. However, certain jobs may require attendance at times outside the normal hours and in these cases employees shall be given the option of a 40-hour week by allowing time off during normal working hours, at a time to be agreed with the employer.

6. Public Holidays.

In addition to receiving double time for working on a public holiday employees shall be entitled to 8 hours holiday.

7. Holidays.

(a) ANNUAL HOLIDAYS.

All employees shall be entitled to accumulate holidays at the rates and to the maximum hereinafter set out, namely —

1½ days	320 hours

In the event of an employee terminating his service prior to the completion of the first six months of service he shall forfeit any holiday entitlement not taken.

The maximum of 320 hours referred to above shall not apply to any excess over that amount accumulated as at 31st December 1976.

An Ordinance

To secure the protection of wrecks in territorial waters and sites of such wrecks, from interference by unauthorised persons; and for connected purposes.

Title.

(11th July 1977)

Date of commencement.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, as follows —

Enacting clause.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Protection of Wrecks Ordinance 1977.

Citation.

2. In this Ordinance —

Interpretation.

“Colonial waters” means any part of the sea within the seaward limits of the territorial waters of the Colony and includes any part of a river within the ebb and flow of ordinary spring tides;

1973 c. 33 s. 3(1).

“the sea” includes any estuary or arm of the sea; and reference to the sea bed includes any area submerged at high water of ordinary spring tides.

3. (1) If the Governor is satisfied with respect to any site in Colonial waters that —

Protection of sites of historic wrecks.

1973 c. 33 s. 1.

(a) it is, or may prove to be, the site of a vessel lying wrecked on or in the sea bed; and

- (b) on account of the historical, archaeological or artistic importance of the vessel, or of any objects contained or formerly contained in it which may be lying on the sea bed in or near the wreck, the site ought to be protected from unauthorised interference, he may by order designate an area round the site as a restricted area.

(2) An order under this section shall identify the site where the vessel lies or formerly lay, or is supposed to lie or have lain, and —

- (a) the restricted area shall be all within such distance of the site (so identified) as is specified in the order, but excluding any area above high water mark of ordinary spring tides; and
- (b) the distance specified for the purposes of paragraph (a) above shall be whatever the Governor thinks appropriate to ensure protection for the wreck.

(3) Subject to section 5 below, a person commits an offence if, in a restricted area, he does any of the following things otherwise than under the authority of a licence granted by the Governor —

- (a) he tampers with, damages or removes any part of a vessel lying wrecked on or in the sea bed, or any object formerly contained in such a vessel; or
- (b) he carries out diving or salvage operations directed to the exploration of any wreck or to removing objects from it or from the sea bed, or uses equipment constructed or adapted for any purpose of diving or salvage operations; or
- (c) he deposits, so as to fall and lie abandoned on the sea bed, anything which, if it were to fall on the site of a wreck (whether it so falls or not), would wholly or partly obliterate the site, or obstruct access to it, or damage any part of the wreck;

and also commits an offence if he causes or permits any of these things to be done by others in a restricted area, otherwise than under the authority of such a licence.

(4) Before making an order under this section, the Governor shall consult with such persons as he considers appropriate having regard to the purposes of the order; but this consultation may be dispensed with if he is satisfied that the case is one in which an order should be made as a matter of immediate urgency.

(5) A licence granted by the Governor for the purposes of subsection (3) above shall be in writing and —

- (a) the Governor shall in respect of a restricted area grant licences only to persons who appear to him either —
 - (i) to be competent, and properly equipped, to carry out salvage operations in a manner appropriate to the historical, archaeological or artistic importance of any wreck which may be lying in the area, and of any objects contained or formerly contained in a wreck, or
 - (ii) to have any other legitimate reason for doing in the area that which can only be done under the authority of a licence;
- (b) a licence may be granted subject to conditions or restrictions, and may be varied or revoked by the Governor at any time after giving not less than one week's notice to the licensee; and

- (c) anything done contrary to any condition or restriction of a licence shall be treated for purposes of subsection (3) above as done otherwise than under the authority of the licence.

(6) Where a person is authorised, by a licence of the Governor granted under this section, to carry out diving or salvage operations, it is an offence for any other person to obstruct him, or cause or permit him to be obstructed, in doing anything which is authorised by the licence, subject however to section 5 below.

4. (1) If the Governor is satisfied with respect to a vessel lying wrecked in Colonial waters that —

Prohibition on approaching dangerous wrecks.
1973 c. 33 s. 2.

- (a) because of anything contained in it, the vessel is in a condition which makes it a potential danger to life or property; and
- (b) on that account it ought to be protected from unauthorised interference, he may by order designate an area round the vessel as a prohibited area.

(2) An order under this section shall identify the vessel and the place where it is lying and —

- (a) the prohibited area shall be all within such distance of the vessel as is specified by the order, excluding any area above high water mark of ordinary spring tides; and
- (b) the distance specified for the purposes of paragraph (a) above shall be whatever the Governor thinks appropriate to ensure that unauthorised persons are kept away from the vessel.

(3) Subject to section 5 below, a person commits an offence if, without authority in writing granted by the Governor, he enters a prohibited area, whether on the surface or under water.

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes of the Meeting of Legislative Council held 15th-25th June 1976, having been previously circulated, were confirmed.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Before I commence my address this morning, Honourable Members will undoubtedly wish to pay tribute in a moment of silence to the memory of Mr Keith Luxton, who served with distinction as an honoured member of this Council, and of the Rt Hon Anthony Crosland, our former Secretary of State, who both sadly passed away this year.

In welcoming Honourable Members to this Session of the Legislative Council may I first express my personal pleasure at having the privilege of presiding over your deliberations. This is a first occasion for me in more ways than one - not only as President of your Council, with the weight of all its historic traditions and customs behind it but, also, as President of any such Council in one of Her Majesty's overseas territories. I therefore approach my task today in all humility, and with not a little trepidation. There is a custom in the British Parliament that the Speaker of the House of Commons, as its President, should appear to be dragged unwillingly to the Chair on his first appointment. The reason is that, in days long gone by, he might literally have lost his head by too bold and presumptuous a discharge of his office. I cannot say I fear any such similar fate, although I am only too aware of the pitfalls that might trip my feet in ascending to this dais. So, Honourable Members, I would beg your indulgence in advance, and your kindly correction, should I be in error under your Rules and Standing Orders.

I am, of course, no stranger to any of you individually. We have met, some of us formally in the Executive Council, and all of us informally in Joint Council, several times, and over many, many hours, since my arrival in the Islands last December. I would like to say, now, how much I have valued your wise advice and counsel, as my guides and mentors, through my early and, as I think we have been only too aware, difficult months. I could not have begun to enter on my duties without your valuable help and support. For this I shall be forever grateful. In return I hope I may have been able to establish that I do not see my role as Governor to be that of a neutral figurehead, but that I sit among you as one deeply concerned in your affairs, with the added duty to represent your views to Her Majesty's Government in London.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank everyone in the Islands for the warm welcome given to my wife and me when we have been able to travel about. We have now been to almost all settlements, even though some of our visits have had unfortunately to be rather brief. Everywhere we have met with great kindness and generous hospitality, and it has given us a wonderful opportunity to make many friends and enjoy their company. We shall continue our touring as often as we can, staying longer, if we may, where, so far, we have only been able to drop in for an hour or so.

So much for me personally. At our meeting today our numbers are diminished by the absence of Councillors Blake and Bound, both of whom are now in the United Kingdom where Councillor Blake is representing the Falklands at Her Majesty's Silver Jubilee Celebrations and at a seminar of the UK branch of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association. We shall miss them in our debates, but I am sure these will be made lively enough by those of us who remain. In referring to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, during the India and Mauritius meetings of which Councillor Blake did such valuable service to the Falklands, I should mention that Councillor Adrian Monk and our Clerk, Mr Bill Etheridge, will be representing us at the September CPA Conference at Ottawa, as guests of the Association and the Canadian branches. They will have a busy time of it, but I am sure we can wish them an enjoyable, as well as a fruitful journey.

At this point, I am sure Members will wish me to tender our congratulations to the Honourable Chief Secretary on his well-deserved award, along with that of Captain Sollis, in the Birthday Honours List. Her Majesty was graciously pleased to make Mr Arthur Monk an Officer, and Captain Sollis a Member of the Order of the British Empire.

This sitting of Council is the first which has been possible, for many reasons I regret to say, for nearly 12 months. As well as the examination of the Budget estimates of revenue and expenditure, there are a large number of other Bills to consider, to make our workload a heavy one. Some of the Bills you may possibly regard as requiring little more than formal acceptance. Others I expect will require considerable debate. So that we may not again allow our work to pile up I would hope that in future Council could sit at more frequent intervals during the year. There is however a difficulty here. The burden on the Secretariat, and particularly on the Clerk, in preparing for each meeting and compiling the record etc afterwards, is an extremely heavy one. As things are, one could not contemplate more than perhaps three sittings in a year. It may be we should look to see whether there can be some streamlining, not necessarily of our procedures, but of the paperwork which is involved. It may be thought that, for example, a full record of every word which is said in Council is not always necessary provided that the essence of members' opinions is recorded, particularly as the proceedings are broadcast. This is a matter which might perhaps be looked at when a new Council is elected later this year, unless members would wish to comment on it at this meeting.

I must now say something on the subject of elections. Members have before them a Bill to provide for a revised Elections Ordinance. The changes in the election arrangements which are proposed in the Bill substantially follow from the recommendations of the Select Committee on the Constitution, which, as Members will recall, reported in July 1975. The Committee's principal recommendation was to add two further constituency seats to the Legislative Council, to replace those of the nominated members, thus maintaining the non-official majority but on a fully elected basis. This, and the other proposed changes, have now been implemented in our constitution by Legislative Instruments laid before the Privy Council and approved by Her Majesty in March of this year. The delay which followed the Select Committee's report and the making of these Instruments was naturally the cause of some concern to Members and to the public generally. There were a number of reasons to account for it, but Members will recall that the Minister of State, during his visit here last February, recognised the need to rectify the position as quickly as possible by the making of the Instruments I have referred to.

Since then the process of drafting the necessary Elections Ordinance has been occupying a great deal of the time and energy of our small legal staff. It is a complicated piece of legislation; the more so since, in its initial operation, it has to cover a transition from the old arrangement for drawing up electoral registers to the new one. We are therefore allowed, by the Privy Council, a period of four months between Dissolution of this present Council and the election of a new body. I expect later this month, or early next, when the business arising from this Session has been taken care of, to be able to announce a Dissolution. Elections could then take place, no later I hope than October, on new electoral registers covering all voters who have attained the age of 18 years. We will then have a new Council, elected under the revised Constitution. In future years the process of compiling a register will be much simplified and if it should prove necessary, we need not then have to put up with so long a period between dissolution and election. But no way has been found to get round it this year.

When the new Council is in being, there will be further opportunity for our Constitution to be looked at again to see whether changes to improve our Government need be made. We shall still have a division of responsibility between the Legislative Council and the Executive Council, with a rotating elected membership of the latter. It may be for consideration whether this distinction is entirely necessary. At the very least I would look forward to a greater involvement of all Councillors in our day-to-day affairs. One way in which this may be done is through the creation of more Standing and Advisory Committees, not to defer, but to promote action in the interests of the community. We have already a few of these. Pre-eminently there is of course the Standing Finance Committee and the Select Committee on the Estimates, on which all Members of this Council serve. They both have a very important part to play in the regulation of our financial affairs and I would hope to see emerging from them even more recommendations which might improve the management of our government. We also have the Education Advisory Committee, with a membership drawn from Council, from the teaching profession, and from interested members of the public. It has lately been agreed that there should also be a Medical Committee of similar composition. A Transport Committee is being set up, as well as an Aviation Advisory Committee to look into the future of our air service. There are similar executive and advisory Committees in regard to the hydatidosis campaign, public health, livestock control and immigration policy. We may soon have to consider the re-establishment of the Development Committee, and whether the fields of welfare, public housing and other social problems should not also be covered. By this I should like to see as wide an involvement as possible of public-spirited people throughout the Islands in our machinery for progress. In particular, with the voting age coming down to 18, I hope that young Islanders will be attracted to serve in this way. They have a bigger stake than any of us in the future of the Islands. We want to hear, we need to hear, what their views are. The Councils will, of course, still have to take the decisive lead in our affairs, working, not behind closed doors, but in the full process of an open democracy.

Before returning to internal matters I should now say a few words about those external concerns which have been much in our minds of late, and will undoubtedly continue to be so for some time to come. They are of immense importance to the future well-being of all the people of the Islands and must pre-occupy our thoughts even though we may engage our day-to-day attention on more immediate problems. At this point I would like to say how much I have admired, and respected, the calm and responsible way in which Islanders have responded to a situation which no one would willingly have wished to face, but which most realise must be faced nonetheless. Not only have I been impressed, living among you, but it is clear that so have many influential people, who are far away from the Islands, particularly those whose duty it is to safeguard our interests. The words of Ministers and other Members in the recent debates in Parliament clearly showed this, and I have no doubt at all that it has helped reinforce their determination to keep the interests and welfare of the Islanders in the forefront of their minds when developing their policies. Islanders have shown they are a sensible, pragmatic, and above all, loyal community, with deeply-felt needs and concerns, and an ability to express themselves with sober but realistic forthrightness.

/If I may

If I may quote from what Mr Ted Rowlands said in the House on his return from his visit in February this year: "Before I went to the Islands I cared objectively. I had come to understand and appreciate the problems. I now understand how one leaves at least half one's heart in the Islands. I now have a subjective caring as well as an objective one". Those words indicate, I think, the impression made on the Minister by the dignified and positive attitude shown by Islanders (and their Councillors) during his many conversations here. I am entirely convinced that if we can continue to maintain a firm but steady and calm posture in the months ahead, not listening to rumour and speculation, but relying on our own cool judgment, we shall have the greatest influence on the conduct of the negotiations, the purpose of which Mr Rowlands fully explained during his visit, and which Her Majesty's Government will shortly embark upon with the Argentine Government.

We must remember that while they continue we shall have upon us the eyes of many throughout the world. They will want to see us stand up steadily and unitedly for ourselves, as Falkland Islanders, imbued with those very qualities which derive from our British heritage.

There have now been three major debates this year in the House of Commons, and the House of Lords, about the political and economic future of the Islands, with several other exchanges as a result of questions which have been put to Ministers. The texts of all these debates and discussions have been made available throughout the Islands by radio and in print. In them, and also in the agreed Communiqué which was issued at the end of Mr Rowlands' visit, we have been given the firmest of assurances, on every occasion, about the safeguards which will protect our position in the course of these vital negotiations.

I would like to add just one thing more on this subject. It is that the depth and extent of the discussions which Honourable Members had with Mr Rowlands, in Joint Council, may not be generally appreciated. In fact, Councillors will recall they spent at least eight long and arduous hours in plenary session, putting their point of view with great clarity and vigour of expression to the Minister, in an atmosphere of very considerable mutual respect and understanding, but leaving no doubt in the Minister's mind what Islanders' wishes and feelings were. I have sat in on, and taken part in, many not dissimilar discussions at other times and in other places around the world. I can think of no other occasion when the ground was so well covered, and every point so fully brought out, as was the case at these meetings. I would like to say to all Councillors that, in my humble opinion you served your people well. It will now be for the next Session of Council, with the mandate it will have received from the electorate, to consider whether such proposals as may emerge in the course of the negotiations can be, in the words of the Secretary of State, "acceptable to the Islanders". I am sure this will be done in the same spirit of reasoned objectivity and discernment which prevailed during the talks with Mr Rowlands.

It is now customary for me to pass on to matters affecting the departments, giving some indication of their present work and plans. There is a good deal I would like to say by way of commendation and encouragement about each department, but I think at this time it would be proper for me to concentrate on those areas which are currently of major public interest. Perhaps I might take the Medical Department first.

For various reasons, known to us all, the staff situation in the Department has for some time been rather difficult. We now look to be entering on to a better state of affairs. By the end of August of this year the Department should have a full complement of nursing and medical staff for the first time for a large number of years. We are glad to have Dr Cox back with us after overseas leave, part of which he devoted to valuable and wide-ranging discussions which will have a considerable bearing on the future planning of the Department's work. Dr Dunnnett will be back after his leave in a few weeks' time and we are expecting Dr Alison Mackintosh to join the staff in August. We shall then have said farewell to Dr Peter Summers who has stood in admirably for his colleagues during their absences from the Colony and, while doing so, has made, I know, a considerable contribution to many aspects of the Department's work and planning.

By the acquisition of new diagnostic and therapeutic equipment during this present financial year, and with further proposed purchases during 1977/78, the medical services will be raised to the best modern standards available to a community the size of the Falklands. It is also hoped to increase the general standard of nursing care by recruiting, if Members agree the provision for this post in the estimates, a fourth trained sister, and by establishing local training and registration of junior nurses. This could lead towards a start on a Camp district nursing service which was one of the recommendations made in the Shackleton Report, to which I shall refer later.

Altogether the Department's planning should reduce the commitment to medical treatment overseas by the improvement of local diagnostic and surgical services and by the institution of a more active policy of preventive medicine. In this connection I should mention the hydatid screening survey which Dr Cox and his team will be carrying out, and which forms part of our attack on this troublesome disease, in which our Veterinary Officer is also playing a large part on the dog and livestock side. I am glad to be able to say that the efforts of the Hydatidosis Committee over many years, under the Chairmanship of Mr Sidney Miller, are now bearing fruit, and we now have a very good hope of getting this problem at least under control and, in the course of a few years, eradicated altogether.

I must, however, mention the problem of Camp medical visiting which I know, from my own discussions in the Camp and particularly in the West, bulks large in the public mind. Looking back over the records in the archives I see that the attempt to find a solution to the problem has been a pre-occupation of the Colony from the end of the last century, and perhaps even before that. I think that people in the Camp have a realistic and understanding assessment of the limitations that must constrain day-to-day medical attention in their areas. But no-one is under any illusion, and certainly not the doctors, that Camp medical visiting is at present performed in an ideal fashion. In my view the key to a reasonable solution lies in the air service.

I should therefore like to tackle this question next. As everyone knows, the Aviation Department has gone through a very sad period which has deeply affected us all. The tremendous loss of Captain Ian Campbell shock the entire Colony and, for a while, that dreadful accident looked as if it might cause FIGAS to cease its operations entirely. Severe restrictions had to be placed on the carrying capacity of the two replacement aircraft which were received, I am glad to say in very quick time, with financial help from the Ministry of Overseas Development. These restrictions have continued until now, but it is expected that the Civil Aviation Authority in London, as a result of an exhaustive examination of the problems involved, will shortly be able to lift the restrictions. In the meantime Captain

/Jim Kerr

Jim Kerr has carried on to maintain the best service he could, deferring his leave until we could secure new pilots. He has been helped in this by the forbearance of the general public.

Happily we now have Captain Russ Hooper, a highly experienced pilot who is already entering fully on his duties, and it is expected shortly to make a further recruitment. With these officers, and with Major Willoughby of the Marines as reserve emergency pilot, we look forward to the re-establishment of full flying in the Islands. We must, however, look prudently to the future. Because of the dedicated service of Captains Kerr and Campbell in providing an air-taxi type operation whatever the conditions, insufficient thought was, I think, given to what might happen were they no longer available, and what sort of operation and type of aircraft would best meet the needs of the Islands as we move into the future. As part of the survey which the Overseas Development Ministry is mounting to look into the whole of our internal communications problems, the air service will receive close attention. To prepare for the Survey's visit, an Aviation Advisory Committee has been set up under the Chairmanship of Mr. Robin Pitaluga, on which Mr. Bill Luxton and our other local aviation experts will serve. In this connection I would like to pay tribute to the very valuable assistance which our two private pilots gave to the community during the difficult months when FIGAS either could not fly at all or had to fly on a restricted basis. Both Mr. Pitaluga and Mr. Luxton willingly stepped into the breach whenever they could spare the time from their busy farms. I would also like to wish Chief Technician Ian Bridges the best of luck in the future when he shortly leaves the ground staff, one of whom, Mr. Vernon Steen, will also soon be going to the UK for a lengthy period of technical training. It is also hoped at last to make positive progress in the selection of local candidates for pilot training, to provide us, within the next two or three years, with a new generation of local pilots.

Still on the subject of aviation, we are now awaiting advice from the Consultants, the Crown Agents and the Civil Aviation Authority in the UK as to when operations can commence at the new airport at Cape Pembroke, and when LADE, whose personnel have continued to give us a regular and reliable service to the mainland, can land and take off from it. Government has not yet taken over the airfield complex and its present, most untidy, appearance indicates that much work has still to be done. This apart, there are still a number of problems to be resolved in connection with the subsidiary services, including the access road, and these are being taken up with the Ministry of Overseas Development.

At this point I would like to say that Mr. Bala Kanagasabai, on loan to us from the Commonwealth Fund for Technical CO-operation, has been a tower of strength in the resolution of many of our aviation problems. If he is a typical example, we should not overlook the Commonwealth Fund when seeking some of our future experts.

Our next field of particular interest is of course education. On purposeful advance in this area will rest much of our future development progress. We must raise the standard of educational attainment to the highest level possible in the Islands, not only to provide the widest field of decently educated young citizens but to draw from them suitable material for senior posts in government, commerce, and the technical professions. Ideally one would like to see overseas education confined to the acquisition of only the highest academic and technical skills. For a start, we must set the general standards up to GCE 'O' level even if, for a while, we cannot tackle the next 'A' level stage. The senior school has already begun on an 'O' level course which will carry more students to this stage than hitherto was possible. By the concentration of senior school education in Stanley for all children over the age of nine, and with the building of a new boarding hostel, the provision of funds for which is now being examined by the Ministry of Overseas Development, we shall be in a better position to deploy our teachers to better advantage than we do now. This may in time mean some extension of the present senior school which, incidentally, now has a new library, the first 3,500 books for which were kindly donated by the British Council, a fine addition to the public library service devotedly run by Mr Stuart Booth. I shall be trying the British Council for more help in this direction, particularly to serve the Camp with an improved supply of books; they have in fact already offered us a further grant.

The Junior school, under its new headmaster, is also making most satisfactory progress. This still leaves us with the difficult question of primary and junior education in the Camp where the system of travelling teachers and settlement schools is not a happy one. The Education Committee are looking earnestly for solutions to this problem. It will be a task of high priority for the new Superintendent of Education, whose arrival we look forward to in August of this year. Up to now the position has been filled on a temporary basis by Mr Frank O'Reilly, headmaster of Stanley Senior School, and I should like to commend him for the most satisfactory way he has coped with both jobs.

Another of our problem areas, as I am sure the Superintendent of Public Works will agree, is his Department. Throughout the world, Public Works Departments are always the Aunt Sallys, as it were, of any administration, with their faults highlighted and their achievements unrecognised or just taken for granted. The problem lies always in the availability of money, for skilled staff, for labour, plant, transport and materials. I do not think that it can be contested that over the years the PWD has become short of resources, while the tasks loaded on to it have been increased. We can see the results of this very easily in the condition of the Stanley roads, and in the state and high costs of the town's water supply, without going into the rapidly approaching problem of sewage disposal. While being unable to do very much to alleviate these situations the Department is hard put to it to keep up with the repair and maintenance of government buildings and staff housing, a greater demand for which will inevitably arise as we bring in more experts to help with our development.

When Honourable Members go into Select Committee on the Estimates I hope you will be able to look sympathetically and constructively at the immediate problems of the Department. In the long term we will have to consider a major reorganisation of our infrastructure construction capacity, and I shall be referring to this later when talking about our development plans. In the meantime I would like to say that in spite of the difficulties they face, Mr Royans and his staff, as I have personally seen, maintain very high standards of skill and performance where they are able to deploy their resources. And in this connection I must also add a word about the efficient service given by the Power and Electrical section in their day-to-day operations and during emergencies, and by the volunteer Fire Brigade, whose equipment and training is being brought up to a high standard by Mr Bob Stewart and his staff, following the visit here by Mr Dennis Davis of the Cheshire Fire Brigade.

The Post Office staff and operators have continued, under Mr Henry Luxton, to handle mail, telegraph and telephone traffic in their usual exemplary fashion - and Cable and Wireless on external communications. Stamp issues are going well and over £50,000 in revenue is currently estimated to be received from this source; we must still, however, look for ways of increasing this revenue. A new definitive issue will shortly be made, based on designs by Councillor John Smith. They will be beautiful stamps which should greatly attract collectors. The department was pleased to welcome back Mr Bill Roberts after a two-year secondment to Cable and Wireless, and his experience will be invaluable in the installation of the proposed new Camp communications system. Mr Patrick Watts is being relieved as much as possible from other duties to look after our broadcasting service; the recent introduction of his local news bulletins has, I believe, been widely welcomed, particularly in the Camp, from where, I am sure, Mr Watts would be only too glad to receive contributions. We are currently considering the whole question of the future of broadcasting in the Islands and a memorandum on this will be submitted in the near future. The aim will be to secure broadcasting as a separate public service, under the control of a public Board, with the Government supplying the facilities but not the direction; to inform without restriction, to entertain with enjoyment. I am also looking for a way in which we could join broadcasting with the appointment of a Camp Entertainments Officer, to jolly us all up in the long winters. Looking farther into the future, we might see if some form of television broadcasting is feasible.

The strength of the Police Force has recently been increased although the problem of recruitment still remains. The future training of recruits will, however, be greatly improved as a result of the Chief Police Officer's attendance last year at the National Police College at Bramshill in the UK, and by the forthcoming arrival of Sergeant Gargate from the UK who is expected to take up his duties in late August. While, in this law-abiding community, a large police force would hardly seem necessary, it is perhaps not generally appreciated that much of police work is concerned with welfare and other social problems. A well-trained force can have an important bearing on our community development, particularly if, as we hope, we are able to progress towards an economic expansion.

As Members will have appreciated from the Bills before you, excellently printed in our small and overworked Printing Office, our unique Legal Department, in the person of Mr Harold Bennett, with the advice of Mr Frederick Cooke, who is currently visiting Stanley, copes efficiently with our law administration. Mr Bennett was most meritoriously awarded an OBE in the New Year Honours List.

The Meteorological Department, as well as providing excellent forecasts for our general information and for the internal and external air services, is also supplying data on solar radiation, sea-water and atmospheric dust sampling, and climatology for international research centres.

The Falkland Islands Defence Force has continued to maintain a high standard of drill and training with their new weapons, integrating for operational purposes with the Royal Marine detachment, who had the honour to receive the Freedom of Stanley in December last.

Finally, in this round-up of departmental activities, the Collector of Customs, who also somehow finds time to discharge the duties of Harbourmaster and Agricultural Officer, has reported that, during the period from December to February last, four visits by tourist ships were made to Port Stanley, bringing some 2,400 tourists.

Before I leave this part of my Address, and get on to our financial and development affairs, I must not overlook the private sector which, in the present balance of our economy, produces the wealth the public sector spends. And here I must mention the Falkland Islands Company which provides many of the internal and external commercial services which are essential to the smooth running of our trade, and is, in fact, the largest single producer of that trade. But I have particularly in mind the farming community in the Camp, on whom we almost entirely depend for our national livelihood. It is by the efforts of the farm-managers, the shepherds, the navvies, the handyman, supported by their wives, that we get the wool by which we pay our way. With them I must couple for commendation the officers and crews of our coastal vessels, and the jetty gang, who bring in the wool and load it for shipment.

Life in the Camp, although attractive to me as a townsman, can be hard if the weather is bad, lacking in amenities for entertainment and very isolated, particularly if one is on a remote island. Camp people have not had an easy time of it in the recent past, and I am especially conscious of the effect the disruption in our communications has had in the West. We must strive to ensure that all our working people, wherever they are, get the best service we can afford. We are all part of the one community, whether we are in the public or private sectors, in Stanley or in the Camp.

Now to our financial affairs, which the Treasury staff, under the Honourable Financial Secretary, have managed with their customary exactitude and dedication. The Honourable Financial Secretary will be outlining our present situation in detail, and laying before you the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for 1977/78, which you will then consider in Committee. During your deliberations I am sure you will wish to bear three considerations in mind. First we must progress; we can no longer stand still in our development or we shall find ourselves moving back in a world of rising costs and increasing sophistication of goods and services. Second, to progress must therefore mean expenditure, however carefully it is applied to achieve the maximum cost effectiveness. And third, our present financial situation, though on the face of it healthy, does not allow us any great leeway, and we shall have to sail even closer to the wind than we have done heretofore.

The deficit in the Budget for the 1976/77 financial year is now estimated to come out at around £20,000, an improvement on the original estimated deficit of £60,000. A surplus of £46,000 is forecast for the 77/78 year, with reserves around the £600,000 mark. Of these reserves it is proposed to transfer £200,000 to replenish the Colony's Development Fund which is now virtually exhausted. Apparently not too bad a situation if we had no more to do than just about pay our way at the current level of activity, and at current prices. But we have much more to do.

While Islanders generally enjoy a simple but reasonably comfortable standard of living, and there is none of the real poverty seen in the less fortunate and deprived areas of the world, we cannot be complacent about this. We will undoubtedly have to look at the structure of our wages and salaries to encourage the acquisition of skills, and their retention in the Islands; the alternative is to meet the need with an increased OSAS-supplemented staff which in itself would continue the anomalies of the present situation. Next, we shall soon have quite a large recurrent expenditure in maintaining the new airfield's services. We must, as our revenue proposals will try to do, raise the thresholds of income tax liability, particularly for the lower-paid family man. We must increase the plant, material and transport resources of the Public Works Department and provide the right sort of equipment for our Medical Services. We must keep the Air Service up-to-date.

We must, and I would like to emphasise this point very strongly, provide some increase in the presently heavily-burdened Secretariat if we are to cope with all the work that development entails. If we are to encourage our young people, both those who have left and those still here, to make a career in the Civil Service, we must be able to offer them worthwhile posts and a ladder of advancement; at the present and foreseeable levels of staffing we are in no danger of creating a self-perpetuating bureaucracy.

/Over and above

Over and above all this is the uncertainty of the wool price - fairly good at the moment, but, as we all know, not a stable factor. A daunting prospect? Not entirely, in my view. We have internal resources we have not yet fully tapped. Above all, I think we now have a determination to proceed with our development on our own, until those larger prospects held out in the Shackleton Report can be realised, which will not be for some years yet. To gear ourselves both for the long and the short term future we shall be urgently looking at our legislative and other machinery, to up-date it with regard to public land acquisition, to the retention of funds, to the marketing of wool, to banking, to taxation policy, to mineral rights, and to financial support for young farmers wishing to strike out on their own. We shall soon have the advice of the recently appointed Fiscal Adviser, Mr Pepper, who is now engaged on his preparatory work in London and will shortly visit the Islands. We have welcomed the appointment of a Hides and Skins Adviser, and have requested the services of an expert experienced in all aspects of wool marketing. We are seeking assistance in the institution of better savings and banking facilities, and consideration is being given to the institution of a Pay-As-You-Earn taxation system. Later in the year, we are promised a senior Economist from the ODM to assist us in the drawing up of a development plan for the next five years. We shall be watching with close interest the exploratory pre-investment studies into inshore crab fishing and processing being undertaken by the Falkland Islands Company and their Japanese partners, and also the private development of small-scale cottage and horticultural enterprises. In this connection the Minister of Overseas Development has offered to provide any advice the Government might require, particularly on a mutton-freezing project on which we shall of course have to consult the Sheepowners' Association.

On the projects side, the Grasslands Trials Unit, already doing valuable work in schemes for pasture and livestock improvement, which could lead to an increased wool yield, has been strengthened by additional staff, and two more should be with us later.

A team of experts is now being assembled by the ODM to make a thorough-going practical investigation of our internal transport and communications problems. This will cover the air service, inter-Island shipping, and the long mooted Stanley-Darwin all weather road, which I would like to see joined by a ferry link with a similar road in the West, forming the basis for a passable Camp track network; something which would transform the social and economic life of the Islands. We are awaiting the report of a Crown Agents' mechanical engineer, sent here by ODM last month to examine the condition and suitability of the plant on offer by the airport contractor. If, after negotiation, this could be purchased, it would at long last give the Public Works Department the equipment to tackle some of our major infrastructure tasks. In this connection I should mention that we are discussing with the British Antarctic Survey the possibility of shipping the remainder of the heavy equipment and material from South Georgia which the Falkland Islands Government bought at a very low price from a former whaling concern. Some of it came up last season, and the next shipment should allow us, for one thing, to build a facility to slip the Forrest, and even the Monsunen, for inspection and repair in Stanley, instead of sending the vessels to the mainland at considerable expense. We should also examine whether there is a need to strengthen and lengthen the public jetty, linking it to the facilities for storage space offered us by the acquisition of the nearby British Antarctic Survey premises.

Our industrial relations are good, thanks to the goodwill and moderation shown in their negotiations by the General Employees' Union, by the Sheepowners' Association and by other Stanley employers. We are not, I think, faced with the restrictions on the deployment of our manpower that so bedevil industrial life in other countries. But I am not sure we make the best use we can of the not overlarge, but highly adaptable, human resources that we have. Partly this may be due to the traditional structure of our farming industry, where costs are forcing change. But as well as finance, one of the main constraints to our development is the shortage of certain middle-level technical skills. For this we must look to overseas recruitment until we can train up our young people. But we must ensure that we have the nucleus of a local labour force for a project construction team. They will initially be engaged in preparing the access road and opening up the quarry in preparation for the causeway and jetty-head to be built at the YPF plant. The construction of this will be a major job and may take at least 12 months. Until it is finished the YPF Agreement cannot be fully implemented. So far only petrol and kerosene are available at the new cheap prices and the supply of gas oil from this source must wait until it can be piped from tankers over the new jetty; it would not be economic, or even physically possible, to bring it in in drums. In the meantime, therefore, we must rely on gas oil supplies drawn from the Admiralty tanks and sold through the Falkland Islands Company.

A further project which we should tackle soon is the provision of more housing, both for the accommodation of expatriate experts and for Islanders in need. If expansion of economic activity is to happen we must have the housing to support it. We are expecting to acquire a number of houses under the airport contract along with the purchase of others made vacant by the departure of the contractors' personnel. But I would look forward to the establishment of a housing corporation which could determine our housing needs, erect new housing and make the necessary financial advances for their private purchase. It is hoped that ideas can be drawn together on this subject for the formulation of a policy as early as possible. It may not be realised that, as in most other urban communities around the world, housing in Stanley is beginning to become a small but already difficult social problem.

To the cost of all this development the Falkland Islands Government is, as I have said, only able to contemplate an immediate contribution of £200,000. We may be able to increase this in the light of our fiscal, economic and wool marketing experts' advice, but not perhaps until the next financial year. In the meantime, in the absence of any substantial private investment, we must rely on the success of our project applications to the Ministry of Overseas Development, and on a small grant for medical equipment from the European Development Fund. Our current ODM loan for various projects is almost entirely committed. The form of its replenishment will depend on the case we can make, supported by the advice given by visiting experts. I am certain that we shall get a sympathetic consideration of our requests. But organisations like the ODM cannot commit themselves in advance and these negotiations do take time. It is for us to put up the most realistic case we can for further aid and our arguments will be greatly helped if we show we ourselves are prepared to put as much as we can into our own development.

I realise I have not made much explicit reference to the Shackleton Report in what I have said so far. I can however assure you that the contents of that uniquely valuable document are very much in the minds of the Administration as essential background to the consideration of almost all our planning. Some of the financial recommendations of the Report have found their way into this year's Budget proposals; others will do so later when we have had the necessary technical advice. And if what I have said this morning on our development proposals is ticked off against a Shackleton check list - I keep one by me in my office - it will be seen they are in conformity with the internal self-help suggestions in the Report: the rest will be taken into account as soon as there is time and opportunity. But the Report's major recommendations on the external, off-shore developments, are not entirely within our competence to decide upon as the Islands' Government. They will come within the compass of the forthcoming negotiations with the Argentine Government, and economic co-operation in that sphere can, as the Report indicates, give us the opportunity to realise the maximum benefit from the exploitation of the resources available around us in our unique geographical position.

/If I may

If I may now turn to the Bills we will be considering after we have disposed of the Appropriation Bill, and the Elections Ordinance. There are measures for the increase of contributory and non-contributory old age pensions, for the payment of allowances to cover the expenses of Councillors, for the protection of wrecks, for the revision of the laws, amongst other matters.

Finally this is Jubilee Year and I am sure that this Council will wish to pass a Resolution congratulating Her Majesty on Her successful and happy reign for the past 25 years. Our own celebrations have been spread to take place throughout the year, starting with the Jubilee Sports last February. They will continue with an inter-denominational Thanksgiving Service on 31 July and I believe other events are planned, in addition, I might say, to a Silver Jubilee election in the Spring!

Honourable Members, in closing my Address this morning I wish to end on an optimistic note. I am conscious that we are in something of a trough at the moment, a trough in our expectations and in our capacity to move forward. I have outlined our problems at the length I have because I think it serves no purpose to gloss over them. But I am confident that we have the will, we have the energy, we have the adaptability to overcome these problems. We are, I am quite certain, at a point of take-off in our fortunes from which we can rise to a new level of life which will in no way destroy or impair the manifold pleasures of the old accustomed ways. To the young people, impatient for advancement, my advice would be to stay here, work hard at acquiring the needed skills, and see these Islands through to the happy future they can have: to be a haven of prosperity, good-will and good living in the stormy South Atlantic seas.

And in these we must steer by our own bright Island stars, avoiding the rocks of dissention and dispute which lie on every side, until we can furl our sails in a bountiful and safe anchorage.

The President then adjourned the meeting and directed that the Council should resume at 10.00 on Wednesday 15th June 1977.

Council re-assembled at 10.00 on Wednesday 15th June 1977.

The President

Before we begin this morning I would like to make a rather sad announcement: Councillor John Smith heard I think this morning that his father had passed away in the UK yesterday. He will be absent from our proceedings for part of the morning while he is telephoning his mother to see whether he should not fly home to UK either this week or next week. I think we would all wish to express our condolences to Councillor Smith on his sad bereavement.

MOTION OF THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT ON HIS ADDRESS TO COUNCIL

The Honourable A B Monk JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I find it a bit difficult being the first in the firing line as it were, after Your Excellency's most excellent and eloquent address. May I take the opportunity to welcome Your Excellency to this Chamber and to thank you for your address. I was very happy to hear Your Excellency say that you wish to be seen as fully identified with our problems - the first amongst equals, as it were, not just a Foreign and Commonwealth Office appointee. On the occasion of Her Majesty's Jubilee it is a great honour for me to be able to speak as an Elected Representative of this Legislative Council of one of Her Majesty's territories. As a British citizen also I would like to send Her Majesty my loyal greetings on the occasion of her Silver Jubilee as Queen. Long may the Elected representatives of the people of the Falklands be able to stand up in this Chamber and address the President of this Council as Her Majesty's representative. (I suppose it dates me a bit but I did attend a formal Jubilee celebration in 1935 as a midshipman on one of Her Majesty's destroyers). As everyone is aware I am sure, and to use the hackneyed commercial phrase, we've been busy fighting off our take-over bid for many years and I suppose we can say recently the pace of action has heightened a bit and we have been subjected to much commercial propaganda and other pressures; told to do this, do that, and told that if we only had not done this or had not done that everything would have been all right, and we would have been saved. It is at times very difficult to know who is speaking in our true interests. I hope you will hear later on, all of you, at this meeting, some information on what I have said with regard to commercial propaganda.

This Council is due to be shortly dissolved - sounds as though we are a collection of sugar cubes or something - a new and more democratic Council will then be elected under the new Constitution, we hope. That's a very good thing and it will give me personally very great pleasure to see democracy take a step forward here. There is still a long way to go before entrenched privileges are finally overcome; however the change should quicken with the advent of an all-elected Council. The fact of having an all-elected Council will of course place a great burden on the shoulders of the electorate, since they and only they can choose the councillors. An all-elected Council implies that the Council has the full mandate of the people, therefore the people have got to think very carefully who they put in, especially at this time. I believe there is plenty of talent amongst Falkland Islanders to choose from; plenty of up and coming young men whose voices should be heard and who have many years to live out here. Even though the present Council is not fully democratic in that we have nominated members - most excellent people though they are - and as a result has been accused by press releases and various other means of almost every crime in the book, including giving the Falklands away, I believe this Council has taken a very responsible view and acted in the people's best interests. We have done nothing to change the sovereignty position or jeopardise it. We merely agreed that Mr Ted Rowlands should go to Argentina to see if there were not areas of cooperation; all without prejudice to our sovereignty position. It is necessary certainly for everybody to be wide awake at this time, to make quite certain our agreement with the British government and Mr Ted Rowlands is not exploited or changed in any way. We must all of us hold a watching brief in my view. A recent utterance by one of Her Majesty's ministers in another place has disturbed many people, and it disturbed me. I think we must make it quite clear to all concerned that while we stick by our agreement with Mr Ted Rowlands we are not as it were pawns in some international bargaining game. We do not intend to swap our birth-right for an Argentine mess of pottage. We are not prepared to compromise our basic sovereignty position for fat chunks of development aid.

Your Excellency covered wide areas in your address and paid high tribute to many people. I will not attempt to be so far-ranging since I lack Your Excellency's eloquence.

Your Excellency mentioned that more frequent meetings of Legislative Council should be held and mentioned the secretarial problem. In my view the transport of camp Members is a far more valid reason for not holding meetings too often. Of course if we eventually develop a road system that problem will be largely overcome. I have always thought in fact, insofar as the Secretariat is concerned, that there are too many bosses and not enough cooks in there. There seem to be too many people saying 'type this', 'do that' but not enough doing the typing or whatever. They know how to spend the money of course but that is the same as the Education Department, which is somewhere in the order of £150,000 I believe. In spite of all this expenditure it seems to be impossible to get copies of Bills to Councillors more than two or three days before a meeting. I know the rules lay down that two or three - two days I think - is the minimum period. However a lot of these Bills are very complicated; they concern our future. One Bill, to do with legal phraseology - called 'Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance' - has forty pages of close print. Since the Bill is presumably important to us - all of us - Councillors should in my view understand the general principle before they agree to it. Now they can be expected to do that - and there are plenty of other bills, fourteen of them I think, all laid on your plate as it were - two or three days before you have to discuss them;

/one Bill in fact I never one Bill in fact I never even knew was coming up, I heard about it on the Government news service. (Actually it's a very nice Bill, I am all in favour because I have a vested interest since I only have to pay OAP for another 100 weeks and then I can sit back and wait I hope). Anyway, I think a real effort should be made to get copies of Bills to Councillors so that they can really give them some serious study.

Your Excellency mentioned numerous experts expected to arrive soon and give us further advice. No doubt a lot of this will be tremendously valuable; however we do run the risk in my view of getting so much advice from overseas experts on almost every conceivable subject and aspect of our lives that we neglect the opinions of Islanders here. All the advice from overseas experts is their own on how they think we should do things. Maybe sometimes people here have other ideas, and better ideas. We must not get so attuned to overseas voices that we fail to hear what Falkland Islanders want and how they want to do it.

I would like to say thank you, Your Excellency, for your address.

The Honourable W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. Sir, it is my privilege on behalf of my constituents, to welcome you to this Chamber. Your most excellent and frank address to this Council yesterday morning, with particular emphasis on development - our future development - is heartening and stimulating to us all. It is to this point that I particularly wish to draw Council's attention. I am not going to talk about our Departments: that will come later in the Budget session, when we go into Select Committee. Nor am I going to criticise those Departments.

Ted Rowlands told us when he was here that most of our development, or our urgent development, was on our doorstep and you so rightly stated in your address that if we want progress then it means expenditure. If we don't spend the money we won't progress; if we spend the money in the correct way then we must sort out our priorities and decide what part of development is going to come first, second, third, fourth and so on. There are many projects in the pipeline: some have been talked about, some have been started, some have been partially started, some have never even got off the ground. I would like to run through a few of these just to jog the memory of Councillors so that when the priority list is drawn up we can get it right.

We've been talking about jetties, we've been talking about roads and the repair of roads (some of this work of course is remedial); we've got some pegs driven in the ground for a school hostel; we've got an extensive road to build from Stanley to Darwin I hope in my lifetime anyway. These are a few of the things. There are other smaller jobs which have still to be done: the hangar slipway we have to think about very urgently in my view because we have got a £14,000 set of floats on each Beaver which has to be reasonably protected. I am sure that this has not gone unnoticed by the Administration.

/Naturally for development

Naturally for development we need manpower and we are fully aware that a lot of manpower has been released by the run-down by the contractor at the airport, and most of this labour I think will be used up when the priorities and the work are fully planned and organised. There are opportunities for those men who have acquired skills by working at the airport - various types of skills - which I think will be most useful for every part of our development and I think we should make full use of these.

One other point I want to make, regarding the remark made by Judith Hart in the House the day before yesterday. She has a very responsible job towards the Falklands and I hope she, too, like Ted Rowlands, will start to care - and I think she will - subjectively as well as objectively.

I would like to support the Motion of Thanks.

The Honourable A B Hadden BEM

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I should just like to also welcome you to this your first Legislative Council and to congratulate you on a very excellent maiden speech.

I am surprised that nothing has been said about the Shackleton Report - maybe I should not be surprised, it is quite a fearsome document - or the airport. I agree with almost everything that my Honourable Friend has just said so I need not repeat that but just a quick word on the Shackleton 'affair' if you like. This very excellent team which we did ask for, which we did get and which worked very hard for several months to produce a most excellent report, and I find it very odd that somewhere in the report they criticise us for having so many experts in the past who have produced excellent reports and that nobody has taken any notice of these reports, they have just gone by the board. Shackleton and his team have produced a report and we have almost done the same thing with that: we haven't really accepted it in the way it was intended to be accepted, and I say this because it was stressed time and time again that the first priority was to get the airport lengthened and strengthened. We hear from AIL and various other people that if we had this airport they would come and their money would be used in the Colony, we all know that, it's obvious. HMG will give us some money for hostels, for roads and for various other projects which are all very fine but if, as it seems, we are not going to get the people to use these services without getting the airport strengthened and lengthened, it would appear to be more money down the drain. Maybe, I don't know, we ought to suggest, say well, we can wait a couple of years for a road or a hostel or whatever, and put the money into the airport project, get it up to the standard that we would like and then say to these chappies, right, there's the airport, come with your plans and your money; and the rest could follow from that. This is more or less the thought. It seems to me rather odd that we asked for these people and are not accepting their report as we ought to have done.

You said in your speech yesterday, Sir, that we must progress, that we can no longer stand still in our development; it is I admit very difficult to know exactly how to do it but I do maintain that if we cannot get outside development which will eventually encourage investment by local people, we are going to be on a very sticky wicket. We need a lot of money to do a lot of jobs and I am not sure where all the money is coming from. In the course of the next few days we will probably have a very good idea; how much we can get, how much we can't get. There is only so much you can take from the people, only so much you can take, and from what you can take you have to decide how much you can spend and how much you can save for a rainy day, and then I suppose we must decide on our priorities. If we can't have A because B is more important, then we have to spend our money that way. There is time for all of this to be thrashed out later, Your Excellency, so that at the moment I really should not say much more, just say thank you for your speech, Sir.

The Honourable the Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I would like to join in the Motion of Thanks. I am afraid my heavy duties will come later in the day when I have to present the Budget, but I would like to mention one thing, and that is the mention of the bosses and cooks in the Secretariat. I would like to say that certainly on the Treasury side the cooks work very hard, and as far as I know the bosses and cooks work very hard in the Secretariat. I think one thing that people do not appreciate is the increase in the volume of work, and it is one of those things which seems inevitable. The price of democracy in the Colony must be quite fantastic. However I agree with the Elected Member for East Falkland, it is important, but the price is very high. I join in the welcome to Your Excellency to the Falklands and support the Motion.

The Honourable the Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, it is not normal for the Official Members of this Council to indulge in any remarks at this stage, in any contentious remarks, and I don't intend to depart from that precedent.

I entirely identify with the remarks made by my Honourable Friend, particularly with regard to Her Majesty's Silver Jubilee and the shall we say coincidental drive that that seems to have revived in Britain and the drive that I know your presence here, Sir, has generated. A new impetus has I am sure been given to our whole purpose by the demands you have made on yourself. I know this only too well and I am sure everybody else does, and I would if I may, presume at this point Sir to identify with these remarks your very much, I think I can say, loved wife, who has made herself very much a friend amongst the people of the Colony and I am sure that a lot of the energy that you have been able to impart to us and give to your own life, your own work duties, is based on the great support you get from your lady wife.

You gave us yesterday, Sir, a formidable list of matters with which we shall be confronted and, like my Honourable Friends, I do not propose to go through that catalogue; it is long. I would like to say however that it does hold out I think much greater prospects than anything that this Colony has seen before. I think we are used to hearing speeches at budget time, forward-looking speeches, but they do have a looking-glass element in them of jam tomorrow, jam yesterday but never jam today. I think, Sir, you have given us some hope that we might get some jam this evening.

/I place very great emphasis

I place ~~very~~ great emphasis on the points made by the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland. They are well taken and it is a pity I think that we cannot do more to perhaps get more people at the middle level - not just the lower levels - of the Service, and I see perhaps some contradiction between the delays with which the work of Council is inevitably dealt; he did refer to the late arrival of some Bills, for which I hope he will accept my apologies. But it is a fact that the list of Bills this time is really formidable and without the cooks and the soup-makers I don't think we would have had the very excellent brew that at least I am sure we are going to hear about later on this morning from the Treasury kitchen.

The Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland also referred to the fact that this was by way of being a temporary or locum Council. I thoroughly agree with him that the Council has nevertheless discharged its duties in an exemplary fashion and not avoided its responsibilities. It has, like any good locum, dealt with the patients as would any locum, and I am quite certain that the patient will be passed on to the substantive Council in very good health.

There is one final point that I would like to refer to concerning the plethora of advice and reports that Government receives from time to time. It has always been a precept of mine that the most difficult part of a report is implementing it. I think I could write a report; I think we all could on almost anything. The difficult part - and I have made this point several times before - is trying to relate that report and the results that flow from it to the machinery of the government with which that report is concerned and which will have to implement it at a later date. This alone I think is a very cogent argument for a strengthening of the staff that have to deal with these matters; we are going to be embarked on a very large scale development programme; it is going to make increasing demands not only on my office but on other departments of Government and each of these departments needs strengthening but most of all, in my view, it is the coordinating role that needs to be reinforced and I am very conscious that strive as hard as we can, this coordinating role is not always discharged in the exemplary and smooth fashion that I would like to see, but which is essential if we are going to get departments working in the way they would like to work between themselves and the way they would like to conduct their own activities. I see no escape from this conclusion that there must be some strengthening of the Civil Service; and I think it is appropriate to mention also that I think the Civil Service should not be regarded as a separate part of the community. A civil servant is nothing more than a non civil servant working in a civil service office; in much the same way as a pedestrian is a motorist out of his car. Similarly, a person who works in the private sector tends at times to be separated out. I think this is wrong. I think it is far better to try and look at this that we are all in this, we all have to work together to ensure that the development that I am sure is possible in this Colony and for which you gave us so much hope yesterday can be brought to fruition. I should like to thank Your Excellency.

The President

Thank you Honourable Members for your kind words and I think also for the very useful points that were brought out in the course of your addresses. Thank you very much.

QUESTIONS FOR ORAL REPLY

The Clerk

Question No 1 of 1977 by the Honourable A B Monk JP

Mr A B Monk

When will our airfield be operational and used for LADE ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, Government hopes that the Stanley airfield will be acceptable for operation by the LADE airline during July this year but the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland will appreciate that the programme of acceptance is also dictated by the conditions in the Contract and the legal implications of bringing an airport into operation.

Mr A B Monk

Can the Honourable Chief Secretary tell me if the work is satisfactory or if there are other problems with regard to the acceptance ?

Chief Secretary

The project - which we refer to as the Airport Project - is in fact a contract let on our behalf by the Crown Agents and included in contractual documents which cover three quite thick volumes; it is therefore a complex question to answer, but to try and simplify it as much as possible and as I am able, the consultants - the consulting engineers, who are the equivalent of our Clerks of Works - have to indicate to the client that the work has been what is called substantially completed and when they are satisfied that this is so they will give Certificates of Substantial Completion. It is a debatable point and can even go to litigation at what stage these can be given. There have been some Certificates of Substantial Completion already issued to the contractor, which have attached to them schedules of work which is still outstanding and against which there is a construction date, so in a sense this becomes a contract within a contract. We are watching this very closely because it could create a situation where the maintenance period for these particular items is shortened.

It was frankly a surprise to me that Certificates of Substantial Completion could be given for parts of a contract, but the contract itself does enable this, so the short answer is that there are some works to be done, there are still some problems. His Excellency mentioned yesterday in his address that anyone who has a look at the airfield site would think there is quite an extraordinary amount of work yet to be done, but Government is purposed to make sure that it does not accept the airfield until it is satisfied that it is in a condition satisfactory to be taken over.

/I am sorry

I am sorry I cannot be more definitive about this but it is a highly complex matter on which we are seeking as much expert advice as we can and we will monitor the future work as closely as we have tried to monitor the past parts of the Contract.

Mr A B Monk

Can the Honourable Chief Secretary tell me if a Certificate has been given for the acceptance of the runway part of the project ?

Chief Secretary

A Certificate of Substantial Completion has been given for the runway part of the project.

Mr W E Bowles

Can the Chief Secretary give us an assurance, while we are on the airport construction, that the original access road known as Surf Bay Road will be returned to its original state or even better than it was before the contract started ?

Chief Secretary

No, Sir, I am unable to give this definitive answer sought by the Honourable Mr Bowles, but I have promised to look into this. I believe there is a possibility that we may be able to enforce this. I will look into the matter and report direct to the Honourable Member if this is suitable.

Mr W E Bowles

Thank you very much.

The Clerk

No 2 of 1977 by the Honourable A B Monk JP

Mr A B Monk

Is the Administration aware that some isolated communities are having to go many weeks without mail drops ? We are all aware of the problems which have beset FIGAS in recent months and no one can expect to see a service comparable to the past until manning problems etc are solved. However it does seem that the high priority once given to mail dropping no longer applies. Will the Administration give an assurance that in future mail drops especially to isolated communities will be given a high priority ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, to answer the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland, we are only too uncomfortably aware and with regret have to admit that some isolated communities must sometimes at least go a number of weeks without a mail drop. I am in fact most grateful to my Honourable Friend for coupling this question to an appreciation of the problems of the several departments concerned, but notably of course to the problems that have beset FIGAS during recent months.

As regards the reported decreasing regard for priority given to mail dropping, I hope I can reassure the Honourable Member - and through him his constituents, whose case he has pressed personally in my office and in this Chamber on several occasions most forcefully - I hope I can give the reassurance that this problem is never very far out of our thoughts in my office, in the air service and above all in the post office. I will most willingly give the assurance the Honourable Member seeks that mail drops will continue to receive a very high priority, and even now every opportunity is taken not only of air drops but deliveries by other means as well.

/this problem is never

The Clerk

No 3 of 1977 by the Honourable A B Monk JP

Mr A B Monk

Will the Financial Secretary tell me the total area of Government land rented for farming purposes and for what total amount per annum?

Financial Secretary

Yes, Sir: approximately 20,000 acres; the rent £454.39.

The Clerk

No 4 of 1977 by the Honourable W E Bowles

Mr W E Bowles

Sir, will Government inform Council (a) if a candidate or candidates have been selected for pilot training, and (b) whether any training establishment in the UK has agreed to accept Falkland Islands candidates?

Chief Secretary

Yes, Sir. I am glad to inform the Honourable Mr Bowles that Government has selected four candidates who have progressed through all the tests that we can give them, educational and medical, and they have satisfied us. Their applications have now been sent on to the authorities in London, which in this case are the Ministry of Overseas Development and the British Council, who in conjunction with the Civil Aviation Authority will be the last authorities on this case, so we cannot be absolutely definite that each or any of them will come up to the criteria laid down.

As regards the other part of the Honourable Mr Bowles' question, yes, the Air Training School in Perth, Scotland, has agreed to train candidates submitted by us, provided they come up to the criteria that they lay down. The permission given so far therefore has been in particular cases and not of a general nature, but I am quite confident that if the candidates are acceptable to the British Council authorities and ODM we would have no problem in placing them at the Air Training School, Perth.

Mr A B Hadden

How long is the training expected to last?

Chief Secretary

I am not absolutely certain but training of a pilot from the day he first sets foot into a 'plane until he is allowed to take passengers is of the order of about two years - this includes his initial training, his advanced training, and then of course his localisation and conversion here. We make our own rules under the Air Navigation

/Order as regards

Order as regards the amount of hours in command that a pilot must have, but it is prudent on the advice of the Superintendent of Civil Aviation to ensure that a man has a fair number of hours under his belt before he actually flies passengers around.

The Clerk

No 5 of 1977 by the Honourable W E Bowles

Mr W E Bowles

Has the Administration seriously reconsidered the export of wildlife, on a strictly controlled basis, as a source of future income ?

Chief Secretary

I suppose the short answer to the Honourable Mr Bowles to his question is that the Administration has not reconsidered the export of wildlife since the last decision was made, and the decision then was only of a temporary nature and never publicly expressed, to the best of my knowledge; but to go into it a bit more deeply, the question of exporting wildlife has come up to Government by various means on numerous occasions in recent years and certainly since I have been here it has been a chestnut that has been before Council on a number of occasions, and it has also been brought to our attention by conservationists and - dare I say it - anti-conservationists; but the embargo that I think the Honourable Member is referring to which was never made explicit was nevertheless a deliberate decision, or deliberate restriction, enjoined on us for conservation purposes and I think the origins of it were that it was brought to Government's attention at the time that much wildlife, not only here but throughout the world, went through the most cruel treatment during transportation such that the mortality rate was extraordinarily high, and I think no one round this table or in the Colony would be a party to cruelty to any form of wildlife, and I think this was the motivation behind the decision.

On the other hand it would be idle to deny the fact that there is a vociferous lobby throughout the world arguing for a complete embargo on the exportation of penguins and other types of wildlife. Government has to balance this against the prospects of earning substantial revenue which we have often been told is possible.

In short therefore, Government is alive to this problem and it realises that genuine fears are aroused if the export of penguins in particular is not controlled and particularly if these poor birds end up in the wrong place having been badly treated, badly handled and it gets to the notice of those organisations whose interests it is to protect animals.

Probably the eventual answer would be a complete re-examination of Government's legislation, which I can show to the Honourable Member if he so wished - and in fact the Honourable Mr Bowles may wish to initiate this re-examination. Our aim should in my view be that the exportation of wildlife is licenced in a manner such that it protects our wildlife, it prevents cruelty and it prevents the wildlife ending up at the wrong destination, particularly if that destination merely uses it for their own commercial ends.

/Mr W E Bowles

Mr W E Bowles

In thanking the Chief Secretary for his reply I too would agree with him wholeheartedly on the cruelty angle and everything else, but my words "strictly controlled basis" I thought would have covered this and standards could be set for the export of wildlife in a manner in which cruelty would be avoided at all costs, especially now with air transportation rather than five days on the DARWIN; but does he not agree that there is an income to be made from this which Government should not overlook if the cruelty aspect can be overcome?

Chief Secretary

Yes, I go along with that entirely and I think the answer is - and I apologise if I did not make it clear originally - that a substantial increase in the licencing fees and a tightening up of the licencing mechanism through a revision of our legislation - and this could be done either on Government initiative or indeed on the Honourable Councillor's initiative - but this I think is the ultimate way we should achieve the control we are after. We would utilise the fee and licencing structure as a filter to ensure that we get revenue and also weed out the propitious and irresponsible exporters. Possibly we could couple this too with some exploration of organisations which are responsible, in which case you could liaise profitably and usefully with the World Wildlife Fund and similar organisations which have a high reputation.

Council adjourned for a short period.

The President

Before we resume questions, Councillor John Smith, who had to be absent when the Motion on the address was taken, I understand would like to say a few words.

The Honourable J Smith

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. In rising to support the Motion of Thanks to your most wide-ranging and encouraging address I would first like to welcome Your Excellency to this House and make just some observations on some of the points which you raised.

The element of faith in the future which prevailed throughout your address did I am sure a great deal to reassure the people of this Colony. This is the twentieth century and we must wake up to the fact that it is and get with it. We have, as it were, for a long time been grinding along in low range and the time has come for us to change into a higher gear and to get on with things and progress.

Progress and development mean people and people mean houses; in any development housing, I feel, must have the highest priority. We already have without any large development going on a housing problem in Stanley. If our young, and indeed our older people, are to remain here, then they must have somewhere to live and it is unfortunate that some families should have to move from Stanley to the camp due to housing problems, and likewise why should families be destined to stay forever in the camp because there are no houses for them in Stanley. I would like to see very much the establishment of a housing corporation and even a system of Government or council houses brought into being as quickly as possible so that we can face and keep pace with development.

Coupled with housing in the proposed development is the question of manpower and the question I ask is where is it all going to come from. We presently have I imagine only sufficient manpower to embark on one project at a time. If that is going to be the case then development is going to be rather a slow business.

The first sods have been cut on the site of the new school hostel and another at the site of the YPF oil jetty, but how are we going to manage both of these capital projects as well as maintaining Stanley, the new airport, and hopefully a start on the road to Darwin? The question of manpower is large but not insurmountable, but I feel it should be looked at urgently. It is pleasing to note that a great number of the labour - much of it semi-skilled - has been absorbed into our PWD from JCL but it would be embarrassing to find ourselves in the unhappy position of having the money, the machinery and not enough men. If we can, as I am sure we will, solve the problem of housing and manpower then we can tackle development and progress in earnest. The schemes which Your Excellency outlined are the most encouraging we have heard for years. We have the projects and even better we know that the money to support them is likely to be forthcoming. This is a start on which hopefully the foundations of a new future can be laid, the building of which will do much to strengthen our position socially, commercially, as well as a prosperous Colony.

I would like also, Sir, to comment briefly on just a few other points raised in your address.

The Government news bulletins are most welcome and were very much needed. Especially the Court news, which, unpleasant though it may be to those concerned, does much to dispel the rumour and often malicious gossip which often surrounds such cases. From what I've heard the service is so efficient that some members of Government learn details about their future before being informed officially. At least the news service is getting the news.

I must confess I was dismayed at the suggestion of increasing the staff at the Secretariat; I really do think that there are a large number of people there at present and any more might tend to clog the works rather than speed up the administration.

I wholeheartedly agree with the training of our young people within the Civil Service and I hope that we will be able to absorb them into our Civil Service and into the other branches of development. It is also very reassuring in the field of education to see that 'O' levels are again being taken in the senior school. This I am sure will do a great deal to keep parents with older children within the Colony, but we must make sure that we can use their talents and abilities within the Colony.

/PWD have been doing an

PWD have been doing an unenviable and very thankless job but it is hoped that with more men at least some of the strain may be taken off. I did notice the other day that the Government dumper truck was fully manned with a crew of five on its journey through the town.

Much has been said recently about our external affairs so I will not dwell long on that subject except to say, Sir, that I agree that we are in a difficult and delicate situation and we should by all means examine proposals on other people's ideas for our future and wellbeing, but I know I speak for a great many people in the Colony when I say that we shall not be forced, pushed or persuaded into any situation which is not acceptable to us. Your Excellency, I wish to support the Motion of Thanks.

When will a road repair programme commence in Stanley and what priorities are envisaged ?

Chief Secretary

I could attempt to answer the second part of the question first, what priorities are envisaged; I have no doubt depending on where we lived the priorities would be seen differently, but the Superintendent of Public Works' idea of priority, for which he has bid in the next financial year's Estimates, is a substantial improvement to Villiers Street; but Government hopes that we can enlarge on this and extend it and make this a really worthwhile - but it would be a costly and large - project. We are not going to do this in the way that the Public Works Department has been constrained in the past. In fact the PWD has carried out continuing maintenance work on several roads in Stanley during recent months: in the bottom of Dean Street there has been reasonably substantial filling in and renewal of that awful section; I know of many pitfalls higher up the hill and in many other roads but despite what I think is the general view the department has been continuing work on an occasional basis, on a maintenance basis only, for instance on Barrack Street, John Street, Davis Street, St Mary's Walk, Reservoir Road, Dean Street, Ross Road West, Brandon Road and Drury Street. Now this is work of a temporary maintenance nature and it often goes unseen (and it often gets washed away by the next heavy fall of rain) but this is what frankly Government has imposed on the department and if there is to be a meaningful road repair programme, which is the first part of the Honourable Member's question, then I think we as a government have got to remove the shackles from that department and provide them with the manpower and the funds and the machinery that all this entails. For too long I think we have kept this department on a very tight rein and given the best will in the world I don't see how that department can discharge its duties in the way that we would all like, that the public would like. It must be assisted with finance before it can undertake a worthwhile project.

/Hopefully some of the funds

Hopefully some of the funds for this will come from our own resources but hopefully, too, we will be able to join investigation of this matter to the investigation of the other transportation problems shortly to be investigated by the Internal Communications Study Team which we are expecting within the next few months.

Mr W E Bowles

I am sure my neighbours on Villiers Street will be delighted to know that they are first on the list. Will the Administration also consider Brandon Road, Snake Hill, Hackett's Hill, Callaghan Road, King Street and the completion of Hebe Street ?

Chief Secretary

Yes, Sir.

The Clerk

Mr J Smith

Sir, what measures are being taken by Government to prevent damage to gardens and property in Stanley caused by cattle roaming in from the Common ?

Chief Secretary

Sir, during recent months in an attempt to prevent incursion of cattle into town and damage to property and gardens, Government has undertaken, through the Agricultural Department, some repair of the fences and a continual check of the fences on the Common, and I am assured that those fences are now in an adequate state of repair, although a continuous watch will be kept.

Attention is also being given by the same department in conjunction with the Public Works Department to the cattle grids, but these present a special problem and I think I have heard as many views on a suitable design for a cattle grid as people I have asked advice from. It seems that our cattle are particularly intelligent and soon learn how to cross cattle grids, unless they are extremely hazardous.

In addition, particular and special attention was given to this problem some months ago by a special administrative committee which was set up, which included the Public Works Department, members of the GTU and the Agricultural Department, to see what could be done and it was largely as a result of their recommendations that these repairs of fences and cattle grids were carried out.

One recommendation we could not carry through because it would have involved the creation of a new department which frankly would have had my support but I do not think we would have commanded much support from the holders of the purse-strings.

Further, the Agricultural Department, the Public Works Department and the Police have all been involved in monitoring this situation and have done virtually as much as they can to prevent cattle straying into Stanley. Probably the only defect now remaining for attention by Government is the cattle grid near the Met Station, and the PWD intend to give this further attention very shortly.

/I suppose it is worth mentioning

I suppose it is worth mentioning also that we do know that at least in one case, and probably more, cattle have entered gardens because the gates of the gardens have been left open, and I suppose the simple solution there is for us all to ensure that our gates are kept shut wherever possible, and I think it is also worth drawing to attention to Honourable Members that while Government will do everything possible to prevent cattle straying into town, there is liability imposed on the dozen or so people who have grazing licences to graze cattle on the Common to restrain their cattle. I am advised that in fact if a person who has cattle on the Common allows that cattle to stray, he can be actionable by private litigation. I don't think anyone will want to go to that extent but there is a liability on those persons to ensure that their cattle do not stray and it may be that if we were to enforce more vigorously the covenants in the leases that these owners of cattle have, this might be one solution to the problem. We could for instance if a person is a continual offender, consider withholding the renewal of the lease. But these are drastic measures and I would hope that we would not have to resort to anything like that. I think once it is known that there is a liability on the owners of cattle to try and prevent this, together with the other measures that the government departments are taking, hopefully we should be able to contain even "Bovril". (The Agricultural Dept bull). As I say it is a very difficult problem but we are doing all we can and if we have the public support I am sure we can remedy this nuisance.

Mr J Smith

Thank you for your reply, Sir. May I ask one supplementary, and that is, is Government aware that there are two bulls frequently on our streets in Stanley after dark? - I could not phrase that in any other fashion, Sir; I'm sorry - one is regarded as being tame but if goaded or even in a playful mood it could inflict serious and even grievous damage to both persons and property, and this is also causing concern to our dairy people in Stanley in as much as it does take the control of calving somewhat out of their hands. I feel that Government should pay special attention to this aspect.

Chief Secretary

I did know that one had strayed in on one occasion and I think it is a serious point that the Honourable Mr Smith has made, and if we can continue to keep the fences repaired, if we get this cattle grid repaired at the Met Station, I think we can contain the situation. If there is anything else that government can do I am sure we will be only too glad - the PWD would be only too glad to assist, pressed as they are with other priorities; I am sure they find it as much of a nuisance to have to deal with this. I know the Superintendent is continually worried by persons complaining because they have had their property damaged; so if anyone can think of any way in which we can improve the situation I would welcome these suggestions.

/Mr A B Monk

Mr A B Monk

Years ago when I kept a horse in Stanley and it strayed it was locked in the pound and I was fined. Is there a pound now, a government pound, for straying animals?

Chief Secretary

To the best of my knowledge there is not a pound, although we do have an ordinance, known as the Treapass Ordinance, whereby animals to the best of my knowledge and ad referendum to that Ordinance can be impounded and the owner charged for the cost of impounding the animal.

Mr A B Monk

Do you not think that should be done, and we should have a government pound in Stanley?

Chief Secretary

I think it is certainly worth investigation and you would have to find a suitable area for it; I think that is a very well worthwhile suggestion; we should certainly take that up.

Mr J Smith

Will Government advise on the state of the swimming pool project and the state of the Fund?

Financial Secretary

Yes, Sir. Lack of funds has prevented progress on this project. You will recall that at last year's Budget Meeting of Council I advised of an application having been made to the European Development Fund for aid. Our application was unsuccessful. A substantial sum was also set aside last year in our development estimates, but owing to the need to purchase the Beaver aircraft all development funds from Colony sources were utilised on the purchase of these aircraft.

The plans and estimates for the project have been completed by Mr Brian Ashfield and Mr Philip Thompson free of charge. The balance of funds available at the end of June 1977 is expected to be in the region of £9,300. This includes £2,000 due from the Great Britain project. I was pleased the other day to receive a telephone call from Mr Pepper in which he referred to the swimming pool project, and it seems that the Ministry of Overseas Development are awaiting further information on this project and when Mr Pepper arrives in the Colony I will be taking the matter up with him.

Mr W E Bowles

Can the Administration give some indication of the date envisaged for commencement of work on the swimming pool?

/Financial Secretary

Financial Secretary

No, Sir. The commencement date cannot be given at this stage; we first of all must be sure that we have the money or the possibility of funds to complete the project before we start.

Mr A B Hadden

Has a sum been suggested for the total cost ?

Financial Secretary

Yes, Sir. The estimates prepared by Messrs. Ashfield and Thompson were in the region of £60,000.

What progress has been made in respect of the Old Age Pensions and Children's Allowances following replies given to questions No 5 and No 9 at the 1976 meeting of the Legislative Council ?

Financial Secretary

Sir, the matter was referred to the British Government for advice on the Old Age Pensions scheme and in January Mr Colin Harris visited the Colony to advise on these matters. His report is awaited and the matters relating to the OAP scheme will be left in abeyance pending his report, with the exception of the proposals made at this meeting for increases in both non-contributory and contributory Old Age Pensions.

In addition it is proposed that we should increase the Family Allowances by one hundred per cent. These points will be raised later on in this meeting.

The Clerk

No 10 of 1977 by the Honourable A B Hadden BEM

Mr A B Hadden

Sir, when does Government expect the new R/T sets to be installed in all camp settlements?

Chief Secretary

Very briefly, Sir, we hope that this can be done as soon as possible. There are certain difficulties in the way: the first is that this is a project which is financed partly from Colony funds and partly from UK funds. As regards the Colony funds, we have deployed some of these already for acquiring four sets which were used in the pilot scheme, in conjunction with the very good and valuable work done by a special committee set up to look into these new sets. This committee recommended some months ago, and as soon as they recommended and made a firm proposal that we should go for a particular set a project submission for the UK portion of the money was made, and I have within the last month received a letter from ODM to the effect that they are now, to quote them, seeking advice on the proposal we have submitted.

/Therefore while

Therefore while we hope that this will get into operation as soon as possible, and I would like to be able to give a definite date when all settlements will be supplied with the new sets, I think it would be wrong and over-optimistic and misleading to state anything. But as soon as the project has the approval from the Ministry of Overseas Development we shall acquire all the sets and distribute them so that the technical officers of the Posts and Telecommunications Department can supply them to camp.

Perhaps if I had to guess, allowing for all these steps I would think - and I would hope not to have to be held to this - I would hope that within a period of eight to nine months we could have all settlements equipped with these new sets.

No 12 of 1977 by the Honourable A B Hadden BEM

Mr A B Hadden

Sir, would Government please report progress on AIL's - that is Alginate Industries Limited - proposals to develop a kelp industry in the Colony ?

Chief Secretary

Yes, Sir. It is with some regret that my reply to this question is a very disappointing one, in that Government has recently been advised that AIL now wishes to surrender the exclusive covenants of its licence with effect from September this year so that all it would be left with would be a licence under the appropriate Ordinance which would give it no exclusive rights to our kelp resources but leave the door open for other companies. This might seem attractive in one way but what it virtually means is that AIL, who from September of this year would have had to pay £7,500 per annum and invest two million pounds during the next two years, have now withdrawn from this commitment. I think this is something to be regarded more in sorrow than in anger, particularly as this Government I think has given every possible encouragement to this company, and we have gone out of our way in several ways to encourage them, and we have had what amounts to a mere pittance by way of licence and retention fees.

The grounds the company state for this action is that they have doubts about the time scale of demand for alginates throughout the world, and they link it to the major question of world trade, which in turn they say depends upon such factors as the price of oil. On the other hand, the company states that the question of sovereignty and the likelihood of a satisfactory solution to it is perhaps now at a lower ebb than it was. In this connection they refer to the Shackleton mission and to the optimistic assessment of the Islands' future. That report gave them considerable hopes which have now been dashed by - and I quote - government's ill-timed approach to the Argentine government combined with Parliamentary statements in which extracts of that report were quoted out of context. That seems to me to be a very strange remark when it is at this time that we need the support of the private sector in our endeavours to resolve the sovereignty issue, that we should be confronted with what one might almost call a wintering approach. If ever we needed support from the private sector it is now and there is no doubt that Shackleton can be quoted out of context, and if one quoted Shackleton back one I think could come to the conclusion that now is the time for companies to show the earnest of their intentions by positive and concrete investment in this Colony.

To sum up therefore, Sir, we find this offer of AIL's most disheartening and disappointing. For several years there have been hopes for the company to show a real earnest and we believe that any company could demonstrate its genuine desire to support the Colony by tangible investment at this time.

The Shackleton report, as my Honourable Friends will recall, laid stress on the need for economic cooperation with our neighbours in certain fields and I see no reason for using this as an excuse. We would much prefer to have purposeful development as a demonstration of faith in the Colony.

Government has however not abandoned hope that this company may reconsider their position and we propose therefore to emphasise that they can demonstrate their faith in our future more by speedy and effective investment and in fulfilment of their promises over many years rather than by an offer to withdraw. If we are unsuccessful in this approach I think it may be the general view that to continue with an offer to contribute £2,500, which was established in 1972 and is now worth very much less than that, is a derisory offer.

Mr A B Hadden

I thank the Chief Secretary for his reply. Are we to assume then that if the airstrip was lengthened and strengthened they would come and operate now? This seems to have been the major obstacle from the information we have had previously.

Chief Secretary

Unfortunately, no. Even if the airstrip was lengthened and strengthened to take the largest aircraft this would still not be sufficient guarantee to the company. At one time I believe this was the major constraint that they saw to their development but they have gone beyond that and coupled it to the political aspect.

/Mr A B Hadden

Mr A B Hadden

I thank the Chief Secretary. Has Government any information that AIL are considering kelp exploration in the Argentine?

Chief Secretary

Unfortunately, Sir, I have no information which could either confirm or rebutt that statement at this stage.

Mr A B Monk

Is it not a fact that AIL never applied to the British Government or ECGD for guarantees ?

Chief Secretary

To the best of my knowledge, Sir, that is the case. There was talk and even correspondence with Export Credit Guarantee Department and I believe an offer of assistance was held out, at least an offer to examine it. To the best of my knowledge no approach was made by the company to ECGD. There was a feasibility study which I believe was conducted at least partly with IFC funds by Humphreys and Glasgow which was the nearest they came to an approach, but that was not followed up either.

Mr A B Monk

Can the Chief Secretary confirm that in fact AIL have a very promising field of kelp in another area ?

Chief Secretary

Yes, Sir, as their Annual Report indicates, they have had feelers out in many areas of the world for many years now and some of those, such as Iceland, are collapsing which at one time looked to be very promising. Others which looked to be not quite so promising are now very much more successful. These are notably Tasmania, I believe, Chile and Norway. This is available in their Annual Report and they have indicated that they are at the moment able to sustain their operations from these sources without coming to what they themselves know as the largest kelp resources in the world, the Falkland Islands.

Mr J Smith

Sir, have any other companies expressed interest in obtaining a licence to deal with kelp resources in the Falkland Islands ?

Chief Secretary

Yes, there was an approach made some years ago by Kelco but they, I believe, have an association with AIL. We are now doing all we can and have been for some time to see if other companies throughout the world might have been interested. Those enquiries of course would have had to be conducted with reference to the exclusive licence that AIL possesses and we would have had to offer under the conditions of the licence held by AIL our first concession to them except in their present concessionary area. This throws a completely different light on the picture and we will have to press with vigour - even more vigour - to try and attract other companies.

/Mr W E Bowles

Mr W E Bowles

Is the Administration aware that certain kelp companies in the United States now inject the kelp in order to give it a three-fold production in one year, therefore making our kelp rather inaccessible or uneconomic ?

Chief Secretary

I learned very recently that this is so. In fact I think if one had to read between the lines of statements over recent years, it is perhaps the technical problems which have inhibited development here, technical problems which the company would have found more expensive to overcome than elsewhere.

Mr A B Hadden

I understand that if you later on this year or when the time comes can say 'this is it, we've finished with you' or have some sort of agreement which is negotiable again, when this comes along it may be a better idea to withdraw the licence altogether and look elsewhere.

Chief Secretary

It is a rather complicated licence in fact, they have an agreement with government whereby they would be granted the first access to kelp resources; they have a licence to a concessionary area, which is defined, and is the area mainly to the South and East of Stanley where the largest kelp resources exist. This is in several stages but the original licence would have imposed quite heavy penalties with effect from September this year and removed the exclusivity of the licence unless they showed a real earnest of their intentions by that date.

By an exchange of letters in 1973 this exclusivity was extended on the condition that they injected two million pounds of investment in active processing of the kelp during the period September 1977 to September 1979, after which the conditions again became renewable and the fees went up substantially and were also adjusted in relation to the wholesale price index.

So what has happened now is that they asked for the exclusivity to be extended and now they offer - you might say they are pre-empting their position - to surrender that exclusivity, and I think the Honourable Member's proposal at the end of his statement just now may be the end of the road but I would hope that we can convince AIL that they have a duty to us; we have honoured our past agreement and we would hope that they could honour theirs by some really positive investment in the Colony.

As I said in my original answer, if our approach in that regard is unsuccessful, it may well be that we regard their offer of £2,500 a year as derisory.

Mr A B Hadden

I understand that AIL are members of the 'Friends of the Falkland Islands'. Would Government consider such action to be the actions of a friend?

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

I suppose to be strictly fair one would regard this as the actions of a strictly commercial kind. We would hope that their connection with us is not of a commercial nature only but it is of a friend, and we would look to friends at this time to show even at some cost to themselves the sincerity of their friendship by investing in the Colony, and I still hope that we can maintain this relationship and convince them that it is in their interests and our interests to continue with the original proposal and develop our alginates as quickly as possible.

Mr A B Monk

Does not the Administration think it is very odd that there should be a complete turn-round in Alginate Industries' point of view from that they expressed on the 14th of February, when they held out glowing prospects for untold millions of pounds in revenue, and a few months later they come up with something completely contrary ?

Chief Secretary

I find it most surprising and very difficult to understand. I suppose at the worst, the worst construction one could put on it is that it looks rather dissimulating, but I hope that we can convince them - as I have repeated already too many times - that it is not in their interests, that we do not accept their argument for withdrawal, we think they are wrong, we think there is every reason for them to go ahead.

QUESTIONS FOR WRITTEN REPLY

Question No 1/77 by the Honourable A B Monk JP

"Why has not the Administration implemented the Motion passed by this Council on Tuesday 15th June 1976 ? The Motion being:

'That Government brings into effect a landing tax to be paid by all persons entering the Colony and its Dependencies, other than permanent residents: that is to say persons who normally reside in the Colony and have done so for not less than one year, and persons engaged in work for the British Antarctic Survey in the Dependencies. It is proposed that the tax should be £5 per person'."

Reply by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"Sir, Government has in fact looked very closely at the matter referred to in the Honourable Member's Motion, both as regards persons arriving by sea and air.

As regards those arriving by sea, Government believes a tax or levy would be most appropriate in respect of vessels bringing wealthy tourists and from which Government and the Colony at present derive little income. For instance, Government has examined whether it would be appropriate for such vessels to pay a capitation fee related to the number of passengers or, alternatively, to the size of the vessel, or its carrying capacity. Care must however be taken to avoid too early an imposition of a tax which could inhibit tourism development, an industry which so far has had /only a small beginning

"only a small beginning but which is regarded as a key one in Government's development plans. The matter has been noted for reference to the Fiscal Adviser, and information about the practice in similar circumstances in other territories is being sought.

As regards persons using Stanley Airport, Government has accepted that there should be an embarkation (not a landing) tax at the airport, applicable to all passengers, with certain small exceptions arising from our international obligations. This decision has been taken after careful examination of practice elsewhere and on advice from the Airport Superintendent. It is proposed that this tax should be set at a reasonable level, although by comparison with other airports it is considered to be rather high.

Government is conscious that it must try to offset recurrent expenditure on the airport by revenue from the same source, but believe it would be unwise to set a fee inordinately high by comparison with other airports, and deter tourists. Government would prefer to see what the effect and earnings of the proposed tax will be and if need be review the position later.

In addition to the embarkation tax, Government proposes, in time, to levy other fees (such as for car-parking, etc) at the airport, and has prepared legislation for this purpose."

Question No 2/77 by the Honourable W E Bowles

"Will Government explore the setting up of a road construction unit in conjunction with the internal communications system as laid out in the Shackleton Report ?"

Reply by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"Sir, as part of its new development proposals and planning the Falkland Islands Government is pressing urgently for acceptance of a number of projects. One to which we give a very high priority is the construction of a road between Stanley and Darwin. This echoes the very high priority given to it by Councillors at their joint meeting with the Minister of State in February.

Our planning, which involves Government in overcoming several constraints such as the purchase of equipment and plant, and the acquisition of additional buildings and technical expertise, is being pressed with vigour; it is now at a near-critical stage but Government is able to take a cautiously optimistic view of prospects that a really meaningful plan will emerge and will include investigation by an expert team on the construction of a road to Darwin.

/It will be appreciated

"It will be appreciated that the Shackleton recommendations were of a tentative nature. They have, however, been supported by this government so far as the recommendations for a road construction unit are concerned.

There are further studies yet to be made and ODM has promised to send out a team to conduct a thorough survey of the Colony's internal communications. The road to Darwin will be one of the main subjects for study."

Question No 3/77 by the Honourable J Smith

"Who is going to build the YPF jetty ?"

Reply by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"Sir, it has not yet been decided who is to build the jetty. This major undertaking, a stone-filled causeway with a 200 ft interlocking concrete block jetty head and berthing dolphins for a tanker, has been designed by the consultants, Mendel Palmer & Tritton, and will require considerable capacity, expertise and support in the construction field. A number of options are being actively considered by Her Majesty's Government, who will substantially finance the project.

To facilitate operations when a decision is reached in London, the Falkland Islands Government have been asked to arrange for Public Works Department to make an early start on a quarry access road east of the YPF depot in Stanley; this work is now in hand."

Question No 4/77 by the Honourable John Smith

"By what figure has the recent increase in air fares from Comodoro Rivadavia to Buenos Aires and return, increased the cost of Government passages, and is Government satisfied at the explanation given by the authorities concerned for the increase ?"

Reply by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"The return fare from Comodoro Rivadavia to Buenos Aires was increased on 16 May 1977 from £53.92 to £118.48.

Immediately this increase was known we made urgent enquiries and representations, and have now been advised that the increase resulted from an incorrect application of the regulations by the airlines arising from difficulties over international fares.

The position has now been rectified and the fare will return to the previous rate. By the date of issue of this reply the necessary steps should have been taken to effect this readjustment.

We enquired further whether those passengers who had already been required to pay the increased fare would be reimbursed and, although we have not yet been given an affirmative answer, we have been advised that those passengers concerned should apply for reimbursement through Vice Comodoro Carnelli. We will be following up this point.

On 1 June, the fare between Stanley and Comodoro Rivadavia rose by £5.24 to £31.18, but we are satisfied that this, one of a number of recent fluctuations in this fare, is in order."

Question No 5/77 by the Honourable J Smith

"Will Government give a breakdown of expenditure in order to show how the rate per pound is arrived at for Stanley Rates?"

Reply by the Honourable Financial Secretary

"Sir, the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislature is authorised to make and levy rates on the owner of any premises in Stanley which are liable to rates. Sections 5 and 30 of the Stanley Rates Ordinance 1973 are relevant.

This year Standing Finance Committee first considered the following net expenditure for calculating the rate:

Garbage disposal	£3,500
Upkeep of Stanley	1,000
Street lighting	4,000
Fire brigade	2,350
Water supply	26,636
	37,486
Deduct: Estimated revenue from the sale of water	1,400
	36,086
Deduct: 25% in respect of Government properties	9,021
TOTAL	£27,065

The calculation was made as follows:

$£27,065 \div £23,582$ (net annual value of rateable premises)

= £1.14 per £

However, the Committee considered that the rate of £1.14 should not be levied and restricted the increase in the rate this year to 25% of the rate imposed in 1976. The calculation being: $125\% \times 79p = 98.75p$ rounded down to 98p.

The Honourable Member will no doubt be interested to learn that Standing Finance Committee has agreed to look into the question of the apparent high cost of the Stanley Water Supply in the hope that expenditure can be reduced."

Question No 6/77 by the Honourable A B Hadden BEM

"How much has the Grasslands Trials Unit cost the Falkland Islands Treasury since it started?"

Reply by the Honourable Chief Secretary

"Sir, the recorded expenditure out of local funds up to 15th June 1977 totals £5,947.90."

MOTIONS

A Motion for the adoption of the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the period March 1976 to May 1977 was put by the Honourable Financial Secretary.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. The Standing Finance Committee met on nine occasions during the past year and approved £403,864 in additional provision. £196 for the year 1974/75, £81,928 for the year 1975/76 and £321,740 for the year 1976/77. I should explain that during the present year of 1976/77 the large items of expenditure were on the Beaver aircraft and on the property acquired by this Government from the British Antarctic Survey. I beg to move that the Report of the Standing Finance Committee be adopted without debate.

The Honourable Chief Secretary seconded the Motion which was carried.

A Motion by the Honourable A B Monk JP

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I beg to move that this Council adopt the following resolution by acclaim:

We, the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and the Members of the Executive and Legislative Councils of the Colony of the Falkland Islands, humbly desire on behalf of the whole population of the Colony to convey to Her Majesty on the happy occasion of Her Majesty's Silver Jubilee an assurance of the respectful affection borne by every one in this Colony to Your Majesty's throne and person and they hope and pray that Your Majesty's reign may be prolonged to bring new strength to the great Commonwealth of which this Colony forms so small but so loyal a part.

The Motion was seconded by the Honourable Mr W E Bowles and carried by acclamation.

The Council then adjourned for lunch and re-assembled at 2.00 p.m.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

BILLS

APPROPRIATION 1977 / 78 BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. It is customary both in this Colony and in other territories to review the finances relating to the current financial year, before dealing with the budget for the ensuing year. I will not depart from this tradition and briefly summarize the revised Estimates for 1976/77 before introducing the 1977/78 Revenue and Expenditure proposals.

/Additional revenue

Additional revenue of £134,000 is forecast, making a revised estimate of £1,185,000. Expenditure is revised at £1,206,000 which is almost £95,000 more than the original estimate. The deficit which was forecast at this time last year was £60,000. It is now considered that the deficit will be slightly in excess of £20,000 which is an improvement of almost £40,000.

The main increases in expenditure relate to the purchase of the British Antarctic Survey buildings and plant which were offered to Government at reasonable prices during the course of the year. Other large expenditure increases can be seen under the Public Works Department principally on the Water Supply, Repairs and Maintenance of Government Buildings and Installations, Motor Transport and Purchase of Furniture.

Under the Secretariat, Treasury and Central Store Head large increases appear for the purchase of stores, which is due to increases in prices of imports from Britain, and Income Tax Refunds. In this latter case there is matching revenue.

Higher investment and tax revenues are the main responsible factors for the increase in Revenue. The Ordinary Reserves of the Colony should be in the region of £600,000 at the end of June.

For the coming Financial Year, 1977/78, a surplus of £46,000 is forecast. Ordinary Revenue is estimated at £1,408,000 and Ordinary Expenditure at £1,362,000.

The estimate for Companies Tax is put at £400,000. This considerable increase is influenced by the prices obtained for the 1975/76 wool clip, which sold at an average of 91.5p per kilo, and by an increase in the rate of companies tax which I will refer to in a minute or two.

Consideration has been given to some of the recommendations in the Shackleton Report. Some are included in the revenue proposals contained in this Budget.

Under the Aviation Head of Revenue, it is proposed that the Air Service Boarding Fee, which at present stands at £4.50, should be increased to £6.00. The Air fares applicable to non-residents, it is suggested, should be increased to an economic level.

It is proposed that a £2.00 embarkation fee should be introduced on the opening of Stanley Airport.

It is proposed to increase import duties on tobacco from £2.40 to £2.80 per pound, which is about 3½p more on the popular 50g tin.

It is proposed that the duty on cigarettes should be increased from £2.88 to £3.30 per pound, which is approximately 2p more on a packet of 20. It is proposed that cigars be increased from £4.20 to £5.00 per pound.

The proposed increase in spirits is from £12.00 to £13.50 per gallon, that is 25p more on the bottle. It is proposed that the increase in duty on fortified wines should be increased from 90p to £1.10 per gallon, which is about 4p more on the bottle. Other wines it is proposed should be increased from 78p to 90p per gallon, which is 2p more on the regular size bottle.

/Under the revenue Head,

Under the Revenue Head, Fees and Fines, it is proposed that there should be some increases in the various medical fees, particularly those for non-residents, and it is proposed that non-residents should pay £5.00 for an out-patient consultation, which is at present charged at 22p. It is proposed to increase domiciliary visits from 30p to £10.00. For visits to ships outside Stanley and Port William it is proposed to charge £100.00 instead of the current fee of £50.00 and that the charge for each patient seen be increased from £1.00 to £5.00. Daily charges in the Hospital for non-residents it is proposed to increase from £10.00 to £25.00 per day.

For residents the following increases are proposed:

In-patient fees from £1.50 to £2.00 per day
Out-patient fees from 22p and 19p for the first and subsequent consultations to 30p and 25p respectively.

It is proposed to increase Camp Medical Subscriptions from £2.52 to £3.24 per annum for a single person, and for married men the increase should be from £5.04 to £6.48 per annum.

The employers' contribution, which is at present £2.50 per 1,000 sheep depastured, should be increased to £3.25.

It is proposed that the Darwin Boarding School Fees should be increased from £12.00 to £15.00 per child per term, and the charge for meals for day children be increased from 5p to 7p each.

Under the Harbour Head of Revenue, a nominal sum has been inserted for the suggested fee to be levied on passenger ships, but at present this matter is still under consideration. Further information on this subject is being sought from other territories and advice from our newly appointed Fiscal Adviser, Mr Pepper.

Under Investment Income a decrease in interest is shown from the reserves, largely because of the substantial expenditure planned for the Colony's development programme. A transfer of £50,000 from the Government Savings Bank to the General Revenues of the Colony is also included under this Head.

Under Internal Revenue it is proposed that there should be a substantial reform both in Income and Companies Tax. Bills, which have already passed through the Executive Council, will be published shortly and it is hoped that they may be taken to the second reading at this meeting, the Bills then passing through their final stages at the first meeting of the new Council, which I assume will be held towards the end of 1977.

The main Income Tax proposals are:

That the Personal Allowance to which every taxpayer is entitled be increased from £230 to £350, that the allowance for a wife be increased from £180 to £300, and that the allowance for a child, in the Colony, be increased from £130 to £250 and that for a child at school overseas be increased from £150 to £280.

/It is proposed that

It is proposed that the earned income relief maximum, which currently stands at £500, be lifted to £750.

It is proposed that the allowance for a dependent relative should be increased from £130 to £250, and that old age relief, which at present operates when the income is below £600, be adjusted to operate in a case where the income is not in excess of £900 per annum.

In order to compensate for some of the loss of income because of the changes in allowances, it is necessary to increase the tax rates and it is proposed that rates suggested in the Shackleton Report be introduced. The proposed increases are as follows:

On the first £500 chargeable income	from 15%	to 17½%
On the next £500	" 20%	to 22½%
" " " £500	" 25%	to 27½%
" " " £1000	" 30%	to 35%
" " " £1000	" 35%	to 40%
" " " £1000	" 40%	to 45%

and on all chargeable income over the first £4,500 from 45% to 50%. It is also proposed to increase the annual values applicable to allowances in kind by approximately 50%. Finally, with regard to taxation, it is proposed to introduce an additional allowance for earned income relief in respect of a wife - this is known as WEIR: Wife's Earned Income Relief.

It is proposed that all these adjustments should take effect from the 1978 year of assessment, that is, all income earned in this year, 1977, will be subject to the new taxation proposals. With regard to Companies Tax, it is proposed that the rate be increased from 40% to 45%, and that Capital allowances be adjusted for simplification and to encourage investment. In this connection it is proposed that there should be only two rates for depreciation (both reducing) and no initial allowances - 10% in the case of ships and buildings and 25% for the rest. Using the rate of 10% an asset is written off in 22 years and using the 25% rate an asset would be written off in eight years.

It is proposed that radio licences, which currently stand at £2.00, should be increased to £4.00.

Under the Miscellaneous Head of Revenue, Members will see that £50,000 is forecast for the issue of coins. This estimate is in respect of a coin to be struck to commemorate the Silver Jubilee. Mr Pepper is at present in touch with the Royal Mint making the necessary arrangements for the release of the coin.

Following increases in costs, in particular the increase in the cost of oil, an adjustment is necessary to the electricity tariff and it is proposed that the tariff be increased from 4.34p to 4.76p per unit. Honourable Members will also note that under this Head an increase is shown under Stanley Rates and this is brought about by the need to keep pace with the rapidly rising costs of the Water Supply and Fire Brigade.

/Under the Posts and

Under the Posts and Telecommunications Head of Revenue, the estimate for the Sale of Stamps includes the new definitive issue and special issues - one to commemorate the Coronation, one for the opening of the new airfield and one for the commemoration of the Falkland Islands' accession to the Universal Postal Union. It is proposed that inland postage rates be increased from 2p to 3p. It is also proposed that the telephone rental, which is at present £15 for domestic subscribers and £30 for businesses, be increased to £18 and £36 respectively.

It is proposed that all rents should be increased in respect of Government quarters to take account of higher costs. Another consideration in this connection is the fact that the occupants will not be meeting current increases in the Stanley Rates. It is therefore proposed that unfurnished quarters should be increased in the region of 10% but that furnished quarters should bear a greater burden because of very high costs of furniture, and it is proposed that these quarters should be increased by at least 20%.

The 1977/78 Expenditure proposals include provision for an additional pilot and also under the Aviation Head of Expenditure charges for maintenance of the Stanley Airport. Two larger items which do not appear in the current Estimates are: a fee of £8,500 for Telecommunications Maintenance Contract, and a sum for two handymen for general duties at the Airport. The Stanley Airport fuel bill is estimated at £4,000. A few items of Special Expenditure are for consideration, for example a lawn-mower, £300, and £100 for anti-hijacking equipment.

Under Customs and Harbour it is proposed to employ a full-time Clerk. A change in the establishment of mv FORREST is proposed by promoting the Senior Engineer to a new post of Mate/Engineer and the employment of an additional assistant Engineer. The post of Mate is to be abolished.

Education Department: it is proposed that the Teacher-in-Charge at the Junior School should be upgraded to Headmaster. A few New Items of Special Expenditure for the Education Department are also provided for.

The Medical Department Estimates include a new post of one Nursing Sister. This proposal is made as it is considered that an additional Sister is required to cope with the general workload and for the introduction of a formal teaching system for Junior Nurses. This post may enable a rudimentary District Nursing system to be established.

It is also proposed to abolish the post of part-time typist and engage a full-time Clerk. It is proposed to employ an additional part-time maid.

A sum has been inserted for the payment of a small fee to any Nurse living at a camp settlement who may be prepared to undertake camp District Nursing. Special Expenditure of the Medical Department includes a re-vote of a sum for the Hydatidosis Campaign, teaching aids for Junior Nurses, £600 for a green-house, and provision for the use of standard and safe pharmaceutical containers.

/It is also proposed to

It is also proposed to replace the dental unit which is at the end of its useful life. Replacement mattresses, medical gas cylinders and a hospital dishwasher, and a number of other smaller items of equipment are also provided for.

Police Department: a proposal has been made by the Chief Police Officer for an increase in the establishment. Another item which is new to this year's Estimates is the provision for housing allowances for Police Constables.

In the Public Works Department it is proposed to employ one additional Filtration Plant Operator.

Under Public Works Recurrent, provision is included for a caretaker for Stanley Garbage Disposal Unit and two full-time Firemen, as well as an additional mechanic for the Public Works Department.

Items of Public Works Special Expenditure include £4,500 for the continuation of the modernisation programme at the King Edward Memorial Hospital, £6,000 for converting three Government houses to oil-fired central heating, three new replacement Land Rovers, a diesel mini-bus and a replacement mini-Clubman. There is also provision for retaining walls around the oil tanks.

Secretariat, Treasury and Central Store: A bid is made for an increase in staff to cope with the development of the Colony. It is proposed to recruit a Development Officer, an Executive Officer for the Secretariat and an Assistant Secretary of Finance. An additional Assistant Secretary and Clerk of Councils has also been inserted in the Estimates. This post was in fact agreed to during the course of the current year. Provision is also made for a few items of office furniture for the Secretariat, Treasury and Central Store.

Social Welfare: Provision is included for the Social Welfare Officer, which is purely a transfer of this post from the Medical Department Estimates. It is considered that this classification is more appropriate. There is provision made for a 100% increase in Family Allowances. It is proposed to increase non-contributory Old Age Pensions by £2.50 per week for married couples and £2.00 per week for single persons.

Supreme Court and Legal Department: A new post is to be created in the Legal Department: a Senior Magistrate in addition to the Registrar.

Training: £15,000 is set aside this year for the training programme. This includes provision for training pilots, aircraft engineers and trainees in other fields, but no firm proposals are made at the present moment.

Under a new Head, Transfer to Development Fund, expenditure of £200,000 is envisaged for an injection of funds into the Colony's Development Fund. The balance of the Development Fund was exhausted this year largely attributable to the decision taken last spring to replace the Beavers. The £200,000 transfer to the Development Fund will allow the Colony to continue financing Development projects for which overseas aid is unavailable, and also to meet the local element in a case where the Colony is required to contribute part of the cost of a project for which UK Development Aid has been granted.

/is required to

The following Development expenditure is included in the 1977/78 Estimates:

£25,000 for housing loans and for the repatriation scheme introduced last year;

£36,800 for new R/T sets;

Provision is made to purchase ten houses and to obtain plant for the establishment of a Development section of the Public Works Department;

£277,000 for a jetty for the unloading of fuel to the YPF tank farm;

£ 50,000 for the first stage of the proposed School Hostel;

£ 42,000 to provide for new X-ray equipment, a new ambulance and hospital theatre equipment;

£ 12,500 for the re-surfacing of a section of road within Stanley;

Approximately £14,000 to provide for the local expenses relating to Technical Cooperation. The large proportion of this vote relates to the Grasslands Trials Unit but includes local expenses in respect of other officers such as the Camp Education Adviser, the Archivist, Salaries Commissioner and Fiscal Adviser.

A token sum is inserted for the proposed road from Stanley to Darwin.

The total expenditure for Development projects for 1977/78 exceeds £668,000 of which it is forecast that £515,000 will come from overseas aid, leaving £153,000 to be financed from local funds.

It is anticipated that by the end of June 1978 the Ordinary Reserves of the Colony will amount to £440,000 and a balance of £50,000 will be left in the Colony's Development Fund.

Mention was made in Your Excellency's address of the appointment of a Fiscal Adviser, Mr Trevor Pepper, who is to arrive in the Colony shortly for a two-month stay. I therefore feel it would be prudent not to make any substantial comment at this stage on the financial position of the Colony but leave the economic assessment to the expert.

However I would be failing in my duty should I not briefly mention certain aspects of the Colony's finances.

While the reserves may be described as adequate, at the present moment, it is important to bear in mind that a considerable slice of the total revenue during 1977/78 is estimated to come from such sources as company taxation, the issue of coins and surplus Savings Bank income. This revenue cannot really be described as reliable revenue. I consider it important that the Colony should maintain a reasonable revenue reserve to meet temporary shortfalls. It is also important to ensure that when the price for wool is high and revenue is plentiful, recurrent expenditure is not unnecessarily allowed to surge up to a level which cannot be maintained. I fully appreciate the fact that we must face rising expenditure. We are all aware that it is impossible to provide services at the same level of expenditure year after year.

It must also be borne in mind that it would be disastrous for the Colony if charges for services and other revenue rates expressed in monetary terms were to remain constant while inflation continues to rage throughout the world. The person who advocates no changes in the charges for services, must be educated to the fact that it is essential to keep these charges under review. I think we are all aware of the unpopularity of steep increases imposed infrequently. Regular frequent increases, I am led to believe, are much more acceptable.

There are a number of important factors relating to the revenue proposals to which I referred earlier and which call for special comment.

With regard to the proposal to increase medical fees, it is possible that a compulsory health insurance may be introduced during the course of the year. This scheme, which was conceived by the Senior Medical Officer and recommended by the Shackleton team, is to be studied further by Councils on receipt of the report by Mr Colin Harris, the expert from the U.K. Actuary's Department who visited the Colony in January and who is looking into the mechanics of implementing such a scheme.

The income tax proposals which I referred to are not insignificant; in particular they are especially favourable to the family man. The increase in the allowance for a child is approaching 100% and that for a wife over 60%. The papers which have been prepared by the Income Tax Officer and which I will now lay on the table illustrate substantial adjustments, in particular for the lower paid family man. You will appreciate the significance even further when I tell you that the estimated income tax revenue in the 1978 year of assessment on 1977 incomes would be in the region of £100,000 more should Council reject the proposals. It is considered that there is strong justification for proposing the increase in Customs duties, charges for services, etc., and reducing the direct taxation for the lower paid taxpayer.

In order that the public may have some idea of what the adjustments mean in simple terms: take for instance a married man with two children, who is receiving an annual earned income of £1,500. He would be required to pay, under the present system £74.55; under the proposed scheme he will be required to pay £5.77. A married man with three children with £1,800 earned income is at present required to pay tax of £96.40 but under the proposed system he will only pay £2.27.

One of the most important issues which Mr Pepper will be considering is an effective method of arresting the outflow of funds from the Colony and injecting those funds largely into productive investment in the Colony. It should be noted that the estimate of outflow of funds from company activity in the Falkland Islands, quoted in the Shackleton Report, in 1974 prices, was equivalent to over eleven million pounds, spread over the twenty-four year period 1951 to 1974.

In addition to making proposals for controlling the outflow of funds from the Colony, the Fiscal Adviser will be examining the commercial banking services in the Colony which now require expansion.

Honourable Members will note that the memorandum accompanying the Estimates is a little larger this year, and the intention of this is to provide you with as much detail and information as possible for your work in Select Committee. I trust you find it useful.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Honourable Chief Secretary seconded the Motion; the Bill was then read the first time and Honourable Members then spoke to the Motion for the second reading.

Chief Secretary

In rising to support the second reading of this Bill, Sir, I would like to congratulate the Financial Secretary on an incredible accomplishment: in these times of inflation to encompass within our resources and to demonstrate at the same time that we shall have the ability to carry out the purchases that we have been talking about earlier in this sitting is a remarkable achievement; not only have the calculations been a remarkable tour de force but the exposition has been most lucid, and I am sure a great help to us all.

I think there is very little left out of the Honourable Financial Secretary's statement that needs underlining except perhaps it is appropriate for me to say that I think it does demonstrate to us that self-help is going to be the thing that is going to pull us up by our own shoestraps, and also demonstrate to ourselves and EMG that we have a role to carry out. And I find personally the most interesting part of the Appropriation Bill that dealing with development, which shows a great degree of initiative and enterprise which I am sure those who wish to help us will find attractive. At the same time I think the proposals achieve what is generally known to be the wish of the people and certainly of this Council, that the burden of carrying out that development is shifted as much as possible on to those who can afford it. If one runs quickly down the list of additional expenditure one is struck I think by the fact that in these times of inflation the increase generally is a modest one; certainly not outstripping the inflation except in those special areas where it is necessary for a development purpose, and even on the ordinary expenditure estimates they are concomitant with the development estimates; they are intended to establish and create a base which will be able to carry this development load.

I have no doubt this will perhaps be one of the most contentious parts of the Bill but it has been very carefully looked at, very carefully discussed and I hope that this Council will agree that for too long we have creaked along with a machine that has been unable to implement the wealth of advice that we have heard spoken about earlier today because it has just not had the capacity, and I know from my experience here and from what the Auditors have told me that if we do not extend the services that are available to implement our government machine, we will then have a bleak future. The welter of papers that are prepared for this session of Legislative Council alone I think demonstrates the burden on one section of the Civil Service, but there are other sections that are equally burdened and the increases where they do occur in percentage terms are not large and I think are fully justified. And lastly as we have heard they leave the door open for new and stimulating ideas from people such as the Government Actuary, the Fiscal Adviser, who doubtless will indicate to us even more ways by which we can pull ourselves up by our own shoestraps.

I beg to second the Motion.

Mr W E Bowles

I would like to congratulate the Financial Secretary on his excellent speech, and in times of inflation we cannot expect our fares and fees to stand still; he is quite right. Income Tax proposals I think will be received with enthusiasm. Not only do they give more relief to people in the more common brackets and offset their expenditure against the fees they are asked to pay, it makes all much easier. We will go into this in detail in Select Committee and there is no need to say too much about it now, but I don't think there is any need for despondency.

I would also like to mention the departmental heads who have submitted their estimates and I think this year they have done their job more religiously than they have ever done before, although naturally we will be looking at it and pruning it where we can - where it is necessary to prune it - but with development in mind if you prune too heavily you cannot expect results. What this Council has now to decide is where its priorities lie - and this is going to be a difficult decision - and how the money is going to be spent and where it is going to be spent. The speed of government business today I think is much greater than it was years ago and naturally causes more expenditure and increases the staff, and I would suggest that any member of the public who wants to know why there are such increases in staff, to look into this in more detail and get the views of the people who work in these departments. I know it is our job as Councillors to look into this for them and answer their questions as much as we can, but an awful lot of work goes on of which the general public are unaware. The preparation of these Bills and the papers we have today - I imagine Council alone causes government officers an awful lot of work, and without these papers, without this information, without these proposals and ideas, we can't work properly anyway.

I would like on behalf of everyone once again to congratulate the FS on his excellent address, and I look forward to the Select Committee stage.

/Mr A B Hadden

Mr A B Hadden

Your Excellency, I too would like to congratulate the Honourable the Financial Secretary because he must have taken a long time and spent a lot of overtime hours preparing this massive document. I have taken notes all the way through this thing which I am not going to deal with much at the moment because it is a waste of time - here, I mean- but I was very interested and I think the financial problems could possibly be solved, Sir, if we can produce an anti-hijacking device for £100 we could sell these to every airline in the world and we would not have to pay income tax again until I don't know when. This really is a cheering prospect, I must say.

I really only want to congratulate the Financial Secretary - quite an achievement to produce a document like this - and I am sure he is not expecting it to go without comment.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I would like to congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary for the very able way he has presented the Estimates, and he has quite overwhelmed me with figures. I really haven't anything to say at the moment. I was going to mention the anti-hijacking device myself, I thought perhaps that was overtime to a policeman for one hour a day or something, but perhaps we find it is something more sophisticated; we have to question him on that one when we get him in Committee.

I would like just to make a few general observations. To take taxation, companies' tax, he proposes to raise it to 45% which brings it fairly close, I think about 7% below the UK level, but also to increase the capital allowances of course, but I think probably the capital allowances are still very much larger in the UK and I just wonder whether in fact a company would not be paying more tax here at 45% even with the increased capital allowances than it would in the UK at 52% but with very much larger capital allowances. The reason I mention that is of course that I think we have to consider it because that would obviously encourage companies to try to avoid taxation here and pay it somewhere else, and obviously for a sheep farming company it is fairly easy to avoid taxation if you want to. I am not going to teach the Chief Financial Secretary how to do it, I am sure he knows it anyway.

With regard to personal taxation obviously it is a very welcome suggestion and it is something I have personally been advocating for quite a few years, that allowances should be raised because they were quite out of step with personal income. I still personally think that these sort of allowances should be linked to a Cost-of-Living index so that there is an automatic increase in them but this present suggestion is better than nothing but I do think they should be linked in some way to the Cost-of-Living index.

/I am very happy with regard

I am very happy with regard to air fares where it is proposed that non-residents should pay a realistic fare; as Honourable Members know, I have complained in the past, it is not much good having a tourist industry if we are subsidising every single flight made inside the Colony. There is only one reason we have tourists and that is to soak the beggars. We don't want to have them just for the colour of their eyes or anything.

I must say speaking as the East Falkland delegate I do object to the increase in telephone rental because we in camp also pay this telephone rental and at San Carlos for instance we have to pay two commercial telephone rentals and we have to also maintain 21 miles of telephone line at our own expense, and since we very often cannot get through to Stanley anyway, I really think it is a bit steep to increase it. I also do not agree with the increases in the internal postal rate to 3p because I don't think the internal postage service can by any stretch of the imagination be called a good one, and I really think that the general taxpayer should subsidise the internal postage rate. In fact, talking about increases in fees and radio licences and that sort of thing, all increases of that nature bear most heavily on the lower paid, and I think in a small country like this general revenue - in other words income tax - should bear the major cost of all these things because in that case the higher paid person is paying the greater share of the bill.

I am a little disappointed that we haven't already introduced a National Health Insurance stamp scheme for medical fees, and the whole system is so extraordinary and so appalling that I really do not see much point in increasing the camp medical fee because it is so infinitesimal that I am quite sure it does not pay the clerk's time to collect it even with the increase. Why we cannot have a National Health stamp scheme for the whole of the Falklands, do away with these wretched little medical fees, I cannot imagine.

I am also disappointed that we haven't got a PAYE scheme for tax. With earnings very much higher it is quite a problem for people to suddenly find two and three and four hundred pounds and very much larger sums sometimes in tax just like that whereas if they were paying under a PAYE system they would not suddenly find these very large sums of money and I think I did briefly mention at some other stage that I am disappointed there is not a scheme for taxing money going out of the Colony. So much time and energy has been put into this appalling 'Interpretation and General Clauses' Bill when a quarter of the energy could have produced a perfectly good scheme for taxing money going out of the Colony and we could be putting it into a development fund already.

However I must congratulate the Chief Financial Secretary on his exercise and thank God I did not have to do it myself.

/Financial Secretary

Financial Secretary

First of all I wish to thank Honourable Members for their kind remarks. There are a number of points which I think I should mention now. The point about company tax I think is quite important which the Honourable Member for East Falkland mentioned, and the only reason we are not taking the Bill through all its stages at this meeting is so everybody can see it well beforehand, give them plenty of time, the London companies plus the local companies, and they can obviously discuss it with their members, although I don't think that it is too severe; I think the proposal of a 5% increase is justified and that the allowances are all that we can afford at the moment.

As far as the personal tax goes I am also glad that the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland mentioned this because I think an annual review is justified. I don't see how we can introduce a system that would link it to the Cost-of-Living scheme but at least we could make an annual review, and this is done in most countries.

I think I'll avoid the issue of telephone rentals at the moment and deal with that in Select Committee.

Postage from 2p to 3p: we seem to have this one coming up every year and I think it must be far cheaper now to send a letter round in the Falklands than it was when it was introduced. The value of the pound has gone down so much. I think it is important that these fees should be regularly reviewed and I don't think that we want to be accused that there is stagnation in the financial sector of government. The people who use the services should also make a reasonable contribution towards them. I appreciate the remark that the services should be subsidised, I think that is fair enough, but the person who uses the service should also pay a fair share.

The medical insurance scheme: we are going as fast as we can and we hope it will come up for consideration shortly.

I did not mention the PAYE system, I should have done, because a PAYE tax system is also under scrutiny now and we hope we will be able to refer this to representatives of employers and employees. It does certainly put quite a strain on employers and as far as employees go there are certain aspects of the scheme which they will want to know more about, too. One of these facts is that to introduce it the person will be required to pay not only his tax bill for the one year but he would also have his deductions starting right away, unless the Colony went without taxation for one year. This matter will have to be looked at and I am sure that all employees will want to know about this point.

As far as the money leaving the Colony is concerned, all Councillors are now wide awake to this and I think we are in debt to the Honourable L G Blake who is not with us today for putting forward a definite scheme which Mr Pepper is now studying in Britain.

The Bill was then read a second time and, on the proposal of the Chief Secretary, seconded by the Financial Secretary, it was referred to a Select Committee of the whole House. Council then adjourned.

/Council resumed

Council resumed at 10.30 a.m. on Tuesday 21 June 1977.

The President

Welcome back, Councillors, to the session after your long labours over the Estimates which I gather have engaged Councillors over the weekend and late on Sunday evening.

We have two absentees this morning: Councillor J Smith has of course had to fly home to the UK because of his father's death. He sought my permission to go and was exercising his mind about leaving the Council at this time but on my advice felt that responsibility lay with his mother.

The Deputy Governor is also given permission to be absent this morning. As you know I have asked him to coordinate arrangements for public transportation at this rather difficult time, bad weather and a heavy backlog at the air service, and he is away doing that.

Chief Secretary

Sir, the Select Committee established by you last week to investigate the Appropriation Bill 1977/78 has considered the proposals by departments during the last four and a half days. My remarks are entirely preparatory to the meat of the report which will be given to Council by the Honourable the Financial Secretary. It might be thought that the labours of the Select Committee would be reduced because we were depleted to half our normal number; in fact I would think that this has probably doubled the effort we have had to put into it and the load that we have had, accordingly, to put on to the Financial Secretary and his excellent staff, who have served the Select Committee extraordinarily well.

Councillors have been most exercised to ensure that the energy and drive and new outlook that you referred to in your opening address has been carried through into the Estimates of annual expenditure for the ensuing year, and I am sure that they have achieved what is always a very difficult balancing exercise. I think it is quite true to say, Your Excellency, that the Select Committee this year found their task considerably lightened by the diligence and effort and accuracy that departments have attempted to put into their estimates. I am sure we are all agreed that the estimates this year were better prepared than for several years and I think it is worth recording this tribute to departments' efforts.

The achievements of the Select Committee were particularly directed to development and in this regard I am quite sure that their recommendations to this Council, which will now be considered, will be for the benefit of the entire Colony, particularly in the hope that the development plan that we are now preparing will be carried forward quickly and fruitfully.

I should now like to leave the real meat of this report, Sir, to the Honourable the Financial Secretary.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, prior to dealing with the amendments to the Revenue and Expenditure Estimates, I will notify you of the Committee's recommendations regarding the proposed Revenue increases:

It was agreed to adopt the proposed increase from £4.50 to £6.00 in the internal air service boarding fee. It was also agreed to increase the mileage charge for non-residents from 10p to 15p per mile;

It was accepted that the proposed embarkation tax for Stanley Airport should be £2.00 per person and that this should be implemented;

It was also agreed to pass a Resolution to adopt the proposed increases in Customs duties on tobacco, cigarettes, cigars, spirits and wines;

It was agreed to implement the proposed increases in the medical fees for residents and non-residents;

It was agreed that the proposed increase in the electricity tariff from 4.34p to 4.76p per unit should be implemented;

It was also agreed that the proposed increase in the internal postage rate from 2p to 3p be adopted;

The Committee did not agree to the proposed increase in radio licences; the Committee also rejected the proposed increase in telephone rentals;

The proposals to increase Government house rents were agreed but taking into account the very high cost of furniture it was agreed that furnished quarters should be increased by 25% rather than the proposed 20%;

It was agreed that Darwin Boarding School fees be increased from £12.00 to £18.00 per child per term and that meals for day children should be increased from 5p to 10p each;

The Committee recommended that a fee of £100.00 be levied for clearing ships at ports other than at the two recognised ports of Stanley and Fox Bay; this fee to be in addition to the charge levied for transporting the Customs Officer;

The Committee also noted the need to enact legislation to increase the Stanley Dog Licence fees to take account of the cost of the new anti-Hydatid drug "Droncit".

Council resumed.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

MOTION

To implement the decision of the Select Committee to increase the import duties on beer, spirits, wines and tobacco the Financial Secretary moved the following Resolution under a Certificate of Urgency:-

BE IT RESOLVED in exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Customs Ordinance that paragraph 2 of the Customs Order be amended by deleting "£12.00", "78p", "90p", "£4.20", "£2.88", and "£2.40" and substitution of the following -

"£13.50", "90p", "£1.10", "£5.00", "£3.30"
and "£2.80" respectively.

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion which was carried with immediate effect.

SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1975/76) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this is a very formal Bill, it comes up every year, it's the additional amount of money that has been spent over and above the amount appropriated for the year. This year it is for the year 1975/76, that is the year ending 30 June 1976, the amount is £93,195. The majority of this expenditure was incurred on aviation spirit for the Beaver aircraft, quite a large sum for new fire brigade equipment, income tax refunds and unallocated stores. As far as the income tax refunds go we had sufficient revenue to cover the expenditure but it is necessary to cover the additional amount in an Appropriation Ordinance. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then passed through all its stages without debate or amendment.

PILOTAGE BILL 1976

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, at the last sitting of this session of this Council in June 1976 a Pilotage Bill was put before Council but was referred to a Select Committee of which I was the Chairman, and the members were the Honourable A B Monk JP and the Honourable John Smith. We have considered this Bill at some length and report as follows:

Having considered the absence of available qualified persons in the Colony to operate pilotage as and when required and having come to the conclusion that these will not always be available, we recommend that the Bill be withdrawn because it would impose a burden and commitment on Government that it could not fulfill and mislead ships' masters into believing that facilities existed that were not always available.

Instead we believe the situation should remain as it is and that pilots should be provided administratively as and when required. Our report is unanimous.

Accordingly, Your Excellency, I beg to move that the Bill be withdrawn and we move to the next Order of the Day.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I beg to support the Motion for the reasons already outlined by the Honourable the Chief Secretary. In principle I think the Bill is very good but it is no good having a sophisticated Ordinance to control pilotage and licence pilots if we haven't got the infrastructure, or whatever the right word is, to administer it. There are a lot of very complicated factors to be taken into consideration when you are providing a pilotage service and I do not think we can at this stage implement the Bill as it is. Therefore I support the Motion to withdraw the Bill.

There were no objections to the Motion and the Bill was withdrawn.

POST OFFICE (AMENDMENT) BILL 1976

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill, entitled the Post Office (Amendment) Bill 1976, is a simple piece of legislation the object of which is to simplify the method of varying the fee payable for the carriage of mail bags containing mail. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, Section 8 of the Post Office Ordinance, which is found in Chapter 52 of the Revised Laws of the Falkland Islands, 1950, provides for the Postmaster to pay the master of any ship for carrying local mails. This rate hitherto has been fixed by an Ordinance so that any variation of the rate must come before this Council to be effected. This is cumbersome and slow, unnecessarily so. The present rate, for instance, of 50p per bag is already overtaken and is inadequate and should be increased. Because of the rate of inflation current today it is likely that these rates will have to be increased more frequently in future and it would seem inappropriate to have to wait to come to this Council on each and every occasion that we want to revise this quite small administrative matter. The Bill proposes therefore to amend the Ordinance to authorise the Governor-in-Council to change the future rates from time to time as necessary and thus obviate the complicated procedure of proceeding to this Council.

The Bill has been considered by Executive Council and remitted to this Council. At the Committee stage, Your Excellency, I have one or two minor amendments to propose but at this point I beg merely to move the second reading of the Bill.

Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

When I first looked at this Bill I thought there was not much to say about it, that is obvious. And I do not oppose the Bill, but it always seems to me extraordinary that mail is charged at the rate of so much a bag. I know mail carried on ships around the islands is mostly parcel mail and they are generally reasonably sized bags but not always, at times they are very small bags. To make a standard rate per bag always seems to me an extraordinary way of charging; this sort of puts the carrier somewhat in the position of Sydney longshore men - many years ago when I was there there was a rule whereby in their little trolleys they were only allowed to have one bag of mail; it didn't matter whether it was a little one or a big one: one man had one bag of mail and that was it, and there was also a rule that lorries ashore were only allowed to carry twenty bags of mail and it didn't matter whether they were big ones or little ones.

It does seem to me that we should charge on a space basis or in some other manner or expect to pay rather on that sort of basis than so much a bag. However other than that I have no objection to the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

I welcome this Bill, it is a bit of speeding up as it were and I would like to congratulate the soup-makers and the cooks for speeding up their recipes.

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

I would like to take up the point made by the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland. I think he has got a very good point and I would propose therefore that at the Committee stage the Bill now before Council should be amended by deleting the words "every mail bag containing".

At the Committee stage the Bill was amended (a) in clause 1 by deleting "1976" and substituting therefor "1977"; and (b) in clause 2 by deleting the words "every mail bag containing". The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate or amendment and was passed.

STANLEY TOWN PUBLIC SERVICES (AMENDMENT) BILL 1977

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is again a simple Bill which seeks to remedy a defect in the original legislation providing for offences that are created under subsidiary legislation enacted under this Ordinance to be penalised. At the moment no penalty may attach to such offences. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, the Stanley Town Public Services Bill is an enabling Ordinance to give Government power to regulate public services in Stanley. Being an enabling Ordinance this operation is normally conducted through subsidiary legislation. In fact there are no such regulations or rules or orders made under this Ordinance but it is Government's intention to preserve these powers for the future and I have no doubt that with the present problems that seem to be coming upon us as a result of our taking over the duties of the Stanley Town Council, we shall require subsidiary legislation in the not too distant future. Unfortunately the Ordinance does not provide that regulations or any subsidiary legislation made under this Ordinance may have penalties attached to them. The simple Bill now before Council proposes that any person who fails to comply with any rule made under the Ordinance shall be guilty of an offence and it is as simple as that. I beg to move the Bill be read a second time.

Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

This is one of the Bills which illustrates the complaint that we don't get the draft of the Bills submitted to us early enough. Quite frankly I have no doubt the Honourable the Chief Secretary's explanation was exceedingly lucid, but I haven't the faintest idea what he is talking about, simply because I did not have time to chase around and read the thing up and ask someone to explain it to me anyway. I think he is probably saying that if we are naughty boys and naughty girls we can be punished whereas we couldn't before; I suppose that is all right so long as the punishment is in line with the offence and not too severe. I don't wish to oppose the Bill, in fact I will support it.

/that is all right

Chief Secretary

One very small point, Sir: I can only assume that the Bill which was published in 1976 in the Gazette could not have reached the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland, which must have meant some slip-up in the mail.

At the Committee stage the date of the Bill was changed from 1976 to 1977 and the Bill proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate or amendment and was passed.

PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1977

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is short but rather complex to explain. At the Motion for the second reading I will elaborate somewhat and I hope to clarify some of the complexities of the Bill. At the moment perhaps I may just state that it is intended by this Bill to include inducement allowances payable under the Overseas Services (Falkland Islands) Agreement 1971 and 1972 as pensionable emoluments under the terms of the Pensions Ordinance 1965 and changes arising from the inception of the system of U.K. Related Pensionable Emoluments with effect from 1st January 1974. This sounds like a lot of jargon and in a sense it is, but I hope at the Motion for the second reading I can clarify these points. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, the Bill now before Council harks back to 1961 when this Government first entered into the Overseas Aid Agreement with Her Majesty's Government. This agreement was ratified and embodied in the Overseas Services Ordinance 1962. That Agreement referred to, and I quote, "inducement allowances", included for overseas officers which were pensionable, the portion of the pension related to those inducement allowances being reimbursed by Her Majesty's Government. The Agreement amongst other things stated, and I quote from section 8, "this Agreement shall terminate unless some special date is agreed between the Government of the Falkland Islands and the Government of the U.K. on the 31st day of March 1971" and, again I quote, "termination of this Agreement shall not affect the liability of the Government of the U.K. to make the reimbursements in respect of pensions."

/The history of the

The history of the Overseas Services Aid Agreement in this Colony is that the first Agreement in 1961 was superseded in fact by a simple exchange of letters between Her Majesty's Government and this Government with the approval of Executive Council. The second Agreement was due to expire on the 31st of March last year. Shortly before it was due to expire Government was concerned whether the OSAS arrangements were less burdensome on the Colony than were Technical Cooperation terms and a comparison was asked to be drawn up. To allow this to take place, the Agreement which was due to expire last March was extended by a further year, to the end of March this year. That comparison was carried out by the Honourable the Financial Secretary and it showed quite clearly that in almost every case - I think in every case in fact - the burden on this Colony for recruiting CSAS officers was less burdensome than TC ones, which I think was a surprise to us all.

The situation therefore, Your Excellency, is that we have overrun the period during which the Agreement was due to expire and not only have we overrun the Agreement but the pensions of the officers who are affected by this Pensions legislation - and there are very few: there are only seven, although only two are left in post - can now only be carried on without any regular basis. In order to regularise this position we now propose that the 1965 Pensions Ordinance should have the definitions in that Ordinance changed in the manner set out in the Bill before Council.

I would like to emphasise that there is no additional burden on this Colony as a result of this change or of extending the Agreement. The additional burden falls entirely on Her Majesty's Government and the pensions that will now be paid by HMG to the officers concerned will have the benefit of removing the disparities that existed between the Dependent Territories of Britain which still remain and which still recruit OSAS officers. The inducement allowance is something which is calculated by the Ministry of Overseas Development and is a portion of the supplementation and it is this part that attracts a pension, so that not all the supplementation is pensionable: only the inducement element.

So therefore perhaps to try and summarise and clarify the accounting arrangements, this Government - the Falkland Islands Government - pays the entire pension, which includes the pension related to the local salary element and the pension related to the inducement element. It is reimbursed for the pension payable for the inducement element.

Thus I think it is true to state that the legislation we have now before us stems from the original 1961/62 OSAS Agreement entered into by this Government with Her Majesty's Government. The new policy on pensionability applied by HMG is applied globally and is designed to prevent any anomalies and ensure that Her Majesty's Overseas Service Officers' pensionable emoluments are assessed on a comparable basis in all Dependent Territories.

Whereas previously there were disparities, this legislation will remove these. Finally I should like to emphasise, Your Excellency, that the law will only affect those few remaining Permanent and Pensionable officers and will not apply to contract officers, whose position remains unchanged. I beg to move the second reading of the Bill.

/The Bill then proceeded

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

GOVERNMENT
EMPLOYEES PROVIDENT FUND (REPEAL) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. The Government Employees Provident Fund is now down to one contributor and it is considered that maintaining the fund for one contributor is uneconomical and it cannot be justified any longer. We have discussed the matter with the contributor and he is satisfied as to the conditions regarding his medical treatment fees. All Provident Fund contributors have certain exemptions from fees and it has now come to a point where the Fund is to be closed. There are approximately £2,000 in the fund in addition to the amount due to the contributor and this money will be transferred to the General Revenue of the Colony.

During the Committee stage I will propose that the date of commencement of the Ordinance be the 30th of June 1977 and at the end of this month the Provident Fund will be closed.

The reason why the Provident Fund is reduced in number is due to the introduction of the Old Age Pension scheme and also the pensionability of civil servants. In 1954 civil servants in the Government service all became pensionable, other than those on contracts, and since that date the Pension Fund has been running down. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time. The Motion for the second reading was passed without debate.

At the Committee stage the Financial Secretary's proposal that the date of commencement of the Ordinance should be 30th June 1977 was agreed and the Bill proceeded through its remaining stages without debate, or amendment, and was passed.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL (ALLOWANCES) BILL 1977

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill stems from the recommendations of the Select Committee on the Constitution and proposes to provide allowances for Councillors to Executive Council on similar lines to those to Legislative Council but to so operate the law that this does not count as an enolument to debar a Councillor from holding office. I beg to move the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is related to other Bills before Council which follow on this as Orders 9 and 10 on the Order Paper.

As I said at the Motion for the first reading, it is proposed to give to the Governor-in-Council powers to award allowances to councillors which shall be tax-free - perhaps I should quickly say it is only to unofficial councillors that this allowance will be paid, and rightly so. They stem directly from the recommendations of the Select Committee which was appointed with the Secretary of State's approval in 1974 on a Resolution of this Council and to which, of course, we shall return later today or tomorrow in connection with the Elections Ordinance, which is the final step in bringing the new Constitution into force.

At the Committee stage of this particular Bill, Your Excellency, I propose, for the avoidance of doubt, to introduce an amendment similar to that which is incorporated in the Legislative Council Allowances Bill, to put beyond any doubt that the allowances will not be regarded as emoluments to debar a councillor from holding office on any council.

The Bills have been considered by Executive Council already and remitted and this Bill, like the other two, does not infringe the Royal Instructions or any of the Constitutional Instruments. It did require Your Excellency's consent in accordance with section 18 of the Legislative Council Order-in-Council and this you were gracious enough to give some time ago. I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. There is no date for this Bill but I understand it does not come into effect until the next Council is elected. I trust I am right in that respect and I think that's very right and proper.

I think there is one small defect in the Bill and that is that I do not consider councillors should get the allowance if they do not attend meetings. Now I realise that there are sometimes reasons for not attending meetings, as with regard to the Honourable John Smith, if he was an Executive Councillor, because of compassionate grounds, and obviously one would exclude that sort of thing, or for medical reasons, but I feel very strongly more particularly with regard to Elected Legislative Council members that if they cannot be bothered to be at the most important meeting of the year they should not get an allowance. I would propose an amendment to the Bill to cover this but unfortunately I haven't been able to work up a form of words. I think possibly the matter could be covered under Clause 3 where the Governor-in-Council determines the rate from time to time; well, I suppose he could determine a nil rate for someone who did not attend. I support the Bill with those reservations.

/Mr A B Hadden

Mr A B Hadden

I cannot agree more with what the Honourable Member for East Falkland has just said and that is really all except that I am sorry it has taken so long to be implemented.

Chief Secretary

I am indeed most grateful to my Honourable and respected friend, the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland, for drawing this to our attention; I think it is a very valid point, Your Excellency. I think his mention of an amendment may in fact be possible under the subsidiary legislation which of course is provided for under this Ordinance, and I am sure that you will not be unmindful of the very helpful advice that he has given. I did say at my Motion for the first reading that I did have some amendments to propose and I have been turning over in my mind whether they are most appropriate now or at the Committee stage. I think on balance perhaps they are best left to the Committee stage.

At the Committee stage the following amendment was agreed -

"That Clauses 4 and 5 be renumbered 5 and 6 respectively and that a new Clause 4 be inserted, to read 'For all or any of the purposes of Clause 2 (4) of the Falkland Islands (Legislative Council Order-in-Council 1948, members of the Council receiving allowances in respect of their services as members of the Council shall not be considered to hold an office of emolument under the Crown.'"

It was further agreed that the Ordinance should come into operation on a date to be appointed by the Governor by notice in the Gazette.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate or amendment and was passed.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL (ALLOWANCES) BILL 1977

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is very similar to the one that we have just enacted but provides allowances for members of the Legislative Council on the same basis. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

The remarks I made about members being absent in the Executive Council Members Bill apply equally I think to this one, in fact even more so; I think the electorate is entitled to see their member present at all the important meetings - and in fact really at all meetings - so that I do not think the allowances should be paid if there is a reason for not attending which is not agreed by His Excellency in Council (for reasons of compassion or perhaps on medical grounds). I think the purpose of the Bill of course as everybody probably knows is not to provide members with large, non-taxed incomes and all that - probably get on the band-waggon - but is to remove a possible problem which members who do not have a very large income have in meeting expenses. Unavoidably there are some expenses connected with being a Member of Council and it seemed to us that some very worthy people, members of the public who could stand for election, were being deterred because they didn't feel that they could meet this additional expense, and so perhaps allowing persons with more money to get in who they didn't really want to see anyway. With these reservations, Sir, I support the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. In principle I support these Bills because the general public asked for it and I think rightly so they deserve it. Not only does it give further opportunity for a wider ranging selection of the public to stand for election, but it also enables people who are employed on lower incomes to represent their constituents without any undue loss of salary or wages. I think this is what the public wanted at the time of the new Constitution talks - at least in my particular section of the West Falkland - and I fully support the Bill.

Mr A B Hadden

It is very simple and everyone would agree, especially the Members of Council agreed to it already anyhow. But it is very simply to prevent members of the public who are public spirited enough to accept these positions as Councillors, prevent them from being out of pocket due to their travelling and living in Stanley when meetings are on. I can see that in the future there will be, with the mountain of legislation as it is, more meetings and most especially people will have to make allowances for time off, people from the Camp especially have to find somewhere to stay and even on mutton and spuds, you don't get free board and lodgings any more. It is just to prevent members from being out of pocket and obviously not to discourage the less wealthy from standing as Councillors.

Chief Secretary

Once again, Your Excellency, I am very grateful to my Honourable Friends for making it crystal clear as I did not do that the allowances will not be lavish ones and it was very carefully discussed how they should be paid so as to remove any disesteem that might attach to any payment to any Councillor, and I believe it is no secret that it is proposed that it should be a flat rate allowance, so that there will be no question of having to ask Councillors to account for it. I thoroughly agree with what my Honourable Friends have said that this is a step - indeed a stride - in the road to democracy and very much welcomed and very much needed. I beg to move the second reading of the Bill.

/The Bill then proceeded

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is very simple and I think has been explained fairly well by the Chief Secretary, because it is purely to avoid Councillors being taxed on the allowances that are paid to them. It is considered inappropriate that a Councillor should have to declare the allowance that he gets - the very small allowance which he will get compared with the amount of work that he will have to do - and is certainly not likely to make any profit out of it. It is purely to cover the expenses and there is no doubt that he will need every pound of it.

It would be quite inappropriate for him to have to account to the Income Tax Office for it and so this Bill is purely to prevent that horrible Commissioner of Income Tax getting his fingers on the allowances. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through all its stages without debate or amendment and was passed.

OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this is one of the more welcome duties of the Financial Secretary, when he can propose an increase in the Old Age Pensions. It is also a great pleasure to be able to introduce this legislation during the year of Her Majesty's Silver Jubilee, as also the Old Age Pension Fund celebrates its silver jubilee - it is 25 years in June since the fund was inaugurated.

At that time the pensions which were payable were: £1.50 per week for a married person, £1.00 for an unmarried person and 50p for a widow. The increases proposed today are from £9.00 to £10.50 per week for a married person and from £6.00 to £7.00 for a single person and a widow. The increases from 1952 to date are 600% for married, 600% for unmarried and 1300% for a widow. The contributions in those days were 25p per week and we are proposing now that contributions be increased to £1.80 per week, which is approximately 620% increase overall from 1952, in 25 years.

The increase in contributions proposed in this Bill is for an employed male and female contributor from 62p to 72p per week and for an employer of a male and female per week from 92p to £1.08, increasing the self-employed male and female contributions from £1.54 to £1.80 per week.

/The cost of these

The cost of these increases is expected to be in the region of £9,000. This will gradually increase over the years as the number of pensioners grows. The additional income at present is estimated to be £8,000.

The Old Age Pensions scheme is now undergoing a major review by Mr Colin Harris from the U K Government Actuary Department, who visited the Colony in January this year. We have yet to receive his report but I have been in discussion with him and I am under the impression that it will be quite a long and involved report and there will be quite some considerable changes recommended. We hope it will not be too long before we are able to bring more legislation to Council for consideration and review many of the sections in the Old Age Pensions Ordinance. I think there are many improvements which can be made and this increase can only be regarded as a minor, but well justified, increase and it is a recommendation of the Board of Management of the Old Age Pensions Fund that there should be some interim measure before his report is received, and so Mr Harris has recommended these contribution increases and pensions increases as an interim measure until his final report is received and studied. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I really welcome this Bill; I am not sure that I should speak or vote on the subject since I have a personal and vested interest in the matter - I only have to pay about another 95 or 96 weeks I think and then I have just to sit back for five years hoping I live to draw it. Personally I say more power to Mr Harris' elbow and I hope he manages to increase it without jeopardising the fund. I support the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. Naturally I support this Bill because I have been involved with Old Age Pensions ever since I've been on Council, and I welcome the Financial Secretary's new proposals, and I think we should pay a tribute to the Board of Management, who I know do a good job with the Old Age Pensions. At this time it is only a modest increase but I would like to urge any candidates for our new Council to keep their weather eye on the Old Age Pension, because it is a very important part of the establishment of this community. I fully support the Motion.

Mr A B Hadden

Your Excellency, no one is going to say anything against paying the old folks a few more bob because most of it will be taken up in rates and rents and new mutton prices which they've got to pay. I think it's maybe a pity that the review has not been received, but maybe before the end of this Jubilee year, which is also the jubilee year of the Old Age Pensions scheme, old age pensioners will really remember the Jubilee. I trust it will go through with no objections.

/Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary

I should like to tell Your Excellency how wholeheartedly I support this Bill. It is particularly welcome as it proves Councillors to have been right where perhaps the professional advisers in the past may have been wrong. For many years Councillors have been telling us that the professional actuaries have got it wrong, got their sums wrong, have been a bit too conservative, and I think on this occasion we must concede that Councillors have been right, and let's hope that when the definitive review comes along they might be even more right and there might be even further benefits, but of course it would be imprudent to commit Government to those in the future. As everyone I am sure wholeheartedly and fully - I certainly - support the Bill.

Financial Secretary

I welcome the comments made by all Honourable Members here and it is good to know that it has unanimous approval, and I have taken note of the points made by various Councillors of the fact that we should take action immediately we receive Mr Harris' report. This will be done.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

NON-CONTRIBUTORY OLD AGE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, this is more welcome legislation. Honourable Members present today will recall the last meeting of Legislative Council, at which the Honourable L G Blaka made a recommendation to increase the contributory Old Age Pensions, which was eventually approved. He then went on to ask Government to consider some improvement in the non-contributory Old Age Pensions. It is unfortunate that we have been unable to bring forward this legislation as there have been no further meetings of Council; however the increase proposed today takes account of the £1 per week awarded to the contributory old age pensioners at that time and also takes account of the last bill which I introduced.

The proposal is that a married man's pension under the non-contributory Old Age Pension scheme should be increased from £6.00 to £8.50 and for a single person from £4.00 to £6.00 per week.

The Bill also increases the maximum statutory income under which a pensioner becomes eligible to receive a non-contributory old age pension. It increases the married man from £500 to £650 and a single person from £300 to £400.

At present a single person who has in excess of £300 and a married man who has in excess of £500 per annum is not entitled to a pension and it is generally agreed that these figures should be increased.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Honourable A B Monk seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time. Honourable Members spoke to the Motion for the second reading as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I welcome this Bill, as I have seconded it. I don't think it is entirely what I would like to see. The maximum statutory income has been increased for married men from £500 to £650 and single person from £300 to £400 but I think in fact that instead of having a rigid cut-off point it would be more equitable if over a certain point a certain proportion of the pension was foregone - I mean you do have a situation under this proposed Bill where a married man earning £651 would seem to forego the whole of his pension of 52 weeks by £8.50 (I was trying to work that out actually when I had to second the Bill but I didn't arrive at the sum; no doubt somebody else has -) whatever the figure is; and it seems to me that's not very equitable. Possibly we could devise in the future, next Council could amend the thing to take care of that anomaly. Apart from that I support the Bill.

Mr A B Hadden

Again, no one is going to dispute the necessity for these increases. I just carried on the Honourable Adrian's calculation and I make it £442 so that all a married man need work is the amount which will bring him in the difference between 442 and 650 which is, to say the least, unfair.

We have a lot of pensioners in the Colony, and a lot of them work because they have worked all their lives; they just like working. Some of them need the money, some of them don't, we all know that, and some of them need it more than others, but they work because they like to work, and because they like to work they usually like to play and, well, a bob just doesn't go far in the Goose any more - or anywhere else for that matter.

I don't think we can expect a married couple over sixty-five to live on £650 a year, and a married couple of any age under that couldn't last for six months on the same sum, and although it is an improvement I should like to see it improved a lot more yet, because as time goes on, the number of people who will benefit will become less and less and I think if we possibly can we ought to try and give them a little more, especially maybe if we could tie to it, well if a man is fit at sixty-five, OK, we can give him so much and maybe we could tie it to an age payment or something, or if he gets sick, but I don't think we can really expect an active Falkland Islander pensioner to live on £650 a year, which is really what it amounts to. Nevertheless, I support the Bill as it stands.

Financial Secretary

I find the comments made by Honourable Members very interesting and have certainly taken note of them, but there is one important factor which we must face in the Falklands, and it is the fact that it is a small Colony and we have to be careful in introducing any legislation which becomes rather complex. To vary the rates of pension may take quite a large amount of administrative effort, I don't know. Certainly I will look at it and see whether we can introduce some amendment to the income limit; I think it is possible one of the best ways we can do this is to keep this income limit under review each year, but I would not like to commit myself here to say that we will start issuing graduated pensions. This may create quite a lot of additional work. However I will investigate the matter thoroughly and bring it before the next Legislative Council.

/amendment

The Bill then proceeded through all its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

PROTECTION OF WRECKS BILL 1976

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, in brief this Bill proposes to protect wrecks from unauthorised interference on account of their historic, archaeological or artistic importance or their potentially dangerous condition. I believe it will command a fair amount of support and its genesis I believe was with one Councillor who unfortunately today is not with us. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

The Protection of Wrecks Bill derives from some concern expressed during the last two years about the way in which some of our wrecks of quite considerable value and interest to the Colony might be plundered, or even taken away all together. There are numerous such wrecks in our waters and because of the increasing interest amongst collectors and people interested in exploiting these things for museums and even commercial purposes, Government feels it prudent that we should enact some legislation to give Your Excellency in Council powers to define such wrecks or the area of such wrecks and to protect them. This is what the attached Bill proposes to do and again in brief I think the operative section of the Bill is Clause 3, which empowers the Governor, if satisfied that a site in colonial waters is or may prove to be that of a wrecked vessel requiring protection on the grounds set out in the Bill, he may designate by Order the area around that wreck as a restricted area, and you may specify acts which if done in such an area otherwise than under the authority of a licence granted by you, will constitute an offence under the Ordinance.

The remainder of the Bill is merely embellishing these powers but is necessary to make the Bill effective. I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion, and Honourable Members spoke to the Motion as follows -

/Mr A B Monk

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I suppose the Bill is very worthy. Frankly I don't know much about wrecks; as a professional seafarer I was always trained to avoid that unfortunate situation, and luckily for me I have managed to do so.

I don't know whether my copy of the Ordinance is different from the Honourable the Chief Secretary's but my Clause 3 was certainly different to the one which was read out but looking through the thing I see that there are two threes; perhaps I have got things mixed up a bit.

Frankly I never have been able to get very interested in the subject of wrecks. A ship to me is simply a commercial carrier of cargoes or people on the sea, or maybe a warship. It is no different from a motorcar or a lorry, or an aeroplane. It carries things on the water whereas they carry things on land, and nobody gets quite so excited about a wrecked motorcar or a lorry or an aeroplane, and I just can't get interested in the subject of wrecks.

I would like to clarify this matter of Clause 3 which in my copy does not read the same as that which was read out by the Chief Secretary.

Subject to that I would support the Bill as one of no importance.

Mr A B Hadden

Your Excellency, I do support the Bill not because it is one of no importance; I think it is rather important. We have little or nothing in the way of historical monuments if you like - and they are of considerable commercial value; there is one lying near us at the moment which I cannot for the life of me think why anybody at all would want it but if they want that, they are going to want an awful lot more. It is really beyond me but there is a tremendous interest in this sort of thing and I think per mile of coastline we should have more of these things than anybody else and if we want to protect them because someone wants to see them or wants to pay us to come and see them, obviously we ought to look after them. I think there is - or was in recent years - an old Land Rover in the Falklands which used to attract a great deal of attention, it used to ride on wheels like an engine of a train I think (I haven't seen it myself but it is here somewhere, or was until recently). Anything of that sort we ought to look after because if we don't somebody will come and take these things away or break them to pieces and they then have no value to the Colony whatever, and if we can use them to attract one or two more people maybe to come and spend some money, maybe if they give us a good bid for it and we find that we can't get an awful lot from it over the years then maybe we can sell it at a good price, but I think in the meantime until we can do something else about them we ought to look after them. I support the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, I would like to mention the third reason to protect the wrecks rather than the two already mentioned with regard to tourist attractions and so on: there is their potentially dangerous condition. I think this is vitally important. If we are going to keep the wrecks here and use them and protect them I think we have to make them less potentially dangerous, especially if people are going to want to go along and look at them, and I think that in future the Administration should keep a weather eye on this point. I support the Motion.

/potentially dangerous

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, if I can clear up the first point raised by the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland, Clause 3 of the Bill commences at the foot of page 1 of the Bill and extends completely on to page 2 and over on to page 3; it is very lengthy, it is sub-divided into sub-paragraphs but it does specify that you have discretionary powers to designate an area as a restricted area because it contains or is suspected to contain a wreck, and some of those sub-paragraphs provide for what may be done or may not be done and I think it may be this discretionary power that will deal with the point raised by the Honourable Elected Member for Stanley in that it is discretionary, you do not have to do it, but if there is a danger of a wreck becoming a hazard then it can be designated a restricted area - although that is not the prime purpose of the Bill and I think it is appropriate to inject at this stage that neither is it the purpose of the Bill to deal with the recovery of wrecks, which is dealt with under the United Kingdom Act of 1874, so that the claiming of wrecks, the receiving of wrecks, does not fall within the purview of this Bill.

Incidentally, I have by me a list of the Orders of the Day with which we are now dealing and it sets out the proposer and seconder on which we have agreed, and I have a list here which reading across reads: Wrecks: CS-FS. I think you can interpret that in any way you like...

I would just like to make the point that the powers here are discretionary with the Governor so that no area is to be designated but if there is a danger of us either losing revenue or losing value or losing something that is valuable or something may become a hazard, we can then use the law.

At the Committee stage the alteration of the date from 1976 to 1977 was agreed and the Bill proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

REVISED EDITION OF THE LAWS BILL 1976

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, the object of this Bill is to revise the Colony's laws, which were last revised and consolidated in 1950 under the Law Revision Act of 1943. The cost of the revision and consolidation will be borne by Her Majesty's Government. I beg to move the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I would like to say that I think this Bill is self-explanatory, but I think that is courting disaster. I think the key point in the Bill, although I am sure I will not get universal approval on this, is that laws need bringing up to date; they need to be consolidated (it is twenty-seven years since they were last consolidated) and it will ultimately ease the burden on the judiciary, the legal officers and on every department, to have a set of laws which is comprehensive and up to date embodying all the amendments which have been made since 1950. It is proposed also that this consolidated edition should be in the form of a loose-leaf type binding so that amendments as they are made may be inserted with the greatest ease.

The basic powers that the Bill confers are that first it appoints and defines the powers of the Law Revision Commissioner, and as it has been said, his expenses will be borne entirely by Her Majesty's Government as part of Technical Co-operation aid to the Colony; secondly it defines the content, form and method of compilation of the revised edition; it provides also for the bringing into operation, distribution and effect of the revised edition, and finally it repeals the Revised Edition of the Laws Ordinance 1943.

There is a considerable amount of detail that I am sure Honourable Members may wish to go into; I would certainly go into a lot of detail which could amount to virtually reading out the entire Bill, but as I am sure it has been fully studied, I will leave the matter there at the moment and beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and Honourable Members spoke to the Motion as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I know I really stick my neck out when I speak about matters such as this. When I first read the Bill it seemed to me that the Commissioner had such widespread and absolute powers to alter and interpret and shorten and lengthen and delete and what-have-you, repeal and revoke and all the rest of it, that I really thought then why an Ordinance at all, why not just have a Commissioner and he can carry on as he thinks fit. However I was immensely heartened to come to Clause 9, having waded from Clauses 1 to 8, which is entitled "Limitation of the Commissioner's powers": "Powers conferred on the Commissioner by this Ordinance shall not be taken to imply any power in him to make alterations or amendments in the matter of substance of any law or part thereof and not provided for in this Ordinance". Well, I think probably that is really the most important clause, not because anyone would mistrust the ability and integrity of such an eminent authority as the Commissioner, but it would be quite invidious to give him total powers to make all the alterations that the previous clauses seem to indicate without those limitations.

/any power in him

Having found Clause 9 I am happy to support the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I support this Bill wholeheartedly; it is a long time now since we have had a consolidation of the laws and it is high time that the book was more easy to read, I think that's the thing, because it has been full of amendments since 1950; and what better year could we do it in than the Queen's Jubilee Year.

I fully support the Motion.

Mr A B Hadden

Your Excellency, this is something I couldn't get on with at all, it utterly confused me so that my favourite paragraph is number 8 (k) which says the Commissioner has power to simplify the phraseology of any law and to make alterations as are necessary for expedience and for uniformity of expression. I think I would give it more than my formal support if it could really make the thing more readable. Otherwise I do not feel qualified to say if it is right or wrong; I was taken up by that little paragraph and I hope my remarks get through. I support the Bill.

Chief Secretary

I think the Honourable Members have put their finger on the key points in the Bill, Sir. If there is to be any substantive change in the law it must obviously come before this Council, which is the only legislative body for this Colony other than the Secretary of State. So that Clause 9 is a key one and certainly I am sure we all agree with the Honourable Mr Hadden that if our laws can be simplified so very much the better. There is not I think anything in here that militates against democratic principles or against our normal procedure for taking legislation. They must still go through the normal Councils and there is no power granted to the Commissioner which could supersede that of this or any other Council.

At the Committee stage the alteration of the date from 1976 to 1977 was agreed and the Bill proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

/Interpretation and General

INTERPRETATION AND GENERAL CLAUSES BILL

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency. This Bill, Sir, I think, read with the introductory Preamble is self-explanatory and I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

The Interpretation and General Clauses law which the Colony now possesses was enacted in 1949. It superseded - or largely superseded, because it didn't entirely repeal - an Ordinance enacted in 1900. Since then there have been many definitions, descriptions and interpretations which require closer and more definite clarification, as well as powers of delegation and specification of officers so that their duties may be performed by others in their absence provided they are properly appointed. These are some of the matters with which this Bill proposes to deal.

Part 2 of the Bill provides for a fairly large number of additional interpretations and definitions to cover most of those things which are not already included in ordinances and which are often referred to in the law but which, I think, as anyone who deals with the law must admit, in our present statute require further definition if they are to be made clear. This is not only so that the law can be enforced against any offender; it is also to be in the interests of the public so that the public may know what that law is.

Parts 3 and 4 are rather technical, covering provisions generally as to the bringing into force of ordinances, and Part 4 covers the commencement, disallowance, amendment and repeal of ordinances. Part 5 deals with matters that are not spelt out elsewhere in our Constitution with regard to the making of subsidiary legislation.

Part 6 deals generally with powers conferred under an ordinance and the exercise of those powers. Part 7 relates to the appointment of boards and committees.

Part 8 sets out in detail the position of the public service in relation to functions performed by them. In this connection it will be observed that by resolution this Council may transfer a function from one public servant to another. This part further deals with our position relevant to contracts entered into on behalf of the Government.

Part 9 deals with actions by the Governor; part 10 deals with further definitions, particularly those related to time and distance, which often are a source of confusion and worry in interpreting the law.

Part 11 deals with Imperial enactments generally and their application to the Colony. Part 12 deals with fees, penalties, offences and proceedings, and part 13 is a miscellaneous section.

/Like the previous Bill

Like the previous Bill it is a highly technical matter and it would be impossible without going into Select Committee to deal with each and every point that must be a concern of all Councillors. Government is however assured that every effort has been made to collect into one Ordinance a comprehensive list of definitions and matters with clarity and simplification in mind which should stand us in good stead for many years to come.

I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and Honourable Members spoke to the Motion as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. One of the remarks made by the Honourable the Chief Secretary was that the Bill sought - these were probably not his words but I think that is what he meant - sought to lay out things so that all who deal with the law, those who deal with the law, he said, would know how they stood. Well, we all deal with the law. Every one of us, every citizen deals with the law, we are all subject to the law and it seems to me that we are progressing from a stage when colonial administrations kept us in order by cat-o'-nine-tails and a little legislation and so forth, but at this stage when we are all so bound up and confused by a multitude of Ordinances and legislation and you name it, that we are equally under control, we don't know which way to turn, we don't know whether we are doing something legal or illegal, because the whole thing is so complicated. This particular Ordinance was sprung on us two days before (in my case) we came into this Legislative Council meeting and frankly I haven't the faintest idea whether it's a good Ordinance or a bad one. I know we have a really eminent gentleman as our Commissioner, and we aren't in any way suggesting that he has done a bad job. I am sure he has made an excellent job from the legal point of view but whether we need the thing I don't know.

If you take Clause 91, which reads "when an offence is a misdemeanour by any law and no punishment is provided therefor that offence shall be punishable by imprisonment for 7 years and a fine of £2,000..." Well, I looked up the definition of the word misdemeanour and it seems to me that the definition covers a lot of pretty minor offences, very minor offences indeed, and it seems to me that it is very likely that not all those offences have a prescribed penalty laid down somewhere in our thousands of pages of legal mumbo-jumbo, I'm sure they haven't. But it seems to me that if these minor offences are not laid down somewhere then under Clause 91 we can go to prison if the judge so requires for seven years and be fined £2,000. For a miserable little offence which somebody has not laid down a penalty for. I think probably if the thing was explained to people like me, and a little time was taken to explain it, then we would all agree that it was a good ordinance, that it probably does put things in the right sense so that the ordinary man would understand it. But I don't know that it does. I was elected on this Legislative Council and I don't think I would be doing my duty if I agreed to pass something as complicated as this without really understanding it and knowing the general meaning of it. Therefore I would like to suggest that it be referred to a Select Committee, which would make recommendations for the next Council to consider.

/something as complicated

Mr A B Hadden

Your Excellency, I don't understand it either. I haven't the faintest idea and when the Honourable Adrian was talking about this the other day I sneaked away and was having a look at the big book as well, and I just got the impression that we have all manner of punishments laid down before we come to this one and just in case we miss somebody out and if we haven't got an answer for the chappie we put him inside for seven years, by which time the laws might be revised and then he might be put in again for another seven years, or he may be let out again. I don't know. I think in all fairness we have to accept the Bill since it has obviously been prepared by someone who knows all about these things and it was stated, I think by the Chief Secretary, that it was an attempt to clarify and simplify the interpretation of various words; it probably pertains to modern day slang words which have crept in since the laws were revised. I think this one and the previous one probably go together but it is truly beyond me and I don't mind admitting it. It is far too confusing. But I would be prepared to accept that it's been done by someone who obviously knows what he is doing and it is being done for our benefit, and so I would support the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. This Bill has 106 clauses in it and of course we cannot memorise them all and digest them as fully as we would like. When I looked at the Bill I saw it was for the interpretation of the law, and this is what I think it is basically for. I would like to support the Bill because I think this is something we are going to find very useful as a detailed supplement, unless I have misunderstood it. I would not like to say that this is the law, I think this is a reference to the law but I would like this to be clarified. If this is the case I fully support the Bill.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I certainly did not expect this Bill to have an easy passage. I might have introduced a note of levity - unwanted levity perhaps - into the proceedings if I may with your permission read from the Legislative Council minutes of 1949, when the previous Interpretation and General Clauses law was enacted: "On the motion of the Honourable the Acting Colonial Secretary, seconded by the Honourable W J Hutchinson, the Bill amending the Interpretation and General Law Ordinance 1900 was read a first time. On further motion made and seconded the Standing Orders were suspended and the Bill was read a second time. The Honourable Mr A G Barton asked for further information on the powers of the Governor-in-Council and expressed himself as not being satisfied with definitions of the term as given in the Bill. He pointed out that the words to which he took exception did not appear in the previous Ordinance, No 3 of 1900. In reply the Acting Colonial Secretary stated that the definition was as drafted by His Majesty's legal advisers and referred to the relevant paragraph on page 23 of the Colonial Service by Sir Anthony Bertrand. The Bill was then committed and passed."

/Unfortunately

Unfortunately I don't have Sir Anthony Bertrand by me to assist me with this Bill, Sir, but to return to the very valid points made by the Councillors this afternoon: it is proper that this Bill should be looked at with some suspicion; it is proper that it should be questioned to see if it is exceeding the powers that already exist. With regard to the specific question relating to Clause 91 I am assured that this is the maximum and that the actual penalty imposed would be closely related to the seriousness of any misdemeanour.

I regard this in very much the same way as the Honourable Mr Bowles, as a guide to the law, as much for the benefit of the Colony as for those who have to administer the day-to-day operation of the law, and I think it is important to remember that if it is defective - and I have no evidence to indicate that it is - it can always be amended by this Council. There is nothing definitive about any law; we can always amend it if we find that it is operating against the public interest. It is complex; it is very difficult. It is difficult I think for anybody to assimilate rapidly but if one looks upon it as an index to a book, which it probably is, it is an index to our laws, with definitions, it simplifies and explains, therefore I think it probably is as much in the interests of the public in whose interests the Councillors this afternoon have been rightly taking up the cudgels. I believe that we should have this Bill which we ought to regard as an essential part of our Constitution. It is perhaps the last rivet to nail into place with the constitutional instruments that we are about I hope to enact this afternoon.

On the proposal of the Chief Secretary, seconded by the Honourable W E Bowles, the President agreed to the appointment of a Select Committee of the whole House, under the Chairmanship of the Honourable A B Monk, to consider the Interpretation and General Clauses Bill in detail.

Council then adjourned while the Select Committee sat.

Council resumed at 10.30 a.m. on Wednesday 22nd June 1977.

The Chairman of the Select Committee set up to consider the Interpretation and General Clauses Bill reported as follows:

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. The Select Committee has examined the Bill. The Select Committee co-opted the services of Mr Frederick Cooke, Barrister-at-Law, to advise them in the matter. The Bill was examined clause by clause and the Committee have several small amendments to introduce at the Committee stage of the Bill.

At the Committee stage the Bill was amended as follows -

In clause 3 the spelling of the word "crown" was corrected under the definition of "Crown Agents".

Clause 77 was amended by the deletion of the word "regnal" and the substitution therefor of the word "reign".

Clause 91 was amended by the deletion of the word "and" and the substitution therefor of the word "or".

The Bill was then read a third time and, subject to the above amendments, was passed.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL (ELECTIONS) (AMENDMENT) BILL 1977

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill is the final stage in the introduction of the recommendations of the Select Committee established in 1974. Its main provision is for the election of six members to the Legislative Council, to divide the Colony into areas and divisions appropriate to such election, and generally, to make the necessary amendments to the Legislative Council Elections Ordinance 1948. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Honourable A B Monk seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time and that after it is seconded I speak again to introduce the Bill.

The Honourable A B Monk seconded the Motion and the Honourable the Chief Secretary then introduced the Bill -

Your Excellency, I am sure I shall have the indulgence of Council if I elaborate on this Bill at somewhat more length than is customary, if only because it is some time since the genesis of it emerged.

As Your Excellency and Councillors will recall, a Select Committee was established in early 1974 on a Motion of the Legislative Council, with the prior approval of the Secretary of State, to ascertain the views of the electorate on the subject of a change in the Constitution of the Colony and thereafter to make recommendations on the form such changes should take.

The progress of the Select Committee was fully explored during the last sitting of this Council and I think I can be forgiven if I do not rehearse that all over again. I think it is worth bearing in mind however that we perhaps should refresh our minds on some of the recommendations that the report contained.

It was presented to this Council on the 10th of June 1975 when the following Motion was passed:

"That the Report of the Select Committee on the Constitution which today was laid on the table be forwarded to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State with the recommendation that it be implemented as soon as possible."

/The sad story of the delay

The sad story of the delay has been fully explained elsewhere and I think is now generally known. It is I think agreed by all it is a pity that we had to wait so long, but at last we have reached the stage where we can bring the recommendations to fulfilment and those recommendations in the main were:

First, that the two elected members of the Executive Council elected at the start of each session of Legislative Council should hold office in the Executive Council for one year and eighteen months respectively and thereafter and again at every year seek re-election. In plain words this means we are adopting the normal procedure for rotating Councillors so that they have a more immediate discharge of their duties to the legislature and a closer link is established between the legislature and the executive.

Second, that the offices of the two nominated independent members of Council be abolished and the number of elected members be increased from four to six.

Third, that the Colony should be divided into two electoral divisions: 'Camp' and Stanley, and that each division should be divided into two electoral areas: East Falkland and West Falkland, and East Stanley and West Stanley. The two divisions and the four areas would each return one member to the Legislative Council. Area elections should be held first, followed later, but as soon as possible, by division elections.

Fourth, that the present qualifying period for electors of twelve months continuous residence in the Colony prior to qualifying day should be preserved for island born voters, but that for non-island born voters the period should be extended to three years; and further, that residents not born in the islands and who have been absent for a period of more than five years, should have to re-establish their qualification by a further three years' residence in the Colony.

Fifth, the Select Committee recommended that the age qualification for electors should be lowered from 21 to 18 years.

Sixth, that the proportion of votes needed to secure return of the deposit be reduced from one eighth to one tenth.

Seventh, that voters who are prevented by good reason from voting in person, and those in remote areas, should be allowed a postal vote.

Eighth - and the last of the main recommendations of the Select Committee - was that unofficial Councillors should be paid a reasonable remuneration, and we have already enacted legislation to that effect during this meeting.

The recommendation to rotate the election of two members of Legislative Council on the Executive Council will be implemented by the Royal Instruction which was signed by Her Majesty the Queen on the 31st of March 1977 and which will come into force when the next Legislative Council first meets.

/I think at this point

I think at this point it is worth dwelling for a moment on the complexity of the Legislative instruments that constitute the Constitution. We have Letters Patent, Royal Instructions and the Legislative Council Order-in-Council. The Letters Patent and the Royal Instructions are made by Her Majesty personally; the Legislative Council Orders-in-Council are made by the Privy Council, which advises Her Majesty. Before these are amended we are prevented from enacting any amending legislation of our own, and that is the reason why the Royal Instruction and the Legislative Council Order-in-Council have had to be amended before we could proceed to this amending Ordinance.

The other changes in the Constitutional instruments consequent upon the Select Committee's recommendations will be implemented by an additional Privy Council Order called the Falkland Islands Legislative Council (Amendment) Order 1977, which was made by the Privy Council on the 9th of March 1977 and which comes into force not earlier than a date following dissolution of this Council. This Order, in brief, provides for the abolition of nominated members, to increase the number of elected members from four to six and a transitional period for the forthcoming election to provide a period extending over four months for the new election to be held. I will come back to this point a little later on, but it will be seen that the way was cleared by the Royal Instruction and the Legislative Council Order-in-Council made this year for the major amendments - the abolition of nominated members and the extension from four to six elected members - to be proceeded with.

In the Bill there are still some amendments which I shall have to introduce at the Committee stage. I think it is worth explaining the reason for some of these, though, at this time.

A possible problem could for instance arise over the interpretation in the Bill of "continuous residence". This has been avoided by provisions in Clause 7 of the Bill which allow the Registration Officer to ignore occasional absences for a period of up to six months. At the same time we have incorporated into this Bill the recommendations in the Select Committee report and embodied also in the Royal Instructions and the Legislative Council Order-in-Council; we have taken advantage of the occasion to introduce some refinements which I think will lubricate the machinery of elections and make it simpler for future elections, but not unfortunately for the present one, to be carried out with less agony and over a shorter period.

These additional amendments I should add are in no way contentious and are not matters that would have been dealt with by a Select Committee. It is for instance proposed that in future the electoral register shall be compiled annually at the Governor's discretion. At present a register may not be compiled until the Council is dissolved and it is at that date, which also becomes the qualifying date for the election, that the electoral roll starts to be compiled; and it takes 87 days from that day until we can begin to take the poll. I think it must be generally agreed that this is an over-long period and it ought to be shortened if we can do it. So we have in this Bill taken this opportunity to provide that in future we shall be able to separate the qualifying day from the day of dissolution, and thus reach the situation where we can prepare a roll at any time at the Governor's discretion; I shall suggest a date when we come to the amendments, but it does mean that by this device we do not have to wait until we dissolve. We can do it in advance and then go straight to an election at very short notice.

We have also, I think with success, managed to contract the period between the mandatory stages of an election, such as for claims and appeals. These at present are 30 days each and I think this is over-long and I think we can shorten these to 10 days each.

The task of translating the recommendations of the Select Committee into legal language and then the legal language into the practical mechanics of preparing an electors' register and holding the election has proved to be by no means an easy task. It has in fact proved to be a most complex and intricate one, in particular the transitional provisions; knowing that we are changing a well-tryed system and going into one that is unknown has proved immeasurably difficult. It has not been eased by the fact that it has not been possible to introduce the improvements in the electoral machinery that I have referred to for the forthcoming election.

I referred earlier to the fact that we still need some amendments to the Bill. Only two places are referred to in the Fifth Schedule of the Bill as remote areas, and I have no doubt that Councillors will wish to direct their attention to this Schedule to see what other places ought to be designated as such for the purposes of postal voting. These could of course be added at the Committee stage.

Similarly, in clause 2, under the definition of "qualifying day", the date has been left blank. We have looked at this closely and assuming that it is better to have elections during the summer and not in the winter, it would seem appropriate to insert as qualifying day for future elections the 15th of July which, if we work to a programme we have calculated would in future take 55 days to compile the roll would lead us in clause 8 to insert the date for publication of the electoral register of 15th September - in other words two clear months - so that we have given ourselves a little bit of leeway but of course the Council will still be in session during this time. In future this electoral roll will be compiled while the Council is still in session and it may be dissolved at any time by His Excellency, and that register will then be the substantive one for the ensuing year or longer period if His Excellency so directs.

Similarly, I think it is necessary, we will need to revise the division of Stanley. We had proposed in Form E that a suitable division of Stanley would be to use Villiers Street as a constituency boundary. In fact if we did this it would give a distribution of voters of 56.5% and 43.5%. If we select Dean Street we get a split of 46% and 54% and I would propose that in the Committee stage we accordingly allow an amendment to substitute Dean for Villiers whenever it occurs in Form E in the Second Schedule. Another amendment that we have to make is to insert a date of commencement in clause 1. As this is linked to the Legislative Council Order-in-Council, which Order-in-Council may not be brought into force until after dissolution, an appropriate date for this Bill may be, and I quote: "A date to be notified by His Excellency the Governor by publication in the official Gazette". We have looked closely at this but I see frankly no other way over this because we don't know when we are going to be dissolved - I am sure our President does, but we don't - and I think we may not and cannot anticipate his decision.

/There are certain procedural

There are certain procedural amendments, small drafting amendments, which I should now perhaps refer to. I shall now go through the amendments that I have referred to.

In clause 1, we insert the amendments I have just referred to.

In clause 2, I shall make an amendment that we insert the number "15th" and the word "July" against "qualifying day".

In clause 7, I believe we need a further proviso to subparagraph (c), which will read:

"Provided further that a person born in the Colony who is normally resident in an electoral area or an electoral division shall be deemed to be resident therein on the qualifying day notwithstanding his absence from his electoral area or electoral division for a period not exceeding six months during the qualifying period."

This is I think a sensible amendment to allow for persons who may be away on leave or sick but are nevertheless regarded as substantive residents of the Colony.

In clause 8 the amendment I have already referred to, we should insert I believe the number "15th" and the word "September".

In the Second Schedule, we shall substitute Dean for Villiers; and any other amendments that Councillors may wish to add to the Fifth Schedule with regard to remote areas for postal voting in accordance with Section 8 (a) of the Ordinance as it will be enacted.

Finally, Your Excellency, I apologise for going on at such length but as it is so long since we sat in Select Committee and made these recommendations I think perhaps I could be forgiven for this rather over-long exposition, and only hope that it has attempted to clear up and clarify some of the complexities of this very difficult bit of legislation. It does clear the way now for us to implement our new Constitution.

Mr A B Monk

After the Honourable the Chief Secretary's very complete talk on the Bill I do not propose to comment on the contents in any way but I would like to say that it gives me enormous pleasure to second this Bill, which marks a great step forward for democracy here and although I think we should probably need to from time to time amend it when we have experienced the operation as it were of Council, I think it is an enormous step forward in democracy here. Of course it has to be realised, I think, that an all-elected Council automatically places more of a burden on the electorate than they have had before. The sort of Council that they get is entirely dependent on the electorate selecting and voting for the right people and I think everyone must realise that fact; it is quite a heavy responsibility to undertake.

I have one or two small additions I would like to make particularly to the Fifth Schedule and also I am not sure whether I picked up the Chief Secretary right or not but I thought his amendment to clause (c) in Section 7 of the Ordinance was not perhaps worded as it ought to be, but perhaps that can be dealt with at the Committee stage. Anyway, in principle I support the Bill wholeheartedly.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. It is a climax for us I think to accept this Bill. A lot of work has been done and we have had lots of public meetings. Unfortunately I was not present at the Stanley meetings but was privileged to go round the West Falklands and find their views and I think in general this Bill will be what we promised the public it should be and I fully support the Bill.

Mr A B Hadden

Your Excellency, it is not what I would have wanted myself but it is what the electorate wanted; it seems to be the general consensus of opinion everywhere, it's what everyone else wanted to do; but I think we could have achieved near enough the same result with a lot less effort and a lot less expense. It may be recalled by some that last year the emphasis all through the Council was on unity, and I really can't understand why we must still divide the camp up into pieces, and Stanley up into pieces, separate Stanley from the Camp, the East from the West, and so on. It just doesn't make sense to me. I am all in favour of an all elected council; I have never been against that at all, but I think all councillors should represent the Falkland Islands. After all, we're no bigger than a village, maybe a little more scattered, but we are representing at the most some six hundred people I would think, maybe a little more now, but I think at the very most I would accept three councillors representing the camp and three representing Stanley; but to break it up into little pieces, to confuse the electors - and I am sure it's going to confuse people who may wish to stand for election. They will be wondering whether they should stand for a division or stand for an area or how they would apply themselves best to the problem - and it is a problem. But really it's nice that we are going to have an all elected council, although if we stop to think there could be little snags in that too. For example...

Mr A B Monk

The Honourable Member would have to stand...

Mr A B Hadden

...but of course, and my Honourable Friend from the East Falkland thinks I'm saying what I'm saying because I was a nominated member, I know that as well and we talk about this quite often. We haven't come to blows yet...but no, it's not that at all; I have already said that I am in favour of this. I said so at the meetings at Goose Green, and I haven't found it necessary to change my views since, that I wanted six people to represent the Falkland Islands and to go into all this expense of two elections, the uncertainty that goes with it, that people won't know who they're going to vote for and when we add the expense of having a massive campaign of telling people what to do and when and how and why and all this sort of thing. We could have got an all elected council much more easily and certainly much more cheaply and I think we would have been a more united council had we been representing the Falklands and not just a part of the Falklands, because with the best will in the world, first loyalties are going to be to the few people who elected them. I really have no great objection, I just wanted to put my views to the meeting and it does seem a wee bit complicated to me that it should be divided up. I don't like the idea of divisions of anything in a small place anyway, because after all whatever goes on in this small community affects each and every one of us and each and every one of us, I believe, should be applying our aims and our thoughts and our time to solve the problems which affect all of us and not be worrying about a little corner of this small place. Your Excellency, these are my views on this Bill.

/to be to the few people

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I trust you will forgive me being an Official of this Council but I think it would be wrong if I didn't mention it. I have certain reservations on the new Constitution, but it is mainly with the mechanics of the thing. There is nothing in it which cannot be changed with regard to these reservations, we can change it any time; the main point which I have reservations on is the point which the Honourable Mr Edden has mentioned, that of splitting some of the areas up, particularly Stanley, dividing it into two sections which being such a small place I feel is completely unnecessary. However the people of Stanley have requested that this should be so and there is no harm in going ahead now and trying it; the same as the camps, probably the areas which have been selected -- probably we could have got the camp cut into three areas if need be -- I think that could have saved the need for two elections; however having made those points I think that it is a step forward, we are moving some way, let's go ahead and try it and if there is any improvement which we can make later on, well, we can find out by experience what is needed. But I would like to commend the Committee for the hard work they have put in, in particular the Chief Secretary and his staff, I know something of the work that has been put into it, and our two legal experts, I think it's quite fantastic the patience they've shown, and quite frankly, I think I'll stick to finance. I support the Motion.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I certainly take the points made by the Honourable the Financial Secretary and the Honourable Mr Edden. If we can have a simple mechanism - and unfortunately I am no mechanic - I am sure we should have. The main point I am sure about this Bill is that it does give us a greater degree of democracy, and this is what we should concentrate on. I think this supersedes and overrides the objections to the mechanics of the Bill, cumbersome as they may seem. I believe, too, that no matter how a councillor was elected, if he was elected for the Falkland Islands I have no doubt he would still get his ear bent on local problems just as much as if he was elected for a constituency. I don't think any councillor here, any councillor that I have known, has regarded himself except as a councillor for the Colony, with the interests of the Colony at heart. Naturally he puts forward the views expressed to him by his constituents but I am sure, and I say this without any doubt or misgivings at all, that no councillor in my knowledge has had anything but the Colony at the forefront of his mind whenever he has addressed this Council or in any of his duties.

/I was hoping that this

I was hoping that this problem of simplicity in the election might not be referred to but as it has it obviously is a worrying one and I think it is therefore worth a little time to try and explore what simpler arrangements might be possible.

I listened not so long ago to the 'box' and heard an exposition of a darts championship and frankly I felt that I would be placed in a very similar situation, or could be, because I was left, not being familiar with the procedure for darts matches, and not paying all that much attention to it, I was left in some doubt as to who was going to play who, and I am sure that the secretary who had to prepare that list will have sympathy with me in trying to explain an elections system.

The most simple way to elect a person - and I have had this put to me - is why cannot we just choose our man from a list presented to us. This is the simple way: you just choose your man. And I have heard it also said that if you have three people to be elected say for Stanley and there are five candidates, you can do it in two ways: each voter gets one vote and the candidates who receive more votes are elected; alternatively each voter can have three votes and all the votes are totted up and again, those who get the most votes are elected. Simple. Is it in fact as simple as that? If we look closely at this what emerges on the first system is, supposing candidate A gets 50% of the votes, candidate B gets say 25% and candidate C 10%. On my reckoning that is 85% of the votes. You have 50% of the electorate represented by one candidate and 35% represented by two candidates. You can have an even greater distortion.

If you do it by giving each voter three votes, what you have in effect is that each voter I think places his list of candidates in an order of priority, and I have no doubt that most of these voters will have one preferred candidate. Supposing it is A, and supposing 40% favour candidate A as their first choice, and supposing also that there is another strong candidate, B, who gets a very nearly similar amount of votes as to put him in first place. But it could be - and I don't think it is unlikely - that those who vote for A may not vote for B; in fact they may vote for C, D and E to keep B out; and those who vote for B may also vote for C, D and E to keep A out. This could happen. So I think what you can finish up with is that the persons who are the preferred voters don't get elected, but those do get elected who pick up what one might call the residual, or default, votes.

And I think it's rather like a horticultural show: if you go to a horticultural show you think well, you've got judges, they pick three roses, instantaneous. It's easy, nothing to it, why can't we do the same. But do they? I don't think they do. Do say, six judges, select rose A and say "this is the top rose, that will get first prize" and then those six withdraw and the four remaining elect rose B in second place, and then those judges retire and what is left elect the third rose? No. What they do is all vote for the first rose, then they all vote for the second rose and then they all vote for the third rose; so what looks like one election is in fact three. And I think this is the only way the owner of that rose can be certain that his rose has been elected by all the judges; and similarly I think this is the only way a candidate can get in and know that he has got there because he has been chosen in preference to other candidates and has not got there by picking up default votes.

/of that rose can be

I think these are the major objections. There are ways to overcome these by a complicated system of referred vote which they use in France - naturally...- but I am not sure that it is the sort of thing that we want here; it would be a complicated mathematical exercise and frankly I think people had this in mind when they decided that they would much prefer to be presented with a list of candidates and select one candidate from that list. Cumbersome as it may seem I think we probably achieved what is in fact the only sensible and the only practicable way of giving the electorate, who are not all that frequently confronted with an election, and if they have to choose three candidates from five, say, or any other sort of mechanism, I think this could be equally difficult or even more so than two elections. At least by being confronted by two elections and having to choose one candidate at each I think their job is simplified. Some people are presented with difficulties when they are presented with a ballot paper with a multiplicity of names and they have to choose a number of them.

I again apologise for such elaborate explanations; it obviously was a matter of some concern, Your Excellency, and I hope I may be forgiven for going over my time.

At the Committee stage the Bill was amended as follows -

In clause 1 by the deletion of all after the word "on" and the substitution therefor of the words "a date to be notified by His Excellency the Governor by publication in the official Gazette".

In clause 2 (b) by specifying the 15th day of July as being "qualifying day".

In clause 7 by the insertion of a third proviso (e) as follows -

"Provided further that a person born in the Colony who is normally resident in an electoral area or an electoral division shall be deemed to be resident therein on the qualifying day notwithstanding his absence from his electoral area or electoral division for a period not exceeding six months during the qualifying period."

In clause 8 (a) by specifying the date of publication of the register of electors as being the 15th day of September in each year.

In the Second Schedule by specifying the date in clause 2 as being the 21st day of June 1977.

In the Second Schedule by the deletion of the words "Villiers" where they appear in two places and the substitution therefor of the word "Dean".

In the Fifth Schedule by the addition of the following -

"Beaver Island, Carcass Island, Golding Island, Lively Island, New Island, Speedwell Island, West Point Island and any other island or place so designated by the Governor by notice in the Gazette."

The Bill was then read a third time and, subject to the above amendments, was passed.

STANLEY AIRPORT (REGULATIONS) BILL 1977

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, this Bill has had to be prepared rather quickly at a late date and Your Excellency has signified that you would be prepared to admit it to the Order Paper under a Certificate of Urgency which I now table.

The purpose of the Bill is to provide enabling powers for regulations to be made to control a number of matters connected with the general use of the Stanley Airport. I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, it is normal practice in operating an airport to have regulations which control or give power to Government to control by regulation the operation and supervision of other activities which take place at an airport. The Bill now before Council has been prepared by the Legal Office in conjunction with the advice from the Airport Superintendent, and Government believes it should be passed into law as soon as possible to enable the Governor-in-Council to make regulations for the effective control and operation of Stanley Airport when it opens in the near future. The lack of any such regulations would make it difficult to control the operation of the airport and would not enable us to impose fees. The draft regulations have already been compiled and will be brought to Executive Council at the next convenient opportunity. The Bill was considered in draft by Executive Council and remitted to this Council.

The list of matters with which the regulations will deal are established by clause 4 of the Bill; it is a fairly comprehensive list but of course regulations will be made as they are required and will not necessarily cover every item listed in this Bill, which I repeat is an enabling Bill. I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

The Financial Secretary seconded the Motion and Honourable Members spoke to the Motion as follows -

Mr A B Monk

I am sure the general purpose of the Bill is excellent, to control these things, and I would in no way wish to oppose it but it rather horrifies me to see in clause 2 which is "Interpretation" that we then have a list of interpretations of various word meanings, and since we spent the best part of an hour discussing the Interpretation and General Clauses Bill, which was supposed as I understood it to obviate the necessity for interpretation clauses in Bills, we were supposed to be able to look it all up in one place, and one of the very first bills we are asked to consider after that exercise is one which has an interpretation clause and words which are not in the General Clauses and Interpretation Bill. It seems to me that if we go on like this we will have a General Clauses and Interpretation Bill - or whatever the thing is called - and we will still have to look into the other Bills to see what things mean. I must say I deplore the necessity for that.

Mr A B Hadden

I support the Bill, Your Excellency. Obviously with an airport system such as we have any legislation necessary for the smooth running and preservation of such a site is absolutely necessary. I support the Bill.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, it is quite proper for the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland to draw our attention to the need for additional definitions so soon after we have recently discussed the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance, but I think there is in fact a distinction between the definition in clause 2 of this Bill and the definitions in the Interpretation and General Clauses. The Interpretation and General Clauses law is intended to be of a general nature, whereas these definitions relate to particular specific matters; there is for instance "airport" and I think that has to be described. It refers to an approved plan which will be signed and I table it now; it is a plan which delineates the area of the airport. "The Superintendent" means the Superintendent of Stanley Airport. This I think is a shorthand way of avoiding every time in the subsequent clauses where these things, "airport", "approved plan" and "superintendent" are referred to, to have to spell it out on each and every occasion. I take the Honourable Member's point but these are related to this particular Ordinance only and not to the general law. If they could be incorporated in the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance so much the better but that is, as I have said, intended to be more of a general portmanteau nature.

At the Committee stage the Bill was amended as follows -

Clause 4 (1)(k) was altered to read "the collection of airport revenues;".

Clause 4 (1)(l) was altered to read "the control of unauthorised buildings being erected in the take-off flight path area;".

In clause 6 (1)(b) and (c) by the deletion of the word "requirements" and the substitution therefor of the word "requirement".

The Bill was then read a third time and, subject to the above amendments, was passed.

INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) (No. 2) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, Members of this Council recognised some time ago the need for an economic survey of the Colony and this was undertaken by Lord Shackleton and his team, and one of the matters which was referred to Lord Shackleton was the need for tax reform in the Colony. One of the recommendations which comes from the report is for an increase in company tax and in capital allowances. The company tax proposal is that the rate should be increased from 40% to 45% and that a new system of depreciation allowances be introduced. This system has been drawn up for us by our very able income tax agent and adviser in the UK, Mr John Comben, and with your permission, Sir, I would read out passages from the letter in which he introduces this new system of depreciation.

/He writes:

He writes: "I think it is agreed that you need a new system. Your present arrangements are virtually those which existed in the United Kingdom before 1945. I think you need to repeal section 10.1(c) and rescind the relevant rules. I enclose my own suggestions for a new section 11 and a depreciation schedule. The scheme provides for annual allowances of only two rates; no initial allowances, with balancing allowances and charges when the asset is disposed of." He writes: "Your first reaction will probably be that to have only two rates, 10% for buildings and ships and 25% for the rest, is unduly simple and generous. If you do we can substitute more classes with more and lower rates; this is certainly negotiable. Perhaps I may remind you that applying any rate on a written down value basis you never in strict theory write off the whole of the cost. But the time taken to write off nine tenths of the cost is 22 years for the rate of 10% and 8 years for the rate of 25%. The following are some of the considerations I have in mind in drawing up my scheme: rapid writing off encourages capital re-equipment. It does take the place of the present initial allowances and to some extent has the same effect as the ill-fated profits tax investment allowance. If you have provision for a balancing charge when the asset is disposed of the annual rate is not so important since you will recover at that stage any excess depreciation you have given."

He goes on to say: "One of the criticisms of this system of writing off historical cost is that although it writes off the last item of plant to be bought it does not enable a trader to build up a fund to replace it by another item which, owing to inflation, will inevitably cost more." "This protest", he says, "used to be common in Britain, but I have not heard it since higher rates of annual allowances were introduced". And then he makes a very important point: "Having only two rates makes things very simple; this is so obvious that it needs no stressing".

I should mention the section referring to balancing allowances and balancing charges. This is an adjustment when the machinery or plant ceases to belong to the person, the trader, whether on sale or in any other event. The adjustments are made to ensure that the allowances previously made are either augmented or reduced so that the total allowances finally made will correspond with the net cost of the machinery or plant to the trader.

To sum up, this Bill proposes an increase of 5% in the company tax rate and a new system of depreciation allowances for all businesses, both companies and other bodies. I beg to move the first reading of the Bill.

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion and the Bill was read a first time.

/Financial Secretary

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, before moving the second reading of the Bill I lay on the table the Certificate of Urgency. I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

The Chief Secretary seconded the Motion and Honourable Members spoke as follows -

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I welcome the Bill. I think it's long overdue, we should have raised the rate before and also I think the industry will welcome the very much simpler rates for depreciation. Our present allowance is a bit of a jumble - it was to me anyway whenever I tried to apply it - and anyway when you have done it all you don't get much out of it in the end, so I think it is very welcome. I support the Bill.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I support this Bill too because this is one of the first Bills we have actually talked about in terms of simplification, because the rest have been so complicated this morning that I welcome the Bill for that reason alone, but I am sure that everybody will welcome this and it will encourage people to keep most of their profits here and will help us with our development.

Mr A E Hadden

Your Excellency, I am not very well versed in the matter of company taxation but from what I have heard in the last few minutes it sounds all right to me. I support the Bill.

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate, or amendment, and was passed.

INCOME TAX (AMENDMENT) (No. 3) BILL 1977

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, the income tax proposals made in the budget speech have already been welcomed in the Colony. It was intended that this Bill should only be taken to the second reading but as Members of this Council have said for a very long time that we need reforms in personal taxation, it is only right to consider taking it through at this meeting, and I therefore lay on the table the Certificate of Urgency.

I have mentioned that Councillors have made strong representations for a revision of the personal allowances - in fact we have been inundated: besides Members of this Council, Members of the Executive Council, bodies like the General Employees' Union, the Civil Servants' Association; these requests are understandable. With erosion of money values which is now going on throughout the world, the real values of the allowances are constantly reduced and there is natural pressure for increasing the allowances. But the question of increases in allowances really depends on the calculation of the loss of revenue. Can the Government afford it, or, more precisely, will the Government be able to afford it in the coming year?

/After much consideration

After much consideration and a mass of tables and estimates prepared by the Income Tax Officer, a scheme has been devised which allows a considerable improvement in the present tax allowances. But it has been necessary to revise the rates of tax and the scales which are proposed in this Bill emanate from the Shackleton Report.

The scheme is particularly favourable to the lower paid family man. During the course of the Select Committee meeting on the Estimates the matter was discussed in detail and a further amendment was proposed: that we should increase the limit of the wife's earned income relief from £100, which I announced at the presentation of the Budget, to £200.

I will run through the proposals to increase the allowances:

The personal allowance, from £230 to £350 - this is the allowance which every taxpayer enjoys;

Allowance for wife, from £180 to £300;

Allowance for a child, from £130 to £250;

Allowance for a child at school overseas, £150 to £280;

Earned income relief maximum to be increased from £500 to £750;

The dependent relative allowance from £130 to £250;

Old Age relief, which currently applies when the income is below £600, will if the Bill passes apply when the income is below £900.

The deduction in respect of a female relative taking charge of children is increased from £100 to £150, and the Bill provides for a new deduction for wife's earned income relief, which is at the rate of one fifth of the wife's earned income with a maximum of £200.

The new tax scale is increased on the first £500 of chargeable income from 15% to 17½%; on the next £500 from 20% to 22½%; on the following £500 from 25% to 27½%; on the next £1,000 35%, on the following £1,000 40% and then another £1,000 at 45% and the remainder at 50%.

I must point out at this stage that it is proposed to review the value of benefits in kind and revise them upwards. This was last done in the late 1960s and this is a further recommendation of the Shackleton Report. However this is done in the Executive Council and then brought to this Legislative Council for approval. This will be done as soon as we possibly can. The proposal has already been considered in Executive Council informally and it has been suggested approximately a 50% increase in the value of benefits in kind, with the exception of the single person who lives in the cook-house, and it is intended that he should remain at the same. This has been recommended at this stage because it is thought that the family man already benefits greatly from this Bill.

/There is a small amendment

There is a small amendment which I will have to make at the Committee stage. This is due to an inadvertent omission of the personal allowance from the Bill. This wasn't intended but if I allow it to go through I am sure that Council will not be very popular.

On the proposal of the Financial Secretary, seconded by the Chief Secretary, the Bill was read a first time.

The Financial Secretary then moved the second reading and Honourable Members spoke to the Motion as follows -

Chief Secretary

I would like to congratulate the Treasury staff on an excellent job done under great pressure. This does, as the Honourable the Financial Secretary has said, Your Excellency, reflect the desire of this Council to do something, particularly for the income tax payer in the lower brackets, and we have looked, as we all know, at several tables - all compiled in the Treasury - before we finally found one that is we think ideal and meets all the requirements and I am sure it will be greatly welcomed throughout the Colony. I beg to support the Motion.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I certainly support this Bill. We all have vested interests in the thing. It is unfortunate of course that the lower income groups will start paying tax at far too low a level but we do have a very real problem here. There is only a small number of taxpayers and there is not a very large spread as it were in the incomes. We don't have a large number of very highly paid people that could bear more the burden and I am quite certain that the Financial Secretary has really made a very good job of trying to balance these various things. I was a bit horrified to see nothing about personal allowances, I must say, and really thought the Financial Secretary was trying to pull a fast one on us, but however it was a printing error so I am quite happy to accept his statement that we are going to have an amendment and it will be inserted. I am very happy to support the Bill and I congratulate the Financial Secretary on it.

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, on behalf of my constituents, especially the tax-paying constituents, I would like wholeheartedly to congratulate the Financial Secretary for his work and that of his staff in producing this Bill for us. I think this is one of the biggest steps forward that we have made for many years, one which will be welcomed - at least I've had no complaints yet, and I don't think I will get any. I think it is something that this outgoing Council will be remembered for. I would like to wholly support the Motion, Sir.

Mr A B Madden

Your Excellency, I have no complaints either and I would like to add my congratulations to the Financial Secretary and his staff for doing so much homework. We had a look at these figures the other day and they obviously weren't compiled in five minutes. I agree with the observations of the Honourable Mr Monk and I would like to support the Bill wholeheartedly.

/Financial Secretary

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, I wish to thank Honourable Members for their kind remarks and I will certainly pass them on to the Income Tax Officer as well.

The point raised by the Elected Member for East Falkland I have taken; I accept the fact that some of the small incomes are still taxed. I think it is a very important point that he has made. This Bill is not necessarily the end of the road, we can make further adjustments from time to time and we are fortunate in having Mr Pepper, who will be arriving in the Colony shortly, and he may have some further improvement which we can add to our income tax law - for instance it may be possible to introduce a new section into our Old Age Pensions Ordinance, perhaps a small income relief. This may overcome some of the problems. However I will refer the matter to him and I thank the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland for raising it.

There is one point which I should make certain and so that it is absolutely clear exactly when this Ordinance comes into operation. In the Income Tax office we always talk in terms of the year of assessment; the year of assessment for which this will apply will be the 1st of January 1978, but the year of assessment 1978 really means incomes for 1977, so therefore the Ordinance will take effect from the commencement of the year of assessment 1st January 1978 but it will be on the 1977 incomes.

At the Committee stage the Bill was amended as follows -

In clause 3 by the renumbering of paragraph (d) as paragraph (e) and the insertion of a new paragraph (d) as follows -

"(d) in subsection (4) by deleting "£230" and substituting "£350"."

The Bill then proceeded through its remaining stages without further debate or amendment and was passed.

Chief Secretary

Before we move to the next item on the Order Paper, Your Excellency, it might be appropriate in view of the excellent work that the Education Committee has been doing in the past months and the need for continuity, to seek Your Excellency's permission for this Committee to continue in being in an advisory capacity until Legislative Council is next elected. I think it is absolutely essential that this continuity should be preserved and Government must be carried on. There is no provision unfortunately in our Standing Rules and Orders for a Standing Committee to continue during a recess; such rules apply only to the Select Committees but I think this could be done administratively.

The President

I fully agree that the Committee should carry on its work.

/Mr A B Monk

Mr A B Monk

On behalf of the Committee, Sir, I would like to thank the Chief Secretary and yourself for your kind words and I am sure we will be pleased to do all we can.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I beg to move that this House stands adjourned sine die.

The Motion was seconded by the Honourable the Financial Secretary and Honourable Members spoke to the Motion as follows -

Mr W E Bowles

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. I wish to draw the attention of Councillors at this Motion of Adjournment to the future. First of all I would like too, on behalf of everyone in the Colony, to extend good wishes to the Honourable A B Monk, together with our able Secretary, Mr Bill Etheridge, to their forthcoming Commonwealth Parliamentary Association conference in Ottawa, in Canada. I am sure we all agree that they will do their best to impress on all Commonwealth representatives our case for their support.

I think we should not forget the services of our legal adviser, Mr Fred Cooke, whose work has been extremely valuable to us, both here and in the United Kingdom, and as he is leaving on Thursday may we wish him God-speed.

Referring to the new Constitution, unity and the future. The Bill we passed this morning is a step into the future. The divisions and the areas were proposed solely for elections. In no way were divisions envisaged after the election - we do not want them.

Ted Rowlands and his team have successfully negotiated in Buenos Aires and London, and in Stanley, that in future talks the Falkland Islands will be represented and perhaps an undesirable triangle may develop into a desirable circle.

In conclusion it must be unique for you too, Sir, as an incoming Governor, to have to face an outgoing Council, and I would like to extend my appreciation to all my colleagues both official, nominated and elected. Especially the officials who, at times, are battered - with work rather than in fact - by Councillors, and have always managed to weather the storm. Sir, I beg to support the Motion for Adjournment.

Mr A B Monk

Your Excellency, Honourable Members. In speaking to the Motion for Adjournment I don't want to say very much because I think I have probably said too much about other matters at various times. The meeting has been very long, too long really, because we have too few meetings; this is just one of my minor complaints. This Council had too few meetings. Of course there have been transport problems to put it mildly,

/and if future Councils have and if future Councils have more meetings that might be one of the problems they will have to sort out. It is very difficult.

I think at last we are heading the right way, we are heading for democracy. It has been quite a hard and long battle to put these Constitution bills through but it was worth fighting for and in spite of my Honourable Friend's fears I think Falkland Islanders will know how to vote and who to vote for and if he or I are on the next Council at least we will have been both elected there.

I think we have seen a move forward in our taxation policy and as far as our 1977-78 estimates are concerned, there are two things in them, amongst a multitude of figures, that please me very much: a very much larger sum set aside for loans, £25,000. I think future Councils should seriously consider increasing this even above this figure to encourage people to take up loans and start farming and other businesses. The other thing that has pleased me is the transfer to Development funds of £200,000 from General Revenue, because that shows to the outside world that we are making some effort to find our own funds for development and not just spending our time asking for hand-outs from other people.

A lot more has got to be done, I think, in the fiscal field, we are of course going to get expert advice, and I hope it will lead to a tax on money flowing out of the Colony, and lead perhaps to some sort of Government development bonds which people can invest in instead of sending the money away, development bonds paying a rate of interest slightly below world rates. I think we want more sophisticated compulsory land purchase powers; there is an Ordinance I believe but it is relatively unsophisticated, it doesn't really cover the situation as we want it. I think we want this so that we can acquire areas suitable for development if it is in the Colony's interests.

I think above all though, at the moment, we want better communications, better radio and telephone links and of course better transport facilities. I am absolutely certain that if we are to develop, better transport is a must and I am convinced that only roads and a ferry link to the West will really open up the door to development. In the short term the air service is essential to all of us; in the long term I think roads are far more important if we are ever to have rural development, with the air service being mainly for a medical and mail service to isolated communities.

No matter which of the main problems confronting us one gives first priority to, they are formidable; I believe we can overcome them. I have sufficient faith in the people here to want to retire here when I get too old to work and since retiring means delegating authority to younger people, it means having faith in them, in my view. I believe if we are resolute, watchful and sensible we can overcome our political problem. There is an enormous amount of hard work ahead yet for everybody to ensure that the Colony prospers as a British country for the foreseeable future. Besides work it also calls for a common sense approach to trade and other links with our neighbours.

/I think this may well be

I think this may well be the last meeting of this Council, therefore I would like to thank the East Falkland electorate for making me their representative in the last election. I would also like to thank Government officials who often come in for much criticism and seldom for thanks. I would like to say that while I have not always agreed with administration policy and views I have had a tremendous amount of help and advice from individual Government officials. I would also like to thank the Honourable Elected Member for Stanley for his kind words and I would try to put our points of view with regard to sovereignty and in all other respects across to the Commonwealth delegates at the Commonwealth Parliamentary meeting in Ottawa.

I would like to support the Motion for Adjournment.

Mr A B Hadden

Your Excellency, Honourable Members, I don't intend to say a lot because we are very shortly to be dissolved and I would not really try and influence the next Council, but I do want to emphasise unity. Honourable Members will no doubt remember the call for unity that thundered out of this Chamber just twelve months ago and that was fine, the call was taken up and we noticed that people listened and one heard that we should not show any signs of disunity in any respect whatever. The need for unity within this Council, the need for unity within the Administration, the need for unity within the Colony; we still need this unity. I believe we need it more today than we did twelve months ago. I believe also that we will need it more in the months that lie ahead. We demonstrated this unity during the visit of Ted Rowlands MP and we did it with such earnestness and dignity that the Minister took with him a very favourable and lasting impression of this Colony and the folk who live here. Such an expression of unity can do nothing but good for all of us. We as a Council are called upon to make decisions on matters which, if we are honest, we often don't know much about, but we accept with our acceptance of a seat in this Council that we have to apply ourselves to the problems and produce what we honestly believe to be the best answer. We are not specialists, nor do we have ready access to specialists. We cannot just pick up the telephone when we have a problem and say 'what do we do about this'. However we do have access to specialists, but unfortunately they are most of the time in London or elsewhere. So that even if we do apply, and we often do get from these very eminent people the answers to the questions, to the problems, it just takes a little bit longer. So for the future I would only ask that the population, the people who are interested in the Colony, show a little more patience and consideration for the work that goes on in Council. I understand that it is difficult for them to appreciate what goes on because it's never been tried by them, but a little more patience, a little more understanding, would go a long way to help the Councillors to get on with their job.

It remains for me, Sir, to thank you for your patience, for your guidance and all the other help you have been giving us during my one year in office, and my thanks also go to the Chief Secretary, the Financial Secretary and every other officer of Government who has without batting an eyelid, if you like, always been so helpful; they have never considered it any trouble to advise me and I am sure the rest of Council Members. I would add my good wishes to the Honourable Adrian and Bill for their trip to Canada. I am sure we haven't got to worry about the Falkland Islands flag flying over Ottawa and I am sure the repercussions will find their way back here before too long.

/Your Excellency,

Your Excellency, I would like to support the Motion. I might maybe some day find a little niche in history, maybe when the third or fourth generation will be looking through the history books of the Falkland Islands they will say, "who was that fellow Hadden? I see he was the last person ever to be nominated to the Legislative Council of the Falkland Islands", and someone will say, "well, I can remember my great great grandad saying 'that will be the fellow we never could understand'", Thank you very much.

Financial Secretary

Your Excellency, first of all I would like to associate myself with the good wishes expressed by the Honourable Elected Member for Stanley for the visit to Ottawa of the Honourable Mr A B Monk and Mr Bill Etheridge. I wish them every success and I am sure that we will be well represented there. I also wish to thank Honourable Members for what they have said and also I would like to thank Honourable Members for the patience that they have shown towards the Financial bureaucrat! I must say that I not only thank the Members sitting here today, but I thank the Honourable L G Blake, the Honourable John Smith and the Honourable F L Bound in their absence. I trust that we'll see some of them back at this table again, even though they may make it a bit more difficult for me! Thank you, Sir. I support the Motion.

Chief Secretary

Your Excellency, I have already spoken too much today and I don't wish to draw the proceedings out over-long, but I cannot let the opportunity pass to thank my Honourable Friends for their very kind words and for their expressions of support for the Administration. Neither can I forget that they have said that a lot of the facility with which our work has been conducted is due entirely to your efforts, Your Excellency. And they have also said that we have reached a milestone, or a turning point, and I am quite sure that this is so. They have played a most important part in giving a new drive and impetus to the programme for the Colony which I am sure will be an example to the Council when it convenes after the next election.

I find it in a sense a very sad occasion that perhaps I shall be saying good-bye to some Councillors who may not return, or who may not want to return - I would not like to conjecture about that - but I have at all times found my association with Councillors a most agreeable and most helpful one; without their cooperation, their guidance and their criticism, I don't think the work of this Council could have been achieved in the way that it has been. It is comforting to know that there are many stimulating new ideas still to emerge from Councillors, and we have heard some of these referred to just now by the Honourable Elected Member for East Falkland, and I would like to reassure him that these are very much on Government's mind and some even on the stocks.

I would also like, Sir, to perhaps draw an analogy that as in any anthology, often the gems are by the 'anons' and I would like to thank the anons of this Colony, the ones who patiently and with great understanding, even fortitude, sustained the trials and tribulations that we have had to endure during recent months. Without their uncomplaining support Government could not have functioned in this very difficult period in the way it has done, so to the 'anons' I am sure on behalf of myself and all my colleagues I would like to say thank you.

But most of all, Sir, I am sure that if there is any benefit - and I am sure there is some derived by the work of this Council, particularly during this sitting - it is mainly attributable to the excellent work of Councillors but most of all to your own wise guidance, Sir.

The President

Thank you, Honourable Members. Before I adjourn the House I would just like to say a few words.

In my opening address I said that I would be an apprentice President; well, every now and again the apprentice has dropped his tools; I don't think I've hurt anybody's toes particularly but there have been one or two slips from up here on the table, readily corrected I am glad to say by my Honourable Friend the Chief Secretary. But I have learned a great deal from sitting here through this sitting; I am almost getting to the point of moving Bills in my sleep, I think I have almost got the words off pat, and I can only promise that at the next session of Council I will hope to have passed out of the apprentice stage and become a junior tradesman. I think for me it has been a very valuable experience indeed, my first Council meeting; I certainly learned a great deal both about the work of Council and I have learned a great deal I think more about our island affairs.

We got through a very heavy workload efficiently, expeditiously and yet thoroughly. I regarded it as mainly clearing the decks for the future. We have removed, passed into legislation, a number of bills which had to be passed, are necessary, and now we can get on to the more forward looking programme that we all want to see. And of course this sitting is also most important because of its budget content, and I think we have produced a good budget, a socially conscious budget and a forward looking budget, which has made the most of our very slender resources and I think points a way to the future and for this, as Honourable Members have already said, we are indebted to the Honourable the Financial Secretary who has seemed to work unceasingly for the past several weeks; the light has been on in his office almost, it seems, night and day, I have even seen him going home at one o'clock in the morning - when I should have myself been tucked up in bed, but I was coming back from a party.

We have had a good budget and we are now looking to the future; we have had some good debates, many wise things have been said, many helpful things have been said. I would just like to perhaps comment on one or two of them.

It was mentioned earlier that we get a plethora of experts and advisers and reports. Well, we do. I think if all the reports were laid end to end or on top of each other they would probably reach the height of this building. There does seem to be a tendency whenever we come up against a problem we send for an expert. And it was said that there is a lot of expert knowledge in the Islands. I thoroughly agree. There is; a great deal of it. I am always coming up against it. There is enough knowledge here in the Islands not to do away with the external expert, but to support, to build up the information the external expert needs; not an expert, a technician I think we really ought to call these people. But there is a great deal of knowledge in the Islands; I was very impressed with it. But we've got to get it out; we've got to encourage it, and that was why I suggested we should expand our committee system, not just to have more committees to whom we can pass our problems and so we can forget them, but committees or bodies of people, islanders, who would be involved in finding the solution to our problems.

One special external expert I well remember some years ago, a very senior civil servant in another territory, a developing country, quite an expert himself, but he said: "We are sick and tired of people coming here to tell us what our problems are"; he said: "We know what our problems are", and, he said, "coming here to tell us what the solutions are; we know what the solutions are. What we want is somebody to come and give us the technical help and get down with us to doing what needs to be done." Now there I think is the way we should look upon visiting experts here. We shall have to have survey teams, feasibility studies, pre-investment studies, call them what you will, while we are dependent on overseas sources for much of our development finance. It is just one of those things that go with getting money from other people. But we can do a great deal ourselves.

And on our legislation programme, admittedly we had Bills which seemed not to be particularly relevant to our immediate needs but I think in debate it has been shown that they are useful. But in future we do want legislation, this has been suggested during this sitting, on a number of matters which are directly related to our progress and I have already asked the Legal Adviser to prepare skeleton and draft Bills on a number of matters, on the retention of funds, on land control, on other financial and taxation affairs, and we already have drafted Bills that we should be looking at with the advice of Councillors in Executive Council and against any technical advice we get, such as from the Fiscal Adviser and others. But this is something that in the interregnum as it were we must press on with.

Now I would like to pay a few tributes. I paid in my opening address tribute to the help I had already received from Councillors both in Legislative Council and Executive Council; this has been reinforced during this session: my thanks are even greater. I particularly would like to thank - of course not that I don't expect to see them again - the Nominated Members, whose places will disappear under our New Constitution. And I think Councillor Hadden can be assured he has found a niche in history. He certainly found a very strong niche in my respect for him and I would hope that some time in the future, I don't want to have any influence at all on what might happen later in the year, but I would hope that some time in the future we might see him again in our Council affairs in a sufficiently respectable role, sufficient enough to satisfy the Honourable Member for East Falklands of his proper credentials; but I don't think even then it could improve his ability to offer sound and effective advice. I am also glad that Councillors Monk and Bowles will still be with me through the interregnum, if one may call it that, on my Executive Council, and I shall continue to value their advice.

/I have already mentioned

I have already mentioned the Financial Secretary and the good work he and his staff put on the Budget; also the great help the Chief Secretary has been to me both in preparing for this session and very quietly from down there guiding me through it, and has kept my paper going splendidly. At the end of the day I looked at it and wondered just where I was in it but we have managed between us to keep it straight; and also I would like to thank our legal counsellors, the Registrar of the Supreme Court, Mr Bennett, and the Legal Adviser, Mr Cooke, who between them have produced these excellent drafts of Bills which we've been working upon. And I think I might also add a word of thanks to our radio experts at the far end of the room who have been recording our voices, I won't exactly say for posterity, but at least for an evening audience. And I would add my good wishes to Councillor Monk and to our Clerk, Bill Etheridge, to wish them God-speed on their journey to Canada.

And in conclusion I would like to say that I too have the greatest optimism for the future. We are short of most things in the Islands except problems, we've got plenty of problems, but we're short of pretty well everything else, but problems can be overcome if there is a will to overcome them, and I am quite sure that at this point in time we not only have the will but the capacity to move forward into a different, more prosperous era.

Thank you again, Honourable Councillors. I adjourn the House sine die.
